D Either, vpon leuitie, to ſee ſtrange ſights and faſhions: Or, being malefactors, flie from their due puniſhment: Or, being in debt, goe away to deceiue their Creditors: Or, being vaine-glorious, to make themſelues knowne: Or, being at enmitie, to fight combats, or to kill their enemie;

All theſe, and all ſuch like, can haue no comfort in their trauailes: for they ſend themſelues, God ſent them not: they are out of Gods protection, becauſe they goe without his warrant. And as many of them as goe away to eſcape the hand of the Magiſtrate; let them be aſſured they ſhall not eſcape the hand of God.

In the fourth place, here is a comfort for all ſuch as are baniſhed from their owne natiue Countries, for God and his Goſpels ſake. For, here Abraham the Prince of Patriarkes, A was a baniſhed man, and liued in a ſtrange Country, the greater part of all his life. Let ſuch men therefore take patiently what God laieth vpon them: for it is not their miſery or miſhap alone, but hath beene common to Gods children in all ages. Againe, Chriſt himſelfe pronounceth them bleſſed, who ſuffer perſecution for righteouſneſſe ſake: for, though they bee exiles from their owne kingdome, or toſſed vp and downe the kingdomes of the earth, yet theirs is the kingdome of heauen, Matth. 5. 10.

Laſtly, though this commandement was perſonally directed to Abraham, and concernes not vs as it did him: yet it hath his force and B vſe euen to vs. For, though we are not to goe out of our Countrie, and leaue our liuings and habitations: yet we muſt doe that that is proportionable hereunto. That which is commanded to Salomons wife, is to all Chriſtians; Harken O daughter, and conſider, incline thine eare, forget thine own kindred, and thy fathers houſe: ſo ſhall the King take pleaſure in thy beauty. Pſal.45.10, 11. This wife of Salomon, is the ſoule of euery Chriſtian, the ſpouſe of Chriſt the true Salomon who by nature is daughter to heathen Pharaoh, that is, to ſinne, corruption, and wrath: but, beeing maried to Chriſt, muſt forget her owne kindred and Fathers houſe, that is, their owne nature and naturall affections, and carnall deſires: and then ſhall Chriſt our King, and ſpirituall husband, take pleaſure in vs, and reioyce to doe vs good. And this is the chieſe trauaſing of all, C and moſt acceptable to God, when a man goeth out of himſelſe, and denieth his owne deſires to obey God, and to ſerue Chriſt Ieſus.

Thus we ſee the matter of his obedience; Now followeth the ende:

Which he ſhould after receiue for inheritance.

The ſecond particular in his obedience, is the Ende, why he went out of his owne Country; to inherit another, that is, the land of Canaan, called elſe-where the land of Promiſe, becauſe God promiſed it vnto him, and to his ſeede. Now Abraham at Gods commandement, went out of his owne Country into this place, to inherite it, and to take poſſeſſion of it.

D But it may be obiected, He inherited it not; yea furthermore, Stephen ſaith, Act. 7. 4. God brought him in, but gaue him no inheritance in it, no not the bredth of a foote.

I anſwer, though Abraham did not inherite it perſonally himſelſe, yet he may be ſaid to inherite it two wayes:

1. Sacramentally, or Myſtically:
2. In his poſterity.

Firſt, Sacramentally thus; The land of Canaan, is to be vnderſtood, not onely as a Country of Aſia, fruiteſull and fertile, and plentifull of all good things, wherein the onely viſible Church was confirmed till Chriſts comming. But further, as a Type of the heauenly Canaan, where the triumphant Church raignes in glory with God. And thus Abraham did in his owne perſon inherite it: for he was tranſlated from this world, after his death, into the glory of heauen. And in that reſpect, the glorie of heauen is rather called the boſome of Abraham, Luke 16. then of any other the Patriarkes, both for the excellencie of his faith, as alſo for that the promiſe of inheriting the land of Canaan, was firſt of all (perſonally) made to him; which becauſe he enioyed not, he was recompenced with the fruition of the true Canaan.

From hence, we learne a notable doctrine: That God in performing of his promiſes, giueth not oftentimes the verie particular thing promiſed, but ſomething equiualent, or proportionable to it, or elſe better. Thus in the fift commandement, obedient children are promiſed by God long life, as a reward for honouring their Parents. Now when hee takes them away in their beſt age, as hee did Ioſias, 2. Kings 22. 10. he giueth them eternall life, which is not onely proportionable, but farre exceeding the thing promiſed. So here, he promiſeth Abraham the land of Canaan; but when it comes to the performance, he giues him a better, euen the true Canaan, the kingdome of heauen.

The vſe hereof, is to teach vs wiſedome for the true diſcerning of Gods mercifull performance of his promiſes: for he performeth them not alwayes one way vnto his children: ſometime he giueth the particular thing promiſed, as vnto the children of Iſrael, their deliuerance out of Egypt: vnto Hezekiah, the reſtoring of his health, and ſuch like. Sometime he giueth not it, but ſomething which ſhall be as good or better vnto his children: as, when they are in ſome great danger, and craue deliuerance, or in ſome neceſſitie, and haue promiſe of ſupplie; God oftentimes deliuereth thē not, but giueth them patience, and feeling of his fauour in ſuch ſort, as is many degrees more comfortable vnto them. And herein God heareth their prayers, and performeth his promiſe to them, to their full contentation.

Secondly, Abraham inherited Canaan in his poſteritie. For though God promiſed it to himſelfe, when he was 75. yeares old, Gen. 12. 4. and to him and to his ſeede, Gen. 15. 7. yet neither he nor his immediate ſeede enioyed it, but his poſteritie the Iſraelites, 430. yeares after the promiſe, as S. Paul prooueth, Galat. 3. 17. And ſo Abraham inherited it in his poſteritie, which is a part of him; and they inherited it many hundreth yeares, euen vntill the comming of Chriſt.

As afore we learned, that God in the performance of his promiſes, giueth not alwaies the thing promiſed: ſo here let vs learne that he doth not alwaies performe them to the ſame parties, and yet moſt truly performeth them. If therefore God doth not to our ſelues, nor in our times accompliſh his promiſes, or prophecies, we muſt not be impatient, but wait in patience. For as the Prophet ſaith, The viſion is yet for an appointed time, but at the laſt it ſhall ſpeak and not lie: though it tary, waite for it; it ſhall ſurely come and ſhall not ſtay, Habba. 2. 3. To this ende Dauid alſo moſt diuinely ſaith, Pſal. 97. 11. Light is ſowen for the righteous, and ioy for the vpright in heart. See light and ioy belongs vnto them: but how? It is ſowen, that is, it is in hope and expectation, and not alwaies in fruition. Therefore as the Husbandman caſts his ſeede into the earth, and is content to ſtay almoſt a ful yeere without it, or any profit of it, and yet is patient all that while, becauſe hee is ſure it will come, and bring encreaſe with it. So muſt we waite patiently on the Lord, & know that whatſoeuer he hath promiſed, we or ours after vs, ſhall be ſure to enioy it. And though we doe not, what great matter is it, if our children doe? For, We know, that oftentimes the Father ſoweth, and dieth ere the harueſt, and ſo the ſonne reapeth. So for Gods great and gracious promiſes, which are ſowen vnto the Fathers; if themſelues do not, their children are ſure to reape the cōfortable harueſt of performance. And thus we ſee how Abraham inherited the land of Canaan; which is called the land of Promiſe, becauſe it was ſo long, and ſo often promiſed to ſo many great Patriarkes.

In the ſecond place, it is to be obſerued, when God promiſed this vnto Abraham; euen then when the land of Canaan was poſſeſſed by many mightie Kings: So that it may be here further doubted, how Abraham could take any comfort in this promiſe, ſeeing it was at that day held by almoſt 40. Kings greater and leſſe: as we may ſee in Ioſhua, Chap. 10. 11. 12. and further, The people were many, and ſtrong: the Cities were well walled, and full of huge Giants, Num. 13. 28. 29. Yet for all this, he not onely beleeues and obeyeth; but as God promiſed, ſo he went to it, and tooke poſſeſſion, and died in this faith, that God would performe his promiſe, and that his poſterity ſhould inherit it all, as afterward indeede they did, euen from Moſes to Chriſt. If it be asked how this could be: the anſwer is, that Abraham knewe that God was King of Kings, and had the world, and Kingdomes of the world in his hand and diſpoſition: and therefore aſſured himſelfe, that he could bring to paſſe what he had promiſed, and make good his word, notwithſtanding all ſuch impediments to the contrary. And as hee beleeued, it came to paſſe; his poſteritie came to it, entred as conquerers, vpon this gift of God: and, by the power of God, ſo amazed all theſe Kings and their people, as ſome ſubmitted, as the Gibeonits; and they that did not, were all ſlaine, and their Countries conquered, as we may reade at large in the booke of Ioſhua: all the Stories whereof are briefly comprehended by Dauid in fewe words, where he ſaith, Wee haue heard with our eares, our Fathers haue told vs, how thou O Lord droue out the heathen with thy hand, & planted them in: how thou deſtroyed the people, and made them grow, Pſal. 44. 1. 2.

Out of which, we learne two inſtructions.

Firſt, that the change of States, and alteration of Kingdoms or common-wealths, are in Gods hand: and that hee can turne them one way or other, as it pleaſeth him. To this purpoſe, ſaith Dauid, in the fore-named Pſalme, They inherited not the land by their owne ſword, neither did their owne arme ſaue them: but thy right hand, and thy arme, and the light of thy countenance becauſe thou didſt fauour them.

This muſt teach vs to pray earneſtly, in our daiely prayers, for the good eſtate of this Kingdome, wherein wee liue; and of that worthy Prince and Queene, vnder whoſe gouerment, we haue beene ſo long, and ſo liberally bleſſed. For, the welfare and proſperity, the certainty and ſecurity of it and her, is not in our policie, might, munition, ſhips: not in the ſtrength of our nauie, nor in the power of our armour, nor in the chiualrie of our people, nor in the wiſedome of our Counſell (though for all theſe we are a people honoured of our friends, and feared of our enemies): But in the mighty hand of our God, who (as Dauid ſaith) beareth rule ouer the Kingdomes of the earth, and giueth them to whomſoeuer he will, Dan. 4. 22.

Seeing therefore the King of heauen is the giuer and eſtabliſher, the remoouer and changer of Kingdomes of the earth; let vs aſſure our ſelues, that the prayers of Eliſha, are the Horſes and Chariots of Iſraell: 2. Kinges, 13. 14.

And ſurely, if Eliſha for his prayer was acknowledged by the King himſelfe, to be his Father; then doubtleſſe, the godly Miniſters, and ſuch other in our Church, as pray daily for the peace of our Ieruſalem, are worthy to be accounted good children of our Church, and worthy members of our State.

Secondly, here we learne what is the ruine of Kingdomes, and ouerthrow of eſtates: namely, ſinne and vngodlineſſe. This is moſt apparant in the preſent example. For, why did God take this land from the Cananites, and giue it to Abraham and his ſeede? the Stories of the olde Teſtament anſwer, nothing but ſinne. In Deuteronomie, Moſes chargeth the Iſraelites, that they doe not after the abhominations of the heathen Cananites: For, ſaith he, becauſe of their abhominable ſinnes God did caſt them out before you, Deut. 18. 9. 12. And why did not God inſtantly giue it to Abraham (to inherite) after the promiſe? euen becauſe the wickedneſſe of theſe Amorites was not then full, Gen. 15. 16. that is, their ſinnes were not then ripe. For, we muſt know, that though God be the abſolute and ſoueraigne Lord of all Kingdomes, and may diſpoſe them as hee will: yet he rather exerciſeth his Iuſtice then his power; and neuer ouerturneth any State, but vpon cauſe of their apparant ſinfulneſſe. Nor can the Amorites or Cananites pleade herein any hard meaſure. For, the ſame God, dealt afterward in the ſame Iuſtice with his owne people, giuing the Kingdome of Iudah to the Chaldeans, and Iſrael to the Aſſyrians: and the cauſe is laide downe moſt memorably in the Storie; When the Iſraelites ſinned againſt the Lord their God, and walked after the faſhions of the heathen, whome the Lord had caſt out before them, and did ſecretly things that were wicked, & made Images, and ſerued Idols: and though God warned them by his Prophets, yet would they not obey, but hardned their neckes, and ſo finally, left all the commandements of God; then the Lord was exceeding wroth with Iſrael, and caſt them alſo out of his ſight, 2. Kings, 17. from the ſeauenth verſe to the 19. Thus ſinne is able to ouerturne Kingdomes, be they Cananites, Iſraelites, or whoſoeuer.

Let this teach vs all to looke to our liues, and make conſcience of all ſinnes, eſpecially great & capitall, and crying ſinnes: for the ſinnes of a people are wormes and Cankers, eating out the life and ſtrength of a common-wealth. And let our State and gouernment learne here to looke to the reformation of our people, eſpecially for great ſinnes. For, open profaneneſſe, or vncleanneſſe, or oppreſſions, or iniuſtice, or extortions, or cruelties, & exactions; all theſe, or any of theſe ſinnes, raigning in a State, are able to ouerturne the beſt eſtabliſhed Kingdome on the earth, and will at laſt (doe power and policie what they can) make the land ſpewe out her inhabitants: and in that meane time (let the wily wits of men, iudge as they liſt) it will prooue true, that the ſinfull and profane man is the worſt, and the godly and conſcionable man, the beſt friend to a State, and beſt ſubiect in a Kingdome.

Thus much for the ſecond point in Abrahams obedience; namely, the ende of it.

The third and laſt point, is the manner of his obedience: which followeth in theſe words:

And hee went out, not knowing whither he went.

The manner of this his leauing his Country, in mans reaſon would ſeeme ſtrange; nay, the world will condemne it for plaine fooliſhneſſe, for a man to leaue a certainty, for an vncertainty. But it may here be doubted, how the Apoſtle can here ſay, that he knew not whether hee went; ſeeing theſe words are not in the Storie of the old Teſtament: doth not that practiſe allow traditions beſide Scripture?

I anſwer firſt; We refuſe no traditions, which are agreeable to the Scripture, and analogie of faith: but ſuch as are agreeable to one of theſe, wee receiue them, though not as Scripture.

Secondly, if the Apoſtles in the new Teſtament doe adde any thing in any Storie, which is not in the olde (as S. Paul doth the names of the Sorcerers of Egypt, Iannes and Iambres, 2. Timo. 3. 8) that circumſtance by them ſo added, is to be holden as Scripture and no tradition; becauſe they hauing the ſame ſpirit of God, which the Writters of the olde Teſtament had, haue inſerted it into the bodie of A Scripture: euen as the three ſentences of the heathen Poets, alledged by Saint Paul (Acts 17. 28. 1. Corinthians, 15. 33. Titus, 1. 12.) haue now a diuine truth in them, which they had not before.

But yet will ſome ſay, the Apoſtles had theſe things from the olde Teſtament by tradition; ſeeing they were not written.

I anſwer: We may ſafely graunt it, and yet our cauſe loſeth nothing, though it may be they had them by inſpiration, and not by tradition; that beeing as likely, or much more then the other.

Thirdly, but for this particular, I anſwer, that the Apoſtle had the words, or at leaſt the matter out of the Storie in Geneſis. For thus go the B words: God ſaid to Abraham, Goe out of thy Country, &c. into the land that I will ſhew thee: He named none to him, but told him he would ſhew him one. So then Abraham went out at Gods appointment; and God knew, but hee knew not whether he went: hee knew well the land he left, but hee knew not the land hee ſhould haue.

But it may be againe obiected, that this is not true: for it appeares, Gen. 12. 5. that Abraham with Sarah his wife, and all their ſubſtance, departed to goe into the land of Canaan, and to the land of Canaan they came: therefore he knew whither hee went; namely to that land.

I anſwer: It is true, he went out, with purpoſe C and aſſurance, to inherit a land promiſed him by God, but not named to him. And whereas it is there ſaid, He went out to goe into the land of Canaan, that is ſpoken in reſpect of the performance when he was come thither, not of the firſt promiſe made him at his departure: or, of the time when Moſes wrote it, not of the time when God ſpake it to Abraham. And, that he knew not what land God did meane, vntill he came thither, is plaine in the 7. verſe, where it is ſaid, That when Abraham had paſſed through all the countrey, and was come into Canaan; then God appeared to him, and ſaide, This land will I giue vnto thy ſeede: But till then God neuer named it vnto him; and there- D fore we read afore, that he beleeued and obeyed vpon the generall promiſe: but now when God did particularly ſpecifie and ſhew what land, he then ſhewed his thankefulnes to God, and did there build an Altar vnto the God that had appeared vnto him.

Thus it is cleare, that Abraham went out, not knowing whither he went. Which beeing ſo, it appeares that Abraham did that which the world would call, plaine fooliſhnes. To leaue knowne friends for vnknowne, certen liuing for vncerten, is a ſimple courſe in mans reaſon: at leaſt (the world will ſay) he might firſt haue demanded of God, what land that was, which he ſhould haue, before he left that which he had: but Abraham makes no ſuch queſtions, mooues no ſuch doubts, but beleeueth and o-beieth, and gooth out of his certen dwelling (at A Gods calling) though he knew not where to lodge at night.

This practiſe of faithfull Abraham, hath profitable vſe:

Firſt, here we learne, that though Gods commandements ſeeme fooliſh, and vnreaſonable, yet we muſt obey them. Chriſt ſaith, If a man will euer come in the kingdome of heauen, he muſt be borne againe, Ioh. 3. 3. S. Paul ſaith, If any man among you ſeeme to be wiſe, let him be a foole that he may be wiſe, 1. Cor. 3. 18. Chriſt ſaith, If any man will be my Diſciple, he muſt denie himſelfe and follow me, Luk. 9. 23.

But how can theſe commandements be beleeued or done? how can reaſon beleeue them? how can nature doe them? So diſputed the woman of Samaria with Chriſt, Ioh. 4. 11. when B Chriſt told her he would giue her of the waters of life; ſhee replied, Sir, thou haſt nothing to draw with, and the well is deepe: whence then haſt thou that water of life? Thus we obiect and reaſon againſt God with carnall obiections, and waigh Gods commandements in the balance of reaſon: thus God and his commandements are much abuſed by vs. And this is the cauſe we heare and read Gods word, and profit not by it, becauſe we ponder it in our reaſon, and allow nor follow it no further, then it agreeth with our naturall affections. As a man that will needes ſtand vnder a penthouſe, hath no water falling on him, though it ſhould C raine neuer ſo pretious water from heauen: ſo, when the water of life, out of the word of God, ſhould droppe vpon our ſoules, to comfort our conſciences, and to waſh away our ſinnes; we haue our deuices out of wit, and diſtinctions out of reaſon, as penthouſes to keepe it from vs, that it ſlides away, and neuer hath any worke in vs. But contrariwiſe, we muſt remember Abraham the father of our faith; and when we heare Gods word, we muſt with him captiuate our reaſon, and ſubdue our affections to it: meaſure them by Gods word, and not it by them; and what we cannot yeeld to in the obedience of reaſon, we muſt obey with the obedience of faith: and ſo ſhall Gods word haue a gracious and powerfull worke in vs. D

Secondly, here we muſt learne, that though we ſee no profit come by obeying Gods commandements, yet we muſt obey them. For what profit could Abraham ſee in leauing a certen liuing, for an vncertentie? yet he obeyed and went, vpon the bare word of God, building vpon it, that God beeing his guide, he could not go aſtray. So muſt we follow God ſincerely, and doe his commandements, though no profit ſeeme can come thereby. But ſome will ſay, Shall godly men be led like blindfold fooles? ſhall they refuſe all meanes of helpe, by wit and policie? this is the way to make them ridiculous, and aſſes for the wicked world to ride vpon.

I anſwer: let godly men vſe all their wit, and looke with all their eyes, in their actions with men of this world. But in the obedience of Gods commandements, let them doe as Abraham did, Follow Gods calling though it ſeeme to be to no ende.

In obedience to God, we muſt doe as blind men doe, who followe their guides, though it be through woods and rockes, hills, or dales, or dangerous places, regarding nothing, fearing nothing; onely following and truſting to their guides, who haue eyes for them, though they haue none for themſelues. So muſt wee follow Gods calling, and yeeld abſolute obedience to his Commandements, fearing nothing but truſting to the faithfullneſſe of his power, and aſſuredly beleeuing, that he beeing our bleſſed guide, we ſhall not be miſ-led: thus to doe is true faith.

But alas, how contrary is the practiſe of the world! Men deale with God, as wee doe with looſe Chapmen, whom we will not truſt without a good pawne. So we will no obey Gods Commandements, longer then his religion ſerus our turne; nor will we truſt and follow God without the pawnes of prophet and pleaſure. Nay, wee doe worſe: moſt men eſteeme of God no better, nor vſe him any better then they doe theeues in their houſes. If a man come into our houſe, that is giuen to ſtealing, wee truſt him as long as he is in our ſight: but if he be out of our ſight, wee thinke euer he is ſtealing: So, if men ſee the meanes of Gods prouidence, they will take his word, and truſt it; but elſe God muſt excuſe them, they may not truſt him further then they ſee him. And if the Commaundements of God ſound to their content, and tend to their profit, they will obey them: but if not, they will caſt them behinde their backe; at leaſt, they will make a pauſe at the matter and take their owne time. And if Gods wayes ſeeme pleaſant and profitable, they will walke in them: or elſe they will leaue them, and walke in their owne.

And hence is it, that men in deſtreſſes, runne to Wizards, and Wiſe-men: others deale fraudulently, and deceitfully: others worke on the Sabath day: and thus by indirect and vnlawful dealing, they labour to inrich themſelues, and to bring their purpoſes to paſſe. And why all this? but becauſe Gods commandements doe not ſound to their purpoſe, nor tend to their profit, and therefore they will not obey them.

If theſe men had beene in Abrahams caſe, they would neuer haue gone out, not knowing whither to goe: but they would haue argued the matter with God, and haue thought it good wiſdome to pauſe well afore they leaue a certentie for an vncertentie. But contrariwiſe, Abraham thought it fooliſhneſſe to reaſon with God, and therefore performed abſolute obedience: and for this cauſe he and his faith are renowned to this day; namely, 3000. yeares after him, and ſhall be till the worlds ende.

This

This was the obedience of faith: and this to doe, is to be true ſubiects to Gods kingdome. If the King call a man from his owne liuing, to come to himſelfe and to the Court; who will not leaue what he hath of his owne, and truſt his word? So, who will not leaue his owne wiſdome, and relie on the promiſe & word of God; and obey his commandements, though there ſeeme at the firſt, no profit can come thereby. Thus ſhall we be ſure, both to haue ſufficient for this world, and ſhall alſo be true children of faithfull Abraham.

Hitherto of the firſt example of Abrahams Faith.

VERSE 9.

By faith, he abode in the land of promiſe, as in a ſtrange countrey, as one that dwelt in tents with Iſaak and Iacob, heires with him of the ſame promiſe.

HEre is the ſecond example of Abrahams faith, and the fift in order; and is concerning Abrahams abiding, or dwelling in that land whereinto God had called him: and this he alſo did by faith. As he went out of his owne countrey, and came into Canaan, by the power and leading of his faith; ſo by the ſame faith he abode and dwelt in the ſame land.

The parts are two:

1. The Action of Abrahams faith, in the 9. verſe.
2. The Reaſon of that his ſo doing, in the 10.

The action in the 9. verſ. is ſpoken of two waies.

1. It is laid downe to be his abiding in the land of promiſe.
2. It is amplified by two circumſtances:
    1. The manner how he dwelt there, in two points:
        1. As a ſtranger, or in a ſtrange countrey.
        2. As one that dwelt in tents, and not in houſes.
    2. The perſons with whome: with Iſaac, and Iacob, Heires with him of the ſame promiſe.

Abrahams faith

The firſt point in order, is his dwelling in A the land of Canaan (called here the land of Promiſe.)

By faith he aboad in the land of Promiſe.

Canaan is now called the land of Promiſe, becauſe it was promiſed in the v. afore-going, as we then heard: ſo that the meaning is, He abode in that land, which was promiſed him, when he came out of his owne country. Which countrey Abraham knew not by name, when he left his owne, nor till he came thither: but then God told him, This is the land I will giue thee and thy ſeede, Gen. 12. 7. In this Land thus promiſed, Abraham dwelt and remained the reſt of his life, which was a hundreth yeares.

In this Action of Abraham, are three particular points. B

1. He dwelt in Canaan.
2. That Canaan was the land of promiſe.
3. He dwelt there by faith.

For the firſt: Concerning Abrahams dwelling in Canaan, diuers queſtions may be mooued;

Firſt, how it is true, that he abode or dwelt there? ſeeing it is apparant in the Storie, he dwelt in Egypt, Gen. 12. 10. and in Gerar, Gen. 20. 1.

I anſwer; The meaning is not, that he ſtaied there euery day of his life; but that he liued and died there, and made it the place of his reſidence and ordinarie habitation, whereunto he alwaies reſorted againe, if any occaſion drew him abroad. C

And further, he went not into Egypt, but vpon ſuch ſpeciall cauſe, as could not be otherwiſe helped, as vpon a famine or ſuch like, Gen. 12. 10. Then there came a famine in the land, therefore Abraham went downe into Egypt to ſoiourne there. Where it appeares: firſt, that the cauſe was extraordinarie: ſecondly, that he went not to make any dwelling, but to ſoiourn there for a time, and then to repaire home againe.

Where we learne, that as a man is not to depart out of that land, where God hath appointed him to dwell, but vpon good and ſufficient cauſes: ſo, when thoſe cauſes ceaſe, which drew him out, he is not to ſtay longer from home; but to repaire againe to the place of his ordinarie dwelling. D God would haue a man dwell at home: and it is leuitie, and a token of an vnconſtant minde, and a running head, for a man to deſire to be alwaies abroad.

Birds flie abroad, but ſo as they may come to their neaſts at night: ſo men ſhould endeauour, as much as may be, to take few occaſions of beeing from their dwellings: and when they needes muſt, to let it be for as ſhort a time as may be. For, as it is a ſigne of a light woman, Prou. 7. 11. Her feete cannot abide in her houſe: ſo is it of an vnſtaied man, vpon euery occaſion to be caried from home.

We muſt therefore follow holy Abraham, who is here commended for abiding, or dwelling in the countrey, which God had giuen him.

Againe, this practiſe of Abrahams faith, condemnes the wandring beggers, to be an vnfaithfull and vngracious generation. Our Land (by the abuſe of our peace and plenty) is full of ſuch. Aſke them where they dwell: their anſwer is, They haue ſmall dwelling; but, looke into the matter, and they haue the largeſt dwelling of all: for they dwell euery where, and all abroad; they count it bondage to be tied to one Town, or dwell in one Pariſh, and thinke it freedome and libertie to dwell euery where. Theſe are Caterpillers of a Common-wealth, and the greateſt robbers of the poore that are. Common Theeues ſteale from rich men: but theſe ſteale from the poore; they get that from men, which the true poore ſhould haue. No good comes to Church nor Common-wealth by theſe men, but much hurt to both. For, a finger cut off from his place, is of no vſe: ſo, a man liuing out of his calling, and out of his place, is of no vſe in the body politique.

Happy will it be with our Church and State, when wee haue ſuch lawes, and ſuch execution of them, as that this diſorder may be reformed, and euery man confined to his owne dwelling, and none ſuffred to liue in our Kingdome, who is not of ſome Pariſh: for let vs be aſſured, ſo many wandring beggers, ſo many blemiſhes in our gouernment.

Thirdly, Abrahams dwelling in this Land (beeing a fruite of his faith) teacheth vs it is no good token, but an ill ſigne for a man to be vncertaine in his dwelling. It is the faſhion of many men, if they trauaile, they neuer lodge at one place twiſe: and for their dwelling, it is not certaine; but now in the North, now in the South: now in this Pariſh, now in that: now in this iuriſdiction, now in another: Sometime in the Citie, ſometime in the Countrie. Who bee theſe? But either ſuch as be in debt, and purpoſe to deale ill with their Creditors; or that are malefactors, and hereby labour to auoide the cenſure of Authoritie: or elſe they bee Papiſts, which by this meanes labour to lurke vnſeene, and to eſcape the law; as many of them doe, either by skipping out of one Pariſh, Dioceſſe, Countie, or Prouince into another, and ſo auoiding the authoritie of all: or elſe, by lurking in great Cities, and ſo lying as Soiourners, and not as Pariſhioners, vnſeene or vnmarked in ſo great multitudes. Let our Authoritie take the more carefull notice of ſuch men, the more craftily they labour to creep from vnder it: and let ſuch men know, they diſcouer themſelues the more by this practiſe, to be vnfaithfull either to GOD, or Men, or both; ſeeing that GOD here commends Abraham for dwelling or ſtaying in that place, which GOD had appointed him. And ſo much for this queſtion.

Againe, it may here be demaunded: How Abraham might lawfully dwell in Canaan, ſeeing it was then Idolatrous. It may ſeeme, that therefore it is not vnlawfull for men to dwell in Popiſh or Idolatrous Countries.

I anſwer: Abraham did not ſo vpon any priuate motion, not for any worldly cauſe, but vpon ſpeciall warrant and calling from God: otherwiſe his ſo doing, had not beene iuſtifiable: therefore that practiſe of his cannot be a warrant for any to do the like, without the like cauſe and calling.

But how could Abraham be preſerued from the contagion of Idolaters, liuing amongſt them? I anſwer; Firſt, God that called him thither, did there preſerue him. Againe, Abraham liued in the Country, but conuerſed not with the people at all, but in ſome neceſſary and ciuill affaires: and by this meanes eſcaped the danger of infection.

Where we may learne, that if any man would liue in ſuch places: without hurt to their conſcience, let them firſt be ſure that they haue a calling and warrant from God, to liue in thoſe Countries. Secondly, let them conuerſe with Idolaters warily and ſparingly; and ſo ſhall they preſerue themſelues from the occaſions of euil, as Abraham did, who abode in an Idolatrous Country; and ſo, though not without danger, yet without hurt to his religion. Thus we ſee Abraham dwelt in the land of Canaan.

Now ſecondly, this Land is called the Land of Promiſe: that is, the Land formerly promiſed him by God, when he called him out of his owne Country. And it is likely that the Apoſtle doth not here firſt of all call it ſo: but that it was knowne generally amongſt the Patriarks by that name: and that Abraham himſelfe did firſt of all ſo call it; who, when he looked vpon it, and conſidered the fruitfullneſſe and excellencie of it, did euermore remember and call to minde, this land is promiſed to me, this is mine by promiſe. And herein he reſted and ſatiſfied himſelfe, though he had not the poſſeſſion of it.

Here we may ſee the excellency of true faith: which depends vpon the promiſes of God, though they be vnperformed. A Land of promiſe contents Abraham, he leaues the poſſeſſion to his poſteritie. It is hard to finde ſuch faith in the world: It is land in poſſeſſion which we looke for: a Land of promiſe cannot content vs: but let vs labour to practiſe faith, and to take comfort in the promiſes of God, and leaue the performance to Gods appointed time.

Thirdly, he dwelt in this land by faith. And no meruaile. For had it not beene by faith, hee would neuer haue dwelt there, where he had not ſo much as a roome for his Tent to ſtand in, but he muſt borrow it; nor to burie his dead, but he muſt buy it. This was againſt reaſon, yet by faith he dwelt there, as afore by faith he left his owne, which was alſo againſt reaſon. Where ſtill the power of faith is magnified to be ſuch, as it will carie a man ouer all impediments of obedience, and will giue him victory not againſt one, but againſt all obiections; and power to performe not one, but many things contrary to carnall wiſedome.

We muſt here learne to examine, whether we haue a true and ſound faith or no. If wee haue, then we muſt not doe ſome one or fewe actions in faith, or die in faith, but we muſt liue by faith, the whole courſe of our liues. We muſt walke by faith, and not by ſight, ſaith the Apoſtle, 2. Corinth. 5. 7. So ſaith he of himſelfe, Galat. 2. 20. I liue by the faith in the Sonne of God: he ſaith not, he hopes to die in that faith, but he liues by it. And in the former place hee ſaith not, we muſt ſet a ſtep or two, but we muſt walke by faith, which argueth a continued action: and therefore it is that Saint Peter ſaith, Gods children are kept by the power of God, through faith vnto ſaluation, 1. Peter 1. 5. In which words two things are ſpoken of faith: the firſt is affirmed; namely, that faith preſerueth a man to ſaluation through all hindrances, either of inward temptations, or outward croſſes, which the deuill or the world can lay in his way. This preſeruation is one of the greateſt workes in the world, and therefore it is worthily aſcribed to God: the power of God preſerueth vs, but through faith. The ſecond is implyed; that therefore we muſt labour to keepe that faith euermore with vs, which muſt keepe vs, and to cheriſh and preſerue that that muſt preſerue vs to ſaluation. Dauid was an excellent practitioner hereof: no man was more tried and toſſed then he, yet he euer drew neere vnto God, Pſal. 73. 28. Indeede ſometime hee ſaid, all men were liers, but that was in his feare, Pſal. 116. 11. And againe, I am caſt out of thy ſight, but that was in his haſte, Pſal. 31. 22. that is, when the force of ſome paſſion, or the violence of ſome temptations did carie him headlong: but otherwiſe he euer liued the life of faith.

So muſt we, not thinke to liue in ſenſuality, and die in faith: but to liue by faith, in all our actions, from one day to another, meditating daily on Gods promiſes, and beleeuing them, and relying on them, and applying the generalls to our owne ſelues, and practiſing faith by making conſcience of ſinne, and inuring our ſelues to patience and long ſuffering. Thus doing, we ſhall be children of faithfull Abraham, who firſt by faith left his owne Country, and then by faith alſo dwelt ſtill in the Land of Canaan. And thus much for the action of his faith: Hee abode in the Land of Promiſe.

Now follow the circumſtances of the action, which are two: 1. The manner how: 2. The Perſons with whom.

The manner is laid downe in two points:

1. As a ſtranger:
2. As one that dwelt in tents.

The firſt point, for the manner, is laid downe in theſe words,

As in a ſtrange Country.

The meaning is: he eſteemed it a ſtrange Country to him, & accounted himſelfe a ſtranger in it. A Againſt which it may be obiected, that he was familiarly acquainted with Mamre, Aner, and Eſcol, three great and mightie men of that Country: that he and they were confederates together, Gen. 14. 13. therefore it ſeemes he liued not like a ſtranger in the Country.

Some anſwer, that theſe three were not Canaanits, but neere a-kinne to Abraham, and had other names: but the Text is plain in that place, that Mamre was an Amorite, and the other two were his brethren. Therefore the anſwer is, that in all likelyhood they three were Proſelits; and that by Abrahams godly perſwaſions they had renounced Idolatry, and were come to the B knowledge of the true God, and that they ioyned with Abraham in the worſhip of the true God, and ſo were his conuerts: whereupon Abraham (as he might lawfully) conuerſed with them as his familiar friends. And hereof there are two Inducements.

Firſt, it is ſaid, Gen. 14. 13. that they were confederates with Abraham: and it appeared ſo by their deedes; for they ioyned their powers, and aſſiſted him in the warre againſt the Kings, (Gen. 14. 24.)

Secondly, it is ſaid, Gen. 14. 13. That Abraham dwelt on the Land of Mamre: he was his Tenant or Fermour. Now, it is more then likely, Abraham would not haue ſo farre been C beholden to them, but that they were true chriſtians, and of his owne religion.

Therefore this hinders not, but he might bee a ſtranger notwithſtanding, vnto the body of the people, and that it is true that Abraham ſaith of himſelfe to ſome of them, Gen. 23. 4. I am a ſtranger and a Soiourner amongſt you.

But it may be then demaunded, Why did Abraham liue amongſt them as a ſtranger, and in that Land as a Soiourner.

I anſwer: the reaſons were diuers: Firſt, hee had title giuen to that Land, but no poſſeſſion; he therefore contented himſelfe with that that God gaue him, and chalenged not any poſſeſſion all the dayes of his life, but bought or borrowed of Mamre the place where he liued D and dwelt (Gen. 14. 13.) and of the Hittites a place of buriall, Gen. 23. 3. &c.

This may teach all men not to be too haſtie, in ſeeking for that, that it may be, is their right: let not men preſcribe their owne times, nor be their owne caruers, but leaue their affaires to Gods diſpoſing, and enter no further then they ſee God goeth afore them, Abraham muſt be a ſtranger in his owne land; and thou ſometime muſt be content for a time to be a ſtranger to that which is thine owne.

Secondly, they were all of them for the moſt part heathen Idolaters, amongſt whom Abraham would not conuerſe, but as ſparingly as might be. Now if Abraham would be a ſtranger in his owne Country, rather then liue familiarly with Idolaters; It ſheweth how litle faith, and leſſe conſcience they haue, who can be content to liue in the midſt of Idolaters, where they haue nothing to doe, and can conuerſe with them in all familiaritie, without any ſcruple of conſcience. Abraham made himſelfe a ſtranger at home to auoide Idolatry; but they wil make themſelues at home in a ſtrange country, to intangle themſelues in Idolatry: theſe men will hardly prooue the childrē of Abrahā.

Theſe reaſons Abraham himſelfe had in this his ſo doing.

There is a third, a more ſpirituall or myſticall reaſon; and that reaſon God had in making Abraham liue in Canaan as a ſtranger; Namely, to teach all Chriſtian men their dutie, to the worlds ende.

Abraham is the Father of the faithfull, Rom. 4. 11. And this is our honour to be the children of Abraham, we muſt therefore follow our Father in his faith, and in the practiſe of it: we muſt liue in this world as Pilgrimes and Strangers, euen in the midſt of all our peace and proſperitie, of all our libertie, riches, lands, and poſſeſſions; yea, of all our worldly friends and acquaintance. If it ſeeme ſtrange how this can be: I anſwer, the practiſe of it conſiſts in ſixe actions.

Firſt, we muſt not bath our ſelues in the pleaſures of this world. Pilgrims take but little delight in their iournies, becauſe they thinke themſelues not at home. This is S. Peters argument: Dearely beloued, as ſtrangers and pilgrims abſtaine from fleſhly luſts which fight againſt the ſoule, 1. Pet. 2. 11. For too much delight in fleſhly pleaſures, ſmothers the grace of God in vs, and lets looſe all ſinnes, and giues life vnto all corruptions.

Secondly, we muſt vſe this world as though we vſed it not; that is, euen the neceſſary comforts and delights thereof; they be the very words of the Apoſtle, 1. Cor. 7. 31. For, ſo the Pilgrime, when he paſſeth through a ſtrange Countrie, hath not his minde troubled with looking or thinking on the goods and commodities of that Country where he is; but vſing as much thereof, as is neceſſary for him, all his thoughts are on his owne Country. So ſhould we, when we are in our beſt eſtates, in our greateſt iollity, in the midſt of our wealth and abundance of pleaſures, caſt our mindes from them, and haue our thoughts euen then conuerſing in heauen, where is the place of our abode. This is likewiſe the Apoſtles exhortation, Philip. 3. 20. Worldly men make their belly their God: that is, drowne themſelues in carnall pleaſures, ſo farre; as they forget any other God, any other heauen. But we muſt not doe ſo: our conuerſation muſt be in heauen, from whence we looke for our Sauiour Ieſus Chriſt.

Thirdly, we muſt haue a ſerious care and endeauour to pleaſe god: for all the earth is his, & we are but ſoiourners in his ſight; therefore as the Pilgrime is careful to pleaſe the Lord of the Country, by whoſe leaue he trauailes through it: ſo muſt we be to pleaſe the Lord; ſeeing as God ſaith, Leuit. 25. 23. The land is his, and we are but ſtrangers and ſoiourners with him.

And hereunto adde a fourth, which is neere a-kinne vnto it: We muſt caſt all our care on God, ſeeing that he is the Lord of the earth, and we are but Pilgrimes and Soiourners. Dauid ſaith, Pſal. 24. 1. The earth is the Lords, and all that therein is: The ſame Dauid confeſſeth, Pſal. 39. 12. He is a ſtranger before God, and a ſoiourner as all his Fathers were, & thereupon deſireth God to heare his prayer, hearken to his crie; and not to keepe ſilence at his teares: as though he had ſaid, Inaſmuch as I ſoiourne with thee, thou art to heare my complaint. For, as a Soiourner cares, nor lookes for nothing, but depends on them for all things with whom he ſoiournes: ſo muſt we caſt all our care on God; for he careth for vs; he is our Landlord, we are his Farmours and Tenants, we hold the earth from him, by no leaſe of yeares, but at his will, and it is lent vs: let vs therefore but haue care to pleaſe this our Landlord, and care for nothing.

Fiftly, we muſt giue continuall thankes and praiſe to God for his good bleſſings we receiue in this world: for all are his, and we are but ſtrangers. Thus did all Gods Saints in old time; Iaacob, He was leſſe then the leaſt of Gods mercies. But eſpecially there is one memorable example of Dauid, and the Church in his dayes, 1. Chron. 29. 13, 14, 15, 16. When he had prepared abundantly for the building of the Temple, he proſtrated himſelfe before God, and in his owne name and the peoples ſaide thus; Riches and honour come of thee, therefore our God we thanke thee, & praiſe thy glorious name. But who am I, and what is my people, that wee ſhould offer vnto thee? for all is thine, and of thine owne haue we giuen thee: for wee are ſtrangers before thee, and ſoiourners, as all our Fathers were. Thankefulneſſe beſeemes all men, eſpecially ſtrangers. Therefore, as Pilgrimes doe thankefully accept the fauours ſhewed them in a ſtrange Country: So muſt we, all the bleſſings God giues vs in this world, where we are but ſtrangers.

Sixtly and laſtly, we muſt haſten to the kingdome, as a Pilgrime doth to his iourneyes end, or to his owne Countrey: and till he can, is alwaies thinking of it, and ſighing after it: So muſt we (who are not dwellers, but ſoiourners in theſe houſes of clay) long after heauen, and (as S. Paul ſaith he did) couet to remooue from hence, and to dwell with the Lord. Strangers are not to take ſuch pleaſure in forraine Countries as to forget their owne. So Chriſtians muſt not be ſo in loue with this world, as to forget or neglect the world to come. If they doe, they are vnworthie of it, and ſhew themſelues not ſtrangers, as Abraham here was; but men of this world, who haue their portion in this life. Pſal. 17. 14.

In performing theſe ſixe actions, men ſhew themſelues ſtrangers in this world. And thus muſt we doe, euen in the midſt of all worldly pro-proſperitie, if we looke euer to enioy the glorie of a better: And thus doing, wee ſhall be children of faithfull Abraham, who dwelt in the land of Canaan, as in a ſtrange Country.

Abrahams faith.

As one that dwelt in tents.

The ſecond point for the manner, how Abraham dwelt in Canaan, is, that he built himſelfe no houſes, nor made Orchards or Gardens, but dwelt in tents or tabernacles; which were ſuch houſes, as now are vſed in warre, and are yet called by the ſame name, Tents, or Pauilions: whoſe matter is not wood, nor ſtone, but cloth, ſtuffe, or skinnes: and are eaſily reared, and ſoone taken downe: and when a man departeth, he may carie his houſe with him. That Abraham did thus, appeares in the Stories written of him. He came to Bethell, and there pitched his tent, Gen. 12. 8. and Gen. 13. 18. he remooued his tent: and 18. 1. God appeared vnto him, as he ſate in his tent dore: and 18. 9. being asked where Sarah was, he anſwered, ſhee is within the tent: and theſe tents are called his place, Gen. 18. 33. and his houſe, 24. 2. Out of all which places it is plaine, that hee dwelt in tents, and that not onely at his firſt comming, when hee had not time to build him an houſe: but euen all the dayes of his life, after his comming into the land of Canaan.

But why did Abraham dwell in tents, and not in houſes? was it becauſe then there were no houſes? Not ſo: For there were Cities built euen afore the flood, Gen. 4. 17. Cain built a Citie: no maruell therefore if there were many after, as Sodome, and all her ſiſters. And though it appeares not they digged into the earth for naturall ſtone, yet had they Bricke, which they made themſelues, Geneſis, 11. 3. and ſurely, the world which built the huge tower of Babell, Gen. 11. would not ſticke to build themſelues houſes. Nor can it be ſaid, that thoſe Cities, Sodome, Gomorrah, and the reſt, were nothing but a multitude of tents together. For, wee read Gen. 19. 3. that Lot dwelling in Sodome, receiued 2. Angels into his houſe: and in the 4. verſe, that the Sodomits came and enuironed his houſe round about to take them, thinking they had beene men: and when Lot refuſed to deliuer them, that they preſſed ſore vpon the houſe to haue broken vp the doore: but all this might haue beene ſpared, if it had bin nothing but a tent, which a childe may cut in peeces with a knife. It is manifeſt then, that there were houſes in thoſe daies. Why then did Abraham build none? was it becauſe he was poore and could not? Not ſo: for contrariwiſe, Gen. 12. 5. Hee carried with him from his owne country, all the ſubſtance hee poſſeſſed: And what that was, is particularized, Gen. 13. 2. He was very rich in cattell, in ſiluer, and in gold. His riches were both great, and of the beſt. So then hee could, but would not. But why would he not? Was it vpon a proud humour, or in a conceited ſingularitie, becuſe he would not be like other men, but haue a ſingular way of his own? No: A Abraham was none of thoſe, who allow nothing, but that is done of themſelues; and who thinke nothing good, if it be ordinarie: for he was a holy man, and famous for his faith. So then none of theſe were the reaſons of this his ſo doing.

The reaſons then why Abraham, and other holy Patriarches, vſed to dwell in tents, and not to build them houſes, were of two ſorts, Ciuill, and Holy.

The Ciuil or Politicke reſpect that they had was this:

They holding themſelues Gods ſeruants, did depend on his word; and therefore did ſubmit themſelues to goe vp and downe the world, whither ſo euer God did cal them. Beeing then B to remooue, euery day (they knew not when nor whither) it was therefore both the fitteſt and cheapeſt, to dwell in tents, which were ſoone pitched vp, and ſoone taken downe. Neither neede it ſeeme ſtrange that they could liue for cold, in thoſe poore thin tents, all the yeare long: for the country and climate there was alwaies temperate enough for colde: and rather inclining to too much heate.

The holy or religious reſpect was this: They held themſelues but ſtrangers vpon earth, and therefore would not build themſelues cities or houſes, as looking or caring to liue vpon earth: but dwelled in tents, as ſeeming deſirous, to remooue from the earth to heauen: the ſooner the C better. And this did the Fathers of the olde Teſtament: not that they thought it it vnlawfull to build cities, or dwel in houſes; but that they might teſtifie their religion, and expectation of another world, in the midſt of that profane age wherein they liued; wherein there were almoſt none, that either regarded, remembred, or acknowledged a world to come.

And this was not the particular, or ſingular deed of Abraham alone. All holy men in thoſe dayes, liued in tents. Gen. 9. 21. It is cleere that Noah dwelt in tents, though then he was king of all the world. And ſo did Lot alſo, as long as he liued with Abraham: Gen. 13. 5. Lot had ſheepe, and cattell, and tents. And thus they did, becauſe (as the Apoſtle ſaith) they had here no D enduring city, but they ſought for one to come, Heb. 13. 14. And they thought, they euer heard that voyce ſounding in their eares, (Mic. 2. 10.) Ariſe and depart, for this is not your reſt.

Contrariwiſe, the wicked of the world, becauſe they ſet vp their reſt in this world, and cared for no other: they began preſently to build them houſes, nay cities, (as Cain did euen in the beginning) Gen. 4. 17. And the Sodomites had a citie euen walled (as is likely) for Lot was ſitting in the gate of Sodome, when the two Angels came to him, Gen. 19. 1, 2. And the Canaanites had cities walled exceeding high: (Num. 13.) But we finde not, that euer Gods children built them cities, vntill they came to haue a ſetled Church of their owne. But contrariwiſe, it is worth obſeruing, that God promifeth his people, that they ſhall come and dwell in cities which they built not: namely, which were built by worldly men to their hand. And thus wee ſee the reaſons why Abraham dwelt in tents. Now let vs ſee the vſe of it.

Firſt, here we learne frugalitie, out of the ciuill vſe of their tents: that is, to vſe the bleſſings and comforts of this life, and ſoberly and ſparingly as may be: as to beſtowe as little coſt as may be of our ſelues, in ſuch things as periſh in the vſing: namely, meate, drinke, appatell, and houſes. For what is ſpent herein, is ſpent onely on our ſelues: and beeing ſpent, is gone: therefore the leſſe, the better: alwaies prouided, there be a diſcreet care had of our healths, and of the credit of the places we hold: and of our inabling to the duties of our calling. Which beeing ſufficiently prouided for, it is a Chriſtian frugality to ſpare, what further may be ſpared: And he hath the leſſe to anſwer for, who ſpendeth the leaſt in ſuperfluities.

Againe, here we are taught contentation in the ſtate which God hath appointed vs, and not to ſtriue too faſt to climb to wealth. Theſe holy men can be content to dwell in tents, and tabernacles, though they might haue compaſſed much more: for they were great and mightie men. Abraham had 318. men, able to beare a ſword, in his houſe daiely: and with them, and a little helpe more, hee ouerthrewe diuers kings, and reſcued Lot, (Gen. 14. 14). He that durſt encounter, and did ouercome ſuch an hoſte: How many inhabitants of the country, could he haue beat out of their houſes? And how many tenants could he haue put out of their Liuings? And how much of that countrey could he haue incloſed to himſelfe? Surely, euen as much, and as many as hee had pleaſed. Yet doeth he no ſuch thing: but contrariwiſe conſidering himſelfe to bee but a tenant vnder God, he is content to let euery man ſit quietly by him, and himſelfe to dwell in tents; rather then to incroach one foote further then God bad him, though he had beene able.

This checketh the pride, or couetouſneſſe, or ambition, or all, of ſuch as ioyne houſe to houſe, Land to Land, Lordſhip to Lordſhip, Towne to Towne; and care not how many mens houſes they pull downe, to build one of their owne: nor how many men want land and liuing; ſo they haue their parkes, and paſtures, gardens, and orchards, and all other delights they can deuiſe. Theſe are ſo farre from Abrahams minde, who deſired onely ſo much land, as his tent might ſtand on, and might feede his cattell; as they can incloſe and make ſeuerall to themſelues, that which in common ſhould bee the liuing of many ſoules. But what can befall ſuch men? but that that Eſay prophecieth to them, (Eſay 5. 8.) Woe bee vnto them that ioyne houſe to houſe, and land to land, till there be no place for the poore to dwell in.

Thirdly, in that Abraham liued thus, as ready euer to depart into any other countrey, when God would call him: It ſheweth that true faith doth neuer limit Gods hand, either in the greateneſſe, or length of trialls, but ſubmitteth it ſelfe wholly to his will, beeing reſolued and content to ſuffer all trialls, how great ſoeuer, and how many ſoeuer God pleaſeth to lay vpon a man. Reaſon would haue ſaid, I haue left one country at Gods word: if I muſt leaue another, then I ſhall neuer know an ende; nor haue any thing certaine to truſt to. But faith ſaith, As I haue left one country at gods calling, ſo vpon his word I will leaue twentie more: For God hath as good reaſon to bid me the ſecond time as the firſt; and his loue cannot faile me: he may ſtill try me, but can neuer leaue me. Thus ſpake Abrahams faith. And not he alone. For Iob, though he crie out of the violence of his temptation, The arrowes of the Almightie are in me, and the venime thereof doth drinke vp my ſpirits, and the terrours of God doe fight againſt me (Chap. 6. 4.) Yet when faith comes to play his part, he then proteſteth; that though God kill him, yet he will truſt in him, and he ſhall be his ſaluation. (Chap. 13. 15.) See Abrahams faith will lead him from country to country; and Iobs will carrie him through life and death. And noble Dauid is not behinde for his part, for he will loſe his kingdome, if God will haue it ſo: 2. Sam. 15. 26. If (ſaith Dauid) God ſay I haue no delight in thee, loe here I am, let him doe to me (not what I in my reaſon could wiſh, but) what ſeemeth good in his eyes. Behold now in theſe holy men, the practiſe and obedience of true faith. It preſcribes not God the meaſure how long, or how farre he ſhall afflict vs: but makes a man reſigne vp himſelfe wholly, his cauſes, his liuings, his countrie, his kingdome, his life and all, to be at Gods diſpoſing. He that can doe thus, may haue ioy in himſelfe, as beeing aſſuredly one of the children of faithfull Abraham.

Fourthly, in that Abraham in a ſtrange country will not build him an houſe, but dwell in tents which daiely are remooueable; Here may ſuch men learne, as are trauailers, or factors, or ſoiourners in forraine countries, not to thruſt themſelues too haſtily into ſocietie and familiaritie with the people of thoſe countries, where they ſoiourne. Abraham will not build him a houſe in a ſtrange country, but will dwell in tents, that ſo he may the eaſier remooue: euen ſo, let no man fixe and faſten himſelfe too haſtily in a ſtrange country, but liue ſo, as hee may eaſiely remooue, when he ſeeth good cauſe.

Fiftly, Abraham who in his owne country (it is likely) had his houſe, in a ſtrange country will haue none, but will dwell in tents. His practiſe much teach vs, euen ſo, not to build vs houſes in this world, where we are ſtrangers, but to ſet our tent here, and to looke for our houſe in heauen. Literally we are not bound to doe as Abraham did, but myſtically wee muſt doe it:

Abrahams faith.

the ſtate of our bodies here, is but a tent or tabernacle; the ſtate of our ſoules in heauen, is a ſtrong houſe. Wee muſt therefore ſay with the Apoſtle, (2. Cor. 5. 1, 2.) We are willing that this earthly tabernacle were deſtroied, and deſire to be cloathed with our houſe which is from heauen. Carnall and worldly men builde their houſe in this world; that is, haue all their care for their bodie: but if we follow our father Abraham, and eſteeme our life, and bodies, but as tabernacles preſently to be remooued, and build our houſes in heauen; then walke we here in the ſteps of his faith, and after this life, ſhall attaine his reward.

For the ending and knitting vp of this point, it may bee asked, How this can be any ſuch commendation to him, ſeeing that wicked men haue vſed to dwell in tents;

I anſwer, neuer any of them, but in two caſes: firſt in time of warre, where armies lying abroad in the fields, or in the ſiege of cities, muſt needes lie in tents; and ſo doe all men Chriſtian or Heathen to this day: or ſecondly, ſuch as kept ſheepe, did for their cattels ſake lie abroad in tents; as it is recorded of Iabal, one of Cains poſteritie (Gen. 4. 20.) that hee was the father of all them that dwell in tents, and ſuch as haue cattell. In which wordes, obſerue how their dwelling in tents, and hauing cattel are put together: And ſo the Arabians, great keepers of cattell, doe in Arabia (beeing a hot country) to this day. So that it is cleere, the wicked dwelt in tents, either for neceſſitie ſake in the warre, or els for profit ſake with their cattell; but that for no ſuch cauſe, but for their own ſakes: and becauſe they eſteemed themſelues ſtrangers in the world, it was neuer found that any vngodly man dwelt in tents all his life: but that it was alwaies a practiſe of holy and faithfull men, vntill they came to haue a ſettled Church and ſtate of their owne.

And thus much for the manner how Abraham dwelt in Canaan: 1. as a ſtranger: 2. dwelling in tents.

Now follow the Perſons with whom.

With Izack and Iacob heires with him of the ſame promiſe.

The ſecond Circumſtance is the Perſons with whom: they were Izack and Iaacob: his ſonne and his grandchild. But it may firſt of all be asked, to what clauſe is this referred, whether to Abrahams dwelling in Canaan, or to his beeing there a ſtranger, or to his dwelling there in tents. The anſwer is: to them all three: Hee dwelt there with them, hee was a ſtranger with them, he dwelt in tents with them, and they with him. Now the meaning is not, that they dwelt together with Abraham in the ſame tẽts, at the ſame time, (for Iſaack was not borne til Abraham was an hundred yeares old, & Iaacob was but yong when Abraham died): But that the ſame promiſe, made to Abraham, God renewed after to thẽ, firſt to Iſaack, & then to Iaacob: which they alſo beleeued as Abraham did, and by the power of that faith were content to dwel in tents, as ſtrangers, as he had done before them.

But why doth he name none but Iſaack and Iaacob? did no other dwell in tents, and thinke themſelues ſtrangers, but they? yes, many other; but theſe two are named aboue any other, both for that they were next to Abraham in time, and in blood, and in faith alſo; for their faith was ſo excellent, as God is called the God of theſe three men, more ſpecially then of any other in the world: But in and vnder theſe two, are all other vnderſtood, who imbracing the ſame promiſe, did therefore as ſtrangers dwell in tents.

From hence we learne diuerſe excellent inſtructions.

Firſt, ſee here a notable worke of faith; I meane of true faith in the promiſes of eternall life: namely, that it conformeth the beleeuers one to another, both in the inward diſpoſition of heart, and outward conuerſation of life. God hath made this promiſe, That he ſo loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten ſonne, that whoſoeuer beleeueth in him ſhould not periſh, but haue life euerlaſting. Now, as this promiſe is one, ſo is the faith that apprehends it; and this faith beeing one, conformeth all that haue it, and makes them like one to another in the obedience of Gods commandements. This is that that the Holy Ghoſt ſaith, Act. 4, 32. The beleeuers were all of one heart, and one ſoule; and that not one of them, but the whole multitude of them that beleeued. And Eſay propheſieth, that in the kingdom of Chriſt ſhall be ſuch vniformity & peace, as that though mẽ in their natures be as contrary one to another, as ſheepe and wolues, lyons and kids, young children and ſerpents: yet by grace and faith in Chriſt, they are changed, and all conformed one to another, ſo as they ſhall liue and conſent together in the vnitie of one obedience: Eſay. 11. 6. 7.

The Booke of the Pſalmes was penned by Dauid, Aſaph, Moſes, and others, and in ſeuerall ages and ſtates of the Church, and were appointed to be ſung then, for the preſent ſtate of the Church in thoſe dayes. It may therefore be demanded. Why then do we ſing them now in our Churches? The anſwer is: The Church in all ages conſiſts of a number of beleeuers, and the faith is alwaies one, and makes all that apprehend Gods promiſes, to be alike to one another in grace, in meditations, in diſpoſitions, in affections, in deſires, in ſpirituall wants, in the feeling and vſe of afflictions, in courſe and conuerſation of life, and in performance of duties to God and man: and therefore the ſame Pſalmes, Praiers, and Meditations, are now as fit for the Church in theſe dayes, and are ſaid and ſung with the ſame vſe and profit, as to the Church in thoſe dayes when they were made.

This doctrine hath profitable vſe.

Abrahams faith.

Firſt, if this be ſo, here is confuted the opinion and practiſe of many; who when they are taught, they ought to doe this or this, after the examples of holy men in times paſt: They anſwer, they were great and glorious men, they may not thinke to be like them; and their examples are to high: they may admire them, but not followe them. For example, when they are exhorted to walke with God, as Henoch did (Gen. 5. 24.) to refuſe the world for Chriſt, as Moſes did, (Exod. 2. 10.) to ſpare our enemie beeing in our power, as Dauid did, (1. Sam. 24. 5, 6, 7.) In Magiſtracie to be able to ſay, Whoſe oxe or aſſe haue I taken, or whom haue I done wrong to? as Samuel ſaid, (1. Sam. 12.3.) In the Miniſterie, to followe the zeale, the patience, and the diligence of the holy Miniſters of God in old time; They then anſwer: That they dare not looke at them, and that they may not thinke to be like them. But let theſe men knowe, that if they haue the ſame faith, they haue the ſame conſcience; & that as Izhak and Iacob, though they had not the ſame meaſure of faith, that Abraham had, yet hauing the ſame faith, were therefore willing to dwell in tents, as hee had done: So if we haue the ſame faith that our fathers in times paſt had, then howſoeuer we cannot match them in holineſſe, and vertues; yet we muſt ſeriouſly labour to bee like them, and muſt practiſe the ſame vertues, which they did: for if wee bee heires with them of the ſame promiſe, then muſt wee be practiſers with them in the ſame obedience.

Secondly, this checketh a great and common profanneſſe, which now raigneth amongſt vs. We all profeſſe religion: yet come to the practiſe of religion, the hearing of the word, receiuing the holy Sacrament, or praier, or abſtaining from fowle and common ſinnes; let a man bee in any of theſe more forward then others, then ſome are ſo profane, as they ſticke not to deride and reproach them. But, is this to be heires of one and the ſame promiſe? Let ſuch men therefore know, that we in this age of the Church, are bound to conforme our ſelues to the holy liues of the Fathers of the old Church, or elſe we haue not the ſame faith that they had. Therefore our dutie is to ſtriue, and by all meanes we can to endeauour who ſhould come neereſt to their faith, to their zeale, and to their obedience. And if any doe it more then we, we ſhould rather honour, then reproach him.

In the next place, obſerue here the power of a great mans example, how forcible it is; eſpecially to them of the ſame kinred: Abraham a grand Patriarch, a man of honour, hee is content to dwell in tents, like a ſtranger in that land which was promiſed him to bee his owne. Izhak his ſonne followeth him, and doth ſo alſo. Iaacob his grand-childe comes after, and walkes in both their ſtepes. Let this teach all ſuperiors (be they Parents, Magiſtrates, or Miniſters) to looke to their wayes; for the higher they be, the more are they followed either in good or euil. We ſee in Courts, what Princes doe, they are imitated; and any faſhion they take vp, or put in practiſe (be it neuer ſo ſtrange) is followed of all men. And here we ſee, if Abraham will dwell in no houſe, but in tents, Iſaack and Iaacob will doe ſo after him.

Thirdly, obſerue how theſe three holy men are called heires of the promiſe: and they are ſo called in regard of God. Who as he made the promiſe to Abraham, ſo he renewed it to them both ſeuerally, and withall, gaue them grace to apprehend it, and to ſhew the obedience of their faith as Abraham did.

But it is very notable, that they are not called heires of the Land, but of the Promiſe; for they inioyed not the land, but the promiſe, and their ſeede did afterwardes inioy the land it ſelfe: Wherein appeares the excellencie of their faith. For they who thus bleſſedly beleeued, and thus patiently and conſtantly obeyed God in all duties of holy obediēce, hauing but bare promiſes, how excellent and eminent would their faith and obedience haue beene, had they beene partakers of the bleſſings themſelues? And here alſo muſt we learne our duties. For in greater matters than the land of Canaan, we enioy the things, whereas they had but the promiſes: as namely, the Incarnation of the Meſſias, and the calling of the Gentiles, theſe two great & grand mercies, were looked for by them, but enioyed by vs; they had the promiſes, but we the performance. Therfore if our obedience and patience, and other vertues, be behind theirs, our condemnation muſt needes be ſo much the deeper.

Much more is to be ſaid of Iſaacks and Iaacobs faith: but they haue ſeuerall examples for themſelues.

It followeth,

For he looked for a Citie hauing a foundation,
whoſe maker and builder is God.

Thus we ſee the fact of Abrahams faith: now followeth the reaſon that mooued him to liue in the land of Canaan, as a ſtranger, and in tents. And the reaſon is, becauſe he looked for a City, &c. that is, for euerlaſting life in heauen. This is the ſubſtance of the reaſon; and then that life euerlaſting is further deſcribed in diuers particulars: ſo that theſe two things are contained in this verſe;

1. Generally the ſtate of the reaſon, ſhewing the height and eminency of Abrahams faith: he looked for euerlaſting life.
2. A particular deſcription of that life eternall.

In the generall ſtate of the reaſon, many worthy points are to be conſidered:

Firſt, in the very contextion, and framing of the reaſon, obſerue how Abraham therefore liueth as a ſtranger, patiently in that country which was his owne, becauſe he looked for heauen after this life. Hence we learne, That hope to winne heauen, worketh patience and contentation in all eſtates and conditions of life. Thus reaſoneth the holy Ghoſt here; Abraham was content to liue in no citie, but in tents, as a ſtranger: for he looked for a better citie in heauen. So the Diſciples, grieued at Chriſts departure from them, he ſtrengtheneth them with this conſolation, In my Fathers houſe are glorious manſions, I goe to prepare a place for you: Ioh. 14. 2.

The vſe of this doctrine is neceſſarie for theſe our dayes; wherein are may that will ſay confidently they looke to be ſaued, and hope for heauen: but let any man iniurie them, or croſſe them in the leaſt meaſure, they breake out into anger and impatience, yea often into ſwearing and blaſpheming of Gods name. Or if God lay his heauie hand on them or theirs, then inſtantly they runne to wizards, and wiſe men, that is, euen to the bottome of hell for helpe. Theſe, and all ſuch, doe fowlely deceiue themſelues: for if they truly hoped for that citie which is in heauen, no ſmall croſſe in this world could much trouble them: nor any ſo great, to driue them into that diſquietnes, as by their oaths they ſhall rend heauen and earth; and as it were, confound God and all his creatures. Or, if they truely perſwaded themſelues that God would giue them heauen at their end; they would bee afraide, and aſhamed, to runne to the deuill to remooue Gods hand from them: for aſſuredly that man cares not what God laieth on him in this life, who is perſwaded, that after this life God will giue him heauen.

Secondly, this doctrine giues vs a worthy direction for comfort vnder the croſſe. For, if Abraham bore all this patiently, becauſe hee looked for heauen; then it muſt teach vs, that when God laieth any croſſe on vs, if we would haue the bitterneſſe thereof allayed, wee muſt not looke on it with both our eyes, but with one eie on the croſſe, and with the other on the Citie prepared for vs in heauen; where is no croſſe, no woe, no ſorrow, nor miſery; but where God himſelfe will wipe away all teares from our eies. There can bee no affliction ſo bitter, but this meditation will mitigate it, and yeeld comfort and contentment in the ſharpeſt pangs thereof.

In the ſecond place, Abraham waiting for heauen, when he ſoiourned on the earth, giues vs an excellent pattern of chriſtian life. Whileſt we are on earth, wee muſt waite for heauen, and looke, and long after it; there muſt our ioy and our affections be. So teacheth the Apoſtle (Coloſſ. 3. 1.) If yee be riſen with Chriſt, ſeeke ye the things that are aboue. And (Phil. 3. 20.) We muſt haue our conuerſatiō in heauen, though we liue on earth. How this may be, cannot be better expreſſed, then by a compariſon:

A Merchant that is a free-man in London, and there hath wife, children, and liuing; A trauaileth as a Merchant into Turkie, or Barbarie, or Spaine; there he liues, there is his body, but all his thoughts, and deſires of his heart, are at home: and all his care there, is to maintaine his good eſtate at home; and all the hazard of his life and goods, are to preſerue and helpe his eſtate there. So we in this world, are but ſtrangers; but we are free-men in heauen: therefore our thoughts muſt be there; and all our cares here ſhould be nothing, but how to procure vs ſure and good eſtates in heauen. This if we doe ſeriouſly intend, & carefully indeauour, then we are good children of Abraham our father; and thus doing, wee haue our conuerſation in heauen, though we liue on the earth. And this we ſhould doe the rather, becauſe generally the B world is full of ſuch men: who (as the ſame place ſaith) doe minde nothing but earthly things. Now it is a hard thing for a man to bee vnlike the world, and to reſiſt multitudes, and generall examples: but we muſt ſtill remember we are Abrahams children, and children muſt labour to be like their father, and not the common multitude: and it muſt more mooue a good child, what his father alone doth, then what is done by many other.

Thirdly, let vs obſerue, how God promiſing Abraham onely the Land of Canaan, that is, a temporall inheritance; he lookes further, for a City in heauen. This he did out of his faith; for he knowing that Canaan was but a type of heauen, therefore in conſideration of the earthly C Canaan, he aroſe to a conſideration of the heauenly: and in the promiſe of the earthly, apprehended the heauenly. This is the true and Chriſtian vſe of all Gods bleſſings, giuen in this life; in them to behold better things laid vp in heauen, and ſhadowed in the other. Men vſe for their vſe, ſpectacles in reading: but they take no pleaſure in looking vpon them, but at other things by and through them: So ſhould Chriſtians, through all temporall bleſſings looke at ſpirituall and eternall, which are promiſed and ſhadowed vnder the temporal. Thus doth Chriſt himſelfe teach vs, in the very order of the Lords prayer: directing vs to pray for temporall bleſſings firſt, in the fourth petition; and then for eternall, in the fift and ſixt: as though that the D one were introductiōs & paſſages to the other. And this made the Prophets ſo ordinarily couer ſpirituall bleſſings vnder temporall; and put temporall deliuerances, for ſpirituall, and confuſedly oftentimes one for another; becauſe that the holy men of the old Church, did neuer reſt in view of any tēporall promiſe, or bleſſing, but aſcended to contemplation of the higher things in them. How pitifull then is the practiſe of worldly men; who vſe Gods bleſſings ſo, as they daily abuſe and peruert them: vſing meate to gluttony, raiment to pride, learning to vainglorie, ſpeech to flatterie, wit to deceipt, authority to reuenge, callings to oppreſſiō: whereas they are all giuen to be helps in Gods ſeruice, and furtherances in religion, and meanes to helpe vs towards heauen. Theſe men looke at Gods gifts, with the eie of reaſon, and no further; but if they looked at them, with the eie of faith, as Abraham did; it would teach them to make a heauenly and ſpirituall vſe of them, as he did.

Laſtly, in the generall ſtate of the reaſon, & of Abrahãs practiſe; obſerue how he hauing promiſe of Canaan, waited for heauẽ. Now, no man waiteth for any thing, but that which he hath hope of; nor hopeth truely and properly, for any thing, but that which he hath aſſurance of: for hope maketh not aſhamed, Rom. 5. 5. Not worldly hope, for that hath deceiued no more than euer truſted it: But Hope in God neuer deceiued man; nor went any away diſappointed, that hoped in God. Therefore, here it is apparant, that hope of heauen goeth with aſſurance: and this aſſurance muſt be particular to the beleeuer, as the beleife and faith is.

But the Papiſts ſay, This is true indeede of Abraham, he had not onely hope, but full aſſurance; but that came by extraordinarie reuelation: So that this is a rare example, and his particular reuelation, is no generall warrant to vs.

We anſwer from S. Paul, (Rom. 4. 11.) that Abraham is the father of the faithfull; and that his faith is a patterne for all Chriſtians to follow: for elſe, why doth the Apoſtle ſo farre extoll, and ſet forth that faith of his, aboue 1300. yeares after his death; ſhall it be onely for his commendation, and not for our imitation alſo? Therefore euery man that will walke in the ſteps of holy Abraham, may come with him to that meaſure of faith, that he may waite for heauen, with aſſurance to enioy it.

Now let vs come to the particular deſcription of that heauen, which Abraham thus waited for.

A City hauing a foundation, whoſe maker & builder is God.

The deſcription hath three parts.

1. It is ſaid to be a Citie.
2. That hath a foundation.
3. That God made and built it.

For the firſt:

Abraham by his faith waited for heauen: But for which? For there are three heauens, or differences of heauen in the Scripture.

The firſt, that wherein we liue and breath, birds flie, and clouds mooue.

The ſecond, that wherein the ſtarres are.

The third is that, that is aboue them both, and is inuiſible; the ſeate of Gods glorie, where God reuealeth his Maieſtie in ſpeciall manner to men and angels. This heauen Abraham waited for. For as for the firſt, he liued in it: And for the ſecond, he knew it as wel as moſt men; for it is credibly thought, he was a notable Aſtronomer. So that it was the third heauen, hee waited for: which he knewe this world could not giue him: and therefore expected it in another.

Now, this heauen which was Abrahams hope, is called a City.

A City properly is a place for the habitation of men, compaſſed with walls, and diſtinguiſhed by ſtreets and houſes. Now, properly heauen (or the eſtate of holy men in heauen) is not a City; but as elſewhere in the ſcripture, it is called a houſe, a tabernacle, a temple, an inheritance, a kingdome: ſo is it here called a city; namely, for the reſemblance it hath thereunto, which conſiſteth ſpecially in foure points.

1. A Citie hath many houſes, greater, leſſe, and for all ſorts. So in heauen alſo, there are many manſions, Iohn, 14. 2. Places of glorie for all men; none neede to feare that hee ſhall not haue fulneſſe of ioy, and perfect happineſſe.

2. A Citie is built, and at firſt was ordained to this end; that many citizens might liue together in concord and amitie. So the kingdome of heauen, is a heauenly citie, where the Saints of God ſhall liue in perfect peace and loue, with fulneſſe of ioy euery one in himſelfe, and each one in another.

3. The goodneſſe or excellency of a City conſiſts in this; To haue good lawes, good Magiſtrates to execute them, and good people performing ſubiection and obedience. Therefore the kingdome of heauen is the moſt perfect Citie, wherein Gods lawes are the onely lawes, and they ſhall be written in mens hearts: where each one is a ſufficient gouernour of himſelfe, and yet all ſubiect to God; and their God vnto them all in all.

4. A City is a place, where generally are all neceſſaries and comforts for mans life: one part of the countrey hath this commoditie, another that; but in the citie are all, either brought into it, or of it ſelfe. So in heauen are all parts of perfection, and all complements of happineſſe, to make the ſtate of Gods children there infinitely bleſſed.

Such a glorious place is the Citie that was Abrahams hope.

Now for the vſe hereof.

Firſt, Is heauen ſuch a City? Here is a notable comfort to the poore and plaine countryman, who liues in the ſimplicity of the country life, tilling the ground, or keeping cattell; and it may be, neuer ſaw, or (at the leaſt) neuer taſted of the pleaſures and delights of cities: If he ſerue God, and keepe a good conſcience, here is his happineſſe; he ſhall be citizen in the high and heauenly Ieruſalem: that Citie which was the hope of the holy men of God in all ages.

Secondly, this may teach Citizens, in the great, populous, and pompous cities of this world, to labour alſo to be Citizens in heauen; for that is a citie alſo, and the beſt on earth are but ſhadowes of it. And it may ſhame them that are drowned in the pleaſures & delicacies of earthly cities, and care not, nor looke after the citie of the liuing God, the heauenly Ieruſalem:

lem: as it is called, Heb.12. 22. But alas, it ſeemes they care not for this ſhame; for where is ſecuritie, wantonneſſe, profaneneſſe, oppreſſions, ſo common, as in theſe great cities? And as in the Apoſtles times, the countrey towne Berea, was more zealous and religions, than the rich and ſtately citie of Theſſalonica, Acts, 17. 11. So is it generally to this day, eſpecially at ſuch places in the country, where teaching and knowledge is. But let ſuch cities know, that as they haue better means and more comforts, and their very nature ſhould put them in mind and make them in loue with heauen; ſo they ſhall receiue greater damnation.

Laſtly, Cities are places of freedome, and all ſuch great places haue ſome notable priuiledges; therefore men deſire to be free in ſuch places: as is to be ſeene in London, Rome, Venice, &c. euen the greateſt perſons will be content to be free of them, and many ſeeke it, and pay deere for it; or at leaſt, worke a long time for it.

But heauen is the Citie of cities, the perfection of beautie and true happineſſe: therefore let euery one, that deſires either honour or happineſſe, labour and ſtriue to be a freeman of heauen, and neuer reſt till he know he be. And let thoſe that liue in cities, when they are admitted freemen (as daily ſome are,) remember what a bleſſedneſſe it will be, if they can be admitted freemen of the glorious Citie which is aboue; and how little that ſhall auaile them, if they want this, which was the hope and ioy of Abraham, and all holy men.

To goe further: This Citie which Abrahams faith waited for, is deſcribed by two points:

1. That it hath a foundation.
2. That the maker and builder was God.

For the firſt: Heauenly Ieruſalem hath a foundation, ſuch a one, as no city in this world hath: and by this phraſe, the holy Ghoſt inſinuates vnto vs, what be the properties of heauen; which be two:

1. The ſtate of heauen is vnchangeable.
2. Euerlaſting and eternall.

Firſt, the ſtate of the Elect in heauen, and their glorie there, is not ſubiect to corruption, or the leaſt alteration; as appeareth in that notable and loftie deſcription of the heauenly Ieruſalem, Apoc. 21: 14. and from the 10. v. to the 21. It hath a great wall and high, twelue gates, twelue Angels for porters: and the wall had twelue foundations, of twelue ſorts of moſt excellent pretious ſtones: and the wall it ſelfe was Iaſper, and the citie pure gold, like cryſtall. The ſtate of it is ſhadowed by pretious ſtones, and gold; to ſignifie, as well the durableneſſe, as the excellencie thereof. And in the 15. Pſal. 1. it is called the mountaine of Gods holines: hills are hardly remooued, and therefore Dauid ſaith, that Mount-Zion can not be remooued, but remaineth for euer, Pſal. 125. 1. Now, if that be true of Mount Zion, in this world; which muſt needes be taken either literally, for the ſtate of the viſible Church, which cannot be vtterly ouerthrowne: or myſtically, for the ſtate of Gods grace, which in this world cannot totally & finally be loſt: I ſay, if this Mount Zion ſtandeth faſt, and cannot be remooued; how much more true is it, of the ſtate of glorie in heauen, and of the triumphant Church, and of heauenly Zion; that it is ſo vnchangeable, ſo durable, ſo vnremooueable, that it cannot be ſhaken, but ſtandeth faſt for euer. And in this reſpect, well may the Apoſtle ſay here, It hath a foundation; which the holy Ghoſt in the Reuelation ſaith, to haue twelue foundations.

Secondly, the ſtate of the Elect in heauen, is not onely ſure, but euerlaſting; that is, without ende: Pſal. 37. 18. The Inheritance of holy men is perpetuall: and therefore S. Peter, 1. 1. 4. ſaith, that the inheritance reſerued in heauen for vs, is immortall, and not fading away. It fades not away; there is the vnchangeablenes: it is immortall; there is the eternitie of it. And this is meant, by hauing a foundation: for in this world, ſo much the longer doth any thing endure, as the foundation is ſtronger. Therefore, ſeeing the heauenly citie hath ſuch a foundation, no maruell though it indure for euer.

Now put theſe two together, and they ſhew the perfect excellencie of that citie, which is both vnchangeable and eternall. Where we learne, the great difference betwixt the ſtate of that world, and this preſent world, wherein we liue in the body. For what is there in this world ſo excellent, ſo pretious, ſo coſtly, ſo artificiall; but is ſubiect both to alteration, and in the end to diſſolution? The longeſt day hath his night; and the longeſt life endeth in death, after many miſeries, and toſſings: the longeſt Empires, and mightieſt Monarchies, had their period, after many mutations: the ſtatelieſt and ſtrongeſt cities, ended in ruine, after many ciuill broyles, maſſacres, and other miſeries. So that no glorie, no ſtrength, no happineſſe, nothing at all is there in this world, that is either conſtant or perpetuall, but ſubiect to vtter diſſolution in the ende; and in the meane time, to pitifull alterations. So weake a foundation hath this world, and the beſt things in it. But contrariwiſe, the glorie of heauen hath ſuch a foundation, as it is both vnchangeable and eternall.

The conſideration of this difference, hath manifold and profitable vſe. Firſt, we may ſee how reaſonable the counſell of the Apoſtle is, 1. Tim. 6. 17. Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high minded, and put not their truſt in vncerten riches, but in the liuing God. For what a miſerie and vanitie is it, to truſt in that that is vncerten, and therefore will deceiue them? The Apoſtle tells them what to doe; namely, Doe good, and be rich in good works, and be readie to diſtribute, laying vp in ſtore for themſelues a good foundation againſt the times to come, that they may obtaine eternall life: that is, that they ſo ſpend their riches in holines and charitie, that they may in the ende attaine heauen, which is the Citie that hath a foundation: and who would not ſpend riches, which are ſo vncertaine; for heauen, which is ſo certaine a glorie?

Secondly, this muſt teach vs to followe the Counſell of Chriſt Ieſus, Matth. 6. 19, 20. Lay not vp for your ſelues treaſures on earth, where moth and canker corrupt, and theeues ſteale: but in heauen, where is neither canker, moth, theefe, nor any other corruption. Euery man naturally muſt haue his treaſure, and that is it whereon he ſets his heart; now that is vnworthy of a mans heart, which will be loſt wee know not how ſoone. But let vs make heauē our treaſure, the glory whereof is both eternall and vnchangeable.

Againe, ſeeing nothing here is certaine, wee muſt learne to ſeeke ſound comfort, where it may be had. Seeke it in this world, and it will faile vs; but ſeeke it in the ſincere worſhip of God, and that will miniſter ſuch comfort in this life, and ſuch glory in heauen, as hath a foundation, and will neuer faile vs.

Further, this muſt put vs in minde of the holy Kings aduiſe; which is, to remember our Creator in the daies of our youth, Eccleſ. 12. 1. Seeing this world is ſo vncertaine, and our life hath ſo weake a foundation, as we are not ſure to liue to come to old age: euery man therefore, is to heare the concluſion of all; which is, to feare God, and keepe his commandements: and this, the ſooner the better. For elſe, for a little fooliſh and vaine pleaſure, tranſitory, and which hath no foundation; we ſhall venter the looſing of that glorious citie, which hath a ſure foundation.

It followeth in the deſcription;

Whoſe maker and builder is God.

The ſecond point in the deſcription of this citie is, that God was the maker, builder, or author of it. Theſe two words are both one, and therefore it is a needleſſe labour of ſome that would diſtinguiſh betwixt them: for, the meaning is, God made, that is, prepared the glorie of heauen, and he built it; as though he ſhould ſay, Heauenly Ieruſalem is a glorious citie: and no maruell though it be ſo, for God made it. And if you will needs, that being a citie, it muſt be built, be it ſo; for God is the builder of it.

This doctrine is euident in the Scriptures, Pſal. 136. 5. God by his wiſdome made the Heauens. And here is another maine difference betwixt this world, and the glorie of heauen: The Cities of this world were built by man, but Heauen by God himſefe. The arte and skill of men built the cities of the earth, and ſometime the couetouſneſſe, or other corruption of man, as is manifeſt in the beginning: for Cain, a couetous, cruell, and abitious man, built the firſt citie in the world: but holy and good men, haue not the honour to be builders of this Citie; No, they are Citizens of it, but God onely is the anthor and builder of it.

No man may doubt hereof, becauſe this third heauen is inviſible; for the Angels alſo are inviſible, and yet Gods creatures. Beſides, our Creed teacheth, that God is Creator of all things viſible and inuiſible.

If we doubt why God made it, ſeeing he made all things for man, and man in this world hath no ſight nor vſe of it. The anſwer is, God made it for two endes.

Firſt, to be his owne glorious palace (not wherein he would confine his beeing, or his preſence, but) wherein he would make his glory moſt apparant; and wherein his glorie ſhould in a ſort dwell. In which regards, it is called his throne, Eſay 66. And in our Lords praier we ſay by Chriſts owne teaching, that God our father is in heauen. Therefore as Princes build themſelues palaces, to ſhew their power and puiſſance, and to magnifie themſelues, and to be fit habitations for their greatneſſe; So God made the third heauen to be the throne of his glorie.

Secondly, he had alſo a reſpect herein to his creatures, for, he made that heauen, therein to reueale his maieſtie and glorie to his reaſonable creatures, Angels and Men: and (by ſhewing them his glorie) to glorifie them. For in Gods preſence is the fulneſſe of ioy, Pſal. 16. vltim. And in this ſenſe is it true, that God made all things for man, (as man for himſelfe:) namely, all things, either for his ſoule, or body, or both; either for his vſe in this life, or in the other. And ſo the third heauen was made for mans vſe; not in this life, but in the life to come; for his ſoule vntill the laſt Iudgement; & after that, for both ſoule and bodie.

Hence we learne diuers inſtructions.

Firſt, in that the third heauen, which neuer was ſeene with the eie of man, is here poſitiuely affirmed to be made by God: We learne, that therefore it is one of Gods creatures; and not eternall, as ſome hold, and goe about to prooue, thus: God is eternall; but he muſt be in ſome place: and heauen is the ſeate and place of God; therefore it is coeternall with God. But I anſwer, from Gods word; that though heauen be the ſeate and throne of Gods glorie, and where he manifeſteth, and magnifieth his glorie; yet is it not the place of his ſubſtance and beeing, for that is infinite, and incomprehenſible: and it is againſt the Chriſtian faith, to imagine the Godhead to be comprehended or contained in any place. 1. King. 8. 27. The heauens, yea the heauens of heauens cannot comprehend thee, O Lord; how much more vnable is this houſe that I haue built?

Nor is it materiall, that we know not on what day it was created; or that it is not named amongſt the works of the creation. For the ſame is true of the Angels alſo: and it pleaſed Gods wiſedome, for ſpeciall cauſes, to name no creatures particularly in the creation, but viſible; whereas we know both from our Creede, and Gods word it ſelfe, that he is the creator of all things both viſible and inuiſible. Therefore though we know not what day the third heauen was made; yet is it ſufficient, that here is ſaide, It was made and built by God himſelfe. Whereupon it neceſſarily followeth, it is a creature, and not coeternall with the Godhead.

Secondly, here appeares the weakneſſe of one of the commoneſt arguments, vſed for the defence of the Vbiquitie and Conſubſtantiation. Chriſt (ſay they) is preſent bodily in the Euchariſt, and they prooue it thus: Chriſt is in heauen, and he is God: but heauen is euery where; for God is euery where: and where God is, there heauen is: (as where the King is, there the Court is:) Therefore Chriſt may be in the Sacrament, and yet be in heauen notwithſtanding.

I anſwer, the ground is falſe: Heauen is not euery where; for then it is in Hell: which to affirme, is abſurditie, confuſion, and impietie. Indeede Gods preſence is euery where; and where his preſence is, there is his power: as where the Kings preſence is, there is alſo his power and authoritie; and there may be any ſeate or court of Iuſtice: and ſo where he is, the court is. But if you take the Court, for ſome one of his chiefe houſes, then the ſaying is not true. But contrariwiſe, as the Kings power is, whereſoeuer his preſence is; and yet he may haue one houſe more ſumptuous, and magnificent then all the reſt, which may be called his Court, by an excellencie aboue other: and that Court is not alwaies where the King is, but in ſome ſet and certen place, and not remoouable:

So Gods power and glorie is euery where; and yet his moſt glorious Court, the third heauen, is not euery where, but in his limited and appointed place, where Gods glorie ſhineth more then in any other place.

Againe, if heauen properly taken, be euery where, then it is God himſelfe: for that that is euery where, muſt needes be deified; and indeed ſome, to maintaine this opinion, haue ſaid little leſſe. But if the holy Ghoſt may moderate this diſputation, he plainly tells vs here, That God is the maker and builder of it. Therefore aſſuredly it is not God, but one of Gods creatures.

Thirdly and laſtly, let vs obſerue the deſcription of heauen, included in theſe two words, maker and builder. God made it, that is, it is one of his creatures; he made it as well as the reſt: and he builded it, that is, (as the word ſignifieth) made it with arte; or he beſtowed skill and wiſdome vpon it. For, though we may not imagine any ſubſtantiall difference betwixt theſe two words, for matter; yet in ſignification they differ: and ſo farre we are to obſerue it.

Here then we learne, that the third Heauen is like a piece of worke, wherein an excellent workeman hath ſpent his arte, and ſhewed his skill; that is, that the higheſt heauen is a moſt glorious place, and ſurpaſſeth all other creatures A of God in glorie and excellencie, ſo farre as therein ſhineth the glorie, skill, and wiſdome of the Creator, more then in any other creature. In which regard, it is no maruell though the holy Ghoſt ſay in another place, That the eye hath not ſeene, nor the eare heard, nor mans heart conceiued, what God hath there prepared for them that loue him, 1. Cor. 2. 9. And S. Paul himſelfe, though he had the honour to be taken vp into this third heauen, and to ſee and heare the glorie which is there; yet afterwards could not he expreſſe the glorie he had ſeene. And this was figured in the Temple of Ieruſalem, which was the mirrour, and beautie of the world; for the building whereof, God both choſe the skilfulleſt men, & endued them B alſo with extraordinarie gifts: namely, Bezaleel and Aholiab. Now, as thereby that Temple was the moſt excellent piece of worke that euer was in this world, made by man; ſo the higheſt heauen (which was myſtically prefigured in Salomons Temple) is the moſt excellent of all the works of God.

& Hiram

The vſe of this doctrine is not to be omitted.

Firſt, if that be ſo excellent and glorious a place, we muſt all labour to come thither; for aboue all things, it ſeemes worthy to be ſought for. People come out of all places of the countrey, to dwell in great townes, and rich cities; and men labour to be freemen there, and to haue their children free in them: and euen the C greateſt men, will haue their houſes either in, or neere them; that ſo, though they will not alwaies dwell in them, yet they may ſoiourne in them at their pleaſures now and then. And why all this? but becauſe, firſt, they are places beautifull, and many waies pleaſant to the eye. Secondly, full, and frequented with the beſt companie. Thirdly, repleniſhed with aboundance of all things needefull for mans life, for neceſſitie, comfort, and delight. Fourthly, they enioy many priuiledges and freedomes. And laſtly, all this is moſt true of ſuch cities, where the King keepes his Court.

If this be ſo, then how is heauen to be ſought for? Behold here a goodly citie, a citie of God, D (whereof, London, Paris, Rome, Venice, nay Ieruſalem, are ſcarce ſhadowes) the true Ieruſalem, the ioy of the whole earth: nay the ioy of the world, and the glorie of all Gods creatures, made immediately with the hand, and built with the skill and cunning of God himſelfe. The Princes of the world, and euen of Rome it ſelfe, wondred at the beautie, and were amazed at the magnificence of Ieruſalem and the Temple, and yet it was but a type and figure hereof. For that had indeede the glorie of the world vpon her: but the new Ieruſalem hath the glorie of God vpon her, Rev. 21. 4.

Shall we then ſeeke to dwell in the cities of this world, and not labour to come to heauen? Are they any way excellent, wherein heauen is not much more to be deſired? Are they beautifull, tifull; and is not it the beauty of the world? Read the 21. chap. of the Reue. and ſuppoſe that the beauty of it were but outward, and worldly and ſenſible to humane capacitie: yet is it farre more excellent, then euer any was in this world. And is not there the company of the deitie, of Chriſts humanity, of the holy Angels; and all good men? And is not their abundance of whatſoeuer belongs to perfect happineſſe? And is not there freedome from the deuill, ſinne, and death? And is it not the Court of God, the King of glorie? Then why doe we not ſigh and grone, and long to be free-men of this glorious citie? And though we cannot come to it, as long as wee liue in this world; yet why doe we not ſtriue to come as neere it as may bee? In this world, when a man cannot dwell in the heart of a Citie, yet he will rather dwell in the ſuburbs, then he will not be neere it; and beeing there, he knowes hee can ſoone ſteppe into the citie. So let vs in this life come as neere heauen as we may; let vs get into the ſuburbs and dwell there.

The ſuburbs of heauen is Gods true Church on earth, where his word is freely knowen and preached, and his holy Sacraments adminiſtred, and therein God truely ſerued. Let vs aſſociate our ſelues to this Church, and liue according to the holy lawes thereof. This is the ſuburbs of heauen; ſo ſhall wee be readie to enter into the glorious citie it ſelfe, when the Lord calles vs.

And as this is for our ſelues; ſo if we loue our children, or care for their aduancement, let vs make them free-men of that citie, whoſe maker and builder is God: So ſhall we be ſure to haue comfort and ioy of them here; and with them in heauen. But if we will haue them free-men in heauen, we muſt make thẽ Gods apprentizes on earth: they muſt ſerue out their time, elſe they get no freedome. This time, is all their life. Men are deceiued that let their children be the deuills ſlaues here, and thinke to haue them free in heauen: let vs then binde our chidren prentizes to God, that is, make them his ſeruants here: then aſſuredly, as in their repentance and regeneration here, they are borne free-men of heauen; ſo after this life they ſhall inioy the freedomes and priuiledges of that heauenly citie, which was made and built by the wiſdome of God.

Laſtly, here we ſee how true it is that Dauid teacheth, Pſal. 15. 4. No vile perſon can come in heauen. And no maruell: for if men thus and thus defamed, cannot be freemen in the Cities on earth, built by men; is it likely that ſinners, and profane men, that care not for repentance, and regeneration, (for they be the vile men) ſhall be admitted into that citie, whoſe maker and builder is God? It is the holy citie, no vncleane thing can enter into it, Reuel. 21. It is Gods holy mountaine, how ſhall vngodlineſſe aſcend thither? Pſal. 15. 1. It is the newe Ieruſalem, how ſhall the old man, that is, ſinnefull corruption, get into it? We muſt therefore caſt off the olde man, with his luſts, and be renewed in holyneſſe: we muſt become penitent ſinners for our liues paſt, and new men for hereafter; or elſe let vs not looke to haue any part in heauen.

And good reaſon; for God is the maker and builder of it: But he is not the maker of ſinne; but the deuill, and our ſelues brought it out: and thinke we the deuills worke ſhall come in heauen? or that God will build a houſe for the deuils ſlaues to dwel in? Let vs not be deceiued: But contrariwiſe, grace and holyneſſe is Gods worke: as our ſoules and bodies were the work of his hands, ſo our regeneration is much more the worke of his owne power and mercie. That man therefore, who can ſay, God as once he made me a man; ſo he hath againe made and built me a new man, and a new creature; that man is he, that ſhall be an inhabitant in that heauenly city, whoſe maker and builder is the ſame God.

In this holy way of faith and repentance, did the holy Fathers walke to this citie; as Dauid ſaith, in the name of them all, Thus I will waite for thee in holineſſe.

And thus doubtleſſe did the holy Patriarke Abraham, who as he was the father of our faith, ſo was he alſo a patterne of repentance and holy life: and in that holyneſſe he waited for this city that hath a foundation, whoſe maker and builder is God.

Hitherto we haue heard the holy practiſe of Abrahams faith, in two examples.

There is much more ſpoken of the excellencie of his faith: but by the way, the holy Ghoſt interlaceth a worthy example, euẽ of a womans faith; namely, Sarah his wife. The ſixt Example, in the order of the whole, followeth in the words of the two next verſes.

Sarahs faith.

VERSE 11.

By faith, euen Sarah alſo receiued ſtrength to conceiue ſeede, and was deliuered of a child, when ſhee was paſt age, becauſe ſhe iudged him faithfull which had promiſed.

NExt to Abraham, who is called the father of our faith, or of faithfull men, followeth Sarah, who was alſo myſtically the mother of beleeuers:

Sarahs faith.

A next to the husband followeth the wife: nay Abrahams faith is commended, both before her, and after her; and hers incloſed in the midſt.

By the way, here obſerue how God honours holy mariage, and obſerues the decorum, and dignitie of it: He not onely allowes, or commends the faith of Abel, who it may be was vnmaried; but as we ſee, of maried men alſo. And it is worthy our obſeruation, that of all theſe whom the holy Ghoſt here records for their faith and holineſſe, they were all maried, except Abel; of whom, it is not certaine whether hee were, or no.

It appeares therefore, that God, as he ordained holy mariage: ſo he alwaies honored it, both B with his grace on earth, and his glorie in heauen: as well, if not better, then any other ſtate of life. They therefore doe ſpit in the face of God himſelfe, who any way diſgrace it, and they eſpecially, who allow fornication, or adulterie, in any ſort of men, rather then it, as ſome Papiſts doe. But here wee may obſerue further, how God maintaines the dignity and decorum of it: hee placeth Abraham and Sarah together: and puts none betwixt them, to ſhew the inſeparable vnitie, that is to be betwixt them: ſo farre, as that euen in ſtorie, they are to bee ſet together: and how hainous their preſumption is, that dare any way attempt to ſeparate or part that vnitie.

C He placeth Abraham firſt, to ſhew the dignitie and preheminence of the man, whome for her ſinne, God hath ſet ouer her; not onely for her head, but for her guide and gouernour: and to teach the man, that he, and his example ſhould be firſt, and ſhould be a light vnto her; to ſhame them who come behinde their wiues in faith and holineſſe. Hee placeth Abraham both afore and after her, and her in the midſt; to teach her, that her glorie and honour, euery way, is in the vertue and worthineſſe of her husband; her head vnder God: who is to goe before her, to giue her good example: and to come after, to ouerſee her courſes; and on all ſides, to be a ſhelter and defence vnto her.

D Theſe things may not vnfitly bee noted in this contextion: Now let vs come to the words, wherein are theſe points;

1. Who beleeued: Euen Sarah.
2. What ſhee beleeued: Gods promiſe to beare Iſaac.
3. The impediments of that faith: which were two. 1. Her age.
    2. Her barrenneſſe.
4. The effects of this her faith: which were three,
    1. Thereby ſhe conceiued ſeed.
    2. Brought forth Iſaac.
    3. Had a great iſſue and poſteritie by him.
5. The ground of her faith: ſhee iudged him faithfull which had promiſed.

All theſe are laid down in this v. or the next.

The firſt point is, the perſon, of whome this ſtorie is: Sarah, a woman; euen ſhee beleeued. We haue heard ſome examples of notable men: but behold here, a woman chronicled for her faith, and holy obedience, as well as men.

Where we learne, that ſauing faith, and conſequently ſaluation it ſelfe, is not proper to one ſexe, but to both; man and woman. The woman indeed was the firſt that brought in ſinne; and beeing deceiued her ſelfe by the deuill, ſhe deceiued man. In which ſenſe the Apoſtle ſaith, 1. Tim. 2. 14. The man was not deceiued, but the woman; and ſhe was in the tranſgreſſion. And for that cauſe, grieuous calamities, and much bitterneſſe, was laid vpon that ſexe, in bearing, and bringing vp children, and in ſubiection. In which regards they might thinke themſelues forſaken of God, for their fault. For the preuenting whereof, the Apoſtle here, or rather the holy Ghoſt by him teacheth vs, that true faith and ſaluation by the Meſſias, belongeth to Sarah, as well as Abraham; to women, as well as to men. And Saint Peter alſo moſt plainely (1. Pet. 3. 7.) teacheth vs, that they are heires together with their husbands, of the grace of life.

The vſe whereof, as it diſcouereth the monſtrous and vnnaturall madneſſe of ſome men, who haue called into queſtion the poſſibility of their ſaluation; yea ſome, whether they haue ſoules, or no: ſo it giueth encouragement to women, to ſerue that God in zeale and ſinceritie, which hath beene ſo mercifull vnto their ſinne; and who, though he hath ſubiected them in bodie vnto their husbands, yet hath made their ſoules partakers with them, of the ſame hope of immortall life.

Yet withall we may obſerue, howe few the holy Ghoſt here recordeth; namely, but one or two women, amongſt many men. For ſo it hath beene in all ages, thoſe that haue beene good, were excellent; but they were few in compariſon of men: which, as it is the more commendation to them that are good, ſo it muſt ſtirre vp all women profeſſing religion, to labour in the imitation of the faith of their grandmother Sarah; that ſo they may bee ſome of thoſe fewe.

But let vs enter into further, and more particular conſideration, who this Sarah was; eſpecially ſeeing ſhee is the onely woman of the Iewes nation, whoſe faith is here remembred.

Shee was the wife of Abraham, the grand Patriarch of the Age betwixt the Flood, and the giuing of the Lawe. And of her we reade this ſtorie, amongſt other, Gen. 18. 13. God by his Angell appearing to her husband and her, made a promiſe, that within the yeare they ſhould haue a ſonne: both heard it, and both laughed to here it: Abraham in ioy and admiration, and therefore was not reprooued: ſhee in doubtfulneſſe, and a conceipt of almoſt impoſſibilitie, and was for it ſharply reprooued of the Angel. Yet behold this Sarah, that euen now laughed to heare ſuch a promiſe,as beeing a fond conceipt, and meere impoſſible: yet afterward beleeueth, and in ſo good a meaſure, as her faith is here regiſtred to all poſterities.

In her example,we may learne a good leſſõ. It was a bad thing in Sarah to laugh at Gods word, though it ſeemed neuer ſo high aboue her conceipt: But it was good and commendable, that ſhee correcteth her fault, and teſtifieth her amendment, by beleeuing. We all followe Sarahs fault; but fewe her repentance. Many in our Church are mockers of our religion, and of the Miniſters,and profeſſors thereof: and all religion that ſtandeth not with their humours, is no more regarded of them, then toyes,or deuiſes;and they are counted fooles, or hypocrites that thinke otherwiſe. But alas, theſe men know not how vile a ſinne they commit,while they laugh at Gods word. For, if her fault was ſuch, who laughed at that, that ſeemed to her almoſt impoſſible, and yet without any profaneneſſe; what ſhall become of them, that out of their carnalitie, and fleſhly profaneneſſe, doe make but a ſport at all Gods ordinances, promiſes, and commaundements; and at all religion,more then ſerueth their own turne? Let ſuch men bee warned,to ceaſe mocking,and lay aſide reuiling of others, and begin ſoberly and ſeriouſly to beleeue: elſe they will finde it ſharpe kicking againſt the pricke; and dangerous playing with edge-tooles.

Furthermore, Sarah that laughed in doubting, yet (withall) beleeues. This teacheth vs, that true faith is ioyned alwayes with doubting in all Gods children. If any obiect, that followeth not here: for, ſhee firſt doubted, and then beleeued; when ſhe doubted ſhe beleeued not, and when ſhee beleeued,ſhe doubted not;

I anſwer: It is not ſo, but the contrary, as I will prooue. For, Sarah was no Infidell,vtterly to denie and gaine-ſay Gods word, when ſhee heard it: but onely finding it in all reaſon, impoſſible,ſhe therefore preſently yeelded not to it, but laughed at it as a matter paſt ordinarie courſe,yet withall ſhe regarded who ſpake it; namely God,and therefore forthwith,iudged it poſſible with God, though impoſſible in reaſon,and ſo at laſt conſtantly beleeued it, yet ſtill her reaſon gaine-ſaying it: ſo that ſhee neuer doubted ſo,but that ſhee in ſome part beleeued it. And when ſhee beleeued it moſt ſtedfaſtly, yet ſhe ſomething doubted of it: reaſon ſaide it could not be, faith ſaide it might be. Therefore, as when reaſon ouer-ruling, yet ſhee had ſome ſparkes of faith: So, when her faith was predominant,there remained ſome reliques of doubting:for,as reaſon cannot ouerthrow true faith; ſo the beſt faith in this world,cannot fully vanquiſh reaſon.

This is the doctrine of Gods word, Mark. 9. 24. Ieſus bidding the father of the child poſſeſſed, to beleeue, and then his child ſhould bee diſpoſſeſſed: he anſwered, crying with teares, Lord I beleeue, helpe my vnbeliefe. There is faith and vnbeliefe in one ſoule at one time, in one action,vpon one obiect: and what is vnbeliefe, but doubting or worſe?

And Chriſt often reprooueth his Diſciples, for their doubting, and calls them O ye of little faith; and ye all know that, that they then had true faith: yea, S. Peter himſelfe, moſt famous for his faith, is reprooued in the ſame words, O thou of litle faith, wherefore didſt thou doubt? He had a little faith, therefore ſome faith: a little faith, therefore much doubting: therefore it is apparant, a man may haue in his ſoule at once, both faith and doubting: yea, commonly we haue a graine of muſtard-ſeede or a mite of faith, and a mountaine of doubting.

The vſe of this doctrine; Firſt, diſcouereth the nakedneſſe of many profeſſing themſelues Chriſtians, who care not how they liue, yet ſay they beleeue in Chriſt, and looke to be ſaued by him. Aske how they know it: they anſwer, they know no other: Aske when they began: they ſay, they did euer ſo. Aske if they doubt; they anſwer,they would be aſhamed ſo to doe. But alas,here is nothing but ignorance and preſumption. Our religion can neuer be diſgraced by ſuch men; for they haue it not, they knowe it not: for, if they did, they would ſhame to anſwer ſo. Theſe men haue no faith at all: for, where it is,doubting doth alwaies ſhew it ſelfe. And he that knowes he beleeues, knowes alſo he doubts: and the more he beleeues, the more he knoweth & feeleth his doubting: for,where theſe two are, they are alwaies oppoſite, and ſhew their contrary natures: the one is the ſpirit, the other is fleſh and corruption. And theſe, ſaith the Apoſtle, doe luſt one againſt another, Galath. 5. 17. He therefore that thinketh he is wholy ſpirit, and hath no fleſh or corruption in him,is nothing but corruption: and he that imagineth, he hath perfect faith, and no doubting, hath no faith at all in him,but carnall preſumption.

Secondly,here is comfort to all ſuch as haue faith and grace,and yet are daily troubled with temptations: let not ſuch be diſmayed, though they finde in themſelues much doubting and diffidence. For Sarah beleeued, and yet ſhe doubted: yea, notwithſtanding all her doubting, ſhe beleeued ſo excellently, as her faith is here made a patterne, to all holy Matrons for euer. He therefore that is euen buffeted by Sathan, with temptations of doubting, let not him bee diſmayed, as though he had no faith: but let him be aſſured, his doubting doth not bewray it ſelfe, but that faith makes the oppoſition;and therefore let him ſtriue with teares and prayers to God,& ſay, Lord I beleeue, helpe thou my vnbeleefe.

Thus we ſee the perſon who, Sarah: but what is the action which ſhe did? It is implied in theſe words,

Through faith Sarah, &c.

Her action is, ſhee beleeued. This vertue of faith, and this action of beleeuing, is the matter of all this chapter. Theſe holy men and women had other holy vertues: but their faith is that alone, which is here commended.

Now particularly for Sarahs faith, here is one notable thing to be obſerued; the very ſame word of God, which ſhe beleeued, and for beleeuing whereof ſhe is here regiſtred, at the ſame ſhe alſo laughed: but behold, her faith is recorded, her laughing is not; her faith is commended, her fault ſilenced. In which holy and mercifull practiſe of God, we learne;

Firſt, that God accepteth true faith, though it be attended with many infirmities. As a King is content to giue a begger an almes, though he receiue it with a hand ſhaking with the palſey: So, God is well pleaſed with our faith, though diſeaſed with infirmities, and beſtoweth grace on a beleeuing ſoule, though ſhaken with many temptations.

In a word, God accepteth ſoundnes of faith, though it be but ſmall, and more lookes at (in his mercie) a mans little faith, then his many faults. He will not breake the bruiſed reede, nor quench the ſmoking flaxe, Eſay 42. 3. When a man is broken in heart, and deiected in ſoule, in ſight of his many ſinnes, and little grace, God will not breake this bruiſed reede, but will comfort and ſtrengthen him. And when any life of grace appeares in a man (as flaxe that ſmoketh, but will not burne out) God will not quench it, but will rather kindle it, and giue life vnto it.

Let this teach vs to take in good part, the holy and honeſt endeuours of our brethren, though they cannot doe ſo well as they would, or ſhould. Let vs not exact too much, and too haſtily vpon them, but expect in meekneſſe the working of Gods grace: and in the meane time, thinke well of Sarahs faith, though it bee with laughing.

Secondly, here we may learne, that God rather obſerues and regards good things in his children, then their faults and imperfections: he writes vp Sarahs faith, hee nameth not her laughing. This is from the goodneſſe of his nature, beeing goodneſſe it ſelfe, and therfore moſt eaſily apprehendeth, and takes notice of the leaſt goodneſſe, where-euer he findes it.

Thus ſhould wee deale one with another: what good thing we ſee in any man, we ſhould obſerue and commend it: his faults wee ſhould not ſee, but couer and omit them. But the courſe is contrary: the common table-talke of the world, is nothing but of mens faults, and to rip vp their imperfections: but if they haue neuer ſo many good properties, we can bury them all, or paſſe them ouer in ſilence. This argueth the malice and the naughtineſſe of our nature; which being euill, doth delight in nothing but euill; and being corrupt, feeds, as doth the filthy horſe-flie, on nothing but corruption. But let vs remember the practiſe of God, and learne to conceale faults, and vſe our tongues to talke of the good things and vertues in our brethren: So ſhall we reſemble the Lord, who though Sarah laughed (not in a holy admiration, but in vnbeliefe) yet, foraſmuch as afterward ſhee beleeued, God hath matched her with the notableſt beleeuers, and holieſt men that haue bin in the world.

Thus much for the firſt point: the perſon, and her action, ſhe beleeued. Now the ſecond is, what ſhee beleeued? included and neceſſarily implied in the laſt words of the verſe: ſhee iudged him faithfull which had promiſed.

The thing ſhee beleeued, was the word or promiſe of God; Particularly his promiſe that ſhe ſhould beare Iſaac in her old age: of which promiſe, and the circumſtances of it, wee may reade, Gen. 18. 13, &c.

Here the onely queſtion is, By what faith ſhe beleeued this?

And the anſwer is, by true ſauing faith: and it is prooued thus. Abraham beleeued this promiſe by the faith that iuſtified him, Rom. 4. 10. 11. But Abraham and Sarah beleeued it both by one faith: therefore Sarah beleeued that promiſe by the faith that alſo iuſtified her. Where we learne, that ſauing faith apprehendeth not onely the great promiſe of redemption by Chriſt, but all other inferiour promiſes that depend vpon it. For, here we ſee Abraham and Sarah take hold of the promiſe of a temporall bleſſing, by the ſame faith, whereby formerly they had laide holde on the promiſe of eternall ſaluation by the Meſſias: ſo that the obiect of true faith is,

1. Principall: the promiſe of ſaluation by Chriſt.
2. Secondarie: all inferiour promiſes annexed thereunto.

The maine promiſe is: So God loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten Sonne, to the end, that whoſoeuer beleeueth in him, ſhould not periſh, but haue eternall life, Iohn 3. 16. Now true faith, firſt of all, directly and plainely faſteneth it ſelfe on this: but after and with this, on all other promiſes that concerne ſoule or bodie. In the Lords prayer, wee are bid to pray for temporal bleſſings, health, peace, competencie of wealth, and all other, vnder the name of daily bread: and we are bound to beleeue, that God will giue them, if wee aske in faith. Neither is this faith conſtrained, but free and voluntarie, and on a good foundation. For, beeing perſwaded that God accepteth vs in Chriſt for ſaluation, we cannot but withall be perſwaded, that God will giue vs all things elſe needefull for vs.

This wee here note againe, becauſe we are wrongfully charged by the Papiſts, to hold, that faith apprehendeth the promiſe of ſaluation alone. But we paſſe it ouer, for that we haue already ſpoken ſomething of it.

Now followeth the third point: namely, the impediments of her faith, in theſe words,

When ſhe was paſt age.

Sarahs faith.

The promiſe was to haue a child: Shee beleeued it. Now againſt child-bearing, there are two impediments: 1. Barrenneſſe: 2. Age.

If one be aged, or paſt the ordinarie time, it is hard and vnlikely: but if one be very aged, and farre paſt it, it is impoſſible ſhe ſhould conceiue and beare a child; thus it ſtands in reaſon. Beſides, though one be not paſt age, yet if ſhee be barren (as ſome by ſecret reaſons in nature are) it is not to be expected, ſhee ſhould conceiue. Now, both theſe lay in Sarahs way; for, here it is ſaid, ſhee was paſt age: and another place (namely, Gen. 16. 1. 2). ſaith, ſhee was barren.

But it may be obiected againſt Sarahs age, that in the olde time they had children, till they were of great age. Eua had her ſonne Sheth at 130. yeares olde (Gen. 5. 3.) For, Adam and Eue muſt needes be both of one age: and after that, Eue bore many ſonnes and daughters. Therefore, it may ſeeme, that Sarah was not paſt age at 90. yeares olde. But we are to knowe, that they who began to beare at that age, liued eight or nine hundred yeares: but Sarah liued after the flood, when Ages were brought downe to 200. and for the moſt part to 100. yeares. Abraham liued but 175. yeares, and Sarah but 127. She therefore who liued 127. yeares, and died an olde woman, muſt needes bee paſt age of childe-bearing, at 90. yeares olde.

And beſides her age: ſhee was alſo barren, by her naturall conſtitution (as many are and haue beene) and brought Abraham no children. Yet vnto this woman comes a word from God, Sarah ſhall beare a ſonne: And beholde, this aged and barren woman, doth not obiect deſperatly theſe her two hinderances (the one whereof in reaſon is ſufficient againſt childebearing) but beyond all impediments, and aboue reaſon beleeueth it ſhall be ſo, reſting and relying onely and wholly on Gods word for it.

The vſe of which notable and faithfull practiſe (ſo wonderfull in a woman) muſt teach vs to reſt on Gods word and promiſe, though wee haue no reaſon ſo to doe: for example,

When wee ſee our friends, or childrens bodies caſt into the earth to feede wormes, burnt by fire, or eaten by fiſhes, reaſon ſaith, they are gone, they can neuer be againe. We haue Gods word and aſſured promiſe, The dead ſhall riſe: with their bodies ſhall they riſe. Wee muſt therefore beleeue it, if we will be of the faith of Sarah. God ſaid to her; Age and barrenneſſe ſhall haue a child: ſhe beleeued it. He ſaith to vs, Duſt & rottenneſſe ſhal liue again: nay he hath often ſaid it; and ſhall not our faith acknowledg the voice of our God, and beleeue it as ſhe did?

But let vs com to perſonall promiſes, as hers was (for this is general) God hath prōiſed grace & pardon to euery penitent & beleeuing ſoule; yea no man is partaker of the ſweetenes hereof, without the bitterneſſe of many temptations to the cōtrary, giuing him occaſions of doubting, and often euen of diſpairing of Gods fauour. What muſt a man doe in this caſe? euen beleeue, though he feele no reaſon why to beleeue; and hope aboue hope. Such was Abrahams and Sarahs faith. And for it, as they were regiſtred in the Storie of Geneſis: ſo both here, and in the Romanes, Chap. 4. remembred againe, & commended for it. Now, ſuppoſe that thou, after thy comming to God by faith and repentance, fall into temptations of deſertion, wherein to thy feeling, Gods heauie hand and wrath hath ſeized on thee, and the deuill layeth thy ſins to thy charge, & tels thee thou art a damned wretch, for thou wert euer an hypocrite, and neuer hadſt faith, & that therefore God is thy enemy; In this caſe; wherein in reaſon or in feeling, there is not the leaſt hope of ſaluation: what muſt thou doe, deſpaire? God forbid. For that is the downfall into hell. No, but hope when there is no hope, keepe faith when there is no feeling.

And to ſtrengthen vs herein, remember the faith of Iob (tried and ſifted, ſo as few haue bin) who though the arrows of the Almighty ſtucke in him, and the venome thereof drunke vp his ſpirits, Iob. 6. 4. yet euen then he beleeued: and would not giue ouer, nor let goe his hold, and ſaide, Though thou bring me to duſt, yet will I not forſake thee: no, though thou kill me, yet will I truſt in thee. So, in the furie of temptations, when the venome of Gods wrath ſeemes to drinke vp our ſpirits, then muſt wee beleeue: and in the pangs of death, when God ſeemes ready to kill vs, then muſt we truſt in him. In ſuch caſes is the life of faith to be ſhewed: when reaſon and feeling ſay, God is a terrible Iudge, faith muſt ſay, he is a mercifull Father.

In our health, and welfare, and feeling of Gods fauour, this exhortation may ſeeme tedious: but if we belong to God, if it bee not paſt already, the time is ſure to come, when this doctrine will be needefull for the beſt of vs all.

Thus we ſee the excellencie of this womans faith: which is the more commended, by reaſon of theſe two ſo great hinderances. Now follow the effects of her faith, which are diuerſe: ſome laide downe in this verſe, and ſome in the next.

Receiued ſtrength to conceiue ſeede,
And was deliuered of a childe.

In theſe words are two effects:

Firſt, by power of her faith ſhee was inabled to conceiue: which afore ſhe did not, though there were the ſame reaſons in nature why ſhee ſhould.

Secondly, ſhe was deliuered of a child in her old age, and that child was Iſaac: who is therefore called the promiſed ſeede, and the child of the promiſe.

Out of the conſideration of theſe two, wee may learne diuerſe good inſtructions: for, ſeeing they are ſo neere a-kin in their natures, we will ſpeake of them both ioyntly together.

Firſt, here we may ſee that nothing is ſo hard or difficult which God hath promiſed, but faith can compaſſe it, and bring it to performance. Chriſt bad the blind ſee, the lame to goe: he ſpake, they beleeued, and they were healed. So, here God promiſeth a barren old womã a child, ſhe beleeueth, and lo, ſhee conceiueth and brings forth a ſonne.

The vſe of this doctrine is for two ſorts of people.

Firſt, many in our Church, beeing ignorant; when they are mooued to learne religion, anſwer: Alas they are ſimple, or not booke-learned, or they are dull, and heauie witted, or they be olde and weake, and therefore they can learne nothing; or if they doe, they cannot remember it. But here is nothing but vaine excuſes: For, they want not wit to learne religion, if they haue wit to buy and ſell, to knowe a faire day from a foule, good meate from ill, deere from cheape, Winter from Sommer. If they haue wit to practiſe the ciuill actions of the world, they haue wit enough to conceiue the grounds of religion, and to get ſo much knowledge as may ſuffice for a ground of that faith, which will ſaue their ſoules; So that they want nothing, but grace and diligence to vſe the meanes. To them therefore here is matter of good aduice. Let ſuch men learne but one promiſe of God out of the holy Scripture, as this; Seeke firſt the Kingdome of God, and all things elſe ſhall be giuen vnto you, Matth. 6.33. or this; Caſt all your care on him, for he careth for you, 1. Pet. 5.7. or this; He that commeth vnto me, I caſt him not away, Iohn 6.37. or but this: Aske and ye ſhall haue, ſeeke and yee ſhall find, Mat. 7.7. Let them learne but one of theſe, and when they haue learned it, beleeue it, and let their ſoules daily feede on that faith; and they ſhall ſee what will followe: euen a wonderfull bleſſing vpon that poore beginning. This their faith, will ſo content and pleaſe their hearts, that it will vrge them forward to get more, and will make them both deſirous, and capable of more knowledge and grace; and will make them euen hunger and thirſt after knowledge and grace: (whereas, he that knoweth no promiſe, nor beleeues it, contents himſelfe in ignorance and errour). And this ſhall euery one finde, that will carefully vſe the meanes that God appoints, and will begin to learne but one leſſon at the firſt. For, as olde barren Sarah, beleeuing Gods promiſe, conceiues and brings forth: So, olde, ſimple, plaine, dull Countreymen, beleeuing but one promiſe of Gods word, ſhall conceiue and bring forth daily more and more bleſſed fruites of knowledge and grace.

Secondly, others who haue made better proceedings in religion, doe ſee their ſinnes, and doe much bewaile them, but they cannot ouercome their corruptions: yea, many there are, to whom their ſinnes, and inward corruptions are more grieuous, and burdenſome, then all bodily wants or miſeries in the world; yet ſee they not how to conquer their corruptions: but (alas) are oftentimes foiled by them, to their A great diſcomfort.

Let theſe men know, the want of faith is the cauſe hereof; for, that they doe not ſufficiently ruminate, & cõſider the promiſes of God made in that behalfe, nor vſe the meanes God hath appointed: to the vſe whereof, he hath annexed his promiſes of helpe againſt ſinne. Let them therefore lay Gods word and promiſes vnto their conſciences in holy and frequent meditations. Let them carefully vſe the meanes God hath appointed, hearing and reading his word, receiuing the holy Communion, earneſt and frequent Prayer, crauing alſo the praiers of others: and let them ſharpen theſe holy exerciſes, by faſting, watching, holy conferences with others, viſitations of others afflicted like themſelues, B oft reuealing their eſtate to their godly Paſtors. Let them continue thus doing, and reſt confidently on the word and promiſe of God, with the ſtedfaſt foote of faith, and they ſhall ſee, that olde Sarah ſhall haue ſtrength to conceiue: that is, that their poore ſoules ſhall receiue ſtrength to tread vpon Sathan, to conquer their corruptions, and to conceiue and bring forth many worthy fruites of holineſſe, to their ioy and comfort in their later experience; as Iſaac was to Sarah, in her elder age.

The next doctrine, we may here learne, is; That whereas Sarah, by her faith in Gods promiſe, conceiues and brings forth: therefore children are the immediate bleſſing of the Lord: for Sarah bare Iſaac, not by any ordinarie C ſtrength or power of nature, but through faith ſhee receiued ſtrength to conceiue, &c. Neither is this ſo in her onely (wherein there was a miraculous worke of Gods power) but in all. Some are indeed barren by conſtitution, and theſe cannot conceiue, vnleſſe by Gods power as Sarah did. But ſome haue no children, who in all naturall reaſon might conceiue. For, as God gaue the Lawe, and thereby a gift and power to encreaſe and multiply, Gen. 1.22. So, he reſerued the execution of it to himſelfe, and power to alter or diſpenſe, to adde, or diminiſh as it pleaſeth him. Therefore ſaith the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 127.3. Lo, children are the inheritance of the Lord, and the fruite of the wombe is his reward: And ſpeaking of them, Pſal. 128.4. hee D ſaith, Loe, thus ſhall he be bleſſed that feareth the Lord.

The vſe is, to teach Parents, therefore to bring them vp as Gods bleſſings, and not onely to giue them corporall neceſſities (for ſo they doe their beaſts) but to nurture them in holy Diſcipline, by ſowing the ſeedes of Religion in their hearts. If this they want, they haue nothing, though you leaue them Earledomes. And herein is the ſaying true, Better vnborne then vntaught. The Law and power to encreaſe and multiplie, is giuen to beaſts in their kinde, as well as to vs, Gen. 1.22. Therefore vnleſſe we doe more then prouide for their bodies, we differ little from thẽ: but, make thẽ know God, & ſo we make thẽ fellowes with the Angels. If

A Parents did thus, it cannot bee expreſſed what bleſſings would come thereby to Church and Commonwealth.

Thirdly and laſtly, let vs here knowe and learne, that this holy Matron, Sarah, figureth vnto vs myſtically the ſpirituall Hieruſalem, the Church of God. Allegories are charily and ſparingly to be taught; elſ much vnſound doctrine may cumber mens conſciences: but this is ſound and ſure; for it is the Apoſtles, Gal. 4. 23, &c. By Agar and Sarah, other things are meant: for, theſe two mothers are two Teſtaments: Agar, ſhe which gendreth vnto bondage. Sarah Hieruſalem, which is free, and from aboue, and is the mother of vs all. Now, the reſemblance B betwixt naturall Sarah, the wife of Abraham, and myſticall Sarah the ſpouſe of Chriſt the Church of God, ſtands in this; that as ſhe not by power in her ſelfe, but by Gods power, and faith in his promiſe bare Iſaac: So, the Church our mother, bringeth forth children to God, onely by the power of Gods word and ſpirit. And therefore as Iſaac is called the childe of Promiſe, and ſaid to be borne by promiſe, Gal. 4. 23. So, men regenerate and borne to the Church, are ſaid not to be borne of blood, nor of the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of God, Ioh. 1. 13. And S. Iames ſaith, 1. 18. God, of his owne will, begat vs with the word of truth. Thus the word of God and the C will, that is, the ſpirit of God, theſe two together beget children to the Church.

The vſe is, to teach vs all to honour the Church as our mother; but to worſhip God alone, who is the father of our ſoule. The Church cannot make her ſelfe our mother, nor vs her children, when ſhe will: but it is God that muſt ſpeake the word, and then we are made, he muſt beget vs by the power of his ſpirit, and miniſterie of his word. And further, let vs learne here what account we are to make of Gods holy word, which is the immortall ſeede of our regeneration, whereby we are made Gods children, and heires of immortality.

Thus much of the two firſt effects of her faith:

The third is laid downe in the next verſe: D which becauſe it is much ſtood vpon by the holy Ghoſt, we will put it off till then, beeing therefore worthy our deeper conſideration.

And now followeth in the end of this verſe, the fift and laſt point, which is, the Ground of her faith:

Becauſe ſhee iudged him faithfull which had promiſed.

The foundation, whereon ſhe built this her faith, that ſhe ſhould haue a ſonne, beeing barren and paſt age, was not the bare promiſe of God, ſo much, as the conceite or opinion ſhee had of him that promiſed. For, promiſes are not of value, ſo much by the things promiſed, though neuer ſo great or excellent (for they may promiſe much, who can performe nothing: or though they can, yet wil recal their word in lightnes and inconſtancie) as by the worthines of the party promiſing. We ſay in this world, we had rather haue ſome mens word, then other mens bond: and rather haue a little promiſed of ſome, then much of others. Now ſuch was the Iudgement that Sarah helde of him that promiſed: namely, God: Shee iudged him faithfull which had promiſed.

Faithfull: that is, ſhe iudged him able, and willing to accompliſh what-euer he promiſed to her. So that the Grounds of our faith in God, and all his promiſes, muſt be a ſure apprehenſion and knowledge of theſe two things in God;

1. His ability, to make good what-euer paſſeth him in word.
2. His carefulneſſe to doe it, when hee hath ſaid it.

Some will promiſe any thing, though their abilities ſtretch not to performe: others are able enough, but haue no care of their word. But both theſe are in God; all-ſufficient ability, and moſt careful willingneſſe: So Sarah iudged of God, and therefore ſhee beleeued againſt reaſon: and ſo muſt we doe, if wee will beleeue Gods word aright. We may reade, and heare, and knowe Gods word, and haue the points therein ſwimming in our heads: but if we will conſtantly beleeue, with our hearts, his bleſſed promiſes, & in our conſciences feare his threatnings, we muſt be fully perſwaded of theſe two to be in him.

So are we taught by Chriſt (the wiſdome of God) in the Lords Prayer (afore wee pray for any thing) to be reſolued of Gods power and will to heare and helpe vs. Hee is our Father, therefore carefull and willing: hee is in heauen, and therefore able to heare vs, and to giue vs all things, Matth. 6. 9.

And the ſame commendation here giuen to Sarah, is alſo giuen to Abraham, Rom. 4. 21. He doubted not, but beleeued aboue hops, &c. being fully aſſured, that he which had promiſed, was alſo able to doe it.

The vſe hereof vnto vs is double:

Firſt, to aduiſe and guide vs for our promiſes; not to be too reckleſſe, as ſome are, what we promiſe: but to conſider aforehand, and if it be beyond our power, not to ſpeake the word, (for Chriſtian mens words muſt not be vain:) and if we haue promiſed any thing lawfull and in our power, to be carefull to performe it. Thus to doe, is to bee a faithfull man, and is a good ſigne of a holy man and Gods childe: prouided this be ſo, Firſt of all towards God, that we make conſcience of performing the great vow wee made in our baptiſme, and all other ſerious and holy purpoſes of our heart made to God. For, otherwiſe, hee that breakes his vowe to God careleſly, by liuing profanely, he may in worldly policy keepe his word, but he cannot doe it in conſcience.

The Church of Rome is foully faulty in this point, making no conſcience of breaking promiſe and faith with vs, or any of our religion; their nakednes herein is diſcouered in the face of all Chriſtendome: let them that are wiſe bee warned of it. They make great oſtentation of their vowes, & of their care to performe them, aboue any other religion: but it appeares hereby to be vile hypocriſie. For, if they were conſcionably, and not politikely and formally carefull of their vowes of chaſtity, pouerty, and others, made to God, they could not but bee likewiſe careful of their promiſes made to men: for the one of theſe is the fountaine and roote of the other. But the neglect of the one, ſheweth the formality and hypocriſie of the other.

Let all that feare God, learne to make conſcience of both theſe in their religion and ſeruice of God, and in all their dealings with men in the world: that ſo the world may iudge vs faithfull men, when we haue promiſed.

Secondly, let vs here learne how to helpe and ſtrengthen our weake faith in the great promiſes of God. We haue a promiſe of ſaluation, Whoſoeuer beleeueth in Chriſt, ſhall not periſh, but haue life euerlaſting. Of our reſurrection, Dan. 12. 2. They that ſleepe in the duſt, ſhall riſe againe. Of our glorification, Philip. 3. 21: The Lord Ieſus ſhall change our vile bodies, and make them like to his owne glorious bodie. Of a new world, 2. Pet. 3. 13. We looke for new heauens, and a new earth, according to his promiſe.

Theſe be, as S. Peter calls them, great and pretious promiſes, 2. Pet. 1. 4. And ſurely it muſt be a great and precious faith, that can conſtantly beleeue theſe. No better helps of our faith can there be, then often and ſeriouſly to conſider of the mercy and power of him that made them: if he be willing, and able, what can let the performance of them? Let vs therefore often ſay with holy Paul, Faithfull is he which hath promiſed, who will alſo do it, 1. Theſſ. 5. 24. and with Sarah here, Wee iudge him faithfull which hath promiſed.

Now followeth the laſt effect, in the next verſe.

V. 12. And therefore ſprang there of one, euen of one which was as dead, as many as the ſtarres of the skie in multitude, and as the ſands of the ſea ſhore, which are innumerable.

The third and laſt effect of Sarahs faith, is, that by this ſonne Iſaac, whom ſhe conceiued, and brought forth by faith, ſhe had a wonderfull great iſſue, and a poſterity almoſt without number. This effect conſiſts not of it ſelfe, but depends vpon the former. Her faith gaue her ſtrength to conceiue Iſaac, though ſhee were barren: and to bring him forth, though ſhee were olde and weake; and ſo her faith brought him out, by whom ſhee was made the mother of many millions of men.

The matter of this third effect, is the multitude of men, that came of Abraham, and Sarah by Iſaac.

This poſterity or multitude, is diſcribed by two arguments:

1. By the beginning or roote of it;
   One that was as dead.
2. The quantity or greatneſſe, laid down;
   1. Generally to bee a multitude and innumerable.
   2. Particularly, by two compariſons:
      1. As many as the ſtarres in the skie.
      2. As the ſands by the ſea ſhore.

The firſt point, is the roote and beginning of this multitude, in theſe words:

And therefore ſprang there of one, euen one that was as dead.

One; that is, one woman Sarah: or at the moſt, one couple, Abraham, and Sarah. And this one was no better thē dead. Not dead properly and fully: for, none are ſo dead, whoſe ſoules and bodies are not ſeparate: but, as dead, that is, as good as dead, or halfe dead; meaning, that they were altogether vnfit for generation of children, the ſtrength of nature being decayed in them; Abraham being an 100. & Sarah 90. yeares old. And if this be true of Abraham, who was paſt age, how much more is it of Sarah, who was both paſt age, & was alſo barren in her beſt age?

Here we are to note and learne many things:

Firſt, Multitudes came of one. See here the powerfull, and yet the ordinary works of God, to reare vp goodly and huge buildings, vpon ſmall and weake foundations. So did he in the beginning, and euer ſince. Indeede, hee made at the firſt, thouſands of ſtarres, becauſe they muſt be no more then at the firſt they were; and millions of Angels, intending they ſhall not multiply; he could alſo haue made millions of men in a moment: he would not, but onely one couple, Adam and Eue. And of them came the infinite race of mankinde. When ſinne had made an end of that world, hee founded not the ſecond that yet continueth, vpon a thouſand couples; but by three men & their wiues, he multiplied the whole race of mankinde, which ſince haue growen from three, to millions of millions. And ſo here of one olde man, and a barren old woman, ſpring innumerable multitudes.

This, God doth to magnifie his own power, in the eies of the ſonnes of men: and ſo he did alſo in matters heauenly. The nūber of Chriſtians ſince Chriſt, that haue growne to millions, began in a poore number at the firſt. For, when Chriſt himſelfe was aſcended, the number of knowne beleeuers, was but 120. Acts 1. 15.

The conſideration hereof ſhould teach vs all theſe duties;

Sarahs faith.

Firſt, not to meaſure God by our lengthes, nor to tie him to our rules; but to eſteem of his power and might, as wee ſee it deſerues: and to entertaine high and honourable thoughts of him and his Maieſtie, who can reare vp ſo great works, vpon ſo poore foundations.

Secondly, not to deſpaire of our ſelues or our eſtates, though we thinke our ſelues neuer ſo weake, ſo poore, ſo ſicke, either in ſoule or bodie: but to remember him, that of one made multitudes to ſpring out. Therefore when thou art brought neuer ſo low, either in ſoule or bodie, by any miſeries, either inward or outward; faint not, but goe forward in the ſtrength of the Lord thy God. Particularly: If God haue afflicted thee with pouerty, that thou haue nothing to begin withall: or for thy ſoule; is thy knowledge in religion ſmall, thy meanes poore, thy feeling of Gods fauour but weak? yet faint not, but lay faſt hold on Gods power and promiſe, vſe carefully the holy meanes God hath ordained, remembring and relying on him, who made millions growe out of one: and aſſure thy ſelfe, as Iob ſaith, Though thy beginnings be ſmall, yet thy latter endes ſhall greatly encreaſe.

Secondly, obſerue here how old perſons are called halfe dead, or as good as dead; and that is true of them many waies.

Firſt, their yeares and dayes, limited them, are as good as gone. For, ſuppoſe a man ſhould be as ſure to liue an 100. yeares; as the ſunne is to run all the day long his courſe, and at night to goe down: Yet as when the ſunne is paſt the height, and drawing downeward, we ſay it goeth faſt downe, and the day haſteth away; So when a man is paſt his middle age, when the ſunne of his life is paſt the noneſteede, he declineth daily, and draweth faſt away, and the night of his life approacheth, with haſt and much horror, vnleſſe he preuent it.

Secondly, their ſtrength and vitall powers, by which their life is continued, and their ſouls and bodies kept together, are ſo much weakened; that they are almoſt extinguiſhed: whereby it comes to paſſe, an old man may feele a manifeſt defect in all powers of minde and body.

Thirdly, ſickeneſſes or diſeaſes growe vpon olde age: and as their ſtrength faileth, ſo the force of diſeaſes is redoubled on them: and looke what diſeaſes haue lurked in their bodies which either naturally were bred in them, or accidentally taken, they now ſhewe themſelues more ſenſibly; and the weaker a man is, the ſtronger is his ſickneſſe. In theſe three reſpects, an olde man or woman is as good as dead.

The vſe hereof is profitable;

Firſt, they muſt therefore be aduiſed to prepare themſelues for death. Euery man is to prepare, I confeſſe: then if euery man, eſpecially they that be olde: The yong man may die, the olde man muſt die; the yongeſt cannot liue alwaies, the olde man cannot liue long; the aged mans graue is as it were made alreadie, and his one foote is in it. And this is not mans conceit alone, but Gods owne iudgement, who as we ſee here, calls an olde man as good as dead: and that not ſo much in regard, that he is ſure to die as that he is neere it: Therefore as euery man young or olde, is to make ready, becauſe his time is vnknowne, and no man is ſure, that he ſhall liue to be olde, & as the Pſalmiſt ſingeth, Euery man in his beſt eſtate is altogether vanity, Pſal. 39.6. So eſpecially he to whom God hath beene ſo gracious, as to let him ſee old age, he ſhould thinke of nothing but his ende, and prepare euery day to dy in the lord. His gray haires, his wrinkled skin, his withered face, his ill ſtomack, his weake memory, his crooked body, and the manifeſt and moſt ſenſible alteration & decay of his whole ſtate of minde and body, ſhould hourely all cry in his eares, I am halfe dead, I will therefore prepare to die in the Lord.

It is therefore a miſerable ſight to ſee, that thoſe who of all men ſhould be moſt willing to die, are for the moſt part moſt deſirous to liue. And thoſe who ſhould be moſt ready to die, are generally, moſt ignorant, moſt couetous, and their hearts moſt of al wedded to the earth, and earthly things.

Secondly, olde perſons muſt here learne S. Pauls leſſon: 2. Cor. 4.16. That as the outward man periſheth, ſo the inward man may be renued daily. The outward man is the body; the inward man is the ſoule and the grace of God in it. They muſt therefore labour, that as the ſtrength of their bodies decay, ſo the grace of God in their ſoules may quicken and reuiue. But alas, the common practiſe is contrary. For old men haue generally ſo miſpent their youth, and in their olde age are partly ſo backward, partly ſo vnfit to learne religion, that when they come to their death-beds, they are then to be Catechiſed in the very principles of religion: ſo that when the body is halfe dead, religion hath no beeing in them; and when the body is a dying, religion and grace ſcarce begin to liue in them: ſuch men caſt all vpon a deſperate point. But let them that deſire a ioyfull departure, thinke of theſe things aforehand: and as yeares draw on, and ſo drawe life to his ende, and the body to the graue; ſo let them weane their hearts from the world, and lift them vp to God, and ſo ſpend their laſt dayes in getting knowledge, and in ſeruing God; that when their bodies are weakeſt and fitteſt for the earth, their ſoules may be the holieſt and ripeſt for heauen. To ſuch men ſhall it neuer be diſcomfort to ſee their bodies halfe dead, when for recompence thereof they finde their ſoules halfe in heauen. Thus we ſee the roote or foundation of this poſteritie, how poore and weake it was. Now let vs come to the greateneſſe of it.

Thereof ſprang as many in number, &c.

This one olde couple, Abraham & Sarah, are made by gods power the father and mother of many nations: and he and ſhee, of whom the world would haue pronounced, they ſhould not haue left a name vpon the earth, haue now millions of children that ſprang out of them. Here we may learne, That though God worke ordinarily, according to the courſe of Nature, which himſelfe hath eſtabliſhed; yet that he is not bound to it,nor will be:he bound it, therefore there is no reaſon it ſhould binde him. Here we may ſee the power and prerogatiue of Gods Maieſtie.

As in the beginning he made to be, thoſe things which were not: ſo ſtill he calleth things that are not, as though they were, Rom. 4. 17. and turneth and altreth the ſtate and nature of his creatures as pleaſeth him. He can take life from the liuing man, and leaue him dead; he can giue life to the dead man, and make him liue againe. So hath he dealt for the bodie, and for the ſoule he hath beene no leſſe wonderfull.

Saul, of a bloody perſecutor, he can make a zealous Preacher, Act.9. euen a glorious inſtrument, and a choſen veſſell to carie his name vnto the Gentiles, euen he who thought to haue blotted out the name of Chriſt, and all that called on that name from vnder heauen, Act. 9. 14.

Rahab, a harlot, and a common woman, yet by Gods work ſo farre altred, that her faith is regiſtred in the 31. verſ. amongſt the moſt excellent beleeuers that haue bin in the world. Let this teach vs, when we ſee our owne ſinnes, how hideous and monſtrous they be, yet not to deſpaire. And when we ſee other men liue in extreame diſſolutenes, yet not to iudge of them before the time: but euen then, with hope and comfort, remember that God who quickneth the dead,& calleth things that are not as though they were.

And in that hope let vs perſwade our ſelues, that he may quicken our dead hearts, and reuiue vs by his grace. And therefore in that hope let vs raiſe vp our ſelues, to vſe all holy means, of Gods Word, Sacraments, and Prayer: which if we carefully and continually doe, we ſhall ſee wonders wrought in vs; that as they ſaide of Paul, This man preacheth the faith which afore he deſtroyed, and therefore glorified God for him, Galath: 1. 22. 23. So ſhall men ſay of vs, This man hates the prophannes that he liued in, and loues the religion that afore he mocked. Such miracles will the Lord worke in vs, if with faith and diligence we vſe the holy meanes; that ſo all that ſee vs, ſhall Glorifie God for vs.

Thus we ſee generally how great the iſſue and poſteritie of Sarah was.

But it is more particularly inlarged by two compariſons.

As many as the ſtarres in the skie, or the ſands by the ſea ſhore, which are innumerable.

His compariſons are two: One taken from the heauens, as many as the ſtarres in the skie: The other from the earth, as the ſands in the ſea. And theſe two are vſed by the holy Ghoſt, being things of incredible number, to expreſſe the multitude of the Iſraelites, that came all from Sarah.

Not but that other things alſo are of as great number; as the drops of water, duſt of the earth, and hairs of mens heads, &c. but theſe two are moſt common and prouerbiall phraſes, whereby to expreſſe a multitude. And againe, the ſtarres of the skie are rather named then any other, becauſe God in the beginning pleaſed to vſe it to Abraham, when he had neuer a child, Gen. 15. 8. God caried Abraham forth in the night, and bad him count the ſtarrs if he could, and ſaid, ſo ſhall thy ſeede be. And Moſes afterwards vſeth the ſame compariſon, Deut. 10. 22. Our Fathers went downe into Egypt 70. perſons, and now the Lord hath made vs as the ſtarres of the skie in multitude.

Now becauſe all men are not Aſtronomers, as Abraham and Moſes were, and that ignorant men might ſay, they can perceiue no ſuch matter in the ſtarres: Therefore he vſeth another compariſon, which euery Countryman may diſcern how innumerable they be; namely, the ſands of the Sea ſhore: And leaſt any ſhould ſay, I dwell in the mid-land Country, and neuer ſaw the ſea ſand, and am ignorant, and ſo cannot iudge of the ſtarres, therefore to put him out of doubt, the holy Ghoſt aſſures him, in the ende of the verſe, that they are both innumerable; that is, not in thẽſelues, or to God, but in regard of man, and mans skill vnable to be counted.

Concerning theſe two compariſons, let vs obſerue the manner or the phraſe of ſpeech in them vſed:

For the firſt, we are to know, that the ſpeech is not proper, but figuratiue. For properly, they were not as many as the ſtarres, or as the ſands: neither are the ſtarres or ſands innumerable: but it is a figure called by the Rhetoricians ὑπερβολὴ, which is an exceſſe of fineneſſe of ſpeech, or an exceſſiue elegancie. And as it is ordinarie in all Writers, and euen in common ſpeech: ſo it is not refuſed by the holy Ghoſt, but vſed both here, and in the two forenamed places: and the like alſo of the ſame nature (but in other phraſes) in other places, as S. Ioh. 21. 25. I ſuppoſe ſaith he, if all the ſayings and doings of Chriſt were written, the world could not containe the bookes that would be written. Meaning, they would be exceeding many, & more then would be needefull for ſaluation. And Deut. 9. 1. Moſes ſaith, That the Cities of the Canaanites were great, and walled vp to heauen. Meaning, that they were very high, and ſo high as was poſſible for Citie walles to be; and as was impoſſible to haue been ſcaled in all mens reaſons, had not God fought for them.

Theſe and ſuch like are common in the Scripture: and ſeeing we allowe that libertie to all Writers, and to our ſelues in common ſpeech, no reaſon to denie it to the Scripture, which was written for all mens vnderſtanding, and therefore in ſuch phraſes as are vſuall and ordinarie with all men.

And the like libertie is here taken alſo in another figure, as many as the ſands by the ſhore of the ſea: the word properly ſignifieth and ſoundeth, the lip of the Sea. Now the ſea hath no lippe, but it is a ſpeech taken or borrowed from man or beaſt who haue lips, and the ſea ſhore reſembleth a lippe. For, looke what a lippe is to them, the ſhores are to the ſea: as the two lippes doe incloſe the mouth: ſo the two ſhores on both ſides doe incloſe the Sea, which lieth as in a mouth betwixt them. From hence we may learne profitable inſtructions.

Firſt, that therefore Rhetoricke is a warrantable, good, and lawfull Art; and it ariſeth thus: That which the holy Ghoſt practiſeth, muſt needes be not onely not euill, but good and warrantable. But the holy Ghoſt vſeth and practiſeth Rhetorike, here and in many other places elſe of the Scripture. Therefore it is a good and lawfull Art. The propoſition is vndoubted, the aſſumption is cleare both by theſe places, & almoſt the whole bodie of the Scripture: many of S. Pauls Epiſtles, many of Chriſts owne Sermons, S. Iohns Goſpel, many of the Prophets, eſpecially Iſaiah, haue as much and as elegant Rhetorike in them, as any writers in the world; and beſide all other vertue and Diuine power in them, doe euen for figures and ornaments of Art, match any Oratours, that haue written in the Greeke or Latine. Nor would it be any hard task to vndertake to prooue, and illuſtrate euery approoued rule of Rhetoricke, out of ſome part of Scripture. Now if it be lawfull to practiſe the rules of Rhetoricke, then it is lawfull alſo to collect thoſe rules together, to pen them, and to make an Art of them. They therefore that holding the contrary, do ſay, or teach, or write, it is vnlawfull, goe againſt the ſtream, and common practiſe of the Scripture, and rules of common reaſon.

Secondly, here it is apparant, that in preaching Gods word, it is lawfull, and warrantable for a Miniſter to vſe Rhetoricke and eloquence. And the reaſon is good: for that which the holy Ghoſt vſeth in penning of the Scripture, the ſame may Gods Miniſters vſe alſo in preaching the ſame. They therefore that denie that libertie to Miniſters, are too rough and rugged, and pull out of the hand of the Miniſters, one of his weapons, and out of the wings of the Scripture one of her feathers.

Yet we muſt know, that all, or any kinde of eloquence is not permitted to a Chriſtian Miniſter; For, S. Paul ſaith, 1. Cor. 2. 13. Wee ſpeake the words of God, not in the words which mans wiſedome teacheth, but which the holy Ghoſt teacheth, comparing ſpirituall things with ſpirituall things: So that there is a holy, a ſanctified, a ſpirituall eloquence, an eloquence fit for ſpirituall things, and that eloquence muſt be vſed. As the Iſraelits might marie the Midianite A women, whom they had taken in warre, but not till they had purified them, Num. 31. 18. 19. And more plainely and particularly, Deut. 21. 11, 12, 13. Moſes explaneth what that purifying is: And thou ſhalt bring her home into thine houſe, and ſhee ſhall ſhaue her head, and paire her nails, and put off the garment ſhe was taken in, and then thou maiſt marie her: So, humane eloquence muſt be brought home to diuinitie, and be pared, and ſhaued with ſpirituall wiſedome, and then may lawfully and profitably be vſed.

For our more ſpeciall direction herein; theſe cautions may be obſerued.

Firſt, the more naturall it is, and the leſſe B affected, the more commendable is it in the doer, and more profitable to the hearer.

Secondly, it muſt be graue, ſober, and modeſt; remembring the height and holineſſe of the place a man ſtands in, and of the worke he doth. Therefore it muſt not conſiſt in telling ſtrange tales, or vſing ſuch geſtures or words, manner, or matter, as may mooue laughing, and ſmiling in the Auditors. There may be wit in ſuch doing; but it can hardly be the ſanctified and ſpirituall eloquence, which S. Paul there ſpeaks of.

Thirdly, it muſt be ſuch as may be a helpe, and not a hinderance to the vnderſtanding of Gods word: for, it is a damoſell to Diuinitie, but not her Miſtreſſe. Gods word therefore C muſt not bowe and bende to her; much leſſe be wrung and wreſted to her, but ſhe to Gods word.

It muſt in a word be ſuch, as may moſt liuely, purely, plainely, and ſignificantly expreſſe the meaning of Gods word. Therefore a man muſt endeauour that all his ſpeech be in one language, at leaſt in ſuch as his hearers vnderſtand: for elſe if he ſpeak the body of his ſpeech in one, and peece out the members in other, which the people vnderſtand not; he may indeede in his owne ſpirit ſpeake myſteries, but to the hearer he ſpeaketh parables. And to his own vnderſtanding, he may preach well, but the hearer is not edified: as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1. Cor. 14. 2. 17. Therefore let not eloquence, be a D hinderance to the vnderſtanding of the hearers, which God hath ordained to be a helpe and furtherance. And with theſe or ſuch like qualifications, eloquence may be vſed, with good warrant and much profit. And for cautions or qualifications herein, hardly can any man ſet downe better rules, then euery mans conſcience will vnto himſelfe.

Thirdly, inaſmuch as the holy Ghoſt here and elſewhere vſeth ſo much Rhetoricke, Diuines may learne where the fountaine of Chriſtian eloquence is; namely, in the Scriptures of the olde and newe Teſtament. Which beeing compiled by the wiſdome of God, we are to aſſure our ſelues they containe in them true wiſdome of all ſorts. Precepts of Rhetoricke, I confeſſe, are to be learned out of other books, which purpoſely doe teach them; but the practiſe of thoſe rules in examples, can be no where better, than in Moſes, the Prophets, and the Euangeliſts. And this muſt needes followe vpon that, that hath alreadie beene granted. For if we yeeld, that Rhetoricke is good and lawful, and practiſed in the ſcripture; then it muſt needs follow, that it is there practiſed in the beſt manner: for ſhall the Diuinitie there taught be the ſoundeſt? the Hiſtorie there reported the trueſt? the concluſions of Philoſophie, Aſtronomie, Geometrie, Arithmeticke, Coſmographie, and Phyſicke, there deliuered, the ſureſt? the Muſicke there practiſed, the exacteſt? the Logicke there practiſed, the ſharpeſt? the Lawes there enacted, the iuſteſt? and ſhall not the Rhetoricke there practiſed, be the pureſt? Surely, if Moſes had written a booke of his owne, as he was a meere man, and as he was Moſes, brought vp in Egypt: or Paul writ a booke, as he was a Phariſie, and Doctor of the Law; they would haue beene full of all excellent learning: for Paul was brought vp at the foote of Gamaliel, Acts 22. 3. And Moſes was exceedingly learned in all the learning of the Egyptians, and mightie in word and deede, Acts 7. 22.

Shall they then be the Secretaries of the moſt high God, the fountaine of wiſedome, and learning; and ſhall not their bookes be filled with the moſt excellent learning in all kindes? Doubtleſſe, who euer ſearcheth it, ſhall finde it to be ſo.

Seeing therefore Eloquence is lawfull, and that Preachers may lawfully vſe it; let them alſo knowe, where to haue it: let them ſtudie Gods Bookes, and there they ſhall finde not onely Diuinitie, but knowledge and learning of all ſorts, and that moſt exquiſite: and as excellent patternes and preſidents of Eloquence, as are to be found in any Authors in the world. And let them, if they would preach with ſpirituall power and eloquence; looke how Moſes, the Prophets, our Sauiour Chriſt, and his Apoſtles preached: for, to followe them is the true way.

Thus we ſee the manner here vſed by the holy Ghoſt, in theſe two compariſons, to deſcribe the greatneſſe of this her poſteritie.

Now, the matter in them contained is, that here is the performance of one of the greateſt promiſes made to Abraham. The promiſe is, Gen. 22. 17. I will ſurely bleſſe thee, and greatly multiply thy ſeede, as the ſtarres in the heauen, and as the ſands by the ſea ſhoare. There is the promiſe; and behold here the performance, in the very ſame words, and that moſt true and effectuall: For, at the time when the holy Ghoſt wrote theſe words, the Iſraelites were multiplied to many millions; yea to a number paſt number.

So that here we learne, God is true in all his promiſes, be they neuer ſo great or wonderfull. if he ſpeake the word, if the promiſe paſſe him, it is ſure: Heauen and earth ſhall rather paſſe away, then any one piece of his promiſe ſhall faile.

The vſe is to teach vs, firſt, to beleeue God when he promiſeth, what-euer it be; for, he is worthie to be beleeued, who neuer failed to performe what he promiſed. He promiſed theſe Millions to Abraham, when he had but one childe; nay when he had neuer a one: Gen. 15. 8. And Abraham beleeued. Such a faith is as excellent indeede, and deſerues eternall commendation (as here it hath.) Let vs be childrē of this faithfull Abraham, and the rather, ſeeing we ſee the performance, which he ſawe not. We thinke it a diſgrace, if we be not beleeued; eſpecially, if we doe vſe to keepe our word: Let vs then knowe thereby, what diſhonour it is to the Lord, not to beleeue him, which neuer failed in the performance to any creature.

Secondly, we muſt here learne of God to be true and faithfull in our words and promiſes. God ſpake plainely, & deceiued not Abraham: and after at the time performed it; So muſt we deale plainly and ſimply in our words and bargaines, and thinke that to deceiue and ouerreach by craftie words, and double meanings, and equiuocal phraſes are not beſeeming Chriſtianity. And we muſt make conſcience of a lie, elſe we are like the deuill and not God. Alſo a Chriſtian man muſt take heede what, how, and to whom he promiſeth: but hauing promiſed, he muſt performe, though it be loſſe or harme to himſelfe: if it be not wrong to God, or to the Church, or State. Wrong to himſelfe muſt not hinder him from performance. Chriſtian mens words muſt not be vaine, they ſhould be as good as bonds, though I knowe it is lawfull, and very conuenient in regard of mortalitie, to take ſuch kinde of aſſurances.

Laſtly, Abraham had the promiſe his ſeede ſhould be ſo, Gen. 15. 8. and here we ſee it is ſo, but he himſelfe ſaw it not: ſo that Abraham had the promiſe, and we the performance. So Adam had the promiſe of the Meſſias, but wee ſee it performed: The Patriarkes and Prophets, the promiſe of the calling of the Gentiles, but we ſee it performed.

See here the glorie of the Church vnder the Newe Teſtament aboue the Olde. This muſt teach vs to be ſo much better then they, as God is better to vs, then he was to them: and to excell them in faith, and all other vertues of holyneſſe; or elſe their faith, and their holy obedience ſhall turne to our greater condemnation, which haue had ſo farre greater cauſe, to beleeue and obey God, and ſo farre better meanes then they. Which if it be ſo: then alas what will become of them, who come behind them, nay haue no care to followe them in their faith, nor holyneſſe, nor any duties of holy obedience.

Thus much for the Example of this holy womans faith, and of the commendation thereof.

Now before he come to any more particular

Abrahams, Sarahs,

examples of faith, the holy Ghoſt giues a general commẽdation of the faith of all thoſe ioyntly which are ſpoken of already.

VERSE 13.

All theſe died in faith, and receiued not the promiſes, but ſawe them afarre off, and beleeued them: and receiued them thankefully, and confeſſed that they were ſtrangers and pilgrimes on the earth.

Hitherto the Holy Ghoſt hath particularly commended the faith of diuers holy beleeuers. Now from this verſe to the 17. he doth generally commend the faith of Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iaacob together; yet not ſo much their faith, as the durance and conſtancie of their faith. Particularly the points are two.

1. Is laid downe their conſtancie and continuance; All theſe died in faith.
2. That conſtancie is ſet forth by foure effects:
    1. They receiued not the promiſes, but ſaw them afarre off.
    2. They beleeued them.
    3. Receiued them thankefully.
    4. Profeſſed themſelues ſtrangers and pilgrimes on the earth.

The firſt point touching theſe beleeuers is; that as they begun, ſo they held on: as they liued, ſo they died in faith.

All theſe died in faith.

The truth of the matter, in the words, may be referred to all afore going, ſauing Enoch who died not; yet he continued alſo conſtant in his faith, and in that faith was taken vp: but as for Abel and Noah, they died in faith. Yet I take it, that principally and directly, the holy Ghoſt intended no more then theſe foure I named: and my reaſon is, becauſe the particular effects in this verſe, and the points where this their conſtancie is amplified in the three verſes following, doe all agree, eſpecially with theſe foure; and not ſo properly with Abel or Noah: ſo that I take, he meaneth by all theſe, all theſe men that liued in the ſecond world, ſince the flood. All theſe died in faith; that is, in aſſurance that the promiſes made vnto them,

A ſhould be performed in Gods good time.

Theſe promiſes were principally theſe two.

1. Saluation by the Meſſias.
2. The poſſeſſion of the Land of Canaan.

In this faith they died; that is, they held it (through all aſſaults and temptations to the contrary) euen to the laſt gaſpe, and died therein.

In this their practiſe, is commended vnto vs a moſt worthie leſſon of Chriſtianity: namely, that we muſt ſo liue that we may die in faith. Many ſay they liue in faith: and it is well if they doe ſo: but the maine point is, to die in faith. There is none ſo ill, but howſoeuer he liues, yet he would die well: If he would die well, he muſt B die in faith. For miſerable is the death, that is without faith. And herein faith and hope differ from other graces of God; Loue, ioy, zeale, holineſſe, and all other graces are imperfect here, and are perfected in heauen: but faith and hope are perfected at our deaths; they are not in the other world, for there is nothing then to be beleeued, nor hoped for, ſeeing we then doe enioy all things: but as they are begun in our life, at our regeneration, ſo they be made perfect when we die; and they ſhine moſt gloriouſly in the laſt and greateſt combate of all, which is, at the houre of death. So that the death of a Chriſtian, which is the gate to glory, is to die in faith.

Beſides, as life leaues vs, ſo death findes vs; C and as death leaues vs, ſo the laſt iudgement finds vs: and as it leaues vs, ſo we continue for euer and euer without recouerie or alteration.

Now to die in faith, is to die in an aſſured eſtate of glory and happineſſe; which is that, that euery man deſireth: therefore, as we all deſire it, ſo let vs die in faith, and we ſhall attaine vnto it.

Saint Paul tels vs, 1. Cor. 15. 55. Death is a terrible ſerpent, for he hath a poiſoned ſting: Now when we die, we are to encounter with this hideous and fearefull ſerpent. He is fearefull euery way, but eſpecially for his ſting; that ſting is our ſinne: and this ſting is not taken D away, nor the force of it quenched, but by true faith, which quencheth all the fierie darts of the deuill, Eph. 6. 16. If therefore we would be able to encounter with this great enemie (in the conquering of whom ſtands our happineſſe; and by whom to be conquered, is but eternall miſerie) we muſt then ſo arme our ſelues with faith, that we may die in faith; for he that dieth in faith, that faith of his kills his ſinnes, and conquers death: but he that dieth without faith, death and ſinne ſeize on him, and his ſinnes liue for euer, and his miſerie by them.

Now, if we would die in faith, we muſt liue in faith; elſe it is not to be expected: For, ſo theſe holy Patriarchs liued long in this faith, wherein they died. For, their holy liues ſhewed plainly, that they liued in that faith, which the Apoſtle ſaith) doth purifie our hearts, Acts 15.9. A Now, if we would liue in true faith, the meanes to attaine it, ſet downe by Gods word, are theſe.

Firſt, we muſt labour to get knowledge of the fundamentall points of religion; of God, of the Creation, the Fall, the immortalitie of the Soule, the two Couenants, of works by the Law, of Grace by the Mediator; and ſuch other ſubſtantiall points, touching God, his Word, Sacraments, Law, Goſpel, Praier, good Works, &c. as the Scriptures, and the Creeds, and Catechiſmes out of the Scripture doe yeeld vnto vs. Herein, the caſe of the common people of all nations, is miſerable. In Poperie their Clergie is ſo fatte and full, they will not; B in our Churches the Miniſterie (a great part of it) ſo poore, and ill prouided for, they cannot teach. Betwixt both, the people of the world doe periſh for lack of knowledge; for how can they but periſh, that die not in faith? How can they die ſo, that liue not in faith? And how can they euer haue faith, that haue no knowledge, ſeeing knowledge is the foundation of faith? Therefore, it needes the helpe of thoſe that may, and the praiers of all, that our Church may haue Teachers, and our people Catechiſers: for without learning the Catechiſme, it is impoſſible to learne religion.

Secondly, when we haue got knowledge, and ſo laid the foundation; then muſt we learne C the promiſes of God for ſaluation, and we muſt hide them in our hearts, as the Iewels of life and ſaluation. We muſt beleeue them to be true and effectuall, to all that will take hold of them; and we our ſelues muſt therefore take holde of them, and apply them to our ſoules.

Thirdly, after both theſe, we muſt conforme our ſelues throughout (heart, and life) vnto the holy laws of God: we muſt leaue all bad wayes, and vngodly courſes, though they be neuer ſo deare vnto vs, or ſo common in the world; and muſt make conſcience of all ſinne, and endeauour to doe all duties to God and man.

The firſt of theſe, is the ground of faith: the ſecond is faith it ſelfe: the laſt the fruite and effect of it, and an aſſured teſtimony of it to God, D to his Church, and to a mans owne conſcience. And to doe theſe three things, is to walke in the olde and holy way, conſecrated by Chriſts blood, and troden in by all the holy Fathers: and Poperie, nor any other religion can appoint ſo ſafe, ſo ſure, nor ſo direct a way. Thus liued Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iaacob, and after this courſe they died in faith, and now liue in glorie: and ſo ſhall we with them, if we will liue in faith, as they did; but elſe, we may long looke for heauen, before we come there. Indeede, God can make a man that liued not in faith, die in faith; but the matter is not what he can doe, but what is his ordinarie courſe; & that is this: They that liue in faith, die in faith. Therefore, let vs take the ordinarie courſe, and repent, and turne betimes, and liue the life of faith; and leaue the late repentance to them that thinke it but a ſport to venture a ſoule: that courſe may ſpeede; but this courſe is ſure to ſpeed: he that liues in ſinne, may hope to die in faith; but he that liues in faith, is ſure to die in faith, and to liue in glorie for euer.

Secondly, obſerue how it is ſaid, All theſe died in faith: not ſome, but al. Abraham the father, and the roote, and with him, the wife, the child, and the grand-child: behold a true noble blood, a holy kinred, a bleſſed generation: worthy is Abraham of all the honour he hath, who was the roote of ſuch a noble and bleſſed brood. And worthie are Iſaac and Iaacob of ſo good a father, who ſtained not their blood, by forſaking their faith: but held it as they receiued it, and liued and died in it. Let this teach vs, firſt, if we be fathers, to ſhine before our children, in a holy religion, true faith, and good life; and it is great hope that our wiues and children will follow vs in the ſame.

Secondly, if we be ſonnes, to looke which of our forefathers and aunceſtors imbraced the moſt holy religion; and to chooſe, and liue, and die in their faith. Moſt of our yong Papiſts can ſay no more for their religion, but this; my father and grand-father were of that religion. But they muſt looke to all their fore-fathers: Iſaac and Iaacob would not be of their great grand-fathers (Nahors or Terahs) religion, but of their father Abrahams: and Abraham himſelfe, would not be of his father Terahs, or his grandfather Nahors religion; but he went vp a great deale higher, to his fore-fathers to the tenth generation, Noah, and Shem, and imbraced their religion. So that we ſee, it is nothing to ſay, I am of my fathers, or grandfathers religion; vnleſſe firſt I prooue that theirs was of God: and then he is a Noble Chriſtian man, which knowing that, will not forſake it, but will liue and die in it.

Thirdly, ſee here true honour and gentry is to liue and die in the true faith, and holy religion of our aunceſtors here is the fountaine of honour, to do as theſe did. Abraham perceiues he is wrong, and erred with his fathers; he therefore leaues his fathers and grandfathers religion, and goeth vp higher, and takes a better. Iſaac his ſonne, makes himſelfe heire, not of his land alone; but of his fathers religion alſo: Iaacob the grand-child, follows both, and dieth in faith with them. Behold here Iaacob, a true gentleman in blood; his holineſſe and religion is in the third deſcent: Let vs all learne to adorne our gentility and nobilitie with theſe enſignes of true honour.

And let all them, that ſhame to ſtaine their blood by treaſons, or miſdemeanours; ſhame alſo, to let their forefathers religion, holineſſe, or vertues faile in them: but let them all ſo liue in them, that with Iaacob they may die in their fathers faith.

Laſtly, obſerue how it is ſaid, they died in faith: they afore liued in it; but now their prin-

cipall

Iſaacs, Iacobs faith.

A cipall commendation is, they died in it.

Let vs learne here, to hold on in a good courſe when we haue entred into it; for conſtancie and continuance is the true commendation: he that dieth in faith, is he that receiues the crowne. To this ende, let vs ſtirre vp our ſelues with the Apoſtles exhortation, Gal.6.9. Let vs not be weary, of well doing, for in due time we ſhall reape, if we faint not.

And further, let this teach vs all to chooſe that faith to liue in (with theſe holy Patriarchs) that we may boldly die in. It is a true obſeruation, that Poperie is a good religion to liue in, but ours to die in. The Papiſts vſurpe this ſaying, and turne it the contrary way; but they haue as much right to it, as the thieſe to the true mans purſe. The libertie, the pardons, diſpenſations, ſanctuaries, the pompe and outward glory of their Church; and their faſting and outward auſterities, beeing fowle and fained hypocriſies, and indeede, open licentiouſneſſe: theſe and many things more, may allure any naturall man in the world, to liue in their religion; but when they come to die, then they all know, and ſome confeſſe, it is ſureſt and ſafeſt to die in our religion. Let vs therefore cheerefully, and comfortably, liue in that religion, and faith, wherein wee may ſo boldly die, that euen our aduerſaries confeſſe it to be ſafeſt.

Now followe the foure effects, and fruits of their faith.

The firſt is this: that

They receiued not the promiſes, but ſaw them afarre off.

By Promiſes, we vnderſtand, firſt, the promiſes of the Land of Canaan. Secondly, the ſpirituall promiſes of the kingdome of Chriſt. Theſe they did not receiue; that is, fully; though in part they did: for, true faith doth alwaies receiue, apprehend, and apply vnto it ſelfe truely, though not fully, the thing promiſed. God ſaid, he would giue them the Land of Canaan: but they did not fully enioy and poſſeſſe it: So likewiſe, the Meſſias was promiſed vnto them; but they neuer ſaw his comming in the fleſh, and yet they beleeued Gods promiſe, and died in that faith. D

Where we may ſee, the inuincible force of their faith, that cleaued faſt vnto the promiſe of God, euen vnto death; though they neuer enioyed the things promiſed in this life: which plainely condemnes our age of vnbeleefe, for we haue more accompliſhed vnto vs, then euer they had. Abraham neuer ſaw Chriſt, but afarre off; yet we haue him exhibited in the fleſh: we ſee and knowe he liued and died, roſe againe, and aſcended, and now makes continuall interceſſion for vs: and we haue the true ſacraments, which ſhall laſt for euer pledges of him, and of life euerlaſting by him. And for temporall promiſes, we haue farre more accompliſhed vnto vs then euer he had. But though we goe before Abraham in the fruition of Gods promiſes, yet we come farre behinde him in beleefe; for faith worketh by loue, and loue is ſeene in true obedience: but generally, this is too true, men make no conſcience of obedience; which ſheweth vndoubtedly, that there is little ſound faith among vs. And it may be feared, that theſe notable men, Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob, ſhall ſtand in iudgement againſt vs; to our further condemnation; for they neuer receiued the accompliſhing of Gods promiſes, and yet they beleeued: but we doe ſee the ſame fulfilled and exhibited vnto vs, and yet we will not beleeue.

But ſawe them afarre off.

B Here is the propertie of their faith, and the power of it: the promiſes were afarre off, and yet they ſaw them. The phraſe here vſed, is borrowed from Mariners: who beeing farre on the ſea, cannot deſcrie townes, and coaſts afarre off, but onely by helpe of ſome tower or high place, which their eie will ſooner diſcerne, though it be afarre off; And ſo Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iaacob, beeing long before the day of Chriſts incarnation, could not other waies ſee Chriſt, but afarre off, by the eie of faith, in the promiſes of the Meſſias: for, this is the property of faith, to make a thing abſent, to be preſent, after a ſort: Faith being the ground of things hoped for, and the euidence of things which are not ſeene.

C Here we may learne a difference betweene the Church in the olde Teſtament, and in the newe. We in the newe Teſtament, haue greater meaſure of knowledge, more liuely diſcerning of the Meſſias, and a clearer light of vnderſtanding, in the myſtery of our ſaluation by Chriſt, then the Church had, vnder the olde Teſtament: howſoeuer they excelled in faith, yet in the knowledge, and diſcerning of Chriſt, they were inferiour vnto vs. And therefore, the Lord made this promiſe to the time of the Goſpel, long before: that then the earth ſhall bee full of knowledge of the Lord, as the waters that couer the ſea. And S. Paul prooues this performed, when he affirmeth of the Church of the new Teſtament, 2. Corinth. 3. 18. But all we as in a mirrour behold the glory of the Lord, with open face. And Chriſt, Ioh. 6. 45. They ſhall be all taught of God.

If this be true, that knowledge ſhould ſo abound in the time of the Goſpell; then all ignorant perſons of this latter age of the world muſt knowe, that they haue much to anſwer for at the laſt daie of iudgement: for, God in the newe teſtament hath made his Church to abound in knowledge, ſo that their ignorance (for which they thinke God will holde them excuſed) ſhall be a bill of inditement againſt them at the laſt day, to their further condemnation: becauſe the light of the Goſpel is ſo clearely, and plentifully reuealed in theſe daies; that whereas the moſt excellent Patriarchs of all, could then but ſee Chriſt afarre off, the

A moſt ſimple may nowe ſee him neere vnto them.

Againe, where is more knowledge, there ſhould be more obedience:therefore it concerneth all thoſe that profeſſe themſelues to be Chriſtians, and ſubmit themſelues to heare and learne the word of God taught vnto them; not to content themſelues with bare knowledge, though it be neuer ſo much: But withall, to bring forth the fruits of obedience in their liues and conuerſations. For, though Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob, in regard of faith did goe far before vs: yet ſeeing we haue more knowledge then they had in the Meſſias, we muſt labour to become like vnto them in the obedience of our liues:their faith was ſtronger then ours:but our obedience ſhould be greater thẽ theirs, B becauſe we haue more cauſe to beleeue then they. 2.Cor.3.18. S. Paul ſaith, We all behold as in a mirrour, the glory of the Lord with open face: And the ende thereof is this, that we may be transformed into the ſame image from glory to glory, as by the ſpirit of the Lord. So that the more knowledge we haue, the more ſanctification we ought to haue, and the more hatred of ſinne, and more obedience to Gods commandements. But, the more is the pitie, the caſe goeth farre otherwiſe with the world: for euen many among vs that are no Students by profeſſion, haue great and commendable knowledge in religion. But where is the fruite hereof in holy obedience to the Lawes of God? God by calling hath made C vs a pleaſant vine: but the ſower Grapes of ſinne,are our ordinarie fruite,they be the Graps of gall (as Moſes ſaith). Deut.32.33. For Atheiſme, blaſphemie, contempt of Gods word and worſhip, with open profaning of Gods Sabbath, doe euery where abound; to omit the hainous crimes againſt the ſecond table, as oppreſſion, adulterie, and blood touching blood: for all which, we may iuſtly feare, that the Lord will either remooue his Candleſticke from vs, and ſo of a Church and people of God,make vs no Church; or elſe ſweepe vs away by ſome fearefull iudgement, as with the beſome of deſtruction,becauſe we withhold the truth in vnrighteouſneſſe, Rom. 1. 18.For better it were not D to haue knowen the way of righteouſneſſe, then to turne from the holy commandement giuen vnto vs: let vs therefore ioyne with our knowledge obedience, that ſo we may ſhewe forth our faith in doing the duties of pietie vnto God, and of brotherly loue & Chriſtianitie, vnto our brethren. Thus much of the firſt fruit of their faith.

The ſecond fruite of their faith is noted in theſe words; And beleeued them. Where,by beleeuing, we muſt vnderſtand not ſo much the act of faith, for that was noted before, as the growth and encreaſe of their faith: for the word imports a confirmation of their hearts, and a reſolution in aſſurance of the promiſes made vnto them:which is not vnuſual in Scripture: for Paul prayeth for the Churches who had true knowledge, faith, and loue, that they might increaſe and abound therein more and more, Ephe. 3.16.17. Philip. 1.9.11. Coloſ. 1.9.11.

Here then we may obſerue in the example of theſe Patriarchs, that it is the duty and property of euery true beleeuer, to goe forward and encreaſe in faith, till he come to a full perſwaſion and aſſurance in Gods promiſes. All the gifts of God (and therefore faith) are the Lords talents, and euery true beleeuer is the Lords ſeruant, called to occupie therewith. Now God,hauing put his talent into any mans hand, doth require the encreaſe thereof, as the Parable ſhewes, Luke 19.13. And this Paul teacheth:for praying for the Epheſians that they may goe on, and be ſtrengthened by the ſpirit in the inner man, Eph. 3. 16.he ſignifieth,that he that doth truely beleeue in Chriſt,muſt goe on from grace to grace, till he bee a tall man in Chriſt: as a child groweth from yeare to yeare, till he come to be a ſtrong man. The nature of faith is like vnto fire, which will not goe out ſo long as wood, or other fewell is put vnto it, but will take hold thereof, and growe vnto a greater flame; and ſo will faith growe vp to a full perſwaſion in all thoſe that conſcionably applie themſelues to the Worde and Prayer.

But goes the caſe thus with vs in the matter of faith? Nay verily, generally it is farre otherwiſe: for many among vs haue no regard of faith at all, but thinke they may liue as they luſt, their good meaning will ſerue the turne: others, and thoſe not a fewe, are ſo farre from going forward in faith, that they are euery day worſe and worſe, and ſtill goe backeward more and more.A third ſort we haue, that will heare the word, and receiue the Sacraments; but yet their growth in grace is very ſlender,they ſtand at a ſtay, and profit little.

Now, howſoeuer it may be thought but a ſmall fault,not to profit in Religion;yet vndoubtedly it is a fearefull Iudgement of God, when the hearers of the word in any congregation are daily taught, and doe not profit thereby; and therefore the holy Ghoſt noteth thoſe women to be laden with ſinne, which are euer learning,and yet neuer are able to come to the knowledge of the truth, 2. Tim. 3.7. If a child lately borne, like not well, nor growe, when it hath good keeping: the common ſaying is, that it is a Changeling. So, if a man heare the word of God, and do not encreaſe in knowledge,faith, and obedience, we may moſt truly ſay of him, that he is a ſpirituall Changeling, and therefore to auoide this fearefull iudgement of God, we muſt labour for faith; and hauing gotten faith, encreaſe therein, and in other graces of God, till we come to be ſtrong men in Chriſt.

It is here ſaid, that thoſe Patriarchs encreaſed in faith: But it may be demaunded, how and by what meanes they did attaine hereto?

Anſ.

Iſaacs, Iacobs faith.

Anſ. In the booke of Geneſis, we may finde three wayes, whereby they were confirmed in the faith, and did grow vp in grace. The firſt meanes was from God himſelfe; for, when he had made his couenant with Abraham, mercifully renuing the ſame, during his life, as occaſion ſerued ſundry times, he ſtayed not there, ſuffering it to die with Abraham: but when Abraham was dead, God renued his couenant with Iſaac and Rebecka: and with Iaacob alſo after them. Now the tongue of man cannot vtter, what a wonderfull furtherance it was vnto their faith, to haue the Lord himſelfe to renue his gracious promiſes vnto them. The ſecond means of encreaſing their faith, was, their holy conuerſing one with an other: for the manner of the Patriarchs, was to teach and inſtruct their children, and to nurture them vp in the true worſhip and feare of God; by which meanes they did not onely implant Gods promiſes in the hearts of their children, but were themſelues confirmed in the ſame: for, he that teacheth another from a feeling heart, greately ſtrengtheneth his owne ſoule. Now God himſelf doth teſtifie this thing of Abraham, ſaying, Gen.18.19. I know him, that he will commaund his ſonnes and his houſhold after him, that they keepe the way of the Lord, to doe righteouſneſſe and iudgement. Now looke what Abraham herein did to Iſaac, that no doubt did Iſaac vnto Iaacob. The third meanes to encreaſe their faith was, from each one to himſelfe: for they gaue themſelues oftentimes in their owne perſons to muſe and meditate vpon the promiſes of God: ſo it is ſaid of Iſaac, that he went out to pray or meditate in the field towards euening: Gen.24.63. and we may perſwade our ſelues it was concerning this and other promiſes of God, and the accompliſhment thereof. And wee neede not to doubt, but that Abraham and Iaacob did the like.

Theſe are the meanes, by which theſe godly Patriarchs were ſtrengthened in their faith. All which, muſt be marked of vs diligently, and put in practiſe: for, the cauſe why we heare the word often, and yet profit little by it, is chiefly this; becauſe the means by which men ſhould growe vp in faith, are ſo ſlenderly vſed among vs. For, the firſt meanes, which is on Gods behalfe to man; is through his great and vnſpeakable mercie, plentifully affoorded in many parts of the Land, in the holy Miniſterie of the goſpel: wherein Gods gracious promiſes of mercie, are opened and applied to mens hearts, and his iudgements againſt ſinne ſharpely denounced, to driue men to lay hold on Gods mercie in Chriſt. But, if we regard the ſecond meanes; which is, mutuall inſtruction, of father to child, of maſter to ſeruant, and of one neighbour to another; together with mutuall conference, about that we are taught; Or elſe if we regard the third meanes; which is, priuate meditation vpon Gods word and promiſes taught vnto vs; (which meditation, is to a Chriſtian ſoule, like the chewing of the cudde vnto a beaſt; for as the chewing of the cudde turnes that which was eaten, into true feeding; ſo doth holy meditation, make Gods word, and promiſes, ſpirituall refreſhing, by digeſting them in the heart): If (I ſay) we take a view of theſe two latter, we ſhall finde them ſeldome vſed of very many, or not at all. Bleſſed be God, we neede not to doubt, but there be ſome, who vſe theſe meanes, with care and reuerence: but alas, theſe ſome, are very fewe. And becauſe this dutie is ſo ſlackely performed; hence it is, that though the couenant of mercie in Chriſt, be oft repeated, yet men reape little profit by it. So that we muſt learne to follow this notable practiſe of theſe godly Patriarchs, and looke what meanes they vſed for the increaſe of their faith; the ſame alſo muſt we vſe, and that diligently: ſo ſhall wee growe, and increaſe, and waxe ſtronge in faith, as they did.

The third fruite of their faith, is this,

Ασπασάμενοι, the word in the originall ſignifieth, to ſalute; and that not onely by ſpeach, but any way elſe: as by imbracing, &c. and therefore in this place, is not vnfitly tranſlated, And receiued them thankefully; that is, they tooke them kindely at Gods hands.

This is a notable fruite of faith, whereby they are commended; that ſeeing the promiſes of God afarre off, did yet take them moſt kindely at Gods hands. But here we muſt conſider, how they tooke them kindely: namely, by doing two things. 1. By an action of their heart. 2. By an action of their life. The action of their heart was this; that howſoeuer the promiſe was not accompliſhed in their dayes; yet they were wonderfully glad thereof: for our Sauiour Chriſt ſaid to the Iewes, Your father Abraham reioyced to ſee my day, and he ſaw it, and was glad. Ioh.8 56. It did Abrahams heart good to ſee Chriſt afarre off: and ſo we may ſafly thinke of Sarah, Iſaac, and Iaacob, that their hearts were alſo rauiſhed with ioy, to heare the wonderfull promiſe of God, concerning the Meſſias; and to thinke of the moſt ioyfull performance, which they knew ſhould follow in due time.

Secondly, they tooke this promiſe kindely by the practiſe of their life; for when they came to any ſtrange place (as we may often read in the ſtory) there they built vp altars, Gen. 12 8. & 22.9. & 33.10. and offered ſacrifice vnto God, and called on his name. All which they did, to teſtifie their inward ioy, and thankefull acceptance of Gods promiſes in Chriſt, and of the promiſed land, though neither were accompliſhed in their dayes.

Now, as touching our ſelues, the ſame maine promiſes of God, that were made to Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob, hath the Lord made and continued vnto vs: nay, wee haue the ſame alreadie accompliſhed; & we ſee the ſame verified more euidently and plainely, then any of the Patriarchs did. Which beeing true, our dutie is to take the ſame much more thankefully, and kindly, at Gods hands, then they did or could do; becauſe we haue more light and knowledge in the promiſes of God, then euer the Patriarchs had.

But we haue iuſt cauſe to bewaile the dayes and times wherein we liue: for, whereas we ſhould take the promiſes of God moſt ioyfully, and kindely; the caſe is farre otherwiſe. For generally, it may be ſaid of our nation and people, that in regard of the mercies and promiſes of God, we are an vnkinde people. And that this is true (for the moſt part) in all of vs, if we will but a little examine the matter, we ſhall finde it too apparant, by many euidences: for firſt, let any of vs be brought to a place, where we may behold ſome vaine Enterlude, or Showe; a man would not thinke how wonderfully we are rauiſhed therewithall, ſo as we could finde in our hearts to ſpend whole dayes in beholding them. But let vs be brought to heare the Goſpel of Chriſt, his holy word preached and taught; as it was vnto Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob (wherein they much reioyced) and there we ſit heauy and drowſie, ſo as the word ſeemes loathſome vnto vs, and one houre is ſo tedious, as we hardly hold it out without ſleeping: and if it paſſe the houre a little: O how impatiently our nature takes it! All which ſhew plainly, that we haue no ſuch ioy to heare of Chriſt, and his mercifull promiſes, as theſe godly Patriarchs had: ſo that we are both hard hearted, and vnkind; and altogether inſenſible of ſo great fauours of our God towards vs.

Secondly, conſider mens behauiour in Gods worſhippe: It is euident, that the greateſt part of people, worſhip God but in formall ſhewe, for faſhions ſake. Theſe godly Patriarchs, Abraham, &c. built altars in euery place where they came, and offered ſacrifice vnto God, to ſignifie their kindneſſe, and willing heart, towards God for his promiſes. But now men worſhip God formally, not in way of thankefulneſſe; but either becauſe the Law compels them to it, or elſe becauſe it is a cuſtome, and order which muſt be kept. For proofe thereof take ſome one of the common ſort, and aske him why he commeth into the congregation? he will ſay, he commeth to doe as other men doe; but what they doe, he knoweth not; nor what he himſelfe ought to doe, he cannot tell, nor careth much to know. Others alſo come to worſhip God: but aske them how they doe it, they will ſay, by the ſaying ouer the tenne Commandements, the Lords praier, and the Beleefe. But, if the word be either preached, or read, they regard it not; thinking all Gods worſhippe ſtands in the repeating of thoſe three things. Which ſheweth, that they worſhippe God but for faſhion ſake, and with little more, then a plaine lip-labour.

Another ſort there are, which come neere to God with their lipps, but their hearts are farre from him; for though their bodies be preſent in the congregation, yet their hearts are wandring about their worldly buſineſſe, or the workes of ſinne: ſo that we may truely ſay, God is not worſhipped with faith, in the heart. And therefore we are an vnkinde people, and quite degenerate from the faith of our forefathers, theſe holy Patriarkes, who receiued Gods promiſes ſo kindly, and thankefully.

Thirdly, we haue the word of God daily preached and taught vnto vs: but how many be there that make conſcience of obeying the ſame in their liues and callings? Men doe come and heare, and ſhould learne: but when they come home, they do flat contrary to that which is taught. Now there can be no greater vnthankefulneſſe nor vnkindneſſe towards God then this, that men ſhould heare and not obey, for diſobedience is as the ſinne of witchcraft: nay, the Lord himſelfe ſaith, that he that maketh no conſcience of obedience in his life, is in his actions of Gods worſhip, no more acceptable vnto God, then a murtherer is when hee killes a man.

1.Sam.15.23.

Iſa.66.3.

Wherefore, ſeeing obedience is ſo rare to be found among vs, and diſobedience aboundeth euery where, it is a plaine argument, that we take not the promiſes of God kindely nor thankfully at his hands: for if we did, we would at leaſt endeauour our ſelues, to doe what God commaunds in his Law, and deſireth in his Goſpel, and ſo be thankefull vnto God for his mercies, ſhewing forth our thankefullneſſe by our obedience. So that it ſtandeth vs in hand, euery man to looke vnto himſelfe for his owne part, ſeeing God hath giuen vs his Goſpel the meanes of our ſaluation, that therefore we receiue and embrace the ſame, leaſt God doe either take the ſame from vs, or vs from it: for, we may be ſure that the one of theſe two will followe, if we doe daily heare and make no conſcience to obey. And thus much of the third fruite of the Patriarchs faith.

The fourth fruite of their faith followeth: And confeſſed, that they were ſtrangers and Pilgrimes on the earth.

Herein we are to conſider diuers points: 1. The Text ſaith, They confeſſed; that is, they profeſſed openly, what they were, and what their religion was; and that not onely amongſt themſelues, but before the face of Gods enemies, and heathen men. Gen. 23. 4. Abraham tolde the people of the Land of Canaan, that he was a ſtranger and a forainer among them. And when Iacob came before Pharaoh, hee confeſſed, that both his dayes, and the dayes of his Fathers, were dayes of Pilgrimage: Gen. 47. 9. Now, affirming ſo openly that they were ſtrangers in thoſe Countries, they intimated a plaine deniall and diſlike of the religion and Idolatrie of thoſe heathen Countries, and proclaimed themſelues to be of another religiō: ſo that this is true which here is ſaid of them, that they made confeſſion and profeſſion of their eſtate and their faith, and that to the enemies of God.

Hence we learne, that we are not to be aſhamed of that holy profeſſion of Chriſtian religion to which we are called. Our calling is to profeſſe the Goſpel and religion of Chriſt; now to many it is a reproach and ignominie: but we muſt learne this ſpeciall leſſon by the example of theſe men; that howſoeuer the world iudge of Chriſt and his religion, yet we hauing entred into this holy profeſſion, and beeing called hereunto, muſt neuer be aſhamed of it; much leſſe denie or forſake the ſame. In the primitiue Church it was a contemptible thing both among the Iewes, and Grecians to be a Chriſtian: to the one, the Goſpel was a ſtumbling blocke, to the other a laughing-ſtocke, 1. Cor. 1. 23. And yet Paul profeſſed openly, that he was not aſhamed of that holy Goſpel: Rom. 1. 16 And ſo it ought to be with vs: we profeſſe Chriſts religion, and therefore we muſt not be aſhamed of it. Some there be that knowe but little, and yet haue a good minde to religion; but when they ſee ſome doe nothing elſe, but make a mocke and a ieſt of religion, they are thereby daunted and held back from the open profeſſion, and embracing of it.

But if we looke to be ſaued by faith, as theſe men were, we muſt learne by their example, not to be aſhamed of the profeſſion of Chriſtianity, whereto we are called: but muſt follow this notable example of Abraham and the Patriarchs, who were not aſhamed, nor afraid to teſtifie their profeſſion among the Heathen, whenſoeuer any occaſion was offred: for whoſoeuer is aſhamed of Chriſt in this world, Chriſt will be aſhamed of him at the laſt Iudgement; before his Father in the world to come, Luke 9. 26.

To goe further: Theſe Patriarchs profeſſe two things: 1. That they were ſtrangers. 2. That they were Pilgrims. A ſtranger, is one that hath his abode not in his owne, but in a ſtrange Country, though he trauaile not.

And a Pilgrime is one that is a going throrough a forraine Country to his owne home. Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob were ſtrangers, becauſe they dwelt as ſtrangers in Tents, not in their owne Countries where they were borne, but in that ſtrange Country, whither God had called them; and they were Pilgrimes, becauſe they were alwaies readie to goe whitherſoeuer God would call them: and in all places whereſoeuer they were, ſtill they waited on God, and ſought to him for the kingdome of heauen.

Now this was not proper to theſe Patriarchs, but is alſo common to all Chriſtians, that looke to be ſaued by the ſame faith: for Dauid, long after them, confeſſeth vnto God, Pſal. 39. 12. that he is a Stranger and a Pilgrime, or ſoiourner with him, as all his Fathers were. And euen A we alſo muſt follow their faith in the practiſe of this profeſſion: dwelling here on the earth, we muſt teſtifie and profeſſe our ſelues to be both Strangers and Pilgrimes.

But how (will ſome ſay) ſhall we be anſwerable to this profeſſion? Anſw. For the practiſe hereof, we muſt doe theſe three things: 1. We muſt vſe this world and the things thereof, as though we vſed them not, 1. Cor. 7. 31. The temporall bleſſings we here enioy, we muſt ſo vſe, as though they were not ours; but as ſtrangers doe, onely for the preſent occaſion: but we muſt not ſet our hearts thereon. And the rather to perſwade vs hereunto, let vs conſider the practiſe of theſe godly Patriarchs. They had the promiſe of the Land of Canaan diſtinctly B and abſolutely; ſo as no man in the world hath more right to any thing that he poſſeſſeth then they had to this land; yet when they came into it, they enioyed it and all things therein as ſtrangers; and poſſeſſed nothing, but did euen buy ground to bury their dead in. And ſo muſt we vſe the things that we haue in this world: for our houſes, we muſt vſe them as Strangers doe an Inne: and for our goods, we muſt vſe them as Pilgrimes do other mens goods, where they ſtay for a night: we muſt ſo vſe them alwayes, as beeing ready and willing to leaue them the next morning or at any time when God ſhall call vs away.

Secondly, we muſt caſt off all things in this world, that may any whit hinder vs in our iourney C to the kingdome of heauen; like vnto good trauailers, who will carie nothing with them in the way, but that which may further them to their iournies end; and if any thing hinder them in the way, they will caſt it from them, and rather looſe it then be hindred from their home. But what is that which is burdenſome vnto vs in this our iourney to heauen? This S. Paul ſheweth, when he ſaith, 2. Tim. 3. 6. that certaine ſimple women are laden with ſinne. Behold, ſinne is that that ladeth vs: and the Author to the Hebrewes, calleth ſinne the thing that hangeth on ſo faſt; and preſſeth vs downe: (Heb. 12. 1.) Therefore if we will be good trauailers, and pilgrimes toward the kingdome D of heauen, we muſt take heede of all ſinne; for that will hold vs downe, that we cannot goe one ſtep forward, but will drawe vs backeward vnto hell: for, the way is ſtraite that leadeth vnto life, and the gate narrow, and fewe there be that can enter into it, Matth. 7. 13. He that would come hither, muſt come with an humble and pure heart: for the gate will not ſuffer any that is laden with ſinne, to enter therein. The proud man, whoſe heart is puffed vp with pride: and the couetous man, whoſe heart is enlarged with a deſire of gaine: the ambitious man, who is with child with worldly pomp and ſtate: and the luxurious and voluptuous man, who fattes himſelfe with earthly and carnall pleaſures: all theſe are growne too bigge to enter into this ſtraite gate. But

A the meeke in ſpirit, who lead an humble and innocent life, theſe ſhall tread in this path, though it be narrow, and enter in at this doore, though it be ſtraite. And therefore, we muſt caſt off euery ſinne, by the practiſe of true repentance; and ſo make our ſelues fit pilgrimes for the way to heauen.

Thirdly, we muſt learne contentation of heart, in euery eſtate of life; which God ſhall ſend vpon vs: we muſt be contented as well in ſickeneſſe, as in health; in pouerty, as in plenty; in trouble, as in peace; and in good report, and ill report; and in all eſtates of life & death. A pilgrime in his way taketh all things patiently, that befall him; and if he be iniured any way, he puts it vp quietly, without ſeeking reuenge B or making complaint, til he come home; where he knowes he ſhall haue audience, and redreſſe. Euen ſo muſt we behaue our ſelues in this our pilgrimage to heauen; in hope of that redreſſe and reſt we ſhall haue, we muſt beare all things patiently, that befall vs in this life, which is the way: and doing theſe three things, we ſhall become good pilgrimes and ſtrangers in this world.

Here two queſtions offer themſelues to be conſidered. Firſt, if euery man both in profeſſion and practiſe, muſt ſhewe himſelfe to be a pilgrime and ſtranger in this world. Whether then, is it not a good ſtate of life, for a man to contemne the world, and all things in it, and to betake himſelfe to perpetuall beggerie, and C voluntarie pouerty? Anſw. The world in Scripture is taken diuers wayes: firſt, for the corruptions and ſinnes in the world; and theſe muſt be contemned by all meanes poſſible: yea, that is the beſt religion, which teacheth beſt how to contemne theſe; and he the beſt man, who moſt forſakes them, in what calling ſoeuer he liues.

Secondly, for temporall bleſſings, as money, lands, wealth, ſuſtenance, and ſuch like outward things, as concerne the neceſſarie or conuenient maintenance of this naturall life. And in this ſenſe, the world is not to be contemned, for in themſelues, theſe earthly things are the good gifts of God, which no man can ſimply contemne, without iniurie to Gods diſpoſing D hand and prouidence, who hath ordained them for naturall life.

The Papiſts eſteeme it an Angelicall ſtate of perfection, approaching neere to the ſtate of glorie, when a man forſaketh all, and betakes himſelfe to voluntary pouertie; as begging Friers doe: But indeed it is a meere deuiſe of mans braine, and hath no warrant in Gods word, which decreeth thus; that he that will not labour (in ſome lawfull calling) ſhall not eate. Obiect. But here they will ſay, that our Sauiour Chriſt ſpeaking to the yong rich man, bad him goe and ſell all that he had; and giue to the poore, and he ſhould haue treaſure in heauen. Mat. 10. Anſw. That commandement was not ordinarie, but ſpeciall, belonging to that young man: It was a commaundement of triall, giuen to him onely, as this was to Abraham, when God ſaid, Abraham kill thy ſonne, Gen. 22. 2. And the reaſon of that commaundement, was peculiar to him; namely, to ſhew him his corruption, and to diſcouer his hypocriſie. Againe, howſoeuer the yong man was commanded to ſell all, yet he is not commanded to giue all; but onely thus, Sell all, and giue to the poore. 2. Obiect. Againe they obiect, that Chriſt himſelfe was a beggar, and his Diſciples alſo, and had nothing of their owne, but went vp and down the world, as beggars: and liued of that which others miniſtred vnto them. Anſw. This is a meere forgerie, and cannot be prooued out of the word of God. The bagge which Iudas caried, doth prooue the contrary: for, he was (as it were) the ſteward in Chriſts family, who looked to their prouiſion, and to their contribution to the poore: as may be ſeene, Ioh. 13. 27. 28, 29. Yea Chriſts Diſciples, though they left the preſent vſe of their houſes, and places: yet they gaue not ouer their title and poſſeſſion in them: for, Chriſt went to Peters houſe, where he healed his wiues mother, Math. 8. 14. And after the time of Chriſts paſſiõ, Peter & the other Diſciples, returned to their ſhips againe, and became fiſhers for a time. For Chriſt (Iohn 21.) after his reſurrection, appeared to them while they were fiſhing.

2. Queſt. Whether may a man lawfully ſeeke to be rich, ſeeing we muſt profeſſe our ſelues to be pilgrimes and ſtrangers in this life? Anſ. Riches are taken two wayes: 1. for things ſufficient. 2. for aboundance. For the firſt, by things ſufficient, I meane things neceſſary and meete for a mans eſtate, to mainetaine him and his family: and thus a man may ſeeke to be rich: for, ſo we are taught to pray in the fourth Petition, Giue vs this day our daily bread, that is, things meete and needefull for the day. From whence I reaſon thus: That which we may lawfully aske at Gods hands, we may lawfully ſeeke for: But we may lawfully aske of God all things neceſſary to this life; Therefore we may lawfully vſe the meanes to attaine vnto them. And this Agurs prayer ſheweth alſo, Giue me not pouertie, Prov. 30. 8. nor riches, feede me with food conuenient for me. Where we ſee, it is requiſite a man ſhould labour for things neceſſary to this life. Now, becauſe mans corrupt nature is ſo gripple, that he would not be contented with the whole world though it were all his; therefore we muſt learne this rule of contentation for worldly things: namely, to follow the counſell of wiſe and godly men, who are neither couetous, nor riotous; but reſt contented with that which is ſufficient. As for the wearing of apparell, we haue no ſpeciall rule, nor precept in Gods word: and therefore our direction, muſt be the example and faſhion of the moſt graue and godly, in that calling whereof wee are; whoſe preſident muſt be our direction in all caſes, whereof we haue no precept nor rule in Gods word.

But if riches be taken in the ſecond ſenſe, for

aboundance, aboue that which is competent and ſufficient; then it is not lawfull for a man to ſeeke to be rich: for proofe hereof, we haue the plaine teſtimony of the word of God; Paul ſaith, Tim. 6. 8, 9. When we haue foode and raiment, we muſt therewith bee contented: for they that will be rich, fall into temptation, and ſnares, and into many fooliſh and noyſome luſts, which drowne men in perdition and deſtruction. Where, the Apoſtle doth not ſimply condemne a rich eſtate, but rather the deſire to be rich, that is, a deſire to haue more then is neceſſarie for the maintaining of a mans eſtate. Yet this is the common ſinne of the world, men are ſo couetous that they will not be contented with that which is enough, but ſtil toile & moile for more; till they haue gotten ſo much vnder their hands, as would honeſtly and ſufficiently maintaine ten men of their eſtate and calling. But all ſuch are condemned, by the teſtimony of the holy Ghoſt, in the place afore named.

Queſt. What if God giue aboundance to a man, by lawfull meanes; what muſt ſuch a man doe? Anſw. When God ſendeth riches in aboundance to any man, he muſt thinke himſelfe to be appointed of God, as a ſteward ouer thẽ, for the good diſpoſing of them to the glorie of God, and the good of his Church; alwaies remembring this rule of the Prophet Dauid, Pſal. 62. 10. If riches increaſe, ſet not thy heart on them. He ſaith not, If riches increaſe, refuſe thẽ; but, ſet not thy heart on them: and thus much of theſe Queſtions.

Now this practiſe of the Patriarchs is as neceſſarie for vs in theſe dayes, as euer it was; for the cauſe why we profit little after much hearing of Gods word, is this: we haue not behaued our ſelues like Pilgrimes and ſtrangers in this world, but the cares of the things of this life haue choaked it vp, Matth. 13. 12. that it could take no ground, nor roote in our hearts: when we haue heard the word we remember it not, becauſe our hearts & the affections thereof, are ſet on the pleaſures and commodities of the world. We therefore muſt ſhake off this filthy ſinne, and learne to behaue our ſelues like Pilgrimes and ſtrangers, not intangling our ſelues with the things of this life, but vſing them as though we vſed them not, ſo as they bee no hinderance to the growth of Gods graces in vs.

For they that ſay ſuch things, declare plainly that they ſeeke a Country.

In the former verſe, was ſet downe the conſtancie of Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iacob, in the faith. Now in the 14. 15. and 16. verſes, the holy Ghoſt proceedeth to amplifie and inlarge the commendation of their perſeuerance in the faith: for the ſcope of all theſe verſes, is to prooue, that all theſe particularly were conſtant in the faith vnto the ende. The proofe is made by one ſubſtantiall reaſon; the ſumme whereof is this: Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iacob, ſought for their Countrey, which was heauen, and therefore they were conſtant in the true faith.

But ſome may thinke that this reaſon is not ſubſtantiall, for men may ſeeke for heauen that neuer had true ſauing faith. As, Balaam deſired that his ende might bee like the ende of the righteous, Numb. 23. 10. wherewith no doubt hee deſired the ſtate of the righteous after this life.

I anſwer, that this deſire of Balaams was not grounded vpon any conſtant perſwaſion, not ſettled reſolution, but vpon ſome ſodaine motion. Secondly, though hee deſired to die the death of the righteous, yet he would not liue the life of the righteous: he had no delight to walke in the way to come to that end which they walked in; without which, no man ordinarily can come to it.

Yet further ſome will ſay, Many ſhall ſeeke (as our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith) to enter in at the ſtraite gate of the kingdome of heauen, and ſhall not be able, Luke 13. 24. Therefore to ſeeke for heauen is no ſufficient argument of true faith.

Anſwer. True indeede, many ſhall ſeeke to come to heauen, and ſhall not be able to enter; becauſe they ſeeke when the dore of mercy is ſhut, and when the day of grace is paſt: for there is a time of grace wherein the Lord will be found. Now if men ſeeke him not in this time, though they ſeeke him neuer ſo long after, yet they ſhall not find him. But the ſeeking of theſe Patriarchs, was a ſound and conſtant ſeeking, and ſo a notable fruite of their true faith. For 1. they ſought a heauenly Countrey: 2. they ſought it in due time; not for a brunt, but thorough the whole courſe of their liues: 3. they went the right way; denying themſelues and their eſtate in this life, as being ſtrangers vpon earth; and they were willing to forſake all things in this world to attain heauen, eſteeming it as their true dwelling place, and their eternall reſt.

Now more particularly, the holy Ghoſt diuideth this reaſon into two parts, and handleth the ſame ſeuerally: 1. he prooueth that they ſought a Country, in this verſe; and 2. that this Country which they ſought, was heauen it ſelfe, verſe 15. 16. For the firſt part; that they ſought a Country, is thus prooued,

They which ſay they are Pilgrimes and ſtrangers, they ſhewe plainly that they ſeeke a Countrey:

But Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob ſaide of themſelues, that they were Pilgrimes and Strangers:

Therefore they ſhew plainly that they ſeeke a Countrey.

The firſt part of this reaſon is euident in it ſelfe: for he that ſaith he is a Pilgrime and a ſtranger in any place, ſheweth plainely that he is forth of his owne Country, and therefore ſeeketh one. The ſecond part of the reaſon is aſſumed from their confeſſion, in the end of the former verſe;*and confeſſed, that they were Pilgrimes and ſtrangers on the earth:*from whence, the concluſion is laide downe in this 14. verſe, that therefore theſe Patriarchs ſought a Countrey.

In this reaſon obſerue, firſt, that the Author of this Epiſtle had diligently read the Hiſtory of Abraham, Sarah, Iſaac, and Iacob, penned by Moſes in the booke of Geneſis: and in reading, had obſerued that which they particularly confeſſed of themſelues in many places of that booke; namely, that they were Pilgrimes and ſtrangers: yea, alſo he gathered from their confeſſion, this moſt heauenly meditation, that therefore they were not in their owne Countrey, but ſought another. Theſe three things then the Author of this Epiſtle vſed about the holy Scriptures: Reading, meditation, and obſeruation.

Whence we learne, that all Gods Miniſters, and thoſe which prepare themſelues to the worke of the Miniſterie, are diligently to reade and ſtudy the holy Scriptures, and to meditate therein. No doubt, the Author of this Epiſtle was an Apoſtle, and had moſt notable giftes by vertue of his calling, and yet hee beſtowed paines in viewing the particular words of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, recorded by Moſes in the booke of Geneſis. Daniell alſo was an extraordinarie Prophet: yet (as we may reade) Daniel 9. 2. he ſtudied with admirable diligence the prophecies of Ieremie and Ezekiel. And Timothie, though he were a Diſciple (Acts 16. 1) and well learned, yet Paul chargeth him to giue attendance to reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine, 1. Tim. 4. 13. And Ezekiel is commaunded to eate the role, and to fill his belly with it, Ezekiel 3. 3. And Saint Iohn likewiſe is commaunded to eate vp the little booke, Reu. 10. 9, 10. which thing he did, all which ſtrongly inforce the former duty, ſhewing that Gods ſeruant in the Miniſterie, muſt as it were, eate vp Gods booke; that in iudgement and vnderſtanding, he may digeſt as farre as is poſſible the deepe things of God, and the hardeſt places of the Scripture: here muſt hee lay his foundation, and hither haue recourſe from all other writings whatſoeuer, in any matter of doubt.

This direction is moſt neceſſarie for the Schooles of the Prophets, and for all Gods Miniſters: and yet notwithſtanding, the contrary practiſe beareth ſway in the world. For, in the Popiſh Vniuerſities, moſt of their diuines apply themſelues to ſtudy the bookes of certaine ſchoole-men, and the Expoſitors or Commenters thereupon. Theſe are applied day & night, though they be both many and large, and full of needleſſe quiddities, and oftentimes they be alſo publikely expounded, whereas in the mean time the Bible lieth neglected, or little regarded: wherein we may ſee the notable worke of the Deuill, and his malice toward the Church of God; for the Schooles of the Prophets are the fountaines of learning. Now, when as Sathan by this meanes, doth ſteale away from them the ſtudy of the Bible, & in ſtead thereof foiſteth in corrupt humane writings; hereby he poiſons the fountaines, to the danger of infecting the whole Church. And as this is cõmon in the places of Poperie; ſo likewiſe ſome fault is this way committed among vs that be Proteſtants; for many in their priuate ſtudies take litle paines in the booke of God, but apply themſelues wholly to the writings of men; as Councels, Fathers, Schoole-men, and other Expoſitors: & in the handling of the Scripture, they glorie more to prooue a point of doctrine by multiplicitie of humane teſtimonies, then by the written word. But the truth is, thus to doe, is to preferre the handmaide before the Miſtris: and as for the opening and expounding of Scripture by other Writers, it is no ſuch point of deepe learning: a man of ordinarie capacity and diligence, may eaſily deliuer what others haue done before him. But to open the Scripture ſoundly and purely, as it ought to be, is of another nature then theſe men take it: and hereto the ſound ſtudie of the Text it ſelfe, wil prooue the beſt helpe, as they will confeſſe who haue tried moſt of all. And though the beſt mens workes bee but baſe ſtuffe to the pure word of God, yet the writings of holy men muſt not be contemned; but muſt be read and regarded in their place, for our fruniſhing and and enabling to the ſtudy of the Scriptures, for the helping of our knowledge and iudgement in the word of God: they that hold or practiſe the contrary, knowe not what helpes they bee, and what light they yeeld to many darke places of Scripture: But ſtill aboue and beyond, before and after all, the word of God muſt be eaten vp of vs, and ſtudied with all diligence.

Secondly, in that the Author of this Epiſtle noteth their particular ſentence, and by conſequence gathereth this meditation out of it, that they ſought a Country; Hereby all men are taught to exerciſe themſelues in heating and reading all the places of the Bible: euen the Hiſtories of men therein; and out of the wordes to gather godly meditations. So Paul ſaith to the Coloſſians, Let the word of God dwel plentiouſly in you, Coloſſ. 3. 16. The Prophet Dauid alſo noteth it for the property of a good man, to meditate in the Law of God day and night: And the practiſe of the bleſſed virgine Mary, is regiſtred as an exãple for vs to follow; that ſhee kept all the ſayings of Chriſt in her heart. But pitty it is to ſee, how reading the word of God is laid aſide; for it is ſo little practiſed, that men now-adaies will not bee at charge to buy a Bible: for bookes of Statutes, men will not onely haue them in their houſes, but at their fingers ends; but Bible they haue none: and if they haue, it lieth on the deske, or table, and they read it not; and if ſometime they reade, yet they neuer meditate thereon, as wee

A are taught in this place.

Further, whereas the holy Ghoſt reaſoneth thus vpon theſe examples; Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, were ſtrangers and Pilgrimes, therefore they ſought a Country: Herein he teacheth vs this ſpeciall point, to wit; that a doctrine, though it be not expreſſed in plaine words in the Bible; yet being gathered thence by right and iuſt conſequence, is no leſſe to be beleeued and receiued, then that which is plainely expreſſed: and therefore they are farre to blame which miſlike theſe tearmes in Diuinitie, perſon, nature, ſacrament, conſubſtantiall, trinitie, &c. becauſe they are not expreſſed in the word. But they may with good conſcience and much profit be retained; becauſe, though not literally, yet in ſenſe and meaning they are contained in B the Scriprure, and may by iuſt conſequence bee gathered thence. And, we denie not tranſubſtantiation, becauſe the word is not in the Scripture; but becauſe the matter is not there: nor can by neceſſary conſequence be deriued from it, but rather the contrary.

Againe, many refuſe theſe doctrines, the proceeding of the holy Ghoſt from the ſonne; and the baptizing of children, becauſe they are not expreſſed in the Scripture. But hence wee anſwer, that though they be not expreſly ſet down in ſo many wordes, yet by iuſt conſequence they may be ſoundly gathered out of Scripture, and therefore are true doctrines, no leſſe to bee C beleeued, then that which is plainly expreſſed. And thus much of the firſt part of the reaſon.

> And if they had beene mindfull of that Countrey, whence they came, they had leiſure to haue returned.
> But now they deſire a better, that is an heauenly: Wherefore God is not aſhamed of them to be called their God. For he hath prepared for them a Citie.

Here the holy Ghoſt prooueth the ſecond part of the former argument, by 2. reaſons: the firſt, is contained in the 15. verſe, and the beginning of the 16. It is taken from the diſtinction of Countries, and may bee framed D thus;

They either ſought an earthly Country, or an heauenly Country:

But not an earthly: Therefore they ſought an heauenly Country. The firſt part of this reaſon is cleare of it ſelfe. The ſecond part is in the 15. verſe: from whence followeth the concluſion in the beginning of the 16. verſe.

To come to the firſt part, in theſe wordes: And if they had beene mindefull of the Country, &c. That is, if they had regarded, or thought vpon Meſopotamia, or Chaldea, from whence they came, and where they were borne; with any deſire to haue enioyed the profits, or pleaſure thereof; they had leiſure enough to haue returned backe thither, by reaſon of the length of their daies which they liued, in the land whither God called them.

Here obſerue two points: Firſt, that they are not mindefull of (or, as the word imports) they remember not the countrey from whence they came: but when God gaue them commaundement to depart thence, and not to returne to Meſopotamia againe; after this commãdement giuen, they came forth, and did forget their owne countrey.

Whence we learne, that howſoeuer vſually, Forgetfulneſſe be a vice; yet ſome kinde of forgetfulneſſe, is a notable vertue: namely, to forget the things that diſpleaſe God, and which he would not haue vs to thinke vpon. Pſal. 45. 9. The Church is commanded to forget her own people, and her fathers houſe: that is, her owne will and deſires; ſhe muſt neuer thinke thereof, (nor of any other thing whereby God is diſpleaſed) vnleſſe it be with diſlike.

This condemneth the practiſe of many aged perſons, in theſe daies, who delight themſelues among the yonger ſort, to tell of the bad practiſes of their youth; in wantonneſſe, contentions, and breaking Gods commaundements: But, in ſo doing, they ſinne grieuouſly; for, a man muſt not remember his ſinnes, but with diſlike, and deteſtation; beeing grieued with them, and angry with himſelfe for them; or elſe to teach others how to auoide them.

And as this kinde of Forgetfulneſſe, is a good vertue; ſo there is alſo a vertuous and good Remembrance: namely, to bee mindefull of that which may pleaſe God: as of Gods Iudgements, to be humbled thereby: and of his Mercies, to bee thankefull vnto Almightie God for them: and of his Commandements, to become obedient to his will. Theſe things therefore, wee ought to imprint by diligence in our memories.

Secondly, here obſerue, God calleth them out of their owne countrie, and biddeth them liue in the land of Canaan, as ſtrangers and pilgrimes; and ſo they doe, abiding there, without any purpoſe to returne; nay, they are not mindfull of their former home.

Hence we are taught, to be conſtant in that calling whereunto God hath called vs. It is a fearefull ſinne, for a man to goe backe from that calling, in which God hath placed him. When the Iſraelites abode not patiently and conſtantly with God in the wilderneſſe, but deſired to ſhake off the calling of God, and to returne to Egypt, there to ſit by the fleſh-pots againe; they had Gods hand vpon them grieuouſly: as we may read at large, Pſalm. 78. Lots wife, for looking backe, when ſhe was commanded to the contrary; was fearefully, and ſtrangely puniſhed, beeing turned into a pillar of ſalt, Gen. 19. 26. And our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith, Luk. 9. 62. No man that putteth his hand to the Lords plough, and looketh backe againe, is apt to the kingdome of God. As though he had ſaid, He that ſtarteth from the plough, is not fit for the field: no more is he that ſhifteth from his calling, fit for Gods ſeruice.

A To apply this to our ſelues: God hath called vs to profeſſe Chriſtian religion, whence we are called Proteſtants; We thereſore muſt profeſſe the ſame conſtantly and hold it faſt, without wauering or doubting (euen without beeing mindefull of that ſpirituall Egypt of darkeneſſe and ſuperſtition, whence wee are deliuered) much more, without turning to any other; this beeing the true religion, which is grounded on Gods word.

Againe, in this our calling of Chriſtianitie, wee haue vowed vnto God for our ſelues, to renounce the fleſh, the world, and the deuill. Now, this beeing our calling; as we haue promiſed, and vndertaken it: ſo we muſt obey it in our liues, fighting manfully euery day, againſt B the world, the fleſh, and the deuill. For, if we profeſſe religion in word, and doe not obey it in deed; we make our ſelues vnfit for the kingdome of heauen. But alas, men are like to the Swine that returneth to the puddle, though he be waſhed neuer ſo cleane: and to the Dogge, that returneth to his vomite: for, moſt men do but ſerue the fleſh, and the world, and the luſts thereof; therein is their ioy, and their hearts eaſe: take away theſe things from them, and take away their liues: ſo farre are they from ſeeking the kingdome of heauen, as theſe Patriarchs did.

Thus much for the firſt part of the reaſon.

C Now followeth the ſecond part, which is this; But they ſought not a place in earth: and therefore the concluſion followeth, That they deſire a countrey, which is heauen: in theſe words,

But now they deſire a better.

But ſome will ſay, the Patriarchs were dead many hundred yeares, before this was written; How then can they bee now ſaid, to deſire a countrey? Anſw. The Author of this Epiſtle, here obſerueth, and followeth the manner of them that write Hiſtories; who ſpeake of things paſt long agoe, as though they were now preſent.

Now, it is ſaid, they deſire a better countrey. Theſe Patriarchs had laid before them two countries, the Land of Canaan, and the kingdome D of Heauen; and of theſe two, they might chooſe whether they would, to be their portion, and inheritance, vpon which they would beſtow their hearts: Now, they eſteemed heauen (though it was to come) better then Canan, though preſent; and therefore made choice of heauen, and longed for it.

Where we learne, that as we muſt be thankfull to God, for all his bleſſings; ſo among them all, we ſhould chooſe the beſt. This Dauid doth: for beeing put to chooſe, whether he had rather liue in ſafe-guard, and in ſolace, with the wicked and vngodly; then in baſe eſtate, and in great danger, neere to Gods ſanctuarie: He ſaith, Pſal. 84. 10. Hee had rather bee a doore-keeper in the houſe of his God, then to dwell in the Tabernacles of whickedneſſe. And Salomon is highly commended by the holy Ghoſt, 1. King. 3. 10. 11. for chooſing a wiſe and vnderſtanding heart, before riches and honour. Moſes alſo (as we ſhall ſee afterward) had his choyce, whether he would liue glorioully, & at eaſe, in Pharohs court; or with the Church of God in aduerſitie: now Moſes hauing the gift of diſcerning, refuſed to be called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter, and choſe rather to ſuffer aduerſitie with the people of God, then to enioy the pleaſures of ſinne for a ſeaſon. Which holy examples, doe all teach vs; that when God ſetteth before vs diuers ſorts of his bleſſings, we in ſpirituall wiſedome, muſt make choyce of the beſt. On the contrary, Eſau had this choyce ſet before him; his brothers red broth, and his birth-right: but he choſe the worſe: and therefore, in the new Teſtament, the holy Ghoſt noteth him with this marke, to be profane Eſau for his labour. And the Gaderens alſo are branded with a note of infamie to all ages, for chooſing their hogs before Chriſt, and his ſaluation. And the like choyce is ſet before vs euery day: for God of his mercy, in the preaching of the word, for his part, doth ſet forth vnto vs Chriſt Ieſus crucified: and in him, remiſſion of ſinnes, and ſaluation. Now, on the other ſide, commeth the deuill, and ſetteth before vs, all ſorts of vaine pleaſures, and delights; ſhewing to euery man thoſe ſinnes, to which he is giuen; and with them, all the profits or pleaſures that vſually accompany ſuch ſinnes. Now, moſt men hauing this choyce ſet before them, doe leaue the true and ſubſtantiall bleſſings of God, and come to Sathans painted Pageants, and there make choyce of ſinne, with thoſe baſe companions that do attend her. This is too apparant to be denied: for, howſoeuer the word of God be preached vnto vs, and we doe heare the ſame, yet we preferre the vanities & pleaſures of the ſinnefull world, before Chriſt crucified: making no account of him, nor of our own ſaluation by him, in compariſon of the preſent profits and pleaſures of ſinne. But we muſt pray to God to giue vs ſpirituall wiſedome, and the gift of diſcerning, that now when God ſets before vs things ſo farre differing, wee may haue grace to diſcerne betweene them: and withall, to preferre and make choiſe of the beſt, and to refuſe the worſt. But as for them that are ſo mad in their choiſe, that they now preferre ſin before the bleſſings of God in Chriſt, they ſhal ſee the day, when they would wiſh themſelues to be Dogges, Toades, or Serpents, rather then men and women: and yet (though they would be glad of that exchange of ſtate) they ſhall neuer compaſſe it, but ſhall remaine woefull men and women for euermore, becauſe that once they made ſo profane a choiſe: when the path of life was ſet before them, they choſe the way of death rather then of life; and therefore when they would deſire death, they ſhall not haue it, but ſhal liue a life more bitter for euer then any death in the greateſt pangs.

Thus

Iſaacs, Iacobs faith.

Thus we ſee in generall their choiſe was of the better. Particularly the Text addeth,

That is, an heauenly.

In which words is laid downe the laſt and chiefe point in this reaſon, to wit, that the Patriarchs deſired a better Country then the Land of Canaan, and that was an heauenly Countrey, euen heauen it ſelfe: the proofe whereof is principally intended in this place.

Now whereas the Patriarchs, beeing our fore-fathers in faith, and patternes whome wee muſt followe, did deſire heauen: by their example euery one of vs is taught the ſame duty, to aime at another and a better Country, then that in which we liue, euen at the kingdome of heauen: and not to thinke that this world is the Country wee are borne for. This better Country we muſt all ſeeke for, whatſoeuer we be, high and lowe, young and olde, learned and vnlearned, if we will followe theſe godly Patriarchs. And this wee muſt doe not at death onely, ſeeking this world all our life long, for that is to deſpiſe heauen: but euen in the time of our youth, and ſtrength of our daies, muſt we ſet our hearts on heauen: endeauouring ſo to vſe this world, and the things thereof, that when we die, we may com to heauen, that bleſſed country, which we deſired, and ſought for in our liues.

And to perſwade vs hereunto, conſider the reaſons following. Firſt, worldly wiſedome teacheth this: If a man dwell on his owne land, and in his owne houſe, he is careleſſe: But if in another mans houſe, whereof he hath no leaſe, but contrariwiſe, is certaine to be put out, he knoweth not when: this man in time will prouide himſelfe of another, that ſo he may remoue into it, and not be deſtitute: and if it be within his power, he will prouide a better, that ſo hee may not remooue for the worſe. Beholde, while we liue in this world, our bodies are tents and tabernacles wherein our ſoules doe dwell, for a time: and beſides, this time is vncertaine; for there is no man that can ſay certainely, he ſhall liue to the next houre. Therefore, we muſt euery one of vs, prouide for himſelfe a dwelling place in heauen, where we may abide for euer, in all bleſſedneſſe.

Againe, conſider the ſtate of all ſorts of men in the world: for ſinne, Atheiſme, and profaneneſſe abound euery where, the blaſpheming of Gods holy name, and the breaking of his Sabbath: beſides daily ſinnes againſt the ſecond table: Now, all theſe crie continually for vengeance, & for Gods iudgements to be inflicted vpon vs, and we know not how God will deale with vs for our ſinnes: whether hee will take from vs our goods, and good name, our health, friends, or life it ſelfe: and therefore it ſtandeth vs in hand to prouide for our ſelues a reſting place, wherein we may abide for euer, after this fraile life full of miſery is ended.

Thirdly, if we ſhall not doe this, marke what followeth: this, and no other, is our eſtate; By nature, we are the children of wrath, and of the deuill: and by our manifolde ſinnes, we haue made our caſe farre worſe: Now, what is due vnto vs, for this corruption, and for theſe tranſgreſſions? Surely, not heauen, but another place; euen the contrary, the place of eternall woe and deſtruction, the bottomleſſe pit of hell. Now, if this be our due by nature, then let not ſinne, nor Sathan deceiue vs; perſwading vs, that we may come to heauen, and ſtill continue in the ſtate of our corrupt nature: but let vs labour by all meanes, to eſchew this place, which is due vnto vs by nature; that thorough the gift of faith in Chriſt, wee may come to the heauenly citie, which theſe godly Patriarchs ſo ſeriouſly ſought for. But if we remaine in our ſinnes, and ſo die, wee are ſure to goe to the place of deſtruction, and there to remaine in woe and torments, with the deuill, and his angels for euermore: ſo that it ſtands vs in hand, to vſe all good meanes to come to heauen, or elſe our caſe will be the moſt miſerable of all creatures; for, perdition & deſtruſtion will be our portion world without ende.

This muſt awake and ſtirre vp our dead and drowſie hearts, that are ſo beſotted with ſinne, that though we heare, yet we neither learn, nor practiſe. In worldly things, wee can take care and paines: but if we will doe any thing for our owne euerlaſting good, let vs labour by all meanes to come to heauen; for if we miſſe of that citie, it had beene good for vs, we had neuer beene borne: or that wee had beene the vileſt creatures in the world, rather then men. For, when the vnreaſonable creatures die, there is an ende of all their miſerie; but, if we die, and be not prepared for that place, our death will bee vnto vs the beginning of all woe and miſerie.

Wherefore God is not aſhamed of them to bee called their God, for he hath prepared for them a citie.

In theſe words is laid downe a ſecond reaſon whereby is prooued, that theſe Patriarchs died in faith, ſeeking their country in heauen. The reaſon is drawen from the teſtimony of God himſelfe, recorded by Moſes in the booke of Exodus, where God ſaith, He is the God of their Fathers, the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, Exodus 3.61.

The expoſition. Wherefore] that is, that this might appeare and be euident, that theſe Patriarchs died in the faith, and ſought this Country of heauen, God was content to vouchſafe and grant vnto them this fauour, to be called their God.

Was not aſhamed] To be, or not to be aſhamed of one, properly belongs to men; and it cannot be affirmed properly of God, that he is aſhamed or bluſheth (as the word ſignifieth,) but the meaning is, that God vouchſafed vnto them this fauour, and ſhewed them this honour and dignity. Queſt. What was this honour and dignity which he ſhewed vnto them? Anſwer. To be called their God. By which is meant thus much, that God accepted them in his mercie, to be ſuch, with whom he would make his couenant of ſaluation, and not with them alone, but with their ſeede after them. Secondly, that he choſe them, to make the couenant in their names for all the reſt. Thirdly, he vouchſafed them a ſpeciall and extraordinarie fauour, euen that himſelf would beare their names, and they ſhould beare his; making his glorious name renowned to the worlds end, by this title, The God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob. Hereupon the reaſon is framed thus; God would not bee called in ſpeciall manner the God of vnfaithfull men, but rather would beſtowe ſuch a ſpeciall fauour vpon Beleeuers: but that fauour did God vouchſafe to theſe three Patriarchs; therefore doubtleſſe they liued and died in that holy faith.

In that it is ſaid, God was not aſhamed to bee called their God; Here firſt we learne, that God doth not vouchſafe his mercie equally to all men, but ſome men haue more prerogatiue in his fauours & mercies then others. Kings make choiſe among all their ſubiects, of ſome men, whome they will preferre to be of their counſel or guard, and to whome they will giue ſpeciall countenance, and diſpence their fauours more liberally then to all; Euen ſo God among all Abrahams kindred maketh choiſe of theſe three perſons, Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, to beſtowe on them ſuch ſpeciall honour, as hee vouchſafed not to any of their fore-fathers afore them, nor poſterity after them. No meruaile therefore though he beſtowe not his ſpeciall mercie vpon all, ſeeing he diſpenceth not his inferiour fauours vnto all alike. And yet for all this, he is no accepter of perſons: for, he onely is properly ſaid, to bee an accepter of perſons, that preferreth one before another, in regard of ſome quality in the perſon: but God vouchſafed this honour vnto theſe three, only of meere mercy and good will, and not for any thing hee reſpected in them.

This confuteth the conceite and errour of many men broched abrode in this age, that God doth equally loue al men as they are men, and hath choſen al men to ſaluation, as they are men, and hath reiected none: for (ſay they) it ſtandeth with equity and good reaſon, that the Creator ſhould loue all his creatures equally, and this opinion they would build vpon the generall promiſe made to Abraham: becauſe that in him God ſaid all the nations of the earth ſhould bee bleſſed, Gen. 22. 18. But wee muſt vnderſtand, that (All) is not alwaies taken generally, but ſometime indefinitely for many: and ſo Paul ſpeaking of this couenant of grace in Chriſt, ſaith; The Lord made Abraham a father of many natiōs, Rom. 4.17. where repeating the couenant recorded by Moſes, he putteth many for all. Againe, graunt that Abraham were the father of all nations, and that in him All the kindreds of the earth were bleſſed: Yet it followeth not, that therefore God ſhould loue all men equally and alike, for hee may loue the faithfull of all nations, and yet not loue all men in all nations: for, in his bountifull mercie in Chriſt, he preferreth ſome before others. And this anſwer ſeemes the better, becauſe we may haue ſome reaſon to thinke, that God will ſaue of euery nation ſome, but no ground to imagine he will ſaue all of any nation: much leſſe all of euery nation.

2. Here wee may ſee, that God honoureth thoſe his ſeruants that honour him, as he ſaith to Ely the prieſt, 1. Sam. 2.30. Which is a point to be marked diligently, for, this God is the glorious king of heauen and earth: yet he abaſeth himſelfe, and is content to be named by his Creature, aduancing them by abaſing himſelfe to be called their God, the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, Where we may apparantly ſee, rather then God wil not haue them honoured that honor him, he will abaſe himſelfe, that they thereby may be honoured.

Hence we may learne many things. Firſt, that all that profeſſe religion truly, muſt inure themſelues to goe through good report and ill report, and in all eſtates to be content, for Gods honours ſake: as Paul ſaith; I haue learned in whatſoeuer ſtate I am, therewith to be content: I can be abaſed, and I can abound; euery where, in all things I am inſtructed, both to be full, and to bee hungry: to abound, and to haue want. Thus ſpake that holy man of God: and ſo muſt wee all endeauour to ſay, and accordingly to practiſe. And the reaſon is good, becauſe if a man honor God, howſoeuer he be contemned, or not regarded in the world, yet God will honour him, and eſteeme highly of him: that will prooue the way to all true honour, as it hath done, euen in this world to all that tried it.

Phil. 4.11.

Secondly, hence we learne which is the true way to get ſound honour amongſt men; namely, to honour God. Good eſtimation in the world is not to bee contemned, for the Lord commaundeth all inferiours to honour their ſuperiours, whereby he alſo bindeth euery man to preſerue his owne dignity. Now God honoureth them that honour him; therefore the ſureſt way to get true honour among men is this. Let a man firſt lay his foundation well, and begin with God, and ſet all the affections of his heart and thoughts on this, To honour God. Queſt. How may a man honour God? Anſ. By forſaking the rebellious wayes of ſinne and vngodlineſſe, and walking in the way of righteouſneſſe through the courſe of his life. This doth God take to be an honour vnto his high Maieſtie. And when a man doth this vnfainedly, then God will honour him, euen among men, ſo farre forth as ſhall be for his good; for God hath all men hearts in his hand, and will make them to honour thoſe that honour him: ſo S. Paul ſaith, If any man therefore purge himſelfe from theſe, he ſhall be a veſſell vnto honour: not onely in glorie eternall after death, but alſo in grace & fauour with Gods Church. This confuteth the opinion, and condemneth the practiſe of many, who would faine haue good report in the world, and be ſpoken well of by all men: but what courſe (I pray you) take they to come by this good name? They doe not begin with God, and lay their foundation by honouring him; but they ſtriue to pleaſe men, whether it be by doing well or ill, they care not; their onely care is to pleaſe all: for, that is their rule and reſolution, all muſt be pleaſed, and becauſe moſt men are il, they rather chooſe oftentimes to doe ill, then they will not pleaſe the greater ſort. But he that beginneth to get honour by pleaſing men, beginneth at a wrong ende; for, by the teſtimony of the holy Ghoſt in this place the way to get ſound approbation before men, is firſt to begin with God, and to honour him.

2.Tim.2.21.

Iſaacs, Iacobs faith.

Thirdly, if God will honour them that honour him, then by the contrary, conſider what a miſerable caſe many a man is in: For, thoſe that diſhonour God, God will diſhonour them againe; as we may ſee at large, and very plainely, in the example of Elie, and his two ſonnes: for, them that honour me (ſaith the Lord vnto him) I will honour, & they that deſpiſe me, ſhall be deſpiſed, 1. Sam. 2. 30. And in Zachary we may read, that the man that by blaſphemie, theft, or periurie, diſhonoureth God, the flying curſe of the Lord ſhall enter into his houſe, and remaine in the midſt thereof, and conſume it with the timber thereof, and the ſtones thereof; Zach. 5. 4. And becauſe Elie did more honour his children then God, 1. Sam. 2. 31. therefore the Lord threatneth the deſtruction both of him & his family: and according as the Lord had threatned, ſo it came paſſe. For when the Iſraelites fought with the Philiſtims (Chap. 4. 11.) his two ſonnes were ſlaine, and he at the hearing of the newes, fell downe and brake his necke.

Now, if this be ſo, what ſhall we ſay of our owne nation and people, amongſt whom it is as common to diſhonour God, as euer it was amongſt the Papiſts or Pagans; partly, by light vſing of his holy titles, and taking his name in vaine: and partly, by ſwearing, and open blaſphemie: and ſometime, euen by abhominable periurie. Nay, it is many mens rule, that they may ſweare, diſſemble, lie, and forſweare for aduantage. Theſe ſinnes are ſome of them riſe in all ſorts of people, and hardly ſhall you talke with a man, that doth not by vaine othes diſhonour God: yea, it is ſo common, that children, ſo ſoone as they can crawle, or liſpe out a word; the firſt thing they can ſpeake, is to curſe, or ſweare, and take Gods name in vaine, whereby God is diſhonoured euery way: ſo as it is a wonder, that the earth doth not open and ſwallowe vp many men quicke, for their ſwearing & blaſphemy. And whereas Gods Iudgements are often grieuouſly inflicted vpon vs, in many places of the Land; we may perſwade our ſelues, that among other ſinnes it is for A our blaſphemy, and taking Gods name in vaine. And if it be not ſpeedily redreſſed, it is to be feared, leaſt God will raine downe his iudgements vpon vs, and in his wrath ſweepe vs all away; and take away the father with the child, the good with the bad, becauſe there is no reformation of ſo vile, and yet ſo needeleſſe a ſinne.

To be called their God.

Obſerue here further, that Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob, could all of them ſay, God is my God. Now that which theſe worthy Patriarchs could ſay of themſelues, we muſt euery one of vs in our owne perſons labour for; for, their example is and muſt be a rule for vs to followe. We therefore muſt labour for this aſſurance, by B Gods grace to ſay, as theſe holy Patriarchs did ſay, The true Iehoua is my God: and of this I am reſolued, & vndoubtedly aſſured in mine own conſcience.

Queſt. How ſhall we be able to ſay vnfainedly, God is my God? Anſ. By becomming his ſeruants and people in deede and truth; for, to him who is one of Gods people, God is alwaies his God. But how ſhall we become Gods true ſeruants? Anſw. By ſetting our hearts vpon the true God, and giuing them wholly vnto him, and to his ſeruice; and reſtraining our ſelues from all occaſions of ſinne, becauſe ſinne diſpleaſeth him. Queſt. But how ſhall a man ſet his heart wholly on God? Anſw. This he doth, C when he loueth him aboue all, and feareth him aboue all, and aboue all things is zealous for Gods glory; when he hath full confidence in Gods word and promiſes, and is more grieued for diſpleaſing God, then for all things in the world beſides. Or more plainely thus: then a man doth ſet his heart on God, when his heart is ſo affected, that when God commaunds, he is alwaies ready to obey: So the Lord ſaith, Hoſ. 2. 23. I will ſay to them that were not my people, Thou art my people; and they ſhall ſay, Thou art my God. And in the Pſalmes, the Lord ſaith, Pſal. 27. 8. Seeke yee my face: Then the holy mans heart, as an Eccho giueth anſwer, I ſeeke thy face, O God. And ſuch a one is the heart of D him, that is indeede the ſeruant and child of God, and one of Gods people.

For he hath prepared for them a city.

Theſe words are a reaſon of the former, prouing that God was not aſhamed to be called their God, becauſe he prepared a city for them. And indeede, this ſhewes euidently, that God was greatly delighted with them, rather then aſhamed of them: for had he beene aſhamed of them, he would haue ſhut them out of his preſence. Herein therefore he declared his loue and fauour, that by preparing this citie, he procured that they ſhould liue in his ſight for euermore.

Hence we learne, that he which hath God for his God, hath all things with him; according to the common prouerbe, Haue God, and haue all. And on the contrary, Lacke God, and lacke all. And therefore Dauid ſaith, Pſal. 145. 15. Bleſſed are the people whoſe God is the Lord. Other things which here might be added, haue beene handled before.

Abrahams Faith.

VERSE 17.

By faith Abraham offered vp Iſaac, when he was tempted; and he that had receiued the promiſes, offered his onely begotten ſonne.

18. To whom it was ſaid, in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeede be called.

19. For, he conſidered that God was able to raiſe him vp, euen from the dead: from whence he receiued him alſo, after a ſort.

IN the former verſes, we heard the faith of Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob commended iointly together. Now the holy Ghoſt returneth to the commendation of their faith ſeuerally. And firſt, he beginnes with Abrahams faith; whereof, he had formerly propounded two works, or actions: 1. His going out of his owne Country. 2. His abode in a ſtrange Land. Now, here followeth the third, which is the moſt notable worke of all, wherein his faith ſhines moſt gloriouſly; and his example herein is vnmatchable. The particular points herein, are theſe: 1. The worke of his faith is plainely laid downe, in his offering vp of Iſaac. 2. The ſame worke of faith is notably commended, by three ſpeciall arguments; to wit, 1. by three great impediments that might haue hindered this worke of faith: as we ſhall ſee in their place, v. 17. 18. 2. by his victory ouer theſe impediments, v. 19. 3. by the iſſue of this temptation, and his work of faith therein, in the ende of the 19. ver.

For the firſt. The fact of Abrahams faith here commended, is this: That he offered vp Iſaac his ſonne. It may firſt of all be demaunded, How Abraham could offer vp his ſonne by faith, conſidering it is againſt the Law of nature, and the law of God, for a man to kill his owne ſonne: which Abraham muſt doe, if he did offer him vp in ſacrifice vnto God. For anſwer hereunto, we neede goe no further then the Story, Gen. 22. where we may ſee, he had A a ground for his faith: for though the generall comandement be, Thou ſhalt not kill, yet he had a ſpeciall commandement, Abraham, kill thy ſonne: and by vertue of that, he did it: and did it in and by faith. But if that be ſo, then thereupon riſeth another and a greater doubt: namely, How can theſe two commandements ſtand together, one beeing contrary to the other? Anſ. Here a ſpeciall point is to be obſerued: namely, that whenſoeuer two commandements are ſo ioyned, that a man cannot practiſe both, but doing the one, the other is broken; then one of them muſt giue place to the other: For, howſoeuer all Gods commandements binde the conſcience: yet ſome binde it B more, ſome leſſe, becauſe ſome are greater, and ſome leſſer then others. Whence this rule may be ſet down; that when two Commandements of God croſſe one another, then a man muſt preferre the greater. As for example this is Gods Commandement, Honour God, commanded in the firſt Table. Againe, the 5. Commandement ſaith, Honour Parents and Magiſtrats. Now, if parents or magiſtrates command any thing, the doing whereof would diſhonour God, beeing contrary to the firſt table; then the 5. Commandement giueth place vnto the firſt: and a man muſt rather diſobey magiſtrates and parents, then diſhonour God: for, the maine duties of the firſt table, take place before the maine duties of the ſecond. And therefore C Chriſt ſaith, If any man come to me, and hate not his father and mother, wife and children, brethren and ſiſters, yea, and his owne life alſo, he cannot be my diſciple; meaning, that if father or mother, wife or children would drawe vs from God, we muſt hate them rather then diſobey God. Againe, a commandement ceremoniall, and a commandement of loue and mercie concurre together, and it ſo falleth out, that they ſhould be both keept, and cannot: in this caſe therefore the ceremoniall Law of the firſt table, muſt giue place to the Law of Charity and Loue in the ſecond table: becauſe the ceremonies are the inferiour duties of the firſt, but charitie and mercie the principall duties of the ſecond table: For example, the Lord enioyneth D vs in the fourth commandement to reſt on the Sabbath day. Now it falls out, that our neighbours houſe is on fire vpon the Sabbath day: whether then may I labour with my neighbour that day to ſaue his houſe? Anſ. I may; for the ſtrict obſeruation of reſt on the Sabbath day, is a ceremonie: but the quenching of fire in my neighbours houſe, is a worke of mercie, and a maine duty of the ſecond table, and therefore muſt take place before a ceremoniall duty of the firſt table.

Thirdly, God hath giuen vs tenne commandements, concerning all ordinary duties both of pietie and of mercie: yet if God giue vs a particular and ſpeciall commandement contrary to any of the tenne; that muſt ſtand, and the ordinary commandements muſt giue place and yeelde vnto it: as for example; the ſecond commandement forbiddeth any man to make any grauen Image; yet Moſes by a ſpeciall commandement, made a braſen ſerpent in the wilderneſſe to be a figure of Chriſt. So the ſixt commandement, Thou ſhalt not kill, is an ordinary commandement, and bindeth the conſcience of euery man to obey the ſame; yet God comes with a ſpeciall commandement to Abraham, and ſaith, Abraham, kill thy ſonne: and therefore the ordinary commandement of the ſecond table, giueth place for the time. And ſo all the commandements, thou ſhalt doe thus and thus, vnleſſe God command otherwiſe: for God is an abſolute Lord, and ſo aboue his owne Lawes, he is not bound vnto them, but may diſpence with them, and with vs for the keeping of them, at his will and pleaſure. And thus was Abraham warranted to ſacrifice his Sonne; namely, by vertue of a ſpeciall, and perſonall commaundement to himſelfe alone.

But if Abraham had not had this particular commandement, the ſacrificing of Iſaac had beene vnlawfull and abhominable; for, the killing of a man is a hainous ſinne: much more is the killing of a mans owne ſonne without a ſpeciall commandement; for that is againſt nature: and therefore the Lord by Ieremie doth ſeuerely condemne the Iewes for burning their ſonnes and daughters in ſacrifice, Ier. 7. 31. without any warrant from him; though it may be they would pretend their imitation of Abraham in the ſacrificing of Iſaac: yea, and to ſhew his deteſtation of that fact, he changeth the name of the place, calling it the valley of ſlaughter, ver. 32. and in the new Teſtament it is vſed to ſignifie hell, Matth. 5. 29. 30. And becauſe this ſinne is ſo odious, it is rather to be thought, that Iephte did not kill his daughter in ſacrifice to the Lord (as ſome thinke he did) eſpecially beeing a man commended for his faith by the holy Ghoſt: but thereof wee ſhall ſpeake when we come to his example, ver. 32.

Thus wee ſee Abraham had ground for this fact to doe it by faith, euen Gods ſpeciall commaund. But here it will be ſaid, that Abraham did not offer vp his ſonne indeede: for though he had bound him, and laide him on the Altar, yet when he lifted vp the knife to haue killed him, the Angel ſtaid his hand, and ſuffered him not, Gen. 22. 11. 12. How then can it be true which is here ſaid, that he offered him vp? for the writer of the ſtory muſt make true reports; but it ſeemes the writer hereof is deceiued in the very principall point, affirming Iſaac was offered, when in truth he was not. Anſw. God is the Author and inditer of this Story, and in Gods ſight and eſtimation he was offered, though not in the worlds: and therefore it is ſo ſaid, in regard of Gods acceptance; becauſe Abrahams purpoſe was to haue done it; and if he had not beene ſtaide, he had done it.

Where we note a point of ſpeciall comfort, to wit, that God in his children and ſeruants, doth accept the will for the deed: ſo Paul ſaith, 2. Cor. 8. 12. If there be a willing minde, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not: ſpeaking of their releeuing of the poore he telleth them, that God regardeth not ſo much a mans worke, as the heart wherewith he doth the worke. And therefore the poore widowe in the Goſpel, Luke 21. 3. is ſaide by our Sauiour Chriſt, to haue caſt more into the treaſury (though it were but two mites) thẽ many rich men that caſt in great aboundance: more in heart, not in ſubſtance.

This ſerueth to ſtay the heart of many a man that is found bruiſed in conſcience; for, ſeeing his weake obedience, and the greatneſſe of his ſinnes paſt, he begins to call his election into queſtion: now what muſt a man doe in this caſe? Anſw. Surely he muſt goe on forward in obedience, and endeauour himſelfe to continue therein: and then though he faile many times through infirmity, yet for his endeauour, God will accept of him, & be pleaſed with the ſame.

This doctrine is very comfortable to a diſtreſſed conſcience; but yet it muſt not make any man bold to ſinne: for many abuſe this Doctrine, and ſay, that though they liue in ſinne yet God will accept them, for they loue God in their heart. But they deceiue themſelues: for, this mercifull dealing of God in accepting the will for the deede, is onely towards thoſe that endeauour themſelues ſincerely to leaue their ſinnes, to beleeue in God, and to walke in obedience; but ſuch as flatter themſelues, lying in their ſinnes, God will not be mercifull vnto them, Deut. 29. 19. 20.

Here further it may well be demaunded; How Abraham could take Iſaac and bind him, and lay him on the altar to haue offered him: for, though the common opinion be, that hee was but 13. yeares olde, yet the more receiued opinion of the beſt Writers is, that Iſaac was 25. or 27. yeares olde. How then could Abraham beeing an olde man of more then 120. yeares, be able to binde Iſaac beeing a yong and luſty man, and lay him on the altar to kill him? For though Abraham had a commandement to kill Iſaac, yet we finde not that God commaunded Iſaac to ſuffer himſelfe to be killed; now Nature mooues euery one to ſeeke to ſaue his owne life, and to reſiſt ſuch as would kill vs. How then was Iſaac brought to yeeld thus farre to his Father?

For anſwer hereunto, we are to knowe, that Abraham was no ordinary man, but a Prophet, and that an excellent and extraordinary Prophet: So God himſelfe teſtifieth of him to Abimelech; He is a Prophet, and he ſhall pray for thee: yea he was eſteemed and reuerenced as a Prophet, and an honourable man, euen of the Heathen. The Hittites tell him: Thou art a Prince of God amongſt vs, Gen. 23. 6.

Now beeing a man of ſo high place, and ſo great regard euen in the world; doubtleſſe he was of much more authorititie in his owne houſe. It is therefore very likely that hee tells Iſaac his ſonne, that he had a ſpeciall commandement from God, to kill him in ſacrifice. Now Iſaac beeing a holy man, & well brought vp, hearing this, is contented to be ſacrificed, and obeyes his Father herein.

This I ſpeake not as certaine, but as moſt probable; and it is the iudgement of the beſt learned, who haue good experience in the Scripture.

This circumſtance well obſerued, ſerues greatly for the commendation of them both: of Abraham the Father, that had ſo religiouſly brought vp his onely Sonne, that was moſt deere vnto him, that he would not reſiſt the will of God reuealed vnto him, though it coſt him his life. Oh that Parents would follow Abraham, in ſo doing to their children; then would it goe well with the Church of God. Againe, Iſaacs behauiour is here admirable, that hee would not reſiſt his weake and aged Father, but ſuffered him to binde him, and to lay him on the Altar; yeilding himſelfe vnto death, when his Father told him, My ſonne, God will haue it ſo.

This example muſt be a patterne of obedience, not onely for children towards their parents; but for vs all towards Gods miniſters, when they ſhall tell vs, what God would haue vs doe: we muſt ſubmit our ſelues, and yeelde though it turne to our bodily paine and griefe; for Iſaac yeelds, though it were to the loſſe of his life. But alas, who will followe Iſaac? For, let the miniſter ſpeake againſt our carnall pleaſure, and vnlawfull gaine; let him croſſe our humour, and affections, then we refuſe to heare, and will not obey. Nay, if the miniſter of God, as the Lords prieſt come with the ſacrificing knife of Gods word, to the throat of our ſinne, to kill the ſame in vs, that ſo we may be pure and acceptable ſacrifices vnto God; doe we not reſiſt him, and ſay in our hearts, We will none of this doctrine? Or, if he like a Prophet of God, come and offer to binde our conſciences with the cordes of obedience, and to lay our affections on the altar of the Law; then we reſiſt, and are either too yong, or too olde; too rich, or too learned; or too great to be taught and bound to obedience. But let vs know, that if we will be true Iſaacs, euen the ſonnes of faith and obedience, and the true heires of Abrahams faith (as we would beare the world in hand) then as he did ſubmit himſelfe to bee bound of his father; ſo muſt we yeeld our ſelues to the miniſters of God, to be bound by his word: and ſuffer the ſame word to be in vs, the two edged ſword of the ſpirit, to cut downe ſinne and corruption in vs, and to make vs new creatures; that ſo both in body and ſoule, wee may become pure and acceptable ſacrifices vnto our God. Thus much of the fact it ſelfe, wherein Abrahams faith is ſet forth.

Now follow the Arguments, or reaſons, whereby the ſame worke of faith is commended vnto vs. The firſt Argument is taken from the great impediments which might hinder his faith; and they are in number three: Firſt, that he was brought to this worke, not by ordinary command, but by an extraordinary courſe in temptation: Beeing tempted. Secondly, that he was to offer his owne child: yea, his onely begotten ſonne. Thirdly, that he who had receiued the promiſes, muſt offer him and kill him, in whom the promiſe was made.

For the firſt impediment. In the ordinary tranſlation, it is read thus, When he was tried: But that is not ſo fit, beeing rather an expoſition of the meaning, then a tranſlation of the word. For the very word ſignifieth, to be tempted: and the meaning is, when he was tried. I would therefore rather read it thus: when he was tempted; or, being tempted, as the word ſignifies.

In the handling hereof, firſt wee will intreat of the nature of this temptation, and then come to the circumſtances belonging to the ſame.

Temptation (as it is here vſed, may be thus deſcribed) It is an action of God, whereby hee prooueth, and makes experience of the loyaltie and obedience of his ſeruants. Firſt, (I ſay) it is an action of God: This is plaine by the teſtimony of Moſes in Gen. 22. 1. where (if we read the hiſtory) we ſhall finde, that God did prooue Abraham. Obiect. But againſt this it may be obiected, that Saint Iames ſaith, Iam. 1. 13. God tempteth no man: and therefore no temptation is the action of God? Anſw. That place in Iames is thus to be vnderſtood: God tempteth no man: that is, God doth not ſtirre vp, or mooue any mans heart to ſinne. Yet further it will be ſaid, That temptation is an action of Satan: for ſo in the Goſpel we may read (Matt. 4. 3.) that he is called the tempter? Anſ. Some temptations are the actions of God, and ſome the actions of Satan: God tempteth, and Satan tempteth: but there is great difference in their temptations: firſt, in the manner: for, Satan tempteth a man to ſinne againſt the will of God, and to doe ſome euill; God tempteth a man to doe ſomething, which ſhall be onely againſt his owne affections, or his reaſon. Secondly, God tempteth for the good of his ſeruants: but Satan tempteth for the deſtruction both of their bodies and ſoules.

Againe I ſay, Whereby he maketh triall, &c. Here ſome will ſay, God knowes euery mans heart, and what is in them, and what they will doe, long before; and therefore hee needeth not to make triall of any man? Anſ. God makes triall of his ſeruants, not becauſe he is ignorant of that which is in their heart; for he vnderſtandeth their thoughts long before: but becauſe he will haue their obedience made knowne; partly to themſelues, and partly to the world: ſo that he makes triall of his ſeruants, not for himſelfe, but for our ſakes.

Now further, God tempteth men three

A wayes; firſt by his Iudgements, and Calamities in this world: ſo the Lord ſaith to the Iſraelites, Deut. 8. 2. Thou ſhalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God ledde thee this fourtie yeares in the wilderneſſe, for to humble thee, for to prooue & to know what was in thy heart. That iourney might haue been gone in fourty dayes, but God did lead them in it fourty yeares, to prooue and trie by this vnwontted calamity, whether they would obey him or not. So likewiſe God ſuffered falſe Prophets, and Dreamers of dreames, to come among the people; for this ende, To prooue them, and to knowe whether they loued the Lord their God, with all their heart, and with all their ſoule, Deut. 13. B 3. Now this firſt kinde of temptations, by outward Iudgements, is moſt grieuous; when the Lord laieth his owne hand vpon his ſeruants ſo heauily, as they ſhall thinke themſelues to be quite forſaken. In this temptation was Dauid as we may reade at large; Pſal. the 6: and Pſal. 38: and Iob beeing afflicted not onely outwardly in body, but inwardly in minde, crieth out, that the arrowes of the Almighty were in him, Iob. 6. 4. and through the whole chapter he bewaileth his grieuous eſtate by reaſon of this temptation.

Secondly, God tempteth his ſeruants by withdrawing his graces from them, and by forſaking them in part; and this temptation is as grieuous as the former: herewith was good King Hezekias tempted: C for as we may read, God left him to a ſinne of vaine glory, and the ende was to try him, and to prooue all that was in his heart. 2. Chron. 32. 31.

Thirdly, God tempteth his ſeruants by giuing vnto them ſome ſtrange and extraordinarie commandement: As in the Goſpel, when the young man came to our Sauiour Chriſt, and asked him, what good thing he might doe to haue eternall life? Matt. 19. 16. Chriſt biddeth him, goe and ſell all that he had, and giue to the poore. This commandement had this vſe, to be a commandement of triall vnto the yong man, whereby God would prooue what was in his heart, that the ſame might be manifeſt both to himſelfe and D vnto others. And vnder this kind, we muſt comprehend this temptation of Abraham: for when God ſaid, Abraham, offer vp thy ſonne in ſacrifice; it was not a commandement requiring actuall obedience, (for God meant not that Abraham ſhould kil his ſonne) but only of trial, to ſee what he would do. And theſe are Gods temptations, whereby he prooueth his ſeruants.

Yet farther the temptations of God whereby he tempteth his children, haue two endes: 1. they ſerue to diſcloſe and make euident the graces of God, that be hidden in the hearts of his ſeruants: ſo S. Iames ſaith, My brethren count it exceeding great ioy when yee fall into diuerſe tentations: Iam. 1. 2. The reaſon followeth: Knowing that the triall of your faith bringeth forth patience, v. 3.

Where wee ſee this ende of temptation ſet downe, To manifeſt the gift of patience wrought in the heart. And S. Peter ſaith to the Church of God; That they were in heauineſſe through manifold tentations, that the triall of their faith beeing much more precious then gold, that periſheth (though it be tried with fire) might be found vnto their praiſe, and honour, and glory, at the appearing of the Lord Ieſus, 1. Pet. 1. 6. 7. Where temptations haue this vſe, to make manifeſt the ſoundneſſe of mens faith in God, as the fire doth prooue the gold to be good and pretious. So in this place, The temptation of Abraham ſerueth for this ende, to make manifeſt his notable faith and obedience vnto God, with a reuerend feare of his Maieſtie, as the Lord himſelfe teſtifieth, ſaying, Now I knowe that thou feareſt God, ſeeing for my ſake thou haſt not ſpared thy onely ſonne, Gen. 22. 12. Meaning this: Now I haue made thy faith, and loue, and feare of me ſo manifeſt, that all the world may ſee it and ſpeake of it.

Secondly, Gods temptations ſerue to manifeſt hidden ſinnes and corruptions, partly to a mans owne ſelfe, and partly to the world. And for this ende God tempted Hezekias. For, beeing recouered of his ſickeneſſe, after that the King of Aſhur his great enemy was vanquiſhed, eſpecially when the Embaſſadours of the King of Babell came to enquire of the wonders which were done in the Land; God left him that he might ſee his ſinnes, and the corruptions of his nature, as pride, and vaine-glory, wherewith he was puffed vp at the comming of the Embaſſadours to him. And thus hee who little thought, that pride and vaine-glory could haue taken ſuch hold on him, perceiuing how his heart was lift vp in him, was doubtleſſe much humbled at the ſight of this his ſo great corruption; for when the Prophet came vnto him, he ſubmitted himſelfe to the word of reproofe, Iſay 39. 18.

2.Chr.32.31.

Firſt, whereas Abraham the ſeruant of God was tempted, that is, was prooued and tried by God himſelfe; Here we are taught, that if we perſwade our ſelues to be the ſeruants of God, as Abraham was, then we muſt looke to haue temptations, at Gods owne hand; for his example is a patterne for vs: and therefore in him we muſt ſee that which we muſt looke to haue; for it could not be needefull for Abraham, but it may be alſo needefull vnto vs. In regard whereof, Saint Peter counteth it as a thing neceſſary, that men ſhould fall into ſundry temptations, that the triall of their faith might be vnto their praiſe. So, that in this life we muſt looke for triall: and the more glorious our faith is, and the more like to our Father Abrahams, the more trialls ſhall we vndergoe.

1.Pet.1.16.

Againe, ſeeing we muſt be tried, therefore euery one of vs muſt labour for ſoundneſſe of grace in our hearts; as of faith, repẽtance, hope, and of the loue of God (though they be but little in meaſure) for, we muſt come to triall,

1964a

A and it muſt appeare, whether we be hotte or colde. Now, if we haue not ſoundneſſe of grace in vs, in the time of triall, then looke, as the droſſe conſumeth in the fire, when as gold commeth out more cleare; ſo ſhall hypocriſie, formality, and all temporizing profeſſion, come to nothing, in the midſt of tentation; when ſound grace, and a good conſcience, ſhall paſſe thorough, and ſhine more pure and perfect after then before.

Thirdly, conſidering we are to looke for trials and temptations from God; therefore we muſt be carefull to remember, and practiſe that counſell of Chriſt to his Diſciples, before his paſſion: Watch and pray leaſt ye enter into temptation, Matth. 26.41. B And becauſe they were careleſſe in practiſing this dutie, therefore they fell into temptation; eſpecially Peter fell moſt grieuouſly, by denying his maſter. We muſt perſwade our ſelues, that the ſame commandement is giuen to vs; for God will prooue vs by temptations, to make manifeſt the corruptions that be in our hearts: we therefore conſidering our owne eſtate, muſt pray for Gods aſſiſting and ſtrengthening grace, that when temptations ſhall come, we may be found ſound and ſtedfaſt in the triall.

Thus much of the nature of Abrahams temptation; now followe the circumſtances to be conſidered therein: And firſt, of the time when Abraham was tempted. Hereof we may C reade, Gen. 22. 1. After theſe things, ſaith Moſes, God did prooue Abraham. The words will admit a double reference. But this I take to be moſt proper and fit for that place, to wit; that after God had made moſt excellent promiſes vnto Abraham, and giuen him moſt wonderfull bleſſings and priuiledges, then he tempted him.

Hence, we learne this notable leſſon: That thoſe people in Gods Church, which receiue from God more graces then others, muſt looke for more temptations. This we ſhall ſee to be true in Chriſt Ieſus the head of the Church: for when he was Baptized, and had receiued the holy Ghoſt, Matth. 3. in the forme of a Doue, and had this voyce of God the Father pro- D nounced vpon him, that he was his wel-beloued ſonne in whom he was well pleaſed; then preſently followeth this, that he was led into the wilderneſſe to be tempted of the deuill: Matth. 4. 1. Luk. 4. 1. beeing full of the holy Ghoſt, as Luke ſaith: So likewiſe when God had teſtified of Iob, that he was an vpright and iuſt man, one that feared God, and eſchewed euill, Iob. 1. 8. then Satan tooke occaſion thereby to tempt him: as in all the whole courſe of that booke we may plainely ſee, wherein are ſet downe moſt wonderfull temptations and trials whereby he was prooued. So Iaacob muſt wreſtle with the Angel, Gen. 32. 24. 28. and by the power of God ouercome God himſelfe. This was a notable prerogatiue, To preuaile with the Lord; but yet hee muſt preuaile with his foyle (v. 31.) and at the ſame time, and euer after draw one of his legges after him, euen to his dying day. Saint Paul was rapt vp into the third heauen, into Paradiſe, and heard words which cannot be ſpoken; yea, which are impoſſible for man to vtter: yet leaſt he ſhould be exalted out of meaſure, through aboundance of reuelations, there was giuen vnto him a pricke in the fleſh, the meſſenger of Satan to buffet him: 2. Cor. 12. 7. God will honour him with reuelations, but yet Satan ſhall haue leaue to buffet and beate him as it were blacke and blewe. In all which we may ſee, to whom God vouchſafeth a greater meaſure of grace, to them he appointeth ſingular trialls and temptations aboue other men. And the reaſon is: First, becauſe Gods graces doe better appeare in temptations then out of them: as golde is beſt tried in the fire, and thereby prooued moſt pure and perfect: Secondly, temptations ſerue to abaſe the ſeruant of God, and to bring him downe in his owne conceite, that he be not proude of thoſe things that are in him, or puffed vp with conceite that there is more in him, then indeede there is. This we ſawe in Pauls example; He was buffeted of Satan, leaſt he ſhould be exalted with aboundance of Reuelations. We may ſee a type hereof in worldly affaires: The beſt ſhip that floateth on the Sea, when it carieth in it moſt precious Iewels, is ballaced with grauell or ſand, to make it ſinke into the water, and ſo ſayle more ſurely, leaſt floating too high, it ſhould be vnſtable: euen ſo dealeth the Lord with his ſeruants, when he hath giuen them a good meaſure of his graces, then doth he alſo lay temptations vpon them, to humble them, leaſt they ſhould be puffed vp in themſelues.

The ſecond circumſtance to be conſidered in this temptation, is the greatneſſe thereof. It was the greateſt that euer was, for ought we reade of, That God ſhould command him to kill his owne ſonne. For, if God had tolde Abraham, that his ſonne Iſaac muſt haue died, it would haue beene very grieuous and ſorrowful newes vnto him: and yet more grieuous if he had told him, that he ſhould haue died a bloody death. But yet this was moſt grieuous of all, that Abraham himſelfe with his owne hand, ſhould ſacrifice his owne ſonne; nay his onely ſonne; and that which is more, he muſt kill his onely childe, in whom the promiſe was made, that in him ſhould his ſeede be called: this muſt needes be a great wound vnto his heart; and yet to augement his griefe, he muſt not doe it preſently, nor where he would, but goe three daies iournie in the wilderneſſe. During which time Satan vndoubtedly wrought mightily vpon his naturall affections, to diſwade him from obedience: which could not chooſe but be far more grieuous vnto his ſoule.

Out of the grieuouſneſſe of this temptation, wee may learne this leſſon: that God in tempting a man, doth ſometime proceede thus farre, Not onely to croſſe his ſinnes and corrup-

tions, but euen to bring him to nothing, in regard of humane reaſon and naturall affections. For, this commaundement (Abraham kill thy ſonne) might haue made Abraham (if he had conſulted with fleſh and blood) euen diſtracted in himſelfe, and without reaſon, not knowing which way to turne himſelfe. And accordingly, let all Gods children, eſpecially ſuch as haue the greateſt graces, looke for ſuch temptations as ſhall lay their humane reaſon flat vpon the ground, and bring them to this point, euen vtterly to denie themſelues.

The third Circumſtance in this Temptation, is this; What Abraham did when hee was tempted? the Text telleth vs, that by faith hee offered vp Iſaac, beeing tempted.

Abraham beeing thus tempted, whether he would obey Gods Commaundement, or not; obeyes God in offering vp his ſonne, and yet layes holde vpon Gods promiſe made in him. For, we muſt know, that Abraham had a promiſe of bleſſing, in Iſaac: and beeing now commanded to kill Iſaac, hee did not now caſt off his hope, and deſperately thinke it could not be performed, if this commaundement were obeyed; but by the great power of faith, he both obeyes the commandement, and yet ſtill beleeues the promiſe: For, ſo ſaith the text, By faith he offered vp Iſaac. Therefore, in the very action of killing Iſaac, hee beleeued the promiſe, that Iſaac ſhould liue. And this was the excellency of Abrahams faith. For, if God ſhould with his owne voyce bidde a man kill his ſonne, it may be ſome would be found, that would doe it; but to doe it, and ſtill to beleeue a contrary promiſe made before, betokeneth the vertue of an admirable faith.

In this circumſtance we may learne a good inſtruction; to wit, in all temptations that befall vs, ſtill to hold faſt the promiſes of God. Though in the deuills purpoſe, they tend to the looſening of our holde; and in all common reaſon, we haue good cauſe to let them goe: yet for all that, wee muſt neuer let goe, but ſtill hold the promiſe faſt, and rather let goe all reaſon in the world, then Gods promiſe. And this is not onely true faith, but euen the excellencie of faith. For example, Gods promiſe is (Ioh. 3. 16.) God ſo loued the world, that hee gaue his onely begotten ſonne into the world, that whoſoeuer beleeued in him, ſhould not periſh, but haue euerlaſting life. Now, when wee are in the extremitie of all temptations, we muſt ſtill holde faſt this promiſe, and venture our ſoules vpon the truth of it. This was Abrahams practiſe; for in this temptation, Gods meaning was to trie Abraham, and to ſee what he would doe: Now Abraham, he holdes faſt the promiſe, and yet obeyes God; though all the reaſon in the earth, cannot tell how that promiſe, and that commandement could ſtand together. But this was Abrahams faith, though I know not, nor reaſon knoweth not; yet God knoweth: and therefore, ſeeing I haue his commaundement, I will obey it; and ſeeing I haue his word and promiſe, I will beleeue that alſo, and neuer forſake it. And euen thus muſt we ſtriue to doe in all temptations whatſoeuer; yea, euen in thoſe that come from Satan, which are full of malice and all violence. In our heart and conſcience we muſt ſtill hold and beleeue the promiſe of God: and this is euer the ſureſt and ſafeſt way to get the victorie ouer Satan, To hold, that Gods promiſe ſhall be performed, though wee know not how, but rather ſee the contrary. And though in humane reaſoning, it bee a note of ignorance, and want of skill, to ſticke alwaies to the concluſion and queſtion; yet in ſpirituall temptations, and trialls, this is ſound diuinitie, Alwaies to holde Gods promiſe, and to ſticke faſt to that concluſion: and not to follow Satan in his Arguments, neither ſuffer him by any meanes to driue vs from it.

Further, in that this fact of offering vp Iſaac, was onely Abrahams triall; we may obſerue, that it did not make him iuſt before God, but onely ſerued to prooue his faith, and to declare him to bee Iuſt. And therefore, whereas Saint Iames ſaith, Iam. 2. 21. That Abraham was iuſtified through workes, when hee offered his ſonne Iſaac vpon the altar. His meaning is, that Abraham did manifeſt himſelfe to be iuſt before God, by offering vp his ſonne; and not, that by this fact Abraham of a ſinner was made iuſt; or, of a righteous man, was made more iuſt: For indeede, good workes doe not make a man iuſt, but onely doe prooue and declare him to bee iuſt.

Thirdly, God gaue Abraham this commandement; Abraham kill thy ſonne: but yet hee concealed from him, what was his purpoſe and intent herein; for God meant not that Abraham ſhould kill his ſonne indeede, but onely to trie what he would doe; whether he would ſtill beleeue and obey him, or not. Where wee ſee, that God, who is truth it ſelfe, reueales to Abraham his will; but not his whole will: whence ariſeth this queſtion;

Whether it be lawfull for a man, according to this example of God, when he tels a thing to another, to conceale his meaning, in whole, or in part? For anſwer hereunto, we muſt knowe, there are two extremities, both which muſt bee auoided in this caſe. 1. That a man muſt alwaies expreſſe all that is in his minde. 2. That in ſome caſes a man may ſpeake one thing, and thinke another; ſpeaking contrary to his meaning: But this latter is no way lawfull, and the other is not alwayes neceſſarie. Wee therefore muſt holde a meane betweene both; to wit, that in ſome caſes a man may conceale his whole meaning, ſaying nothing, though he bee examined: namely, when the concealing thereof, doth directly ſtand with the glory of God, and the good of his brother.

Thus godly Martyrs haue done: for, beeing examined before tyrants, where & with whom, they worſhipped God; they haue choſen rather to die, then to diſcloſe their brethren: and this concealing of their mindes was lawfull, becauſe it touched immediately the glorie of God, and the good of his Church.

Secondly, a man may conceale part of his minde: but that muſt be alſo with theſe two caueats; Firſt, that it ſerue for Gods glorie: Secondly, that it bee for the good of Gods Church.

Thus did Ionas conceale the condition of mercie from the Niniuites, when hee preached deſtruction vnto them, ſaying; Within fortie daies and Niniuie ſhall be deſtroyed: though it is euident by the euent, that it was Gods will they ſhould be ſpared, if they did repent. But that Condition God would haue concealed, becauſe, it would not haue beene for the good of the Niniuites to haue knowen it; ſith the concealing of it cauſed them more ſpeedily, and earneſtly to repent.

But out of theſe caſes, a man (beeing called to ſpeake) muſt declare the whole truth, or elſe hee ſinnes greatly againſt Gods commandement, forſaking the property of the godly, Pſal. 15. 2.

And thus much of the firſt impediment of Abrahams faith.

The ſecond impediment to Abrahams faith, is contained in theſe words,

We know that the loue of Parents deſcends to euery childe naturally, but eſpecially to the onely begotten; vpon whome (beeing but one) all that is beſtowed, which, when there are many, is diuided among them. And therefore in all reaſon, this might greatly hinder Abrahams obedience, That God ſhould commaund him to offer his ſonne, yea, his only begotten ſonne: But yet by faith he ouercommeth this temptation, breaks through this impediment, and offers vp his onely ſonne.

Where we note, that true faith will make a man ouercome his owne nature. Loue is the ſtrongeſt affection in the heart, eſpecially from the father to the childe, euen his onely childe: And a man would thinke it impoſſible to ouercome this loue in the parent, vnleſſe it were by death; there beeing no cauſe to the contrary in the childe. But yet beholde, Abraham by faith ſubdued this ſpeciall loue which he bare to his onely childe: God himſelfe teſtified of Abraham, that his loue to Iſaac was great, Gen. 22. 2. and yet by faith he ouercōmeth this his loue.

This point is carefully to be marked, as declaring the great power of true ſauing faith; for, if faith can ouercome created and ſanctified nature, then vndoubtedly the power thereof, will inable man to ouercome the corruptions of his nature, and the temptations of the world, for it is an harder thing to ouercome our nature which wee haue by creation, then to ſubdue the corruption thereof, which coms in by tranſgreſſion. A And hence ſuch excellent things are ſpoken of faith: it is called the victorie that ouercommeth the world. 1. Iohn 5. 4. And God is ſaid by faith to purifie the heart: faith ſtrengtheneth the heart: Acts 15. 9. And through faith we are kept by the power of God vnto ſaluation. 1. Pet. 1. 5.

Abrahams faith.

Is this the power of faith to ouercome nature, and the corruptions thereof? then howſoeuer religion be receiued, and faith profeſſed generally among vs, yet vndoubtedly there is little true faith in the world: for, euen among the profeſſours thereof, how many bee there that ſubdue the ſinnes of their liues, and ſuppreſſe the workes of their wicked nature? ſurely very few. B Now where corruption beareth ſway, and ſinne raigneth, there ſound faith cannot be, for, if faith were ſound in men, it would purifie their hearts: and cleanſe the corruptions thereof: and bring forth obedience in life.

Secondly, this power of true faith in mans heart muſt teach vs, not to content our ſelues with a general faith and knowledge in religion, but to goe further, and to get a ſound faith that may purifie the heart, at leaſt in ſome true meaſure; for, ſauing faith wil cleanſe a man in euery part of ſoule & bodie, and ſtrengthen his ſoule in temptations.

Queſt. Here it may be asked, how it can bee truely ſaide, that Iſaac was Abrahams onely C begotten ſonne, ſeeing Iſmaell was alſo his ſonne, and was borne before Iſaac, as is euident, Gen. 16? I anſwer two wayes: firſt, that Iſmaell by Gods appointment was put out of Abrahams houſe, (for it was the expreſſe commaundement of God, to put forth the bond-woman and her ſonne, Gen. 21. 10.) and ſo was made no childe of Abraham. Secondly, Iſmaell was his childe indeede, yet not by Sarah, but by Agar a bondwoman; and ſo was (as I may ſay) baſe borne, whereupon hee is reputed for no ſonne: but Iſaac is his onely begotten lawfully; which may be an Item to beware of the bed defiled, ſeeing ſuch off-ſpring is ſo debaſed with the Lord.

Now followeth the third impediment of Abrahams faith; which is alſo a notable circum- D ſtance whereby the ſame faith is commended: and it is taken from the perſon of Abraham: in theſe wordes, who had receiued the promiſes.

The meaning of the words. Who.] This muſt be referred to the perſon of Abraham of whom the holy Ghoſt here ſpeaketh. Receiued the promiſes.] That is, by faith; for, when God made his promiſes vnto Abraham, hee did not onely heare them; but (which is the principall point of all) he beleeued them, and applied the ſame effectually vnto his owne ſoule; ſo much doth the word [receiued] import. Now it is ſaide that he receiued (not one promiſe) but the promiſes plurally; for theſe cauſes; firſt, becauſe God hauing made one maine promiſe vnto him touching Chriſt, did repeate and renue the ſame diuers times. Secondly, becauſe God had made diuers particular promiſes vnto him; as firſt, that he would be his God, and the God of his ſeede: Gen. 17.7. Secondly, that he would giue him a child in his olde age: Gen. 17.19. Thirdly, that vnto him and his ſeed, he would giue the Land of Canaan for euer: Gen. 13.15. Fourthly, that in Iſaac he would bleſſe all the Nations of the earth. Gen. 21.12.

And becauſe the receiuing of Gods promiſes in generall could ſeem no great impediment to Abrahams worke of faith; therefore the holy Ghoſt annexeth his receiuing of a particular promiſe in Iſaac in the 18. verſe, To whom it was ſaid, in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeede be called: Which might ſeem impoſſible to ſtand with the doing of this worke in ſacrificing his ſonne; and therefore the conſideration of it in Abraham, muſt needes be a great impediment to him in this worke: for, he goes about to kill Iſaac (in obedience to Gods commaund) in whoſe life hee beleeued to receiue the bleſſings promiſed of God.

Here then, obſerue a moſt wonderfull impediment to Abrahams faith: which aboue all might haue hindred him from obeying God; for, how could he chooſe but reaſon thus with himſelfe? God hath made vnto me many gracious promiſes, and that which is more, he hath ſaide, That in my ſonne Iſaac the ſame muſt bee accompliſhed: and, in him all the nations of the earth muſt bee bleſſed: Now then, if I ſhall kill and ſacrifice my ſonne, how ſhall theſe promiſes be accompliſhed? And reaſon in this caſe would ſay, I ſee no way, but that the promiſe is gone, and all hope loſt. But what doth Abraham in this caſe? for all this, hee doth ſacrifice his ſonne, and that by faith; ſtill beleeuing and holding aſſuredly, that though Iſaac were ſacrificed and ſlaine, yet in him ſhould all the nations of the earth be bleſſed.

Here then we note this ſpeciall point, wherin the faith of Abraham doth notably appeare; That when Abrahams caſe, in reſpect of inioying the promiſe of God, might ſeem deſperate, and void of all hope and comfort, then he beleeueth: for, when Iſaac was dead, in all reaſon hee could haue no hope of the accompliſhing of Gods promiſes vnto him, becauſe they were made to him in Iſaac: Iſaac was the man in whom all the nations of the earth ſhould be bleſſed; and yet when all hope is paſt in mans reaſon, then good Abraham ſet his heart to beleeue.

This practiſe of Abraham muſt be a pattern for vs to obſerue and followe, al our liues long, in the matter of our ſaluation: if it fall out that we ſhall doubt of our ſaluation, and feele many things in vs that would carie vs to deſpaire; when we are in this caſe, and feele no comfort, then let vs call to minde Abrahams practiſe, who beleeues Gods promiſe, when the foundation thereof is taken away: euen ſo let vs doe at the ſame inſtant, when the promiſe of God ſeemes to be fruſtrate, and we haue no hope of the accompliſhment thereof, then we muſt caſt our ſoules vpon it. For wee muſt not onely beleeue, when we feele comfort in our conſcience concerning Gods mercies; but euen then when God ſeemes to ſtand againſt vs, and when wee feele in our ſoules the very gall of hell, then (I ſay) we muſt beleeue.

In Paules daungerous voyage towards Rome, when he was in the ſhippe with the Mariners and Centurion, there aroſe a great tempeſt, and neither ſunne nor ſtarres appeared for many dayes: ſo that, as the Text ſaith, All hope that they ſhould be ſaued was taken away, Acts 27.20. Now, what ſaith Paul in this extremitie of danger? Now I exhort you to bee of good courage: for there ſhall bee no loſſe of any mans life, ſaue of the Shippe onely, (Verſe 22.) and ſo perſwaded them to take bread. Euen ſo, when our caſe falles out to be this; that either by reaſon of ſinne and of the temptation of Satan: or elſe by reaſon of ſome outward calamities and troubles, we feele our ſoule (as it were) ouerwhelmed with ſorrow, and euen entring into deſtruction, and can neither ſee (as it were) light of ſunne or ſtarres; then wee muſt ſet before vs Gods promiſes, and labour to beleeue the ſame. So Dauid beeing in great affliction, and grieuous temptation, ſaith thus of himſelfe, Pſal. 77.2,7,8,9,10. In the day of my trouble I ſought the Lord, my ſore ranne and ceaſed not in the night, my ſoule refuſed comfort. Yet at the very ſame inſtant he prayed, When his ſpirit was full of anguiſh; and though hee ſeemed (as it were) to deſpaire (when he ſaid, Will the Lord abſent himſelfe for euer? and will he ſhew no more fauour? Is his mercie cleane gone? Doth his promiſe faile for euermore? And hath God forgotten to be mercifull? &c.) Yet he checkes himſelfe, and ſaith, This is my death, and my weakeneſſe. Euen ſo, euery true member of Gods Church, in the extremitie of all temptations, and in the time of deſperation, is bound to beleeue the promiſes of God; and indeede, that is the fitteſt time for faith to ſhewe it ſelfe in: for faith (as we haue before heard) is the ground of things hoped for, and the ſubſiſting of things which are not ſeene.

Now further it it ſaid, Abraham receiued Gods promiſes; that is, he applied them to his owne ſoule and conſcience, and beleeued them, and made them his owne by faith. This is a notable point, and worthy the marking: God made his promiſes to Abraham: now Abraham he doth not onely heare, and learne the promiſes; but applies them to himſelfe, and by faith makes them his owne. And thus ought we to doe with all the gratious promiſes made in Chriſt. But the manner of our daies is farre otherwiſe; for, when the mercifull promiſes of God, are laid downe vnto vs in the miniſterie of the word, we are content to heare, and (it may be) to learne, and knowe the ſame: But where is the man to be found, that will apply them to his owne conſcience, & by faith make them his owne? Men commonly are like vnto way-faring men, or trauellers on the ſea, that paſſe by many goodly faire buildings, rich townes, and Iſlands; which, when they behold, they admire, and wonder at: and ſo goe their way, without making purchaſe of any of them. And thus deale the moſt men with Gods mercifull promiſes. In the miniſterie of the word, God laies open vnto them his rich mercies, and bountifull promiſes in Chriſt; and men approoue thereof, and like them well: whereupon, many doe willingly apply themſelues to know the ſame; but for all this, they will not receiue them by faith, & ſo apply them to their owne ſoules.

But we muſt take a better courſe: and when we heare of the promiſes of God made vnto vs in Chriſt: we muſt not content our ſelues with a bare knowledge of them, but labour to beleeue them, and apply them vnto our ſelues, to our ſoules, and conſciences: & ſo by faith make them our owne. As it is ſaid of Abraham, and in him, of all the faithfull; The bleſſing of Abraham cam on the Gentiles, thorough Ieſus Chriſt, that wee might receiue the promiſe of the ſpirit, through faith: Gal. 3. 14.

Further obſerue, the holy Ghoſt ſetteth down that particular promiſe which God made to Abraham, in his ſonne Iſaac: To whom it was ſaid, in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeede be called, Gen. 21. 12. Rom. 9. 7. In which places it is ſaide, that in Iſaac ſhould his ſeede bee called. The meaning whereof is plaine, and thus much in effect: Iſmael ſhall not be thy ſonne and heire, but Iſaac is the childe which ſhal be thy heire; he it is, in whome I will accompliſh the promiſes of life and ſaluation made to thee.

From the words thus explaned, firſt wee muſt obſerue Pauls collection gathered from Gods dealing with thoſe two perſons (Rom. 9. 7:) namely, that God before all worlds hath choſen ſome men to ſaluation in his eternall counſell, to manifeſt the glorie of his grace; and hath refuſed and reiected others, leauing them vnto themſelues, to ſhew forth his Iuſtice vpon them.

This doctrine is gathered out of this place, after this manner: Such as is Gods practiſe and dealing towards men, in time; ſuch was his eternall counſell and decree (for as God before all time determined to deale with men, ſo in time he dealeth with them.) Now Gods practiſe and dealing with Iſaac and Iſmael is this; Iſmaell is vouchſafed to bee made partaker of temporall bleſſings; but yet he is cut off from the ſpirituall couenant of grace, and Iſaac is the man that muſt receiue the Couenant, and by vertue thereof be made partaker of life euerlaſting. And ſo accordingly it is with others; God hath decreed to chuſe ſome men to ſaluation, and theſe are admitted into the Couenant: others he hath decreed to reiect, and they are cut off from the Couenant, and from life euerlaſting. Theſe two perſons, Iſaac and Iſmaell, are Types of theſe two ſorts of people whome God doth elect, and reiect: Iſaac repreſenteth thoſe that are choſen to ſaluation, who become the true members of Gods Church; and Iſmael is a type of thoſe that are reiected. Now in regard of this different dealing of God with mākinde, chuſing ſome, and refuſing others, wee muſt all put in practiſe Saint Peters leſſon with feare and trembling, beeing very carefull, and giuing all diligence to make our election ſure, 2. Peter 1. 10. for, all be not elected to ſaluation, but ſome are reiected; all bee not Iſaacs, but ſome are Iſmaelites. If all were elected and choſen to ſaluation, then no man needed to care for it; but ſeeing ſome are reiected, and neuer vouchſafed to come within the couenāt indeed, therefore it ſtandeth vs greatly in hand to take the good counſell of the Apoſtle, and to giue all diligence to make our election ſure.

Secondly, whereas it is ſaid, Not in Iſmaell, but in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeede be called: Wee may note the ſtate of Gods Church in this world, in regard of the different ſorts of men that liue therein. For Abrahams family was Gods Church in thoſe daies, and therein were both Iſaac and Iſmaell; though both his children, yet farre differing in eſtate before God. Iſmaell indeede was borne in the Church, and there brought vp, taught, and circumciſed; but yet he was without the Couenant in Gods ſight: Now Iſaac was not onely borne, and brought vp in the Church, and circumciſed, but alſo receiued into the Couenant; and herein differed farre from Iſmael: for, he is the ſonne of Abraham, in whome God will continue the Couenant of grace vnto life euerlaſting, to his poſteritie. And ſo it is with Gods Church at this day: in it there be two ſorts of men; one, which are baptized and brought vp in the Church, heare the word, and receiue the Sacraments; but yet are not ſaued, becauſe they haue not the promiſe of the couenant effectually rooted in their hearts. The other ſort are they, which beeing baptized in the Church, heare the word effectually, and receiue the Lords ſupper worthily, to their ſaluation; becauſe God doth eſtabliſh his Couenant in their hearts. This difference is plaine in Scripture, in the parables of the draw-net, (Matth. 13.) of the Sower, and of the tares: as alſo by Chriſts behauiour at the laſt iudgement, (Matth. 25. 32.) ſeuering the ſheepe from the goates, both which liue together in the Church. And by Saint Paul, who ſpeaking of thoſe which are borne and brought vp in the Church, ſaith; that ſome are children of the fleſh, & ſome children of the promiſe, Rom. 9. 8.

This beeing ſo, that euery one which liues in the Church, is not of the Church; that is, is not a true member of the Church, and the true childe of Abraham: it muſt make vs all careful, to vſe all holy meanes, whereby wee may bee fully aſſured that the Couenant of grace belongs vnto vs; for, it is not enough for vs to dwell in the Church, to heare the word, and to receiue the ſacraments (for ſo did Iſmael, and yet neuer was ſaued) vnleſſe therewithall wee haue the couenant of grace belonging vnto vs, and the aſſurance thereof ſealed in our conſciences, by Gods holy ſpirit.

Againe, conſider who ſpake theſe words; But in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called: Wee ſhall finde in Gen. 21. 12. it was God himſelfe. Let it not (ſaith God vnto Abraham) be grieuous in thy ſight for the childe, and for the bond-woman: in all that Sarah ſhall ſay vnto thee, heare her voice; which was, to caſt out the bond-woman and her ſonne Iſmael. For (ſaith God) in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called.

Here obſerue a notable practiſe of Abraham, as a good direction how wee ought to iudge of all thoſe that liue in the Church, ſubmitting themſelues outwardly to the miniſterie and regiment thereof. Abraham here hath two ſonnes, Iſaac, and Iſmael; hee circumciſeth them both, and inſtructs them both (for hee taught all his houſhold to knowe God, and to feare, and obey him, Gen. 18. 19.) he iudgeth them both to be in one ſtate, in regard of Gods couenant; though they were not: but that difference is made by God. Abraham doth not on his owne head, and by his owne will, put Iſmael out of the Church, which was in his family; but God bids him put him out, and then he put him out, and not before: till ſuch time he kept him in, and held him to be within the couenant, as well as Iſaac was. Euen ſo muſt we deale towards thoſe that liue in the church: ſecret iudgement muſt be left to God; and (till God manifeſt the contrary) in the iudgement of charity, we muſt holde them all elect. This is the practiſe of Saint Paul in all his Epiſtles: writing to the Corinths (1. Cor. 1.2.) he calls them all ſanctified: and to the Galatians (Gal. 1.2.) he calles them all elect: ſpeaking ſo in the iudgement of charitie, although he knew that among them there were many profane and wicked men: and though hee reprooue many great errors and hainous ſinnes among them.

And thus much of the firſt argument whereby Abrahams faith is commended vnto vs; namely, the great impediments which might hinder the ſame.

Now followeth the ſecond Argument or reaſon, whereby his faith is commended; to wit, Abrahams victory ouer theſe impediments, or the meanes whereby hee ouercame them, and induced himſelfe to obey God, in theſe words:

VERSE 19.

For he conſidered, or reaſoned, that God was able to raiſe him vp, euen from the dead.

HEre is the true cauſe that made Abraham to offer his ſonne, and yet beleeue the promiſe, that in him his ſeede ſhould be called. A We may perſwade our ſelues, that Abraham had rather haue died himſelfe (if it might haue ſtood with the will of God) then to haue ſacrificed his ſonne. How then doth he induce himſelfe to offer him vp? Anſw. By this wich is here ſet downe: he reaſoned that God was able to raiſe him vp, euen from the dead.

Here are diuers points to be conſidered of vs: Firſt obſerue, the text ſaith not, that Abraham murmured, or reaſoned againſt God. but reaſoned with himſelfe, that God was able to raiſe vp his ſonne againe: and thereby induced himſelfe to ſacrifice his ſonne vnto God.

Hence we learne, that when God laies vpon vs any hard commandement, we muſt not plead the caſe with god, or murmure againſt him: but B with all quietneſſe and meekeneſſe obey. This is a notable grace of God commended vnto vs by God himſelfe: In reſt and quietneſſe (ſaith God, Iſay 30. 15.) ſhall bee your ſtrength: in quietneſſe and confidence ſhall ye be ſaued. Many thinke it impoſſible, to endure or doe ſome things, which God impoſeth on his children: But our ſpirituall ſtrength ſtands in theſe two, in ſilence, or reſt, and in quietneſſe; by theſe we ſhall be enabled. When Nadab and Abihu, the ſonnes of Aaron, offered ſtrange fire before the Lord, which hee had not commaunded, There went out a fire from the Lord, and deuoured them; ſo they died before the Lord. Lev. 10. 1, 2. Now when Aaron their father asked Moſes a cauſe hereof, Moſes ſaide, It was that which the Lord C ſpake, he would be glorified in all that came neere him; which when Aaron heard, the Text ſaith, He held his peace, and ſaid not a word: ſo Dauid behaued himſelfe in the caſe of diſtreſſe. I helde my peace and ſaide nothing, becauſe thou Lord diddeſt it. And this is a ſpeciall point for vs to learne and practiſe; we muſt not grudge or repine at Gods hard commaundements, nor pleade the caſe with him, but in all quietneſſe and ſilence obey God in all that he ſaith vnto vs.

Againe, whereas it is ſaid, that Abraham reaſoned, that God was able, &c. Here we learn, that it is a neceſſarie thing for a man that beleeues, to haue good knowledge in Gods word: that when a temptation comes againſt his faith, D by knowledge & reaſoning out of Gods word, he may be able to put backe the ſame; for, all our reaſoning in matters of faith, muſt bee grounded on the word: ſo doth Abraham in this place, againſt this ſtrong temptation, reaſon out of Gods word to ſtay himſelfe: ſo that knowledge in the word of God, is neceſſarie to him that beleeues. And therefore that Doctrine of the Church of Rome is erronious, and here condemned, which ſaith; that if a man become deuout, and beleeue as the Church beleeueth (though he know not what the Church beleeueth) yet this faith will ſaue him: but this is a meere deuice of their owne, and hath no ground in the Word of God: for (as we ſee here) knowledge in the word is neceſſary for him that hath

hath true ſauing faith.

But what is Abrahams argument, whereby he mooues himſelfe to obey God? Surely this; He reaſoned that God was able to raiſe vp Iſaac from the dead. One part of his reaſon he takes for graunted, which here he conceales: for this promiſe was made vnto him, In Iſaac ſhall thy ſeede be called. Now this he takes for graunted, that God will neuer change his promiſe. From whence he reaſoneth thus: God is able to raiſe vp Iſaac my ſonne from the dead to life againe; and therfore I wil ſacrifice my ſonne according to his commaundement: for, this I know certainly, that in Iſaac ſhall my ſeede be called, ſeeing God hath promiſed that, as well as he commandeth this other.

In this example, we ſee a meanes ſet downe vnto vs to induce vs to obey God in all hard and difficult caſes impoſed by God: which is a point to be conſidered carefully of euery one of vs. For, ſay that any of vs ſhall be ſo touched in conſcience for our ſinnes, that we euen deſpaire of our owne ſaluation: what muſt we doe in this caſe? we muſt take Abrahams courſe, and diſpute with our ſelues for our ſelues, and we muſt drawe our arguments from the promiſe of God, and from the power of God; wee muſt ioyne the promiſe and power of God together. As for example: thus we muſt ſay; God hath made this promiſe, this I haue heard, and I doe beleeue it, Ioh.3 16. that God ſo loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten ſonne, that whoſoeuer beleeued in him ſhould not periſh, but haue euerlaſting life. This is Gods promiſe, and it ſhall neuer be changed. Now therefore howſoeuer my caſe be heauie and deſolate, yet God is able to comfort me, & to bring my ſoule out of hell, and from this caſe of deſperation; therefore though he kill me, I will truſt in him, and I will vſe all holy meanes whereby I may ouercome this hard and grieuous temptation. So, if it ſhall pleaſe God to call vs to ſuffer any thing for the name of Chriſt, and his holy profeſſion; fleſh & blood we know, is weak, and Nature wil make this obiection, that life is ſweete: what courſe therefore ſhall we take? we muſt doe as Abraham here doth; vnto the certainty of Gods promiſe we muſt adioine his power, & reaſon thus; God hath made this promiſe, that he wil be with them that ſuffer any thing for his owne name ſake, and I know that he is able to deliuer me: and though he will not, yet he can make me able to beare it; therefore I will patiently ſuffer, and abide whatſoeuer his holy hand ſhall lay vpon me. Thirdly, is a man ſo troubled with ſome ſinne, that he cannot get out nor ouercome it? Then alſo let him ſet before him this fact of Abraham; and vnfainedly endeuour to doe hereafter. For that which is paſt, let him labour to beleeue this promiſe of God, At what time ſoeuer a ſinner doth repent him of his ſinne, he will put all his wickedneſſe out of his remembrance. And for the time to come (beeing firſt reſolued, that God can inable him to leaue his A ſinnes) let him ſtriue by good meanes to leaue his ſinne, auoiding the occaſions of it, and praying againſt it; and this will be as a cable-rope to draw him out of the pit of ſinne: This courſe we muſt take, and this doe, in euery hard caſe that ſhall befall vs.

And thus much of the meanes whereby Abraham induced himſelfe to obey God.

The third and laſt reaſon whereby Abrahams faith is commended vnto vs, is the iſſue & euent thereof, in theſe words,

From whence he receiued him alſo after a ſort.

From whence; that is from death: After a ſort, or (as it may be read) in ſome ſhewe. This B is ſaid, becauſe Iſaac in the thought & purpoſe of Abraham, was but a dead man: for, Abraham was fully reſolued with himſelfe vpon Gods commaund, to haue ſacrificed him; yea, hee had gone ſo farre, as to put the ſacrificing knife vnto his ſonnes throate, and had ſlaine him indeed, had not the Angell of God ſtaied his hand: and therefore when the Angell ſaid, Lay not thy hand vpon the childe, neither doe any thing to him, euen then did Abraham in ſome ſhew receiue Iſaac from death.

Here we learne diuers points: 1. That whoſoeuer ſhall reſt on Gods prouidence, & good pleaſure, euen in caſes of extremitie, when hee ſhall be out of all hope with himſelfe; ſhall at C the laſt haue a good iſſue. This wee ſee to bee true by Abrahams example in this place. As we ſaid before, he himſelfe (no doubt) had rather haue died ten thouſand times, then to haue Iſaac ſlaine, in whom the promiſe was made: but yet, beleeuing Gods promiſe, that that ſhould neuer change, he reſts himſefe on Gods good pleaſure and prouidence, and goes on in obedience; and ſo in the end receiued a bleſſed iſſue. This is very cleerely ſet downe vnto vs in the Hiſtory recorded by Moſes. For, when Abraham had gone three daies iourney in the wilderneſſe, and had built an Altar, then Iſaac ſaid vnto Abraham, Gen. 22. 7. Father here is the fire and the wood, but where is the lambe for the burnt offering? Then Abraham ſaid, My ſonne, God will prouide him a lambe for a burnt D offering, Verſ. 8. And thus yeelding himſelfe to Gods good pleaſure and prouidence, he receiued his ſonne againe; as a dead child reſtored to life. So, when wee are in caſes of extremitie, when all goes againſt vs, and when we can ſee no hope of any good iſſue or end, and all good meanes ſeeme to faile vs; if we can then caſt our ſelues on Gods prouidence, and rowle our ſelues vpon God, we ſhall haue comfort in the ende, and a good iſſue out of all. We doe all of vs in word acknowledge Gods prouidence: but when we come to the pinch, that wee fall into caſes of extremitie; thē we vſe vnlawful means, and doe not with Abraham caſt our ſelues vpon God, but ſeeke helpe of the deuill, and wicked men. But all ſuch perſons muſt looke for a curſed iſſue. They threfore, that feare the Lord,

A being put to any plunge, or extremity, muſt caſt themſelues vpon God wholly, and wait for his good time & pleaſure: and then wil the iſſue be both ioyous and comfortable vnto their ſoules.

Here ſome circumſtances of this fact are to be conſidered, out of the larger ſtorie. The firſt is this: What did God vnto Abraham at this time, when he was about to kill his ſonne? An. God now gaue him a commandement, to ſtay his hand, and not to ſlay his ſonne: By vertue whereof, Abraham ſtaies his hand. God before cōmāded him to goe three daies iourney in the wilderneſſe, and there to ſacrifice his ſonne: Hereupon Abraham goes; but now beeing come to the place, hauing bound his ſonne, and being ready to cut his throat; god bids him ſtay his hand: B and then alſo Abrahā obeieth God, & doth not kill his ſonne. Here we ſee, Abraham is at Gods command; and (as we ſay) at his becke: He doth not follow his owne will and pleaſure, but when God calles, he is wonderfull pliable to doe Gods command, whatſoeuer it be, one way or other.

This practiſe of Abraham, muſt be a looking glaſſe for vs, wherein to ſee, what manner of perſons wee ought to bee. Looke what God commands vs to doe, that we muſt doe; and what he forbids vs, that we muſt not doe. But this is a rare thing to be found in theſe daies: our practiſe generally is contrary; for in our liues we followe our owne humors and affections, neuer regarding what God doth either will or nill. C But if we will be Abrahams children, we muſt follow Abrahams practiſe in this place; For, the ſonnes of Abraham will doe the works of Abraham, Ioh. 8. 39. Good ſeruants will come and goe, doe and vndoe, at their Lords pleaſure; Matth. 8. 9. and forget themſelues, to obey their maſters: And ſo muſt it be with vs, if we call God our good Lord and maſter. Luk. 6. 46.

The ſecond circumſtance to bee conſidered, is the time when Abraham receiued his ſonne from death; to wit, at the very ſame time when his knife was at his ſonnes throate, and he himſelfe ready to offer him vp for a ſacrifice vnto the Lord: at that ſame inſtant God ſpake vnto him by his Angel from heauen, and ſaid, Abraham ſtay thy hand, Gen. 22. 10. This circumſtance D is worth the marking: for, God lets him alone three whole daies in great perplextie; and Abraham goes forward, according to Gods cōmand, euen to lay his knife to his ſons throat.

Here then we ſee, what is the Lords dealing with his ſeruants; He lets them alone for a long ſeaſon in temptation and pitifull diſtreſſe: and at the length, when it comes euen to the extremitie, and when the knife is (as it were) at the throat; then he ſhewes himſelfe, and brings comfort vnto them.

The Spouſe (in the Canticles) which is the Church of God, or a true Chriſtian ſoule, whether you will (for it is true both in the generall, and particular) Cant. 3. 2. 3. She ſeekes Chriſt euery where, in the ſtreetes and open places, but ſhe findes him not; then ſhee goes to the watchmen (which are Gods miniſters) and there inquires after him whom her ſoule loued, and they cannot tell her where ſhe might finde him; ſo that now all hope of finding him might ſeeme to be paſt: but when ſhe was a little frō thē, then ſhe found him, & Chriſt comes to her when ſhe was moſt in feare not to haue found him at all.

The people of Iſrael, were many yeares in bondage in Egypt: and when the time came that Moſes was ſent of God to fetch them thence, & to be their guide and deliuerer, when he had brought them out, and carried them to the red ſea, then came Pharaoh with a huge armie after them to deſtroy them, Exod. 14. 25. Before, they had beene in great affliction and bondage: but now they were quite paſt all hope of recouery; for they had before them the red ſea, and on each ſide of them great hills and mountaines, and behinde them the huge hoaſt of Pharaoh; and therefore they cried out vnto Moſes; who then by Gods commandement did diuide the red ſea, and made it drie land, and deliuered them through the midſt of the redde ſea: but as for their enemies, Pharaoh and all his hoſt, the Lord drowned thē in the midſt therof.

So for our ſelues, when God ſhall excerciſe any of vs in caſes of extremitie, we muſt looke to be ſo dealt withall at Gods hand; He will let vs alone for a time, and neuer helpe vs, till the pinch: & therefore, we muſt waite for his good pleaſure with patience; for, this he will doe to try vs to the full, and to make manifeſt the graces of God wrought in vs.

The third circumſtance to be conſidered, is this: In what manner did Abraham receiue his ſonne from the dead. This we may read of, Gen. 22. 13. He muſt take a Ramme that was caught behind him in a buſh, and offer him in ſtead of Iſaac: ſo Iſaac is ſaued, and the Ramme is ſacrificed and ſlaine.

Now whereas Abraham offered Iſaac in ſacrifice to God, and yet Iſaac liueth, and the Ram is ſlaine in his ſteade: Hence ſome gather this vſe, and we may profitably conſider of the ſame; to wit, that the ſacrifices which we offer vnto God, now vnder the Goſpel, muſt be liuing ſacrifices: for, Iſaac he was offered in ſacrifice to God, and yet he liued and died not, but the Ramme is ſlaine for him. So muſt we offer our ſelues in ſacrifice vnto God, not dead in ſinne, but liuing vnto God in righteouſneſſe & true holineſſe. And thus ſhall we offer vp our ſelues liuing ſacrifices vnto God, when as we cōſecrate our ſelues vnto Gods ſeruice, & obey him in our liues & callings. And looke, as vnder the Law the burnt offerings were burnt all to ſmoake & aſhes; ſo muſt we in our liues, wholly and altogether, giue our ſelues vnto God, & renouncing our ſelues, be nothing to the world, but wholly dedicated to God. Neither muſt we come vnto him in our ſinnes: for ſinne makes our ſacrifice dead, lame, halt, and blinde, which God doth abhor; but we muſt bring our ſelues liuing ſacrifices vnto God(as Paul ſaith,Rom. 12.1.) I beſeech you brethren, by the mercies of God, that you giue vp your bodies a liuing ſacrifice, holy and acceptable vnto God, which is your reaſonable ſeruing of God.

Hence alſo ſome gather, that this ſacrificing of Iſaac was a ſigne and type of Chriſts ſacrifice vpon the croſſe. For,as Iſaac was ſacrificed and liued, ſo did Chriſt; though he died, yet roſe againe, and now liueth for euer: but becauſe it hath no ground in this place, though it be true which is ſaid of both, therefore I will not ſtand to vrge the ſame.

And thus much of this third reaſon, whereby Abrahams faith is commended, with the circumſtances thereof: and conſequently, of all the examples of holy Abrahams faith.

Iſaacs Faith.

By faith Iſaac bleſſed Iaacob & Eſau concerning things to come.

IN the three former verſes, the holy Ghoſt hath particularly commended the faith of Abraham: Now in this verſe, he proceedes to ſet downe vnto vs the faith of Iſaac particularly alſo. Wherein we are to marke theſe foure points: Firſt, a bleſſing wherewith Iſaac bleſſed Iaacob and Eſau: Secondly the cauſe of this bleſſing, that is, his faith: Thirdly, the parties bleſſed, which are, Iacob and Eſau: Fourthly the nature and matter of this bleſſing in the ende of the verſe; Concerning things to come. Of theſe in order.

Firſt, for the bleſſing. That we may knowe the nature and quality of it, we muſt ſearch out the kinds of bleſſings how many they be.

In Gods word we finde three kinds of bleſſings; 1. whereby God bleſſeth man. Now, God bleſſeth man, by giuing vnto him gifts and benefits either temporall or ſpirituall: and ſo he bleſſed all his creatures in the beginning, but eſpecially man.

The 2. kinde of bleſſing, is that, whereby man bleſſeth God: and this, man doth by prayſing God, and giuing thankes vnto him, who is the Author of all bleſſings. So Paul ſaith, Bleſſed be God euen the Father of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, which hath bleſſed vs with all ſpirituall bleſſings in heauenly things in Chriſt: Eph. 1. 3. beginning his epiſtle, with this kind of bleſſing, that is, by praiſing God. And ſo Zacharie after the birth of his ſonne, and the receiuing of his ſight, he ſings vnto god this ſong of praiſe, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, Luk. 1. 68. that is, praiſe and thankſgiuing be vnto the Lord, &c.

The third kind of bleſſing, is that, wherby one man doth bleſſe another: & vnder this kind we muſt vnderſtand Iſaacs bleſſing in this place.

Now further, this kinde of bleſſing, whereby one man bleſſeth another, is either priuate or publike. A priuate bleſſing is that, whereby one priuate man whatſoeuer he be in his place, praies to God for a bleſſing vpon another. And this is common to all men: for euery man may bleſſe another, that is, pray to God for a bleſſing vpon another; but eſpecially it belongeth to Parents thus to bleſſe their children by praying to God for a bleſſing vpō them. And therefore the Cōmandement goes thus, Honour thy father and thy mother, that they may prolong thy dayes in the Land which the Lord thy God giueth thee, Exod, 20. 12. Now Parents prolong their childrens dayes by bleſſing them; that is, by teaching and inſtructing them in religion, and by praying vnto God for a bleſſing vpon them, that he would bleſſe them. Secōdly, there is a publike kinde of bleſſing, which is done by the miniſter of God, in the name of God. And after this ſort Melchiſedech bleſſed Abraham, as he returned from the ſlaughter of the Kings, Heb. 7. 1. and without all contradiction, (ſaith the Author of this Epiſtle) the leſſe is bleſſed of the greater (v.7.) Further, theſe publike kind of bleſſings are of two ſorts; either ordinary or extraordinary. An ordinary kinde of publike bleſſing is that, which is pronounced, and vttered out of Gods word by an ordinary miniſter, vpō the people. Example of this we haue in the ordinarie Prieſts in the olde Teſtament; whoſe duty was in the ſeruice of God to bleſſe the people, before their departing. And the forme of bleſſing which they ſhould vſe, is preſcribed vnto them by Moſes, after this manner from the Lord: Thus ſhal ye bleſſe the children of Iſraell, and ſay vnto them: The Lord bleſſe thee, and keepe thee, the Lord make his face to ſhine vpon thee, and be mercifull vnto thee: The Lord lift vp his countenance vpon thee, & giue thee peace. Where we ſee the manner of the Prieſt was to bleſſe the people, not in his owne name, but in the name of God, ſtreching out his hand ouer the heads of the people.

Num. 6. 23.

This kinde of bleſſing was then ordinarie; and yet ſome way figuratiue; ſignifying vnto them the bleſſings which Chriſt Ieſus the Mediator, God and man, ſhould not onely pronounce, but euen giue vnto the Church in the newe Teſtament: which our Sauiour accordingly performed to his diſciples at his Aſcention. For the Story ſaith; When he was riſen againe, he led them to Bethania (where he aſcended) and lift vp his hands and bleſſed them. And S. Paul declareth this bleſſing of Chriſt more at large, ſaying; Epheſ. 4. 8. 11. 12. Chriſt aſcended on high, and led captiuity captiue, and gaue gifts vnto men: ſome to be Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, & ſome Euangeliſts, and ſome Paſtors and teachers; for the gathering together of the Saints, for the work of the miniſtery, and for the edification of the bodie of Chriſt. Where we ſee, that our Sauiour Chriſt did not onely pronounce a bleſſing vpon his Church, but was alſo the author thereof from God his father. And as the Prieſts in the olde teſtament had an ordinary kinde of bleſſing the people: ſo the miniſters of God in the new Teſtament, they haue the ſame in ſubſtance; for the miniſters may bleſſe their people two waies: Firſt, by praying vnto God for them: Secondly, by pronouncing a bleſſing vpon them, according to Gods holy word. A forme of this bleſſing we haue from the Apoſtle Saint Paul, who bleſſed the Corinthians after this ſort; The grace of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, and the loue of God, and the communion (or fellowſhip) of the holy Ghoſt be with you all.

Prieſts

2.Cor.13.13.

Secondly, an extraordinarie kinde of bleſſing is, whē an extraordinary Prophet, or ſeruant of God, doth ſet downe and pronounce a bleſſing vnto any, and foretelleth their eſtate from God. Thus did Noah bleſſe his two ſonnes, Shem and Iaphet, (Gen.9.25.26.27.) and pronounced a curſe vpon wicked Canaan. This he did, not as an ordinary father, but as an extraordinary Prophet; not only praying for a bleſſing vpō his two ſonnes, but alſo foretelling them what ſhould be their condition or eſtate afterward. So in this place, whereas Iſaac bleſſeth Iaakob and Eſau, it is no priuate bleſſing, but a publike; and yet indeede, not an ordinarie publike bleſſing, but extraordinarie, by telling vnto Iaacob and Eſau before hand, what ſhould be their particular eſtates and conditions, and what bleſſings they ſhould haue from God, both in this life, and in the life to come. For we muſt not here conceiue of Iſaac, as an ordinary father, but as a holy Patriarch and Prophet of the Lord, and an extraordinary man; foreſeeing, and foretelling by the ſpirit of prophecie, the particular eſtate of his two ſonnes; and alſo what particular bleſſings they and their poſteritie ſhould receiue from God.

The meaning then of theſe words, Iſaac bleſſed Iaacob and Eſau, is this, that Iſaac beeing a Prophet, an extraordinary man, and a famous Patriarch, did by the ſpirit of Prophecie foreſee, and ſet downe, and tell before hand, what ſhould be the particular eſtate of his two ſonnes, Iaacob and Eſau: and as hee did foretell it, ſo likewiſe he praied vnto God that the ſame might come to paſſe; as it did afterward. And thus much for the meaning.

Now, though this were an extraordinary kinde of bleſſing, which Iſaac vſed; yet from hence, we may all of vs learne an ordinary duty: for, looke as Iſaac bleſſed his two ſonnes, ſo we by his example muſt learne to abſtaine from all wicked ſpeeches; as curſing and banning, and exerciſe our tongues in bleſſing, not making them the inſtruments of ſinne, to curſe, and reuile as many doe: for vengeance is mine (ſaith the Lord). He muſt curſe, that hath abſolute power and authoritie to inflict the ſame, when he will. But we are not abſolute Lords ouer any man, nor any creature; and therefore we muſt remember S. Peters leſſon, 1.Pet.3.9. We muſt not render euill for euill, nor rebuke for rebuke, But contrariwiſe bleſſe: & he rendreth a reaſon, Knowing that we are thereunto called, to be heires of bleſſing. Farre be it from vs therfore, to open our mouthes to curſe either men or any of Gods creatures: & indeed, vile & abominable is the practiſe of many, who exerciſe their tōgues in curſing and banning, not onely men, but alſo other creatures of God. But let ſuch as feare God, both learne and practiſe the contrarie.

The ſecond point to be conſidered, is the cauſe of this bleſſing; to wit, Iſaacs faith: By faith Iſaac bleſſed Iaacob and Eſau.

Here firſt we are to conſider, how Iſaacs faith bleſſed Iaacob and Eſau? ſurely thus: He did moſt notably gather together all the promiſes of God made to him, and to his two children, which were ſpecially three. Firſt, I will be thy God, and the God of thy ſeede. 2. God had promiſed, that he and his ſeede ſhould poſſeſſe the Land of Canaan: 3. That his two children ſhould be two mightie Nations, and that the elder ſhould ſerue the yonger.

Now Iſaac doth not conſider theſe bleſſings a-part one from another, but hath them all in memory; and on them all (receiuing them by a liuely faith) he builds his bleſſings: for, by faith in theſe promiſes, he did certainely fore-ſee what ſhould be the future eſtate of his two ſonnes, and accordingly doth he pronoūce particular bleſſings vpon them both.

But it may be thought, that Iſaac did not bleſſe his ſonnes by faith; for if we reade the Hiſtorie in Geneſis, we ſhall ſee, that he bleſſed them by errour, and was deceiued therein: for, he was purpoſed to haue bleſſed Eſau, onely with the ſpeciall bleſſing, when as he gaue the ſame to Iaacob vnwittingly; how then could he doe this by faith? For the anſwering of this, we muſt conſider two things: Firſt, it is true indeede, that Iſaac was blinded ouermuch with a fond affection, toward Eſau, and loued him otherwiſe then he ought, and therefore was purpoſed to haue bleſſed Eſau with the ſpeciall bleſſing. This was a fault in Iſaac: but yet it takes not away Iſacs faith, nor makes it to be no faith: But it ſhews that Iſaacs faith was weake, and ioyned with ſome infirmitie in forgetting Gods particular promiſes. Secondly, howſoeuer at the firſt Iſaac erred in his purpoſe for the bleſſing of his chidren, yet afterward he corrects himſelfe for it. For as we may read in the Hiſtorie, after he had indeede bleſſed Iaacob, ſuppoſing it had beene Eſau, when Eſau came for his bleſſing with his veniſon, the Text ſaith, That Iſaac was ſtricken with a meruailous great feare, and ſaid, I haue bleſſed him, and therefore he ſhall be bleſſed; correcting his fault in his former purpoſe: yea, and though Eſau ſought it with teares, yet he could not mooue Iſaac to repent himſelfe of bleſſing Iaacob, Heb.12.17. wherefore it is vndoubtedly true, that he gaue theſe bleſſings vnto his children by faith.

Now from this that Iſaac bleſſed his children by faith, we learne many inſtructions. The firſt concerneth Parents; that, howſoeuer they cannot as Iſaac did, like Prophets and Patriarchs pronounce bleſſings vpon their children, and foretell what ſhall be their particular eſtae afterward: yet if Parents would as farre as they may, follow the practiſe of Iſaac, they ſhould bring great cõfort & cõſolation vnto their own ſoules, both in this life and in the life to come.

Iſaac ſet before his eies all the promiſes that God had made both concerning him and his ſonnes, and by faith in theſe promiſes is mooued to bleſſe his children: ſo if Parents would haue true comfort in their children, they muſt ſearch through the whole booke of God, and ſee what promiſes God hath made vnto the godly and to their ſeede; and withall, they muſt by faith apply vnto their owne ſoules, all thoſe gracious promiſes, endeauouring alſo to make their children to knowe the ſame, and to walke worthie thereof: & then as their obedience ſhal increaſe, ſo will their ioy increaſe, not onely in God, but mutually one in another. This wil ſtay their hearts in al aſſaults, yea euẽ in death it ſelf.

Secondly, whereas Iſaac bleſſed his children by faith: here we may take iuſt occaſion to ſpeake of ſuch wicked perſons as are commonly called bleſſers; who are too much eſteemed of, by many at this day, and their wicked practiſes counted bleſſings, and good meanes of helpe: when as indeede they are moſt vile and wretched creatures. This may be thought a hard cenſure, becauſe they are taken for cunning men and women, and for good people following Iſaacs example in bleſſing mens children and cattell: they are thought to doe no harme at all, but much good by helping ſtrange miſchances that befall men in their bodies, children, or goods. Thus would ſome excuſe and defend theſe wizzards and bleſſers, who are the wretched limbs of the deuill: but let vs know, that if they will bleſſe aright, it muſt be by faith. Now, what faith haue they? hath God made any promiſe to them, that by their meanes he will helpe thoſe that come to ſeeke helpe at them for their children and cattell? nay verily, there is no ſuch matter: God neuer made promiſe to any ſuch; nay, hee hath flatly forbidden, not onely ſuch practiſes as they vſe, but alſo for men to ſeek to any ſuch perſons: and therefore they cannot bleſſe mens children and cattell by faith. But they ſay they doe theſe things by faith: yet it is by faith in the deuill, and in his promiſes. For this is certaine, that as God hath his Lawes and Sacraments for thoſe that enter couenant with him: ſo on the contrary, the deuill hath words, ſpells, and charms, as his Lawes and rites, wherein he excerciſeth his ſlaues: and by a Satanicall faith in the deuils word and promiſe, doe theſe Wizzards and wiſe-women bleſſe mens goods and children. This is true by the common confeſſion of many of them, to omit all other proofe. And therefore we muſt hold thẽ for the limbs of the deuill, and his wicked iuſtruments to drawe men from God; and ſo in no caſe goe to them for helpe; for in ſo doing, we forſake the liuing Lord and his helpe, and ſeeke for helpe at the deuill; then which what can be more odious? But ſay we receiue ſome outward helpe by their meanes: yet marke the iſſue; the Lord hath ſaid, Leuit. 20.6. If any turne after ſuch as worke with ſpirits, and after ſouthſayers to goe a whoring after them, then will I ſet my face againſt that perſon, and will cut him off from among his people. Therefore vnleſſe we feare not the curſe of God, we muſt be warned hereby, not to ſeeke for helpe at their hands. For they are graceleſſe people; who haue no feare of God before their eyes: but they ſet themſelues againſt God and his word. And indeede theſe common bleſſers which ſeeme to doe no hurt, but to bleſſe mens children & cattell, are more dangerous then notorious Witches, who can onely hurt mens bodies and goods, when God permits; whereas theſe bleſſers enſnare the ſoule, & draw whole Townes and Countries to the approbatiõ & partaking of their wickednes.

Iſa.8.19,20.

The third point to be conſidered is, the parties bleſſed, that is, Iacob and Eſau. Here marke firſt the order which the holy Ghoſt vſeth: hee ſetteth Iacob in the firſt place, and yet Eſau was the elder brother: what is the reaſon of this? Anſ. We muſt know, that the Scripture vſeth a three-fold order in the naming of perſons.

1. The order of Nature: as when the firſt borne is put firſt. And thus Dauids ſonnes are numbred according to their age; firſt, Ammon, then Daniel, the third Abſolon, &c.

1.Chron.3.1,2,3.

2. The order of dignity, when as thoſe are put in the firſt place, not which are the eldeſt, but which are beſt and moſt in Gods fauour. This order the holy Ghoſt vſeth in naming Noahs ſonns, Gen. 5.31. ſaying, Noah begat Shem, Ham, and Iaphet; when as Iaphet was the eldeſt, & by order of nature, ſhould haue bin put firſt: yet with Shem god continuedthe couenãt.

3. The order of Hiſtory, when as one that is firſt or chiefe in dignitie, is placed laſt, becauſe his Hiſtory begins in the laſt place. So our Sauiour Chriſt is mentioned laſt in the Genealogie made by S. Matthew, becauſe his Hiſtory began in the laſt place, though in dignity he were firſt and principall. To apply this to our purpoſe: The order which the holy Ghoſt here vſeth, is not the order of hiſtory, nor of Nature, but of dignity; becauſe Iacob was chiefe in the fauour of God, therefore the holy Ghoſt putteth him in the firſt place.

Here then we ſee in this order of dignitie, that the firſt bleſſing (of life euerlaſting) belongs to Iacob: Eſau muſt haue his bleſſing, but in the ſecond place.

Here obſerue theſe two things: Firſt, Iacob is receiued into Gods couenant, and Eſau put by. Iacob getts the principall bleſſing, and Eſau looſeth it: but what? are theſe things ſo for Iacobs deſert, or for the default of Eſau? Nay verily: the good pleaſure of God is the chiefe cauſe heereof: for touching the bleſſing;

A If we read the Hiſtorie, we ſhall ſee, that Eſau at his Fathers commandement, went and hunted, and tooke paines, and got his Father veniſon, and told him nothing but truth. But Iacob neuer went to hunt, but gets a Kid dreſſed, and comes to his Father with it, and, while he talkes with his Father doth foully gloſe and lie: ſo that in all reaſon it might ſeeme, that Eſau deſerued the better bleſſing: yet God will haue it otherwiſe, and the principall bleſſing belongs to Iaacob. Wherein we may note, that Gods ſpeciall loue to a man, whereby he receiues him into his couenant, is not grounded on mans behauiour, but on his owne good will and pleaſure.

B Secondly, in that Iaacob here had the principall bleſſing: we learne that the counſell of God doth ouerrule the will of man. For, Father Iſaac had purpoſed to haue bleſſed Eſau with the chiefeſt bleſſing: but yet Gods counſell was contrary, and the ſame ouerrules Iſaacs will. For, though Iſaac had cauſe to ſuſpect that it was not Eſau, both becauſe he came ſo ſoone, as alſo for that the voice was apparant not to be Eſaus, but Iacobs voice: yet Gods counſell ouer-ruled his will: and when he came to handle his ſonnes hands, he could not diſcerne betweene a Kiddes ſkinne, and the ſkinne of a man: whats the cauſe hereof? Surely it was Gods will and counſell, that Iaacob ſhould haue the chiefeſt bleſſing: and therefore hee o- C uer-rules Iſaacs will, and blindes his ſenſes, and makes him to bleſſe Iacob with the chiefeſt bleſſing.

The conſideration hereof is profitable vnto vs: for it is a receiued opinion with many at this day, that God did purpoſe to ſaue all men. Now when queſtion is made, Why then are not all men ſaued? They anſwer, becauſe men will not, though God will. But this opinion is erroneous: for, it makes mans will to ouer-rule Gods counſell: as if they ſhould ſay, God willeth it not, becauſe men will it not: or elſe (which is worſe) God willeth it, but it commeth not to paſſe, becauſe man will not doe it. But Gods will and counſell is the higheſt and chiefeſt cauſe of all: and looke whatſoeuer hee willeth that bringeth he to paſſe: and becauſe D all men are not ſaued, therefore we may ſafely thinke, and ſay, that God did neuer decree to ſaue all men.

Now further, more particularly of Iaacobs bleſſing: firſt, it may be asked, How could Iacob be bleſſed, ſeeing he came diſſemblingly and lying to his father.

Anſw. We muſt knowe, that howſoeuer Iaacob ſought the bleſſing by fraude, yet hee might be bleſſed: for he failed not, neither did amiſſe in ſeeking for the bleſſing, but onely in the manner of ſeeking it: it was his duty to ſeeke it, though not after that manner which he did: he ſhould rather haue ſtaied that leiſure and time, wherein God had cauſed Iſaac to bleſſe him, without his ſinne in ſeeking it.

Secondly, conſider the manner how Iacob receiues his fathers bleſſing; namely, in his elder brother Eſaus garment.

Here we may ſee a notable reſemblance of Gods manner of bleſſing vs: When we looke for a bleſſing at Gods hand, we muſt not come in our owne garments, in the rotten ragges of our owne righteouſneſſe; but we muſt put on Chriſts garment, the long whit robe of his righteouſneſſe. And ſo coumming vnto God, as Iſaac ſaid of the ſauour of Eſaus garments, which Iaoob had put on, (Gen. 27. 27. 28.) Behold, the ſmell of my ſonne is as the ſmell of a field; God giue thee therefore of the dewe of heauen, and the fatneſſe of the earth, and plenty of wheate and wine: So will God ſay vnto vs, that the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt, which we haue put on by faith, is a ſweet ſmelling ſauour in his noſthrils, Eph. 5. 2. Now ſeeing all the bleſſings we enioy, come to vs in Chriſt, and our acceptance with God, is in his righteouſneſſe; wee therefore muſt labour to put on Chriſt euery day, by becoming new creatures: we muſt ſeeke to reſemble him in knowledge, righteouſneſſe, and holineſſe: ſo ſhall our aſſurance of Gods bleſſings increaſe vpon vs more and more.

Laſtly, marke that howſoeuer Iaacob was bleſſed otherwiſe then Iſaac had purpoſed; yet, after the bleſſing is pronounced, it muſt needs ſtand: for, ſo when Eſau came, Iſaac ſaid vnto him, I haue bleſſed Iaacob; therefore he ſhall be bleſſed: Eph. 27. 33. Euen ſo, the Miniſters of Gods word, in the aſſembly of the Church, who haue power to pronounce Gods bleſſing vpon the people; howſoeuer they be but weake men, and may be deceiued, beeing ſubiect to error, as other men are: yet when they pronounce Gods bleſſing vpon their congregation in the miniſterie of the word; if they doe it in ſinceritie of heart, and vprightneſſe of conſcience, that bleſſing ſhall ſtand. And ſo on the contrary, looke whom they curſe, for iuſt cauſe out of Gods word; their curſe ſhall ſtand.

Further, as Iſaac bleſſed, but knewe not whom; ſo the Miniſters of God in the diſpenſation of the word, they muſt bleſſe Gods people, though they knowe not who they are particularly, that doe receiue it.

Thus much of Iſaacs bleſſing Iacob. Now I come to his bleſſing of Eſau: for he alſo was bleſſed, as the Text ſaith; yet in the ſecond place though he were the elder brother. Queſt. How could Eſau be bleſſed at all, ſeeing Iſaac had but one bleſſing? Anſw. Eſau was onely bleſſed with temporall bleſſings, and not with ſpirituall. Obiect. But ſome will ſay, Eſau was a bad man, and wicked; now it is ſaide, that to the impure all things are impure: how then could the beſtowing of temporall things be bleſſings to him? Anſ. Temporall things beſtowed on the wicked are bleſſings, and no bleſſings: they are bleſſings in regard of God that giues them; but they are no bleſſings, in regard of men that receiue them and vſe them amiſſe.

Queſt, How came it to paſſe, that Eſau beeing the elder brother, looſeth his birth-right, and bleſſing both; how came it to be Iaacobs?

Anſ. The cauſe was his profaneneſſe, as we may ſee and read in the next chapter; where it is ſaid, (Heb. 12. 16.) that he ſolde his birth-right for a portion of meate: euen for a meſſe of redde broth; and beeing ſo profane, as to contemne ſo high an honour, he muſt be content to haue his bleſſing in the ſecond place. And hence we may obſerue a good inſtruction.

There is many a young man in theſe our dayes, baptized as Eſau was circumciſed, and liuing in the Church, as he did in Iſaacs houſe; who, during the prime of his age, is giuen to nothing but to his pleaſure; that is as good to him as Iaacobs redde broth was to Eſau: take this pleaſure from him, and take away his life: herein is all his ioy, & he delighteth in nothing ſo much, as to ſpend his time in hunting, hawking, dicing, gaming, wantonneſſe, and drinking. Now know for certaine, this is a right Eſau; and yet many ſuch haue we among vs, who thinke of themſelues, that they are the iolly fellowes, and they onely carrie the braue mind: but as for Iaacob, & ſuch as make conſcience of their waies and words; thoſe alas are ſilly fellowes. Now, what is to be ſaid or thought of theſe? Surely this, if they doe not (and that in time) looke to their eſtates, and to themſelues, it will coſt them their liues; euen the life of their ſoules. Eſau loſt his birth-right by his profaneneſſe: and ſo will theſe men doe if they continue in this eſtate; they will blot their names out of the booke of life, and roote themſelues quite out of the kingdome of heauen. Therefore let all yong men whatſoeuer they be, high or lowe, take heede how they liue in ſinne, and goe on in their wickedneſſe; for if they take Eſaus courſe, and continue in profaneneſſe, doubtleſſe they will haue Eſaus ende. How wonderfully doth Satan bewitch them, that while they goe on in ſinne, they ſhould thinke ſo highly of themſelues, and ſo baſely of thoſe that make conſcience of their waies? Wherefore in the feare of God let ſuch betime redreſſe their waies and courſes; leaſt when Gods curſe is vpon them, they crie too late for mercie. And thus much of the parties bleſſed.

The fourth point to be conſidered, is the nature or matter of this bleſſing, in the ende of the verſe;

Concerning things to come.

The meaning of theſe words is this: That olde Iſaac their father did pronounce bleſſings vpon his ſonnes, not onely for the time preſent, but for the time to come; in bleſſings temporall and ſpirituall, (as we may read Gen. 27. 28. 39.) where he giueth to them both the fatneſſe of the Land, and plentie of wheat and wine: and eſpecially, to Iaacob, that he ſhould be Lord ouer his brethren. But ſome will ſay, it may ſeeme to prooue otherwiſe; for while Iaacob liued, he was alwaies humble and ſubiect to Eſau: and when he came to his owne country from among the Aramites, as he met with Eſau, he ſent preſents to him: and when he ſawe him, he went before, and bowed himſelfe to the ground 7. times, vntill he came neere to his brother. Anſw. That prophecie of Iaacob and Eſau, that the elder ſhould ſerue the yonger, muſt not be reſtrained to the perſons of Iaacob and Eſau, but referred to their poſterity; eſpecially in the dayes of Dauid and Salomon: for then were the Edomites who came of Eſau, in ſubiection to the Iſraelites, the poſterite of olde Iſrael. Whereupon, Dauid ſpeaking as a King, ſaith, Pſal. 60. 8. Moab ſhall be my waſh-pot, ouer Edom will I caſt my ſhooe: meaning thereby, that he would bring the poſteritie of Eſau into a baſe and low eſtate of ſubiection vnto him; according as we may ſee verified, 2. Sam. 8. 14.

But ſome will ſay, that Iſaac when he bleſſed Eſau pronoũced that he ſhould haue a fertile ſoile, and the fatneſſe of the earth ſhould be his dwelling place (Gen. 27. 39.) whereas in Malachie the Lord ſaith (Mal. 1. 3.) he hated Eſau. And a token thereof was this; that he had made his mountaines waſte, and his heritage a wilderneſſe for dragons: meaning, that he ſhould dwell in a barren Land. How can theſe two agree? Anſw. Firſt, we may ſay thus: That the land of Edom was a fertile land; but yet in reſpect of the Land of Canaan, but a barren and waſte Land. Secondly, Iſaac ſpeaks here of Idumea, as it was in his time; not as it was afterward: for it might be fertile in Iſaacs time, and yet after become barren: for God will curſe a Land by turning fruitefullneſſe into barrenneſſe, for the wickedneſſe of them that dwell therein, Pſal. 107. 34.

And thus much for the example of Iſaacs faith. Now followe the examples of the faith of Iacob.

Iacobs Faith.

By faith Iacob when hee was dying, bleſſed both the ſons of Ioſeph, and worſhipped on the ende of his ſtaffe.

IN theſe words the holy Ghoſt layes down the notable and worthie example of Iacobs faith: which is here commended by two actions; Firſt, his bleſſing of the two ſonnes of Ioſeph: Secondly, his adoring or worſhipping of God. In the firſt action conſider theſe points:

1. The bleſſing it ſelfe: 2. The circumſtances belonging to the ſame; As 1. the time when Iacob bleſſed them, that is, when he was dying: ſecondly, by what meanes did he bleſſe them, namely, by faith, thirdly, the parties bleſſed: Ephraim and Manaſſes. Of theſe in order.

Firſt, for the bleſſing: Of this kind of bleſſing, wee entreated in the former verſe, in the example of Iſaacs faith; and therefore need not now repeate the ſame. Onely this we muſt remember, that this bleſſing of Iacob is not the common or ordinarie bleſſing of a father, but the extraordinarie bleſſing of an holy Patriarch and Prophet of God. The bleſſing it ſelfe ſtands in three things: Iacob makes the ſonns of Ioſeph his own ſonnes, adoping them and taking them into his family. And this is the meaning of thoſe words in Geneſis, where Iacob ſaith as he is bleſſing them, Let my name bee named vpon them, and the name of my Fathers, Abraham & Iſaac; Gen. 48. 16. that is, they ſhal be receiued into my family, and be my children, called after my name.

2. He giues them two portions in the Land of Canaan: for Iacob was made an inſtrument of God, by way of prophecie to diſtinguiſh and diuide the Land of Canaan among his children.

3. He doth as a Prophet, by the ſpirit of prophecie, foretell the condition and eſtate of Ephraim and Manaſſes in their poſterity; to wit, that they ſhould be great Nations, and of them ſhould come two great people: in theſe three things doth Iacobs bleſſing conſiſt.

Out of this bleſſing of Iacob, we learne two things: Firſt, that God alloweth this liberty to a maſter of a family, to adopt and chuſe for the vpholding of his houſe a child or children, in the want of iſſue from his owne bodie. For here old Iacob for the continuance of his poſterity, and the enlarging of the Church of God, adopteth his ſonnes ſonnes into his owne family, to be his owne ſonnes: And this he doth by faith. And therefore a Lord and Maſter in his family may doe the like: but yet with this caueat; he muſt euer take heede that in this adopting he doe not vniuſtly hinder his owne iſſue or kindred.

Gen. 18. 17, 18, 19.

Againe, whereas Iacob bleſſeth theſe two ſonnes of Ioſeph, by fore-telling the particular eſtate of their poſterity, for their portion in the Land of Canaan; here we learne, that in many things God doth vouchſafe to reueale his will and counſell in a ſpeciall manner vnto them that be his children: As, in this place he reuealeth vnto Iacob the particular eſtate of the two ſonnes of Ioſeph. In like manner, when God was to deſtroy the Sodomites; Shall I hide (ſaith the Lord) from Abraham that thing which I doe, ſeeing that Abraham ſhall bee indeede a mighty Nation? for I know him that he will commaund his ſonnes and his houſhold after him, that they keepe the way of the Lord. And the Prophet Amos ſaith; (c. 3. 7.) Surely the Lord will doe nothing, but he reuealeth his ſecrets to his ſeruants the Prophets. So ſaith our Sauiour Chriſt to his Diſciples, Ye are my friends: and hee giueth a reaſon, becauſe (ſaith he) I haue reuealed vnto you all that I haue heard of my Father, Ioh. 15. 15. So that thoſe which are (in Chriſt) the friends of God, they ſhall in a particular and ſpeciall manner knowe thoſe things which God wil not reueale vnto others. And looke as this is here verified to Iacob in a ſpeciall manner, ſo it is true generally in all Gods ſeruants and children; he reuealeth ſome particular things vnto them, more then he doth vnto others. For, beſides that generall knowledge which they haue in his word, he reueales particularly vnto them the knowledge of their owne election, of their iuſtification, ſanctification, and glorification to come: though not by way of prophecie, yet by the working of his ſpirit in the miniſterie and meditation of his word. And thus much of the bleſſing. Now followe the Circumſtances.

The 1. Circumſtance to bee conſidered, is the time when Iacob bleſſed the two ſonnes of Ioſeph; noted in theſe words, when he was dying: that is, beeing ready to die, not in the act of dying.

In this circumſtance we may learn two eſpeciall duties: one for maſters of families; the other for the Miniſters of Gods word; for, here Iacob beares the perſon not onely of a Father, but of a Prophet. Firſt, Maſters of families are here taught to ſet in order their houſes and families whereof they haue charge, before they die: for, Iacob hauing a great charge, and many children, cals for the ſonnes of Ioſeph, Ephraim, and Manaſſes, before his death, and makes thē his owne, to perfect his family.

Queſt. How (will ſome aske) muſt a man ſet his houſe in order when he dies. Anſwer. By doing two things after Iacobs example: for, firſt, he diſpoſeth of his temporall things, and diſtributeth his temporall inheritance in the Land of Canaan. Secondly, hee giues them charge of ſome duties concerning himſelfe and ſome others, eſpecially concerning religion and Gods worſhip, and then he dies: and it is ſaid, When he had made an end of giuing charge vnto his ſonnes, he plucked vp his feete into his bead, and gaue vp the ghoſt, Gen. 49. 33. So likewiſe Maſters of families, they muſt ſet their houſes in order by the like two duties: 1. By a due diſpoſing of their temporall goods and poſſeſſions: and 2. by giuing exhortation and charge vnto their children and family, concerning the worſhip of God, and the practiſe of true Religion. This (as we may alſo reade, 1. Kings 2.) was the practiſe of good King Dauid: when he was about to die, and as hee ſaith, to goe the way of all fleſh, he calls for Salomon his ſonne, and makes him King in his ſtead, and giues him a moſt notable charge concerning Gods worſhip, Verſe 3, reade the place, it is worth the marking. So the Prophet Iſaiah, when he comes to Hezekiah from the Lord, he aimes at theſe two: and bids him ſet his houſe in order, for hee muſt die and not liue: Iſay 38. 1. and ſo ought euery Maſter of a family, after their example, both learne & practiſe theſe two duties.

Secondly, Gods Miniſters muſt hence learne their dutie: for, Iacob was a notable Miniſter and Prophet in Gods Church, which was then in his family. Iacob hee bleſſeth the ſonnes of Ioſeph, that hee might receiue them into his family, and into the couenant; that ſo he might continue and preſerue the Church of God after his death: for, looke as Iſaac his father did call him into the couenant, and bleſſed him; ſo dealeth he with the two ſonnes of Ioſeph. And accordingly euery Miniſter of God, in his place, ought to haue ſpeciall care to conuay and deriue true religion, and the Goſpel of Chriſt from hand to hand, ſo much as they can while they liue; that ſo after their death it may bee publiſhed and maintained. In the new Teſtament we haue a worthy commaundement for this purpoſe; S. Paul hauing inſtructed and taught Timothy in the wayes of godlines and religion, chargeth him, that what things he had heard and learned of him, the ſame he ſhould deliuer to faithfull men, which ſhould bee able to teach other alſo: that ſo Gods Goſpel and religion going on from hand to hand, and from perſon to perſon, might increaſe from time to time. S. Peters practiſe herein, was notable, 2. Pet. 1. 15. I will endeauour therefore alwaies, that ye may be able to haue remembrance of the things of God after my departure: hauing profeſſed before, that while he liued he would ſtirre them vp by putting them in remembrance, v. 13. And in like ſort, all Gods faithfull miniſters muſt doe their whole endeauour before they die, that the Goſpel may bee preached when they are gone.

2. Circumſtance. By what meanes did Iacob bleſſe the two ſonnes of Ioſeph? Anſ. By faith in the promiſes of God; ſo the text ſaith, By faith Iacob bleſſed the two ſonnes of Ioſeph. And if we conſider the matter well, wee ſhall ſee it was a notable faith: for, he was now a poore pilgrime in Egypt, and yet by faith giues them portions in the land of Canaan.

Queſt. Why (will ſome ſay) did hee not keepe himſelfe in the Land of Canaan?

Anſw. Iacob indeede dwelt there for a time, but yet as a ſoiourner, hauing no more liberties then he bought for himſelfe; no not ſo much as water for his camels, or a place to bury the dead: and beſides, he was driuen out of this his owne Land by famine, and was faine to flie into Egypt for food and ſuſtenance; and there to liue as a poore pilgrime and ſtranger, forth of his owne country: And yet for all this extremitie (as though he had bin ſome mighty potentate of the world, or ſome Emperour) he makes his Will, and bequeathes vnto his children the Land of Canaan, allotting to euery one his part and portion; which muſt needes be a worke of a notable faith, wonderfully apprehending and applying the promiſe of God.

In his example we are taught a notable dutie in the matter of our ſaluation: When as any vs (by reaſon of the rigorous temptation of ſinne and Satan, and by their aſſaults) ſhall ſeeme to our ſelues to be (as it were) thruſt out of our inheritāce in the heauenly Canaan, what muſt we doe? We muſt not deſpaire; but euen then ſet before our eies, and call to remembrance the promiſes of God made vnto vs in Chriſt, concerning life euerlaſting: and thereon we muſt reſt and ſtay our ſelues. Then let temptations aſſault vs, and driue vs whether they can: ſtill wee muſt hold faſt the promiſe with both hands of faith; and aboue hope, by faith appoint and deſigne vnto our ſelues, a part and portion in the kingdome of heauen. And ſo doing, we ſhall be true Iſraelites, & true followers of this faithfull Patriarch; who by faith (beyond all likelihood) allots the Land of Canaan to his poſterity.

3. Circumſtance. The parties whom he bleſſed; namely, the two ſonnes of Ioſeph, Manaſſes and Ephraim. Hereof wee may reade at large, Gen. 48. 8, 9, &c. where among many things, obſerue this one: Ioſeph brings his two ſonnes, Manaſſes and Ephraim, vnto Iacob his father, that he might bleſſe them, as he lay on his bed. Now, Ioſephs minde was, that Manaſſes (the elder) ſhould haue the chiefeſt bleſſing; and therefore, he ſet Manaſſes at Iacobs right hand, and Ephraim (the yonger) at his left: But Iacob beeing to bleſſe them, laies his hands acroſſe, putting his right hand on Ephraims head, and the left on the head of Manaſſes; whereby, he gaue the birth-right (which was a principall prerogatiue) vnto Ephraim, contrary to Ioſephs deſire. Vnto Manaſſes he gaue a bleſſing alſo, but farre inferiour to Ephraims. Now, here we may not thinke, that Iacob did this vpon any fond affection (as parents oftentimes do, becauſe they loue one childe better then another) but he did it after a ſpeciall manner; by the direction and inſtinct of Gods ſpirit, which ſo appointed it: For, when Iadcob bleſſed them, he knew not (of his owne knowledge, by the benefit of his ſenſes,) which was Ephraim, and which Manaſſes. Againe, looke as Iacob gaue the bleſſing at this time, the principall vnto Ephraim, and the leſſer to Manaſſes; ſo afterward they came to paſſe: For (as we may read) the tribe of Ephraim was farre more populous, and more glorious then the tribe of Manaſſes. And therefore, in the bookes of the Prophets (Hoſ. 4. 16. and 5. 9. and 6. 4. &c.) wee ſhall finde, that the name of Ephraim is giuen to all the ten tribes; and they are called by that name, becauſe it was the moſt noble tribe of all, and the moſt valiant, and (as it were) the ſhelter of all the reſt. Yea further, of this tribe came (1. Chron. 7. 27.) Iehoſua, that noble captaine; & (1. King. 11. 26.) Ieroboam, and many other mighty Kings of Iſrael.

Where we may learne, that God is the diſpoſer of honours and dignities in this world; he giueth theſe to whome he will, to ſome more, and to ſome leſſe, as pleaſeth him: yea ſometime he raiſeth vp men of baſe and lowe degree, to great dignitie; as Dauid ſaith, Pſal. 113. 7. He raiſeth the needy out of the duſt, and lifteth the poore out of the dongue. Now whence comes this? Is their learning, their great ſtrength, their beautie, or wonderfull skill, and knowledge, the cauſe of their preferment? or the wealth of their parents, or any thing in them? No ſurely: If we ſpeake of the firſt cauſe, we ſee in this example, that the preferment of Ephraim aboue Manaſſes, was for no cauſe in Ephraim; for, what was in Ephraim, that was not in Manaſſes, when Iacob bleſſed them? Surely, nothing: for, he was but a childe as the other was, and a yonger childe alſo; but he was preferred by reaſon of Gods good will towards him. And ſo it is with all thoſe that are aduanced to preferment in this world. Wherefore, ſeeing honour and dignity commeth not from themſelues, or any thing in them; therefore they muſt not aſcribe it to their owne wit, learning, ſtrength, or friends; but wholly to the gift of God, as the firſt cauſe: and ſo muſt labour to vſe it to the honour of him that onely giues it, of his good pleaſure; elſe they ſacrifice to their owne net: Hab. 1. 16.

Queſt. Why doth the holy Ghoſt in this place put Ioſephs name downe, who was not bleſſed, & conceale the names of the two children that were bleſſed? Anſwer. If we reade the Hiſtory in Geneſis, we ſhall ſee the reaſon hereof. For, when Ioſeph heard that his Father Iacob was ſick; though he was a mighty Prince and a noble Potentate among the Egyptians, and his Father but a poore Pilgrime: yet hee comes to his ſicke Father before his death, and brings his two ſonnes with him, to haue his Father to bleſſe them before he died; and therefore the holy Ghoſt here nameth Ioſeph, to ſhew vnto vs what reſpect hee had of his Fathers bleſſing: he made more account thereof, and did more eſteeme it, that ſo hee might haue his ſonnes within the couenant, then of all the Kingdomes in the world: and therefore hee brings them both to his Father to be bleſſed, a little before his death.

Now looke what minde and affection Ioſeph beares, the ſame ſhould be in euery one of vs. Whatſoeuer our eſtate be, whether honourable, or baſe and meane; wee muſt with Ioſeph eſteeme more of Gods couenant, and to bee members of Gods Church, then of all the honour in the world beſides; and we muſt eſteem our place, and preferments that we haue, or our children may haue, to be nothing in compariſon of the bleſſing of God, and his fauour. Yea, we muſt chuſe with Ioſeph rather to leaue our honours and dignities for a time, or (if it were) for euer; then to looſe the bleſſing of Gods grace: and bleſſed ſhall thoſe Fathers bee with Ioſeph, who had rather haue their children bleſſed of God, then aduanced in the world. The ſecond action of Iacobs faith, is in theſe words; And worſhipped on the end of his ſtaffe: and it is a notable worke for the commendation of his faith. But before we come vnto it, there are certaine queſtions which may profitably be conſidered: As firſt, for the tranſlation; how the words ſhould be read. The Papiſts reade them thus: And adored the toppe of his Rod; that is (ſay they) the top of Ioſephs Scepter who came to viſit him. From whence they would gather and ground their abominable Idolatrie, in the Adoration of creatures, and namely of Holy things, as Crucifix, Reliques, Images, as alſo of God at & before ſuch holy things. But we muſt know, that their tranſlation is falſe and erronious, and cannot be iuſtified, howſoeuer they may bring ſome mens witneſſe and teſtimonie for the ſame. For in reading it thus, and adored the top of his Rod; they leaue out a ſubſtantiall word of the text, to wit, this word vpon; wherby they corrupt the Text, & depraue the meaning of the holy Ghoſt.

Againe, their obſeruation and collection hence, is moſt abhominable: for, to worſhippe an Image or other holy thing, or God himſelfe in or at the ſame, is flatly forbidden in the ſecond Commaundement, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelfe any grauen Image, &c. Thou ſhalt not bow downe to them.

But our Tranſlation in this place is true and right, according to the words of the Text, and the meaning of the holy Ghoſt, that he worſhipped vpon the ende of his ſtaffe.

Yet further, there may be a queſtion mooued about the words, for, if we reade the Hiſtorie in Geneſis, it is there ſaid, that Iacob worſhipped towards the ende or top of his bed, Gen. 47. 31.

Now, there is great difference betweene theſe two, To worſhippe on the toppe of his ſtaffe: and on the toppe of his bed.

How therfore can they ſtand together? Anſ. They may ſtand well together, and bee both true: for when Iacob was about to giue vp the Ghoſt, and was ready to die, hee raiſed vp himſelfe vpon his pillowe towards the beds head, and thereon reſted his body. Now becauſe his body was weake and feeble, he ſtaide himſelfe alſo vpon his ſtaffe: and thus comparing the places together, wee ſee there is no repugnancie in them. Againe, this we muſt know, that the ſame ſentence of Scripture may be diuerſly read in diuers places of Scripture, without any impeachment to the truth, certaintie, or perfection of Scripture: for, when the holy Ghoſt ſpeaketh the ſame thing often, yet in different tearmes (as in this place) the diuerſity of words doth enlarge or open the ſenſe and meaning, but no way corrupt or depraue the ſame. And thus much for the words.

Now to come to the fact it ſelfe: in Iacobs worſhip, three circumſtances are to be conſidered: 1. The occaſion: 2. The time: 3. The manner of it.

The occaſion of Iacobs worſhip here ſpoken of (as we may reade, Gen. 47.) was this: when the time drew neere that Iacob muſt die, he called for his ſonne Ioſeph, and charged him deeply, That he ſhould not burie him in Egypt when he was dead, but that he ſhould carie him thence, and burie him in the burial of his Fathers; Ioſeph conſents vnto his Fathers requeſt: and yet Iacob for certaintie makes him to ſweare that he ſhall doe ſo, and Ioſeph ſware vnto him. Now vpon this iſſue that Iacob had with Ioſeph, the Text ſaith, That Iſrael worſhipped towards the beds head: that is, he praiſed God, and gaue thankes vnto him for this benefit that he ſhould be buried with his Fathers, Abraham, and Iſaac. And yet this benefit did not ſo much concerne himſelfe as his children: for, the carying of his bones thither, was to be a token and pledge, and a certaine aſſurance vnto them, that the Land of Canaan ſhould be theirs, and that God would bring them thither againe.

In this circumſtance, obſerue a notable dutie belonging vnto Fathers & Maſters of families: they muſt in their life time haue care of their poſteritie, & vſe all meanes to helpe them, and benefite them in the faith; not onely while they are aliue, but alſo after they are dead, after the example of this holy Patriarch: and when they haue obtained this benefite for them, they muſt be glad in their hearts and reioyce, and thereupon take occaſion to praiſe the Lord, as Iacob did in this place.

2. Circumſtance. The manner how he worſhipped: Which is ſet downe in theſe words; on the end of his ſtaffe. This circumſtance is worth the marking: for, good Iacob, by reaſon of the weakeneſſe of his bodie and olde age, was not able to come forth of his bed, and kneele downe or proſtrate himſelfe; but raiſeth himſelfe vp vpon his pillowe towards his beds head: and by reaſon of feebleneſſe beeing not yet able to ſit vpright, he doth leane and beare himſelfe vpon his ſtaffe.

Here we learne, that wee muſt not onely worſhip God with our ſoules and hearts, but with our bodies alſo: for God hath created both, and therefore will be worſhipped in both, 1. Cor. 6. 20. Olde Iacob might haue excuſed himſelfe, that by reaſon of the weakeneſſe of his bodie, hee was not able to adore God with any bodily reuerence: but yet we ſee hee leanes vpon his ſtaffe; and ſo, making ſupply to his bodily weakeneſſe, adoreth God with his bodie.

Queſt. In what kind of geſture then muſt we worſhip God, with our bodies?

Anſwer. The word of God doth not preſcribe any, by way of limitation. For ſometimes our Sauiour Chriſt prayed kneeling, Luk. 21. 41: ſometimes groueling; Matth. 26. 59: ſometimes ſtanding; Ioh. 11. 41. as alſo did the Apoſtles. And the Scripture approoueth the Publican, who ſtoode a-farre off and prayed, Luke 18. 13. Elias alſo, 1. King. 18. 42. is ſaid to pray with his head betweene his legges; ſo that we haue no certaine forme preſcribed vs: onely this, we muſt vſe that geſture which may beſt ſet forth and declare our humble heart, & holy affection vnto God.

Here then is confuted an opinion of thoſe, which thinke that a man may worſhip God with his heart, and yet worſhip images with his bodie; that hee may be preſent at idolatrous worſhip, yet keep his heart vnto God. But Iacobs behauiour, in this place, doth both confute and condemne them: for, hee thought his body as due to God, as his ſoule; and therefore worſhipped God with both.

3. Circumſtance: The time when hee worſhipped God thus; namely, when he was dying, euen then he worſhipped God. In this circumſtance we may note diuers things.

Firſt, here behold the bad practiſe of the world; for, many men when they are dying, now-adaies, are ſo farre from following Iacobs example in worſhipping and praiſing God; that then they are faine to cal for men to teach them how they ſhould worſhip God: hauing ſpent the former part of their life carelesly, in regard of their ſoules; following worldly profits and pleaſures, neuer thinking of their duty to God, till they die. But what a fearefull courſe is this, that men ſhould thus brutiſhly goe on from day to day, not knowing how to worſhip God? Well, all ſuch as loue their owne ſoules, and would be like to godly Iacob; or (as our Sauiour Chriſt ſaid to Nathaniel) would be true Iſraelites, Ioh. 1. 47. the naturall ſonnes of olde Iſrael indeed; they muſt haue care ſo to liue in this world, that they may worſhip God when they die: and therefore they muſt not deferre, but learne betime the knowledge and feare of God; that when death comes, they may bee able to ſhewe forth, and practiſe the ſame. It is a lamentable thing, to conſider how the deuill bewitcheth mens hearts, ſo as they liue in the world, as though they ſhould neuer goe out of it; neuer caring for religion till the day of death come vpon thē: and then it is too late to learne. But this is to followe Eſau, and not Iacob; who is therefore condemned by the holy Ghoſt.

2. Againe, in this that Iacob worſhipped God at his death, we learne this; That as men liue, ſo they die, for the moſt part: Iacob was brought vp in Gods worſhip, and therein liued all his life long; and looke as he liued ſo he died: for, when hee died, he worſhipped God, reſting his bodie on the ende of his ſtaffe. This ſame truth is verefied now, and ſhall bee for euer; let a man worſhip God through the courſe of his life, and when hee dieth he ſhall be able to worſhip and praiſe God. On the other ſide (take notice of it) he that liues in couetouſnes, in profaneneſſe, in fornication, and wantonneſſe, for the moſt part ſo dies: Come to a couetous man at his death, and talke with him, and you ſhall finde nothing in him ordinarily, but rauing, and talking about his bargaines, his billes, and indentures, and other worldly things. And ſo we may ſay of other lewd liuers: looke what minde they had while they were liuing, and that ſhall you finde moſt in their mouthes while they are dying: which ſhewes plainely, that as men liue, ſo they die.

But ſome will ſay, that oftentimes the godly man raues and ſpeakes lewdly, and (it may be) profanely, before his death; Anſw. It is true indeede: the beſt man is not freed from any kind of bodily ſickneſſe, but is ſubiect to them, as well as the wicked; as, to burning feuers, and ſuch like: by the violence and rage of which diſeaſes, they are often driuen to raue, to ſpeake fondly, and ſometimes lewdly; yea (it may be) profanely. But what is that to the purpoſe? for though a godly man (for the time of his fit) cannot expreſſe the grace of his heart, but rather the corruption of his nature; yet when hee hath recouered himſelfe, hee is ſory for the ſame, and is then ready and willing to praiſe God with all his heart. So that if we would die well, as Iacob did, praiſing God; then let vs lead our liues as he did; namely, by faith, and the direction of his word and promiſes. Then come death when it will, and how it will, we may indeede be ſore aſſaulted by ſickeneſſe and temptatiō; but yet we ſhal neuer bee ouercome: for, God is faithfull that hath promiſed an iſſue to his children in temptation, 1. Cor. 10. v. 13.

Laſtly, whereas Iacob worſhipped God at his death; Here we learne, that ſound zeale will neuer decay. Many men haue zeale indeede, but it comes onely from the ſtrength and ſoundneſſe of their bodily conſtitution: and looke, as ſtrength decaies, ſo doth that kinde of zeale. But ſound zeale will not decay and weaken with the bodie: but (as Dauid ſaith of the righteous, Pſal. 92. 13, 15.) will flouriſh like a palme tree, and growe like a Cedar in Libanon, it ſhall ſtill bring forth fruite in a mans age, and flouriſh. This wee ſee was true in Iacob; for, though hee were olde, and feeble with ſickneſſe, yet he ſheweth forth ſound zeale in his heart, at the houre of his death. Euen ſo will it be with vs, that profeſſe religion: if zeale bee found in our hearts, it will ſhewe it ſelfe: and the older wee are, the more fruites of grace wee ſhall bring forth: and then ſhewe forth more true zeale, then in yonger yeares. For, though bodily ſtrength decay, yet ſound zeale will neuer decay: but, when ſtrength faileth, then will zeale flouriſh (if it bee ſound) like to the palme tree, which wil bud & ſprout, though the roots of it be cut of. Wherefore, if we would ſhew forth zeale in our age, we muſt get ſoundnes of it in our youth: for that will put forth it ſelfe in the time of death. And thus much of Iacobs example.

Ioſephs Faith.

By faith, Ioſeph when hee died made mention of the departing of the children of Iſrael, and gaue commandement of his bones.

WEe haue heard in the former verſes the ſeuerall examples of the faith of the three Patriachs, Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob. Now in this verſe the holy Ghoſt ſetteth downe the example of Ioſephs faith. The words in this verſe are plaine and eaſie, and neede no expoſition: They are a plaine and briefe ſumme of the ende of the 50. Chapter of Geneſis. Let vs therefore come to the points of doctrine, and inſtructions which are to bee learned and gathered forth of the words.

Firſt, note in generall, the great reſemblance of this example with the former: of Ioſeph a godly ſonne, with Iacob a godly father: for, both of them ſhew forth their faith when they die. For, it is ſaid of both, By faith when he died: So that in ground & circumſtance of time, they both agree.

Herein we may obſerue: firſt, that the good exāples of Superiours (whether they be ciuill or Eccleſiaſticall) are of great force to bring other men on, and to make them forward in the duties of religion: their zeale (as Paul ſaith to the Corinthians in the caſe of almes) prouoketh many. Iacob the father, a worthy Prophet and Patriarch, and giuing an holy and bleſſed example vnto Ioſeph and his children, doth ſhew forth at his death moſt notable behauiour: wherein, he worthily expreſſeth the truth of his faith. Now, his example works with Ioſeph, and he in his death behaues himſelfe in the ſame manner that his godly father did before him: and therefore ſuperiours muſt looke to all their ſayings and doings carefully, that they may be worthy examples to their inferiours, to drawe them on in religion, and in the feare of God.

Secondly, hence inferiours alſo muſt learne to follow the godly, holy, & religious examples of their gouernours and ſuperiours (whether they be ciuill or Eccleſiaſticall): as we may ſee in this place, Ioſeph doth imitate the godly example of his father Iacob. Hereof Saint Paul giueth ſtraite charge vnto the Philippians, ſaying: Brethren be followers of me, and looke on them which walke ſo, as yee haue vs for an example, Phil. 3. 17. And in the next Chapter, exhorting them to honeſt conuerſation, hee biddes them doe thoſe things which they had heard, receiued, and ſeene in him. But are theſe duties practiſed among vs? bee the elder ſort teachers of good things to the yonger? and doe the yonger follow their elders in well-doing? nay verily: but ſuch are our times, too many among vs, both thoſe that giue, and thoſe which follow good examples, are as ſignes and wonders, as the Prophet ſpeaketh; they are made a reproach, and a by-word among men, and are foully diſgraced by odious tearmes, Iſay 8. 18. But this indeede is a practiſe of Iſmael, that mocked Iſaac, Gen. 21. ver. 9. And we againe, muſt vndoubtedly know, that vnleſſe it be reformed, that hand of God which hath beene ſtretched out againſt vs in manie feareful iudgements, will not be pulled backe, but ſtretched out ſtill, till it bring vs to deſtruction: for, God will not ſuffer his ordinances to be contemned, and his holy ones to be abuſed: he looketh for better fruites at our hands, and therefore wee muſt learne of theſe godly Patriarches, both to giue and to followe good examples.

In the example of Ioſeph, more particularly, we are to obſerue two points: 1. Ioſephs faith: 2. The actions of his faith whereby it is commended.

Ioſephs faith.

For the firſt: it is ſaide, that by faith Ioſeph when he died, &c. Ioſeph, for ought wee finde in Scripture, had not ſuch meanes to come by faith, as his Aunceſtors had before him. For the three Patriarches, Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, had otherwhiles the appearance of God vnto them, otherwhile his holy Angels brought them meſſages from God, and ſometime they had his wil reuealed vnto them by dreames and viſions; all which were notable healpes and meanes both to beginne and to encreaſe faith in them: but Ioſeph wanted all theſe meanes, or at leaſt many of them. For, reade his whole Hiſtorie, and you ſhall not finde, that either Angell appeared vnto him, or elſe that God by dreames and viſions ſpake vnto him: and no meruaile. For he liued out of the viſible Church where Gods preſence was, in ſuperſtitious and Idolatrous Egypt: and yet for all this, hee is here matched in the matter of faith, with the three worthie Patriarchs.

It is then a good queſtiō; how Ioſeph ſhould come by this faith?

Anſw. We muſt knowe this, that though he had not the like extraordinary meanes with the Patriarches; yet he wanted not all meanes: for, in his yonger dayes, hee was trayned vp in his Father Iacobs family, and by him was inſtructed in the wayes of God, and in the practiſe of religion; and in his latter dayes alſo, hee had the benefit of his Fathers company and inſtructions in Egypt. Now Iacob was not an ordinarie Father, but a notable Patriarch and an holy Prophet; in whoſe family God had placed his viſible Church in thoſe dayes, wherein Iacob was the Lords Prophet and Miniſter. Now Ioſeph, both in his young age, and alſo after his Father came to Egypt, did heare and learne of him the wayes of God; and by that meanes came to this excellent faith, for which hee is ſo commended here, & matched with his Fathers the holy Patriarchs.

Hence we learne, that the preaching of Gods word by his Miniſters (though extraordinarie meanes, as reuelations, and viſions, be wanting) is ſufficient to bring a man to faith; yea, to ſuch a faith as the three Patriarchs had. Indeede in the miniſterie of the word, hee which ſpeaketh vnto vs, is but a man as others are; but yet the word which he deliuereth is not his owne, but the mighty word of God: and looke what is truly pronounced by him vnto vs out of Gods word, the ſame is as certainly ſealed vnto vs by his ſpirit, as if God himſelfe from heauen ſhould extraordinarily reueale the ſame. And howſoeuer in former times men had viſions & dreames, and Angels from God himſelfe to reueale his will vnto them: yet this Miniſterie of Gods word in the new Teſtament, is as ſufficient a meanes of the beginning & encreaſing of true faith, as that was then.

This plainly confuteth all thoſe that neglect or contemne the Miniſterie and preaching of the word, and looke for extraordinarie reuelations, and for viſions and dreames, for the begettting and encreaſe of faith and grace in their hearts. But our Sauiour Chriſt doth notably checke all ſuch in the Parable of the rich man, by the words of Abraham to Diues; ſaying, of Diues brethren, that they had Moſes and the Prophets; if they will not heare them, neither will they beleeue though one ſhould come from the dead againe, (verſe 31): inſinuating, that if a man will not beleeue by the preaching of the word, there is nothing in the world will make him to beleeue; neither reuelations, nor viſions, no not the words of them that riſe againe from the dead.

Secondly, the conſideration of the ſufficiencie of Gods ordinance in the holy Miniſterie, to beget and to encreaſe true faith, muſt ſtirre vs vp to all care and diligence, not onely to heare the word of God preached vnto vs, but to profit by it both in knowledge and obedience: and thus much for the firſt point.

The ſecond point to be handled, is the commendation of Ioſephs faith by two actions thereof: to wit, 1. His mention of the departure of the children of Iſraell out of Egypt: 2. His commaundement concerning his bones. Of both which we will ſpeake briefely, becauſe the ſpeciall points herein were handled in the former verſe.

For the firſt: Ioſeph when he died made mention of the departing of the children of Iſrael, that is, out of Egypt into Canaan.

Here we may obſerue a moſt notable worke of faith: it makes a man to keepe in memory Ioſephs faith.

A the mercifull promiſes which God hath made vnto him. This is it which cōmends Ioſephs faith for a liuely faith, That being about to die, hee remembreth this mercifull promiſe of God, made to his fore-fathers touching their poſterity; to wit, that after they had continued as ſeruants in a ſtrange Land 400. yeares, they ſhould then haue a good iſſue and a happy deliuerance, and bee brought into the Land of Canaan. Gen. 15. 13. This is a notable worke of faith, as may appeare by two notable effects hereof in the life of a Chriſtian: For firſt, by this remembrance of Gods mercifull promiſes, the ſeruant of God at all times, and in all diſtreſſes and extremities doth finde comfort vnto his B ſoule. This brings to his memory the wonderfull goodneſſe and mercie of God, by which he is comforted. When Dauid was in a moſt deſperate caſe, ſo as hee cried out by reaſon of affliction and temptation, Will the Lord abſent himſelfe for euer, and will he ſhew no more fauour? Is his mercie cleane gone? doth his mercie faile for euermore? Pſal. 77. with ſuch like moſt fearefull ſpeaches; How did he then comfort himſelfe in this diſtreſſe? Anſw. Surely by remembring the workes of the Lord, and his wonders of olde, and by meditating on all his workes and gracious acts which hee had done for him. So likewiſe in another place in great anguiſh of ſpirit, he ſaith to his ſoule, Why art thou caſt C downe my ſoule, and why art thou diſquieted within me? Pſalm. 43. 5. Yet in the next words he thus ſtayes himſelfe; Waite on God, for I will yet giue thankes vnto him: hee is my preſent helpe, and my God. How came Dauid to ſay ſo, in this diſtreſſe? Anſwer. By meanes of faith, which doth reuiue and refreſh the dead heart of man, by bringing to his remembrance the mercifull promiſes of God.

Saint Paul preſſed with corruption: cried out: O wretched man that I am, who ſhall deliuer me from the body of this death? Rom. 7. 24. Yet in the next words he ſaith, I thanke my God through Ieſus Chriſt our Lord: Then I my ſelfe in my minde ſerue the law of God, &c. How com the latter words to followe on the former? D Anſ. In the firſt words indeede, he is caſt down with the vew and ſight of his naturall corruption, which drew him headlong into ſinne: but yet the latter words are a remembrance of the mercifull deliuerance from ſinne which God had wrought in him by Chriſt: and therefore he breaketh out to this ſaying, I thanke my God through Ieſus Chriſt, &c.

Secondly, the remembrance of Gods promiſes ſerueth to be a meanes to keepe a man from ſinne: for mans nature is as readie and prone to ſinne, as fire is to burne when fewell is put to it. But when by faith he calls to minde Gods mercifull promiſes, eſpecially thoſe which are made vnto him in Chriſt: then hee reaſoneth and ſtriueth againſt temptation, and layes the word as a ſhield vnto his ſoule, to keepe out the fierie darts of Satan; yea, hee applies the ſame word to his owne ſoule, as a corroſiue vnto corruption: whereupon it is ſaid, that faith purifieth the heart, Act. 15. 9. How? namely, beſide the applying of Chriſts blood, it brings to memory Gods mercifull promiſes in Chriſt: which ſtay a man from committing ſuch things as would pollute and defile the hart. And therfore is faith ſaid to be our victory ouer the world: 1. Ioh. 5. 4. becauſe by applying to our ſoules gods promiſes in Chriſt, we doe not onely contemne the world, in regard of Chriſt; but alſo ſtand againſt the aſſaults thereof: ſo that it is a moſt notable and excellent worke of faith.

Laſtly, obſerue the circumſtance of time, when Ioſeph made remembrance of their departing. The text ſaith, When hee was dying. Hereof we haue ſpoken in the former verſe: yet this one thing may here againe be well remembred; Ioſeph cals to minde the promiſes of God at his death, which concerne the tēmporall deliuerance of his people: and we by his example, when we are dying, muſt learne to call to remembrance the gracious promiſes, which God hath made vnto vs in Chriſt, touching our eternall deliuerance from the ſpirituall bondage of the deuill. Oh! great will bee the fruit hereof, not onely for inward comfort to our owne ſoules, and ioy to ſuch as loue vs; but alſo wee ſhall hereby giue a worthy euidence to the world, that we haue beene found in the faith: wherein, wee ſhall leaue a good preſident to thoſe that follow vs.

The ſecond fact of Ioſephs faith is this; He gaue commaundement concerning his bones. The meaning thereof is this: that Ioſeph lying on his death bead, gaue a ſolmne charge to his brethren, to haue ſpeciall care how and where they buried him; that his bones might not be loſt, but ſo preſerued while they ſtaied in Egypt, that at their departure they might be caried into the land of Canaan, and there buried in the ſepulchre of his fathers. The cauſes why Ioſeph gaue this commandement were theſe: 1 Hereby to teſtifie vnto his brethren and poſterity, that howſoeuer he liued a long time in the pompe and glory of Egypt, yet his heart was neuer ſet thereon; but hee had greater delight, and more eſteemed to be counted a true member of the Church of God, then to bee a noble prince in the Land of Egypt. For, if he had loued and liked the pompe of Egypt, he would haue had his ſepulchre among them; but giuing commandement to the contrary, it ſheweth plainely, that his heart was neuer ſet on that glory and pompe in which he liued.

By whoſe example wee are taught, that in vſing the world, and the things thereof, wee muſt not ſet our hearts on them; but as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1. Cor. 7. 31. Vſe them as though we vſed them not: ſtill hauing our affections ſet on heauen, which is our ſpirituall Canaan.

2. Hereby Ioſeph would teſtifie vnto his brethren, what he eſteemed his chiefe happineſſe; namely, that in faith and hope hee was ioyned vnto his fathers, and aunceſtors, that beleeued in God, and that he was of their religion, and looked for a reſurrection & another life, as they did. And this he would haue knowen, not only to his brethren and poſteritie, but to the Egyptians alſo, among whom he liued.

3. Ioſeph hereby intended principally, to confirme the faith of his brethren and poſterity in Gods promiſe, for enioying and poſſeſſing the Land of Canaan after his death: and this was a notable way to ſtrengthten their faith. For, when they ſhlould ſee or remember his corps, it was vnto them as a liuely ſermon, to ſhew them plainely, that howſoeuer they liued for a while in bondage in Egypt: yet the day ſhould ſhortly come, wherein they ſhould bee ſet at libertie, and brought (as free-men) into the land of Canaan. And vndoubtedly, Ioſeph would therefore haue his bones kept among them, that they might be a pledge vnto them of their deliuerance.

Yea note further, the ſtory ſaith, (Gen. 50. 15.) that Ioſeph did not onely charge his brethren generally; but binds them by an oath to cary his bones: hereby ſhewing, that it was a matter of great weight which he did inioyne them; euen a ſigne and pledge of the truth of Gods promiſe in their deliuerance. Whence we learne, that it is a matter of great moment, for euery Chriſtian, both carefully and reuerently to vſe the ſacraments, which God hath giuen as pledges of his couenant of grace, made with vs in Chriſt. For, ſhall Ioſeph cauſe his brethren and poſteritie to ſweare concerning his bones, that ſo they might more reuerently regard that pledge and ſigne of their outward deliuerance? And ſhall not we with all reuerence and good conſcience, both eſteeme and vſe thoſe holy pledges of our eternall deliuerance by Chriſt Ieſus?

The Papiſts, from this place, would iuſtifie their practiſe, in reſeruing and honouring the Reliques of Saints. Now by Reliques, they mean the parts of the bodies of ſaints departed; as the head of Iohn Baptiſt, the armes or bones of this or that Saint, the milke of the virgin Mary, and alſo the parts of the croſſe whereon Chriſt ſuffered, with ſuch like. Anſw. Firſt, let vs know, that their Reliques are nothing elſe but forged deuices of their owne, and no true Reliques of Saints; as by one inſtance may appeare. For, the parts and parcels of wood, kept in Europe, which they ſay are parts of the croſſe whereon Chriſt died, are ſo many, that if they were all gathered together, they would load a ſhip: which ſhewes plainely, that herein they vſe notorious forgerie, for it was no greater then a man may beare. And the like is their behauiour in the reſt. Secondly, the keeping of Ioſephs bones, was for a good end & purpoſe; namely, to teſtifie his owne faith, and to confirme theirs, in beleeuing Gods promiſe for their deliuerance out of the bondage of Egypt: but their Reliques ſerue rather to extinguiſh faith in Chriſt, then to confirme it; for, they nouriſh men in fond deuices, and foule ſuperſtitions, and not in the truth of Gods promiſes. Thirdly, wee doe not reade in all the Bible, that Ioſephs bones were euer worſhipped; and therefore from this place they haue no ground whereon to build their ſuperſtitious worſhipping of Reliques. And thus much of the example of Ioſephs faith.

Moſes parents faith.

Moſes Parents Faith.

VERSE 23.

By faith, Moſes when he was borne, was hid three moneths of his parents, becauſe they ſaw he was a proper child: neither feared they the kings commandement.

IN this verſe the holy Ghoſt proceedeth further, and ſetteth downe vnto vs a notable and worthy example of the faith of Moſes parents. If we would ſee the hiſtory at large, we muſt reade the 2. Chapter of Exodus; of which, theſe words are an abridgement, or briefe Epitome. Now, here the faith of Moſes parents is commended vnto vs by two notable actions: 1. The hiding of Moſes their child when he was borne; 2. Their courage and boldneſſe in that action; in not fearing the Kings commandement. Of their hiding of him, wee will firſt intreat generally, and then come to the circumſtance thereof. In generall, Their hiding of the childe was this: They kept him cloſe, and vnknowen to the Egyptians for three moneths ſpace; becauſe the King had giuen commandement and charge to all his people, that they ſhould drowne euery man childe borne among the Hebrewes. Exod. 1. 22. In this action of their faith, we may obſerue ſome ſpeciall points.

Firſt, Moſes was to be a worthy Prophet, & Captaine, or guide vnto the people of Iſrael: and therefore howſoeuer other men-children were drowned vpon the cruell commaund of Pharaoh, yet the Lord prouides for him ſo ſoone as hee is borne, that he ſhall be hid, & ſo preſerued frō the tirannie and rage of Pharaoh.

Whence we learne, that God in the middeſt of all perſecution, doth euermore preſerue the ſeede of his Church. There bee two eſtates of Gods Church in the world: the firſt is quiet and peaceable, when the Goſpel is pub-likely profeſſed, taught, and receiued without hoſtile oppoſition, as by Gods great mercie it is in our Church at this day. The ſecond is an hidden eſtate, when as it cannot ſhew it ſelfe viſible, but the open profeſſion of the Goſpel is ſuppreſſed by the rage of the enemie the deuill, and by wicked and cruell men that be his inſtruments. Thus God ſuffereth his Church ſometimes to be ſhadowed, and in theſe times many of his deere children to be ſlaine and put to death for the ſinnes of his Church, yet ſo, as that alwaies hee preſerues the ſeede of his Church. When Iſay had ſhewed the Iewes the fearefull deſolation of their Land; that the Cities ſhould be waſted without inhabitant, and their houſes without man; yet then hee ſaith, There ſhall bee a tenth in it, and the holy ſeede ſhall bee the ſubſtance or vnderprop thereof, verſe 13. God doth not deale with his Church, as he doth with the enemies thereof: hee but loppes off the branches in his Church, when as hee ſtockes vp the roote of the enemies, Iſay, chapter 27. verſes 7, 8. When he viſited Sodome and Gomorrah, he deſtroyed them vtterly out of the earth: but the Lord doth euer keepe faſt the ſeede of his Church, that when the ſtorme of perſecution is blowen ouer, his Church may ſpring and flouriſh afterward.

Iſa.6.11.

Here ſome may ſay, Seeing God purpoſed to make Moſes ſuch a worthy mã ouer his people, why did he not by ſome wonderfull, powerful, and mighty manner preſerue him againſt the rage of Pharaoh? Anſw. God indeede was able to haue ſent a legion of Angels for his preſeruation, or to haue done it after ſome ſtrange viſible manner; but yet he would not: for wee muſt knowe and remember, that it is Gods pleaſure to ſhew his power in weake meanes. He can preſerue euery ſeruant of his from all kinde of iniurie: but he will not alwaies doe ſo. When Chriſt himſelfe our Sauiour, was in his infancie perſecuted by Herod, God his Father was then able to haue preſerued him in Iudea, and to haue ouerthrowen his perſecutor by many legions of angels; yet he would not, but onely vſeth the poore helpe of Ioſeph & Marie, with the ordinarie weake meanes of flight; and all this he did, that he might be glorified in the weakeneſſe of his ſeruants; for, when all meanes faile, then doth hee magnifie his power and prouidence in preſeruing thoſe that truſt in him. And thus much of this Action in generall.

The circumſtances to bee conſidered in the hiding of Moſes, are foure: 1. The time when he was hid: the Text ſaith, When he was borne. Moſes (as we ſaide) muſt be afterward a notable ſeruant, and a worthy inſtrument of God, whereby hee would worke the deliuerance of his people, out of the bondage of Egypt: and yet we ſee, he is faine to be hid ſo ſoone as he is borne.

Hence we learne; that thoſe that be the ſeruants of God, & are in ſpecial fauour with him, muſt look for trouble and affliction in this life, from the cradle to the graue, from the day of their birth, to the houre of their death. Moſes is in danger of his life by Pharaoh, ſo ſoone as hee is borne. And ſo was our Sauiour Chriſt by Herod, when he was but a babe: whereupon his Parents fled with him into Egypt for his ſafety. And anſwerable to their infancie was the reſt of their life: full of danger, full of trouble: And as it was with them, ſo is it with others: 2. Tim. 3. 12. He that will liue godly muſt ſuffer perſecution: and he that will be Chriſts Diſciple, muſt take vp his Croſſe euery day and followe him, Luk. 6. 23.

This is a point which all of vs muſt marke; wee muſt not looke to haue eaſe and ioy in earth: It is enough for vs to enioy that after this life. If Chriſt himſelfe carie his croſſe out of the gate, we then with his diſciples muſt take vp our croſſe and followe him euery day.

The 2. circumſtance to be conſidered, is this: How long was Moſes hid? namely, three moneths. Queſt. Why was hee hid no longer? Anſ. Becauſe they could not; for it is likely, there was ſearch for him, and therefore they made a basket of reed, and dawbed it with ſlime and pitch, and laide the childe therein, and put it among the bulſhrues by the riuers brinke.

Thus did the Parents aduenture the childes life, for the ſauing of their owne: wherein we may ſee a great want & weaknes in their faith; for they kept their child a while by faith: but afterward committed him to the dangers of the waters, of wilde beaſts, and fowles of the aire. So that it is plaine their faith was weake, and mingled with feare and with ſome doubting. For in keeping the childe three moneths, they ſhewe forth liuely faith; but when as they expoſe him to danger for their owne ſafety, herein they bewray ſome want of loue, and weakeneſſe of faith: and yet we ſee they are here commended for their faith. Which ſheweth plainely, that if a man haue true and ſound faith, though it be but weak, yet God in mercy will take knowledge of it, and commend it, paſſing by the weakeneſſe of it; yea and vnto that faith will giue the promiſes of life euerlaſting made in Chriſt.

The third circumſtance to be conſidered, is this; Who it was that kept Moſes three moneths. In Exodus it is ſaid that his mother kept him; but here it is ſaid, his parents kept him: where the holy Ghoſt includes his father alſo. How can both theſe be true? Anſw. We muſt know, that the Mother was the chiefe doer, in this worke, and the father, though he was not a doer, yet he gaue his conſent. Now we muſt remember, that conſent is a kinde of doing, whether it be in good things, or in euill: for, when Saul did but keepe the perſecutors clothes that ſtoned Stephen, (Act. 7. 58.) whereby hee ſignified his conſent; thereupon hee confeſſeth himſelfe to be guiltie of his death, Act. 22. 20.

Moſes parents faith.

Laſtly, obſerue the Cauſe, or rather the Occaſion that mooued the Parents to ſaue their childe. It was a notable comlineſſe and beautie, which did appeare in the body of the childe, when hee was borne. This mooued them to reaſon thus with themſelues: Surely God hath giuen ſuch beautie and comlineſſe vnto this childe, that it is very likely hee will vſe him hereafter, to bee ſome notable inſtrument of ſome great worke: we therefore will keepe him aliue. This point muſt be marked of vs: for, beſide their naturall affection, this alſo was a motiue to make the parents ſaue their childe.

Hence wee may learne, that thoſe whome God will imploy aboue others in ſome ſpeciall ſeruice for his owne glory, are vſually endowed with ſome ſpeciall gift aboue others; yea many times with outward grace and comelineſſe in the body. For, this beauty in Moſes body, mooued his parents to ſeeke to ſaue his life; they perſwade themſelues that God had not imprinted that in him for nought. Saul (we know) was made King ouer Iſrael: and it is noted, that the Lord had giuen him a goodly ſtature: for he was higher then any of the people from the ſhoulders vpward. So Dauid had a good countenance, and a comely viſage: for the Lord purpoſed to make him king ouer Iſrael. Now as he did excell his brethren in beauty & comelineſſe, ſo he was to be far aboue them in this ſpeciall ſeruice of God, in gouerning his people.

1.Sam.10.23.

1.Sam 16.12.

Hence we learne, firſt, that comelineſſe and beautie is a gift of God: Secondly, that thoſe which excell others in theſe gifts of nature, muſt looke alſo that anſwerably they excell them in holineſſe, and zeale in the ſeruice of God, and doing good vnto men, as Moſes and Dauid did. But alas, wretched is the practiſe of theſe times: for commonly thoſe which haue comelineſſe and beauty aboue others, doe vſe it as a bait and occaſion vnto all ſinne, and naughtineſſe; as to whoredome and laſciuiouſneſſe, that thereby they may more fully ſatisfie their owne wretched and Satanicall luſts: but this muſt carefully be looked vnto, of all ſuch as haue the gifts of nature in more excellent manner then others. For if they vſe them, or rather abuſe them to be meanes of ſinne, and to ſet forth the pride and vanitie of their hearts, they haue much to anſwer for vnto God, at the dreadfull day of Iudgement. Hath God giuen thee beauty and comelineſſe? and doeſt thou vſe it as a baite to enſnare others for the ſatisfying of thy luſt? then looke vnto it thou euill ſeruant, for thou doeſt not hide, but conſume thy Maſters talent, imploying it to his diſhonour; therefore it ſhall be taken from thee: and in ſtead thereof, thou ſhalt haue vglineſſe and deformity, and ſo in ſoule and body be tumbled into hell with vncleane ſpirits. And thus much of the firſt action of their faith, with the circumſtances thereof.

The ſecond action, whereby the faith of Moſes Parents is commended vnto vs, is this; They did not feare the Kings commaundement. Theſe words muſt not bee vnderſtood abſolutely and ſimply, but with limitation. For many places of Scripture are ſpoken ſimply, which muſt bee vnderſtoode with reſpect: as when it is ſaid, Matth. 11. 18. Iohn came neither eating nor drinking, that is not, eating nothing at all, but eating little: and Chriſt ſaith, Matth. 10. 34. He came not to bring peace, but the ſword: that is (as Luke expounds it, Luk. 12. 51.) rather debate, then peace. And ſo in this place, Moſes parents feared not the Kings commandement; that is, they did not feare it ouermuch, or wholly, or onely, or ſo much as others did in the like caſe.

Here then firſt wee may learne, how farre forth we muſt obey ſuperiours and magiſtrates; wee muſt obey them, not ſimply, but in the Lord: Epheſ. 6. 1. that is, in all their lawfull commands: but when they commaund things euil and vnlawfull, then we muſt ſtay our ſelues, leſt obeying them we rebell againſt God. For this, we haue ſufficient warrant in this place, as alſo in the Apoſtles; who beeing commanded (Act. 4. 18, 19.) that in no wiſe they ſhould ſpeake or teach in the name of Ieſus: anſwered, Whether it be right in the ſight of God, to obey you rather then God, iudge ye. And the midwiues of Egypt are commended of the holy Ghoſt, Exod. 1. 17. for ſauing the young children aliue, againſt the Kings commandement. And the three men of the Iewes, Shadrach, Meſhach and Abednego, are renowmed with all poſterity, for diſobeying the commaundement of Nebuchadneſſar (Dan. 3. 16, 17.) of worſhipping the golden Image. By which examples, wee may ſee plainely, that our obedience to men muſt be in the Lord onely. Neither is our refuſing to doe their vnlawfull commaunds, any diſobedience indeede: becauſe the fift commandement in this caſe ceaſeth to binde, and giues place to the commandements of the firſt table, which are greater; as we ſhewed before, v. 17.

Secondly, ſee here this godly boldneſſe, in not ouermuch fearing the Kings commaundement, is made a worke of faith: whence wee learne, that true faith in the promiſes of God, doth ſerue to moderate a mans affectiōs. There is no man, but if he be left to himſelfe, he will goe too farre in the ſway of his affections: experience ſheweth that many through anger, & ioy, haue loſt their liues; ſome for feare haue forſaken religion, and ſorrow hath coſt many a man his life: yea, any affection if it be not moderated and ſtayed, will bereaue a man of his ſenſes, and make him a beaſt, and no man.

But behold the vſe and power of true faith: It ſerueth to mitigate a mans affection; ſo as if a man be angry, it ſhall be with moderation: and ſo we may ſay of feare, ioy, hatred, or any other affection; faith will aſſwage and ſtay the rage thereof. For vndoubtedly, Moſes parents rents might haue beene ouerwhelmed with feare of Pharaohs tyrannie and cruelty, but that God gaue them faith, which did moderate this feare. There is none of vs, but if wee looke well into our ſelues, wee ſhall ſee that we are exceſſiue in many affections, ſometime in feare, ſometime in anger, ſometime in ſorrow, and ſuch like. Now, would we know how to bridle theſe ſtrong paſſions? Then get true faith: it is the meanes whereby a man may moderate and ſtay the rage of his affections, ſo as they ſhall not breake out into extremitie. Is a man angry? why, if he haue faith, he will bridle his anger. Is he ſorrowfull? yet it is in meaſure: and ſo for the reſt, faith will rule them all, and yet extinguiſheth none. Which, ſhould greatly prouoke vs to labour for true faith, ſeeing it is of ſuch vſe and power in the ſtay of our affections.

v. 24. By faith, Moſes when he was come to age, refuſed to bee called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter.

25. And choſe rather to ſuffer aduerſitie with the people of God, then to enioy the pleaſures of ſinne for a ſeaſon.

26. Eſteeming the rebuke of Chriſt greater riches then the treaſures of Egypt: For he had reſpect vnto the recompence of reward.

Here the holy Ghoſt comes to the commendation of Moſes faith, and in theſe three verſes propounds a moſt notable example hereof.

By Moſes faith, in this place, we muſt vnderſtand ſauing faith; which is nothing elſe, but a gift of God, whereby Moſes receiued the promiſe of god touching ſaluation by the Meſſias, and of the promiſed Land, made to Abraham and to his ſeede after him, and applied the ſame vnto himſelfe particularly.

Now in the firſt entrance of this example, the holy Ghoſt ſetteth downe a wonderfull thing of Moſes; namely, that Moſes had faith, and by it did this great worke. This (I ſay) is ſtrange, becauſe hee was brought vp by Pharaohs daughter in the Court of Pharaoh, where was no knowledge of the true God, and indeede nothing but idolatry, wantonneſſe, and profaneneſſe. And yet here it is teſtified of him, by the ſpirit of God which cannot lie, that he had faith; which is a wonderfull thing. And the like is recorded of others in the word of God: As in Ahabs Court (who was a King that had ſold himſelfe to worke wickedneſſe) yet the ſpirit of God teſtifieth, that euen there was good Obadiah, a man that feared God greatly. And Herod was a moſt deadly enemie to Chriſt: and yet Ioanna the wife of Chuza Herods friend, miniſtred of her goods vnto Chriſt. And Paul ſaith, The Saints which are of Ceſars houſhold ſalute you: Where, by Ceſars houſe, is meant the Court of Nero, who was a moſt bloody man, and a wicked perſecuter; and yet in his houſe were the profeſſors of Chriſts Goſpel. By theſe examples we learne, that Chriſt hath his children and ſeruants in the middle among his enemies: for, theſe three Courts, of Pharaoh, Herod, and Nero, may be called a kinde of hell; and yet there were ſome of Gods ſeruants in them all. Which ſheweth vs clearely the truth of Gods word, which ſaith of Chriſt, that hee raigneth in the middle among his enemies. Howſoeuer they rage, and ſeeke to blot out his name, and roote out his kingdome, yet mauger their throats, he will rule in the middle of their kingdomes, and there haue thoſe which truly ſerue him and feare his name. Reuel. 2.13. God had his Church in Pergamus where Satans throne was.

Againe, this faith of Moſes ſerues to checke many a man in this age, that is brought vp in the Church of God, and vnder godly Parents and gouernours, and yet is a hater and mocker of the religion of Chriſt. Surely Moſes in the day of iudgement ſhall ſtand vp againſt all ſuch, and condemne them. For he had faith, though he were brought vp in a moſt profane place: and they are voide of faith, nay, enemies vnto it; though they liue in the boſome of the Church.

But let vs come to the ſtrange fact which Moſes did, for which his faith is ſo commended. The Text ſaith of him firſt of all. That when hee was come to age, he refuſed to bee called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter. How Moſes became her ſonne, wee may reade at large, Exod. 2. where it is ſaid, that ſhee hauing found Moſes in the basket, preſerued him aliue, and brought him vp as her owne childe, purpoſing to make him her owne ſonne and heire. But this honour of hers hee would not accept; this he refuſed by faith, and this is that notable and famous act, for which his faith is here commended vnto vs.

But ſome will ſay, This fact of Moſes may ſeeme rather worthy of blame then praiſe, as beeing a practiſe of great rudeneſſe and ingratitude: for ſhee preſerued his life from death, death, & brought him vp as her own child, and vouchſafed him this ſpeciall fauour to make him her heire; and therefore Moſes ſhould not thus haue contemned her fauour. Anſwer. Indeede it had beene Moſes part to haue ſhewed himſelfe thankfull, in accepting this fauour at her hands, and alſo in enioying the ſame, if he might haue done it with the feare of God, and keeping a good conſcience. But, that he could not doe: for, if he had dwelled ſtill with her, and beene her ſonne and heire, he ſhould haue beene vndutifull vnto God. Now this is a rule to bee remembred and practiſed alwaies; that in duties of like nature, the Commaundements of the ſecond table doe binde vs no further then our obedience thereto may ſtand with obedience vnto the Commaundements of the firſt table: and when theſe two cannot ſtand together, then we are freed from obedience vnto the ſecond table; as, from performing honour and thankfulneſſe vnto men, when wee cannot therewithall performe obedience and ſeruice vnto God. And this was Moſes caſe: becauſe he could not both ſerue God, and continue his thankfulneſſe, to Pharaohs daughter ( for in ſtaying with her, hee ſhould haue made ſhipwracke of true religion) therefore hee forſaketh her fauour and honour; and for this cauſe is here commended vnto vs. The like did our Sauiour Chriſt, for when the people would haue made him King, he refuſed it, and fled from among them, Ioh. 6. 15. becauſe it would not ſtand with that calling, for which he was ſanctified and ſent into the world: therefore Moſes fact was commendable, & doth greatly ſet forth vnto vs his holy faith.

In this fact of Moſes thus generally conſidered, obſerue a notable fruite of true faith: It makes a man eſteem more of the ſtate of adoption to be the childe of God, then to bee the childe or heire of any earthly Prince. This is plaine in Moſes in this place. And the like wee may ſee in Dauid: for though he were a King, yet he ſet all his royalty & maieſtie at naught, in regard of Gods bleſſing of adoption; and therefore ſaith, The Lord ( not the Kingdome of Iſrael) is my portion. And againe, when hee was kept from the Lords tabernacle, and the company of Gods Saints, through perſecution; he ſaith, The Sparrowes and Swallowes were more happy then he, Pſal. 84. becauſe they had neſts where they might keepe their young, and ſit, and ſing; but he could not come neere the Lords Altar. And yet more fully to expreſſe the earneſtneſſe of his affection this way; hee ſaith, he had rather be a man of a baſe office, euen a dore-keeper in the houſe of God, then a man of renowne in the tents of wickedneſſe. But howſoeuer, theſe men were of one minde herein; yet come to our age, and ſeeke in Towne, Country, and people, and we ſhall ſee this fruite of faith is rare to bee found: for generally ( though I will not ſay all) the moſt of thoſe that are borne of good parentage, as the ſonnes of Knights or Squires, and eſpecially of Nobles, are ſo bewitched with the pride of their earthly Parentage, that they haue ſcarce a thought after adoption in Chriſt. Gods heauenly graces will take no place in their hearts, but they vtterly contemne all other eſtates of life in regard of their owne. And this is the common ſinne of the whole world: for at earthly preferments men will ſtand amazed; but ſeldome ſhall you finde a man that is rauiſhed with ioy in this, that hee is the childe of God, as Moſes was. But his practiſe muſt bee a preſident for vs to followe: we muſt learne to haue more ioy in beeing the ſonnes of God, then to be heires of any worldly Kingdomes; and to take more delight in the grace of adoption through Ieſus Chriſt, then in the ſonſhip of any earthly Prince.

Pſal.16.

It is a great prerogatiue to be heire to a King or Emperour: but yet to be the childe of God, goes farre beyond it: euen aboue compariſon. For, the ſonne of the greateſt Potentate may be the childe of wrath: but the childe of God by grace, hath Chriſt Ieſus to bee his eldeſt brother, with whom he is fellow heire in heauen; he hath the holy Ghoſt alſo for his comforter, and the Kingdome of heauen for his euerlaſting inheritance. And therefore wee muſt learne of Moſes, from the bottome of our hearts, to prefer this one thing, To be the childe of God, before all earthly things, either pleaſures, riches, or any other prerogatiues whatſoeuer.

Now more particularly in this fact of Moſes note two circumſtances: 1. The manner how: 2. The time when, he refuſed to bee called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter.

For the firſt; his refuſall was not in word, but in deede: for, if we reade the whole Hiſtory of Moſes, we ſhall not finde, that either hee ſpake to Pharaoh, or to his daughter, or to any other to this effect, that he would not bee her heire, nor called her ſonne; but we finde that he did it indeede: for, when he came to age, he left the Court oftentimes, and went to viſite his brethren, to comfort them, to defende them, and to take part with them. And hence wee muſt learne, not ſo much to giue our ſelues to knowe, and to talke of matters of religion, as to doe and practiſe the ſame both before God and men. This did Moſes. It is the common fault of our age, that wee can be content to heare the doctrine of religion taught vnto vs; yea, many will learne it, and often ſpeake thereof: but but fewe there be that make conſcience to doe the things they heare and ſpeake of. But let vs learne of Moſes to put thoſe things in practiſe which wee learne and profeſſe, and in ſilence doe them: for, the fewer words the better, vnleſſe our deedes bee anſwerable. If any of vs were to walke vpon the top of ſome high mountaine, wee would leaue off talking, and looke vnto our ſteps for feare of falling. Behold, when wee enter the profeſſion of Chri-

A ſtianitie, we are ſet vpon an high mountaine: for the way of life is on high; and Chriſtianity is Phil.3.14. the high calling of God. We therefore muſt be wiſe as Salomon ſaith, Pro. 15.24. and looke well to our conuerſation, hauing a ſtraite watch ouer all out waies, through the whole courſe of our life, euen to the ende of our daies: and not ſtand ſo much on ſpeaking & talking, as on doing: for the doer of the work ſhall be bleſſed in his deed, Iam. 1.25. This is the thing we muſt looke vnto, as the onely ornament of our profeſſion, declaring that we haue the power of godlines: but if deedes be wanting, our religion is vaine, we are like the Figtree which Chriſt curſed, Matth.21.19. hauing leaues and no fruite.

B The 2. circumſtance to be conſidered, is, the time whē he refuſed this honour: namely, when he came to be a man of yeares and diſcretion. A man in common reaſon would iudge thus of Moſes fact: Moſes hath rare fortune offered him, he might haue bin ſonne and heire to a Princeſſe: ſurely this is a raſh fact of his, and voide of conſideration, to refuſe it; vndoubtedly he farre ouerſhot himſelfe herein, either thorough raſhneſſe or ignorance. But to preuent ſuch carnall ſurmiſes, the ſpirit of God ſets downe this circumſtance of time; ſaying, that he did not refuſe it in his youth: but when hee was come to age, that is, to perfect yeares of diſcretion, and by reaſon thereof, muſt needs haue conſideration and iudgement to know what he C did; then did he refuſe this honour, to be Pharaohs daughters ſonne and heire. In the ſeuenth of the Acts, we ſhall ſee that he was fourty years olde when he did this. And therefore this is true which is here ſaid, that when he was come to age and ſtaiednes: then he refuſed this honour: for, fourtie yeares is a time, not onely of ripeneſſe for ſtrength: but of ſtaiedneſſe in iudgement and diſcretion.

Out of this circumſtance we learne two points. 1. That it is a common fault of yong yeares, to be ſubiect to inconſideration and raſhneſſe: for, Moſes did not refuſe the honour of Pharaohs daughter, when he was young, leſt it ſhould ſeeme to be a point of raſhneſſe: but when he was come to age (as the text ſaith): inſi- D nuating, that if he had done it when he was young, it might haue beene eſteemed but a raſh part, and done in ſome haſtie paſſion of youth. Euery age of man hath his faults: and this is the fault of youth, to be heady and raſh in their affaires, for want of cōſideration and experience. And therefore all young perſons muſt haue care of theſe ſinnes of youth, and watch the more againſt them, becauſe they are ſo incident to their yeares. Now the way to auoyde them, is to followe Chriſts example, Luk. 2. 52. to labour to growe, as in yeares, ſo in wiſedome and grace: and to obey the counſell of Paul to Timothy, 2.Tim.2. 22. to fly the luſts of youth: following after iuſtice, faith, charity, and peace, with all that call vpon the name of the Lord with a pure heart.

Secondly, this circumſtance of time, noting Moſes deliberate ſtaiedneſſe in this fact, doth plainely aduertiſe vs, what is, or ſhould be, the vertue of old age, and the ornament of yeares: namely, ſtaiedneſſe and diſcretion: whereby I meane, not onely that naturall temper of affection, which olde age bringeth with it: but ſuch religious diſcretion, whereby men of yeares doe all things in faith, ſo as their works may be acceptable and pleaſing vnto God. For, when a man is growen in yeares, and hath had experience and obſeruation in the Church of God, he muſt not onely haue a generall knowledge and wiſedome, but a particular wiſedome, whereby he may do in faith, whatſoeuer he takes in hand, and therein pleaſe God. But alas, this may be ſpoken of old men in theſe daies, that in regard of this wiſedome, they are very babes: a thing greately diſgracefull to their condition. For, Paul biddes the Corinthians, 1.Cor. 14. 20. that they ſhould not be childrē in vnderſtanding, but of ripe age: yea, and he forbiddes the Epheſians, Eph. 4. 14. to be children ſtill, wauering and carried about with euery winde of doctrine. Whereby we may ſee, that aged perſons doe quite degenerate from that they ought to be, when they are babes in knowledge, voide of ſpirituall wiſedome. Indeede, we muſt graunt, that our aged perſons are worldly wiſe; and he muſt haue a cunning head, and (as we ſay) riſe early, that herein goes beyond them: But bring them to the book of God, and to giue a reaſon of their actions, that they are done in faith; herein, they are meere babes, and ignorant: neither cā they tel what it is to do a thing in faith, ſo as it may be acceptable to God. Herein, many that are yong in yeares, doe quite outſtrippe them. What would we thinke or ſay of a child, that being ſet to a good ſchoole, ſhould ſtill be in the loweſt forme, though he had long continued at it? Surely we would iudge him either exceeding negligent, or deſtitute of ordinary capacitie.

Behold, the Church of God is the ſchoole of Chriſt: and if a man haue liued long therein, (as twenty, or fourty yeares) and yet be no wiſer in religion, then a young child; is it not a ſhame vnto him? and ſhall we not condemne him of great negligence? Wherefore, let all aged perſons here learne their dutie; which is, to growe to ripeneſſe in ſpirituall wiſedome, that ſo their age may be to them a crowne of glory, beeing found in the way of righteouſneſſe, Prou. 16. 31.

VERSE 25.

And choſe rather to ſuffer aduerſitie with the people of God, then to enioy the pleaſures of ſinne for a ſeaſon.

THe meaning of theſe words is this: Moſes caſt with himſelfe, that if he ſhould yeild to become heire to Pharaohs daughter, he muſt liue with her, and pleaſe her in all things, and ſo altogether leaue Gods Church, and people, and Gods holy religion; which thing to doe, he abhorred in his heart: and withall, he muſt leaue and loſe the eternall bleſſedneſſe of Gods children, for the honours, and ſinnefull pleaſures of the Court, which were but momentany. Theſe things conſidered, he chooſeth rather to be in affliction and miſerie with the people of God, then vpon theſe conditions, to liue in Pharaohs Court, and to become his daughters ſonne and heire.

And becauſe this may ſeem a ſtrange choiſe, the holy Ghoſt doth afterward render a reaſon hereof, which is this; Becauſe Moſes liked rather to inioy the prerogatiues of Gods Church (though it were in miſerie) then to enioy any honour in a wicked Court, ſuch as indeed Pharaohs was.

In this verſe therefore, we are to note a ſecond fruit of Moſes faith; to wit, that he preferred the fellowſhip and communion of Gods Saints, before all other ſocieties in the world. The ſame alſo was Dauids practiſe, Pſal. 16. 3. All my delight ( ſaith he) is in the Saints that dwell on the earth.

This fruite of Moſes faith, doth diſcouer vnto vs a grieuous fault, which raigneth in this age; to wit, the neglect and contempt of the communion and ſocietie of Saints. There is a ſocietie and fellowſhip that is loued and magnified among vs; but what manner of ſocietie is that? ſurely of ſuch as giue themſelues to drinking, ieſting, ſcoffing, riot, mirth, gaming. This is the common and generall good fellowſhip: through which, God is greatly diſhonoured. For moſt men ſet their delight therein, and are neuer merrie but in ſuch company, wherein indeede they delight themſelues in their ſenſualitie. True it is, men pleade that this good fellowſhip is a vertue. But then was Moſes farre ouer-ſeene: for in Pharaohs Court he might haue had all kinde of ſuch good fellowſhip and company; yet he likes it not, but rather chooſeth affliction and miſerie with the people of God, then to enioy ſuch fellowſhip in Pharaohs Court. And as for the goodneſſe of it, it is neither ſo eſteemed, nor called by any, but by them that call good euill, and euill good. Wee ſee, Moſes a man of wiſedome and learning, Acts 7.23. no child, but a man of xl. yeares old, hates and abhorres this good fellowſhip, as the worſt eſtate in the world: rather chooſing the ſocietie of a miſerable and perſecuted Church, then the beſt of that fellowſhip which a Kings Court could yeild. Let vs therefore learne more wiſdome out of his practiſe. Some ſay, this good fellowſhip is harmeleſſe; and ſuch men who thus merrily paſſe their times, doe no ſuch hurt as many others doe. But I anſwer, men are borne to doe good. Againe, to miſſpend time, wealth, & wit, are not theſe euil and harmefull, both in themſelues, and in the example? And which is worſt of all, it is no fellowſhip with God, nor any part of the communion of Saints, but rather a fellowſhip with Satan: therefore, let all that will, like true Chriſtians, haue true comfort in that article of their Creed, the communion of Saints, eſteeme the fellowſhip of good and holy men aboue all other. For, by this cõmunion with Gods Saints, a man reapes great profit, when as the other brings to a man the ruine both of his bodie and ſoule. By the ſociety of the godly, we are firſt made partakers of their gifts and holy graces; and ſecondly, of their prayers, and the bleſſings of God vpon them: which things, if there were no other, might mooue vs to embrace this bleſſed ſociety before all other. And yet further; by beeing of this ſociety, a man auoids many of Gods iudgements: If there had beene tenne righteous men in Sodome, they had all beene ſpared from deſtruction. Wherein we may ſee that they that cleaue to ſuch as feare the Lord indeede, neuer receiue harme, but rather much good; for, for the elects ſake it is, that the world yet ſtandeth: and if they were gathered, heauen and earth would goe together; but for the calling of the Elect, the hand of God is yet ſtaied. Why then ſhould not Moſes example be our rule, Aboue all worldly pleaſure to reioyce in the ſocietie of Gods Saints.

Gen.18.32.

Thus much in generall: Now, in the particular words, are many notable points of doctrine, which we will touch in their order. And choſe rather, &c.] Marke here a rare & ſtrange choiſe as euer we ſhall reade of. There are two things propounded to Moſes: The firſt is, honour and preferment in Pharaohs Court; to be ſonne & heire to Pharaohs daughter: wherewith he might haue enioyed all earthly pleaſures and delights. The ſecond is, the miſerable afflicted condition of Gods Church and people.

And of theſe two, Moſes muſt needs chooſe the one: well what chooſeth he? Surely he refuſeth the prerogatiues and dignity, that he might haue had in Pharohs Court, and makes choiſe of the miſerie and affliction of Gods people in aduerſitie; that ſo he may enioy the priuiledges of Gods Church. A wonderfull choiſe: for which, his faith is here commended, and he renowned to all poſteritie. The ſame choiſe hath God ſet before all men in all ages. In former times God ſet before Eſau two things; A meſſe of redde broth, and his birth-right: but profane Eſau chooſeth the worſer, he forgoes his birthright, ſo he may haue the broth. But far worſe did the Gaderens; there was ſet before them Chriſt Ieſus the Lord of life, and their hogges and cattell: Now they preferre their hogges before Chriſt; A moſt miſerable and ſenſeleſſe choice. And is it not as ill with vs? There is ſet before vs on the one ſide heauen, and on the other ſide hell; but men for the moſt part chooſe hell and forſake heauen. Ciuill worldly men whoſe delight is all in riches, they prefer earth before heauen, the ſeruice of ſinne, which is the greateſt ſlauerie, before the ſeruice of God, which is perfect freedome, and glorious liber-

A ty of the Saints in light: and thus doe all men without Gods ſpeciall grace. Wheteupon Paul prayes in his Epiſtles for the Churches, that God would giue vnto them the ſpirit of wiſedome, that they may be able to iudge betweene things that differ. And this wiſedome we muſt labour for, that when theſe different things are ſet before vs, we may make a wiſe choice: otherwiſe, we ſhew out ſelues to be like bruite beaſts without vnderſtanding, & do quite ouerturne out own ſaluation. In the Miniſtery of the word we haue life and death, good and euill, ſet before vs, as Moſes ſaid to the people, Deut. 30.15.19. Let vs therefore endeauour our ſelues to chuſe life by embracing and obeying the word of B God: and ſo ſhall we followe both his precept and practiſe.

Philip 1.10.

To ſuffer aduerſitie with the people of God. Here we may obſerue what is the ordinary ſtate and condition of Gods Church and people in this world: namely, to be in affliction and vnder the croſſe. Hence Paul ſaith, That we muſt come to heauen through manifold afflictions, Act. 14.22. The Lord knoweth what is beſt for his ſeruants and children: and therefore he hath ſet downe this for a ground, that all that will liue godly in Chriſt Ieſus, muſt ſuffer perſecution, 2. Tim. 3. 12.

Thus the Lord dealeth with his children for ſpeciall cauſes: for firſt, all croſſes, as loſſe of goods, friends, libertie, or good name, they are C means to ſtirre vp and awake Gods people out of the ſlumbring fit of ſinne; for the godly are many times ouertaken this way. The wiſe virgins ſleepe, as well as the fooliſh: Now, afflictions rouze them out of the ſleepe of ſecuritie. See this in Ioſephs brethren, who went on a long time without any remorſe for ſelling their brother: But when they were ſtaied in Egypt, then they are rouzed vp, and can ſay, Gen. 42. 21. This trouble is come vpon vs, for ſelling our brother.

Secondly, afflictions ſerue to humble Gods children, Leuit. 26. 41. So the Church of God ſpeaketh, I will beare the wrath of the Lord, becauſe I haue ſinned againſt him, Micha. 7.9.

D Thirdly, they ſerue to weane the people of God, and to driue them from the loue of this world: for, if men might alwaies liue in eaſe, they would make their heauen vpon earth; which may not be. And herein God dealeth with his children like a Nurſe; when ſhe will weane her child, ſhe layes ſome bitter thing vpon the pappes head, to make the child to loath the pappe; ſo the Lord, to drawe our hearts from the world, and to cauſe vs to loue and ſeeke after heauen & heauenly things, he makes vs to taſte of the bitterneſſe of affliction in this world. Fourthly, afflictions ſerue to make Gods children to goe out of themſelues to ſeeke ſincerely vnto God, and to relie onely vpon him: which in proſperitie they will not do. This, Paul confeſſeth of himſelfe and others; We (ſaith he) receiued the ſentence of death in our ſelues, becauſe we ſhould not truſt in our ſelues, but in god: 2. Cor. 1.9. So good King Iehoſaphat, when he was compaſſed of his enemies, He cried to the Lord, and ſaid; Lord we knowe not what to doe, but our eyes are towards thee: 2. Chron. 20. 12. Yea, the rebellious Iewes are hereby driuen to ſeeke the Lord, whom in proſpertie they forſooke; as wee may ſee at large, Pſal. 107. 6. 12.13.19.

Laſtly, afflictions ſerue to make manifeſt the graces of God in his children. The Lord (ſaith Iob) knoweth my way and trieth me, Iob 23.10. Deut. 8. 2. Remember all the way (ſaith Moſes to the Iſraelites) which the Lord thy God ledde thee this fourty yeares, for to prooue thee and to knowe what was in thine heart. Hence Iames calleth temptations, the triall of faith, Iam. 1.2, 3. And Paul makes patience, the fruite of tribulation, Rom. 5. 3. For looke as the ſhowers in the ſpring time cauſe the buds to appeare: ſo doe afflictions make manifeſt Gods graces in his children. Patience, hope, and other vertues, lie cloſe in the heart in the day of peace: but when tribulation comes, then they breake forth and ſhew themſelues.

Hence we learne, that it is not alwaies a token of Gods wrath, To ſuffer affliction. If any man or people be laden with croſſes, it is no argument, that therefore they are not the children of God: for, as Peter ſaith, Iudgements begin at Gods houſe, 1. Pet. 4. 17. and any croſſe vpon a people, family, or particular perſons, if it bring forth the fruite of grace in them, is a true ſigne, they belong to God. Yea, when men wander from God by an euill way, theſe afflictions are meanes to call them home to God. Pſal. 119. 67. Before I was afflicted, I went aſtray. And they that forſake their ſinne & returne to God in the time of affliction, are certainely Gods people: for, the wicked man fretteth and murmureth againſt God when a croſſe commeth, and he cannot abide it. But the godly man is humbled thereby, and it makes him more obedient in all duties vnto God.

This we ſhould conſider: for by an outward profeſſion, we beare the world in hand, that we are Gods children, and therefore we come to heare Gods word, and to learne how to behaue our ſelues as beſeemeth his children. But if we would be knowne to be Gods children indeede, then when any of Gods iudgements doe befall vs, we muſt make this vſe of them; namely, labour thereby to be humbled for our ſinnes, and to forſake our ſinnes, and to make conſcience of all bad wayes for euer afterward; and then we ſhew our ſelues to be Gods children indeede: but if vnder the croſſe, or after the croſſe, we be as diſſolute as euer we were, and ſtill followe our olde ſinnes, then we cannot be iudged to be Gods people and children, but rather a wicked & ſtubborne generation, which the more they are corrected, the worſe they are; like a ſtithy, the more it is beaten, the harder it is. Let vs therefore by the vſe of Gods iudgements, ſhewe our ſelues to be Gods children: ſo ſhall we ſay, with Dauid with much ioy and comfort, It is good for vs that we haue beene in trouble, Pſal. 119. 71.

Thus we ſee Moſes choiſe: now come we to the thing he refuſed; To enioy the pleaſures of ſinne for a ſeaſon. By pleaſures of ſinne, we muſt vnderſtand the riches and dignitie that Moſes might haue had in Pharaohs Court and Kingdome: Which are called the pleaſures of ſinne, not becauſe they were ſo in themſelues; for, ſo they were the good gifts of God: but becauſe Moſes could not enioy them in Pharaohs Court, without liuing in ſinne; for, he muſt haue refuſed the ſocietie of Gods Church and people, and ſo haue beene a ſtranger from the couenant which God made with Abraham, Iſaac, and Iaacob, and with his ſeede after them, if he would haue beene ſonne to Pharaohs daughter.

Here then the holy Ghoſt ſetteth down two notable reaſons, which induced Moſes to refuſe theſe honours and dignities: Firſt, becauſe they were the pleaſures of ſinne; And ſecondly, becauſe he ſhould enioy them but for a ſeaſon.

The firſt reaſon affordeth vnto vs many notable points worthie our conſideration. 1. Here we learne, that riches, honour, and dignity ſeuered from true religion, are nothing but the pleaſures and profits of ſinne. This was Moſes iudgement, as the holy Ghoſt here teſtifieth: and it is the plaine truth of God, as Salomon after lamentable experience diſputeth, and prooueth at large: concluding of riches, honour, pleaſures, and all earthly things ſeparated from the feare of God, that they are nothing elſe but meere vanity and vexation of ſpirit. And Paul ſaith, To the impure all things are impure; his meate, drinke, and apparell, which in themſelues are otherwiſe the good gifts of God.

Eccleſ. all ouer.

Tit. 1. 15.

The conſideration hereof is of great vſe: for, firſt it lets vs ſee what is the ſtate of theſe men which lay aſide religion and good conſcience, and betake themſelues wholly to the world, to get riches and preferment: moſt men are of this diſpoſition, and ſuch indeed are onely counted wiſe. For, let there be ſpeech tending to a mans commendation, vſually this is the firſt matter of his praiſe, that he is a ſubſtantiall wealthy man; and one that lookes well to himſelfe: as though riches, or honour were a mans chiefe happineſſe. But, howſoeuer the world iudgeth of theſe men; yet hereby we may ſee and know, that their caſe is miſerable. For, without religion and the feare of God, their riches and honours are but the pleaſures and profits of ſinne: & therfore the more they heape vp riches after this ſort, not regarding Chriſt, nor his Goſpel; the more they heape vp to themſelues the treaſures of ſinne, and conſequently the greater condemnation: for worldly treaſures ſeuered from religiō, are but the Mammon of iniquity, which cauſeth damnation. Hence Chriſt ſaid vnto his Diſciples (vpon occaſion of the young rich man) that it was as eaſie for a great Camell to goe through the eye of a needle, as for a rich man to enter into the kingdome of heauen; that is, ſuch a rich man as ſets his heart to get riches and honour, not regarding the religion of Chriſt. Whence alſo in another place he pronounceth this fearefull ſentence againſt them: Woe be to you that are rich, for you haue receiued your conſolation: Luk. 6. 24. They therefore that lay aſide religion, and giue themſelues wholly to ſeeke gaine and honour, are before God moſt wretched and miſerable: and the longer they continue in this courſe, the more miſerable they are; for the more ſinne they heape vp, and ſo the deeper ſhall be their condemnation. Wherefore if any of vs haue beene thus minded hertofore, let vs now leaue this courſe, as moſt dangerous to our ſoules: for what will it profit a man to gaine the whole world, if he loſe his ſoule?

Matth 19. 24.

2. Hence we muſt all learne, eſpecially they that haue any meaſure of wealth more or leſſe, to ioyne with the vſe of our riches the feare of God, and the practiſe of true religion: for, ſeuer theſe aſunder, and riches are nothing elſe but ſinnefull pleaſures. It is a good conſcience which rectifieth the owner in the right vſe of his honour and treaſures: but without that, he pollutes the bleſſings of god which he enioyes, and they beeing polluted ſhall turne to his greater woe. A man would haue thought that King Belſhazzer had been an happy man, when he kept his royall feaſt, and dranke wine in golden bowls before a thouſand Princes that were vnder him, and before his Concubines: but the ende of all that his iollity may ſhewe vs the nature of ſuch proſperitie. For ſo ſoone as he ſaw the fingers of a mans hand, writing vpon the wall, he became quite confounded in himſelfe: his countenance was changed, and his thoughts troubled him; ſo that the ioynts of his loines were looſed, and his knees ſmote one againſt the other: What comfort had he now from all his riches and pleaſures? So Diues, while he liued, might ſeeme for his wealth and riches to be happy: yet all this did him little good; for, he had but his pleaſure for his life time, Luk. 16. 25. and after this life, his ſoule went downe to hell. A worldly man would iudge the rich man in the Goſpel, a moſt happy man, that ſaide to his ſoule, by reaſon of his great aboundance of outward wealth, Luke 12. 19. Soule, ſoule, thou haſt much goods laide vp for many yeares, liue at eaſe, eate, drinke, and take thy fill: yet becauſe herewith he wanted religion, a good conſcience, and the feare of God, this ſentence was denounced againſt him; Oh foole this night will they fetch away thy ſoule: then, whoſe ſhall theſe things be? Wherefore, vnleſſe we will wilfully caſt away our owne ſoules, let vs ſanctifie our intereſt in all earthly bleſſings, by a ſincere endeauour in all things, to ſhew forth the feare of God, with the keeping of faith and a good con-ſcience: & let vs begin with this, as Chriſt ſaith, Firſt ſeeke Gods Kingdome and his righteouſneſſe, Mat. 6. 33. Let vs hereby ſeeke to haue our hearts acceptable vnto God; and then all things ſhall be cleane vnto vs.

Thirdly, are riches and honour, beeing ſeuered from true religion, but the pleaſures of ſinne? then vndoubtedly all recreations, all ſports, and paſtimes, ſeuered from religion and a good conſcience, are much more the pleaſures of ſinne. This Salomon knewe well: for, ſpeaking of ſuch mirth, he calles laughter madneſſe; and to ioy (he ſaith). what is it that thou doeſt? Eccle. 2. 2. Oh then how manifold be the ſinnes of al ſorts of men? for who almoſt doth not neglect religious duties for matters of ſport and pleaſure? Wherefore if we deſire ioy indeede in any worldly things, let vs firſt lay the foundation in our owne hearts, by getting and keeping true faith and a good conſcience.

Secondly, whereas Moſes refuſeth dignitie and honour onely for this, Becauſe they would be vnto him the pleaſures of ſinne; here we are taught in what manner and order we ought to enioy worldly riches and honour. Moſes practiſe here, muſt be our direction; we muſt enioy them and vſe them with thankfulneſſe to God, ſo farre forth as they will further vs in the courſe of religion and true godlineſſe. But if the caſe ſtand thus, That we cannot enioy them both together, then we muſt followe Moſes example; chooſe religion and a good conſcience, and let honour and preferment goe. This is Moſes practiſe: and we may reſolue our ſelues, that if he might haue enioyed them together, he would haue refuſed neither; but becauſe he could not haue them both, therefore he preferreth the religion of Chriſt with a good conſcience, before the honour and wealth of Egypt.

Thirdly, note this, Moſes doth not onely refuſe the riches and pleaſures of Egypt, when they would become vnto him the pleaſures of ſinne; but rather then he will enioy them, he is content to ſuffer great miſerie and aduerſitie with Gods people. Where, behold a ſingular vertue in Moſes: He iudgeth it to be the greateſt miſerie, to liue in ſinne; and therefore he chooſeth rather to ſuffer any aduerſitie and reproach in this world, then liue and lie in ſinne: becauſe thereby, he ſhould diſpleaſe God, his moſt louing father in Chriſt. A moſt notable vertue in this ſeruant of God: & the like muſt beare all thoſe, that haue the ſame graces of ſauing faith, and true repentance that Moſes had. S. Paul eſteemed the Temptations vnto ſinne, which Satan ſuggeſted into his minde, to be as beatings and buffettings, & as pricks and thorns in his fleſh, 2. Cor. 12. 7. And Dauid ſaith, Pſal. 119. 136. His eyes guſh out riuers of waters, becauſe men brake Gods commandements. Was Dauid thus grieued for other mens ſinnes? Oh! then what a griefe did he ſuffer, when he himſelfe brake Gods commandements, and thereby diſpleaſed God?

Now, looke how theſe ſeruants of God were affected, ſo muſt euery one of vs, that profeſſe the faith and religion of Chriſt, labour to be affected towards ſinne; we muſt iudge it the greateſt miſerie and torment in the world, to doe any thing that ſhal diſpleaſe God. But alas, come to our daies, and the caſe is farre otherwiſe; for, to moſt men, it is meate and drinke vnto them to commit ſinne: ſo farre are they from counting it a miſerie. Yea if a man be ordinarily addicted to ſome ſpeciall ſinne, you then may as ſoone take away his life, as bereaue him of his ſinne: he will aduenture the loſſe of heauen for euer, for the pleaſure of ſinne for a time. But all ſuch, are farre vnlike theſe holy ſeruants of God; for they counted it the greateſt croſſe, and miſerie that could be, to doe any thing that diſpleaſed God, and did checke and break the peace of a good conſcience. And if we looke to enioy like peace and comfort with them; we muſt ſtriue againſt our owne corrupt diſpoſition, and labour to finde ſinne to be our greateſt ſorrow. Worldly miſeries may affect vs: but, in reſpect of ſorrowe for ſinne, all worldly griefe ſhould be light vnto vs. Indeed, we are otherwiſe minded naturally: but herein, we muſt ſhewe the power and truth of grace, that to diſpleaſe God by any ſinne, is our greateſt griefe.

The ſecond reaſon, that mooued Moſes to refuſe the honours and pleaſures of Pharaohs Court, was, becauſe he ſhould haue enioyed them but for a time: for, the time of his naturall life, was the longeſt that poſſibly he could haue enioyed thē. And the ſame reaſon muſt mooue euery one of vs, to vſe this world, and all things herein (euen all temporall benefits) as though we vſed them not: being alwaies willing and ready to leaue them whenſoeuer God ſhal call. This ſame reaſon doth Paul render when he perſwades the Corinthians to the ſame dutie, 1. Cor. 7. 31. Vſe this world (ſaith he) as though you vſed it not; for the faſhion of this world goeth away. As if he ſhould ſay, All things in the world laſt but for a time; and if a man would neuer ſo faine, he could but enioy them to the ende of his life: & therefore, vſe them as though you vſed them not. But pitty it is to ſee, how farre men are from the practiſe of this duty; for, they ſet their whole heart vpon the world: and to get riches is their delight, and their god. This ought not ſo to be; God hath not laid downe theſe precepts and examples in vaine: vndoubtedly, if they drawe vs not to the like practiſe, they ſhall riſe vp in iudgement againſt vs, at the laſt day. And thus much of Moſes choyce, and refuſall.

VERSE 26.

Eſteeming the rebuke of Chriſt greater riches, then the treaſures of Egypt; for he had reſpect to the recompence of reward.

19649a

MOſes (as we haue heard) refuſed the honour and wealth of Egypt, and choſe to liue in affliction with Gods people. Now, becauſe this might ſeeme to be a ſtrange choyce, and a naturall man would ſoone condemne him of folly for his labour: therefore here the holy Ghoſt laies downe a reaſon that mooued Moſes thus to doe: to wit, Moſes choſe rather to ſuffer affliction with Gods people, then to enioy the pleaſures and honours of Egypt: becauſe he was perſwaded, that reproach for Chriſt his ſake, was greater riches, then all the wealth in Egypt. So that he refuſed not abſolutely riches, honour, and other comforts: but choſe the beſt riches and honour, and left the worſer, vpon a ſound iudgement betweene things that did differ.

Hereby we may obſerue in generall, how needefull a thing it is for euery Chriſtian, to haue ſound knowledge and vnderſtanding in the word of God. For, he that would walke vprightly, and approoued of God, muſt be able to iudge betweene things that differ: not onely betweene good and euill, but betweene good and good, which is the better: and ſo of euils, which is the worſer. Which, no man can do, but he that hath a ſound and right iudgement in the word of God: for therein is attained the ſpirit of diſcerning. Many there be, that by the courſe of their liues chooſe hell, and refuſe heauen: which, vndoubtedly, comes from their ignorance in the word. But ignorance will excuſe none. He that will come to heauen, muſt be able to diſcerne good from euill: & accordingly, to chuſe the good, and to refuſe that which is euill; which, without diuine, and ſupernaturall knowledge, no man can doe. And therefore all ignorant perſons, and all ſuch as are blinded through the deceitfulneſſe of ſinne, muſt ſhake off their ſecuritie, and get ſound knowledge in Scripture, with a good conſcience; that when things which doe differ are ſet before them, they may with Moſes chooſe the better.

But let vs come to Moſes iudgement more particularly. He eſteemed the rebuke of Chriſt, &c. that is, he was firmely reſolued, that reproach and contempt for Chriſt his ſake, was greater riches vnto him, then the treaſures of a whole kingdome. But ſome will ſay, This is a very ſtrange iudgement: can it poſſibly be true and good? Anſ. Yes vndoubtedly, it is moſt ſound iudgement, and worthy eternall remembrance of euery one of vs: that to ſuffer reproach for Chriſt his ſake, is greater riches then al worldly wealth. The truth herof is prooued by many reaſons out of Gods word. 1. God hath made a promiſe of bleſſedneſſe to thoſe which ſuffer for Chriſts ſake. Bleſſed are you (ſaith Chriſt) when men reuile you, and ſpeake all manner of euil ſayings againſt you for my names ſake, &c. Math.5. And S. Peter ſaith, If ye be railed vpon for my names ſake, bleſſed are ye. 1.Pet.4.14. And leaſt any ſhould doubt how this can be, Chriſt ſhewes wherein this bleſſednes conſiſts, saying; He that forſaketh houſes, or brethren, or ſiſters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my names ſake; ſhall receiue an hundred fold more, and ſhal inherit eternall life. Matth.19.29. A moſt worthy promiſe, aſſuring vs that no man looſeth by ſuffering for Chriſts ſake; for, he ſhall be rewarded an hũdred fold ouer. In ſtead of earthly friends, and worldly comforts, he ſhall haue the loue and fauour of God ſhed abroad in his heart; which will be an ouer-flowing fountaine of comfort for ſoule and bodie for euer, far more worth then the wealth and treaſures of all the kingdomes in the world. A ſmall ſpringing fountaine (we know) is better to an houſe, then a hundred Ciſterns full; becauſe of continuall ſupply from the ſpringing fountaine, when the Ciſterns will be ſpent. Behold the loue of God in Chriſt, with other ſpirituall graces, ſhall be in all that ſuffer for the name of Chriſt, as liuing ſtreames flowing vnto life eternall; when as the ciſterns of all worldly pleaſures and treaſures, ſhall be ſpent and dried vp. 2. By ſuffering affliction for Chriſts ſake, we are made conformable vnto him in his humilitie; that ſo we may be made like vnto him after this life in glorie. So Paul ſaith, Our light affliction cauſeth vnto vs an eternall weight of glory, 2. Cor. 4.17. And againe, it is a true ſaying; If we be dead with Chriſt, we ſhall alſo liue with him: If we ſuffer we ſhall alſo raigne with him, 2.Tim.2.11.12. This aſſurance can no worldly riches giue: and therefore we may boldly ſay, that the ſuffering of reproach for Chriſt his ſake, is greater riches then the treaſures of a whole kingdome. 3. To ſuffer for Chriſt his ſake, is a token of Gods ſpeciall loue: & therefore S. Paul bids the Philippians, Not to feare their aduerſaries: which is a token of ſaluation vnto them, and that of God; becauſe it is giuen to you (ſaith he) for Chriſt, that you ſhould not onely beleeue, but ſuffer for his ſake. Philip.28.29. Wherefore if ſuffering for Chriſt haue a promiſe of bleſſedneſſe; if it make vs conformable vnto Chriſt, and be a ſigne of Gods ſpeciall loue; then, it is to be eſteemed aboue the riches and honours of the whole world.

Are afflictions for Chriſt to be eſteemed aboue the treaſures of a kingdome? then we muſt all learne to reioyce in the troubles and wrongs which we ſuffer for Chriſts ſake. So did the Apoſtles, Act. 5.41. They departed from the Councel, reioyceing that they were counted worthy to ſuffer affliction for his name. And S. Paul brags thereof greatly, ſaying; I beare in my bodie the markes of the Lord Ieſus, Gal. 6.17. And looke, as theſe ſeruants of God reioyced in their ſufferings for Chriſt: ſo likewiſe muſt we labour for the ſame heart and affections in the like caſe; for, who would not reioyce to be made partaker and poſſeſſor of the treaſures of a kingdome? Well, the rebuke of Chriſt is greater riches then the treaſures of a kingdome.

This leſſon is of great vſe: for howſoeuer

Moſes faith.

A many among vs come to heare Gods word, yet there be many alſo, that ſcoffe and mocke at religion, and at the Goſpel of Chriſt, and the profeſſors thereof; whereby, the moſt are hindred in profeſſion, and many daunted, and quite driuen backe. But we muſt here learne, not to be diſcouraged by theſe mockes. Indeede we muſt take heede, we giue them no iuſt occaſion to mocke vs; and then if we be ſcoffed at, we ſhall neuer be hurt by it: nay (though that be farre from their intent) yet in mocking vs, they doe vs great honour. For the word of God that cannot lie, is this; that to ſuffer affliction for Chriſts ſake, is greater honour and riches, then the treaſures of a kingdome. And if Moſes iudgement be good, which God himſelfe doth here commend; then we are happy & bleſſed, in enduring theſe mocks and ſcoffes for Chriſt.

Secondly, we muſt here learne inſtruction for the time to come: We haue a long time, through the great goodnes of God, enioyed peace and wealth, with the Goſpel of Chriſt; but vndoubtedly, theſe daies of peace will haue an ende, they cannot laſt alwaies, Gods people muſt paſſe through the fierie furnace of affliction. Well, when this is come vpon vs, how ſhall we be able to beare it? Surely, we muſt now learne to be of this opinion that Moſes was of; we muſt iudge it to be the greateſt honour and riches that can be, to ſuffer affliction for Chriſts ſake: and this will be the ground of all conſtancie, courage, and Chriſtian boldnes in the day of triall. For he that is of this minde, will neuer feare affliction, nor reproach for Chriſts ſake: nay, he will be ſo farre from fearing it, that he will reioyce and triumph therein.

Further, whereas it is ſaid, Eſteeming the rebuke of Chriſt; here marke, the rebuke of Gods Church & people is called the rebuke of Chriſt. The people of God in Egypt were laden with reproaches and rebukes: and behold, Chriſt accounts it his rebuke, and the holy Ghoſt ſo cals it. Where learne this, That Chriſt eſteemeth the reproach and affliction of his Church, as his owne affliction. When Saul went to perſecute the brethren at Damaſcus, Act. 9. 2. 4. Chriſt Ieſus calls to him from heauen, ſaying; Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me? Saul went to perſecute the Chriſtians, and yet our Sauiour Chriſt taketh it vnto himſelfe. And after his conuerſion he ſaith, 2. Cor. 4. 10. Euery way we beare about in our bodies, the dying of the Lord Ieſus. And againe, Let no man put me to buſineſſe: for I beare in my bodie the markes of the Lord Ieſus, Gal. 6. 17. This is a point of ſpeciall vſe.

Firſt, hence we learne, that Chriſt hath a ſpeciall care of his Church and children, in that he iudgeth their afflictions to be his owne afflictions; and therefore he can no more forget, or leaue off to helpe them in diſtreſſe, then denie himſelfe.

Secondly, here is a ſpeciall comfort for Gods children that be in affliction: their afflictions are not their owne alone, but Chriſts alſo; he is their partner, and fellow ſufferer. This may ſeeme ſtrange, but it is moſt true: Chriſt puts (as it were) his ſhoulders vnder our afflictions, and takes them to himſelfe, as though they were his owne; then which, what can be more comfortable? For, though thou thy ſelfe cannot beare it, yet truſt vndoubtedly, that Chriſt who beares with thee, will giue thee ſtrength to vndergoe it vnto victorie.

Thirdly, if the afflictions of a Chriſtian, be the afflictions of Chriſt; then it is a fearefull ſinne for any man to mocke or reproach his brother, in regard of his profeſſion and religion: for, mocking is perſecution; Gal. 4. 29. with Gen. 21. 9. And that reproach which is caſt B vpon a Chriſtian, is caſt vpon Chriſt; and Chriſt takes it as done vnto himſelfe: the perſecutor wounds Chriſt Ieſus through the ſides of a poore Chriſtian; which is a fearefull thing. For in ſo doing, he ſets himſelfe againſt the Lord Ieſus, he kickes againſt the prickes; and if he ſo continue, he muſt needes looke for ſome fearefull ende: for who hath euer beene fierce againſt the Lord, and hath proſpered? Iob 9. 4. Wherefore, if any of vs be guiltie of any ſinne in this kind, let vs repent: for vnleſſe we turne, our condemnation will be remedileſſe.

Againe, the afflictions of the Iſraelites, are here ſaid to be their ſufferings for Chriſt: where note, that though Chriſt his comming were then a farre off, yet the Iſraelites then knew C of Chriſt: for elſe they could not ſuffer for him.

This confuteth thoſe which hold, that euery man may be ſaued by his owne religion, whatſoeuer it be, if he liue ciuilly and vprightly therein. Their reaſon is taken from the Iewes, who (they ſay) had onely the knowledge of outward ceremonies, and ſo were ſaued. But that opinion is here diſprooued: for the Iewes knew Chriſt, and profeſſed him, or elſe they would neuer ſuffer for him: and therefore they were ſaued by him, and not by their obedience to outward ceremonies. And thus much of the reaſon, which mooued Moſes to make ſuch a choiſe as he did.

Now in the ende of the verſe is added a rea- D ſon, why Moſes was of this ſtrange iudgement, to thinke the reproach of Chriſt greater riches then the treaſures of Egypt: namely, becauſe he had reſpect to the recompence of reward. That is, he often ſet his eye to behold, and his heart to conſider, how God had made a promiſe of life euerlaſting after this life, vnto all thoſe that obeyed him, and truſted in him after this life: for the enioying whereof, he preferred that eſtate wherein he might liue in the feare of God, though it were a ſtate of reproach, before all other whatſoeuer. Where we ſee, what it is will bring a man to eſteeme affliction, with the feare of God, better then the treaſures and pleaſures of an earthly kingdome: namely, as we ſet the bodily eye to behold the affliction; ſo wee muſt lift vp the eye of the minde by faith, to behold the recompence of reward; that is, the ſtate of glorie in heauen prepared for Gods children. Thus did the Chriſtian Hebrewes in the primitiue Church, Heb. 10. 37. They ſuffered with ioy the ſpoyling of their goods. (A very hard thing, but yet moſt true, for it is the word of God.) And the reaſon is rendred, They knewe in themſelues how that they had in heauen a better and more enduring ſubſtance. And our Sauiour Chriſt endured the Croſſe, and deſpiſed the ſhame, for the ioy that was ſet before him, Heb. 12. 1. that is, in conſideration of that ioy in glory, whereto hee ſhould be aduanced himſelfe, and bring all his members. This we muſt make vſe of: for if we will liue godly in Chriſt Ieſus, we muſt ſuffer affliction. This fleſh and blood will not yeeld vnto: and therefore, to perſwade vs to ſuffer with ioy, we muſt with Moſes haue reſpect to the recompence of reward. We muſt ſay thus to our ſoules, The day will come wherein we ſhall haue euerlaſting life in the Kingdom of heauen, if we now ſerue and feare him: Shall we not then for his ſake be content to ſuffer a ſhort affliction; ſeeing the greateſt of them are not worthie of the glory that ſhall be reuealed? Rom. 8. 18.

Queſt. But why doth the holy Ghoſt call euerlaſting life, a reward? Anſ. It is not ſo called becauſe Moſes did procure it, and deſerue it at Gods hand by the dignitie of his works in ſuffering: for ſure no man can merit any thing at Gods hands. The caſe is plaine: For, Chriſt as he is man (conſider his manhood a-part from his Godhead) could not merit any thing at Gods hands: for, he that would merit of God by any worke, muſt doe three things: 1. He muſt doe the worke of himſelfe, and by himſelfe; for if he doe it by an other, the other meriteth, and muſt haue the reward and praiſe of the worke. Secondly, he muſt doe it of meere good will, and not of dutie: for that which is of duty, cannot merit becauſe a man is bound to doe it. 3. The worke done to merit, muſt be of that price and dignity, that it may be proportionable to life euerlaſting, which is the reward. Now, though Chriſt as he is man, be aboue all men and all Angels in grace and dignitie: yet conſider his manhood a-part from his Godhead, and he could not doe a worke with theſe three properties. For firſt, the works done of the manhood were not done of it ſelfe, but from that fullneſſe of the ſpirit wherewith he was endued. Secondly, Chriſt as man is a creature: and ſo conſidered, his works are of duty to the Creator, and ſo cannot merit. Thirdly, Chriſts works as man ſimply conſidered are finite; and ſo could not merit infinite glory.

Queſt. How then did Chriſt merit at Gods hands? Anſ. Partly by meanes of Gods promiſes made in the Law, which was this; Doe this and thou ſhalt liue: but properly and chiefely, becauſe he was not a meere man onely, but (withall) true and very God: for, becauſe his obedience both in his life and death (though A performed in his manhoode) was the obedience of him that was God and man, euen from the infinite excellencie of the perſon whoſe it is, it becomes meritorious. In his manhood, he obayed the Law, and ſuffered for our ſinnes: but the dignitie thereof came from the Godhead: for, he that did theſe works for vs, was both God and man.

Now, if Chriſt conſidered as man onely cannot merit: then much leſſe can any other man merit at Gods hands. And therefore Moſes, though he were a worthie man, yet becauſe he was but a man, and a ſinnefull man alſo, he could not by any work deſerue life euerlaſting at Gods hands.

B But life euerlaſting is called a reward in the Scripture, becauſe it is the free gift of God, promiſed by God to his children in Chriſt; for this ende, to allure and drawe them on in obedience. And it muſt not ſeeme ſtrange, that we ſay a reward is a free gift: for ſo it may be, as we ſhall ſee by comparing two places of Scripture together; to wit, Matth. 5. 44. with Luk. 6. 32. For, whereas Matthew ſaith, If you loue them that loue you, what reward haue you: Saint Luke repeating the ſame thing, ſaith, What thanke haue you, or (as the word ſignifies) what fauour, or free gift haue you? Secondly, there may be another cauſe rendred, why life euerlaſting is called a reward; to wit, not in regard of the worke done: but in regard of the worker C conſidered in Chriſt: for Chriſts merit makes life euerlaſting to be a reward. Now, euery true beleeuer that endeauours to doe the will of God, is in Chriſt; and ſo Chriſts righteouſneſſe with the merit thereof, is his, ſo far forth as ſerues to make his perſon acceptable to God. Whereupon, he hath a promiſe of reward made vnto him vpon his obedience; yet not for his worke, but for the worke of Chriſts obedience in whom he is: And ſo muſt theſe words here be vnderſtood.

1. The conſideration of this reward of life eternall giuen, through Chriſt, to thoſe that ſuffer for his ſake, may make vs ioyfull and patient in all our afflictions for righteouſnes ſake. A naturall man will endure much for a good D recompence in the ende. Now Chriſt ſaith, Great is your reward. Matth. 5. 12. And therefore let vs reioice in ſuffring for Chriſt; holding faſt our cõfidence, which hath ſo great recompẽce of reward. Heb. 10. 35.

Secondly, is life euerlaſting a recompence, that is, a giuing of a reward? Then here is condemned the deſperate practiſe of many a one, who ſpend their whole life in a greedy purſuite after the profites and pleaſures of the world: as it were running themſelues out of breath in the way to hell, without all regard of their ſoules, till death come; thinking, that if at the laſt gaſpe they can crie God mercie, and commend their ſoules to God, all is well. But all ſuch perſons for the moſt part deceiue their owne ſoules, not conſidering that life euerlaſting is giuen as a reward, Now, we knowe that no reward is giuen to any man, till the worke be done which he is ſet about; he muſt come worke in the Vineyard ſome part of the day that would haue his pennie at night: as for thoſe that neither ſtirre hand nor foote to doe the worke; what reward can they looke for? And yet this is the ſtate of carnall liuers, they addict thẽſelues wholly to earthly things. But if we looke for any reward at the day of death, we muſt labour in the works of godlineſſe all the dayes of our life; for, therefore were we redeemed, Luk. 1. 74. 75.

In the whole booke of God, we finde but one man that liued wickedly, and repented at his ende: that is, the thiefe vpon the Croſſe. Which ſhewes that it is a moſt rare thing for a man to haue the reward of life euerlaſting after this life, that labours not in the works of godlineſſe in this life.

Thirdly, the conſideration of this reward, muſt ſtirre vp all Gods children vnto all diligence in the duties of godlineſſe, and that with cheerefulneſſe, through the whole courſe of their liues. When we ſhall die, we will looke earneſtly for this reward; and therefore while we liue, we muſt diligently doe the works that God commaundeth: and then when death comes, we may aſſure our ſelues that God will giue vs this reward; not becauſe we did deſerue it by our works, but becauſe he hath promiſed it in Chriſt, vpon our endeauour in obedience and true repentance. And thus much for the reaſon of Moſes choice.

VERSE 27.

By faith he forſooke Egypt, and feared not the fierceneſſe of the King. For, he was couragious, as he that ſaw him that is inuiſible.

IN this verſe, the ſpirit of God proceedeth to another example of Moſes faith: and hereto alſo in the verſe following, he addeth a third. Now he is thus large in the commendation of his faith, for this ende; to perſwade the Hebrewes, to whom this Epiſtle is ſent, that they were not to looke for any Iuſtification by the works of the Law: and his reaſon is; becauſe if any man could be iuſtified by the works of the Law, it muſt be Moſes, who gaue the Law to the people from the Lord, and did excell in obedience to both Tables, and therefore is a renowned Prophet vnto all poſteritie in ſpeciall fauour with God, Num. 12. 7, 8. But Moſes could not be iuſtified by the works of the Law; for here the holy Ghoſt prooues, that Moſes was iuſtified and ſaued by faith. The thing that commends Moſes and makes him ſtand before God, is not his works but his faith: and therefore the concluſion is: that as Moſes was not iuſtified by his works but by faith, no A more muſt they ſtand vpon their works to be iuſtified thereby, but labour for ſuch faith as Moſes had. Now, this faith of Moſes is a true ſauing faith, founded on theſe two promiſes of God: 1. On this great and maine promiſe made to Abraham, I will be thy God and the God of thy ſeede: 2. On another particular promiſe riſing from the generall, made vnto him when he was called to fetch the Iſraelites out of bondage; which was this; I will be with thee and guide thee. Exod. 3. 12. And in this place Moſes is ſaid to haue faith, not onely becauſe he beleeued that God would be his God, as he was the God of all Abrahams ſeede; but becauſe he beleeued particularly that God would be his God, and defend and be with him in the deliuerance of the Iſ- B raelites out of Egypt.

To come particularly to this fact. By faith, Moſes forſooke Egypt. Moſes departed from Egypt twiſe: Firſt, when he had ſlaine the Egyptian, and fledde from Pharaoh vnto Midian, and there kept Iethroes ſheepe. Secondly, fourty yeares after when he ledde the people of Iſrael out of Egypt into the land of Canaan: and here ſome make it a queſtion, whether of theſe departures is meant in this place. Anſw. It is moſt like, that this place is to be vnderſtood of his ſecond departure, rather then of the firſt: And the reaſon is taken out of Exodus, Chap. 14. 15. where we finde that the firſt time, he fledde for feare: for, ſo ſoone as he heard that his C ſlaughter of the Egyptian was knowen to Pharaoh, he fled in ſuch feare, as that he durſt not returne againe, of fourtie yeares. Now theſe words are not to be vnderſtood of ſuch a flight: for here it is ſaid, He departed, not fearing the Kings wrath or fierceneſſe.

Here ſome will ſay, This is no commendation: for, malefactors and rebels doe flie their Country? Anſ. They flie indeed, yet not in faith, but in feare. Moſes fled in faith: and hereby his faith is commended, that he fled not fearing the King. But malefactors flie for feare of puniſhment. Moſes departed with courage and boldneſſe, and therefore fled not as a malefactor: for he feared not the King, as appeareth D plainely in the Hiſtorie; for, though Pharaoh had ſaid vnto him, Exod. 10. 28. Get thee gone, ſee thou ſee my face no more: for when thou commeſt in my ſight, thou ſhalt die; yet Moſes went once more: namely, the tenth time, and told him of the tenth plague, and ſaid, That Pharaohs ſeruants ſhould come downe vnto him, and fall downe and pray him to get him out with the people and their cattell. Exod. 11. 8. And when the Iſraelites murmured againſt him at the red ſea, when Pharaoh was at their heeles, and they had no way to flie, Moſes encourageth the people, ſaying, Feare not, ſtand ſtill, and behold the ſaluation of the Lord which he will ſhew you this day: for the Egyptians whome ye haue ſeene this day, ſhall ye neuer ſee againe, Exod. 14. 13. Whereby, it notably appeares, that Moſes departed in faith without feare of Pharaoh.

A But ſome will ſay; For a man to come into another mans Kingdome, and to carie away his Subiects without the Kings conſent, is a fact of rebellion and ſedition: and therefore worthie no commendation, but rather ſhame and puniſhment: And this did Moſes, he comes from Midian, and caries away the Iewes which had beene a long time Pharaohs ſubiects; and for whoſe ſeruice he might plead poſſeſſion, and a long preſcription: therefore it ſeemes to be no fact of faith. Anſ. Indeede if Moſes had done this on his owne head, he might worthily haue beene thus cenſured. But when he came to Egypt, he had a calling immediatly from God to doe as he did; and for confirmation hereof, he had Gods promiſe of aſſiſtance in working ſtrange miracles: and when he caried the people out of Egypt, he did it by commandement from a King that was higher then Pharaoh. Neither yet did Moſes carie them away as a priuate man: for he was a publike perſon, an high Magiſtrate, and no ſtranger, but one of themſelues: yea, he was a King, as may appeare in Gods word: for, Deut. 33.5. he is plainly called a King: and Gen. 36.31. it is ſaide, There were ſo many Kings in Edom, before there raigned any King ouer the children of Iſrael. Now, the laſt of thoſe Kings raigned at that time when Moſes went with the Iſraelites out of Egypt: ſo that Moſes was their King, and had the authoritie & gouernment of a King ouer them from the Lord: and therefore it was no fact of rebellion in him, but a worke that did greatly commend his faith, beeing grounded vpon Gods commandement and promiſe.

Thus we ſee how we muſt conceiue of Moſes fact. Now we come to ſome particular points to be conſidered therein.

How came it to paſſe, that Moſes now had this courage, to depart from Pharaoh not fearing his commandement; whereas 40. yeares before, beeing called to ſhew himſelfe vnto his brethren, as one whome they were to reſpect as their deliuerer, Act. 7.23.25. he fled immediatly out of Egypt vpon the notice of one fact of defence in behalfe of the Iſraelites? why did he not ſhew as much courage when he ſlew the Egyptian, as at his ſecond departure? Anſw. The cauſe of his courage at this latter time was this; God now renued his commiſſion, and confirmed his former calling. For when he was firſt called, he did his dutie and reuenged their wrongs: but yet beeing in danger, and his calling beeing as yet but a ſecret inſtinct, he was fearefull, and fled. But now when God called him the ſecond time, and confirmed the ſame calling both by promiſe and commandement, and power to worke miracles, then fearefull Moſes becomes couragious and bold.

Here then obſerue, that there is a difference of Gods graces; there is a firſt grace, and a ſecond grace. The firſt, is that which God giues to any man for any calling: the ſecond is that, which God addes to the firſt, for the confirming thereof. And the firſt, is not effectuall without the ſecond; As here we ſee, Moſes firſt calling was not effectuall with him, till the ſecond came. And ſo Gods firſt grace is not effectuall till the ſecond come; by which the former is confirmed, ſtrengthened, and encreaſed. And the ſecond is confirmed by the third: and ſo we muſt goe on from grace to grace, if we will be bold and couragious in any dutie, either of our generall or particular calling. This muſt be well conſidered; for, that any man ſtands in grace, or encreaſeth therein, either reſpecting his particular calling, or his Chriſtian conuerſation, it comes from this, that God addes a ſecond grace vnto the firſt. And therefore whoſoeuer is enabled for any dutie, hath B great cauſe to praiſe God: for, whether we continue in grace, or encreaſe therein, it comes from the goodneſſe of God, who addeth grace to grace: which if he ſhould not doe, we ſhould fall away, and not be able to goe forward in the feare of God, and the duties of our calling; for the firſt grace would not ſuffice to ſtrengthen vs againſt temptation. And therefore howſoeuer God hath ſtrengthened vs for the time paſt, yet ſtill we muſt pray to God to deliuer vs from euill: which plainely imports, that our ſtanding is from his daily ſupplie of new grace.

2. Point. When went Moſes out of Egypt? The time is directly ſet downe, Exod. 12.41. Euen the ſelfe ſame day when the promiſe of God was expired: for when the foure hundred C and thirtie yeares were expired, then went all the hoaſt of the Lord out of Egypt, neither before, nor after, but the very ſame day. Indeede Moſes was choſen to be their captaine 40. yeares before, and ſent vnto them by God: and S. Steuen ſaith, He thought they would haue vnderſtood ſo much. But then they would not take him for their guide. Yet now 40. yeares after, when Gods determinate time of 430. yeares was expired, he comes againe vnto them, to cary them out of Egypt; & then they acknowledge him, & follow him out, according to Gods comiſſion.

Hence we learne, firſt, that no creature can alter the rule of Gods prouidence. Fourtie D yeares before, Moſes would haue deliuered the people; but he muſt ſtay till the time of the Lords promiſe was accompliſhed, and then he caries them away. Secondly, this muſt teach vs, not onely to beleeue, that God both can and will keepe his promiſes; but alſo by faith to waite for the time, wherein he will accompliſh the ſame vnto vs. Moſes is faine to waite 40. yeares for the fulfilling of Gods promiſe. When Daniel vnderſtood how long the Iſraelites muſt be in captiuitie, he would not pray for the ſhortning of that time: but when he knew that the time of their returne drew neere, then he praied vnto the Lord moſt earneſtly, waiting for the accompliſhment of Gods promiſe in their deliuerance. And Dauid thus waited on God for deliuerance in all his troubles. And their examples muſt we follow, for the fruition of all Gods bleſſings.

3. Point. In what manner doth Moſes depart? The text ſaith, He went out, not fearing the Kings commandement: ſo that his departure was with courage. Whence we learne ſundry inſtructions. Firſt, here is a notable preſident for the framing of our liues, which muſt be a rule vnto vs. We muſt walke diligently in our callings, as Moſes did; and though croſſes meete vs, ſo that Pharaoh fall out with vs, if Kings become our enemies: yet we muſt not lay aſide the duties of our callings; but after Moſes example, goe on therein with courage. Moſes without fearing the Kings wrath, went and ledde all the people away. And ſo muſt euery one of vs do: although dangers come, we muſt not feare, but ſtand faſt in our profeſſion, and goe on in the duties of our callings: Eccleſ. 10. 4. If the ſpirit of him that ruleth riſe vp againſt thee, leaue not thy place.

Secondly, hence we may learne, that Magiſtrates which are to gouerne the people, ought to be men of courage, in performing the duties of their calling. When too heauy a burthen lay on Moſes, in iudging all the congregation himſelfe; Iethro his father in law biddes him prouide among all the people men of courage, fearing God, to be Rulers, Exod. 18. 13. 21. Now their courage muſt not be a proud hautineſſe, or an indiſcreete crueltie; but a godly boldnes, which may inable them to the duties of their calling, without feare of man. To this ende, the Lord put of his ſpirit vpon the ſeuenty, which were to rule with Moſes, Num. 11. 17. Now, the ſpirit of God, is not a ſpirit of feare, but of power, and of loue, and of a ſound minde, 2. Tim. 1. 7. Which ſhewes, that in a Magiſtrate muſt be courage to call, and (if neede be) to compell others to the duties of their calling, how great ſoeuer they be. And it is a matter of great waight and moment in Gods Church: for, the Miniſter may teach and ſpeake as much as he will, or can; yet vnleſſe with the ſword of the ſpirit, there be ioyned the temporall ſword of the Magiſtrate; to reforme mens liues, and to keepe them from open ſinne againſt the law of God, and to vrge them to the duties which the miniſter teacheth: ſurely, their teaching and preaching will be to ſmall effect.

Laſtly, Moſes went with courage out of Egypt. This departure of his, was a ſigne of our ſpirituall departing out of the Kingdome of darkeneſſe: for, ſo Paul applieth it, 1. Cor. 10. And therefore after Moſes example, we muſt with courage come euery day more and more out of the kingdome of darknes, marching forward with couragious faith & heauenly boldneſſe towards our bleſſed Canaan, the glorie of heauen: we muſt not leaue this to the laſt breath, and then thinke to haue heauen gates ready open for vs: but we muſt enter into Gods Kingdome, in this life. Looke as Moſes by his faith did depart boldly out of Egypt, ſo muſt wee in heart by faith depart out of the A Kingdome of ſinne. This we ſhall doe, when we vſe meanes to eſtabliſh the Kingdome of Chriſt Ieſus in our hearts, and doe forſake the works of ſinne and darkeneſſe. For, looke where there is no departing from ſinne, there is no faith: and therefore let vs ſhew our ſelues to haue true faith, by departing more and more boldly and ioyfully out of the Kingdom of ſinne and Satan; that ſo it may appeare, we loue the light, and hate darkeneſſe. And in this iourney, let vs not feare any contrary commandement, nor the furious wrath of ſpirituall Pharaoh the deuill, nor all the gates of hell: for Chriſt Ieſus is our guide.

Becauſe a man might thinke at the firſt, that B it was a raſh and deſperate part in Moſes, thus boldly to take away the Iſraelites, not regarding Pharaohs commandement; therefore in the latter part of the verſe, the holy Ghoſt ſetteth down a reaſon, that mooued Moſes to doe ſo, in theſe words: For he endured, or was couragious, that is, he tooke heart to himſelfe. Why ſo? Becauſe he ſaw God that is inuiſible. That is, he caſt the eie of faith vpon God, who had promiſed the euidence of his power and preſence, in their deliuerance. So that it was the worke of Moſes faith, laying hold on the promiſe of Gods preſence, and protection from the rage of Pharaoh, that made him thus confident and bold.

Hence we learne, that the true valour and C manhood that was in Moſes, and is in all Gods children, like vnto him, is a gift of grace. Among many gifts of the ſpirit, powred vpon our Sauiour Chriſt, the ſpirit of ſtrength, or courage, is one, Iſay 11. 2. And Iethroes counſell to Moſes is notable this way; he biddes him prouide for gouernours, men of courage, fearing God, Exod. 18. 21. Inſinuating, that true courage is alwaies ioyned with the feare of God, and is a fruite of grace. But ſome will ſay, that many heathen men, who neuer knewe the true God, nor what the gifts of the ſpirit meant, had that courage. Anſ. True it is, they had courage indeede: but it was nothing but a carnall boldneſſe (not worthy the name of courage; beeing onely a ſhaddow of true fortitude) ariſing D from ambition, pride, and other fleſhly humors; whereas Moſes his courage ſprang from the grace of faith, in the mercifull promiſes of God made vnto him concerning his deliuerance and ſafetie. And indeede, howſoeuer wicked men haue a notable ſhewe of diuers vertues, yet in the triall they prooue but ſhaddowes; for, true valour, and other vertues, doe alwaies accompany regeneration.

As he that ſawe him that is inuiſible.

Here is the cauſe that made Moſes thus couragious: and this will make any man bold, if he can be perſwaded in his conſcience of Gods ſpeciall preſence with him, and prouidence and protection ouer him.

Here then obſerue a ſingular fruite of faith: it makes God who is indeede inuiſible, to be after a ſort viſible vnto vs. Moſes by faith ſawe him that was inuiſible; for, by faith he was perſwaded of Gods prouidence, and ſpeciall protection in the deliuery of his people, though Pharaoh ſhould rage neuer ſo much. So Enoch is ſaid to haue walked with God, becauſe he ſaw him by the eie of faith, in all his affaires. And when Ioſeph was allured to ſinne with his Miſtres, what ſtaied him? ſurely, the feare of God, whom he ſaw by faith. How can I doe this great wickedneſſe (ſaith Ioſeph) and ſo ſinne againſt God? As if he ſhould ſay, I am alwaies where God is preſent; how then ſhould I doe ſo wickedly, and God ſee it? And the ſame is the ſtate of all true beleeuers; their faith makes the inuiſible God, to be after a ſort viſible vnto them: ſo as a faithfull man may ſay, God is preſent with me, and protecteth me. Whereby we may ſee, what little faith is in the world: for fewe can truly ſay, they ſee God: which, faith inables a man to doe. Yea, moſt men care ſo little to ſee God, that he is farre from their very thoughts. Many haue made meanes to ſee the deuill: but where is he that labours for ſuch a meaſure of faith, that he may ſee the inuiſible God? If wicked men runne to Coniurers, to ſee the deuill, whom they ſhall once ſee to their ſorrowe; let vs labour for faith in the word and ſacraments, and this faith will make vs ſo to indure in all tribulation, as though we ſawe God.

Gen. 5. 22.

Gen. 39. 9.

Furthermore, ſeeing Moſes by faith endured, as he that ſaw God: we learne, that the ſeeing of God by faith, takes away feare and giues ſpirituall boldneſſe. This is a point of ſpeciall vſe: for naturally men are fearefull: ſome cannot endure the darke, nor ſolitary places, for feare of the deuill: yea, the ſhaking of a leafe, or the crawling of a worme doth terrifie others. Now, howſoeuer ſome mens conſtitution may helpe forward this feare, yet many times it comes from an accuſing conſcience, as a fruit of ſinne. And the way to remooue it, is here to be learned: namely, to doe as Moſes did: that is, labour to be reſolued of Gods preſence with vs, and prouidence ouer vs: and this will arme vs againſt all ſatanicall and fooliſh feare. For, if God be on our ſide, who can be againſt vs, to doe vs harme? Againe, the Souldier, by his place and calling ought to be a man of courage: for elſe the ſtate of his life, and the thought of his enemies will much affright him. Now how may he become couragious? They vſe to ſound the drumme and trumpet for this ende: and it muſt be graunted they are good incitements and prouocations vnto battell: but, when it comes to the point of danger, theſe cannot giue heart. Others vſe againſt the battell to fill themſelues with wine, and to make themſelues valiant by ſtrong drinke. This indeede may make them ſenſeleſſe and ſo deſperate. But the true way is, to become Chriſtian ſoldiers, knowing, and fearing God: & with their bodily armour, to bring alſo the ſhield of faith: whereby their hearts may be aſſured, that God hath called them to that fight: and that he is preſent with them, to couer their heads in the day of battell. This will make them to take heart and courage to themſelues, and to become truly valorous: though by nature they be weake and timorous.

Thirdly, who knows whether God wil bring vs to this triall: either to lay downe our liues, or forſake his truth: for, he may iuſtly take frō vs theſe golden daies of peace, for our ingratitude. Now, if ſuch times come vpon vs, what ſhall we doe? Shall we denie the faith of Chriſt? God forbid. But how ſhall we ſtand out in ſuch a triall? Surely, we muſt followe Moſes, and labour to ſee him that is inuiſible, by faith. This will make vs couragious, and without feare in Gods cauſe: remembring this alſo, that among thoſe which are reckoned to goe downe to hell, the fearefull man is one, (Reuel. 21. 8.) who dares not ſtand to the truth of God, but for feare of men denies it. Let vs therefore now begin to ſettle our hearts in the aſſurance of Gods prouidence and protection: that ſo, when triall comes, we may be bold in the caſe of God.

Him that is inuiſible.] That is God, who is a moſt ſimple eſſence, voide of all compoſition, or corporall ſubſtance: for, God is a ſpirit, (Ioh. 4. 24.) and therefore inuiſible, and not ſubiect to mans ſenſes. But ſome will ſay, God is ſaid to haue head, heart, hands, and feete: with other parts of mans body: and therefore he is viſible? Anſw. The holy Ghoſt ſo ſpeaketh in Scripture of God, by way of reſemblance of him vnto man: that we might the better thereby conceiue of his works: for, therefore are the parts of mans bodie aſcribed vnto God in Scripture, that we might knowe he doth ſuch works by his diuine power, as man doth by the parts of his body. Man ſheweth his ſtrength and valour in his arme: and by reſemblance vnto man, God is ſaid to haue an Arme, to note out his power and valiant acts. And ſo God is ſaid to haue eies, becauſe we ſhould conceiue that by his infinite wiſdome he ſeeth al things more cleerely, than man doth any thing at noone day, with his bodily eies. And ſo of the reſt.

But Moſes is ſaid, to talke with God face to face: and, to ſee his backe-parts, Exod. 33. 11. 23. Anſw. This imports not, that he ſawe the ſubſtance of God; but onely, that God did after a familiar manner, reueale himſelfe vnto him, and in ſome reſemblance ſhew him his glorie, ſo farre forth as Moſes was able to behold it: for the text is plaine, My face cannot be ſeene. There ſhall no man ſee me and liue, verſe 20.

Here we learne, that when we pray to God, we muſt not conceiue of him by any forme or image in our mindes; for ſo we make an idol of God. Queſt. What then muſt we doe? for, how (will ſome ſay) can I pray to him, and not thinke of him? Anſ. When we thinke of God, or pray vnto him, we muſt conceiue of him in our mindes, as he hath reuealed himſelfe in A Scripture; that is, by his workes, and by his properties: wee muſt thinke in our mindes of an eternall eſſence, moſt holy, wiſe, &c. who made all things, and gouernes them by his mighty power. For, euery image to reſemble God by, either to the minde, or to the eye, is a plaine lie; making him viſible, who is inuiſible: as ſaith the Prophet, Hab. 2.18. The image, what profiteth it, for it is a teacher of lies? Which flatly ouerthroweth the opinion and practiſe of the Romiſh Church, who reſemble the true God, euen God the Father, and the holy Trinitie, in images: what elſe doe they herein, but make a lie of God?

But the Papiſts ſay, they deuiſe no image to reſemble God in, but onely ſuch whereby hee B hath ſhewed himſelfe; as the Scripture teſtifies: as the Father, like an old man; the Sonne, as hee was incarnate; and the holy Ghoſt, like a doue, Matth. 3.16. Anſw. We muſt not conceiue of thoſe formes, of an olde man, or of a doue, to haue beene euer any image of the Father, or of the holy Ghoſt; but onely ſignes and pledges for a time, whereby thoſe perſons did then manifeſt their preſence. Nowe, there beeing an expreſſe commaundement againſt all repreſentation of God by images, not excepting thoſe very ſhapes, whereby it pleaſed God for a time to ſignifie his preſence; it muſt needs be idolatrous preſumption to make any image of God, or of the Trinitie. And indeede, God being inuiſible (as the text ſaith) it is impoſſible C to make any true image or reſemblance of him.

By faith, hee ordained the Paſſeouer, and the effuſion of blood: leaſt he that deſtroyed the firſt borne, ſhould touch them.

IN the former verſes, the author of this Epiſtle hath ſhewed vnto vs, the notable faith of D Moſes, by two worthy acts: 1. His refuſing to be called the ſonne of Pharaohs daughter. 2. His departing out of Egypt. Now, here in this verſe, he commends his faith vnto vs by a third action; which is, the ordination, or celebrating of the Paſſeouer. This verſe is the ſumme of the 12. Chap. of Exodus; the effect whereof is this: After that God had ſent nine ſeuerall plagues vpon the land of Egypt, which were occaſions to harden Pharaohs heart; at laſt he ſends Moſes to certifie Pharaoh, that vnleſſe he would let the people goe, hee would ſend a tenth plague, which ſhould bee more grieuous to them, then all the former; euen the ſlaughter of al the firſt borne in Egypt, both of man and beaſt. Yet Pharaohs heart was not ſoftened, neither did he let the people goe. Therefore Moſes departed from him, & (according to Gods commandement) aſſembles the Elders of Iſrael together, and cauſeth them to kill euery man a lambe of a yeare olde, and to eate it, roſte with fire; and to take the blood, and ſprinkle it vpon the doore cheekes, and vpon the poſts of their houſes: for a ſigne vnto them, that the Angel of the Lord, (ſeeing the blood ſprinkled vpon their doores) ſhould paſſe ouer them, and touch none of their firſt borne, neither man nor beaſt. This is the ſumme and meaning of that hiſtory. Now let vs come to the conſideration of this fact more particularly; and firſt, to the meaning of the wordes of this verſe, becauſe there is ſome difficultie in them.

The Paſſe-ouer here named, may bee thus deſcribed; It is one of the Sacraments of the old Teſtament, ſeruing for a ſigne to the people of Iſrael, both of their temporall deliuerance from the bondage of Egypt, and from the ſlaughter of the firſt borne; and alſo of their ſpirituall deliuerance from euerlaſting death, by the ſacrifice of Chriſt Ieſus the immaculate Lambe of God.

Touching this deſcription: firſt, I call it one of the Sacraments of the old Teſtament: becauſe they had beſide this, Circumciſion, another ordinarie Sacrament. Next I ſay, It ſerued for a ſigne to the people of Iſrael, to ſhew that it was properly a ſacrament vnto them. For, it is of the nature of a ſacrament, to ſignifie and ſeale vp ſome bleſſing of God to his people: now that the Paſſe-ouer did ſo, is plaine, where the Lord calls it a ſigne or token of deliuerance vnto them. But ſome will ſay, this Paſſe-ouer was a ſacrifice: for ſo it is called, This is the Exod 12.27. ſacrifice of the Lords Paſſe-ouer. And, Thou Exod.23.18. ſhalt not offer the blood of my ſacrifice with leauened bread, &c. Anſ. It is called a ſacrifice, becauſe it was killed, alſo the blood thereof was ſprinkled, and ſome parts of it, as the fat, Levit.3.4. with the two kidneies were burnt in ſacrifice to the Lord. For, when Ioſias kept that famous Paſſe-ouer with all the people, the Prieſts that ſlew the Paſſe-ouer, and ſpinkled the blood thereof, did firſt take away that which was to 2.Chr.35.12. be conſumed with fire, and then gaue to the people according to the deuiſions of their families, as Moſes appointed. Now, in regard of theſe properties of a ſacrifice which were in the Paſſeouer, it is truly called a ſacrifice. And yet more properly it was a Sacrament, becauſe it was a viſible ſigne of ſpeciall bleſſings from the Lord.

But what did this Sacrament of the Paſſeouer ſignifie; Anſ. It did ſignifie a double deliuerance; one temporal, as well from the deſtroying Angell, as alſo from the bondage of Egypt: The other ſpirituall: from the curſe of the Law, and from the wrath of God. The firſt is plaine, where the Lord ſaith, The blood beeing Exod.12.13 ſprinkled vpon the doore poſts, ſhall be a token for you that I will paſſe ouer you. And verſe 17. Yee ſhall keepe the feaſt of vnleauened bread: for that ſame day will I bring your Armies out of the Land of Egypt. And touching the ſecond, that it was a ſigne of a more heauenly deliuerance from the bondage of ſinne and Satan, Paul telleth vs plainely, when as hee ſaith, 1.Cor.5.7. Chriſt our Paſſe-ouer is ſacrificed for vs: giuing vs to vnderſtand, that the Paſchall Lambe in the olde Teſtament, was vndoubtedly a true ſigne of the true Paſchall Lambe Chriſt Ieſus: to which purpoſe Iohn Baptiſt ſaith; Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the ſinnes of the world: Ioh. 1. 29. Where he calleth Chriſt the Lambe of God, making there an oppoſition betweene him and the Paſchall Lambe of Moſes, which may be called the Paſchall lambe of men; for herein alſo they differ. The Paſchall Lambe was ſeparated by men, though by Gods appointment; but Chriſt the true Lambe of God, was ſet a part before all worlds by God the Father. And thus we ſee briefly what this Paſſe-ouer is. It followeth.

Ordained the Paſſe-ouer. The word tranſlated, ordained, ſignifieth, He made, or did celebrate: for the better vnderſtanding whereof, we muſt haue recourſe to the Euangeliſts. Matthew ſetteth downe Chriſts ſpeach to his Diſciples about the Paſſe-ouer, which he kept with them a little before his paſſion, thus: Matth.26.18. My time is come, I will make my Paſſe-ouer at thine houſe. Luk.22.7.11. Now, S. Luke repeating the ſame Story, mentioneth, firſt the killing, and then the eating of it: by which two words hee explaneth what Chriſt meant by making (which here is tranſlated ordaining) the Paſſe-ouer; to wit, firſt, the killing and preparing of the Paſchall Lambe, and then the eating of it as the Lords Sacrament. But this is a ſtrange kind of ſpeach (will ſome ſay) how can the Paſſe-ouer be killed or eaten? ſeeing properly the Paſſe-ouer is nothing elſe, but the act of the Angell paſſing ouer the houſes of the Iſraelites, when hee ſmote the firſt borne in euery houſe of the Egyptians. Anſ. The phraſe is improper: yet it muſt not ſeeme ſtrange, becauſe it is vſuall in Scripture, entreating of the Sacraments, ſometime to giue the name of the ſigne to the thing ſignified: as 1.Cor.5.7. Chriſt is called our Paſſeouer; & on the otherſide, to giue the name of the thing ſignified to the ſigne: as in this place, he ordained the Paſſe-ouer; that is, the Paſchal Lamb, which was a ſigne of the Angels paſſing ouer their houſes. Matth.26.28. So, This is my bodie, that is, a ſigne of my bodie. 1.Cor.10.4. The rock was Chriſt. The reaſon of theſe figuratiue ſpeeches, whereby one thing is put for another, is the Sacramentall vnion of the ſigne with the thing ſignified: which yet is not naturall according to place, either by change of the ſigne into the thing ſignified, or by including the thing ſignified in the ſigne, or faſtning it vpon it; but reſpectiue and analogicall, by reaſon of that agreement & proportion, which is betweene the ſigne and the thing ſignified: which ſtands in this, that looke when the outward ſigne is preſented to the outward ſenſes, at the very ſame time the thing ſignified is thereby, as by certaine viſible words, preſented to the minde. And indeed looke what coniunction is betweene words, & the things ſpoken of, in the minde of the vnderſtanding hearer; the ſame is betweene ſacramentall ſignes, and the things ſignified, in the minde of a diſcerning receiuer. But when words of ſenſe are ſpoken to the eare, the vnderſtanding minde doth therewith apprehend the thing ſpoken of. And euē ſo the mind of the diſcerning receiuer doth inwardly apprehend the thing ſignified, & apply it to his ſoule, when the ſacramentall ſign is preſented to the outward ſenſe. And this coniunction ariſeth not from the nature either of the ſigne, or the thing ſignified; but from the inſtitution of the Lord. The meaning then of the holy Ghoſt here is this, That Moſes by faith did ordaine and appoint the killing and eating of the Paſchall Lambe, which was the ſigne of the paſſing ouer of the Lords Angell, when the firſt borne in Egypt were ſlaine.

It followeth: And effuſion of blood; that is, the ſprinkling of the blood of the Paſchall Lambe; which was a notable rite and ceremony vſed in this firſt Paſſe-ouer, after this manner: The blood of euery Lambe was put into a baſon, and ſprinkled with a bunch of Hyſope vpon the doore poſts of euery mans houſe among the Iewes. Now this rite did not continue alwaies, but was peculiar and proper to this firſt Paſſe-ouer kept in Egypt at the inſtitution theereof beeing then practiced (but not after) in regard of that ſpeciall deliuerance then at hand, whereof, it was an aſſurance: for it ſignified vnto them, that the Angell of the Lord, comming to deſtroy the firſt borne of Egypt, and ſeeing that blood ſo ſprinkled, ſhould paſſe ouer their houſes, and touch none of their firſt borne, of man nor beaſt. This ende of the ſprinkling of this blood, is here likewiſe ſet downe in theſe words; Leaſt he that deſtroyed the firſt borne, ſhould touch them. He: that is, the Angell of the Lord, who was ſent to deſtroy the firſt borne throughout all Egypt both of man and beaſt, ſaue onely of thoſe who had their doore poſts ſprinkled with blood. And thus much for the meaning of the words.

Firſt, obſerue what the holy Ghoſt ſaith of this fact of Moſes, in ordaining the Paſſe-ouer: namely, that he did it by faith. Hence we learne, that the Sacraments of the new Teſtament muſt be celebrated in faith: for, herein we are to ſeeke to be acceptable to God as Moſes was. The Lords ſupper in the new Teſtament ſucceedeth the Paſſe-ouer in the olde: for, that was a ſigne to the Iewes, that Ieſus Chriſt the immaculate Lambe of God, ſhould afterward be ſacrificed for their ſinnes; and this is to vs a ſigne of Chriſt already ſacrificed. Now looke as that was ordained and receiued vnder the Law, ſo muſt this be adminiſtred and receiued vnder the Goſpel. But in the olde Teſtament Moſes

A celebrates the Paſſe-ouer through faith, and enioines the Iſraelites ſo to doe; therefore accordingly muſt wee by faith celebrate and receiue the Lords ſupper vnder the Goſpel. Cains ſacrifice was fruitleſſe to him, and odious to God, becauſe he offered not in faith; and no leſſe were all other faithleſſe ſacrifices: euen ſo euery Sacrament & ſpirituall ſacrifice receiued or offered in time of the Goſpel, is vnprofitable to man, and vnacceptable vnto God, if it be not receiued in faith. In euery Sacrament we receiue ſome thing from God, as in euery ſacrifice wee giue ſome thing to God. In the Lords ſupper, as the miniſter giues the bread and wine into the hand of the receiuer, ſo the B Lord God giues his ſonne vnto their hearts. Now if faith bee wanting, Chriſt crucified is not receiued: for, faith is the hand of the ſoule, without which, there is no receiuing of Chriſt, and his benefits; but contrariwiſe, a heauie and fearefull ſinne, heaping vp Gods wrath againſt vs. Hereby we learne, how ſundry ſorts of people ſinne moſt grieuouſly againſt God: for, many come to receiue the Lords ſupper, who are altogether ignorant in the nature and vſe thereof, not knowing what the ſacrament meaneth; & yet becauſe it is a cuſtom in the church, they will receiue (at leaſt) once a yeare, though they know nothing therein as they ought. Now ſuch perſons muſt know, they ought to come in faith; which they cannot do, becauſe they want C knowledge: and therfore in receiuing it ſo, they commit a grieuous ſinne, and ſo indanger their owne ſoules, becauſe they receiue it vnworthily. And this is not the fault of young ones onely; but of many, whoſe yeares might ſhame them for their ignorance, if they were not paſt all feeling of ſpirituall wants. A ſecond ſort there are, who receiue the Lords ſupper, and ſay they will doe ſo, becauſe they haue faith. But theſe are like the former: for their faith is nothing but honeſt dealing among men; thinking, that if they bring that to the Lords Supper, though they haue no more, yet all is well. The greateſt ſort are of this minde, taking fidelitie for true faith: and it is a plaine point of popery, ſo common, as almoſt in euery place, men doe embrace it. But theſe deceiue themſelues: D for another kinde of faith is required of thoſe that receiue the Lords ſupper worthily; namely, ſuch a faith, whereby we doe not onely beleeue the remiſſion of ſinnes in Chriſts blood; but alſo are aſſured, that the bread and wine receiued worthily, are ſignes and ſeales of the ſame bleſſing exhibited vnto vs by Chriſt. Hee that comes onely in a good meaning, deceiues himſelfe, and receiues to his condemnation. And yet alas, many euen of the ancient ſort, haue no other faith, but their good meaning.

A third ſort there are, who yet goe further; and knowing the vanitie of this opinion, that a mans fidelitie in his dealing with men, ſhould be his faith, to commend him vnto God; they hold and know, that true faith, is to beleeue their owne ſaluation in the blood of Chriſt: and theſe are to bee commended in reſpect of the former. But herein they faile; that comming to receiue, they bring not with them a liuely faith: for, it is not onely required in a communicant, that he profeſſe the faith of Chriſt aright: but a worthy receiuer muſt looke to his owne heart, that his faith therein, be a liuing faith, ſuch as worketh by loue, and ſhewes it ſelfe by obedience. Now herein, many that haue good knowledge doe grieuouſly offend, That howſoeuer they make a ſhew of faith, in an orderly and religious carriage of themſelues on the Communion day; yet when that time is a little paſt, they returne to their former ſinnes againe, neuer els hauing any care (nay, not ſo much as making any ſhew) of laying away their ſinnes, ſaue onely at the receiuing of the Lords ſupper. And thus doe too many of thoſe, who make a faire profeſſion. Theſe men bring faith in profeſſion, but yet their faith is dead; for, if it were a liuely faith, it would purifie their hearts, and cauſe a change in them from euill to good, and from good to better, euery daie more and more. But bleſſed be God, by whoſe mercie it comes to paſſe, that there are ſome in his Church, who come with ſuch a faith, and thereby communicate acceptably to God, and fruitfully to themſelues. Yet we muſt confeſſe, they are but fewe in compariſon. But as for all the other three ſorts of people, they ſinne grieuouſly, becauſe they bring not the hand of a liuely faith, to receiue thoſe things which their God offereth vnto them. Wee therefore in this example are admoniſhed, to celebrate and receiue the Lords ſupper in ſuch ſort, as Moſes did: namely, in faith: and that not in an idle, or dead, but in a liuely faith: which may, both before and after the receiuing of this ſacrament, bring forth good fruits, to the reforming of our liues, in continuall obedience, of Gods glorie, and our owne comfort and ſaluation in Chriſt.

2. Obſerue further: Moſes ordained and made the Paſſe-ouer. We may not thinke, that Moſes killed all the Lambes that were to bee ſlaine at this Paſſeouer: but in his owne family he killed his own lambe, and inioyned the people from God, to doe the like in theirs. The like phraſe is often vſed in the Scripture, Ioſua 5. 3. Ioſua is ſaid to circumciſe the ſonnes of Iſrael: which was almoſt a thing impoſſible for one man to doe: But the meaning thereof is this: that Ioſua inioyned and procured, that all the people ſhould bee circumciſed, and ſawe it done. And ſo wee muſt vnderſtand this place.

Now in this, that Moſes did in this manner celebrate this Paſſeouer, wee are taught this leſſon; that Gouernours and Superiours in their place, muſt procure, that thoſe which be vnder their gouernment, doe keepe the commandements of God; and eſpecially thoſe, which concerne Gods worſhip. It is the commandement of the Lord by Moſes, that the King ſhould haue the law written; that he may learne to feare his God, and keepe all the words of this lawe written, to doe them. Now, how ſhall the King doe all the words of the lawe? ſeeing there be many commandements, that doe not concerne him, nor his place: but his ſubiects, and other particular men, of other callings. Surely thus: He muſt doe thoſe in his own perſon, that concerne him in his place; and then ſee that his ſubiects and ſeruants doe likewiſe ſuch duties, both towards God and man, as concern them in their places. This is a ſpeciall point concerning all Magiſtrates and Superiours whatſoeuer; and therefore Paul ſaith, Rom. 13. 4. The Magiſtrate beareth not the ſword for nought, but for the wealth of Gods people: that is, for their good; not in body onely, but principally, for the good of their ſoules. And therefore euery gouernour, either of towne or kingdome, and euery maſter of a family, within the compaſſe of his calling, is to ſee that thoſe which are vnder him keepe Gods commandements: eſpecially thoſe which concerne Gods worſhip. When a magiſtrate ſhall doe this, then the praiſe and honour of the whole is giuen to him; as here the killing of the Paſſeouer is aſcribed to Moſes, becauſe he ſaw that the people did it. So on the contrary, if the Magiſtrate be negligent in his dutie, hee becomes the greateſt ſinner of all; for then the ſinnes that are committed through his default, are aſcribed to him. Nehemiah reproouing the Rulers, tels them that they brake the Lords Sabbaoths, Nehem. 13. 15. when as not onely they, but the people alſo brake them: yet there he chargeth the ſinne of the people vpon them, becauſe it came through their negligence. As, if any ſinne be committed in a family, through the defect of the gouernour of the family; it is not onely the ſinne of the particular partie, but the gouernours ſinne. And ſo, when any man ſinnes in breaking the ſabbaoth, it is not onely the ſinne of that particular man, but of the gouernours to whom hee is ſubiect. And therefore gouernors muſt ſee that Gods commandemēts be kept of thoſe that be vnder their gouernment. But here ſome may obiect (as indeede ſome abuſe the place to this ende) that it ſeemes no man may be barred from the Lords Supper; for the like reaſon is in the Lords Supper, that was in the Paſſeouer: but Moſes kept the Paſſeouer himſelfe, and commanded all the people of Iſrael ſo to doe; therefore no man is to be put from Gods table. Anſ. It is true indeede, that in Egypt at the celebration of the firſt paſſeouer, Moſes kept it himſelfe, and commanded euery Maſter of a family among the Iſraelites to doe the ſame; and the reaſon hereof was, becauſe at the firſt inſtitution, the Paſſeouer was both a ſigne and a means of a temporall deliuerance, beſides the ſpirituall: and therefore there was great reaſon then, why all the Iſraelites ſhould eate the Paſſeouer, and none be put back; becauſe all of them were to eſcape the temporal puniſhment, which God was to inflict vpon the Egyptians. But afterward the Lord made a lawe, that if any were but legally vncleane, hee might not eate the Paſſe-ouer, but muſt ſtay till the next moneth, and then come, and onely the cleane muſt eate thereof: ſo that the Lord himſelfe did inhibit ſome from that Sacrament: whereby it is plain, that the celebration of the Paſſeouer is ſo farre from giuing warrant to this confuſion, & careleſſe admitting of all to the communion, that rather it prooueth that there muſt bee a diſtinction made, and a ſeparation of the vnworthy from the Lords Table. Thoſe which are fitly prepared are to be receiued; but notorious offenders, who are morally and ſpiritually vncleane, are to bee put backe, till by repentance they haue teſtified their worthineſſe.

3. Let vs conſider the ſignification of the Paſſe-ouer. For the Paſchall Lambe was a ſigne of Chriſt the true Lambe of God, ſhadowing out diuers things worthy our obſeruation: as firſt the Lambe, for the Paſſe-ouer was to be a Lamb of a yeare olde, without ſpot or blemiſh: which ſignified vnto vs, that Chriſt was that immaculate Lambe of God and without ſpot, as Peter calleth him, 1. Peter 1. 19. Secondly, the Paſchall Lambe when hee was killed and eaten, had no bone of it broken, ſo was it commanded, Exod. 12. 46. and Numb. 6. 12. ſignifying, that Chriſt when hee was crucified, ſhould not haue a bone of him broken, as S. Iohn applieth the former Texts, Iohn 19. 36. Thirdly, the Paſchall Lamb muſt be eaten with ſower hearbs, Exod. 12. 8. ſignifying that no man can feele any ſweetnes in the blood of Chriſt, till he haue his heart full of bitterneſſe for his ſinnes; and, with Hanna, be ſore vexed and troubled in minde, ſo as he can poure out his ſoule before the Lord, 1. Sam. 1. 15. The want of this is the cauſe why ſo many do heare Gods word, and receiue the Sacraments, and yet reape no benefit by them. Fourthly, before the Paſchall Lambe was eaten, all leauen muſt bee remooued out of their houſes. This had a notable ſignification: which we neede not to gheſſe at, ſeeing the holy Ghoſt hath ſet it downe; namely, that wee muſt remooue all old leauen of corrupt doctrine (Matth. 16. 12.) out of our hearts; and the leauen of ſinne and wickedneſſe, out of our liues, if we profeſſe communion with Chriſt. This is a point worth our marking; for, vnleſſe we doe ſo, we ſhall haue no benefit by the ſacrifice of Chriſt: for if wee wil liue in this old leauen, we muſt neuer looke to receiue Chriſt into our hearts. Laſtly, euery perſon receiued the Paſſeouer in haſt, with ſhoes on their feete, with ſtaues in their hands, and their clothes girt vp, Exod. 12. 11. yet this we muſt vnderſtand onely of the firſt paſſeouer in Egypt; for Chriſt did eate it ſitting. Now this ceremonie vſed in the firſt paſſe-ouer, ſignified thus much, that if we looke to haue benefit by

1.Cor.5.7.

Luk.22.14.

Chriſt,

A Chriſt, we muſt be of this minde to be alwaies ready to leaue this world, and bee prepared to goe when and whither God ſhall call vs: Wee muſt not haue our hearts glewed to earthly things, but alwaies ready to receiue Gods commaund, and to goe at his call. Theſe be the ſignifications of the Paſſeouer: which we muſt remember to make good vſe of in the courſe of our liues. And thus much of the firſt branch of this act of Moſes faith, in ordaining the Paſſe-ouer.

The ſecond branch of this worke is this; And the effuſion of blood: that is, the ſprinkling of the blood of the Lambe vpon the poſts of their houſes, and vpon the doore cheeks; which was a token to the Iſraelites, that the B deſtroying Angell ſhould not ſtrike the firſt borne of the Iſraelites either man or beaſt. In mans reaſon, this may ſeeme to be a weake and ſimple meanes; yet God ordaines it to preſerue all the firſt borne among the Iſraelites. And thus the Lord vſeth to deale, that his people, through the weakeneſſe of the meanes, might be brought to acknowledge God to bee their protectour and defender. When the Iſraelites were ſtung with the ſerpents, a man would haue thought it had bin the beſt way for their curing, to haue giuen them cunning Surgeons; but the Lord ordaines onely a dead ſerpent of braſſe, which they muſt looke vp vnto, and be cured. A weake meanes it was, and yet the Lord vſeth it; becauſe he would haue them to giue all the glorie vnto him, and not to aſ- C cribe the ſame either to themſelues or to the meanes.

Further, this ſprinkling of the blood vpon the doore cheeks and the poſts of their houſes, had a notable ſignification: namely, of the ſprinkling of the blood of Chriſt vpon the doors of our hearts, to which Peter alludeth, 1. Peter 1. 2. Through the obedience and ſprinkling of the blood of Ieſus Chriſt. And Dauid, when he ſaith, Sprinkle me with Hyſope, and I ſhall be cleane: Dauid knew wel that the blood of beaſts could not take away ſinne, and therefore no doubt by his ſauing faith, he had an eye to the blood of the Meſſias vnder legall tearmes. Whence, we are taught this leſſon: that as the Iſraelites D with their bodily hands did ſprinkle the blood of the Paſchall Lamb vpon their doore cheeks, and the poſts of their houſes: ſo by the hand of faith, euery one of vs muſt ſprinkle the blood of Chriſt vpon our owne hearts: which wee ſhall then doe, when we doe not onely in generall beleeue that Chriſt is a Sauiour and Redeemer, but particularly that he is a Redeemer vnto vs; and that the merits of his death, and the benefit of his blood are ours.

Obiect. But ſome will ſay, If this be ſo, then all is well, for I doe beleeue this. Anſ. Herein very many deceiue themſelues, thinking that they haue faith, when indeede they haue none. For, looke vnto their wayes, and ſee into their hearts by their liues; and it will eaſily appeare, that they haue nothing in them but ignorance, ſecurity, and preſumption in ſinne. Now ſuch men are deceiuers of their owne ſoules; for after this ſprinkling followeth ſanctification, and riſing from dead workes to neweneſſe of life: ſo that they that liue in ſinne, and yet ſay they haue faith, deceiue themſelues. For, if a mans heart bee ſprinkled with the blood of Chriſt through faith, it will change his life and conſcience, and make him a new creature; for, Chriſts blood is a cleanſing & purifying blood, inſomuch as where it is truly ſprinkled, it certainly cleanſeth: Heb. 9. 14. And thus much of this ceremonie of ſprinkling.

Now followeth the ende of both theſe actions, in theſe words: Leaſt he that deſtroyed the firſt borne ſhould touch them. Let vs examine the words in order: Firſt, by the deſtroyer, is meant the Angell of God (as we may ſee in the Storie, Exod. 12. 19.) who at midnight ſmote all the firſt borne of Egypt both of man and beaſt. Where by the way wee may take a view of the wonderfull power and ſtrength of Gods Angels, and alſo of their admirable ſwiftneſſe and readineſſe in doing the will of God, that in one night euen at midnight, one of them could paſſe through the Land of Egypt, and kill all the firſt borne of man and beaſt, in euery place of the Egyptians. The like wee may ſee in the deſtruction of Senacheribs hoſt, by one Angell in one night.

The firſt borne: that is, both of men and beaſts. So it is in the Storie, Exod. 12. 29. But beeing ſo, it may not vnfitly bee demanded, How this Paſſe-ouer could bee a Sacrament, when as euen the beaſts of the Iſraelites had benefit by it; for they were ſpared by reaſon of this ſprinkling of the blood of the Paſchal Lamb? Anſ. That hindreth not why it ſhould not be a Sacrament. For wee muſt conſider this Paſſeouer two waies: Firſt, as a meanes of temporall deliuerance; and ſo the beaſts had benefit by it. Secondly, as a ſigne and ſeale of our ſpirituall deliuerance from hell by the ſacrifice of the Lambe of God Ieſus Chriſt, which is the thing ſignified; and ſo it is a Sacrament for mans ſaluation: and thus the beaſts had no benefit by it. The water that flowed from the rock in the wilderneſſe, was a Sacrament, and the beaſts dranke of the water, but yet they did not partake of the Lords Sacrament: for we muſt conſider that water two wayes; firſt, as a meanes to quench thirſt, and conſequently as an outward benefit to preſerue the life of the creature, and ſo the beaſts had a benefit by it: but conſider it as a ſigne and ſeale of the water of life, and ſo their beaſtes had no benefit by it, but onely the beleeuing people.

It followeth; Should touch them. Here is the very vſe & end of both the former actions; That the Angel might not hurt them, but paſſe by the Iſraelites houſes. Here conſider a notable point, concerning Chriſt, the true Paſſeouer:

ouer:namely,that they which haue their hearts ſprinkled with his blood, ſhall be preſerued from euerlaſting damnation; and not onely ſo, but hereby they ſhall haue deliuerance, from all temporall iudgements in this life, ſo farre forth as they are curſes,and hurtfull vnto them. So we may reade, before the deſtruction came to the citie of the Iewes, the angel of God went through the citie with a writers inkhorne, to ſet a marke vpon thoſe that did mourne and crie for their ſinnes. And Dauid ſaith, the righteous man ſtandeth vpon a rocke, ſo as the floods of many waters ſhall not come neere him. This is a point of great vſe:and the conſideration hereof, ſhould mooue all perſons that haue beene careleſſe in religion, now to become carefull and deſirous to haue their hearts waſhed in the blood of Chriſt: and thoſe alſo which haue any care, muſt haue double care hereof; for they haue freedome and ſecuritie,both in temporall, and eternall iudgements.

Ezek.9.4.
Pſal 32.7.

Obiect. But many of Gods deare children are taken away in common iudgements. Anſ. True: but yet they are neuer hurt thereby; but the iudgement and affliction is ſanctified vnto them, becauſe they haue their hearts ſprinkled with the blood of Chriſt. And as for thoſe whom God knoweth it good for,they are deliuered in generall iudgements, and preſerued for his glorie, and vſe of the Church.

But how did the Angel deſtroy the firſt borne in Egypt, both of man and beaſts? Anſ. By taking from them their temporall liues, by deſtroying or killing their bodies. That is the ſenſe and plaine meaning of the holy Ghoſt:and to this ſignification anſwereth the word in the originall. Now ſome doe abuſe this place, and ſuch like, for the ouerthrowing of the ancient cenſure of the Church in excommunication: for (ſay they) the practiſe of S. Paul, 1. Cor. 5. is the principall ground of excommunication; where Paul biddes that the inceſtuous man be giuen to Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh. Now they that denie excommunication,would haue that place to be interpreted by this, becauſe the ſame word is there vſed:and therefore (ſay they) Pauls words muſt be vnderſtood, of deſtroying the inceſtuous mans bodie, and taking away his temporal life.This interpretation doth quite ouerthrowe excommunication: for, if nothing elſe be there vnderſtood, but onely the tormenting of the bodie,then excõmunication is not thence prooued.But the truth is,that the cenſure which the Apoſtle vrgeth there, cannot be vnderſtood of the puniſhment of the bodie: which I prooue thus. In that place S. Paul oppoſeth the fleſh and the ſpirit. Now vſually,when he maketh this oppoſition, Fleſh ſignifieth the Corruption of the whole man; and the Spirit ſignifieth the grace of God in the man:ſo that his plaine meaning is this, Let him be deliuered to Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh; that is, for the deſtruction of his naturall corruption, and of the bodie of ſinne.

Further, where it is ſaid, the firſt borne; we muſt vnderſtand it of the firſt borne among the Egyptians, both of man and beaſt.And whereas he ſaith, ſhould touch them; he meaneth the Iſraelites, who were not touched in this deſtruction.

Hence we learne two points further. 1. The firſt borne of Egypt are deſtroyed, both of man and beaſts. This is markeable: for the Egyptians in former times deſtroyed the Iſraelites children, and eſpecially their firſt borne; for they ſlewe all the males, leaſt they ſhould increaſe in their land: and now it comes to paſſe, that their children, euen the principall of them, their firſt borne are ſlaine for the Iſraelites ſake; and when they are preſerued. Where we may obſerue a moſt righteous, and yet an vſuall kinde of iudgement with God. He doth often puniſh the wicked in their kind,with their own ſinnes: This is true euen in the beſt,ſo far forth as they are ſinnefull. The ſame iniurie which Dauid did to Vriah, was done vnto him by his owne ſonne,euen by his ſonne *Abſalon,*2.Sam. 10. 10, 11. and 16. 22.And this our Sauiour Chriſt teacheth vs, ſaying, (Matt. 7. 1.) Iudge not, that ye be not iudged. We finde this true likewiſe by experience: they that giue themſelues to backe-biting, rayling, and ſlandering, by the iuſt iudgement of God, haue for the moſt part the ſame done vnto themſelues by others; ſo that men are often puniſhed in their owne ſinnes. For, God hath his ſtorehouſe full of iudgements, and he can puniſh men what way he will. But he oft obſerueth this order,to puniſh men by their owne ſinnes, and to catch the wicked in their owne deuiſes.

This muſt be a motiue to make vs to looke vnto our ſelues, and to haue care againſt all ſinnes of the ſecond table; for looke wherein thou takeſt thy pleaſure to Gods diſhonour, therein ſhalt thou feele and ſee Gods iudgements vpon thee, to thy correction and confuſion. Pſal. 109. 17. As he loued curſing, ſo ſhall it come vnto him; and as he loued not bleſſing, ſo ſhall it be farre from him. This, Adonibezek felt and confeſſed, when his thumbes were cut off, Iudg.1. 6, 7. As I haue done, ſo God hath rewarded me.

Laſtly, in that the deſtroyer killeth the firſt borne of Egypt, marke a ſtrange kinde of Gods iudgements. King Pharaoh & his people ſinne, becauſe they will not let the Iſraelites goe; but the puniſhment of their ſinne, is laide vpon their children and cattell. The like we read of, 2. Sam. 12. 14. when Dauid had committed thoſe grieuous ſinnes of adulterie and murther, a part of his puniſhment was the death of his child. When he numbred the people,the plague light on them, 2. Sam. 24. Now we muſt not too curiouſly prie into the reaſon of Gods iudgements: for he is not bound to giue account of his actions, and yet in reaſon we may ſee the equitie thereof. For, we muſt conſider of kingdomes and ſocieties, and of twones and families, as of bodies; euery ſocietie is a bodie, and the particular perſons therein, are members of that bodie. Now looke, as it is in the naturall bodie; ſo it is in the bodie ciuill or politike; Oftentimes in the naturall bodie, when the ſtomach is ſicke, the head aketh; the braine is wounded, and the heart aketh; the foote is hurt, and the head aketh; and the offence of the tongue may be puniſhed with ſtripes vpon the backe: Euen ſo it is in ciuill ſocieties, the Prince ſinneth, and the people are puniſhed; or, the people ſinne, and the Prince is puniſhed. This is no iniuſtice with God: for ſith Prince and people make but one bodie, and ſo Parents and children; God may iuſtly lay vpon any member, the temporall puniſhment of ſinne committed by another. And thus much of this example; and of the faith of Moſes alone.

The Iſraelites Faith.

VERSE 29.

By faith, they paſſed through the redde ſea, as by drie land: which, when the Egyptians had aſſaied to doe, they were drowned.

HItherto we haue heard the faith of Moſes alone, highly commended, in two examples. Now followeth a commendation of his faith with others: ſo that here is a new example of faith; to wit, of the Iſraelites together with Moſes. For, Moſes is here to be conſidered not onely as one of them, but as a principall agent in this worke of faith. And here their faith is commended vnto vs by a wonderfull ſtrange action, which they did, through the power and goodneſſe of God: namely, by their paſſing through the red ſea: not by paſſing ouer it: for, that might haue beene by Art; but through it: which is aboue nature and Art, and meerely miraculous. This fact of theirs is largely ſet downe, Exod. 14. And, that it might appeare to be euery way wonderfull as it is indeede, the Author of this Epiſtle commends it by two circumſtances; which notably ſet forth vnto vs the ſtrangeneſſe hereof. Firſt, by their manner how they paſſed through; namely, as by drie land. Secondly, by the time when, namely then, when the Egyptians following them, were drowned. Here firſt we will ſpeake of the fact it ſelfe, and then of the circumſtances.

The fact is ſet downe in the firſt words; By faith they paſſed through the redde ſea. The words are plaine of themſelues; and offer vnto vs ſundrie points worthie our obſeruation. And firſt, it may be asked, who they were that here paſſed through by faith? The anſwer is, the Iſraelites. But ſome will ſay, we read in the Hiſtorie, that when the people came to the redde ſea, they were wonderfully afraid, and murmured againſt Moſes, ſaying, That it had beene better for them to haue liued in the bondage of Egypt, then to come into the Deſart and there die. Now, how can they murmure impatiently and fearefully, and yet paſſe through by faith? Anſw. At the firſt indeede they murmured, when they ſaw the danger they were in, hauing the huge armie of Pharaoh following them, and the redde ſea before them, and hills and mountaines on each ſide. But howſoeuer they murmured at the firſt, yet when Moſes ſpake words of comfort vnto them in the name of the Lord, bidding them not to be afraid, &c. and when he held vp his rod, and entred into the red ſea before them, then they followed him by faith: and hereupon the holy Ghoſt giues vnto them the title of true beleeuers.

Exod. 14. 11, 12.

Here we may learne, that true faith in Gods children, is mingled with vnbeleefe. The Iſraelites faith was true faith, but yet it was very imperfect and weake: for, if it had beene perfect and ſound faith, they would neuer haue murmured, nor haue beene impatient and fearefull. But looke as it is in nature, ſo it is in grace. In nature we cannot paſſe from one contrarie to another, but by the mixture of the contraries: as, in light and darkneſſe, the one doth not follow the other immediately; but firſt, there is a mixture of them both in the dawning of the day, and cloſing of the night: and ſo it is in other contraries, euen in thoſe which concerne the ſoule: vnbeleefe is a ſinne; faith is a vertue and grace contrarie to it. Now vnbeleefe cannot be expelled by faith, before there be a mixture of them both, and ſo when faith preuaileth, vnbeleefe decaieth; neither can faith be euer perfect, becauſe it is euer mingled more or leſſe with vnbeleefe.

This plainely ouerthrowes the opinion of the Church of Rome, who ſay, that after a man is regenerate, and beleeues, there is nothing in him that God can hate. For they imagine that he is ſo ſoundly ſanctified, that there is nothing in him which may properly be called a ſinne: but here we ſee their doctrine is falſe, ſeeing faith and vnbeleefe are alwaies mingled together.

Secondly, as it falls out with faith, ſo it is with the reſt of Gods graces: looke as faith is not perfect, but mixed with vnbeleefe; ſo are all other graces of God whatſoeuer. The feare of God is not perfect in a man, nor the loue of God: for, the feare of God is mingled with the feare of men: and the feare of God for his mercie, is mingled with the feare of God for his iudgements. And hereby many are deceiued; for when they feare God for his puniſhments, they thinke themſelues to bee moſt miſerable & voyde of grace: but they deceiue themſelues. For there is no man vpon the earth that feareth God onely for his mercies, and doth not feare God alſo for his puniſhments in part; for Gods graces in this life are euer mingled with their contraries. And therefore to imagine that a man may feare God for his mercies onely, and not for iudgements alſo, is to conceiue of ſuch a man as none is, nor can be in this life; for the beſt feare that is in any man liuing, is a mixt feare.

Further, when Moſes had ſpoken words of comfort vnto them, the vnbeleeuing and fearefull Iſraelites, doe ſtir vp their hearts to beleeue. So we accordingly muſt labour and ſtriue againſt that in-bred vnbeleefe which is in vs: for euery man hath innumerable ſinnes in him that reſiſt faith; and if they be not checked and ſuppreſſed, they will maſter his faith: but hee that would haue faith to continue and laſt, muſt ſtriue againſt naturall vnbeleefe, as the Iſraelites doe in this place; and as the man in the Goſpel, Mark. 9. 24. when hee ſaid to Chriſt, Lord, I beleeue, helpe my vnbeleefe, knowing that his vnbeleefe did ſuppreſſe his faith. And ſo did the Diſciples of our Sauiour Chriſt, when they prayed, Lord increaſe our faith, Luk. 17. 5. And Dauid, beeing oppreſſed with deadneſſe of heart, ſtirres vp his faith, ſaying, Why art thou caſt downe, my ſoule? &c. waite on God, Pſal. 42. v. 11. For, he that hath faith, is troubled with vnbeleefe; & the more it troubles him, the leſſe he beleeueth, vnleſſe he ſtriue againſt it manfully.

2. Queſt. But how many of the Iſraelites beleeued, and went ouer by faith? Anſ. Not all: for Paul ſaith, With many of them God was not well pleaſed; for they were ouerthrowen in the wilderneſſe: 1. Cor. 10. 5. Which ſhewes, that all that paſſed ouer had not true faith; for, ſome beleeued: and by the force of their faith, all went ouer, ſafely.

Hence we note this (which hath beene often taught vs) that an vngodly man receiueth many temporall benefits, by the ſocietie of Gods people which beleeue: as here the vnbeleeuing Iſraelits had this benefit, to go through the redde ſea ſafely, by reaſon of thoſe that beleeued. And in the former example, the brute beaſts were freed from killing by the Angell, becauſe they belonged to the hoſt of the Lords people. Now, ſhall a brute beaſt haue benefit, by beeing with Gods people, and ſhall not a man much more? Yes vndoubtedly: for, ſo we may reade, that for Pauls ſake, all the Mariners and Souldiers that were in the Shippe, were ſaued from drowning, Act. 27. 24. This point muſt perſwade euery one of vs, to make choyce of the godly for our ſocietie, and company, with whome wee liue and conuerſe; for, by them wee reape many benefits, and freedome alſo from many heauie iudgements.

The third point is this: When did the Iſraelites beleeue? This circumſtance is worth the marking: They beleeued when they paſſed through the redde ſea; for, they beleeued not onely in generall, that God was their God, as hee had promiſed to their fathers, but they beleeued, that God would bee with them, and giue them life in the middle of the redde ſea. A notable point. They beleeued (as it were) in the middle of their graues (for ſo might the redde ſea be well called) that God would giue them life euerlaſting, and preſerue them ſafely through the ſea, and from their enemies.

In their example we are taught the ſame dutie, to doe as they here did. The childe of God in this life hath innumerable cauſes of deſperation: and ſometimes his owne conſcience will take part with Satan, in charging the ſoule to bee in ſtate of damnation. In this heauie caſe, what muſt bee done? Surely, at this time, when a man is a caſt-away in himſelfe, he muſt euen then beleeue; beeing in hell (as it were) hee muſt beleeue that God will bring him to heauen. It is nothing for a man to beleeue in proſperitie, and peace; but in time of deſperation to beleeue, that is a moſt worthy faith: and indeede, then is the right time for a man to ſhew his faith, when there is in himſelfe no cauſe of beleeuing. Obiect. But when a man is in this caſe, he cannot beleeue. Anſ. Indeede to beleeue then, is a wonderfull hard thing, and a miracle of miracles. But yet this is the propertie of true faith, ſo to doe; and if there be but one dramm of true faith in the heart that deſpaires, howſoeuer it may for a time lie hidde, as dead; yet at the length it will make him to hope, and waite for mercie and life at the hands of Almightie God. And therefore, if it ſhall pleaſe God at any time to lay a torment vpon our conſciences, ſo as we ſhall ſtriue with the wrath of God, thinking that he hath caſt vs away; yet for all that, then we muſt beleeue Gods promiſes, and ſet before vs his mercies, and therewith refreſh vs. And if this faith were not, the childe of God many times were in a moſt miſerable caſe; the Lord therefore hath moſt mercifully prouided to helpe him, by the grace of faith. When a man is paſt all hope of life, he muſt then beleeue and hope for life, as the Iſraelites did in the red ſea, for preſeruation. And vndoubtedly, this is a comfortable ſigne of grace, if a man in the horrour of conſcience, can ſhewe forth the leaſt ſparke of true faith.

Fourthly, note the effect & iſſue of this faith. They paſſed through the red ſea. We ſay vſually, that water and fire be vnmercifull creatures;

and therefore the naturall man feares them both: but the Iſraelites faith makes them not to feare the water; but it makes them bold, euen to paſſe through the ſea. The like we may ſee for fire, in the three children, Dan. 3. 16. 23. who were not afraid of the hot burning ouen, but were as bold in it, as out of it. Rauenous and wild beaſts are terrible vnto men; but faith makes a man not to feare them: and therefore Daniel feares not the Lyons, though he were throwne into their denne to be deuoured, Dan. 6. 22. Great is the fruit and force of faith: it takes from a man the feare of thoſe creatures, which by nature are moſt terrible. And here we ſee a cauſe, why the holy Martyrs of God died moſt cheerefully. A man would thinke it ſtrange, that one ſhould goe into the fire, reioycing, as many of them did: but the reaſon is, Becauſe they had faith in their hearts, which taketh away the feare of the moſt fearefull creatures.

But if it be ſo (may ſome ſay) that the Iſraelites by faith went through the redde ſea, not fearing the water; why may not we that beleeue, now doe the ſame? for we haue the ſame faith that they had: Anſ. We haue indeede the ſame faith, and yet we cannot paſſe through waters as they did. For their faith reſted on two promiſes: firſt, on this made to Abraham, I will be thy God, and the God of thy ſeede: ſecondly, on a particular promiſe made to Moſes. For, when he commanded him to goe through the red ſea, withall he made a promiſe, to keepe and preſerue them: and this they beleeued, and ſo went through. Now, howſoeuer we haue iuſtifying faith, hauing the ſame generall promiſe; yet we haue not the like particular promiſe, That if we paſſe through the red ſea, God will be with vs and ſaue vs. And therefore, if any man ſhall aduenture to doe ſo, let him looke for nothing but death; for it is not an action of faith, but of preſumption. And therefore Peter ſunke, when he would needs walke vnto Chriſt vpon the ſea, hauing no ſuch hold vpon Gods ſpeciall promiſe, as here they had: and the Egyptians following preſumptuouſly were drowned. Wherefore, let vs here be warned, not to attempt to doe extraordinarie workes, without Gods ſpeciall warrant: for a particular faith, requires a particular promiſe, beſides the generall promiſe of God in Chriſt.

Further, let vs here obſerue a wonderfull worke of Gods mercie and power. When theſe ſeruants of God were brought into extremitie of daunger, ſo as they were in a deſperate caſe for their temporall life; yet then the Lord findes a way of deliuerance. And indeede, if a man conſider aright of it, he muſt needes acknowledge that theſe Iſraelites were in a pitifull caſe; for, they had the red ſea before them, & mountaines on each ſide, and themſelues hindred from flight, by their bagge and baggage, and with their children, and the huge hoaſt of Pharaoh behinde them; ſo as to mans reaſon, there was nothing but preſent death to be looked for: yet the Lord in mercie to ſaue them, makes a way where there was no way, and opens them a gappe to life, when naturall reaſon could lay before them nothing but violent death. Which ſhewes the wonderfull mercie of God, to his owne people and ſeruants. And the like thing we may read of in Dauid, when he aboad in the wilderneſſe of Maon: for there Saul followed him, and he and his men compaſſed Dauid and his men round about, 1. Sam. 23. 26, 27. Now, what hope of deliuerance was there for Dauid? Anſ. Surely this onely: Dauid was the ſeruant of God, and the Lord preſerued him, that he might rule his people after Sauls death; and therefore he eſcapeth, though wonderfully: for a meſſenger comes to Saul, and bids him haſt, for the Philiſtims inuaded the land: and ſo Saul returned from purſuing Dauid, and went againſt the Philiſtims.

Hence we learne this generall rule, that in the extremitie of all danger, God hath meanes to preſerue and ſaue his owne children and people. Which muſt teach vs, to commend our caſe to God, and to reſt on him in all dangers; for when our caſe is deſperate in our ſight, then are we fitteſt for Gods helpe. Let vs therefore in ſuch caſes, learne to practiſe our faith; and then eſpecially to caſt our ſelues vpon God. This, Iehoſaphat did moſt notably: for, beeing aſſaulted with the huge armies of the Moabites, Ammonites, &c. he prayed vnto the Lord moſt feruently, ſaying, 2. Chron. 20. 12. Lord, there is no ſtrength in vs, we know not what to doe: but our eyes are towards thee: and thus doing, was preſerued: for, God will in no extremitie whatſoeuer forſake them that truſt in him.

The redde ſea.] In many places of the Old Teſtament, it is called the ſea of ruſhes, Pſal. 106. 7. 9. Or, the ſea of ſedges, Ier. 49. 21. It is a corner of the Arabian ſea, that parteth Egypt and Arabia. Thoſe which haue ſeene it in trauell, ſay, it hath no other colour then all other ſeas haue; Why then is it called the redde ſea? Anſ. To omit many ſuppoſed cauſes hereof, there be two eſpecially, for which it is ſo called. 1. Becauſe of the red ſand; for both the bottome of the ſea, and the ſhoare, are full of redder ſand, then ordinarily is elſe-where. 2. Some thinke it is called the red ſea, by reaſon of the ſedges and bul-ruſhes, which growe much at the ſea ſide, and be of a redde colour; which, by reflection, may make the ſame colour appeare on the water. But this neede not to trouble any man: for the holy Ghoſt vſeth the ſame name, which commonly the men of that countrey gaue it. And thus much of their fact, that they by faith paſſed through the redde ſea. Now we come to the two circumſtances, whereby it is commended.

The firſt circumſtance is, the manner of their going through the red ſea: they went through as on drie land. This muſt not be conceiued to be, by helpe of bridge or ſhippe, nor by meanes which men vſe, as ſwimming, ſailing, or wading; but their paſſage was miraculous: for, the waters ſtood like walles on both ſides of them. And the channel of the ſea was as a pauement or drie land; Exod. 14. 22. which notably ſetteth forth the ſtrangeneſſe of this fact, ſhewing that it was a wonderfull work of God. And this alſo confuteth certaine enemies of the Scripture: who haue cauilled at all the miarcles which are recorded therein: accounting of Moſes but as a Magician and Sorcerer, and of the miracles which hee did, as of illuſions: and for this miracle they make no account of it; for (ſay they) Moſes beeing a great ſcholler, and a wiſe man, knew the time of the riſe and fall of the waters, and knewe the fords and ſhallowe places: therefore he tooke his time, and found a place ſo ſhallow, that when the tide was paſt, the ſands were bare and dry (as the marſhes in England are) and then he led the hoaſt of Iſrael through. But Pharaoh and his hoaſt following them, were drowned, becauſe they went thorough at the flowing of the ſea. Anſ. Whereas they ſay that this their paſſage was no miracle, here we ſee it is ouerthrowen by this circumſtance of the manner of their paſſing ouer: for, the bottom of the ſea was as a pauement, and as ground on which no waters fall. Now, in moſt places of the ſea, where the waters ebb & flowe, the ground is neuer fully dry, but watery and full of moiſt places.

Exod. 14. 22.

Againe, the waters paſſed not away as at an ebbe, but ſtood as walles on each ſide of the hoaſt of Iſrael, both on the right band and on the left: both which ſhewe plainely, there was no vantage taken by the ebbing and flowing of the water (as vngodly Atheiſts doe cauill, deriding Gods workes to their owne deſtruction) but a mighty and miraculous worke of God, firſt making the waters ſtand like two walles, and then making the earth vnder it firme and dry, contrary to nature in them both.

The 2. circumſtance is, concerning the time when they paſſed through; euen then when the Eypptians aſſaying to doe the ſame, were drowned. Marke the words; for the thing is ſtrange. The Egyptians come armed afer the Iſraelites, with a huge great Armie. Now, the Iſraelites they take into the ſea; and the Egyptians ſeeing them, ſtand not ſtill vpon the banke, but aduenture after them, not by ſhip, but the ſame way that the Iſraelites tooke before them: but yet without any warrant or commaundement from God: ſo great was their malice againſt them; and yet a man would haue thought they durſt neuer haue aduentured into the ſea after them, eſpecially as they did.

Here, by this fact of Pharaoh and his men, we learne, that when God forſakes a man, and leaues him to himſelfe, he doth nothing elſe but run headlong to his owne deſtruction. God (as Moſes ſaith) raiſed vp Pharaoh to ſhew his power vpon him: and now it pleaſeth God to leaue him to himſelfe, and he purſueth the Iſraelites to his owne deſtruction. And this is the courſe and ſtate of all thoſe that are forſaken of God. The conſideration whereof muſt teach vs a ſpeciall clauſe to be vſed of vs in our prayers: wee muſt euer remember to pray for this, That God would neuer wholly forſake vs, nor caſt vs off. This condition is more fearefull then the eſtate and condition of any creature in the world beſides: for when God forſakes a man; all that he doth, is haſtning himſelfe to his own deſtruction. Dauid knew this well, and therefore hee prayes, Oh knit my heart vnto thee, that I may feare thy name, Pſal. 86. 11. And againe, hee praieth that the Lord would not forſake him ouer-long, 119. 8. as if he ſhould ſay, if it bee thy pleaſure to try me by leauing me to my ſelfe, yet, O Lord, let it be but for a while, forſake me not ouer-long. This is the ſcope of the ſixt petition, Leade vs not into temptation: where wee are taught to pray, that God would not forſake vs, or leaue vs to our ſelues; or to the power of Satan; but that he would be with vs, and ſhewe his power in our weakeneſſe continually. And this may enforce vs vnto this petition: for, the conſideration, That men forſaken of God, doe nothing but worke their own deſtruction, is many times a cauſe of great trouble of minde. For, ſome deſiring to ſee ſuch as hang or drowne themſelues, by beholding of them get this conceite in their heads, that God will likewiſe forſake them as he hath done theſe whom they behold, and ſo ſhal they make away themſelues; whence followeth great trouble, and anguiſh of ſoule for a long time. Now, how muſt a man or woman in this caſe helpe themſelues? Anſ. The beſt way is, by prayer to craue at Gods hands, that hee would euer be with them, and neuer wholly forſake them. And further, this muſt bee remembred withall, that God will neuer forſake any of his ſeruants before they firſt forſake him: and therefore they that can ſay truly and vnfainedly, that they deſire to ſerue God, & to be his ſeruants, and ſeeke his bleſſing by prayer, they may ſtand faſt on this ground, that God will neuer forſake them, till they firſt forſake him. And therefore Azariah the Prophet ſaith notably to King Aſa, 2. Chron. 15. 2. The Lord will be with you while you be with him; and if ye ſeeke him, he will be found of you: but if ye forſake him, hee will forſake you. And Iames ſaith, Draw neere to God, and be will draw neere to you, Iames 4. 8. It was neuer heard that God did euer forſake any that did ſeeke him. And if the cauſes were knowen why men make away themſelues, it would prooue (generally) to be thus; becauſe they firſt by ſome fearefull ſinnes haue forſaken God; and then he in his Iuſtice forſakes them. And therefore they that are troubled with this temptation, muſt pray earneſtly that they may ſticke faſt vnto God by faith and holineſſe: and ſo will hee neuer forſake them.

Secondly, in this circumſtance, that the Egyptians following the Iſraelites, were drowned, we haue a notable patterne of the ſtate and condition of all perſecuters of Gods Church. In Pharaoh and his hoaſt we may ſee their end, which is vſually deſtruction: that is their reward for perſecuting Gods Church. Cain ſlaies Abel that notable ſeruant of God: but his reward was this, he was caſt forth of Gods Church, Gen.4.11.13. and ſtriken in Gods iuſt iudgement with finall deſperation. Saul perſecuted Dauid: but his ende was to kill himſelfe with his owne ſword, 1.Sam.30.4. And Ieſabel ſhee perſecutes the Prophets and children of God: but her ende was this, the dogges did eate her fleſh. The whole ſtocke of the Herods were great enemies to Chriſt: but their name was ſoone rooted out; and Herod, called Agrippa, that ſlew Iames, and perſecuted Peter, was eaten vp of wormes. Many great Emperours in the primitiue Church were perſecuters: but they died deſperately. And Iulian, for one, once a Chriſtian, died blaſpheming Chriſt: and, caſting his blood vp towards heauen, cried, Thou haſt ouercome, O Galilean, thou haſt ouercome. And to come neere theſe times; what reward from God the perſecuters of the Church haue had, we may read in the booke of Acts and Monuments, which was penned for that purpoſe. And to come to theſe our daies, the whole band of thoſe that call themſelues leaguers, in France, Italie, Spaine, &c. like the Tabernacles of Edom and the Iſmaelites, Moab, and the Agarims, &c. Pſal. 83.5,6. they vow the deſtruction and perſecution of Gods Church: but yet Gods Church ſtands; and he ſo contriues the matter, that they draw ſwords againſt themſelues, and ſlay and poiſon one another. Herein doth God graciouſly make good his promiſe to his Church, that the weapons made againſt her ſhall not proſper. And Zachar.12.3. there is a prophecie of the Church in the new Teſtament: the Lord ſaith, He will make Ieruſalem (that is, his Church) an heauie ſtone: for all people that lift it vp ſhall be torne, though all the people of the earth be gathered againſt it: where the Prophet ſetteth downe notably, what ſhall be the condition of thoſe that perſecute Gods Church: the more they perſecute her, the more they ſhal haue Gods hand againſt them to confound them. Dan. 2.34. there is mention made of a ſtone hewen out of a rocke without hands, which ſmote the image vpon the feete, which were of yron and clay, and brake them to pieces. By that ſtone, is meant the kingdome of Chriſt, which ſhall daſh in pieces the kingdomes of the earth, which ſet themſelues againſt Chriſt, and his kingdome. For Chriſt muſt raigne till he haue put all his enemies vnder his feete: ſo that deſtruction is the ende of the enemies of Gods Church. For, the hand of the Lord ſhall be knowne among his ſeruants, and his indignation againſt his enemies, Iſa.66.14. And thus much of the ſecond circumſtance.

2.King 9. 35,36.

Iſa.54.17.

Now, in this whole fact of the Iſraelites paſſing through the redde ſea, towards the land of Canaan, there is a notable thing ſignified; namely, Baptiſme. So Paul ſaith, The Iſraelites were baptized vnto Moſes in the ſea, 1. Cor. 10.2. Yet we muſt remember, it was not ordinarie Baptiſme, but extraordinarie; neuer adminiſtred before, and neuer ſhall be ſo againe, for ought we know. The miniſter of this Baptiſme, was Moſes; an extraordinarie miniſter, as the Baptiſme was extraordinarie. The outward ſigne was the red ſea: or rather the water of the red ſea. The departing of the children of Iſrael out of Egypt through the red ſea, ſignifieth the departing of the children of God out of the kingdome of darknes, from the power of ſinne and Satan. And the drowning of Pharaoh, with all his hoſt in the red ſea, ſignified the ſubduing of the power of all ſpirituall enemies, with the pardon and death of ſinne; which ſtands partly in the aboliſhing of ſinne, and partly in newneſſe of life. And to this alludeth the Prophet Micah, ſaying, He will ſubdue our iniquities, and caſt all their ſinnes into the bottome of the ſea, Mic. 7.19. As if he ſhould ſay; Looke as God ſubdued Pharaoh, and all his hoſt, in the bottome of the ſea; ſo will he caſt, and put away the ſinnes of his people.

From this we learne two points: 1. That the Baptiſme of infants hath warrant in Gods word, howſoeuer ſome men be of a contrarie opinion: for, here we ſee all the Iſraelites were baptized in the ſea; and among them no doubt were many children. If it be ſaid, this baptiſme was extraordinarie, and is no ground for ours; Anſw. True: it was extraordinarie for the manner; but yet herein, the matter and ſubſtance, and the thing ſignified is ordinarie, and the ende all one with ours: and therefore the baptizing of infants in the red ſea, is ſome warrant for the baptiſme of infants in the Church now a daies.

Secondly, here we may learne another inſtruction. As the Iſraelites went through the redde ſea (as through a graue) to the promiſed land of Canaan; ſo we muſt know, that the way to the ſpirituall Canaan, euen the kingdome of heauen, is by dying vnto ſinne. This is a ſpeciall point to be conſidered of euery one of vs: we profeſſe our ſelues to be Chriſtians, we heare Gods word, and receiue the Sacraments, which are the outward badges of Chriſtians, and we perſwade our ſelues of life euerlaſting after death: well, if we would haue that to be the ende of our iourney, then we muſt take the Lords plaine way in this life; which is, to die vnto all our ſinnes. So it is ſaide, They which are Chriſts, haue crucified the fleſh with the affections and luſts thereof: where, this dutie is inioyned to euery Chriſtian; he muſt crucifie the luſts and affections of the fleſh, and not liue in ſinne. For, a man cannot walke in ſinne, and ſo runne the broad way to hell, and yet wait for the kingdom of heauen; theſe two wil not ſtand together: and therefore, if wee would walke worthy the calling of Chriſtianitie, wee muſt haue care that all our ſinnes, whether they bee of heart or life, little or great, new or olde, may be mortified and aboliſhed. Many will for a time become ciuill, and ſeeme to be religious, eſpecially when they are to receiue the Lords ſupper; but when that time of the Sacrament is paſt, then they returne to their olde cuſtome in ſinning againe: whereby it appeares, that their change was but in ſhew, to blind the eies of men. Aud doe we not each Sabbaoth profeſſe our ſelues good Chriſtians, and ſeeme to glory in it, by keeping this day with ſuch ſolemnitie? But alas! as ſoone as that day is paſt, many (and ſome euen this day) runne into all ryot. This is not Chriſtianity; this is not the way to heauen: but if euer we thinke to come to Canaan, we muſt kill and bury our ſinnes, we muſt die vnto them; or elſe wee ſhall neuer come to the ende of Chriſtianity: namely, eternal life. And thus much of this circumſtance, and alſo of the example it ſelfe.

Ioſuahs Faith.

By faith, the walles of Iericho fel downe, after they were compaſſed about ſeuen daies.

FRom the beginning of this chapter, to this 30. verſe, we haue heard two ſorts of examples of faith: the firſt, of beleeuers from the beginning of the world to the flood. The ſecond, of ſuch as were from the time of the flood, to the giuing of the Law in Mount Sina: and of both theſe, we haue hitherto intreated. Now here, and ſo forward, to the end of this chapter, is ſet downe a third order of examples of faith; namely, of ſuch as liued from the time of the giuing of the Lawe, to the time of the raigne of the Maccabees.

This 30. verſe containes the firſt example of this ranke; namely, the example of Ioſuahs faith, and of thoſe that went with him into Canaan. And their faith is commended vnto vs by a notable fact of theirs; the cauſing to fall the walls of Iericho: the Hiſtorie whereof wee may reade at large, Ioſuah 6. The ſumme of it is this; Whereas the Iſraelites came vnto Canaan, and could not enter into the Land, by reaſon of the ſtrength of Iericho, by which they muſt needes paſſe, nor could win it by reaſon of the huge walles of Iericho; the Lord promiſeth to deliuer Iericho into their hands: onely the people muſt doe this; they muſt compaſſe-about the walls ſeauen daies, and catie the Arke of the Lord with them, ſounding with Rammes hornes, and ſhowte, and ſo the walls ſhould fall downe. Now, the Lord hauing made this promiſe vnto them; the Iſraelites, and ſpecially Ioſuah, obey his commaundement, and beleeue his promiſe: and thus doing, by faith the walls of Iericho fell downe, after they were compaſſed-about ſeauen dayes. Indeed the power of God was the principall cauſe of this ruine of the walls; but yet becauſe vpon their beleeuing, God ſhewed this power, therefore is the downefall of them aſcribed to their faith.

Here are many notable points to be learned.

1. Whereas the text ſaith, By faith the walls of Iericho fell downe; we may obſerue the wonderfull power of true faith. Ioſuah and the Iſraelites beleeued Gods promiſes, that hee would ouerturne the walls of Iericho: and as they beleeued, ſo it came to paſſe. So our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith, Matth. 17. 20. If a man had but as much faith as a graine of muſtard-ſeed, hee ſhall ſay vnto the mountaine, remooue hence, and it ſhall remooue, and nothing ſhall be vnpoſſible vnto him: ſignifying, that by the power of true faith, ſuch things as are impoſſible to mans reaſon, ſhall be brought to paſſe, if God haue promiſed them: as wee ſee in this place, the mighty walls of Iericho fall downe by faith, which to mans reaſon is impoſſible. So, the Lord promiſeth to Abraham, That he ſhould be the Father of many Nations: yea, that all the Nations of the earth ſhould bee bleſſed in him. This was ſtrange; but Abraham beleeued it: and as hee beleeued, ſo it came to paſſe: for, many Nations deſcended from him: and after the time of Chriſts aſcenſion, when all the Nations of the world were called to the light of the Goſpel, they were bleſſed in Chriſt, the promiſed Seede of Abraham: and therefore is he called the Father of the faithfull in all Nations. And to come vnto our ſelues: To miſerable men it may ſeeme a ſtrange thing, that the power of the deuill and the ſtrength of the fleſh, ſhould be ouercome in vs: yet let a man beleeue this promiſe of God; God ſo loued the world, that he gaue his onely begotten ſonne, that who ſo beleeued in him, ſhould not periſh, but haue euerlaſting life, Ioh. 3. 16. I ſay, let him beleeue this effectually, and hee ſhall finde by faith the Kingdome of ſinne and Satan, in his heart and conſcience, weakned euery day more and more. And therefore S. Iohn ſaith not without cauſe, This is the victorie that ouercommeth the world, euen our faith, 1. Iohn 5. 4.

Gen. 17. 2. and 18. 18.

2. Here obſerue, that among the cauſes of the change and ouerthrowe of Townes, Cities, and kingdomes, this is one; namely, faith in Gods promiſes. Many men haue written of the change of Kingdomes, and doe giue diuers reaſons thereof: But moſt of them omit the principall, and that is faith; by vertue whereof many times Kingdomes and Townes are brought to ruine and ouerthrowe. God promiſed to Abraham and to his ſeede, that he would giue them the land of Canaan for their inheritance: now, they beleeued this promiſe, and here we ſee it comes to paſſe as they beleeued; Iericho by faith is ouerturned and the reſt of their Cities, and the people of Canaan diſpoſſeſſed. So that we ſee, faith in Gods promiſes, is a meanes to Gods people, to ouerturne cities and kingdomes, that are enemies to Chriſt and to his Goſpel. God hath made a promiſe vnto his Church, that the whore of Babylon, Reuel. 18. 2. that is, the Kingdome of Antichriſt ſhall flouriſh for a while, but after it ſhall be deſtroyed; yea, ſuch a ruine ſhall come vnto it, that the Kings of the earth, and all great men and Merchants ſhall bewaile the deſtruction thereof. Now, this promiſe beeing receiued by faith, and beleeued of Gods Church, ſhall vndoubtedly come to paſſe. It is in ſome part verified already (for we ſee, ſome Kingdomes and people haue renounced the curſed Doctrine and tyrannie of Rome; and many Chriſtian Princes haue already ſhaken off the Popes yoke) yea, and this promiſe ſhall come to paſſe daily more and more. Let all the Kings of that ſort doe what they can, and let the people ſet themſelues neuer ſo much againſt Gods Church, yet Babylon ſhall downe: for God hath promiſed ſo to his Church, and his Church beleeueth the ſame; and therefore by their faith it ſhall be brought to paſſe, in deſpite of the deuill.

Thirdly, here we learne, that when any City, Towne, or Kingdome, is to make warre either in defence of themſelues, or in lawfull aſſault vpon their enemies; a ſpeciall meanes for good ſucceſſe herein, is true faith. Chriſtian policie is a commendable thing in this caſe: but if policie be ſeuered from faith, it is nothing. Faith in Gods promiſes of protection and aſſiſtance, doth farre ſurpaſſe all worldly wiſedome. And therefore good King Iehoſaphat, when he was to fight againſt the huge Armies of the Moabites, and Ammonites, giues this counſell to his people, 2. Chron. 20. 20. Put your truſt in the Lord your God, and ye ſhall be aſſured: Beleeue his Prophets, and ye ſhall proſper, giuing a moſt notable inſtruction, and ſhewing that the beſt helpe for our defence, is faith in God, whereby we reſt vpon his word and promiſe, that he will helpe vs: yet this taketh not away the vſe of meanes, but it giues the bleſſing and efficacie vnto them. Faith we knowe, is called a ſhield, among the ſpirituall armour of God, whereby a man awards the blowes of Satan; and though that be the principall vertue of it, yet is it alſo a notable ſhield to defend men, euen againſt their outward viſible enemies, and a moſt ſtrong engine againſt them, to worke their ouerthrowe. Hence Dauid ſaith, He will not be afraid for ten thouſand of the people, that ſhould beſet him round about. They therefore that would defend themſelues againſt their enemies (yea, and ouercome them in lawfull aſſault) muſt embrace and obey true religion; and with Chriſtian policie, ioyne faith in Gods promiſes: for, by faith we make God our Captain, and through him we ſhall doe valiantly, and beate downe our enemies on euery ſide.

Pſal.3.6.

Laſtly, here we may learne, what a vaine thing it is to truſt in outward worldly meanes. The wals of Iericho were both ſtrong and high, and hard it had been to haue ouerthrown them by ordinarie meanes: but yet we ſee, it prooued but a vaine thing to truſt vnto them, as the men of Iericho did: for they found but little reliefe and defence in them: for, the Lord layes them flat to the ground; and ſo the people of Iſrael went ſtraight forward and tooke the Citie. So likewiſe it is a vaine thing to truſt to mans ſtrength, or in the ſtrẽgth of an horſe, or in the number of men, or in riches, or in gifts of wiſedom and learning, or in any other outward meanes whatſoeuer: the reaſon is, becauſe God can ouerturne them with the leaſt breath of his mouth.

Ioſh.6.20.

This muſt admoniſh vs, that howſoeuer we vſe odinarie meanes of our preſeruation and helpe, yet euer we muſt caſt our whole care on God, and put all our confidence in him for helpe and ſafetie: for, without him all other outward meanes are nothing but vaine helps; For, vaine is the helpe of man. And thus much for the fact it ſelfe.

Further, this fact is ſet out vnto vs by two circumſtances; to wit, by the meanes which they vſed, and by the time which they obſerued for this exploit. For the firſt: when they come to Iericho, this ſtrong Citie, which they muſt needes ſubdue (or elſe they could not this way enter and poſſeſſe the Land) they doe not goe about to ouerturne the Citie by vndermining, battering, or ſcaling the walls; but, according to Gods appointment, they goe one by one in order round about the Citie walls day by day for one weeke ſpace: and on the ſeauenth day, they compaſſe it ſeauen times; during all which time they kept great ſilence, ſaue onely that ſeauen Prieſts ſounded vpon ſeauen trumpets of Rammes-hornes before the Arke, till Ioſuah bade them ſhout. Now, in common reaſon, a man would iudge this rather to be ſome childiſh ſport, then a meanes to fling downe theſe great walls. Nay, conſider it well, and it may ſeeme a courſe tending rather to ouerthrowe themſelues, then the walles of Iericho: for, they marched not in battell ray, as though they would pitch a field againſt the people of Iericho, or lay ſiege to their Citie; but they went in length one before another, ſo as they might compaſſe the Citie about. Now, if the men of Iericho ſhould haue come forth, and made aſſault vpon them, in all likelihood the Iſraelites had beene ouerthrowne; ſo weake and feeble were the meanes. And yet the Lord for waighty cauſes, preſcribes this courſe vnto them: to wit, Firſt, hereby to trie the faith of his people, whether they will beleeue his promiſes or no, when they are enioyned to vſe weake & feeble meanes, and in mans reaſon fooliſh.

Secondly, to make manifeſt in the weakeneſſe and inſufficiencie of the meanes, his own all-ſufficient power and wiſedome, for the furtherance of his glory: for, through weakeneſſe is Gods power made perfect, 2.Cor. 12.9. Hence, our Sauiour Chriſt, when hee was to cure the man that was borne blinde, tempers clay of ſpittle, and layes it to his eyes, Ioh. 9. 6. A meanes in common reaſon, rather fit to make a man blinde, then to recouer his ſight: and yet Chriſt vſeth it for the furtherance of Gods glory, in the manifeſtation of his Diuine power, whereby the people might knowe hee was able in himſelfe, to doe whatſoeuer he would.

Now, looke what courſe the Lord here takes for the battering of the walles of Iericho, the like hee vſeth in ouerthrowing the kingdome of the deuill, the ſpirituall Iericho; eſpecially in the new teſtament. For, after Chriſts aſcenſion, when hee intended to deſtroy the Kingdome of darkeneſſe, vnder which all the nations ſate, hee ſets apart a fewe fiſher-men, ſimple perſons, wanting worldly wit and policy; neither did he put a ſword of fleſh into their hands, but the word of God into their mouthes: and thus ſent them to diſpoſſeſſe the deuill out of all the world, and to batter down the kingdom of darkeneſſe by their preaching. And now in theſe latter daies, wherein the Antichriſtian kingdome of the Pope had ſpread it ſelfe through all places almoſt, God vſed the ſame weake meanes to ouerthrow it. For, hee ſet apart a ſilly Monke, and indues him with gifts to preach the truth: by which meanes, the kingdome of Antichriſt receiued a greater wounde, then if tenne Princes had ſet themſelues againſt it. And ſtrange it is to ſee, how God ouerturneth all the ſtratagems deuiſed againſt his Church, and how he vanquiſheth the power of ſinne, by the weake meanes of the Goſpel preached, and by the praiers of the Church; then which, to the world nothing ſeemes more feeble or fooliſh.

The conſideration hereof, is of ſpeciall vſe: for, it may be we ſhall ſee Kings and people of great power and number, to make reuolt from the Goſpel of Chriſt, and to fall to Antichriſt, embracing popery: hereat indeede, we muſt be grieued, but yet withall, here is good cauſe of comfort vnto vs; for we muſt know, that Satans kingdome muſt bee battered downe, not ſo much by the power of Kings, as by the breath of Gods mouth: not ſo much by the ſword of fleſh, as by the ſword of the ſpirit. So it is ſaid, that the man of ſinne, euen Antichriſt muſt bee aboliſhed: not by the power of Princes; yea, let all the princes and potentates in the world doe their beſt for him, yet his kingdom muſt downe in Gods good time; for God wil conſume him with the breath of his mouth, and aboliſh him by A the brightneſſe of his comming, 2.Theſ.2.8. that is, by the preaching of the word, in the mouthes of his Miniſters, who are mē voyd of all worldly power and policie.

Yet further, obſerue the meanes. They walke about the walles of Iericho ſeuen daies together. If men ſhould attempt the like enterpriſe at this day, in all likelihood it would coſt them their liues; for, now there are deuiſed ſuch inſtruments of warre, I meane great ordinance, and field pieces, that will kill afar off: and vndoubtedly, if there had bin ſuch inſtruments of war in this city, the Iſraelites could not ſo ſafely haue compaſſed the walles ſo many daies together. Whereby it appeares more then probable, B that in thoſe daies there were no gunnes knowen; no not amongſt the heathen, which at this day are ſo riſe amongſt Chriſtians. Whence may be gathered, that theſe later daies are perillous times; for now mens heads are ſet to deuiſe more hurtfull meanes againſt the life of man, then euer the ſauage heathen knew. For, beſide the inuention of gunnes, which put downe all euidence of proweſſe and valour, ſeene in Ancient warres; our age exceedes in contriuing ſuch ſtrange kindes of poyſons, as were neuer knowen in former times. For, men haue now deuiſed poyſon of that ſort, that will kill a man, not preſently; but a weeke, or a moneth, or a quarter of a yeare after; as appears by the confeſſion of thoſe, that haue giuen C themſelues to ſtudie and practiſe ſuch hurtfull deuiſes. And it is worth the marking, that the principall inuentors and practiſers of ſuch hurtfull inuentiōs, haue bin of the Romiſh religion.

The ſecond circumſtance to be obſerued, is the Time of this exploit. It was not on any of the ſixe daies, but on the ſeauenth; and that after they had that day compaſſed the citie about ſeuen times: then when the Prieſts blew the trumpets, and all the people ſhowted as Ioſuah bade them, the walles of Iericho fell downe; for this was the time which God had appointed for this exploit. The reaſon why God appointed ſeauen daies, and ſeuen times compaſſing on the ſeuenth day, is not reuealed vnto vs in the word of God: & therefore we may not D curiouſly prie into it, nor yet (as ſome do) hence gather, that ſeuen is a perfect number. But from the conſideration of the very time wherein the walles fell down, we may learne this; that if wee would haue God to accompliſh his promiſes vnto vs, we muſt waite for that time & ſeaſon which hee hath appointed: we muſt not thinke that God wil accompliſh thē when we appoint. But we muſt beleeue gods promiſe, & alſo wait his good leiſure, and then will it come to paſſe. The Iſraelites compaſſed about Iericho one day, and the walles neuer ſtirre; yea, they doe ſo ſixe daies together, and ſixe times more on the ſeuenth day, and yet they ſtand faſt: The reaſon is, Becauſe Gods appointed time was not yet come. But on the ſeuenth daie, when they had compaſſed them about the ſeauenth time, all the people gaue vp the ſhowt, and then they fell downe; becauſe that was the particular ſet time, wherein God would accompliſh his promiſe.

Further, whereas they compaſſe about the walles ſeuen daies together; it muſt needes be, that they went about them on the Sabbath day, for that was one of the ſeuen. Now here a doubt ariſeth: for, this was a ſeruile worke vpon the Sabbath, contrarie to Gods commandement; which inioyneth ſo ſtrict a reſt vpon the Sabbath day, that they might not kindle a fire thereon: how then could they lawfully compaſſe the citie on the Sabbath day? Anſw. All Gods commandements in the morall law, muſt be vnderſtood with this exception; Thou ſhalt doe thus and thus, vnleſſe I the Lord command thee otherwiſe: for, God is an abſolute Lord, and ſo aboue the Law; and therefore may lawfully command that which the Lawe forbiddeth. In the ſecond commandement he ſaith, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelfe any grauen image, &c. and yet Moſes by Gods ſpeciall appointment ſet vp a braſen ſerpent, which was a figure of Chriſt. Vpon ſuch a ſpeciall command, Abraham lawfully offers to kill Iſaac; the Iſraelites at their departure ſpoyle and rob the Egyptians; and Ioſuah with the people, here compaſſe the walls of Iericho on the Sabbath day.

Rahabs Faith.

Verse 31.

By faith, Rahab the harlot periſhed not, with them which obeyed not, when ſhee had receiued the Spies peaceably.

IN this verſe the holy Ghoſt proceedes further, in declaring the power of faith; and, for this ende, commends vnto vs the faith of Rahab. The words containe the ſumme and abridgment of the ſecond and ſixt chapters of Ioſua: the meaning of them is plaine.

The points herein to be conſidered, are three: 1. The perſon beleeuing; to wit, Rahab. 2. The reward of her faith giuen by Ioſuah: Shee periſhed not, but was preſerued in the deſtruction of Iericho. 3. The teſtimonie of her faith, ſo called by S. Iames, 2. 25. and ſet downe in the end of this verſe, When ſhe had receiued the ſpies peaceably.

For the perſon: Rahab was a woman of Canaan, dwelling in Iericho; as we may read, Ioſuah 2. there ſhe liued and had her abode: ſhe was no Iſraelite, but a forrainer in regard of her birth, and a Stranger from Gods Church. How then comes it to paſſe, that ſhe is commended for her faith, and here put into the Catalogue of theſe renowned beleeuers? Why are not the reſt of the Cananites preferred to this honour as well as ſhe? Anſw. We muſt knowe this, that from the beginning of the world to the time of Chriſts aſcention, the Church of God was ſmall; ſometime ſhut vp in ſome fewe families, as, from the flood, to the giuing of the Law; and after limited to a ſmall Kingdome and people in the Land of Canaan, where the Lords people dwelt. During which time, all other Nations and people of the world beſides this little company, were no people of God, but ſtrangers from the couenant of promiſe, and (as Paul ſaith) Without God in the world. And howſoeuer Gods Church was thus ſhut vp, as it were in a corner; yet now and then it pleaſed God to reach out his mercifull hand to ſome of the heathen, calling them into his Church, and receiuing them into his couenant: and they are called in the newe teſtament, Proſelytes. In Abrahams familie, his bond-men and ſeruants were circumciſed, and made members of the Church of God. And in Moſes dayes Iethro Moſes father in Law, a Prieſt of Midian, obtained this at Gods hands, to be ioyned vnto Gods Church: and ſo was Ruth the Moabite, Ruth 1. 16. and Naaman the Aſſyrian, 2. Kings 5.17. and as ſome thinke Nabuchadonozer, Dan. 4. 3. but that is not ſo certaine. And ſo was the Eunuch of Ethiopia, Candaces the Queene of Ethiopias chiefe gouernour, Act. 8. 27. Now, as God in mercie dealt with theſe, ſo did he in like mercie call Rahab the harlot aboue all the people of Iericho: for, they truſted to their ſtrong walls, and therefore died: but Rahab beleeued, that the God of Iſrael was the true God, and ſo had mercie ſhewed vnto her. Now, after the time of Chriſts aſcenſion, God dealt more bountifully with the world: for he ſent the light of his Goſpel into all Nations: and (as the Scripture ſaith) their ſound went thorough all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world, Rom. 10. 18.

Eph. 2. 12.

Gen. 17. 27.

Exod. 18. 11, 12.

The conſideration of this limited eſtate of the Church of God for ſo long a time, ſerues to diſcouer vnto vs the errour of thoſe, that maintaine and hold vniuerſall calling of all and euery man to the eſtate of grace and ſaluation: but if that were ſo, then in former ages the Gentiles would haue beleeued; whereas we ſee, that before the aſcenſion of Chriſt, the Church of God was but a ſmall remnant, among the people of the Iewes onely: and not one of tenne thouſand beleeued among the Gentiles. Now, if all men had beene effectually called, then all would haue receiued the promiſe of the Goſpel: but many

many Nations in former ages neuer heard of Chriſt: and therefore there was neuer in all ages a generall effectuall calling of all men.

Obiect. Paul ſaith, God reconciled the world vnto himſelfe by Chriſt, 2. Cor. 5. 19. and if that be ſo, then he called all men effectually. Anſ. We muſt vnderſtand the Apoſtle according to his meaning: for, Roman. 11. 15. he expounds himſelfe, and ſhewes what he meanes by the world; ſaying, That the falling away of the Iewes, is the reconciling of the world: which cannot be vnderſtood of men in all the ages; but in the laſt age of the world after Chrſts aſcenſion, wherein God offered to all the world life euerlaſting by Chriſt.

Further, Rahab is here noted by a notorious vice, ſhe is called a harlot; whereby, ſhe was infamous among the men of Iericho. Certaine of the Iewes which are enemies to the new Teſtament, ſay, That the Author of this Epiſtle, and S. Iames doe great wrong vnto Rahab for calling her an harlot; for (ſay they) in Ioſuah ſhee is called but a Tauerner or Hoſteſſe.

Anſw. We muſt know that the word which is vſed in Ioſuah, ſignifieth two things; a Tauerner and an harlot. Now, take the word properly, as it is generally vſed in the olde Teſtament, and then moſt commōly it is put for an harlot. And therefore in the newe Teſtament, Rahab hath no wrong don her by this title. For it is the thing that Ioſuah intended, to ſhewe what a one ſhe had been: and therefore in ſpeaking of her to the ſpies, he bids them go into That harlots houſe, Ioſ. 6. 22. vſing ſuch an Article as implyes, that ſhe had beene infamous and notorious in that kinde. And yet we muſt not thinke that ſhe playd the harlot, after ſhe had receiued grace to beleeue, but long before; for, faith purifieth the heart; neither will it ſuffer any ſinne to raigne therein. She is called a harlot, therefore, in regard of her life paſt; for which, ſhe was infamous among the men of Iericho, before her calling to the faith.

Queſt. How could ſhe beleeue, beeing a harlot in former times? for it is ſaid, That neither fornicators, nor adulterers, ſhall inherite the Kingdome of heauen, 1. Cor. 6. 9. Anſ. That is true according to the Law: but the Goſpel giues this exception, vnleſſe they repent. And ſo are all legal threatnings to be vnderſtood in the word of God.

In this circumſtance of the perſon, and in the qualitie of her ſinne, we may note the endleſſe mercie of God towards ſinners; for he hath vouchſafed to call moſt notorious and grieuous ſinners to the ſtate of ſaluation: as Iſay ſaith, The Lord is very ready to forgiue, Iſay 55. 7. yea, with the Lord is plentifull redemption, Pſal. 130. 7. This appeares, by vouchſafing mercie to Rahab a notable harlot: and as he dealeth with Rahab here, ſo hath he ſhewed like mercie to other notorious ſinners. King Manaſſes had ſold himſelfe to Idolatry and witchcraft, and had ſhed innocent blood exceeding much, & cauſed Iudah to ſinne, 2. Kin. 21. 6. 16. for which he was led captiue: yet when he hūbled himſelfe and prayed, God was intreated of him, 2. Chr. 33. 13. And Paul ſaith of himſelfe; When he was a blaſphemer and a perſecuter, and an oppreſſor, he was receiued to mercie, though he were the head of all ſinners; that Chriſt might firſt ſhew on him all long ſuffering, vnto the example of them, which ſhall in time to come beleeue in him vnto euerlaſting life, 1. Tim. 1. 13. 16.

The conſideration of this exceeding mercie of God towards ſinners, is of great vſe. Firſt, it armeth a poore ſoule againſt deſpaire: whereinto the deuill would drawe it vpon the viewe of the multitude and greatneſſe of his ſinnes: for, many reaſon thus: My ſinnes are ſo haynous, ſo many, and ſo vile, that I dare not come to God, neither can I be perſwaded of the pardon of them. But behold here the endeleſſe mercie of God, in forgiuing ſinnes to them that repent, though they be like crimſon and ſcarlet, and neuer ſo many. This muſt comfort the wounded ſoule, and encourage all touched hearts, to repent, and to ſue to the Lord for mercie and pardon.

Secondly, it muſt mooue euery one of vs now to begin to repent, if we haue not repented heretofore: and if we haue begun, to doe it more earneſtly; for God is moſt mercifull, and with him is plentifull redemption. Yet we muſt beware that we take not occaſion hereby to liue in ſinne, becauſe God is mercifull: for this is to turne the grace of God into wantonnes; which S. Iude makes a brand of the vngodly, and a ſigne of the reprobate, who (as the Apoſtle there ſaith) are appionted to condemnation: yea, this is a deſpiſing of the bountifulneſſe of God, which ſhould lead them to repentance; and hereby they heape vp vnto themſelues wrath againſt the day of wrath, Rom. 2. 4, 5. Let vs therefore remember this counſell of Paul, Shall we ſinne that grace may abound? God forbid. We muſt all, but eſpecially young men take heede of this courſe: for, if we bleſſe our ſelues in our heart, and ſay we ſhall haue peace, though we liue in ſinne, God will not be mercifull vnto vs, but his wrath ſhall ſmoake againſt vs.

Deut. 29. 19, 20.

Further note, that howſoeuer ſhe was a ſinner, and a moſt infamous harlot: yet when ſhe repents, God doth honour and grace her with the title of a beleeuer; & that among thoſe moſt renowned beleeuers that euer liued before Chriſt: euen to be one of that cloud of witneſſes, in whom faith is commended to the Church for euer. Hence alſo it is, that S. Matthew reckons her in the Genealogie of Chriſt, to be one of his predeceſſours: when as Amaſia, Achas, and ſuch like, (who for ought we knowe) did neuer repent, are not once named. Herein we may ſee Gods wonderfull mercie in honouring ſinners, if they doe repent. The conſideration whereof muſt mooue vs, not only to learne the doctrine of Repentance, and to haue it in our mouthes, but to labour that it may be ſettled in our hearts;

Heb. 12. 1.

hearts: that we may ſhewe forth the power thereof in our liues. All of vs deſire honour and reputation among men. Well: if we would be honoured indeede, we muſt repent, and then God himſelfe will honour vs; neither haue our ſinnes made vs ſo infamous, as by our repentance God ſhall make vs honourable.

Further, concerning the partie: How could Rahab come by faith? ſeeing ſhe liued out of the Church, where the word was neuer preached vnto her.

Ioſh.2.20. Anſ. If we reade the Story, we ſhall finde that ſhe came to beleeue, by a report of Gods meruailous acts: for, when the Lord deliuered the Iſraelites out of Egypt through the red ſea, and drowned Pharaoh therin with al his hoaſt; as they went further, he deliuered the Kings of the Nations into their hands: as Og the King of Baaſhan, with the Kings of the Amorites and Amalekites.

Now, the report hereof came to the people of Iericho; whereupon they were ſtricken with a wonderfull great feare. And howſoeuer the men of Iericho made no other vſe of it, but to arme and prepare themſelues to reſiſt and beate backe the Iſraelites: yet this report wrought further with Rahab; and therefore ſhe came to the Spies, whom ſhe had receiued, and hid vpon the roofe of her houſe, and their confeſſed the God of Iſrael to be the true God, in heauen aboue, and in the earth beneath. Ioſh 29. 10,11.

Here we may note, that when ordinary meanes faile, for the beginnning and encreaſe of faith; as the word preached, and the Sacraments: then God can worke faith extraordinarily, euen by reports, and rumors. For, thus Rahab, and many of the heathen came to beleeue. We ſay of the Church of Rome, that it is no true Church, and that their religion cannot ſaue a man: Hereupon many that ſauour that way, reply and ſay: Will you therefore condemne all your forefathers, that liued and died in time of Popery? We anſwer, no; we dare not giue ſuch cenſure vpon them: but rather iudge charitably of them: yea, we haue great hope that many of them were ſaued. For though they wanted preaching and reading, yet God might worke faith in them extraordinarily, and bleſſe euen good reports and ſpeeches vnto them, with the reading of other godly bookes, beſides Gods word, which ſome of them had. We need not then giue ſo hard a cenſure of them: becauſe God is not tied to ordinarie meanes, but can ſaue extraordinarily, when meanes faile.

Futher, concerning Rahabs faith, it may be demanded whether it was weake or ſtrong? becauſe, before ſhe had done this fact of faith, her whole abode was among the heathen. Anſw. We muſt knowe, that there is in the child of God a certaine ſeede, or beginning, or preparation to a true and liuely faith; which our Sauiour Chriſt in the Scriptures, doth honour with the title of a true and liuely faith: as when a man knowes no more but this, that Chriſt Ieſus is the true Meſſias; hauing withall, a care and conſcience to profit and increaſe in the true knowledge of the Goſpel, and to ioyne practiſe therewith, in his life and calling. Examples hereof, we haue many in Gods word: A certaine Ruler came to Chriſt, and beſought him to goe downe and heale his ſonne, Ioh. 4. 49, 50. &c. Ieſus but ſaid vnto him, Goe thy way, thy ſonne liueth; and the Ruler beleeued the word that Ieſus ſpake vnto him, and his ſonne liued. Now, inquiring of the hower, and finding it to be the ſame time when Ieſus ſaid, Thy ſonne liueth; the text ſaith, He beleeued and all his houſhold. Now what was this mans faith? Surely, he onely acknowledged, that Chriſt was the true Meſſias: and withall, reſigned himſelfe and his family to be inſtructed further therein. And though they knew nothing particularly, of the means whereby Chriſt ſhould be a Sauiour; yet for this willingneſſe in embracing Chriſt, and readineſſe to be taught, the holy Ghoſt ſaith, they did beleeue. So in the ſame Chapter, ver. 29. the woman of Samaria (beeing conuicted in her conſcience, of the things that Chriſt told her) runnes to the towne, and ſaith; Come ſee a man that hath told me all things that euer I did: Is not he the Chriſt? Then the text ſaith, Many of the Samaritans beleeued, becauſe of the ſaying of the woman. Now what faith had theſe Samaritans? Surely, they did onely acknowledge him to be the true Meſſias, and were willing to be further inſtructed in his doctrine; which they teſtified, by going to heare him in their owne perſons. So likewiſe, Chriſt giues a notable teſtimony to the confeſſion of the Apoſtles faith (Matt. 16. 17, 18.) in the perſon of Peter, ſaying; Thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke (that is, vpon this your faith, which thou confeſſeſt) will I build my Church; and yet the Apoſtles were ignorant of ſome maine points of the Goſpel. For a little after, when Chriſt tels them of his going to Ieruſalem, and of his paſſion, for the redemption of them, & all the elect, Peter perſwades him to the contrary, ſaying; Maſter, ſpare thy ſelfe, theſe things ſhall not be vnto thee. Whereby it appeares, that Peter did not know how Chriſt ſhould be a Sauiour; neither did the Apoſtles particularly know Chriſt his reſurrection, till he was riſen againe: yea, at the very time of his aſcenſion, they knewe not the nature of Chriſts Kingdome; and therefore they asked him, Lord, wilt thou now reſtore the Kingdome to Iſrael? (Acts 1. 6.) dreaming ſtill of a temporall Kingdome: for which Chriſt rebukes them. And notwithſtanding all theſe wants, Chriſt ſaith, they had true faith; yea, ſuch faith as the gates of hell ſhould neuer preuaile againſt. This then is a moſt comfortable truth, That if a man (in the want of meanes of further knowledge) doe holde Chriſt Ieſus to be the true Meſſias, and yeelde himſelfe willing to learne the doctrine of the Goſpel, and (withall) ioyne obedience to his knowledge, the Lord is willing for a time, to accept of this as of true faith.

Now, to apply this to Rahabs faith: Her faith was but a weake faith, or rather the ſeede and beginning of a liuely faith afterward. For, as we may reade, all that ſhe knew was this, that the God of Iſrael was the onely true God, and that hee would certainly deliuer the Land of Canaan into the Iſraelites hands. This was a notable perſwaſion wrought by a report; and accordingly ſhe ioynes her ſelfe to Gods people, & reſignes her ſelfe to obey the God of Iſrael: but whether ſhe knewe the particular doctrine of ſaluation by Chriſt, it is not here ſet downe; and it is very like, that as yet ſhe was altogether ignorant of it. For, here are all things ſet down, that tend to her commendation. So that her faith was very weake, and onely the ſeede of a liuely faith: and yet here the holy Ghoſt doth commend her for her faith, among the moſt renowned beleeuers that euer were.

Ioſh 2.11.

Hence we may learne many good inſtructions. Firſt, That God makes much account of a little grace: if hee ſee in a man but the ſeeds of grace, he doth highly eſteeme thereof. When the young man came to Chriſt, and asked him what he ſhould doe to be ſaued; Chriſt tells him, hee muſt keepe the commaundements: the young man anſwers, that hee had kept them from his youth; at which anſwer it is ſaid, Chriſt looked vpon him, and loued him. This he did for the ſhewe of Grace, which appeared in his anſwer: much more then will he like of that, which is true grace indeede. So, likewiſe Chriſt reaſoning with the Scribe, concerning the firſt and great commandement, and perceiuing that hee had anſwered diſcreetly, hee ſaid vnto him; Thou art not farre from the Kingdome of God, Mark. 12. 34. ſhewing hereby how deeply hee tenders the ſparks and ſeedes of true grace: nay, hee makes much of a very ſhew of grace: which if it be ſo, then if God haue giuen to any of vs but one ſparke of true grace, how ought we to tender it, and cheriſh it, and to reioyce therein, with all thankfulneſſe to God for it? yea, wee muſt ſeek to encreaſe the ſame: for according to our grace is our acceptance & reſpect with God in Chriſt.

Mark.10.17.

Secondly, whereas Rahabs weake faith is thus commended, here is comfort for all thoſe that are willing to learne Gods word, and to obey the ſame. Many are willing to learne: but they are ſo wonderfull troubled with dulneſſe and want of memory, that they cannot learne; and hereupon they growe to doubt much of their eſtate towards God. But theſe men muſt comfort themſelues: for though they haue but little knowledge, yet if they haue care to encreaſe in knowledge, and make conſcience of obedience to ſo much as they know, God will account of them as of true beleeuers: and in truth ſuch are to be commended aboue thoſe which haue much knowledge, and ſo ſeeme to haue much faith, and yet ſhewe forth no obedience anſwerable to their knowledge; for, they haue a ſhew of godlines, but want the power of it.

Thirdly, this confuteth our ignorant boaſters, who ſay they haue as much knowledge as any man needes to haue: for, they knowe, that a man muſt loue God aboue all; and, that Chriſt Ieſus is the Sauiour of the world: and this (ſay they) is enough; and hereupon they take vp their reſt for matters of religion, and ſeeke to go no further. But theſe men know nothing at all: for, if they would adde to this which they know, though it be but little, a care to encreaſe in knowledge, and with their knowledge ioyne obedience, then it were ſomething. But whiles they haue no care neither to get more knowledge, nor to ſhewe forth obedience to that they knowe, they doe hereby ſhew plainly, that there is no drop of ſauing knowledge, nor true faith in their hearts.

Fourthly, ſeeing God commends the ſeedes of true faith, for true faith indeede; This muſt encourage all men to vſe all good meanes to come by true faith and repentance. For though as yet thou haſt but little knowledge, and therfore but little faith and repentance: yet if thou ioyne hereto an endeauour to get more knowledge, and haue alſo care to practiſe that which thou knoweſt; then will the Lord encreaſe thy knowledge and thy ſmall faith, till thou haue ſufficient, and in the meane time accept of thee as a true beleeuer. And thus much for the meaſure of Rahabs faith.

The ſecond point to bee conſidered is, the reward which Rahab receiued at the hands of Ioſhua, and the Iſraelites, for her faith; Shee periſhed not with them that obeyed not: that is, ſhe with her family was preſerued aliue, when as Ioſuah deſtroyed all that liued in *Ierich*o, young and olde, man, woman, and childe.

But ſome will ſay; The Iſraelites were the people of God, a religious people: now, it may ſeeme to be a cruel part to deſtroy all; for, what had the young Infants done? Anſ. In mans reaſon it may ſeeme ſo indeede: yet it could not bee a cruell part, becauſe they did no more then that which God commaunded them. For, it was Gods ordinance, that the Canaanites ſhould bee rooted out, and that the Iſraelites ſhould ſhewe no compaſſion on them, Deut. 7. 3. Beſides, euen in reaſon the Iſraelites had ſome cauſe to deale thus: for, God gaue this charge to the Iſraelites, that when they came to any Citie or people, Firſt, they muſt offer peace; and if they anſwered peaceably, then they muſt bee ſaued, and become their tributaries & ſeruants: Deut. 20. 10. but if they would not make peace, then they muſt put them to the edge of the ſword (v. 17) man, woman, and child, beeing inhabitants of Canaan, or neere adioyning. And thus no doubt Ioſhua dealt when he came to *Ierich*o; firſt, he offered peace if they would become their tributaries: but they truſted to their ſtrong walles, and would not yeeld to become their ſeruants; for which cauſe he put them all to the edge of the ſword: and therefore it was no cruelty, becauſe it was Gods commandement; for Gods will is the rule of iuſtice.

But was not this partiall dealing, to ſpare Rahab with her family, who were inhabitants of Iericho as well as the reſt? Anſw. There were two cauſes why ſhe ſhould eſcape: Firſt, becauſe ſhe yeelded her ſelfe to the people of Iſraell, and ioyned her ſelfe vnto them, and was content to become one of their religion; and therefore the commandement of putting all to death, did not take hold of her. Secondly, Rahab obtained this of the ſpies, and bound them to it by an oath, that when they came to deſtroy Iericho, they ſhould ſpare her and her family: and therefore alſo did ſhee eſcape.

In this preſeruation of Rahab, we may learne ſundry points: firſt, whereas ſhe is ſaued aliue, becauſe of the oath of the ſpies, we ſee what ſpeciall care euery one ought to haue for the doing of thoſe lawfull things whatſoeuer they are, whereto he binds himſelfe by an oath. Ioſh.6.22. Ioſhua knowing this bond of the ſpies to Rahab (as we may reade) giues ſpeciall charge for her preſeruation. Hence Dauid ſaith, If a man binde himſelfe with an oath, he muſt keepe it, though it be to his owne hinderance, Pſal. 15.4. Euery ſingle promiſe bindes a mans conſcience, if it be lawfull: But when an oath is adioyned, then there is a double bond. And therefore the Heb.6.17,18. Author to the Hebrewes ſaith, that God, to make knowen the ſtableneſſe of his counſell promiſed, bound himſelfe with an oath: that by two immutable things (to wit, Gods promiſe, and oath) we might haue ſtrong conſolation: ſo that an oath binds a man double to the performing of his promiſe. And that this conſcience is to be made of a lawfull oath, appeareth thus: If a man make a lawfull oath, and yet be induced to doe it by fraud; he muſt performe it, and not faile: as appeareth by Ioſuahs fact to the Gibeonites, Ioſ. 9. 19. For, when they came to the Iewes craftily, as though they had beene men of a far country, and had brought them to ſweare that they would not hurt them: though the hoaſt of Iſrael murmured at it, when they came to their cities; and though they might haue reaſoned thus, that they got it of them by fraud, and therefore they would not keepe it: yet, this is the anſwer of Ioſuah & the Princes vnto the people, That they had ſworne vnto them, by the Lord God of Iſrael, and therefore they might not touch them. And when king Saul, in zeale to Iſrael, had broken this oath of Ioſuah, and the Princes, by deſtroying the Gibeonites, 2. Sam. 21. there came a plague vpon the Land, for three yeares ſpace; and was not ſtaied, till ſeauen of Sauls ſonnes were hanged, for Sauls fact. So that the breach of an oath is a moſt dangerous thing: and therefore, he that hath bound himſelfe thereby, muſt haue great care to keepe it.

Yet here ſome caſes may be propounded, worthie our conſideration. For firſt, what if a man haue taken an oath to doe an vnlawfull thing, muſt he then keepe his oath? Anſ. If his conſcience tell him, out of Gods word that the thing is not lawfull, then he muſt not keepe it: for an oath may not be the bond of iniquitie: the keeping of it is a doubling of the ſin. Dauid in his anger, had ſworne to ſlay Nabal, and all the men of his family, for denying reliefe vnto his ſeruants, 1. Sam. 25. 22. This was a raſh oath, and therefore afterward, when he was preuented by Abigails good counſell, he bleſſeth God for it, and breaks his oath which he had made, ver. 32.

Queſt. 2. What if a man take an oath, and yet afterward in conſcience doubts of the lawfulneſſe of that which he hath ſworne to doe: what muſt be done in this caſe? Anſ. So long as he doubteth, he muſt defer the performance of it. For, he that doth a thing doubtingly, condemnes himſelfe in the thing he doth, becauſe he doth it not of faith: and whatſoeuer is not of faith, is ſinne, Rom. 14. 23.

Queſt. 3. What if a man be vrged by feare to take an oath, muſt he afterward keepe it? As for example; a man is taken of theeues; nowe, wanting money, they charge him on paine of death, to fetch them money, and they binde him hereto by an oath: what muſt be done in this caſe, conſidering there muſt ſuch great care be had in keeping of an oth? Anſ. So long as the thing which he is bound by oath to doe, reſpecteth his priuate damage onely, he muſt keepe his oath; yet ſo as he declare his caſe to the Magiſtrate, becauſe their courſe is againſt the common good: now the Magiſtrate hearing of it, is according to equitie, to prouide for his defence, and for the ſafetie of his goods.

A ſecond point to be conſidered, in Rahabs preſeruation, is this; Rahab eſcaped a common danger (but not without all meanes) onely ſtaying her ſelfe on the bare promiſe of the ſpies: but, as ſhe beleeued in the true God, ſo ſhe vſed meanes, whereby ſhe might be ſure of her preſeruation, and that is this; She bindes the Spies by an oath, to ſaue her life, and to ſpare her Ioſh.2.18.21. houſhold: alſo ſhee keepes within, and ties the cord of red threed in her windowe, according to the mutuall couenant. Thus ſhe vſeth meanes for her temporall ſafetie: and ſo haue other of Gods children done in like caſe. When King Hezekiah (2. Kings 20. 6.) was ſicke, he was certified by the Prophet from God, that he ſhould liue fifteene yeares longer; yet he neglected not the means whereby he ſhould be healed, and liue: for, he applied dry figges to his byle; and vſed foode, and raiment for his bodily life, during the whole ſpace of thoſe fifteene yeares. So the Apoſtle Saint Paul, in his voyage by Sea to Rome, was aſſured by a viſion, that none of them that were with him ſhould periſh, but all come ſafe to land: and yet notwithſtanding, when the Mariners would haue gone out, he tells the Centurion, that vnleſſe thoſe ſtaied in the ſhip(that ſo they might vſe ordinarie meanes) they could not bee ſafe. Now, as it fareth temporally for the ſauing of the body; ſo is it in the ſpirituall caſe, for the ſaluation of the ſoule: men muſt vſe meanes to come by grace, and ſo to ſaluation. But, many in this regard be great enemies to their owne ſoules; they ſay, God is mercifull, and Chriſt is a Sauiour, and I hope hee will ſaue me; yet they will not vſe the meanes to come to ſaluation. But if we would be ſaued, then with our inward faith, we muſt ioyne the obſeruation of the outward ordinarie meanes whereby God vſeth to ſaue mens ſoules; as namely, the hearing of Gods word, calling vpon God by prayer, and the receiuing of the ſacraments; that thereby our ſinnefull lyues may be amended, and our faith ſtrengthened. This muſt be remembred of vs: for, they that contemne or neglect the meanes, deſpiſe the grace and mercie of God offered therein: and therefore Paul ſaith of the Iewes, when they put the Goſpel from them, that they did iudge themſelues vnworthy eternall life, Act. 13.46. It followeth;

With them that diſobeyed: That is, with the people of Ierieho. Queſt. How did they diſobey? Anſ. Thus: When Ioſuah and the people came vnto them, and offered them peace, if ſo bee they would become their tributaries and ſeruants, the inhabitants of Ierieho would not yield vnto them, but ſet themſelues againſt the people of Iſrael, and ſo againſt God, in that they would not vndertake that eſtate which God offered vnto them: and therefore they are here eſteemed diſobedient.

Hence we learne, that if it ſhall pleaſe God at any time to put vs out of theſe temporary benefits which we enjoy in goods and poſſeſſions; we muſt be contented with Gods will and prouidence, and ſeeke to obey God therein. The inhabitants of Ierieho pay deerely for their diſobedience in this caſe: God ſets the Iſraelites as Lords ouer them: and becauſe they will not yeild to become their ſeruants, they die for it. Dauids practiſe was commendable in this caſe: for, when hee was put out of his owne Kingdome, by his owne ſonne, hee murmured not, but ſaid thus; If I ſhall finde fauour in the eies of the Lord, he will bring me againe: but if hee ſay thus, I haue no delight in thee; beholde, here I am, let him do to me as ſeemeth good in his eies, 2. Sam. 15.25, 26. In other countries, we ſee Cities and Townes ſpoyled and ſacked: what muſt the people doe? Anſ. They muſt ſubmit themſelues to the Lords pleaſure; knowing that he permitteth it, who may doe what he will. And ſo, if it ſhall pleaſe God to bring vs into the like caſe; as to ſuffer our enemies to haue dominion ouer vs, and to diſpoſſeſſe vs of our places: we muſt ſubmit our ſelues to Gods good pleaſure, when we ſee no helpe by lawfull meanes: wee muſt not murmure or rebell; for, that is but to diſobey, as the people of Ierieho did: and ſo ſhall we bee A deſtroyed, as they were. And thus much for the ſecond point.

Rahabs faith.

The third thing to be conſidered in this example, is the teſtimony of her faith, in receiuing the ſpies peaceably. This was a notable worke of faith, as Saint Iames noteth, Iam. 2. 25. and the more commendable, becauſe ſhe receiued them into her houſe, and entertained them: yea, ſhee preſerued them in danger of her owne life; for, ſhee did it contrary to the pleaſure of the State vnder which ſhe liued. But againſt this may be obiected, firſt, that ſhee lyed in this fact; for, when the King of Ierichos meſſengers came to ſearch for the Spies, whom ſhe had hid in the top of her houſe, ſhee ſaid to the meſſengers, B they were gone another way. Now, how can it bee a good worke, which was don with lying; eſpecially to our Superiour, who hath power to aske vs, and to whome we are double bound to ſpeake the truth? Anſw. Wee muſt know that the worke was good which ſhe did; and a worke of mercie, to preſerue Gods people, although ſhe failed in the manner of doing it: ſhee receiued them by faith, though ſhee ſhewed diſtruſt, in lying for their ſafetie. It was a notable worke of Rebecca, Gen. 27. to cauſe her ſonne Iacob to get his fathers bleſſing; for ſo God had determined, and yet ſhee failed in the manner.

Queſt. But how could this worke be good, beeing faultie in the manner of doing it? Anſ. C It might: for Rebecca's perſon ſtood righteous before God in Chriſt. Now, the worker beeing acceptable vnto God, the worke muſt needes be good alſo: and though the worker failed in the circumſtances; yet the euill of the worke, was couered in the obedience of Chriſt; and ſo the goodnes of it was approoued, and the fault thereof couered.

The vſe of this doctrine is two-fold: firſt, it ſhewes that the works of Gods children, are partly good and partly bad; euen the beſt works they doe are imperfect. Secondly, this ſhewes the true meaning of Saint Iames, when he ſaith, that Rahab was iuſtified by her works: hereby he meanes, that by her works ſhe declared her ſelfe to be iuſt. For, that ſhe was not iuſtified by her D works appeareth plaine; becauſe the worke which ſhe did, was faultie in the manner, and not perfectly good: and therefore could not be anſwerable to the perfect iuſtice of God.

But ſome will further ſay, that this concealing of the Spies, and lying to the Kings meſſengers, was a worke of treachery againſt her own country; and therefore was a notorious fault, and ſo no worke of faith? Anſ. Treacherie indeede, is as great vilany, as one man can practiſe againſt another; and therefore ought to be abhorred and deteſted of al men: but yet we muſt knowe, that Rahab in this place is no Traytor. For, ſhe had a plaine Certificat in her conſcience, that the Land of Canaan, and the city Ierieho were giuen by the Lord to the people of Iſraell, and that they were the right

Lords thereof, and ſhould enioy them: ſo that ſhe hid the Spies, not in treacherie, but in faith.

Thus we ſee her fact. The duties which wee learne hence, are theſe: Firſt, it is ſaid that this harlot Rahab, being by calling an Hoſteſſe and a Victualler, receiued the ſpies peaceably. Hence, Inn-keepers are taught their duty. Firſt, if they will ſhew themſelues faithfull, they muſt haue ſpeciall regard & reſpect vnto ſuch gueſts of theirs, as be the ſeruants of God, and feare him. This was the worke of Rahabs faith towards the ſpies of Gods people. Dauid makes this the property of euery godly man, That in his eyes a vile perſon is contemned, but he honoureth thẽ that feare the Lord, Pſal. 15. 4. And therefore if Inn-keepers will ſhew themſelues godly, they muſt ſo do. And to encourage each one hereto, our Sauiour Chriſt makes this notable promiſe (Matth. 10.41.) He that receiueth a Prophet, in the name of a Prophet, ſhall receiue a Prophets reward: and hee that receiueth a iuſt man, in the name of a iuſt man, ſhall receiue a iuſt mans reward. And, if any ſhall giue, to one of theſe little ones to drinke, a cuppe of colde water onely, in the name of a Diſciple: Verily I ſay unto you, he ſhall not loſe his reward.

Alſo Strangers are here taught, that in ſeeking places for their abode, they muſt make choyce to bee with thoſe that feare the Lord: ſo God directs theſe ſpies to doe. And when Chriſt ſent his Diſciples to preach, hee bade them (Matth. 10.11.) when they entred into a Citie, To enquire who is worthy in that Citie, & there to abide till they departed. But alas, theſe duties are little performed; eſpecially the firſt. For, In-keepers, & ſuch as entertaine Strangers, doe make moſt of thoſe that giue themſelues to riot & good fellowſhip: they are beſt welcome, that ſpend moſt in gaming, drinking, & laſciuiouſnes. Theſe might learne otherwiſe of Rahab, who did better, though ſhe had been an harlot.

Thirdly, Inn-keepers muſt here learne, that when a man comes into their houſe (if he be no malefactor) they muſt giue him protection. Thus, Rahab doth here to the ſpies of the Iſraelites, euen with the danger of her owne life. The like alſo we may reade of Lot: for, when two Angels in the likeneſſe of men came into his houſe, and the men of Sodome would haue had them out; Lot beſought them to let them alone, Gen. 19.8. And his reaſon is, becauſe they came vnder the ſhadow of his roofe.

Againe, hence we may learne another generall dutie; to wit, that a Chriſtian man in the time of perſecution and danger, is not to diſcouer his fellow brethren, or to detect them; but muſt rather indanger his owne life, by concealing them for their preſeruation. This was practiced by good Obadiah: when Ieſabel killed the Lords Prophets, he hid them by fifties in a Caue; which if it had beene knowen, would haue coſt him his life. And ſo did the Apoſtles and brethren in the Primitiue Church; when the Iewes would haue ſlaine Paul in Damaſcus, the brethren tooke him by night, and let him down through the wal in a basket to ſaue his life, Act. 9:25. And ſince thoſe times, in the Hiſtorie of the Church vnder the Goſpel, we may finde, that when the Chriſtians were vrged by perſecuters to reueale their brethren, they rather choſe to lay downe their owne liues, then to betray their brethren into their enemies hands. And this is true loue indeede, ſuch as the holy Ghoſt commendeth, When a man will giue his life for his brother, 1. Ioh. 3. 16.

Laſtly, whereas Rahab receiued the ſpies peaceably, we note that it is a ſpeciall fruite of faith, to bee peaceable and kinde. The holy Ghoſt, repeating the fruites of the ſpirit, names Peace and meekeneſſe among them. Now, this peace is, when a man is kinde and peaceable to all, but eſpecially to thoſe that be of the houſhold of faith. And vndoubtedly it is a fruite of faith, which the Prophet Iſay fore-told ſhould be vnder the Goſpel, Iſay 11. 6. that then the Wolfe ſhould dwell with the Lamb, and the Leopard lie with the Kid: ſignifying, that howſoeuer men by nature were as ſauage as Wolues, yet beeing conuerted to the Kingdome of Chriſt, they ſhould become gentle as Lambes, beeing kinde and peaceable one to another. This peaceableneſſe is eſpecially to be ſhewed in the place and calling where a man liues: for, there did Rahab ſhew forth hers, whẽ the ſpies came vnto her. And, where this is truly in outward action, there is faith in the heart: it is a good token that a man is at peace with God, when he liues peaceably with men. Which being ſo; we muſt learne, not to giue place to our heady affectiõs, but muſt rather bridle the rage of malice and anger, and endeauour to liue peaceably with all, eſpecially with thoſe that bee members of Gods Church. And thus much of this example.

Gal. 4. 22.

The Iudges Faith.

VERSE 32.

And what ſhall I ſay more? For, the time would be to ſhort for me to tel of Gedeon, of Barac, & of Samſon, & of Iephte: Alſo of Dauid, and Samuel, and of the Prophets.

Which through faith ſubdued Kingdoms, wrought righteouſneſſe, &c.

Hitherto, the Author of this Epiſtle hath ſet downe vnto vs examples of faith, more at large. But from this verſe to the ende of this Chapter, he heapes vp briefly together many examples of faith, one vpon another. The reaſon whereof is; Firſt, becauſe the number of true beleeuers which are mentioned in Scripture, is very great, and therefore he could not here ſtand to ſet them downe in order one by one. Secondly, by handling all the examples at large, which the Author propoundeth in this ſhort Epiſtle, he ſhould haue ſeemed to haue reſtrained the name and title of faith to a very few: for, all that are here named and commended for their faith, are but few, in compariſon of all that truly beleeued in the old Teſtament. And therefore he heapes vp the reſt together, to intimate that the number of beleeuers, was more then he could record. And this he doth, by a Rhetoricall preterition or paſſing ouer, called in Schooles, Paralepſis; whereby matters are briefly diſpatched and paſſed ouer, with the very naming onely.

What ſhall I ſay more? ] That is, as if he had ſaid; I haue propounded diuers worthie examples of faith: and, beſides theſe, there are alſo many more; but the time of writing an Epiſtle, will not ſuffer me to handle them all at large.

Firſt, in this particular quicke diſpatch of beleeuers, by our Apoſtle, we may obſerue a difference betweene the infinite vnderſtanding of God, and the created vnderſtanding that is in mans minde. Man indeede vnderſtands the things that are reuealed to him of God; but yet in a manner and order, farre different from that which is in God: for man cannot conceiue in his minde all the things he knowes, at once, by one act of his vnderſtanding; but muſt haue diſtinct time to conceiue of them, one by one diſtinctly. For looke as he vtters them diſtinctly, one by one (as we ſee in this place,) ſo likewiſe doth he apprehend them in conceit, and vnderſtanding. But with God it is not ſo; for God at once, by one act of vnderſtanding, without diſtinction of time, doth conceiue of all things at once, both paſt, preſent, and to come; and ſo could vtter and expreſſe them, if any creature were able in conceit ſo to comprehend them.

Secondly, whereas the holy Ghoſt ſaith, The time would be too ſhort, &c. he giues vs to vnderſtand, that the number of beleeuers is very great; and that a long time would not ſerue to repeat them, or to write of them. This directeth vs vnto a good anſwer to a queſtion, which much troubleth our common people; to wit, How great is the number of them that ſhall be ſaued; whether it is greater then the number of them that ſhall be damned? Anſ. We muſt conſider the number of the Elect two waies: firſt, in compariſon of them that ſhall be condemned: ſecondly, in themſelues. If we compare the elect with the reprobate, the number of the Elect is but a ſmall number: for in moſt ages, the Church of God hath beene but a handfull, to the reſt of the world. And in the Church this likewiſe is true; Many are called, but few choſen, in reſpect of them that are called. But yet conſider the Elect, as they are in themſelues, and they are a huge great number; yea, innumerable, as Saint Iohn ſaith, ſpeaking of the Elect among the Gentiles, beſide the choſen Iewes: for all that doe truly beleeue ſhall be ſaued. Now, beleeuers are innumerable: This the Author of this Epiſtle would inſinuate vnto vs by his phraſe of ſpeech, What ſhall I ſay more? &c.

The Iudges faith.

In handling theſe examples; we muſt obſerue the order here vſed by the holy Ghoſt: for in this 32. verſe he ſets downe the names of the perſons that beleeue, all ioyntly together, rehearſing them one by one: and in the 33, 34, 35. verſes, he laies downe briefly the fruits of all their faith; in number, ſome moſt notable actions, ſeruing all and euery one of them, moſt worthily to commend their faith. In handling of them, we will follow the order obſerued by the holy Ghoſt: and firſt ſpeake of the perſons; then of their actions.

The foure firſt are theſe: Gedeon, Barac, Samſon, and Iephte: theſe foure were Iudges in Iſrael: the fift is Dauid, who was both a Prophet and a King: the ſixt is Samuel, both a Iudge and a Prophet: laſtly, the Prophets generally; by whome we muſt vnderſtand eſpecially theſe three, Elias, Eliſeus, and Daniel.

In ſpeaking of theſe perſons here commended vnto vs; firſt, we will intreate of them generally, and then in particular. In generall, let vs firſt obſerue the order which the holy Ghoſt here vſeth in naming them. Gedeon, for time, was after Barac; and yet here he is firſt named: ſo Samſon was after Iephte, and yet here he is put before him. This, the holy Ghoſt would neuer doe, without ſome ſpeciall cauſe. We therefore muſt know, that the Scripture vſeth a two-fold order in reckoning vp of perſons: to wit, the order of time: when as he that liued firſt, is firſt named: and the order of dignitie; when the moſt worthie and excellent is named firſt, though he were later in time. Now, the Scripture accounteth beſt of them that did excell in faith, and in the fruits thereof: ſo in this place whereas Gedeon is ſet before Barac, and Samſon before Iephte; the holy Ghoſt obſerues not the order of time, but the order of dignitie, according to the excellencie of their faith; naming them in the firſt place, that were moſt famous for this grace of faith, and did exceede the other in the fruits thereof.

Here we learne this ſpeciall point: That the more men excell in faith, and other graces of God, the more God will honour them: for, looke who moſt honour God, ſhal be moſt honoured of him: but the more a man excells in grace, the more he honours God. And for this cauſe is Gedeon preferred before Barac, and Samſon before Iephte; becauſe they were more plentifull in the fruits of faith. This muſt mooue vs, not onely to ſeeke to haue faith, but to labour euery day more and more for the increaſe of faith, and of obedience: for, the more a man abounds in grace before God, the more will God honour him, both here and in heauen. And thus much for the order wherein they are propounded.

Secondly, let vs conſider what manner of perſons theſe were, Gedeon, Barac and the reſt: They were extraordinary men, in their time, raiſed vp by God, for the ſpeciall good of his Church, and the common wealth of the Iewes, that they might helpe and defend them in diſtreſſe. And therefore, as their calling was extraordinarie; ſo God indued them with extraordinarie gifts of wiſedome, ſtrength, zeale, and authoritie; for which, they are here renowned in this Catalogue of moſt worthie beleeuers.

In their example we may obſerue this point: That whom God doth raiſe vp extraordinarily, for ſome ſpeciall good in his Church, them he endues with extraordinarie gifts to diſcharge that calling: and withall, he giues them the ſpirit of grace, with a true and liuely faith. This (beſides the inſtance we haue in hand) appeares plainly in Chriſts Apoſtles; they were called by Chriſt to preach the Goſpell to all the world, and to plant his Church vniuerſally; and thereupon (howſoeuer they were ſimple mē before) were furniſhed with extraordinary gifts of wiſdome, zeale, and knowledge, and with this excellent grace of ſauing faith, which did ſanctifie their other gifts: for, howſoeuer Iudas was numbred among them, hauing been a Diſciple; yet he neuer came to the execution of the Apoſtleſhip, but went aſtray from that miniſtration, Acts 1.25. And in theſe latter dayes, when God reſtored his Goſpel to light out of the darke myſt of Popery, he raiſed vp extraordinarie men, whom he endued with wiſedome, zeale, & iudgement; which giftes alſo he ſealed vp in them by a liuely faith, which they teſtified by their piety and godlineſſe in life and conuerſation. And this courſe he obſerueth vſually, in all thoſe whom he raiſeth vp extraordinarily for the good of his Church.

This we muſt obſerue, to acquaint vs with a ſpeciall difference, betweene thoſe whom God raiſed vp extraordinarily for ſpeciall good, and all arch-heretiques and traytors that ſet vp themſelues, vnſent of God. For, many ſuch wretches haue excelled in wiſedome, in worldly policy, in zeale and authoritie: whereupon they haue pretended and perſwaded many, that they were called of God. But hereby eſpecially they are to be diſcouered, that they are voide of this rare gift of true ſauing faith: for looke at their liues, and ordinarily for impietie they haue beene and are arch-deuils. So that, though they wanted not authoritie, or outward zeale, and wiſedome: yet they wanted faith, which ſhould purifie their hearts; or elſe they would neuer haue liued in ſuch notorious ſinnes, as they were diſcouered to doe. And A this is the trial which our Sauiour Chriſt directs vs vnto; ſaying, Ye ſhall knowe them by their fruites. Math. 7.16. Let them therefore pretend what knowledge, what zeale, or authoritie ſoeuer they will; if the fruites of faith appeare not in their liues by obedience, they are not called of God, for the ſpeciall good of his Church.

Thus much of theſe men in generall: now we come to entreate of them ſeuerally, as they are propounded in the Text.

THe firſt perſon here commended vnto vs, is Gedeon: the Hiſtory of whoſe acts, is laid downe at large, Iudges 6. In his example note one point eſpecially, to acquaint vs with the manner which God vſeth in begetting and B encreaſing true faith in the hearts of his children. If we read the Storie, we ſhall ſee, that the Lord, in the likeneſſe of an Angel, called Gedeon, once, twice, yea thrice to be a Iudge to his people. But Gedeon greatly doubts of his calling; and therefore deſires a ſigne of the Lord; which God gaue him: For, the ſacrifice which he offered, was burned vp with fire from heauen: yet ſtill he doubted, and was in a greater feare then before, euen of death it ſelfe: but beeing confirmed by the Angel, and ſet a work, he brake downe the Altar of Baall, and built one to the true God, and thereon offered ſacrifice as God commanded, though with ſome feare. And, when the Midianites and Amalekites C came armed againſt Iſrael, he is ſtirred vp by the ſpirit of God for their defence: but yet ſtill he doubted of his calling, and therefore againe asked a ſigne at Gods hands, and had it; and after that asked another, which God alſo graunted. Now, hauing all theſe one in the necke of another, at length he knowes his calling, and ſo goes in faith, and defends Iſrael: ſo that he got the aſſurance of his calling, by ſundry particular ſignes and confirmations of his faith. And though he doubted greatly at the firſt: yet, after hee beleeues, not onely that he ſhould be a Iudge and Deliuerer of Gods people out of the hands of their enemies; but this principally, that God was his God, and would D giue vnto him euerlaſting life.

Iudg. 6.12. 14.16.

Here then we haue a notable precedent of the manner of Gods working true and ſound faith in the hearts of his children. They receiue not this grace at once, but, by degrees, God workes it in them by little and little. When a man is firſt called of God, he hath much doubting & feare; but then God ſends ſundry helps to weaken this feare and doubting: and as they decreaſe, ſo is faith increaſed. No man beleeues ſoundly at the firſt, but weakely; euen as he growes in yeares, ſo he muſt grow in faith: and the encreaſe of our faith is by continuance in the meanes, and by the experience of Gods loue and fauour. And indeede the more faith encreaſeth, the more we vſe the means to grow therein, and the more wee delight in the meanes; and at length, after long experience of Iephtes faith.

A Gods mercie, we ſhall haue wrought in our hearts this gift of true and liuely faith, which ſhall be able to preuaile againſt all feare and doubting. And thus much for the perſon of Gedeon.

The ſecond perſon commended vnto vs, is Barac; of whom we may read, Iud. 4. His Storie is large and plaine enough: and therefore we will not ſtand vpon it.

The third perſon is Samſon; of whom we may alſo reade Iudg. 13. 14. &c. Now touching Samſon, this queſtion may well be asked, how he can be iuſtly commended for his faith, ſeeing it may ſeeme he killed himſelfe? Anſ. Samſon did not kill himſelfe: for he was called extraordinarily to be a Iudge ouer Iſrael B for their defence and deliuery out of the hands of the Philiſtimes. Now, when the Princes of the Philiſtimes were gathered together, beeing his enemies, and the enemies of God and his people, he caſt the houſe downe vpon their heads to kill them therein, becauſe (beeing blinde) he could not purſue them in battaile. And therefore hauing them by Gods prouidence in his hands, he deſtroyed them, as his calling was: albeit, he loſt his life in the ſame action.

Againe, Samſon in pulling down the houſe purpoſed not directly and wilfully to kill himſelfe, but to aduenture his owne life, by taking iuſt reuenge vpon his enemies, and the enemies C of God: and therefore as Gods ſeruant, he praied firſt vnto God: and ſo did no more then the Souldier in the field ought to doe: who, bearing a louing minde towards his Country, is content to aduenture his owne life for the deſtruction of his enemies, in the defence of his Country: and is reſolued, that if he die in that defence, he dieth in his lawfull place and calling, and dieth Gods ſeruant, yea, Gods Champion. This did Samſon, and therefore may iuſtly be commended for his faith: neither is this fact of his any diſgrace, but rather a notable commendation of his faith, and an euidence of great zeale for Gods glorie, and of ſingular loue to his people.

The fourth perſon commẽded here, is Iephte, D of whom we may reade, Iudg. 11. Iephte was the baſe ſonne of Gilead, borne of an harlot. To be baſe borne, is noted in Scripture as a matter of reproach: and therefore the Lord forbad a baſtard to enter into the congregation of the Lord, to beare any office, vnto the tenth generation, Deut. 23. 2. So ignominious is this kinde of birth, by the iudgement of Gods ſpirit, vnto that party on whom it falls. For, this ſinne of fornication doth not onely hurt the perſons committing it, but euen ſtaines the children baſe born vnto the tenth generation. Yet howſoeuer Iephte was baſe borne, and ſo ſuffered for it great reproach: here we ſee, he is cõmended vnto vs for his faith, among the moſt worthie beleeuers that euer were. Indeede, beſides Iephte, we ſhal not find the like exãple in Scripture. Yet in Iephte we may ſee, that howſoeuer it be a reproachfull thing, to be borne of fornication: yet that doth not hinder, but the party ſo borne, may come to true faith, and ſo to the fauour of God, and to life euerlaſting. Such perſons as are baſe borne, vpon view of that reproach, which the Scripture faſteneth vpon them, might take occaſion to thinke miſerably of themſelues; euen that God hath reiected them: but, this example ſerues to ſhew, that it hindereth not, but that they may come into the fauour of God, and by faith get honour of God, to counteruaile that diſcredit, which they haue by their baſe birth.

Further, whereas we commonly ſay, that ſuch as are baſe borne are wicked perſons; here we ſee the contrary in Iephte: and therefore, we muſt not for this cauſe condemne any for wicked or vngodly. Indeede, the Lord hath branded this eſtate with reproach, that men ſhould ſhunne the ſinne of fornication the more.

Againe: whereas Iephte is here commended for his faith; we may probably gather, that their opinion is not true, who hold that Iephte ſacrificed and killed his owne daughter. For, beeing commended here for his faith, certaine it is, he had knowledge in Gods will & word: and therefore, we muſt not thinke, but that he knewe, God would neuer accept of ſuch a vowe; by the performance whereof, he ſhould commit wilfull and moſt vnnaturall murder. This his faith ſhewes, that it was not his intent to kill the firſt perſon that met him out of his houſe; for, by the light of nature he might knowe, that God would neuer accept thereof: and therefore it is not like he ſo made his vow; for, this faith, and ſuch a vow cannot ſtand together.

But ſome wil ſay, the text is plaine (Iudg. 11. 31.) that He vowed to offer for a burnt offering, the thing that came out of the doores of his houſe to meete him when he came home. Anſ. It is ſo indeede, in ſome traſlations: It ſhall be the Lords, (And) I will offer it, &c. But the words, in the originall, may as well be tranſlated thus: It ſhall be the Lords, (or) I will offer it, &c. And this latter tranſlation is more ſutable to the circumſtances of the place; for, this was Iephtes meaning, that whatſoeuer met him firſt, he would dedicate it to God: and, if it were a thing that might be ſacrificed, then his purpoſe was to offer it vnto the Lord in ſacrifice.

Queſt. But if he did not kill her, why did hee then ſo lament for her? Anſ. Becauſe, by his vowe, he was to dedicate her to God; and ſo ſhee was to liue a Nazarite all her life long: which muſt needs be a very bitter thing to him, who had no childe but her; it beeing ſo great a reproach, & in ſome ſort, a curſe in thoſe daies, to want iſſue. I ſpeake not here, how well or ill Iephte did in making her a Nazarite: But, this may no way bee admitted, That beleeuing and godly Iephte ſhould aduiſedly kill his owne daughter. Vndoubtedly, hee could not thinke, that God would be pleaſed, with ſuch an abhominable ſacrifice. Thus much for theſe perſons: the reſt, I paſſe ouer, becauſe this ſtory is plaine and large in Scripture.

The Faith of the Iudges and Dauid.

VERSE 33, 34, 35.

Which through faith ſubdued Kingdomes, wrought righteouſneſſe, obtained the promiſes, ſtopped the mouthes of Lions,

Quenched the violence of fire, eſcaped the edge of the ſword, of weake were made ſtrong, waxed valiant in battell, turned to flight the Armies of the Aliants.

The women receiued their dead raiſed to life.

IN theſe words, the Apoſtle propounds vnto vs ten ſeuerall fruits of faith: the nine firſt whereof, are the particular actions of the parties ſpoken of in the former verſe; and they are here related for the commendation of their faith. The firſt is, Subduing of Kingdomes; which ſerues chiefly for the commendation of the faith of the foure Iudges there named, and of Dauid. For, as we may reade in the bookes of Iudges, and of Samuel, all theſe ſubdued Kingdomes; as, the Canaanites, Iudg. 4. the Midianites, Iudg. 6. the Philiſtims, Iudg. 15. and 16. 2. Sam. 8. 1. the Ammonites, Iudg. 11. Moabites, and Aramites, 2. Sam. 8. 2. 6. Now, how did they ouercome and ſubdue them? The text ſaith, by faith; which, we muſt not thus vnderſtand, as though onely by the very act of faith they ſubdued kingdomes: But the meaning of the holy Ghoſt is, that they beleeued the promiſes which God made vnto them, of deliuering theſe kingdomes into their hands; and according to their ſaith, God accompliſhed his promiſes vnto them: and ſo they ſubdued Kingdomes by faith.

In this worke of faith, we may learne two things: firſt, that it is lawfull for Chriſtians in the newe Teſtament to make warre; for, that which may be done in faith, is lawfull for Gods ſeruants: but, warre may be made in faith; for, theſe ſeruants of God, ſubdue kingdomes in warre, and that by faith: and therefore it is lawfull for Chriſtians, vpon iuſt cauſe to make warre. The Anabaptiſts of Germany ſay, It is not lawfull for a Chriſtian vnder the Goſpel to carry a weapon, or to make warre. But, this one place of Scripture (if there were no moe) is alone ſufficient to prooue the lawfulneſſe of warre vnder the Goſpel, if it be vſed according to Gods will and word. When the Souldiers came to Iohn Baptiſt, and asked him, What they ſhould doe? he bids them not leaue off their calling; but this: Doe violence to no man, neither accuſe any falſly, and be content with your wages, Luk. 3. 14. And our Sauiour Chriſt reporteth of a Centurion (which was captaine of a Band) when he came to haue his ſonne healed; that hee had not found ſuch faith in Iſrael. And hee was not a Centurion, onely afore he beleeued; but euen afterward, when Chriſt commended his faith: yet did he not diſlike his calling. The like may bee ſaid of Cornelius, Act. 10. All which, ſhewe plainely, that vpon iuſt cauſes, Chriſtians may lawefully make warre.

Matth. 8. 3.

Ob. 1. But to defend their opinion, they obiect ſome places of Scripture; as Matth. 5. 39. Reſiſt not euill ſaith Chriſt: therefore (ſay they) a man may not weare a weapon, nor vſe a ſword; leaſt thoſe make him to reſiſt, and ſo to breake this commandement of Chriſt. Anſ. That place muſt bee vnderſtood of priuate reuenge: and ſo it maketh nothing againſt lawfull warre. For, what though a priuate man may not reuenge himſelfe, nor make warre; yet that hindereth not, but that a Magiſtrate who bears the ſword, may lawefully vſe it. Againe, it is friuolous to imagine, that reſiſting is onely by a weapon; for, the chiefe reſiſtance that God reſpecteth, is in the heart and affection. And a priuate man may reſiſt; that is, breake this commandement, by vnlawfull reſiſtance, though he carry no weapon: &, the publike perſon breake it not, though he make warre.

Obiect. 2. Secondly, they obiect the prophecy of Iſay, who ſpeaking of the kingdome of Chriſt, vnder the Goſpell, ſaith; That then they ſhall turne their ſwords into ſcithes, and their ſpeares into mattocks: therefore (ſay they) there muſt be no warre vnder the Goſpel. Anſ. That Prophecy ſignifies, that in Chriſts kingdome, there muſt bee great loue, and peace, and wonderfull concord among all the true ſeruants of God. But, here they take aduantage, and ſay; If this be ſo, what then needeth any warre? Anſ. We muſt know, that as there be two kindes of Kingdomes, a ſpirituall kingdome, and a politicke; ſo, there be two kindes of peace, ſpirituall, and politicke. Spirituall peace, is inward, in the Church: and politicke peace, is outward, in the common wealth. Spirituall peace, is begunne, and preſerued by ſpirituall meanes of grace in the miniſtery of the Church; but warre is an ordinarie meanes for the eſtabliſhing and preſeruing of politicke peace.

Secondly, hence we learne, that Gods people may make warre, not onely by way of defence; but alſo, in aſſault vpon their enemies, and that according to Gods word. For, here it is ſaid, that Gedeon, Samſon, Dauid, and the reſt, by faith ſubdued Kingdoms, making warre againſt them by way of aſſault, and not in defence onely. Indeede, ſpeciall care ought to be had, that offenſiue warre, in aſſaulting an enemie, bee made vpon iuſt and good grounds: one ſpeciall ground or cauſe is here implied in this worke of faith; to wit, the recouery of iuſt right in matters of importance: for, the Kingdoms of Canaan were giuen to the Iſraelites by God himſelfe, and for the recouery of them, they made warre by way of aſſault. So, when Lot was taken captiue by Keder-laomer, and the Kings of the Nations; Abraham, Lots kinſman, gathers his ſeruants together, and purſues the Kings, and ouertaking them, deſtroyed them for the recouerie of Lot and his goods. Other reſpects there be, for which offenſiue warre in aſſault may bee made: but becauſe they are not here mentioned, I will not propound them.

Gen.14.

The ſecond fruite of their faith is this; they wrought righteouſneſſe: that is, ſome of theſe men in their places wherein God had ſet them, gaue to euery man his owne. This working of righteouſneſſe conſiſts in two things; Firſt, in giuing rewards to ſuch as deſerued them. Secondly, in inflicting due puniſhment according to mens deſerts. In both theſe, the men before named did all excell; but eſpecially two of them, Dauid and Samuel. For Dauid, it is a wonder to ſee how righteous he was: for when he was anointed King in Sauls ſtead, and Saul reiected, how did he behaue himſelfe towards Saul? Did he ſeeke Sauls blood? No: But when Saul hunted him, as the hunter doth the Partridge, Dauid euen then gaue himſelfe to ſtudie and practiſe righteouſneſſe: yea, when Saul was fallen into his hands both in the Caue & aſleepe in the campe, 1. Sam. 24. 5, 6. &c. and 26. 7, 8. hee would not touch him, nor ſuffer others to doe him hurt, becauſe hee was the Lords anointed: yea, ſo righteous was Dauid towards Saul, that his heart ſmote him for cutting off but the lappe of his coate. Therefore Dauid is here commended eſpecially, for this effect of faith, the working of righteouſneſſe.

To applie this vnto our times; If this bee a fruite of faith thus to worke righteouſneſſe, then what may be ſaid of the Church of Rome, and of the Popiſh ſort among vs? They pretend the auncient faith, and none muſt bee ſo good beleeuers and Catholikes as they: but how doe they ſhewe this their faith? Is it by the practiſe of righteouſneſſe? Doe they giue to euery one his due? Nay verily: but they ſet themſelues to worke the ruine of Kingdomes, that ioyne not with them in religion. This, witneſſe their manifold and deuilliſh plots againſt our ſtate from time to time. This did not Dauid, no not againſt Saul, though he were reiected of God, and alſo moſt vniuſtly ſought his death. But they haue many times ſought the death of the Lords anointed ouer vs: whereby they declare their ſtate to all the world, that they haue no ſparke of true faith, at all: for, true faith will make a man practiſe righteouſneſſe and innocencie. And therefore we may iudge of them, and all their adherents that be of this minde to allow ſuch practiſes, that they haue none other but the faith of deuills: which is, to beleeue the word of God to be true. This the deuils doe with trembling. And as their faith is deuilliſh, ſo are the fruites thereof: namely, treachery and falſhood, ſuch as the deuil moſt approoues. But wee muſt learne, that true faith is eſpecially commended by theſe fruites, The ſtudie and practiſe of innocencie, and the maintaining of peace in Chriſtian eſtates: for, true faith, and treachery, and contention, will no more ſtand together, then light and darkneſſe.

Secondly, Samuel alſo wrought righteouſneſſe; as appeareth by his proteſtation before all Iſrael, when hee gaue vp his office of gouernment ouer them vnto Saul: 1. Sam. 12. 3: Behold (ſaith he) here am I: beare record of mee before the Lord, and before his anointed: whoſe Oxe haue I taken? or whoſe Aſſe haue I taken? or whome haue I done wrong to? or whom haue I hurt? or of whoſe hand haue I receiued any bribe, to blinde mine eyes therewith? and I will reſtore it.

Now, as theſe two, Samuel and Dauid were famous, for this fruit of faith in working righteouſneſſe: So likewiſe were the Iudges and Prophets, before named, in their places carefull of this vertue: & did practiſe the ſame, partly in rewarding the good, and partly in puniſhing the wicked.

But ſome will ſay; To worke righteouſneſſe, cannot be a fruite of faith: for, the very Heathen, which neuer heard of Chriſt, by the light of nature haue done Iuſtice, and are highly commended by Heathen Writers, for the ſame. Now, that which the Heathen can doe by the light of nature, is not thus to be extolled as a fruite of faith? Anſ. True it is, the Heathen haue done many works of iuſtice: but we muſt wiſely conſider, that euery iuſt worke is not a fruite of faith, vnleſſe it be done by a righteous perſon in obedience to God, and for his glory. But, in all theſe, the Heathen failed in their workes. For, though the things they did were good in themſelues: yet ſeeing the Heathen were corrupt trees, remaining in the ſinnefull ſtate of

A corrupt nature, their works muſt needes be corrupt fruite; as comming from them. For, an euill tree cannot bring forth good fruite. The heart is the fountaine of euery action: now, their hearts were corrupt, beeing deſtitute of faith which purifieth the heart: and therefore their works muſt needes be ſinnefull. Againe, they did not their works in obedience: for, they were guided onely by the light of nature, and knew not God aright, nor his comandements. And laſtly, they propounded not the glorie of God, as the end of their works, but the praiſe of men, their owne profit, or ſome ſuch ende. But theſe worthie perſons do not onely ſuch things as were iuſt in themſelues: but they do them in faith, in obedience, and for Gods glorie, and ſo B pleaſe God.

Now, ſeeing theſe renowned Princes and Iudges, haue their faith commended vnto vs by their practiſing of righteouſneſſe; we muſt learne to followe them within the compaſſe of our calling, doing Iuſtice and righteouſneſſe in ſuch things as concerne vs. There be many reaſons ſet down in Gods word, to perſwade vs hereunto. As firſt, for this ende hath God cauſed the Goſpel to be publiſhed. Tit. 2.12. The ſauing grace of God hath appeared: but to what ende? To teach vs, that we ſhould denie vngodlineſſe, and liue ſoberly and righteouſly: that is, that we might doe Iuſtice. Vnleſſe therefore we worke righteouſneſſe, we make the Goſpel a C vaine word vnto vs. Secondly, we deſire to be counted iuſt before God and men; and it would grieue vs, if we ſhould be otherwiſe thought of: but if we would be iuſt indeede both before God and man, then we muſt worke righteouſneſſe: 1.Ioh.3.7. for (as S. Iohn ſaith) He that doth righteouſneſſe is righteous: Thirdly, there is no man ſet ouer a family, but he either doth, or ought to endeauour to bring a bleſſing vpon his family. But this he cannot doe, vnleſſe he worke righteouſneſſe, and doe Iuſtice: for, Salomon Prov.20.7. ſaith: He that walketh in his integritie, is iuſt, and bleſſed ſhall his children be after him. Laſtly, we doe all of vs deſire to eſcape hell: well, then we muſt remember to practiſe righteouſneſſe; 1.Cor.6.9. for, the Apoſtle ſaith, no vnrighteous man, that is none practiſing D vnrighteouſneſſe, ſhall enter into the kingdome of heauen. So that within the compaſſe of our calling, we muſt all endeauour to doe Iuſtice.

Here ſome will aske: How ſhall I do Iuſtice, and worke righteouſneſſe? Anſw. For doing of it, wee muſt remember to practiſe theſe rules that followe: 1. That which is both the word Matth.7.12. of God, and the rule of Nature; We muſt doe to all men, as we would they ſhould doe vnto vs: this is the Law and the Prophets (ſaith our Sauiour Chriſt.) Now, the ſquare for all our actions, muſt bee the word of God: and Gods word giues this direction: Do thou to thy neighbour as thou in thy reaſon and conſcience thinkeſt he ſhould do to thee, if thou wert in his caſe, & he in thine.

The 2. rule, is that which Paul teacheth vs, Rom.13.7. ſaying, Giue vnto euery man that which is their dutie: tribute to whom tribute belongeth, &c. That which Gods word, and our conſcience, and the wholeſome lawes of the realme binde vs vnto, that we muſt giue vnto euery man.

The 3. rule is this: Euery man within the compaſſe of his calling, muſt not onely intend and labour for his owne good; but for the common good, in that Church & common wealth wherein he liueth. The blinde would out of their carnall mindes, haue learned this for a rule, Euery man for himſelfe, and God for vs all: and this is many a mans practiſe, he wil labour diligently in his calling: but, all is for himſelfe. But, he that propoundeth onely this end in his calling, to benefit himſelfe alone, dealeth vniuſtly, both towards the Church and common wealth, in which he liueth; who ought to haue a part of his care with himſelfe.

The 4. rule is taught vs alſo by S. Paul: Defraud or oppreſſe no man in any matter. This rule concerneth our manner of dealing in common affaires. In all our traffick and bargaines, as we would benefit our ſelues; ſo we muſt ſeeke to benefit thoſe with whom we deale. This rule is very neceſſarie to be learned: for, this is the common practiſe of men in their traffique, To vſe all meanes whereby they may defraud others; ſo that they get vnto themſelues, they care not how it come. But in the feare of God, let vs remember, that the practiſe of iuſtice (to which we are all bound) ſtandeth in this; that we defraud or oppreſſe no man in any thing. And thus much of this ſecond fruite of their faith.

The third fruite and effect of theſe mens faith, is this: They obtained the promiſes.] By promiſes, we muſt not vnderſtand the maine promiſe, concerning the Meſſias comming; for, that they obtained not as yet: for, (as it appears v. 39) they receiued not that promiſe; for, Chriſt was not incarnate in their time. But, by Promiſes are here meant certaine ſpeciall and particular promiſes, made vnto them alone, and not common to all: ſo that the meaning of theſe words is this; They obtained the benefit and accompliſhment of thoſe particular promiſes that God made vnto them. This effect is ſpecially to be vnderſtood of Caleb, and Dauid: for, Caleb entred into the Land of Canaan, and there enioyed his poſſeſſion, according to Gods promiſe made vnto him, Ioſ. 14. So, Dauid had a particular promiſe made vnto him, that he ſhould be king ouer Iſrael; this he long waited for, and reſting herein, he was not onely anointed King, but in due time actually made King ouer all Iſrael.

Whereas theſe worthie men, by faith obtained theſe promiſes; Hereby we may be directed, to ſee the true cauſe, why after ſo long preaching of the word, and often receiuing of the ſacraments, men reape ſo little profit; eſpecially, conſidering that God hath made a promiſe

A of grace and ſaluation, by meanes of his word & ſacraments. Hence therefore we muſt learne, that the word of God preached, and the ſacraments receiued, are vnprofitable, not becauſe God altereth his willh,auing promiſed his bleſſing in theſe meanes; for herein the will of God is vnchangeable; but the cauſe is, the great meaſure of vnbeleefe, in thoſe which heare and receiue. They therefore profit not, becauſe they receiue them without faith. For, howſoeuer men ſay they haue faith; yet the works of their liues, and their eſtate in ſinne, after long hearing, ſhewe plainely, they haue none at all. Take a veſſell that is cloſe ſtopped, and caſt it into a riuer, or into the ſea; yet it receiues no water, becauſe it hath no place of entrance: B Euen ſo, bring a man that wants faith, to the word and ſacraments, wherein God hath promiſed the fulneſſe of his grace: yet he receiues none, becauſe his heart is cloſed vp through vnbeleefe. This is it which makes the heart like a ſtopped veſſell, which hath no entrance for Gods grace. We therefore, in the feare of God, muſt labour to haue our hearts purged of this vnbeleefe and lip-faith, and to be endued with true ſauing faith; whereby we may profitably heare the word, and receiue the ſacraments, and ſo enioy Gods moſt excellent promiſes in Chriſt. Men may lie, and be deceiued; but God is truth it ſelfe, and cannot lie: and therefore, as he thah made his promiſe of life to beleeuers, and to no other: ſo wil he aſſuredly accompliſh the ſame to them, and to no other. Wherefore C if we loue our ſoules, and deſire life, let vs get into our hearts the grace of faith. And thus much of the third effect of their faith.

The fourth and fift effects, which I will handle together, are theſe: Stopped the mouthes of Lyons: Quenched the violence of the fire.] For the fourth. Whereas ſome of theſe perſons are ſaid to haue ſtopped the mouthes of Lyons, it is to be vnderſtood of Daniel; as appeareth in the 6. Chap. of that booke. For, Daniel (thorough the malice of others that incenſed the Kings wrath againſt him) was caſt into the den of hunger-bit Lyons. But, Daniel euen then beleeued in the Lord, and put all his truſt in God, and for this cauſe, the Lord by his angel D ſtopped the mouthes of the Lyons, & (as it were) ſealed vp their pawes, that they could not hurt him.

The fift effect, in quenching the violence of the fire, muſt be vnderſtood of Shadrach, Meſhac, and Abednego, the companions of Daniel: which three (as we may reade, Dan. 3.) refuſed to worſhip the golden image, which Nabuchadnezar had ſet vp. For which cauſe, they were caſt into an hot burning Ouen; but they put their truſt in God, and claue faſt vnto him in obedience, euen to the hazard of their liues. Whereupon, the Lord by his omnipotent power, did moſt miraculouſly preſerue them, by ſtaying the rage of the fire contrary to the nature thereof, that it had no power ouer their bodies; nay, it did not burne the haire of their heads, nor cauſe their garments to ſmell. And therefore they are ſaid, to haue quenched the violence of it, becauſe it had no power ouer them, though it burned moſt fiercely; but was to them, as though it had beene quite put out and quenched.

Now, ioyne theſe two effects together, and they affoord vs good inſtructions. Firſt, here we learne how to behaue our ſelues in time of danger, and at the point of death. Euen as theſe foure men did, ſo muſt we from the bottome of our hearts forſake our ſelues, and put all our truſt in Chriſt. This did Daniel, when he was in the Lyons den: and this did the 3. Children, in the hot fiery furnace. And this hath beene alwaies the auncient practiſe of Gods children in all ages; At the very point of death, and in the extremitie of all danger, they reſted themſelues wholly vpon the mercifull promiſes of the true God. The time will come vpon vs all, wherein we ſhall be called to the practiſe of this duty: for, we muſt all paſſe the doore of death, and once lie in the pangs thereof. Now, what ſhall we doe when we lie halfe dead, gaſping and panting for breath, able to ſpeake to no man, nor to heare any ſpeaking vnto vs, when all comfort of the world failes vs? Surely, we muſt then, at that very inſtant, labour to leaue our ſelues and this world, and yeeld vp our ſelues by faith into the hands of God, and cleaue faſt vnto Chriſts Paſſion, from the bottome of our hearts, and he will ſurely deliuer vs from the danger; ſtopping the mouth of Satan that roaring Lion, and quenching the fire of hell, that it ſhall not touch vs.

But ſome will ſay, if this be all we muſt doe, then all is well; for, this I can ſoone doe when time ſerues, and therefore I will take no care till then? Anſ. Beware of ſpirituall guile; for, it will be found a moſt hard matter, for a man to relie and caſt himſelfe wholly vpon Chriſt, in the houre and pang of death. For, then aboue all times, is the deuill buſie againſt vs: then will the conſcience ſtirre, if euer; and the body beeing tormented, the ſoule muſt needes be wonderfull heauie. This we may ſee by the ſtate of our Sauiour Chriſt, in his agony and paſſion; and therefore we muſt not reckon ſo lightly of this dutie.

Queſt. But, if it be ſo hard a thing, how could Daniel and the three children doe it? Anſ. They were prepared for it: for, they reſted vpon God in the time of peace: and ſo were enabled to relie vpon him in time of perill. Euen ſo, if we would beleeue in God when we die, and then ſhewe forth our faith, we muſt while we liue put our truſt in him, and ſhewe it by obedience: for rare it is to finde a man that liues in vnbeleefe, to ſhewe forth faith at his ende. And therefore while we haue health, ſtrength, and peace, we muſt labour to beleeue, and then ſhall we find the comfort of it in time of perill, and of death.

Secondly, from theſe two effects of faith, wee obſerue further, that Gods diuine prouidence doth firmely rule and gouerne the whole world. Ordinarily God gouernes the world by ſecondarie cauſes, ſetting one creature ouer another, and ordaining one to doe this thing, and another that, and accordingly they worke: but we muſt not thinke that God is bound to any of theſe meanes, but is moſt free to vſe thẽ, or not to vſe them. Ordinarily hee executeth this or that puniſhment by this or that creature, and ſo by meanes conuayes his bleſſings: but yet he can worke without them, as here we ſee. For, he preſerues his creatures againſt the ordinarie meanes; as, Daniel from the Lions, whoſe nature is to deuoure: and againſt the nature of fire, hee ſaued the three children in the fire. So that God worketh by meanes, but yet freely; becauſe he can worke at his pleaſure either without or againſt meanes: and his powerfull hand, ſauing againſt meanes, ſhewes his ruling and diſpoſing prouidence ouer all things.

Thirdly, by theſe effects of their faith we learne, that Gods goodneſſe and mercy towards beleeuers, is farre greater, and more vnſpeakeable then euer hee promiſed, or they could expect. This point is carefully to bee conſidered of vs all; for, it is of ſingular and extraordinarie vſe, eſpecially in time of perill and trouble: and yet wee ſee it is the plaine truth of God; and therefore Paul giues thanks and praiſe vnto God, who is able to doe for vs exceeding aboundantly aboue all that we aske or thinke. Eph.3.20. Daniel put his truſt in the Lord, when he was in the Lions den: and what doth he obtaine for his labour? the Lord neuer promiſed to ſtop the Lions mouthes, neither did Daniell euer preſume vpon that deliuerance; and yet the Lord ſaued him. And ſo the three children, though they made no account of their liues, becauſe God had not promiſed to keepe them from burning, yet they come out in ſafety. For, God in mercie ſo quenched the heat of the fire vnto them, that though it burnt to death thoſe that caſt them in; yet did it not ſo much as burne their garments, or the hair of their heads, to cauſe the ſame to ſmell. And the like is his goodneſſe towards all his ſeruants. Dauid ſaith, The Lord preuented him with liberall bleſſings, Pſal.21.3. that is, when Dauid neuer asked ſuch bleſſings at Gods hand, euen then did the Lord beſtowe his liberall bleſſings vpon him: as namely this, when Dauid was following his Fathers ſheepe, and walking in his calling, hee neuer dreamed of any Kingdom: yet thence the Lord tooke him to be King ouer his people Iſrael. So the Iſraelites hauing beene 70. yeares in captiuity, neuer thought of returne; and yet then were they deliuered: and their deliuerance was ſo ſtrange and miraculous, that they were like them that dreame, Pſal. 126.1. When Peter was caſt into priſon by Herod, Act.12.4. and committed to foure quaternions of Souldiers to be kept, the Angel of the Lord came and awoke him as he ſlept, and ledde him out of priſon, paſt the watches, and through the iron gate, and then left him. Now, this deliuerance was ſo ſtrange vnto him, that he knewe not whether it was true, but thought he had ſeene a viſion. From hence it is that God hath made this gracious promiſe vnto his Church, to anſwer before they call, and to heare while they ſpeake, Iſay 65.24. So endleſſe is his mercie, and his goodneſſe ſo vnſpeakeable towards his ſeruants, that if they cleaue vnto him vnfainedly, they ſhall finde his bounty farre ſurpaſſing all that they could aske or thinke.

The conſideration hereof ſerues to ſtirre vp euery one of vs in our places, to cleaue vnfainedly vnto the true God, with all our hearts by faith, in due reuerence and obedience. If a ſeruant were to chooſe his Maſter, and among an hundred ſhould heare of one, that beſides his wages, would giue vnto his ſeruants, gifts which they would not thinke of; this ſeruant would forſake al the reſt to come vnto this one. Behold, the Lord our god is this bountiful maſter: who doth not onely keepe couenant with his ſeruants, in a full accompliſhment of his promiſes; but is exceeding gracious, preuenting them with liberall bleſſings, aboue all that they can wiſh for themſelues: wherefore let vs forſake all our bad Maſters, the world, the fleſh, and the deuill, in the ſeruice of ſinne; and reſigne our ſelues with full purpoſe of heart, to ſerue this our good God, to the ende of our dayes. There is no man liuing, that can haue ſuch true ioy in heart, as Gods ſeruants haue; for, God ſhewes more kindneſſe vnto them, then they can aske or thinke of. And take this for truth alſo: there be none that thus giue thẽſelues to ſerue God faithfully with all their hearts, but before they die they ſhall finde this to be true, that God is a moſt mercifull God, and his goodnes endleſſe towards them aboue their deſerts.

Secondly, this endleſſe mercie of God, muſt mooue vs all to repent vs of our ſinnes, and to truſt in him for the pardõ of thẽ, be they neuer ſo many or haynous: for, they cã neuer reach to the multitude of his mercies. Though they be in number like the ſand of the ſea, they muſt not diſmay vs from comming vnto him: but conſidering that his goodneſſe is endeleſſe, and his mercie is ouer all his workes, we muſt come vnto him for the pardon of our ſinnes. For, God is mercifull to performe his promiſe; yea, & beyond his promiſe, to doe for vs more then we can thinke of. Many indeede abuſe this mercie of God, by preſuming thereon to goe on in ſinne: but ſuch deceiue themſelues: For, God will not be mercifull vnto them, Deut. 29.20. It is the penitent perſon that ſhall finde mercie.

The ſixt effect of their faith, is in theſe words: Eſcaped the edge of the ſword. The words in the originall, are thus: Eſcaped the mouth of the ſword: which is the Hebrewe phraſe in the olde Elias and E-lizeus faith.

Teſtament, and here followed by the Penman of this Epiſtle:& before, where he calleth the word of God a two mouthed ſword, Heb. 4. 12: hereby meaning (as it is tranſlated) a two edged ſword. This effect muſt be vnderſtood of two worthy Prophets, Elias and Elizeus: for Elias, wee may reade, that when he had ſlaine Baals Prieſts (1. Kings 19. 1.) Iezabel the Queene threatned to kill him: which he hearing, fled into the wilderneſſe, and thence was led to Mount Horeb,& there eſcaped by means of his faith. And for Elizeus, we may reade, that when he diſcloſed the King of Syriah his counſell to the King of Iſrael (2. Kings 6.) hee was compaſſed about in Dothan, the city where he lay, with a huge hoaſt of Aſſyrians; but, praying to the Lord, the Lord ſmote the hoaſt with blindneſſe, and ſo the Prophet led them in ſafetie to Samaria. So then, the meaning of this effect, is, that when theſe ſeruants of God were in diſtreſſe, and danger of death, they denied themſelues, and their owne helpe, and by faith relied vpon God vnfainedly, from the bottom of their hearts; and ſo found deliuerance with God, from the perill of death.

Firſt, here we learne, that God prouides for the ſafetie and deliuerance of his ſeruants, in the extremitie of perill and danger, when both might and multitude are againſt them. This point we haue touched in diuers examples before, and therefore doe here onely name it.

Secondly, in that theſe men in the extremity of danger beleeued, and ſo eſcaped the edge of the ſword; we learne, that when we are in greateſt danger, ſo as we ſee no way to eſcape; euen then we muſt put our truſt in the true God, and he will ſaue vs. This wee muſt doe, not onely for the ſafety of our bodie; but more eſpecially, for the ſaluation of our ſoule. Put the caſe a man were in deſpaire of his ſaluation, and that he ſees legions of deuils compaſſing him about to take him away: what muſt this man doe in this caſe? Anſ. Looke what Elias and Elizeus did, the ſame thing muſt he doe; he muſt not lie dead in deſperation, yielding thereto: but, at the very ſame time, when ſuch terrors oppreſſe him, he muſt by faith liſt vp his heart to God, and put his truſt and confidence in him, thorough Chriſt. And, if he can this doe, hee may aſſure himſelfe, that he ſhall certainely eſcape theſe fearefull terrors of conſcience, and the torments of hell, as Elias and Elizeus did the edge of the ſword: for, let a man put his whole truſt in God, & whatſoeuer his troubles bee, God will deliuer him. Great are the troubles of the righteous: but the Lord deliuers him out of them all, Pſal. 34. 19. Indeede, we muſt not limit God, for time, or manner of deliuerance; but, waite on God by faith, accounting his grace ſufficient, till deliuerance come. And thus much of the ſixt effect.

The ſeauenth effect of their faith is this: Of weake were made ſtrong. Or thus: Of weake were reſtored to health. This muſt bee vnderſtood of Hezekias, a worthy king of Iuda, who (as wee may reade, 2. Kings 20.) beeing ſore ſicke, euen vnto death, was reſtored to health, and obtained of God the lengthning of his daies, for the ſpace of fifteene yeares. Which wonderfull recouery, he obtained by meanes of his faith, which he ſhewed in time of his ſickneſſe, by a prayer he made vnto God, the ſubſtance whereof, ſtood in theſe two things: Firſt, beeing very ſicke, hee praied for the pardon of his ſinnes. This appeareth by his thankſgiuing, vpon his recouery, Iſay 38. 17. where he confeſſeth, that God had caſt all his ſinnes behinde his backe. Now, looke for what he gaue thanks; that (no doubt) he had before begged of God in praier. Secondly, he made requeſt vnto God for prolonging of his daies, for ſome reaſons which did concerne himſelfe: and this hee alſo prayed for in faith. Now, the reaſons mooning him to pray for longer life, were theſe: Firſt, he had then no iſſue to ſucceed him in his Kingdome; and therefore hee praied for life, to beget a childe, which might ſit vpon his throne after him. And the ground of this praier was this: God had made a particular promiſe vnto Dauid and Salomon, 1. Kings 8. 25. that they ſhould not want iſſue after them, to ſit vpon the Throne of Iſrael, ſo that their children took heed to their way, to walk before the lord, as Dauid did. Now, King Hezekiah, knowing this promiſe, had regard hereunto; and, building himſelfe hereon, his conſcience bearing him witneſſe, that hee had walked before the Lord vprightly, he praies for iſſue to ſucceed him: and, for that cauſe, hee deſires ſtrength of bodie, and length of daies. This appeareth notably by his praier, 2. King. 20. 3. Lord (ſaith he) I beſeech thee now remember how I haue walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart. The ſumme of his prayer is this: All the kings ſucceeding Dauid and Salomon, which walke in Gods commandements, ſhall haue iſſue to ſit on their thrones after them. Now, from hence he praies thus: Oh Lord, I haue walked before thee, in truth and ſincerity of heart: and hereupon the concluſion followes, grant me iſſue to ſit vpon my throne after me; and therefore, life and health to accompliſh the ſame.

Secondly, hee praied that he might liue to glorifie God, in that weighty calling, wherein God had placed him ouer his people. This appeareth likewiſe, by his thankſgiuing vnto the Lord, vpon his recouerie: where he ſaith, Iſay 38. 20. The Lord was ready to ſaue me: therefore wee will ſing my ſong all the daies of our life in the houſe of the Lord. Thus by his worthy prayer, hee ſhewed forth his faith notably: by vertue whereof, beeing ſicke vnto death, hee obtained of the Lord, the prolonging of his daies, for the ſpace of fifteene yeares. And, ſo we ſee, to whom this ſeauenth effect of faith is to be referred.

Here we are taught a ſpeciall dutie, for the recouery of our health, in the time of ſickenes:

to wit, before we vſe the ordinarie meanes of Phyſicke, we muſt (according to this example) firſt put our faith in practiſe, by humbling our ſelues for our ſinnes paſt, confeſſing them truly vnto God, and praying for pardon, from a reſolute purpoſe of heart, to lead a new life; and alſo, by intreating health of God, and his good bleſſing vpon the meanes which we ſhall vſe for our recouerie. Thus haue other of Gods ſeruants done, beſide Hezekias. When Dauid was grieuouſly ſicke; the principall thing he did, was this practiſe of faith; in humbling his ſoule before God for his ſinnes, and intreating earneſtly the pardon of them, as we may ſee, Pſalm. 6. and 38. This is the principall thing, which in thoſe Pſalmes is propounded of Dauid. And ſo the Apoſtle counſells, Iam. 5. 14, 15. Is any man ſicke among you? let him call for the Elders of the Church: and what muſt they doe? ſurely, firſt pray for him; and then (as the cuſtome was in thoſe daies) anoint him with oyle, in the name of the Lord. And the praier of faith ſhall ſaue the ſicke, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him vp againe; and if he haue committed any ſinne, it ſhall be forgiuen him. And here we muſt be admoniſhed, to beware of the bad practiſes of the world, in this caſe: the moſt men in their ſickneſſe, firſt ſeeke to the Phyſitians; and if that faile them, they ſend for the Miniſter. This was King Aſa his practiſe, for which he is branded to all poſteritie, that beeing diſeaſed in his feete, he ſought vnto Phyſitians, and not vnto the Lord, 2. Chron. 16. 12. though otherwiſe, he had good things in him, 1. King. 15. 14. And many doe farre worſe, who ſeeke to Witches and Inchanters, when they, or theirs are in diſtreſſe: but this is to forſake God, and to ſeeke helpe of the Deuill, like to Ahaziah, who ſent to Baalzebub the God of Ekron, to know of his recouerie, when he was ſicke vpon a fall, 2. King. 1. 2. This ſhould be farre from all Gods children: for, as Ahaziahs ſickneſſe became deadly, through his ſending to Baalzebub; ſo vndoubtedly, many diſeaſes become incurable, by the bad and prepoſterous dealing of the Patient, who either vſeth vnlawfull meanes, or lawfull meanes diſorderly, or truſteth therein. We therefore, in this caſe, muſt remember our dutie in the practiſe of faith, as Hezekiah did.

The eight fruit of faith, is this; Waxed valiant in battell. This effect may well be vnderſtood of all the Iudges before named, and of all the good Kings in Iuda and Iſrael. But yet there be two eſpecially, to whom we may more peculiarly referre it: to wit, Samſon, and Dauid. For Samſon, he by meanes of faith, came to be ſo mightie (Iudg. 15. 15.) that with the iaw bone of an aſſe he ſlew a thouſand Philiſtims. And for Dauid, he likewiſe was ſo incouraged by faith, that with the ſame ſling, wherewith he kept his fathers ſheepe (which was but a ſlender weapon for warre) he encountred with Goliah that huge Philiſtim, and hit him with a ſtone A in the forehead, and ſlew him. Both theſe facts were the fruits of their faith, which made them bold to encounter with theſe mightie enemies.

In this effect of their faith, firſt, we may obſerue, that true fortitude and manhood, right valour and courage, comes from true faith. It muſt be graunted, that many heathen men had great ſtrength and courage; but indeede, it was but a ſhadowe of true valour; for right valour comes from a beleeuing heart. And, therefore it is ſaid, that theſe Iudges & Princes of Iſrael, waxed ſtrong in battell by faith.

Secondly, Doth true faith make men valiant in battell? Then ſhould the preaching of the word, be ſet vp, and maintained, as well in the Campe, and Gariſon, and among Souldiers B on the Seas; as in Cities and Townes of peace. For, the preaching of the word is the meanes of this faith which giues valour in battell, to them that fight in a good cauſe.

Hence it was, that the Lord enioyned by Moſes, that when the people of Iſrael went out to battell, the Prieſts ſhould come forth, and incourage the people, that their hearts might not faint, nor feare, nor dread their enemies; becauſe of the powerfull preſence of God fighting for them. The Papiſts obiect this (by way of reproach) againſt Zwinglius, who was one of the reſtorers of the Goſpel: That he died in the fielde among Souldiers: But, this indeede is no reproach, but rather a matter of great commendation vnto him: in that, for the increaſe of C faith and knowledge, in them that were weake Chriſtians about him, he was content to hazard his owne life. And thus much of the eight effect.

Deut. 20. 2, 3.

The ninth effect of faith, for which theſe worthy men are commended, is this; They turned to flight the Armies of the Aliens. This may be vnderſtood of the moſt of the Iudges, and of the good Kings of Iuda and Iſrael. But I will make choyſe, eſpecially of two, Gedion, and Iehoſaphat: for, Gedeon, one of the Iudges, with three hundred Souldiers (Iudg. 6. 7.) altogether vnweaponed, onely with light pitchers in their hands, put to flight a mighty huge Armie of the Midianites. And Iehoſaphat a godly D King, beeing aſſaulted with a mighty and great Armie of Moabites, Ammonites, and men of mount Seir, knewe that by force of armes hee could not withſtand them; and therefore by faith makes a worthy prayer vnto the Lord, and the Lord heard him, and ſet his enemies one againſt another, and ſo did he put them to flight: which he could neuer haue done by any ſtrength of his owne.

Here we may learne, how Kingdomes and people may become able to put to flight their enemies. The beſt way is, to put in practiſe their faith in God; by humbling themſelues truly for their ſinnes paſt, with vnfained confeſſion of them vnto God, praying withall earneſtly for the pardon of them; and for Gods aide, aſſiſtance, and protection againſt their eneenemies. The power of this meanes is euident in Scripture: and therefore when Eliah was taken vp, Eliſha cried, My Father, my Father, the Chariot of Iſrael, and the horſemen thereof, 2. King. 2. 12. giuing him this notable commendation, that he was as good to Iſrael, by meanes of his faith, as all their chariots and horſemen. Queſt. How could that poſſibly be true? Anſ. If we read the Storie, we ſhall finde it to be moſt true, that by his prayers which he made in faith, he did as much or more then all the ſtrength of the land could doe. And ſo it ſhall be with all Chriſtian Kings and people: if they can ſhew forth their faith, by praier vnto God, they ſhall doe wonderfull much hereby, in ſubduing of their enemies.

. To applie this to our ſelues: We haue had many and dangerous aſſaults from Popiſh enemies, both domeſticall and forraine, who haue of long time, and no doubt ſtill doe purpoſe our ouerthrow. Now, how ſhall we be able to withſtand their might, and to eſcape their malice? True it is, Chriſtian policie, and warrelike prouiſion muſt be vſed: yet our ſtay and reſt muſt not be thereon; but we muſt ſtirre vp our faith, both Magiſtrates and Subiects, Prince and people: and firſt of all humble our ſelues for our ſinnes, and ſhew forth our repentance by new obedience in time to come; and then pray for a bleſſing vpon the outward meanes which ſhall be vſed. This is the right practiſe of faith, in the caſe of daunger by our enemies; which we ſhall finde (if we exerciſe it vnfainedly) to be a ſurer meanes of ſafetie and victorie againſt our enemies, then all worldly munition and policie. For hereby we ſhall haue the Lord for our protection, and his bleſſing vpon the outward meanes, giuing ſtrength and good ſucceſſe thereunto; when as, omitting this dutie, the Lord will not be with vs, and then we ſhall finde that vaine is the ſtrength or wit of man. Let vs not therefore betray our ſelues wilfully into our enemies hand; but by this practiſe of faith, enable our ſelues againſt all our enemies whatſoeuer: otherwiſe we may iuſtly feare to be deliuered into their hands, for a pray vnto their teeth. And therefore, if we loue our owne ſafetie, and the wel-fare of our Land, let vs practiſe this dutie: For, the praier of faith auaileth much with God, if it be feruent; and therefore the Lord ſaith to Moſes, when he fell downe before him, to turne backe the wrath that was broken in vpon the people, Let me alone: as though Moſes had held, or bound the Lords hand by his praier, that he could not ſmite his people. And thus much for the ninth fruit of faith.

The faith of the widow and the Shunamite.

VERSE 35.

The women receiued their dead raiſed vp to life.

This is the tenth and laſt fruit of their faith, which muſt be vnderſtood of theſe two women eſpecially; the widow of Zarephath, and the Shunamite. The widow of Zarephath, giuing entertainment to Elijah in the great famine, had this bleſſing vouchſafed vnto her for her faith, that her dead ſonne was reſtored to life by the Prophet: And the Shunamite that prouided lodging for the Prophet Eliſha, had her onely ſonne reſtored to life from death by the Prophet through faith. Now here we muſt obſerue, that theſe two women did not onely beleeue in the true God; but more particularly, that God would vſe theſe his ſeruants, as meanes to reſtore to life their two children that were dead: as appeares by this, that both of them made meanes to the Prophet, for the reuiuing of their children; which they did, by faith.

1. King. 17.

2. King. 4.

But ſome will ſay, This laſt effect of faith, may ſeeme to croſſe the Scripture elſe-where; which ſaith, that Chriſt is the firſt fruits of them that ſleepe. How then could theſe that were before Chriſts incarnation, be reſtored from death to life? Anſw. Saint Pauls meaning is this; that Chriſt is the firſt of all thoſe that roſe from death to life, to die no more, but to liue for euer. So, indeede, Chriſt is the firſt fruits of them that ſleepe: for, he roſe to liue for euer. As for theſe two, and ſome other, mentioned both in the old Teſtament and the new, that were raiſed from death to life, they roſe not from the ſleepe of death, to liue for euer, but to die againe.

1. Cor. 15. 20.

In this tenth fruit of faith, all Parents may learne their dutie towards their children, in the caſe of ſickneſſe, or ſuch like. They muſt follow the example of theſe two godly women, and labour eſpecially to ſhew forth their faith in ſuch duties as God requireth in ſuch a caſe: to wit, they muſt humble themſelues for their owne ſinnes, and for the ſinnes of their children and family; praying earneſtly to God for the pardon of them (for God may viſit the iniquitie of the Parents vpon the children in bodily iudgements) and entreating the Lord to reſtore them to health and libertie: and withall, they muſt vſe the ordinarie lawfull meanes of recouerie in phyſicke and ſuch like, praying to God for a bleſſing thereupon.

This is their dutie; but (alas!) the manner and practiſe of many Parents, is farre otherwiſe: for, whereas they ſhould firſt ſeeke vnto the Lord, and come to his Prophet, they either runne firſt to the ordinarie meanes of phyſicke; or, beeing worſe diſpoſed, ſeeke helpe of wizzards and bleſſers by their charmes and ſorce-

Shunamites faith.

A ries forſaking God and running to the Deuill. Indeede, the vſe of lawfull meanes is not to be diſcommended ſimply: but this prepoſterous courſe is blame-worthie, and depriues many of Gods bleſſing in the meanes; That they ſeeke helpe of Phyſicke, before they haue ſought to the Lord, in this holy practiſe of faith.

Queſt. But how can the parents faith benefit the childe? Anſ. It cannot procure vnto it eternall life: for euery one muſt be ſaued by his owne faith in Chriſt. And, yet the childe receiues many a good bleſſing at Gods hand, by meanes of the Parents faith; as namely, the benefit of the couenant of grace in the ſeales thereof; beſides the fruition of many temporall bleſſings, as life it ſelfe in this place.

B The conſideration hereof, muſt mooue all parents, aboue all things to labour for true faith: for, by the practiſe hereof, they ſhall be able to bring the greateſt bleſſing vpon themſelues, and their children, and vpon the lawfull meanes which they ſhall vſe for their good. Say the Lord ſhall lay his hand vpon children and ſeruants in a family, what muſt parents and maſters doe? Surely, the beſt way for helpe, is the practiſe of faith, in true humiliation for ſinne, and prayer to God for mercie, and for a bleſſing vpon the meanes which they ſhall vſe. In all ſocieties this is true, that by the faith of the gouernours, many curſes are remooued, and many bleſſings procured. God ſends his iudge- C ments among vs daily, and we know not when other moe ſhall befall vs: but, for the remoueall and preuenting of them, we muſt giue our ſelues to true humiliation and praier; and ſo ſhall we finde the Lords mercie towards vs, as theſe two women did.

And thus much of this tenth fruite of faith, and of them all ſeuerally.

Now, from them all ioyntly together, obſerue this ſpeciall point; That faith is ſuch a grace of God, as doth bring downe from heauen vpon euery beleeuer, all Gods bleſſings that are needefull for him. Who is hee that deſires not to be made partaker of Gods bleſſings needefull for him, both in ſoule and body? Well: the D onely way and meanes hereto, is to get a true and a liuely faith, and to put the ſame in practiſe, in all ſuch duties as God ſhall require at our hands. The worthie men before named, obtained all the former moſt wonderfull bleſſings, by meanes of their faith: By it they eſcaped the edge of the ſword, they quenched the violence of the fire, waxed mighty in battell, &c. as we haue heard.

Now if faith be ſuch a notable grace of God, then aboue all things in this world, let vs labour for it. We muſt not content our ſelues with lip-faith, and ſo preſume vpon Gods mercies; but we muſt labour for a true and a liuely faith in Chriſt, which may purifie our hearts, and bring forth fruite in our liues. Here are ſtrong motiues to perſwade vs hereunto: for, what doe we deſire? riches, honour, or fauour, and grace in the world? would we haue health, and ſtrength? nay, the fauour of God, which is all in all? then, looke to get true faith: for, in the practiſe thereof, thou ſhalt obtaine of God, all needefull bleſſings, both temporall and ſpirituall. Many toyle themſelues exceedingly, by worldly meanes to get temporall bleſſings, as health, wealth, honour, &c. and yet neuer attaine thereto, becauſe they ſeeke them not by faith. I confeſſe, naturall men get many good things: but to them they are no bleſſings; becauſe they want faith both in getting, and keeping of them: for they lay all religion aſide, and toyle themſelues wholly in worldly means. This courſe the childe of God muſt beware of. Say, that a Prince bids one of ſeruants goe to his Treaſurie, and there inrich himſelfe with Iewels, with gold, and ſiluer, and with whatſoeuer he lacketh: what will this man doe? Surely, firſt he will call for the keyes, whereby he may vnlocke the doores and cheſts; for elſe he can get nothing. Behold, in the Miniſterie of his word, God ſhewes vs his full treaſury, wherein we may enrich our ſelues, with all his bleſſings: Now, we muſt not with the foole, runne without the key, but labour firſt, for true faith; which is that key, whereby Gods heauenly treaſures are opened vnto vs: and, we muſt be ſure that we haue a ſound key; that is, a true and ſound faith, which may ſtrongly turn about the lockes of Gods treaſury. For, this is moſt certaine, he that doth vnfainedly beleeue, ſhall neuer want any thing, either in body or ſoule, that is good for him to haue. Euery one will ſay, he beleeues; but the truth is, that true faith is rare: for mens hearts are not purified, nor their liues changed; but they remaine as ſinnefull as euer they were, which cauſeth Gods iudgements to be rife among vs. Wherefore, as we deſire our owne good, both in ſoule and bodie; ſo let vs labour for true faith, and ſhewe forth the power of it in our liues. And thus much of theſe Iudges and Prophets, and of the fruits of their faith.

Beleeuers vnder the Maccabees.

Verse 35.

Others alſo were racked, and would not be deliuered, that they might receiue a better reſurrection.

Beleeuers vnder the Maccabees.

IN theſe words, the Author of this Epiſtle proceedes to the fourth order of Examples of faith,contained in this Chapter: wherein(as in the former laſtly handled)he proceedes briefly,heaping vp in few words, many worthie examples of faith, concealing the names of the parties, and onely ſetting downe thoſe things, for which their faith is commended vnto vs. And this fourth and laſt order of examples, comprehendeth ſuch beleeuers as liued vnder the regiment of the Maccabees, and afterward to the comming of Chriſt. For, of beleeuers in former times, it cannot be vnderſtood, becauſe there is a manifeſt diſtinction put betwene theſe beleeuers, and the former Iudges, Kings, and Prophets; in theſe words, others alſo: whereby it is plaine, that here he propounds examples of beleeuers different from thoſe which he mentioned before. And it is alſo plaine, that theſe beleeuers liued before the comming of Chriſt. For, howſoeuer the Chriſtians in the primitiue Church, were racked, ſcourged, and tormented after this ſort; yet of them this place cannot be vnderſtood, becauſe they enioyed the promiſe of the Meſſias: but, theſe here mentioned,enioyed not that promiſe in their daies, but waited for it by faith, and therein died, v.39. And indeede, in the time of the Maccabees, the Church of the Iewes was wonderfully perſecuted by Antiochus, about two hundred yeares before Chriſt; as we may ſee,2.Maccab.4.and 6.chapters.

Queſt. Where had the Author of this Epiſtle this large narration of theſe ſtrange perſecutions, ſeeing they are not regiſtred in the bookes of the old Teſtament?

Anſ. We may iudge, that he gathered it out of the Stories and Records of men: which (howſoeuer they be not now extant) yet in his daies in the primitiue Church were extant, knowne, and approoued. Neither muſt this ſeeme ſtrange vnto vs: for,the ſpirit of God,in the olde Teſtament ſpeaking of men, hath oftentimes reference and relation therein to humane writings; as this phraſe (The reſt of the acts of ſuch and ſuch, are they not written in the bookes of the Chronicles of the Kings of Iudah and Iſrael) ſo often vſed in the bookes of Kings and Chronicles, doth euidently declare.

Now, thoſe bookes of Chronicles, were not parcells of holy Scripture, but ciuill or Eccleſiaſticall Stories, like to our bookes of Martyrs and Chronicles. 2.Tim.3.8. S. Paul ſaith, Iannes and Iambres reſiſted Moſes. Now, in the booke of Exodus, we ſhall not finde the Sorcerers that withſtood Moſes, once named. And S. Iude maketh mention of a prophecie of Enoch, v.14. which in all the old Teſtament is not recorded: and it is like, that Moſes was the firſt penne-man of holy Scripture. Whence then had theſe Apoſtles theſe things? Anſw. No doubt, the holy Ghoſt might reueale ſuch things vnto them, though they had beene vnknowne in thoſe times: but it is more probable, that the Apoſtles had them out of ſome Iewiſh writers, or records then extant, and approoued among the Iewes. So Paul, preaching to the Athenians, alleadgeth the ſaying of Aratus an Athenian Poet: For, we are his generation. And to the Corinthians,he propoundeth a ſentence of Menander; Euill words corrupt good manners, 1.Cor.15. And to Titus,he alleadgeth Epimenides,a Cretian poet; The Cretians are alwaies liers, euill beaſts, ſlow bellies, Tit.1.12.

Act.17.28.

Now whereas the ſpirit of God taketh theſe ſentences out of the writings of men; we may learne, that to read the writings of men is not vnlawfull, but a thing of good vſe to the ſeruants of God. But whereas ſome would hence prooue, that their authoritie may be alleadged ordinarily at euery mans pleaſure in the publike miniſterie, it hath no ground in theſe places. For, firſt, the Apoſtles were ſo guided by the holy Ghoſt in their publike Miniſterie, that they could not erre: but no Miniſters at this day haue ſuch a priuiledge. Secondly, the Apoſtles, alleadging or recording the ſayings of men,in their Sermons or writings,did thereby ſanctifie them, and make them to become a part of holy Scripture. This,no ordinarie Miniſter can doe: but let him alleadge a humane teſtimonie tenne thouſand times, yet ſtill it remaines humane,and is not Gods word. Thirdly, they that would warrant their practiſe,in alleadging humane teſtimonies in their ſermons, by the Apoſtles, ought to follow the Apoſtles in their manner of allegations. Now, the Apoſtles were ſo ſparing herein,that in many books we ſhall not finde one: for, there are onely three, in all the new Teſtament. Againe, the Apoſtles did it without oſtentation: for, the names of the Authors are concealed, whence they tooke their teſtimonies.

And laſtly, the Apoſtles did it vpon weightie cauſe and iuſt occaſion; to wit, when they were perſwaded in conſcience, that thoſe teſtimonies would conuince the conſciences of their hearers in thoſe things for which they alleadged them. Now, how farre many differ from the Apoſtles in their allegations, let the world iudge.

Yet before we come to ſpeake of theſe examples of faith in particular, there are ſundrie generall points to be handled. In the three former verſes, the ſpirit of God hath ſet downe the proſperous ſucceſſe of beleeuers, through faith: But here he comes to acquaint vs with a different eſtate of other beleeuers, vnder grieuous perſecutions and torments, euen vnto moſt cruell and bitter kinds of death.

From this which the Apoſtle here obſerueth, we may take a view of the ſtate of Gods Church and people here in this world. For, God vouchſafeth peace, and proſperous ſucceſſe to ſome, as a iuſt reward of faith and obedience: but others muſt want the comfort of outward peace and welfare, and vndergoe moſt grieuous trialls and perſecutions. Looke, as there is a continuall interchange betweene day and night, and the one doth conſtantly followe the other; ſo as it is one while day, and another while night: ſo is it with the Church of God, and with true beleeuers in this world; ſometime they haue peace and proſperitie; and this continueth not alway: but another while they are in trouble, miſerie, and perſecution.

To make this point more plaine, becauſe it is of ſome importance; we may behold the truth of it, in the Church of God from the beginning. Adams familie was Gods Church, and therein was firſt notable peace: but when God accepted Abels ſacrifice, and refuſed Caines, then perſecution began, and Cain ſlew his brother Abell. Abraham is called the Father of the faithfull, and his familie in thoſe dayes, was the true Church of God, wherein, we may notably ſee this changeable eſtate: for, God calls him out of Charran, to dwell in the land of Canaan, Exod. 12. 1. 10. But, within a while, the familie was ſo great in the Land, that he was faine to goe downe into Egypt, to ſoiourne there. And, there the Lord bleſſed him exceedingly, and enriched him ſo greatly, that he became a mighty Prince, able to encounter with the Kings of thoſe nations in battell, after his returne to Canaan, Exod. 14. Genes. 14.

Gen. 12. 1, 10.

The Iſraelites, Gods choſen people, were 400. yeare in bondage in Egypt; but, at the appointed time God gaue them a glorious deliuerance: and, yet they were tried in the wilderneſſe 40. yeares; after which time, they were planted ſafely in the fruitefull Land of Canaan, a Land that flowed with milke and hony. And there alſo, the Church of God was in this caſe; ſometime in proſperitie, and otherwhiles in aduerſitie; for, when it was ruled by Iudges (as in that booke appeares) for ten, twenty, thirty, or fourty yeares together, the Iſraelites for their ſinnes, were in ſubiection and bondage to the nations round about them; as the Moabites, the Philiſtims, the Ammonites, &c. Yet then, when they cried to God, he ſent them ſome mighty Iudge to deliuer them, for ſo long time againe. This was the interchangeable eſtate of the Church, all the time of the Iudges. And afterward, when it was gouerned by Kings, it was in the ſame caſe: for, one while God gaue them good Kings, who would aduance religion, and maintaine and cheriſh the Prieſts and Prophets of God; and for their time the Church proſpered. But otherwhiles, for their ſinnes, God would ſend them wicked Princes; which perſecuted the Prophets, and the godly in the Land. This is plaine in the bookes of the Kings and Chronicles. After the raigne of good king Ioſias, came the captiuity into Babylon, and 70. yeares expired, the Lord by K. Cyrus returned them againe. After their returne, they were one while in peace, and another while in diſtreſſe: as we may ſee in the bookes of Ezra and Nehemias: but, aboue all other, that perſecution of Antiochus Epiphanes, was moſt notorious, which was foretold by Daniel in his Prophecie, Dan. 11. 36. and is recorded in the books of the Maccabees.

To come to the time of the Goſpel: The Primitiue Church, after the aſcenſion of Chriſt, in the firſt 300. yeares, ſuffered ten moſt bloody and grieuous perſecutions: betwixt each of which, ſhe had ſome times of peace, and (as it were) reſpite to breath in. And, after the tenth perſecution ended, the Lord raiſed vp the good Emperour Conſtantine, who brought peace and welfare vnto the Church. But, ſoone after him, the hereſie of Arrius, raiſed vp by the deuill, brought as grieuous perſecutiōs on the church, as euer the Pagans did; beeing a moſt blaſphemous hereſie, denying the eternall deity of Chriſt, and of the holy Ghoſt: and, it preuailed in the Church for 80. yeares. Not long after the ſuppreſſion of that hereſie, began the idolatry and tyrannie of Antichriſt to preuaile in the Church, for many hundred yeares. And nowe, about ſome fourescore yeares agone, the Lord in mercie raiſed vp worthie inſtruments, by whoſe meanes he deliuered his Church from that idolatry and blindeneſſe: yet ſo, as ſtill the Church hath felt the bloody hand of Antichriſt in grieuous perſecutions. All which, ſhewes this to be moſt true: that the outward ſtate of Gods Church, is interchangeable, hauing one while peace, and another while grieuous perſecution.

To apply this to our ſelues: God hath planted his Church among vs in this land, and for many years together, hath bleſſed vs with proſperitie and peace; which, in great mercie he hath giuen vs as a reward of the faith of his ſeruants which are among vs: and, during this time, we haue had great freedome and liberty in Gods holy miniſtery, for the word, praier, and ſacraments. But, we muſt know, that the ſtate of Gods Church, for peace and trouble is interchangeable, as day and night, for light and darkeneſſe. Wherefore we muſt be aduertiſed, to looke vnto our ſelues: for our eſtate in peace muſt not laſt alwaies, theſe golden dayes will haue an ende, and troubles and afflictions will vndoubtedly come. Indeed, God onely knoweth, what kinde of afflictions ſhall befall, and the particular time thereof: but that they ſhall come in the time appointed of God, wee may reſolue our ſelues by the reaſons following.

First, the tenour of the Law, is this; that the curſe doth followe the tranſgreſſion: ſo that when any man, or family, or people, liue in the breach of Gods commandements, they muſt looke for Gods iudgements to be powred vpon them. Now, we may too truely aſſume, that this our nation and people abound with grieuous ſinne in all eſtates: For, in the ciuill eſtate (to omit the manifold practiſes of oppreſſion) Where is iuſtice without bribery? or bargaining, without fraud and deceit? And in the miniſterie (beſide many abuſes) where is that care which ought to be for the building of Gods Church? And for the bodie of our people (beſide groſſe ignorance, and ſuperſtition) what fearefull blaſphemie, whoredome, ſwearing, and Sabbath-breaking, doth euery where abound? beſide fearefull Atheiſme, which is a mother of abhominations: whether we reſpect naturall Atheiſme, whereby many denie God by their works; or, learned Atheiſme in ſome, who diſpute againſt the truth of God, reuealed in his word. All theſe, and many other ſinnes among vs, crie loud for Gods iudgements vpon vs: euen for that fearefull iudgement, the remoouall of Gods kingdome in the Goſpel of peace.

Secondly, conſider what manner of perſons of place, and note, both in Church and Commonwealth, God takes from vs by death, euen in their beſt time: are they not ſuch as excelled among vs, for great wiſdome and learning, and for true pietie and good conſcience? now, howſoeuer this may ſeeme but a ſmall thing in the eyes of many; yet vndoubtedly, it is a forerunner of Gods iudgements: for the righteous periſh, and no man conſidereth it in heart; and mercifull men are taken away, and no man vnderſtandeth that the righteous is taken away from the euill to come, Iſa. 57.1.

Thirdly, God hath ſent his fearefull iudgements among vs, and about vs, warre and ſword in our neighbour nations; which alſo hath been oft ſhaken at vs: alſo, famine and peſtilence throughout our owne Land, by intercourſe and long continuance, Leuit. 26. Now this is the truth of god, that, when God ſends his iudgements vpon a people; if they doe not repent, one iudgement is but the forerunner of another more grieuous and terrible then the former. But, little or no repentance appeares among vs; nay rather, we fall away more and more, and ſo ſtand ſtill in danger of more fearefull iudgements.

Laſtly, it is vſuall with God, thus to deale with his owne ſeruants; as he doth ſometime reward their faith and obedience with peace; ſo, otherwhiles he will trie their faith by affliction. Thus he dealt with his ſeruant Iob, though there were none for pietie like him in his time, through all the world. Now, God hath his ſeruants among vs: for the triall of whoſe faith, we may perſwade our ſelues, ſome tribulation ſhall come vpon vs; For, all that will liue godly in Chriſt Ieſus ſhall ſuffer tribulation, 2. Tim. 3. 12.

This beeing ſo, that our peace ſhall be turned into trouble (as by the former reaſons, which directly faſten themſelues vpon our Church and ſtate, may euidently appeare) let vs then here learne our dutie.

Firſt, we muſt caſt with our ſelues, what may be the worſt that can befall vs, when triall and perſecution ſhall come. This is the counſell of our Sauiour Chriſt to thoſe that would follow him conſtantly as good Diſciples: they muſt, as good builders, conſider of the coſt, before they lay the foundation; and, like good warriers, conſider of their ſtrength, before they goe out into the field, leaſt they leaue off, and turne backe, like fooles and cowards, Luk. 14. 28. &c. We by Gods mercie doe now profeſſe the true religion of Chriſt, with hope to be ſaued thereby: therefore, we muſt caſt with our ſelues, what our religion may coſt vs, and ſee beforehand, what is the worſt thing that may befall vs, for our profeſſion of Chriſt and his Goſpel. If we haue not done this at the beginning of our profeſſion, we muſt now doe it; for, better late, then neuer: leaſt going on ſecurely, without this account making, we ſhamefully forſake Chriſt when triall comes.

In former times, the conſtant profeſſion of Chriſt, hath coſt men loſſe of friends, loſſe of goods, and libertie; yea, the loſſe of their hearts blood: and the ſame caſe may befall vs. Wherefore, we muſt caſt with our ſelues, and ſee whether we be willing to ſuffer the loſſe of goods, and friends; yea, the loſſe of our liues, for the defence of Chriſts true religion.

Againe, as this eſtate of the Church muſt mooue vs to make this account, for reſolution in ſuffering; ſo it muſt teach vs to labour for thoſe ſauing graces of Gods ſpirit, which may inable vs to ſtand faſt in all temptations, troubles, and perſecutions. We muſt not content our ſelues with blazing lamps, as the fiue fooliſh virgins did; but get the oyle of grace into the veſſels of our hearts. Knowledge in the word, is a commendable thing; but not ſufficient to make vs ſtand in the day of triall. We therefore muſt labour for true ſauing graces; eſpecially for this, to haue our hearts rooted and grounded in the loue of God, through faith: whereby we are aſſured, that God is our father in Chriſt, and Ieſus Chriſt our Redeemer, and the holy Ghoſt our comforter and ſanctifier. This aſſurance of faith will ſtabliſh our hearts in all eſtates: come life, come death, we neede not feare; for, nothing ſhall be able to ſeparate vs from this loue of God in Chriſt Ieſus.

And thus much of the coherence of this verſe with the former. Now to the words.

Others alſo were racked, &c. Here the holy Ghoſt beginnes to propound the fruits of faith, for which this laſt ranke of beleeuers are commended vnto vs. And they are not ſuch famous exploits as the former, but nine ſeuerall kinds of ſufferings; vnto all which, we muſt remember to applie this clauſe by faith, from the 33. verſe: as thus, Through faith, they endured racking, mocking, and ſo for all the reſt.

Out of theſe effects in generall, we may learne two things: Firſt, a ſingular fruit of faith, for which it is here ſo highly commended in this laſt ranke of examples: to wit, that by it the child of God is inabled to beare whatſoeuer the Lord ſhall lay vpon him. The torments wherewith mans bodie may be afflicted, are many and terrible; and yet, be they neuer

ſo many, nor ſo terrible, true ſauing faith will make the child of God to beare them all for the honour of Chriſt.

The effects of faith before ſet downe, were many and ſingular: but vndoubtedly, this ſtrength of patience, which it giueth vnder the greateſt torments for Chriſts ſake, is one of the principall.

This, Paul doth notably teſtifie in this profeſſion, (Rom. 8. 38, 39.) I am perſwaded, that neither death, nor life, nor Angels, nor principalities, nor powers; nor things preſent, nor things to come; nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, ſhall be able to ſeparate vs from the loue of God, which is in Chriſt Ieſus our Lord. Oh ſingular power of faith! which ſo firmely vnites the beleeuer vnto Chriſt, that no torments in the world, no not all the power of Satan, and his angels, can ſeparate them aſunder.

Queſt. How doth faith worke this indiſſoluble power in cleauing vnto Chriſt? Anſ. After this manner: It is the propertie of faith, to perſwade the conſcience, of Gods loue and fauour in Chriſt: and vpon this perſwaſion, the heart beginnes to loue God againe. Now, by this loue doth faith worke, and make a man able to beare all torments that can be inflicted for religions ſake: for, Loue ſuffereth all things, 1. Cor. 13. 7. euen that loue wherewith one man loueth another: how much more then ſhal this loue wherewith we loue God in Chriſt, make vs to ſuffer any thing for his names ſake? Hence it is, that loue is ſaid to be ſtrong as death: and the coales thereof are fierie coales, and a vehement flame: yea, much water cannot quench loue, neither can the floods drowne it: that is, grieuous perſecutions and torments cannot extinguiſh the ſame. Nay, ſuch is the power of loue to God when it is feruent, that it makes a man ſo zealous of Gods glorie, that if there were no other way to glorifie God, then by ſufferings; the childe of God would rather yeeld himſelfe to endure the torments of the damned, then ſuffer God to loſe his glorie. This we may ſee in Paul, Rom. 9. 3. I would wiſh my ſelfe (ſaith he) to be ſeparate from Chaiſt for my brethren that are my kinſmen, according to the fleſh: that is, the Iſraelites; meaning for the aduancement of Gods glory in their calling and ſaluation. Such zeale we may ſee in Moſes: for, thinking that God ſhould loſe his glory, if the Iſraelites were deſtroyed, he prayes the Lord to pardon their ſinne: But if thou wilt not, then (ſaith he) raze me out of the booke which thou haſt written.

Cant. 8. 6.

Exod. 32. 32.

This beeing the fruite of faith, To make a man able and willing to ſuffer any thing for Chriſts ſake; we muſt hereby be mooued to labour for true faith: for, tribulation may come; nay, ſome affliction will come on euery childe of God, more or leſſe. Now, without faith we ſhall neuer be able to glorifie God vnder the croſſe. The iuſt muſt liue by faith in this eſtate Heb. 10. 38. as, here they endure racking, burning, hewing aſunder, &c. and all by faith.

Secondly, out of all theſe ſufferings here endured by faith, note the minde and diſpoſition of godly men towards Gods Church and people; they are moſt bitterly and bloodily bent againſt them: for, here they put in execution vpon Gods children, whatſoeuer cruelty the deuill could ſuggeſt into their hearts. And this hath been their diſpoſition and behauiour, not onely before Chriſts incarnation, but alſo euer ſince: as may appeare by the manifolde ſtrange tortures, deuiſed againſt Chriſtians in the Primitiue Church; and both then and ſince inflicted vpon them. Beholde it in the Church of Rome, eſpecially in their late Inquiſition: whereby, beſide the cruell racking of the conſcience by vniuſt inquiries, they put the Proteſtants to moſt cruell torments.

The conſideration of this cruell diſpoſition in the wicked, againſt the godly, is of ſpeciall vſe. Firſt, it prooues vnto vs, that the religion which by Gods mercie we profeſſe, contained in the bookes of the olde and new Teſtament, is no politique deuice of man, but the ſacred ordinance of the euerliuing God. For, if it were the inuention of man, it would ſo fit their humour, and accord with their nature, that generally it would be loued and embraced, and not one of an hundred would miſlike it. But, we ſee it is generally deteſted; This ſect is euery where ſpoken againſt, Act. 28. 22: naturall men reiect it, and perſecute it, and the profeſſours of it vnto the death. This they doe, becauſe true religion is contrary to their nature, as light is to darkneſſe; and condemnes thoſe wayes and courſes which they beſt like of. This reaſon ſhall iuſtifie true religion, to bee Gods owne ordinance, euen to the conſcience of the worldly Atheiſt: his deuilliſh malice againſt it, proues Gods diuine truth to be in it.

Secondly, doe the wicked hate the godly, becauſe of their religion and profeſſion? then on the contrary, we muſt learne to loue religion, becauſe it is religion; and the profeſſouts of it, for their profeſſions ſake. This is Chriſts inſtruction, to loue a diſciple becauſe he is a diſciple, Matth. 10. Indeede wee muſt loue all men; but eſpecially thoſe that embrace the Goſpel of Chriſt, and be of the houſholde of faith: for, all ſuch are brethren, hauing one Father, which is God; and brethren ought to loue one another. But alas this leſſon is not learned: for, the world generally is giuen to mocking, and ſcoffing, and the matter of their mocking is religion, and the profeſſors thereof. This ought not to bee ſo: for, howſoeuer men may faile both in knowledge and practiſe, yet the profeſſers of religion ſhould not ſo be deſpiſed. This abuſe is growen to ſuch a hight, that many refraine the diligent hearing of the word preached, leaſt they ſhould bee mocked. But let theſe mockers know, that herein they ſhake hands with the deuill, and with the perſecuters of Gods Church: for, mocking is a kinde of perſecution. Young Chriſtians ſhould not be ſo dealt with; but rather encouraged, for the aduancement of the Kingdome of Chriſt. Thus dealt our Sauiour Chriſt with thoſe that gaue any teſtimonie of the ſparkes of grace: when the young man ſaid, Hee had from his youth kept Gods commaundements, the Text ſaith, Ieſus beheld him, and loued him, Mark. 10. 21. and, hearing a Scribe anſwer diſcreetly, he ſaid vnto him; Thou art not farre from the Kingdome of God, Mark. 12. 34. Now, we muſt be followers of Chriſt, and walke in loue, iudging and ſpeaking the beſt of all profeſſours, accounting none for hypocrites, till God make their hypocriſie knowne. It is a note of a Chriſtian to loue a man, becauſe he loues religion: on the contrary, to hate a man, becauſe hee is a Chriſtian, is a note of a perſecuter, and an enemie to Chriſt. And thus much in generall.

Now wee come in particular to the ſeuerall kindes of ſuffering, which theſe beleeuers endured by faith: the firſt whereof, is racking; in theſe words: others alſo were racked: or, as ſome tranſlate it; And others were beaten with clubbes. For, the worde in the originall will beare either tranſlation: and, both of them fitly agree to this kinde of ſuffering. For, in theſe times, the enemies of Gods Church, vſed to ſet the bodies of them that were to be tormented, vpon rackes, and engines; whereon, they ſtretched out euery ioynt, and then did beat the whole body thus racked, with clubs, till the party were ſtarke dead. An example of this kinde of ſuffering, we haue in Eleazer a Iewe, 1. Mac. 6. who vnder Antiochus was firſt racked, and then beaten on euery part of his body, vnto the death; becauſe he refuſed to eat ſwines fleſh.

But ſome will ſay, This cannot be any commendation of faith, to be racked and beaten to death: for, malefactors and traytors are ſo vſed. Anſ. To preuent this obiection, the holy Ghoſt addeth theſe words; and would not bee deliuered: or, would not accept deliuerance: to ſhewe, that this ſuffering was a notable commendation of true faith. The meaning of the words in this; That whereas ſome Iewes in the olde Teſtament, were condemned to death for their religion, by perſecutors: and yet, had life and libertie offered vnto them, if they would recant, and forſake their religion; This proffer of life they refuſed, and would not be deliuered, vpon ſuch a condition.

In this example of faith, wee are taught to hold faſt true religion, and to preferre the enioying of it, before all the pleaſures and commodities in the world; yea, before life it ſelfe. This point, Paul vrgeth in ſundry exhortations; ſaying, Let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, take heede leaſt he fall: 1. Cor. 10. 12. forbidding vs to preſerue our outward peace, by communicating with idolaters. And againe, Stand faſt in the faith: 1. Cor. 16. 13. Yea, this is one maine point that Paul vrgeth to Timothy, in both his Epiſtles; to keepe faith, and a good conſcience. And our Sauiour Chriſt in one of his parables, Matth. 13. 44. compares the Kingdome of heauen, to a treaſure hid in the field: which, when a man findeth, hee hideth it, and goes home and ſels all hee hath, to buy the field. Whereby hee would teach vs, that euery ones duty, who would enioy the Kingdome of heauen, is this: In regard of it, to forgoe and forſake all things elſe, eſteeming them to bee droſſe and dongue, as Paul did, Philip. 3. 8. What though a man had all the riches and pleaſures of the world, and all things elſe for this life, that his heart could wiſh? yet, if he want religion, and a good conſcience, all he hath is nothing: for, ſo he wants the loue and fauour of God, and ſhall loſe his ſoule; for the ranſome whereof, all the world can doe nothing. Wherefore, we muſt hereby be admoniſhed, to haue more care to get and maintaine true religion, and a good conſcience, then any thing in the world beſides.

Now, becauſe nature will iudge it a part of raſhneſſe, to refuſe life, when it is offered: therefore, to preuent this conceit, againſt theſe beleeuers, the holy Ghoſt ſets downe a notable reaſon of this their fact: to wit, They refuſed deliuerance, that they might receiue a better reſurrection. Many interpreters vnderſtand theſe words, of the reſurrection at the day of iudgement ſimply; as though the holy Ghoſt had ſaid, Theſe Martyrs therefore refuſed to be deliuered from death; becauſe, they looked to receiue, at the day of iudgement, a greater meaſure of glory: euen for this, that, in obedience to God, for the maintenance of true religion, they were content to lay downe their liues. This (no doubt) is the truth of God; that the more we humble our ſelues, in ſuffering for the name of Chriſt in this life; the greater ſhall our glorie be, at the generall reſurrection; for our light affliction, which is but for a moment, cauſeth vnto vs, a farre more excellent, and eternall waight of glory, 2. Cor. 4. 17. And yet (as I take it) that is not the meaning of theſe words; but, their reſurrection at the laſt day, is here tearmed better, then the temporall deliuerance offered vnto them. For, beeing in torments on the racke, they were but dead men; and, when life was offered vnto them, it was (as it were) a kinde of reſurrection, and in regard of the enemies of the Church, a good reſurrection: but, for that, they would not loſe the comfort of reſurrection to life, at the laſt day.

Here then, are two reſurrections compared together. The firſt, is a deliuerance from temporall death; the ſecond, is ariſing to life euerlaſting at the day of iudgement. Now, of theſe two, the latter is the better; and that in the iudgement of Gods ſeruants, and Martyrs. So then, the true meaning of theſe words, is this: Theſe ſeruants of God, refuſed deliuerance from temporall tortures and puniſhments;

Beleeuers vnder the Maccabees.

ments; becauſe their care and deſire was, that their bodies might riſe againe to life euerlaſting, at the day of iudgement: which riſing againe to life at that day, they iudged farre better, then to riſe to a temporall life, for a while in this world.

This reaſon, well obſerued, may teach vs theſe two ſpeciall duties: Firſt, to be carefull aboue all things, for aſſurance in our conſciences (as theſe ſeruants of God had) that our bodies ſhall riſe againe to life euerlaſting at the laſt day. True it is, we make this confeſſion with our mouthes, among the articles of our faith; but we muſt labour to be ſettled and reſolued effectually in our hearts, that theſe our bodies (be they neuer ſo miſerably tormented here) ſhall one day riſe to life and glory, by Ieſus Chriſt. All the true Martyrs of Chriſt, knewe and were reſolued of this: and this it was, that made them ſo confident in their ſufferings. And if we can attaine vnto it, we ſhall finde great vſe hereof, both in life and death. For our liues, this will mooue vs to embrace true religion from our hearts, and in all things to endeauour to keepe a good conſcience. This Paul teſtifieth, Act. 24. 15. 16. for, hauing made profeſſion of his hope in the reſurrection, both of iuſt and vniuſt, he ſaith, And herein I endeauour my ſelfe to haue alwaies a cleare conſcience, both towards God, and towards men. And for death, this perſwaſion alſo is of great vſe: for, it will notably ſtay the heart, againſt the naturall feare of death. It is a wonder to ſee, how terrible the thoughts of death are to many a one. Now, this feare ariſeth hence, that they are not in heart reſolued of their reſurrection, to life and glorie at the laſt day: for, if they were, they would endeauour themſelues with patience and with comfort, to vndergo the pangs thereof, though neuer ſo terrible.

Secondly, hence we muſt learne ſo to lead this temporall life, that when we are dead, our bodies may riſe againe to life eternall. Theſe Martyrs are a notable preſident herein vnto vs: for, they are ſo reſolute to hold that courſe of life, which hath the hope of glorie, that they will rather loſe temporall life, then leaue that courſe. And indeede this dutie is ſo neceſſarie, that vnleſſe we order well this temporall life, we can neuer haue hope to riſe to glory. Queſt. How ſhould we leade this temporall life, that we may riſe to glorie, after death? Anſ. This S. Iohn teacheth vs, Reuel. 20. 6. Bleſſed and holy is he that hath his part in the firſt reſurrection: for on ſuch the ſecond death hath no power. We muſt therefore labour earneſtly to haue our part herein. This firſt reſurrection is ſpirituall, wrought in the ſoule by the holy Ghoſt; cauſing him that is by nature dead in ſinne, to riſe to neweneſſe of life: whereof whoſoeuer is true partaker, ſhall vndoubtedly riſe to glorie. For, they that are quickened in Chriſt from the death of ſinne, are made to ſit together in heauenly places in Chriſt Ieſus, Eph. 2. 5. 6. Naturall death may ſeuer ſoule and bodie for a time: but it can neuer hinder the fruition of eternall life. Wherefore, as we deſire this life which is eternall when we are dead: ſo let vs frame our naturall liues to die vnto ſinne while we are aliue.

Verſe 36. And others haue beene tried by mockings, and ſcourgings: yea, moreouer by bonds and priſonment. The ſecond kinde of ſuffering, wherewith the ſeruants of God were then tried, is mocking. Touching the which we may obſerue diuers points: Firſt whence it came. No doubt it came from vngodly perſons, that were enemies to Gods Church, and true religion; for here it is made a part of the triall of Gods Church, by the enemies thereof.

Here, then beholde the ſtate of mockers and ſcoffers at the ſeruants of God: they are here accounted wicked wretches, and enemies to God, and to his truth. So Saint Iude, ſpeaking of certaine falſe Prophets, which were crept into the Church, calls them vngodly men, Iude 4. which he prooues afterward, by there blacke mouths in euill ſpeaking, ver. 8. 10. And Iſmaell is accounted a perſecuter, by the holy Ghoſt, for mocking Iſaac, Gal. 4. 29. And Dauid reckoning vp the degrees of ſinners, makes the chaire of the ſcornefull, the third and higheſt, Pſal. 1. 1. All theſe places ſhew the haynouſnes of this ſinne: and therefore if any of vs, young or olde, high or low, haue beene ouertaken with it heretofore, let vs now repent and leaue it; for, it is odious in Gods ſight. Thou that art a ſcoffer, mayſt flatter thy ſelfe, and thinke all is well, let the matter prooue how it can, words are but winde. But knowe, thy caſe is fearefull; for, as yet thou wanteſt the feare of God, and art an enemy to Chriſt and his religion: and one day thou ſhalt be iudged, not only for thy wicked deeds, but for all thy cruell ſpeakings, Iude, verſe 15.

Secondly, whereas theſe ſeruants of God were tried by mockings, it ſhewes that Gods Church in this world, is ſubiect to this affliction. It is not a thing newely begun in this age of ours, but hath beene alwaies in Gods Church from the beginning. Gen. 21. 9. Iſmaell mocked Iſaac; and Iſay brings in Chriſt complaining thus: Iſay 8. 18. Behold, I and my children whom the Lord hath giuen me, are as ſignes and wonders in Iſraell. And Ieremie ſaith, I am in deriſion daily: euery one mocketh me, Ier. 20. 7. Yea, our Sauiour Chriſt vpon the Croſſe, when he was working the bleſſed worke of mans redemption, was euen then mocked by the ſpitefull Iewes, Mat. 27. 41. And Paul was mocked of the Athenians, for preaching Chriſt and the reſurrection. Act. 17. 18.

Now, if this haue beene the eſtate of Chriſt our head, and of his moſt worthie Prophets, and Apoſtles, to be mocked and ſcorned; then muſt no child of God at this day thinke to eſcape: for, if they haue done this to the greene tree, what will they doe to the dry? Wherefore, if we belong to Chriſt, wee muſt prepare for it, and arme our ſelues with patience to vndergóe this triall. The Diſciple is not aboue his maſter, nor the ſeruant aboue his Lord. If they haue called the Maſter of the houſe Beelzebub, how much more them of the houſe? Matth. 10. 24, 25.

Thirdly, whereas theſe ſeruants of God were tried by mockings, and did endure the ſame, by faith; here we learne how to behaue our ſelues, when wee are ſubiect to mocking and deriſion, eſpecially for religious ſake. Wee muſt not returne mock for mock, and taunt for taunt: but with meekeneſſe of heart learne to beare the ſame. When Chriſt was vpon the croſſe, the Iewes moſt ſhamefully mocked him; yet euen then did Chriſt pray for them. And the ſame was Dauids behauiour, as wee may reade notably, Pſal. 38. 12, 13, 14. When his enemies ſpake euill of him, what did he? Did hee raile on them againe? No; Hee was as a deafe man, and heard not; and as a dumbe man which openeth not his mouth; euen as a man that heareth not; and in whoſe mouth are no reprooſes. This was a rare thing in Dauid, that hee could thus bridle his affectiõs in the caſe of reproach: but, read the 15. v. and wee ſhall ſee the cauſe; Hee truſted in the Lord his God: alſo, he conſidered the hand of God in their reproches, as 2. Sam. 16. 10. and theſe things made him ſilent. This example we muſt looke vpon, and learn hereby with patience to poſſeſſe our ſouls vnder reproach.

The third kinde of ſuffering, is Scourging. They were not onely mocked for religion, but alſo whipped and ſcourged. The fourth, is Bonds and impriſonment. The fiſt is ſtoning, verſe 37. They were ſtoned. The ſixt, is this, They were hewen aſunder. Theſe were all worthy fruits of faith, beeing endured for religious ſake: but the particular points that might here be obſerued, haue beene handled before; and therefore I paſſe them ouer.

The ſeauenth kinde of ſuffering, is this: they were tempted. Theſe words, by the change of a letter in the originall may be read thus, They were burned. And ſome doe ſo tranſlate it; thinking, that they that writ or copied out this Epiſtle at the firſt, did put one letter for another. Their reaſon is, becauſe examples of grieuous puniſhments are mentioned both before and after this: and therefore they thinke this ſhould be burning, which is a ſore and grieuous death. But we may ſafely and truely reade the words thus, They were tempted: conceiuing hereby that they were enticed and allured by faire promiſes of life, to forſake their religion, So the ſame word is vſed by Saint Iames, ſaying; Euery man is tempted, when hee is drawne away by his owne concupiſcence, and is enticed, Iames 1. 14. If any aſke, why this triall in tempting, ſhould bee placed among ſuch cruell torments? I anſwere, becauſe it as great a triall as any can be. For, it is as A dangerous a temptation to ouerthrow religion and a good conſcience, as any puniſhment in the world. This appeares plainely in Chriſts temptations by the Deuill: for, in thoſe three, Satan bewraies his malice and craft againſt Chriſt and his Church moſt notably. Now Satan, not preuailing with the two firſt, makes his third and laſt aſſault from the glory and dignity of the world: for, ſhewing vnto Chriſt all the Kingdomes of the world, and the glory of them, hee ſaith, All theſe will I giue thee, if thou wilt fall downe and worſhip mee, Matth. 4. 9. Indeede, Chriſts holy heart would not yeeld B vnto it: but, that it was a grieuous temptation, appeares by Chriſts anſwers. For, in the former temptations, hee onely diſputed with Sathan out of Scripture: but when this temptation comes, Chriſt bids him (as it were in paſſion) auoide Satan; ſignifying thereby not onely his abhorring of that ſinne, but alſo the danger of that aſſault by the world. And indeede, theſe temptations on the right hand (as we may call them) will moſt dangerouſly creepe into the heart, and cauſe ſhipwracke of faith and a good conſcience. All Dauids troubles and perſecutions could not bring him to ſo grieuous ſinnes, as did a little eaſe and reſt. A huge great Armie cannot ſo ſoone giue entrance to an enemie into a Citie, as riches and faire promiſes: neither C can bodily torments ſo ſoone preuaile againſt a good conſcience, as will worldly pleaſures and faire promiſes. In regarde whereof, we muſt take heede that we be not deceiued by the world: for, the view of the glory and pompe thereof, will ſooner ſteale from a man both religion and a good conſcience, then any perſecution poſſibly can doe. And indeede, who doe ſo oft change their religion when trialls come, as they that haue the world at will?

The eight example of ſuffering is this, They were ſlaine with the ſword. There can be nothing ſaide of this, which hath not beene ſpoken in the former examples; and therefore I omit it.

D The ninth and laſt example of ſuffering is this; They wandred vp and downe in ſheepe skins, and Goats skinnes, beeing deſtitute, afflicted, and tormented: That is, beeing either baniſhed, or conſtrained by flight to ſaue their liues, they wandred vp and downe in baſe attire, and were deſtitute of ordinary foode and comfort; and ſo in great affliction and torment.

Here we ſee theſe ſeruants of God, were driuen from their owne Country, friends, and familes, by perſecution. Whence we obſerue, that in time of perſecution, a Chriſtian man may lawfully flie for his ſafety, if he be not hindred by the bond of priuate or publike calling. For, theſe ſeruants of God, here commended for their faith, did flie when they were perſecuted; and that by faith: therefore the action is lawfull, as I might prooue at large, but that I haue ſpoken of it heretofore. When our Sauiour Chriſt knew that the Phariſies heard of the multitude of Diſciples which he made, Ioh. A 4. 1. 3. hee left Iudea, where they had greateſt iuriſdiction, and came into Galile, for his ſafety. The Prophets in the old teſtament did flie: as, Elias from Iezabel, 1. King. 19. 3. And, ſo did the Apoſtles in the new; and that by Chriſts direction, Matth. 10. 23.

Obiect. 1. But ſome will ſay, Perſecution is the hand of God, and therefore no man may flie from it; for ſo he ſhould ſeeme to flie from God himſelfe. Anſw. We muſt conſider perſecution two wayes: firſt, as it is the hand of God: ſecondly, as it is the worke of the wicked enemies of Gods Church. For, them God vſeth ſometimes as inſtruments, in laying his hand B vpon his Church, either for chaſtiſement, or for triall. Now, a Chriſtian beeing perſecuted for the truth, and hauing libertie to flie, cannot be ſaid to flie from Gods hand; vnleſſe he went away contrary to Gods commaunde, as Ionas did, beeing ſent to Niniue: and beſide, he knowes that is impoſſible. But, his intent is to flie from the wrath of his enemies, to ſaue his life, for the further good of Gods Church. Againe, the reaſon is not good, To ſay perſecution is the hand of God, therefore a man may not flie from it. For, ſo might a man conclude, that none ought to flie from ſickneſſe, or from warre: both which, a man may doe with a ſafe conſcience, not beeing hindred by ſome ſpeciall calling.

C Obiect. 2. But euery one is bound to teſtifie his faith and religion, before his enemies; and therefore may not flie in perſecution. Anſw. True indeede: a Chriſtian man muſt ſo teſtifie his faith, if he bee called thereto of God: but if God giue him liberty, and opportunitie to flie, then he will not haue him, at that time, to iuſtifie his religion by that meanes.

Obiect. 3. But, if it be lawfull to flie, how then comes it to paſſe, that ſome of Gods children, when they might haue fled, would not; but, haue ſtood to iuſtifie their profeſſion vnto death. Anſ. We muſt iudge reuerently of them, and thinke they did it by ſome ſpeciall inſtinct and motion of Gods ſpirit; as appeareth by their patience and conſtancy in their greateſt D torments. Examples hereof, we haue in our Engliſh Acts and Monuments, in men worthy of notable commendations for their conſtancie, and zeale for the truth of the Goſpel.

Queſt. If flight in perſecution, may bee an action of faith; Whether may not the miniſter of Gods word flie in time of perſecution?

Anſw. There bee ſome caſes, wherein the Miniſter may lawfully flie: 1 When that particular Church and congregation, ouer which he is placed, is diſperſed by the Enemies: ſo as he hath no hope to gather and call them backe againe: then (no doubt) hee may flie, till his congregation be gathered againe. 2. If the perſecutors doe ſpecially aime at the Miniſters life, then with the conſent of his flocke, he may goe apart for his owne ſafetie, for a time. So it was with Paul: when the Epheſians were in an vproare about their Diana, Paul in zeale would haue entred in among them; but the Diſciples ſuffered him not, Act. 19. 30. This they did for Pauls ſafetie, and the good of the Church; for they knewe, thoſe Idolaters would haue beene moſt fierce againſt Paul. And ſo ought euery particular Church, to haue ſpeciall care of the life of their Miniſter. Other cauſes there be, in which he may flie: but I will not ſtand to recite all; becauſe there be ſo many circumſtances, which may alter the caſe, as well reſpecting his enemies, as himſelfe, and his people: making that vnlawfull at one time, and to ſome perſons, which to others, or at another time, may be lawfull.

Secondly, whereas it is ſaid, Theſe ſeruants of God wandered vp and downe: we doe learne, that a man may lawfully goe from place to place, and trauell from country to country; if ſo be, he goes in faith, as theſe men did. Againe, their going was to keepe faith and a good conſcience: and, for the ſame ende, may a man lawfully trauel from place to place. But when men goe not in faith; nor yet, for this ende, the better to keepe a good conſcience, there vndoubtedly their trauell is not lawfull.

By this then, we haue iuſt cauſe to reprooue the bad courſe of many wanderers among vs: as firſt, of our common beggars, whoſe whole life is nothing elſe, but a wandering from place to place; though not in faith, nor for conſcience ſake: but they finde a ſweeteneſſe in their idle kinde of life; and therefore they wander, becauſe they would not worke. Now, this their courſe (hauing no other ground, but loue of idleneſſe, and contempt of paines in a lawfull calling,) cannot be but greatly diſpleaſing vnto God; who enioynes, that euery man ſhould walke in ſome lawfull calling, and eate his owne bread. This they doe not; and therefore the curſe of God purſueth them: for, generally they are giuen vp to moſt horrible ſinnes of iniuſtice, and vncleannes: they walke inordinately; for, they range not themſelues into any families, but liue liker bruite beaſts, then men: they are not members of any particular congregation, but excommunicate themſelues from all Churches; and ſo liue as though there were no God, no Chriſt, nor true religion. And, herein we may ſee Gods hand more heauie vpon them, that they take all their delight in that courſe of wandring, which in it owne nature is a curſe, and a puniſhment.

Secondly, we may here alſo iuſtly reprooue the courſe of ſome others among vs, who will needes be trauellers; not for religion ſake (for that were commendable, if they had ſuch need) nor yet, by vertue of their calling (which were lawfull) but, onely for this ende, to ſee faſhions, and ſtrange countries: and, they refraine not from ſuch places as Rome, Spaine, &c. wherein that cruell Inquiſition will hardly ſuffer any to paſſe, with ſafetie of a good conſcience. But, ſhall wee thinke that this their trauell is commendable? No ſurely: for, the ende of lawfull trauell, is the preſeruation of faith and a good conſcience; or, the bond of ſome lawfull calling. Now, theſe men trauelling vpon no ſuch grounds, but onely vpon pleaſure; how ſhall wee thinke they will ſtand to the truth, when they thruſt themſelues into ſuch needleſſe danger, and triall? The crazed conſciences of many at their returne, ſhew ſufficiently, the badneſſe of that courſe.

Further, note the ſtate of theſe beleeuers, for their attire; it was of ſheep ſkins, and goates ſkins. The like may bee obſerued, in other famous Prophets, and ſeruants of God: Eliah wore a garment of heire, and thereby was knowen, 2. King. 1. 8. And ſo did Iohn Baptiſt, Matth. 3. 4. Yea, the falſe Prophets went ſo arraied, that they might the rather be reſpected of the people, Zach. 13. 4. And our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith, The falſe Prophets ſhal come in ſheepes clothing, like the true Prophets; when as indeede, they are rauening Woolues. Now, the true Prophets of God, went thus baſely attired: that not onely by word and doctrine, but alſo in life, and conuerſation, they might preach repentance vnto the people. And indeede, euery Miniſter of the Goſpel, ought to be a light vnto his people, both in life and doctrine: and, he that preacheth well, and doth not liue according to his doctrine, buildes with the one hand, and pulls downe with the other. Now, whereas theſe ſeruants of God, went vp and downe in ſuch baſe attire, as ſheepe ſkinnes, and goat ſkinnes: it was for pouerties ſake, beeing depriued of friends, goods, houſe, and lands; and ſo, deſtitute of prouiſion for better attire.

In their example, we may note that Gods ſeruants and children may be brought to extreame pouerty, and neceſſitie; ſo as they ſhall want ordinarie foode, and raiment, and bee faine to couer themſelues with beaſts ſkinnes. This was the poore ſtate and condition of godly Lazarus. Yea, Chriſt Ieſus, for our ſakes, did vndergoe a meane eſtate; for, he had not a place whereon to lay his head: and at his death, hee had not ſo much ground of his owne, as might ſerue for a buriall place; but, was laid in Ioſephs toombe: which is a great comfort to any child of God in like diſtreſſe. For, why ſhould any bee diſmayed with that eſtate, which Chriſt Ieſus and his deereſt ſeruants haue vndergone for his example.

Here ſome may aske, how this can ſtand with that ſaying of Dauid, I haue beene young and am olde: yet I neuer ſaw the righteous forſaken, nor his ſeede begging bread, Pſalm. 37. 25.

Anſ. Dauids ſaying may be taken two waies: firſt, as his owne obſeruation in his time. For, he ſaith not, The righteous is neuer forſaken; but, that he neuer ſaw it: and indeede it is a rare thing, to ſee the righteous forſaken.

Secondly, (which I take to be Dauids meaning) the righteous man is neuer forſaken, and his ſeede too. For, if God lay temporall chaſtiſement on any of his ſeruants, ſuffering them to want, yet he forſaketh not his ſeede after him; but renueth his mercie towards them, if they walke in obedience before him: he may make triall of godly Parents by want, but their godly children ſhall ſurely be bleſſed: ſo that this hindereth not, but that the godly may be in want.

Further, whereas they are ſaid to goe vp and downe in Sheepes ſkinnes and Goates ſkinnes, we muſt vnderſtand, that they did it by faith. From whence we learne, that when all temporall bleſſings faile, then the child of God muſt by faith lay hold vpon Gods gracious promiſes of life eternall, and ſtay himſelfe thereon.

This point muſt be remembred carefully: for ſay we ſhould want all kind of temporall benefits, muſt we thereupon deſpaire, and thinke that God hath forſaken vs? God forbid: nay, when all meanes faile, and the whole world is againſt vs, yet then we muſt lay hold vpon the promiſe of life eternall in Chriſt, and thereupon reſt our ſoules. Thus did theſe beleeuers in this place. And this faith did Iob notably teſtifie, when god had taken from him children, goods, health, yea, and all that he had, yet then he ſaid, Iob 13. 15. Though he kill me, yet will I truſt in him. And ſo muſt we endeauour to doe if that caſe befall vs: for, when all worldly helps and comforts faile vs, this promiſe of life in Chriſt, will be a ſweete and ſafe refuge for our ſoule.

Beeing deſtitute, afflicted, and tormented.] Here the Apoſtle amplifieth their miſerie in their wandring eſtate, by three degrees of croſſes, which did accompany the ſame. Firſt, they were deſtitute of all temporal bleſſings: ſecondly, they were afflicted both in body and minde: Thirdly, tormented, that is, euill entreated. Theſe are added for a ſpeciall cauſe; to ſhewe that theſe ſeruants of God were laden with afflictions: They were baniſhed and driuen to extreme pouertie; they were depriued of all their goods, and of all ſocietie of men: they were afflicted in body and in minde, and euill entreated of all men; no man would doe them good, but all men did them wrong; whereby, we ſee that euen waues of miſerie ouerwhelmed them on euery ſide.

Hence we learne that Gods ſeruants may be ouerwhelmed with manifolde calamities at the ſame inſtant, beeing preſſed downe with croſſes in goods, in body, minde, friends, and euery way. This was Iobs caſe, a moſt worthie ſeruant of God; he was afflicted in bodie, in friends, goods, and children, and (which was greateſt of all) he wreſtled in conſcience with the wrath of God; Iob 13. 16. Thou writeſt bitter things againſt me, and makeſt me to poſſeſſe the iniquities of my youth. And the like hath beene the eſtate of many of Gods children : Pſal. 88. 3. 7. My ſoule is filled with euils : thou haſt vexed me with all thy waues, &c.

Queſt. How can this ſtand with the truth of Gods word, wherein are promiſes of all manner of bleſſings both temporall and ſpiritual, to thoſe that feare him : Deut. 28. 1, 2. &c. If thou obey the voyce of the Lord thy God, all theſe bleſſings ſhall come vpon thee, and ouertake thee: bleſſings in the Citie, and in the field: in the fruite of thy bodie, and of thy ground and cattell. Pſal. 34. 10. They that ſeeke the Lord, ſhall lacke nothing that is good. For, Godlineſſe hath the promiſes of this life, and of the life to come, 1. Tim. 4. 8. And therefore Dauid compareth the godly man to the tree that is planted by the water ſide, which bringeth forth much fruite, and is greene and well liking, Pſal. 1. 3. How then comes this to paſſe, that Gods owne ſeruants ſhould be thus oppreſſed, & laden not with one calamitie or two, but with ſundry and grieuous afflictions at the ſame time? Anſ. True it is, the Scripture is full of gracious promiſes of temporall bleſſings vnto Gods children: but they are conditionall, and muſt bee vnderſtood with an exception, to this effect; Gods children ſhall haue ſuch and ſuch bleſſings, vnleſſe it pleaſe God by afflictions to make triall of his graces in them, or to chaſtiſe them for ſome ſinne : ſo that the exception of the croſſe, for the triall of grace, or chaſtiſement for ſinne, muſt bee applied to all promiſes of temporall bleſſings. And hence it comes to paſſe, that the moſt worthy and renowned ſeruants of God for their faith, are ſaid to be afflicted and in miſerie. For, his promiſes of temporall bleſſings, are not abſolute, but conditionall. Al things are theirs (as Paul ſaith) 1. Cor. 3. 21. and they ſhall haue honour, wealth, fauour, &c. vnleſſe it pleaſe God to prooue their faith, or to chaſtiſe their ſinnes by croſſes and afflictions.

Qu. How can Gods ſeruants be able to beare ſo many and grieuous croſſes at once, ſeeing it is hard for a man to beare one croſſe patiently? The anſwer is here laid downe, to wit, by faith; for many and grieuous were the miſeries that lay on theſe ſeruants of God: and yet by beleeuing the promiſe of life in the Meſſias, they were enabled to beare them all. This is a ſoueraine remedy againſt immoderate griefe in the greateſt diſtreſſe : and vndoubtedly the floods of affliction ſhall neuer ouerwhelme him, that hath his heart aſſured by faith of the mercie of God towards him by Ieſus Chriſt. This made Dauid ſay, He would not feare euill, though hee ſhould walke through the valley of the ſhadow of death, Pſal. 23. 4. and Paul ſpeaking of tribulation, anguiſh, famine, perſecution, yea, and death it ſelfe, ſaith, In all theſe we are more then cõquerers through him that hath loued vs, Rom. 8. 37. And frõ this faith it was, that he was able to endure all eſtates ; to be hungry, to want, &c. Phil. 4. 12. 13.

If this be true, that Gods children may bee

A afflicted with manifold calamities at once; then the opinion of naturall and vngodly men is falſe, who iudge him and thinke him to be wicked and vngodly, whom God ladeth with manifold calamities. This was the iudgement of Iobs three friends, and the ground of all their diſputation againſt him; that, becauſe God had laid ſo many croſſes vpon him, therefore he was but an hypocrite. And, this is the raſh iudgement of naturall men in our dayes, eſpecially vpon thoſe that make profeſſion of religion : when Gods hand of triall or correction lies vpon them, they preſently cenſure them for hypocrites : but this is a wretched opinion; for Gods deareſt children may be preſſed downe with manifolde calamities.

B Secondly, ſeeing faith in Chriſt will ſupport the ſoule vnder manifolde croſſes, be they neuer ſo grieuous; we muſt labour in the feare of God, to haue our hearts rooted and grounded in this faith: and when afflictions come we muſt ſtriue to ſhew forth the fruite and power of it, by bearing them patiently.

And thus much of the ſeuerall branches of affliction, in this laſt example of beleeuers.

VERSE 38.

Whom the world was not worthie of, they wandered in the wildernes, and mountaines, and dennes, and Caues of the earth.

IN theſe words, the holy Ghoſt doth anſwer to a ſecret obiection or ſurmiſe, which a natural man might conceiue againſt the beleeuers D ſpoken of before. For, it beeing ſaid, That they wandred vp and downe: ſome man might thinke thus: no meruaile though they wandred vp and downe; for it may be, they were not worthy to liue in the world. This, the holy Ghoſt doth flatly denie, and auoucheth the cleane contrary of them; to wit, that they wandred vp and down by faith; and the Lord cauſed them ſo to do, becauſe the world was not worthy of them, they were too good to liue in the world.

In this anſwer to this ſurmiſe, wee may obſerue what is the opinion of naturall men, concerning the children of God; to wit, that they are not worthy to liue in the world, but the earth wheron they tread, is too good for them. This hath beene, is, and will bee the worlds eſtimation of Gods children. Matth. 24. 9. Yee ſhall bee hated of all nations for my names ſake. Ioh. 16. 2. They ſhall excommunicate you; yea, the time ſhall come, that whoſoeuer killeth you, ſhall thinke he doth God good ſeruice. Act.22.22. Away (ſay the Iewes, of Paul) with ſuch a fellowe from the earth: it is not meete that hee ſhould liue. And hence he ſaith of himſelfe, and the other Apoſtles, 1.Cor.4.13. They were made the filth of the world, and the off-ſcouring of all things:

In the time of the perſecuting Emperours in the Primitiue Church, when any common calamitie befell the people or State: as famine, dearth, peſtilence, or ſuch like, they ſtraightway imputed it to the Chriſtians: ſaying, That they and their wicked religion were the cauſe thereof. And though we haue religion maintained among vs, yet the poore ſeruants of God finde the like welcome in the world: for, thus the wicked cenſure them euery where, That they are diſſembling hypocrites, and none ſo bad and vile perſons as they are. Now, if any man aske, how comes it to paſſe, that the world ſhould ſlander them ſo, and thinke ſo vilely of them. Anſ. Firſt, becauſe they be taken out of the world, in regard of ſtate and condition in grace, Ioh. 15. 19. therefore the world hateth them, Ioh. 15. 19. Secondly, the world knowes them not, 1. Ioh. 3. 1. and therefore ſpeakes euill of them, Iude 10. Thirdly, the wicked meaſure others by themſelues; and therefore deſpiſe the godly, that ioyne not with them, 1. Pet. 4. 3. Laſtly, there is a ſecret enmitie betweene the ſeede of the wicked, and the ſeede of the Church: (1. Ioh. 3. 12.) the wicked are of that euill one, the deuill; and therefore, muſt needes hate the godly, who are borne of God. So that, when we ſhall ſee or heare, that vngodly perſons ſhall in any ſuch ſort abuſe the children of God; we muſt not maruell, nor bee troubled at it, for it is no newe thing, it hath beene from the beginning: but wee muſt pray that God would open their eies, that they may turne from their ſinnes to repentance; and then (no doubt) they will change their conceite: and alter their behauiour towards them: as Paul did, Gal. 1. 13. 15. Acts, 9. 1. 26.

To come to the words more particularly; the Holy Ghoſt ſaith, The world was not worthy of them: that is, the company of vngodly liuers, without Chriſt, and voyde of grace, were not worthy the ſocietie of theſe holy ones; and for this cauſe, did the Lord take them from among them.

Here note a ſingular fruit of true faith: it brings a man to that eſtate, and giues him that excellencie, that hee is more worth, then the whole world, I meane by the whole world, the eſtate of all thoſe that liue in the world, out of Chriſt. If then a man, would haue true and ſtable dignity, let him labour for true faith: for faith hath this priuiledge, to aduance a beleeuer to true honour and excellencie. And therefore A our Sauiour ſaith, As many as receiued him by faith, to them he gaue power, or prerogatiue, to bee the ſonnes of God. Ioh.1.12. Wee take it for a great prerogatiue, to bee the childe of an earthly prince; and ſo it is: but, to be the ſonne of God (who is King of Kings) is a preheminence and dignitie aboue all dignities; and, no tongue can expreſſe the excellency thereof. For, what more can a man deſire, then to bee heire of glory in life euerlaſting? and, yet true faith bringeth this to a beleeuer. It is an excellent dignitie, to be matched with Angells; and no prince in the world, by all humane wit or power can attaine vnto it: but yet, the childe of God can, beeing ioyned to God by faith in Chriſt; whereby (in ſome ſort) he is aboue the B Angels themſelues: for, our nature in Chriſt, is aduanced aboue the nature of Angels.

Honours and dignities, in Politicke or ciuill eſtates, are the good gifts of God, and his own ordinances, whereby men are in higher places, and in account one aboue another: but yet, all the dignity, honour, and pompe of the world, ſeuered from that dignitie which faith bringeth to the beleeuer, is nothing worth. Indeede, if worldly preheminence be ioyned with faith, it is a great and excellent prerogatiue; for, faith makes it acceptable vnto God: but, ſeuer faith from worldly dignities, and what are they, but vanitie of vanities? which will turne to the greater C condemnation of him that enioyeth them. If a man haue fauour in the Court, and yet want the Kings fauour, it is nothing: and, ſuch are all temporall dignities, without Gods fauour; for, at his indignation they vaniſh away. Now, his fauour without faith, can no man haue; for, hee that commeth vnto God muſt beleeue, verſ. 6.

Here, all theſe that are in place aboue others, either by birth, or ſpeciall calling, muſt learne aboue all things to labour for the dignity of faith. When we haue ſuch things wherein wee delight, wee deſire continuance of them. Beholde, the dignitie of faith is euerlaſting: and beſides, it ſanctifies all ciuill dignities, and D makes the owners of them glorious, and acceptable, both before God and man; when as otherwiſe, without faith, they are nothing: and, they that haue them, can doe nothing but abuſe them.

Againe, the holy Ghoſt ſaith, The world was not worthy of theſe men, for another cauſe; and that is this: Euery Chriſtian man by his faith, brings many bleſſings among thoſe parties, and to that place where he liued: now, the world deſerues no ſuch bleſſings, and therefore is vnworthie of the perſons by whome they come.

Queſt. How doe Chriſtians bring bleſſings to places where they liue? Anſ. Firſt, by their preſence: for, as God ſaid to Abraham the Father of the faithfull, Thou ſhalt be a bleſſing, Gen. 12. 3. ſo is it with all beleeuers. Laban confeſſeth that he perceiued that the Lord had bleſſed him for Iacobs ſake, Gen. 30. 27. And Potiphar ſawe that Ioſeph was a bleſſing in his houſe: For the Lord made all that he did to proſper, Gen. 39. 2. 3. While Lot was in Sodome, the Angell could not deſtroy it. Gen. 19. 22. And if there had beene tenne beleeuers in Sodome, the Lord would haue ſpared all for tennes ſake, Gen. 18. 32. Now, bringing good things, and keeping backe Gods iudgements by their preſence, they are thereby bleſſings. Secondly, they are bleſſings by their prayers. Abraham prayed for Abimelech, Gen. 20. 17. 18. and God healed him and his family of barrenneſſe. At Moſes prayer, Gods iudgements were taken from Egypt, Exod. 7. 12. 13. 30. and his wrath appeaſed toward his people; Exod. 32. 11. 14. And ſome thinke that Stephens prayer at his death for his perſecuters, was one meanes for mercy vnto Saul, that then conſented to his death. Act. 7. 60. and 8. 1. Thirdly, they bring bleſſings vpon a place, by their example: for, when men ſhall ſee godly perſons, walking before them in the feare of God, and making conſcience of all manner of ſinne, it is a ſpeciall meanes to cauſe others to turne from their wicked wayes, to newneſſe of life. And therefore Peter exhorts the Chriſtians to haue their conuerſation honeſt among the Gentiles; that they which ſpeake euill of them as of euill dores, might by their good workes which they ſhould ſee, glorifie God in the day of their viſitation. 1. Pet. 2. 12. And he bids godly wiues ſo walke, that their husbands may bee wonne without the word, by beholding their pure conuerſation which is with feare. 1. Pet 3. 1. 2. And Paul bids the Philippians, to walke blameleſſe in the middle of a wicked and crooked nation, as lights in the middle of the world, Phil. 2. 15. that thoſe which were to be conuerted, by their good conuerſation might bee wonne to the truth. God ſent a flood vpon the world for the grieuouſneſſe of mans ſinnes: Now, why doth he not ſtill ſend more floods? are not men now as wicked as they were then? Yes vndoubtedly; man for his part deſerues it now: as well as they did them: and therefore our Sauiour Chriſt ſaith, as it was in the dayes of Noah, ſo ſhall it be in the dayes of the ſonne of man; ſo that euery day wee deſerue a new flood: but yet the Lord ſtayes the execution of his iudgements for a time, that his elect may bee gathered and conuerted. And ſo ſoone as that is done, heauen and earth ſhall goe together: and God will not ſtay one moment, for all the world beſides. So that euery nation and people in the world haue benefit by Gods children; becauſe for their ſakes doth the Lord ſtay his wrath, and deferre his iudgements, euen the great iudgement of fire, wherewith the world ſhall bee conſumed at the laſt day. Theſe things the world ſhould take notice of, as well to mooue them to repentance of their ſinnes, whereby they are made vnworthy the preſence of a godly man, as alſo to perſwade them to better behauiour, and cariage towards the godly by whom they are ſo many wayes bleſſed.

bleſſed

The holy Ghoſt addeth, that they wandred in wilderneſſes, and mountaines, and dennes, and Caues of the earth. Theſe were deſolate places, and not inhabited: and yet for the wickedneſſe of the world, God will haue theſe beleeuers here to wander. We muſt not thinke, that they betooke themſelues voluntarily to this ſolitary life; but onely vpon neceſſity beeing conſtrained by perſecution to flie into the wilderneſſe, for the ſauing of their liues, and the keeping a good conſcience.

This ſerues to deſcry vnto vs the blinde errour of many ages afore vs, wherein it hath beene thought, and is by Papiſts at this day, to bee a ſtate of perfection, to liue a Monke or Hermite out of all ſocieties, in ſome deſert place, and there to ſpend the whole life in contemplation onely, and that voluntarily: and they magnifie this eſtate ſo much, that hereby they thinke to merit eternall life at the hands of God. But theſe beleeuers did neither voluntarily, nor with opinion of merit betake themſelues to this ſolitarie life, but on neceſſity. And, indeede this kinde of life hath no warrant in Gods word; for, euery Chriſtian is a member of two Kingdomes; of Chriſts Kingdome of grace, and of that particular ſtate where he dwelleth; and by reaſon hereof hath a twofolde calling; a temporall, and a ſpirituall calling. In both of which, he muſt walke diligently, ſo long as he can, doing the duties both of a childe of God, and of a member of that common-wealth where hee liueth. Now, when a man goes voluntarily to leade a ſolitary life, he forſakes his temporall calling altogether, and performes the other but negligently: for, hee withdrawes himſelfe from many duties of piety, whereby the people might be furthered to God-ward: which none can doe with a good conſcience.

Further, obſerue the places where they are conſtrained to wander, to wit, in Wilderneſſes, Caues, and Dennes; places where wilde beaſts haue abode and recourſe: & yet here they liue, when as men will not ſuffer them to liue among them. Where note, that many times more mercie may be found among wilde and ſauage beaſts, then with ſome men; ſo mercileſſe are the wicked when God forſakes them, and leaues them to themſelues. The Lions entreat Daniel better, then Darius Courtiers and ſeruants doe; Dan. 6. And Lazarus findes more kindeneſſe with the doggs at Diues gates, then with him, and all his family beſides, Luk. 16. 21. The conſideration whereof muſt teach vs to nippe ſinne in the head at the beginning, and not to ſuffer it to growe: for, if it get a head and raigne in vs, it will make vs worſe then bruite or ſauage beaſts, and cruell as the Deuill himſelfe; as we may ſee in the worlds vſage of theſe beleeuers.

Thus we ſee the ſtate of true beleeuers, vnder der many and grieuous miſeries, which wee muſt well obſerue, to arme our ſelues againſt the times of aduerſities, which God may ſende vpon vs. We muſt not iudge it a curſed eſtate to be vnder the Croſſe: for, here we ſee, the faith of his ſeruants is commended for ſuffering nine ſeuerall kinds of miſeries. If we ſhall thinke that theſe were but a fewe; we muſt know, that in them the holy Ghoſt ſetteth downe the ſtate of his Church vnto the ende; for, theſe things were written for enſamples vnto vs. And therefore if calamities come, and ſuch miſeries befall vs, as doe driue vs toward diſtruſt, as though God had forſaken vs, we muſt remember that God did not forſake theſe his children in their calamities, and therefore alſo will not forſake vs. And thus much for this laſt example.

VERSE 39.

And theſe all through faith obtained good report, and receiued not the promiſe.

THe holy Ghoſt hauing ſet downe at large a worthy and notable Catalogue of examples of faith in ſundry beleeuers, that liued from the beginning of the world, to the time of the Maccabees, doth now for a further commendation of their faith rehearſe the ſame things that before he had ſaid in the 2. and 13. verſes of this chapter. In ſaying, that by faith they all receiued good report; his meaning is, that they did beleeue in the true Meſſias, and looked for ſaluation in him alone, whereupon they were approoued of God himſelfe; who gaue teſtimony hereof, partly by his word, and partly by his ſpirit in their conſciences, and partly by his Church: by all which they were commended, and aſſured to be Gods ſeruants. And yet notwithſtanding this good report, they receiued not the promiſe; that is, the promiſe of Chriſts incarnation in their dayes. They receiued Chriſt truely by faith, and ſo ſaw his day; but his actuall incarnation in the fleſh, they liued not to ſee.

Whereas it is ſaid, That by faith they obtained teſtimony; Here firſt obſerue, that there is nothing in man, that makes him acceptable to God, but faith onely. God regards no mans perſon: he accepts not of a man, becauſe he is a King, or becauſe he is wiſe, or rich, or ſtrong, &c. But, if a man beleeue, then the Lord is readie to giue teſtimony of him, that he likes well of him. In regard whereof, we muſt all labour diligently, aboue all other things, to get true faith in Chriſt, that ſo we may haue approbation A at Gods hands; without which, there is no ſaluation to be hoped for.

Secondly, here alſo learne the right way to get teſtimony, approbation, and credit with men; a thing, whereof many are exceeding glad; and which, the childe of God muſt not contemne. Now, the way is this: He muſt firſt labour to get approbation at Gods hands; which indeede he cannot doe any other way, ſaue onely, by a true and liuely faith, as we haue heard before. Now, the Lord God approouing of him, he hath the hearts of all men in his hands, inclining them whether he will: and if it ſtand with his glorie, he will cauſe them to like, and to ſpeake well of him, that doth beleeue.

B Many, indeede, get great applauſe in the world, which little regard true faith; but in the ende, this their glory and applauſe, will be their ſhame: for, They that honour me, will I honour, ſaith the Lord: but he that deſpiſeth me ſhall be deſpiſed, 1. Sam. 2. 30.

Laſtly, whereas the holy Ghoſt ſaith, That all theſe worthy men obtained teſtimony of God, and yet receiued not the promiſe: We are hereby taught, that we which now liue in the Church, are much more bound in conſcience to beleeue, then they that liued in the olde Teſtament. For, we haue receiued the promiſe of Chriſts incarnation: They receiued it not, and yet beleeued. Wherefore, in the feare of God let vs labour for true faith. But ſome will ſay, C What ſhould we heare ſo much of faith? we doe all beleeue. Anſw. Indeede, we ſay ſo with our mouthes: but it is a rare thing to find true and ſound faith in the heart; for, groſſe and palpable ignorance abounds euery where, and yet men will needes be good beleeuers, which is a thing impoſſible: for, how ſhould faith be without knowledge? And, as men are ignorant, ſo they haue no care to learne, nor to get knowledge, that ſo they might come by true faith. Their hearts are wholly taken vp with the world, for matters of profit and delight; that they can ſpare no time, to ſeeke for this pretious gift of faith. Againe, many haue knowledge; with whom true faith is rare: for, faith purifies the heart, it is ioyned with a good con- D ſcience, and ſhewes it ſelfe by obedience, thorough loue. Now, (to leaue the heart to God) where almoſt is the man that walkes anſwerable to his knowledge? May we not truely ſay of many, that as the word commeth in at the one eare, it goeth out at the other? And, among thoſe which learne, and beare away ſomething, there is little care to practiſe it in life.

But, we muſt knowe, that if we would be approoued of God, we muſt beleeue. Now, ſo long as we remaine ignorant; or elſe hauing knowledge doe not ioyne practiſe therewith, in obedience from a good conſcience: vndoubtedly we haue no ſparke of true faith in vs. We may make a ſhew of faith, and ſo beare the world in hand wee beleeue: but certainely, this will prooue a very dead faith; and in the ende, and finiſhing of all, appeare to be nothing, but bare lip-faith, and meere preſumption. Now, to conclude this point, we muſt know, that vnleſſe we get true faith, as theſe beleeuers had, (which we muſt ſhewe by good fruits, as they did) euen they ſhall riſe vp in iudgement againſt vs to condemne vs, at the laſt day. For they beleeued; though they had not the ground of faith ſo laid before them as we haue. Wherefore, let them that want knowledge, labour for it; &, they which haue it, let them ioyne obedience with their knowledge, that the faith of their hearts, may be ſeene by the fruits of their liues: for, true faith cannot be hid, but will breake out in good works.

VERSE 40.

God prouiding a better thing for vs, that they without vs ſhould not be made perfect.

BEcauſe ſome man might much meruell, that ſuch men as receiued teſtimony of God for their faith, ſhould not yet receiue the promiſe; therefore here the holy Ghoſt renders a reaſon thereof: the good pleaſure of God, appointing that Chriſt ſhould be incarnate at ſuch a time, as was moſt conuenient for the perfect conſūmation of the whole Church, conſiſting of Gentiles, as wel as Iewes. For, though theſe auncient beleeuers, were in time long before; yet God prouided Chriſts incarnation ſo fitly for vs, that they without vs ſhould not haue perfect conſummation in glorie.

The Expoſition. God prouiding a better thing for vs. The word in the originall, tranſlated prouiding, ſignifieth properly foreſeeing; wherein is likewiſe included, Gods decree and ordination. Now, this we muſt knowe: that it is a peculiar prerogatiue, belonging to the true God alone, to be able to forſee things to come: and that many 1000. yeares before: no creature of himſelfe can do it. And, yet it is true, that this propertie to foreſee, is aſcribed vnto God, not properly; but in regard of our capacitie: for if we ſpeake of God properly, God cannot be ſaid to foreſee any thing; becauſe all things be preſent to him, whether paſt, or to come.

This preſcience, or foreknowledge in God, puts a difference betweene the true God, and all creatures: for, the true God foreſees all things that are to come; ſo can no creature doe. Indeede, ſome creatures foreſee and foretell ſome things: yet herein, they come ſhort of the diuine propertie: for, God foreſees all things by himſelfe, without ſignes, and outward means. But creatures onely foreſee ſome things not of themſelues: but, by meanes of ſignes, and outward cauſes, or by reuelation from God: otherwiſe can no creature foreſee things to come.

Now, as we ſaid before, this fore-ſight in God includes his decree and ordination: for, therefore did theſe things ſo come to paſſe, becauſe God ordained them. Whereby we ſee, that Gods preſcience or foreknowledge is not idle, but operatiue, and ioyned with his will: for, Matth. 10. 29. 30. an haire cannot fall from our head: nor a ſparrowe light vpon the ground, without his will. As all things in time come to paſſe; ſo God before all worlds willed, that is, decreed and appointed them. And, vnder this large extent of Gods will or decree, we muſt include the ſinnefull actions of men; for, God doth not barely foreſee them, but decree the beeing of them, and ſo will them after a ſort; though not to be done by himſelfe, yet by others. When Iudas betrayed Chriſt, and Pilate with the wicked Iewes condemned and reuiled him, they ſinned grieuouſly; and yet herein, they did nothing, but that which Gods hand and counſell had determined before to be done.

This point well conſidered, confutes their opinion, who indeede inlarge Gods preſcience or foreknowledge ouer all things good and euill; but yet exclude ſinne from without the compaſſe of his decree, and ordination. But here we ſee Gods foreſight includes his decree; and nothing comes to paſſe ſimply without his will: howſoeuer many things be done againſt his reuealed will; yet without his abſolute will, can nothing come to paſſe. He worketh all things according to the counſell of his owne will: doing himſelfe thoſe things that be good, and willingly permitting euil to be done by others, for good ends.

But, what did God here prouide and foreſee for vs? Anſw. A better thing: that is, God in his eternall counſell prouided a better eſtate for his Church in the newe teſtament; then he did for beleeueres in the olde.

Hence we learne, that as God hath his generall prouidēce, wherby he gouerneth all things; ſo alſo, he hath his ſpeciall and particular prouidence, whereby in all things, he prouides and brings to paſſe, that which is beſt for his church. For, in the olde teſtament, God prouided that for his Church, which was meete for it: But conſidering that the Church in the newe Teſta- (in ſome reſpects) was to haue a better eſtate, then the Church in the old teſtament had; therefore, he prouides for it a better ſtate. And look, as in his eternall wiſedome he foreſeeth what is beſt for all eſtates and times; ſo in his prouidence doth hee accompliſh and effect the ſame.

For vs.] That is, for the Church in the new teſtament: where note, that Gods Church, and

A the ſtate thereof in the new Teſtament, is better then it wa's in the old, before the cōming of Chriſt. The holy Ghoſt here ſpeakes this plainly; and therefore, we neede no further proofe thereof.

Queſt. How ſhould it bee better with the Church now, then it was then? Anſ. True it is, that God gaue the couenant of grace in the beginning, to our firſt parents in Paradiſe: the ſumme whereof was this; The ſeede of the woman ſhall breake the Serpents head. And this couenant did God renue and reuiue vnto his Church, from time to time, in all ages, vnto this day. Both circumciſion and the Paſſeouer, were ſeales of this couenant; as well as our Sacraments bee: ſo that in ſubſtance they differ B not; the free gift of grace in Chriſt belonged to them as well as vnto vs. The beleeuing Iewes in their Sacraments, did eate the ſame ſpirituall meate, and drinke the ſame ſpirituall drinke with vs (as the Apoſtle witneſſeth, 1. Cor. 10. 3): and beleeuers then, obtained the ſame eternall life that we doe now by faith. And yet if wee regard the manner of adminiſtring the couenant of grace in Gods Church, vnto the people of God; Herein doth the Church of the new Teſtament farre ſurpaſſe the Church of God in the olde: and, indeede herein conſiſts the preheminence of the Church vnder the Goſpell; which ſtands in fiue things eſpecially. C

Firſt, in the olde Teſtament, ſpirituall and heauenly^were propounded vnto the Church, vnder temporall and earthly bleſſings. This is plaine by Gods dealing with the Patriarchs, Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob; for, the Lord promiſed vnto them the temporall bleſſings of the Land of Canaan; vnder which hee ſignified the gift of life euerlaſting, in the Kingdome of heauen. But, in the new Teſtament, life euerlaſting is plainly promiſed to the beleeuer, without any ſuch type or figure.

Secondly, in the olde Teſtament Chriſt was ſhewed and ſignified vnto them in ceremonies, rites and types; which were in number many, D and in ſignification ſome of them darke and obſcure: but now theſe types and ceremonies are aboliſhed, the ſhadowe is gone, and the ſubſtance come: and in ſteade of dark ſignes and figures, we haue two moſt plaine and ſenſible Sacraments. More plainely, the couenant of grace in the olde Teſtament, was ſealed by the blood of Lambs, as ſignes of the blood of Chriſt: but now to his Church in the new Teſtament, Chriſt himſelfe hath ſealed his Teſtament by his owne blood.

Thirdly, in the olde Teſtament all the knowledge they had was in the Law: and their vnderſtanding in the Goſpel was obſcure and very ſlender: but, in the new Teſtament, not onely the Law is made manifeſt, but alſo the ſupernaturall knowledge of the Goſpel.

Fourthly, the Law was onely committed and publiſhed to one nation and people: but the Goſpel is ſpred and preached to all the world.

And laſtly, the Church in the old Teſtament beleeued in Chriſt to come: but, now the Church beleeues in Chriſt, which is already come and exhibited: in all which reſpects, the Church in the new Teſtament doth exceed the Church of the olde.

Now, where the Text ſaith, God prouided a better thing for vs, we muſt not vnderſtand it of all theſe prerogatiues, but onely of the fift and laſt, touching the actuall exhibiting of Chriſt in the fleſh: as Chriſt alſo imports, Luk. 10. 23, 24. Bleſſed are the eyes which ſee that ye ſee; for, I tell you, many Prophets and Kings haue deſired to ſee thoſe things yee ſee, and haue not ſeene them: Which things we muſt vnderſtand of the incarnation of Chriſt. And that this is ſuch a prerogatiue to the new teſtament, appeareth by olde Simeon, who when hee had ſeene Chriſt in the Temple, as it was promiſed to him, ſang vnto God this ſong (Luk. 2. 29) Lord, now letteſt thou thy ſeruāt depart in peace, according to thy word; for, mine eyes haue ſeene thy ſaluation: as if he ſhould ſay, I haue now Lord liued long enough; let me now depart in peace, ſeeing now I haue ſeene thy Chriſt my Sauiour (where we ſee he makes it a matter of full contentment vnto his ſoule) which the beleeuers vnder the Law ſaw not.

Hence we muſt learne our dutie: for, if our ſtate bee now better then the ſtate of the olde Teſtament was, and if wee enioy priuiledges denied to Gods ancient ſeruants before and vnder the Law; then vndoubtedly we ought to ſtriue to goe bofore them in grace and obedience; for, euery mans accounts ſhall be according to his receits. He that receiues fiue talents, muſt mak account to returne moe, then he that receiues two: where God is more aboundant in his mercy, there he looks for anſwerable thankfulnes & obedience. We go beyond the ancient Church in fiue things: and therefore we muſt ſtirre vp our hearts to be anſwerable in grace & obedience going beyond thē. But if for all this, wee come ſhort of them in theſe things, then ſurely our caſe is fearefull, and our puniſhment ſhall be the greater: for, they that had leſſe prerogatiue, ſhal be witneſſes againſt vs, if they goe beyond vs in obedience.

That they without vs might not be made perfect: that is, might not be fully glorified. Here is the reaſon why Chriſt was not exhibited in their dayes. Indeede all true beleeuers before Chriſt, were iuſtified, and ſanctified, and in ſoule receiued to glory before vs; yet perfected in ſoule and body both, they muſt not bee before vs: but wee muſt all bee perfected together. Now, his will herein he bringeth thus to paſſe; All muſt bee perfected in Chriſt: But hee will not haue Chriſt to come and ſuffer, til the fulnes of time came, in theſe laſt daies, Heb. 1. 2. (as the Apoſtle ſpeaketh) that the beleeuers liuing in theſe dayes, might haue time of beeing in the Church to be called, iuſtified, and ſanctified; that ſo they might be glorified with them that liued before. For, put the caſe that Chriſt had ſuffered in the dayes of Abraham, or Dauid, or thereabout; then the ende of the world muſt needes haue come the ſooner: for, ſo it was foretolde, that Chriſt ſhould come in the latter ages of the world. 1. Pet. 1.20. Now, if the world had beene ſooner cut off, then had there not beene time of birth and calling, for all the elect that now liue and ſhall liue: therefore for their ſakes was Chriſts comming deferred, till the fulneſſe of time. And this I take to be the meaning of the words.

Now, in that the holy Ghoſt here ſaith, The members of Chriſt in the newe Teſtament muſt be perfected, with all the ancient beleeuers in the olde; we muſt hereby be admoniſhed, to conforme our ſelues vnto theſe auncient Fathers in the participation of grace and practiſe of obedience in this life. For how can we looke to be A glorified with them after this life, if here we be not like them in grace. Chriſt tells his followers, that many ſhould come from the Eaſt and from the Weſt, to ſit with Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, in the kingdome of heauen, Matth. 8.11. 12. (becauſe they were followers of theſe Patriarchs in the faith) when as the children of the Kingdome, that is, many Iewes by birth, borne in the Church, ſhould be caſt into vtter darkeneſſe. Now, if Chriſt denie to glorifie the children and poſteritie of theſe auncient beleeuers, becauſe they did not follow them in grace and in obedience: how can we which are by nature ſinners of the Gentiles, looke to be glorified with them, vnleſſe in grace and obedience we conforme our ſelues vnto them? Thus much for B theſe examples of faith: now ſomething muſt be added out of the next chapter; becauſe there the holy Ghoſt makes vſe of all theſe worthie examples.

A COMMENTARIE VPON PART OF THE 12. Chapter to the Hebrewes.

VERSE 1.

Wherefore, let vs alſo, ſeeing we are compaſſed with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, caſt away euery thing that preſſeth downe, and that ſinne that hangeth ſo faſt on: let vs runne with patience the race that is ſet before vs.

IN theſe words, the holy Ghoſt propoundeth a worthy exhortatiō to the Chriſtians of the newe Teſtament; that they ſhould labour to be conſtant in the profeſſion of the faith: that is, in holding, embracing, and beleeuing true Chriſtian religion. And his reaſon is framed thus; The Saints of God in the olde Teſtament, were conſtant in the faith: and therefore, you muſt likewiſe be conſtant in the faith that liue in the newe Teſtament. The firſt part of the reaſon is laid downe in all the examples of the former chapter. The concluſion or ſequell is contained in this firſt verſe. Wherein, we may obſerue two points: an exhortation vnto conſtancy in true religion; and the way or meanes to D attaine thereunto. The exhortation is inferred vpon the former examples; which are all here applied as preſidents and directions vnto vs, for conſtancy and and perſeuerance in the faith: in theſe words; Wherefore, ſeeing we are compaſſed about with ſuch a cloud of witneſſes: that is, Seeing Abel, Enoch, Noe, Abraham, and all the reſt of the holy Fathers, who are a cloud of witneſſes vnto vs (that is, lights, and leaders before vs) were conſtant in true religion (whether we reſpect their faith in Gods promiſes, or obedience to his commandements) therefore, we alſo muſt be conſtant in the faith. The way or meanes hereunto, ſtands in three duties, in the words following; Let vs caſt away, &c.

For the exhortation: Firſt in generall, the very inferring of it from the former examples, teacheth vs this ſpeciall duty; That euery one in Gods Church muſt apply vnto himſelfe thoſe

A inſtructions, that are laid downe, either generally in doctrine, or particularly in example. And therefore the holy Ghoſt here ſaith not, Let the Galatians, or the Corinthians (which were renowned Churches) be conſtant in the faith; but, Let vs, that is, you Hebrewes, with my ſelfe be conſtant in the faith, following the example of your auncient Fathers. It is ſaide of the auncient Iewes, that Heb.4.2. many of them heard Gods word; but it was not profitable vnto them, becauſe it was not mingled with faith in them. What is it to mingle the word with faith? It is, not onely to receiue it by faith, beleeuing it to be true; but alſo, by the ſame hand of faith, to apply it to a mans owne ſoule, to his heart, and life. And vndoubtedly, Gods word thus applied B to a mans particular perſon, hath in it great power and fruite; whether we regard information of iudgement, or reformation of life. But, it is a hard thing to doe, and rare to finde a man that doth ſincerely apply vnto himſelfe, either generall doctrines, or particular examples. We are all prone to ſhift it from our ſelues, and lay it vpon others, ſaying; This is a good Item, or a good leſſon, for ſuch a one, and ſuch a one, if he were here; or, if he would marke it. In the meane while, what benefit reape we to our owne ſoules? for, the word not applied to our ſelues, doth vs no good: it is like Phyſicke not taken, or food not eaten. And, hence it comes to paſſe, that though we heare much; yet we profit little by the miniſtery of Gods word. We muſt therefore learne to followe Maries example, who C pondered Chriſts words, and laid them vp in her owne heart. When an exhortation is giuen, we muſt not poſt it off, and lay it vpon other mens ſhoulders; but apply it to our ſelues, and lay it to our owne hearts, ſaying, This inſtruction is for me. Hereby (no doubt) we ſhould feele greater bleſſings vpon the preaching of the word, then yet we doe. And, to mooue vs hereunto, let vs conſider, that Satan our vtter enemie (who ſeekes nothing but our deſtruction) is moſt buſie to hinder this application of the word, either by the miniſter, or by a mans own conſcience. As for example: when the miniſter (by occaſion out of Gods word) ſhall confute, either errour in iudgement, or miſdemeanour D in life; then, men that heare, and are guilty thereof, ſhould ſay, This is mine errour, or my fault; now am I confuted, or reprooued. And God (no doubt) if men would thus doe, would make it effectuall vnto them at the length. But, in ſtead of this applying to our ſelues (either through our owne corruption, or Satans ſuggeſtion, or both) we ſhift it from our ſelues, and ſay, Now he reprooues ſuch a one, and ſuch a one; and ſpeakes againſt ſuch and ſuch: and indeede, Satan (by his good will) would neuer haue a man to apply the word rightly to himſelfe. Therefore, ſeeing Satan is ſo buſie, and this is his deceit to make a man ſhift off an exhortation or reproofe from himſelfe, and to lay it on others: we muſt be as carefull to apply it to our ſelues, and to lay it to our owne conſciences: and then (no doubt) we ſhall finde it to be a word of power, able to reforme both the miſdemeanour of our liues, and the errours of our mindes.

Now, to the reaſon more particularly. We muſt be conſtant in the faith, becauſe we are compaſſed about with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes. Here the auncient Fathers of the olde Teſtament, which in the former chapter were commended vnto vs for their faith, are compared to a cloude, and then to a cloude compaſſing vs. Laſtly, to a cloud of witneſſes.

They are compared to a cloude (as I take it) by alluſion to the cloude which directed and led the Iſraelites in the wilderneſſe: for, when they came from Egypt, and were 40. yeares in the Deſert of Arabia; all that while, they were directed by a pillar of cloude by day, Exod. 13. 21. Now, looke as that cloud guided the Iſraelites from the bondage of Egypt, to the Land of Canaan: ſo doth this company of famous beleeuers, direct all the true members of Gods Church in the new Teſtament, the right way from the Kingdome of darkeneſſe, to the ſpirituall Canaan the kingdome of heauen. And this is the true cauſe why theſe worthie beleeuers are compared to a cloude.

Marke further, they are called a cloud: but what a cloud? namely, compaſſing vs. A compaſſing cloud they are called, by reaſon of the great company of beleeuers; ſo as which way ſoeuer a man turnes him, he ſhall ſee beleeuers on euery ſide: and they are ſaid to compaſſe vs, becauſe they giue vs direction in the courſe of Chriſtianitie, as the cloud did the Iſraelites in the wilderneſſe.

Now, whereas the whole company of beleeuers is called a cloud compaſſing vs: here is anſwered a common obiection of temporizers, which argue thus againſt religion: There are ſo many kindes of religion now a-dayes, that no man can tell which to be of: and therefore it is good to be of no religion, till we bee certified, which is the true religion. This carnall reaſon is here anſwered; for, howſoeuer in ſome things, there be variety of opinions in Gods Church, yet for the ſubſtance of religion all agree in one. For, the company of beleeuers in this world, reſembles a cloud that goes before vs, ſhewing vs the right way which we are to walke in, to the Kingdome of heauen. Secondly, in that theſe auncient beleeuers are called a cloud compaſſing vs, we are taught, that as the Iſraelites did follow the cloud in the wilderneſſe from the Land of Egypt to Canaan; ſo muſt we follow the examples of theſe ancient beleeuing Fathers and Prophets, to the kingdome of heauen. It is a ſtrange thing to ſee how the Iſraelites followed that cloud. They neuer went, till it went before them: & when it ſtood ſtill, they ſtood ſtil alſo, though it were 2. yeares together; & when it begã to moue, they moued with it. So in the ſame manner muſt we ſet before fore our eyes, for a patterne of life, the worthy examples of beleeuers in the old Teſtament: for what ſoeuer was written, was written for our learning. We muſt therefore be followers of Rom.15.4. them in faith, obedience, and other graces of God; and ſo ſhall wee be directed to life euerlaſting, in the ſpirituall Canaan the kingdome of heauen. And yet we muſt not followe them abſolutely. For, all of them had their infirmities, and ſome of them had their grieuous faults, whereby they were tainted, & there commendation ſomewhat blemiſhed: but, wee muſt followe them in the practiſe of faith and other graces of God. The cloud that guided the Iſraelites, had two parts; a light part, and a Exod.14.20.

darke. The Egyptians who were enemies to Gods people, had not the light part before them, but the darke part: and ſo following that, they ruſhed into the red ſea, and were drowned;
when as the Iſraelites following the light part went through, in ſafety: Euen ſo theſe beleeuers had in them two things: their ſinnes, which be their darke part, which if we follow,
we caſt our ſoules into great danger and deſtruction:
and faith with other graces of God, which are their light part, which we muſt followe
as our light: which if we doe carefully, it will bring vs ſafe to the Kingdome of heauen.
So Paul bids the Corinthians, bee followers of him; yet not abſolutely in euery thing; but as he followes Chriſt: and ſo muſt we follow the Fathers, as they went on in faith in Chriſt.

Further, they are a cloud of witneſſes: that is, a huge multitude of witneſſes. And they are ſo called: Firſt, becauſe by their owne blood they confirmed the faith which they profeſſed: Secondly, becauſe they did all confirme the doctrine of true religion, whereof they were witneſſes, partly by ſpeaches, and partly by actions in life and conuerſation. And ſo is euery member of Chriſt a witneſſe: as the Lord often calls Iſa.43.9,10. 12.
the beleeuing Iſraelites, his witneſſes. Queſt.
How came this to paſſe, that theſe beleeuers ſhould be Gods witneſſes? Anſ. Surely, becauſe they teſtified the truth, and excellencie of Gods holy religion, both in word and action, in life and conuerſation.

Now, ſeeing theſe in the old Teſtament were Chriſts witneſſes; Firſt, hereby all ignorant perſons muſt be ſtirred vp to be carefull to get faith, and to learne true religion. If any thing will mooue a man to become religious, this will: for, out of all the world, God will chuſe faithfull men to be his witneſſes, to teſtifie his religion vnto others. If a man were perſwaded that ſome worthie mightie Prince would vouchſafe to call him to beare witneſſe of the truth on his ſide, he would be wonderfull glad thereof, and take it for a great honour to him. How much more then ought we to labour for knowledge, faith, and obedience in true religion, that we may become witneſſes vnto the Lord our God? if it be a dignitie to be witneſſe to an earthly Prince; oh then what a
A great prerogatiue is this, for a ſilly ſinfull man, to become a witneſſe to the truth of the euerliuing God, who is King of Kings, and whoſe word needes no confirmation? This muſt make vs all to labour for knowledge, and for faith, and for the power of religion: but, if we will remaine ſtill in our ignorance, and neuer labour for knowledge, then ſhall theſe ſeruants of God that beleeued in the old Teſtament, ſtand vp and witneſſe againſt vs at the day of iudgement:
for, they had not ſuch means as we haue, and yet they became moſt faithfull witneſſes.

Secondly, this muſt teach vs to be carefull, that as in word we profeſſe Chriſt, ſo in deede we may confeſſe him, expreſſing the power of his grace in vs. For, by this true confeſſion of B Chriſt, we are made his witneſſes: but when we confeſſe Chriſt in word onely, and yet in life and practiſe denie him, then we are vnfaithfull witneſſes: for, we ſay and vnſay. In an earthly court, if a man ſhould one while ſay one thing, and another while another thing, he would not be accepted for a witneſſe, but rather be excepted againſt, as altogether vnworthie; and ſo would prooue a diſcredit to his friends cauſe, and a ſhame to himſelfe: ſo it is with vs in Chriſts cauſe; if we profeſſe in word, and denie in deede, we diſcredit Chriſt and his profeſſion, and ſhame our ſelues for euer. And therefore we muſt be carefull not onely in word & iudgment, but in life and conuerſation, to make a C true and conſtant confeſſion of Chriſt and of his truth. And thus much for the exhortation.

Now followeth the ſecond point to be obſerued in this verſe; namely, the manner how Gods Church and people may put in practiſe this worthie exhortation of the holy Ghoſt, To be conſtant in the faith. And this conſiſts in three duties: 1. They muſt caſt away that which preſſeth downe: 2. They muſt caſt away that ſinne that hangeth ſo faſt on: or, ſinne which ſo readily doth compaſſe vs about: 3. They muſt runne the race that is ſet before them, with patience. Whoſoeuer in Gods Church either Iew or Gentile, can performe theſe three things, ſhall be able no doubt to follow the D counſell of the holy Ghoſt, and continue conſtant in the faith vnto the ende. Of theſe three in order.

The firſt thing then to be done, is this, We muſt caſt away that which preſſeth downe: or thus, Caſt away the waight, or burthen (for ſo much the word in the originall ſignifieth) euen that burthen which ſo preſſeth down the poore Chriſtian, that he cannot goe on forward in the courſe of godlineſſe and Chriſtianitie. By burthen or weight, here we muſt vnderſtand fiue things: Firſt, the loue of temporall life: ſecondly, Care for earthly things: thirdly, Riches and temporall wealth: fourthly, Worldly honour and preferments: fiftly, Worldly delights and pleaſures. All theſe are things which lie heauie on mans ſoule, as weightie burthens which preſſe it downe, eſpecially then when the ſoule ſhould lift vp it ſelfe to ſeeke heauenly things. So in the parable of the Sower, riches, pleaſures, and cares for the things of this life, are called thornes, which choake the word of God in a mans heart, and make it vnfruitfull. And, ſurfetting and drunkennes, are ſaid to be things which oppreſſe the heart, and make it heauy. And, eaſie it were, to ſhewe by many teſtimonies, that all theſe fiue things doe preſſe downe the heart; eſpecially then, when it ſhould bee lifted vp in the ſeeking of heauenly things.

Now in this, that theſe fiue things are waighty burdens, we may learne; firſt, what is the cauſe, that in theſe our daies, euery where the Goſpel of Chriſt, beeing publiſhed, preached, and expounded, takes ſo little place in mens hearts; whether wee regard knowledge and vnderſtanding, or affection and obedience. For, Gods word, is a word of power, mightie in operation: how comes it to paſſe then that the ground is barren, where it is caſt? why makes it not men learned and religious? Anſ. Surely, in euery place where the word of God is preached, eſpecially among vs, theſe fiue things poſſeſſe the hearts of men, and exerciſe all the thoughts of the minde, and affections of the heart. From whence it commeth to paſſe, that after long preaching, there is little fruite, or profit; either for knowledge, or obedience: for, where the heart is preſſed downe with the waight of theſe earthly things; there the word of God can take no place, nor bring forth fruit. And, this is generally true among vs; though we heare Gods word from yeare to yeare, and thereby might increaſe in knowledge, and obedience, if we would; yet in many, there is little ſhew of either: and, the cauſe is in theſe worldly cares, which take place in our hearts. For, this is a moſt certaine truth, that ſo long as our hearts are addicted to the greedy ſeeking after theſe earthly things, honours, pleaſures, &c. ſo long will the ground of our hearts bee barren. The good ſeed of Gods word may be ſowen therein; but little fruite ſhall come thereof, ſaue briers and weeds, which will increaſe our damnation.

Againe, whereas the loue of temporall life and care of earthly things, &c. are ſore burdens preſſing downe a mans heart from heauen to earth, and making it heauy, and ſad, and dead in regard of all ſpirituall exerciſes and contemplations: hereby we are taught, oftentimes to giue our ſelues to eleuate and lift vp our minds and hearts to God, partly by meditation in his word, partly by inuocation on his name, and partly by thankſgiuing. And to doe theſe things the better, we muſt remember to ſet apart ſome ſpeciall time euery day, for this ſpeciall worke: ſo as we may ſay with Dauid, Pſal. 25. 1. Lord, I lift vp my heart vnto thee. Dauid was well acquainted with this exerciſe, and ſo was Daniel: for both of them vſed this, as we may reade, Pſal. 55. 17. Euening and morning (ſaith Dauid) and at noone will I pray, and make a noyſe. And Daniel vſed to pray vnto God three times a day: wherein, he would heartily and vnfainedly call vpon God, with thankſgiuing. And, great reaſon we ſhould doe ſo; for, we liue in this world, wherein are innumerable weighty things, which preſſe downe our hearts from looking vp to heauen: & therefore, we muſt often practiſe our ſelues in holy meditation and prayer vnto God; that ſo we may lift vp our ſoules vnto God, from the things of this world. To vſe a fit compariſon: We know that thoſe who keepe clocks, if they would haue the clock ſtil going, muſt once or twice a day wind vp the plummets which cauſe the wheeles to goe about; becauſe they are ſtill drawing downward: Euen ſo, ſeeing our hearts haue plummets of lead, which are worldly cares and deſires, to preſſe them down, from ſeeking vp to heauen; we muſt doe with our hearts, as the clock-keeper doth with his plummets, winde them vp vnto God euery day: and, for this ende, muſt ſet apart ſome particular time to doe the ſame, in holy duties. Why doth God command the ſeauenth day to bee ſanctified, and ſet apart, from all bodily exerciſes, and worldly cares? vndoubtedly, it is for this ende; to cauſe men to eleuate their hearts from all worldly things, to ſeeke the things aboue: elſe, if the minde ſhould bee alwaies preſſed downe with worldly cares, it could neuer attaine to heauens ioyes. Hee that hath not conſcience on the Lords day, to lift vp his heart to heauē, by praier, & hearing Gods word, with meditation thereon; cannot poſſibly haue any ſoundnes in religion, nor his heart firmely ſetled on heauenly things.

Dan.6.10.

Thirdly, whereas the holy Ghoſt ſaith, That the Hebrewes muſt caſt away the weight that preſſeth downe; Here wee are taught, in what manner, and how farre forth we muſt vſe the things of this life; as riches, honours, and lawfull pleaſures; yea and all temporall bleſſings whatſoeuer: namely, ſo farre forth, as they will further vs in the courſe of religion, and in the exerciſes of godlineſſe, and vertue; and no further. But (finding by experience, that theſe temporall things be a burden vnto vs, preſſing vs downe, and making vs vnfit for ſpirituall exerciſes) we muſt leaue them, and abſtaine from them. This is that moderation, which we muſt vſe in temporall things: for, the maine end that euery man muſt propound to himſelfe in all things, is this; That God may be glorified. Now, that a man may glorifie God, it is neceſſarie that he ſhould walke in the waies of godlineſſe, and of true religion. Therefore, looke as riches and worldly commodities may further vs in Chriſtian religion, and godlineſſe; ſo farre forth muſt we vſe them, & therein giue glory to God: but, when they hinder vs therein, then we muſt leaue them, & caſt them off. The Mariner that is vpon the ſea in a great tempeſt, ſeeing his ſhip too ſore ladē, wil caſt out any of his cōmodities; firſt, that that is the heauieſt, and at laſt (if neede

A be) the moſt pretious iewels that be in his ſhip, before he will ſee it loſt: Euen ſo muſt we doe in the ſea of this world, when we ſee riches, honours, and lawfull pleaſures, to make vs vnfit and vntoward for the exerciſes of pietie, and religion; then away with them, we muſt caſt them off, how deare ſoeuer they be vnto vs. And thus much for the firſt duty.

The ſecond duty that we muſt performe, for conſtancie in religion, is this; we muſt caſt away the ſinne that hangeth ſo faſt on: or as the words will better beare, We muſt caſt away the ſinne, that is ſo fit, or ſo ready to compaſſe vs about euery way. By ſinne here, we muſt not vnderſtand actuall ſinne, the practiſing of vngodlineſſe B in life and conuerſation; but, originall ſinne, which is the corruption of nature, in which men are conceiued and borne. Now this originall ſinne, is ſaid to be ready to compaſſe vs about; becauſe (as Paul ſaith of himſelfe) when a man would doe good, it cauſeth euill to be preſent with him; ſo as that good thing which he would doe, that he doth not: but the euill that he would not do, that doth he. And it is ſaid, to compaſſe vs about; becauſe, whatſoeuer in heart a man doth deſire, or affect, or purpoſe to doe, this originall ſinne doth corrupt and defile the ſame vnto him: and, whatſoeuer in action a man would bring to paſſe, it doth likewiſe pollute it. By reaſon whereof, it comes to paſſe, that we may truely ſay, that all the thoughts, affections, C wills, and purpoſes, yea and euery action of Gods children, are all mixed and ſtained with the corruption of this ſinne. So that this hinders Gods deare ſeruants and children, that they cannot goe on in the courſe of godlineſſe and chriſtianitie, as they would; but, either they fal in their iourney many times: or, if they ſtand, yet they doe often ſtagger, and goe very faintly and haltingly forward.

From this that the holy Ghoſt ſaith, Originall ſinne compaſſeth the beleeuer about; we are to obſerue and learne ſundry points. Firſt, this ſerueth notably to confute ſome errours maintained and vpheld by the Church of Rome: for they ſay, that after a man is regenerate by Gods ſpirit, there is nothing in him that God can iuſtly D hate; and they doe curſe all that holde the contrary. Now, to ratifie this their doctrine, that originall ſinne, after regeneration, is not ſinne properly: They ſay, that after regeneration it is no more ſinne, then Tinder is fire; which in it ſelfe is no fire, but very apt and fit vpon the leaſt occaſion, to be ſet on fire. But this opinion is here ouerthrowne, by this that the holy Ghoſt ſaith: That the beleeuing Hebrewes, that is, Gods Church muſt caſt away this ſinne: Where it is plaine, that after regeneration, whereby a man receiueth the ſpirit of ſanctification, and adoption, he hath ſinne in him; for this ſinne is moſt apt and ready to hinder him in the courſe of Chriſtianity and godlineſſe. Now, if ſinne were not properly ſinne, it muſt loſe it owne nature and qualitie; and if it had loſt it proper qualitie, it would not be ſo ready to hinder a man in the courſe of godlineſſe, both in thought, words, and deeds. So that here it is manifeſt and plaine, that in a regenerate man, there is ſinne properly: And, howſoeuer he be free from the guilt and puniſhment of ſinne; yet the corruption remaineth ſtill in him, though greatly weakned through Sanctification.

Againe, here obſerue, that the opinion of many men concerning their ſanctification, is erroneous: for, ſome there be, who haue thought that a man might be perfectly ſanctified in this life, and haue originall ſinne quite aboliſhed. But this is moſt falſe: for this Church of the Hebrewes had as worthie men in it for godlineſſe and ſanctification, as any are in theſe daies; yea, and the author of this Epiſtle was (no doubt) a man that had receiued a great meaſure of ſanctifying grace: yet including himſelfe among them, he exhorts the Hebrewes thus; Let vs caſt off the burden, and ſinne, that is ſo ready to compaſſe vs about. What? had the Apoſtle, and theſe Chriſtians ſinne in them? Yes, or elſe the holy Ghoſt would neuer bid them caſt it off: for, it were a vaine thing, to bid them caſt off that which they had not. Therefore, they were not perfectly ſanctified; as indeede no man euer was, or ſhall be, in this life, Chriſt onely excepted. We muſt not maruell at this, that no man is perfect in this life: nay, we muſt rather maruell at this, that God hath giuen to any of vs, any droppe of ſound grace, beeing ſuch miſerable wretched ſinners as we are.

The Lord himſelfe hath giuen many reaſons, why men ſhould not be perfect in this life. As firſt: If a man were perfectly ſanctified in this life, then were he perfectly iuſt and righteous in himſelfe before God, and ſo ſhould be ſaued; yet not by free grace and mercy alone in Chriſt; and thus ſhould Chriſt not be a whole and alone Sauiour; but onely a meanes to conuay into a man that ſauing grace whereby a man ſhould be ſaued. But Chriſt is our whole and onely righteouſneſſe, whereby we are iuſtified and ſaued; and this may our corruption teach vs, which ſtill remaines in vs, not quite mortified till the houre of death. Secondly, whatſoeuer grace we receiue of God, it comes by meanes of faith, which God worketh in vs: And looke how it ſtands with vs in regard of faith, ſo is it with vs for all other graces. But, faith in the beſt beleeuer is imperfect in this life, and mixed with much doubting; and therefore all other gifts and graces which come by faith, as righteouſneſſe, repentance, and ſanctification, are alſo imperfect in this life.

From this, that ſanctification in this life is imperfect, we learne (for the ouerthrowing of another errour of the Church of Rome) that no man can ſtand at Gods tribunall ſeat, iuſtified by inherent iuſtice or righteouſnes. For that which we call Sanctificatiõ, the Papiſts call the Iuſtificatiõ of a ſinner; making two parts of iuſtificati-

on: the firſt, whereby a ſinner of an euill man is made good; by the pardon of ſinnes, and the infuſion of inward righteouſneſſe, ſtanding in hope and charity eſpecially: And the ſecond, whereby of a good man, one is made better, and more iuſt: and this they ſay, may proceede from the merit of a mans own workes of grace; and hereby they holde a man ſtands righteous before God. But look how it ſtands with grace in vs in this life, ſo likewiſe ſhall it ſtand with the ſame graces at the laſt day; if they be imperfect now, and ſo not able to iuſtifie vs before God, they ſhall alſo be found imperfect then to that purpoſe and effect: But now they are imperfect, as hath beene ſhewed, and therefore cannot then ſtand for our righteouſneſſe; vnleſſe we will imagine that God will then accept of an imperfect Iuſtice. Wherefore, their Doctrine is erroneous, and a doctrine of all terrour and deſperation: for, who dare aduenture the ſaluation of his ſoule vpon his owne righteouſneſſe? We denie not, but that God accepteth of our ſanctification; yet not as the matter of our iuſtification vnto life: that onely is the obedience and righteouſneſſe of Ieſus Chriſt, accepted of God for vs, and made ours by faith; for, that alone is aunſwerable to the rigour of the Law.

Thirdly, this alſo ſheweth the errour of thoſe, who hold that concupiſcence or original ſinne, is not a quality, but an eſſence or ſubſtance liuing and ſubſiſting by it ſelfe. For, here we ſee a plaine difference betweene a mans bodie and ſoule, and originall ſinne that compaſſeth them; elſe the holy Ghoſt would not bid vs to caſt off this ſinne; for, that which is of the ſubſtance of man, cannot by man bee caſt off. And to make this more plaine, we muſt know, that in man deſcending from Adam, there be three things: 1. The ſubſtance of his ſoule and body: 2. The powers and faculties in them both. 3. The corruption or bad diſpoſition in thoſe powers and faculties, whereby a man is vnconformable to the will of his Creator, and prone to that which is euill. And this third thing is it, which is here ſpoken of, different from mans ſubſtance and faculties; and ſo is not a ſubſtance in man, or mans nature corrupted, but an ill diſpoſition therein. Fourthly, hence alſo we learne, what a regenerate man doth moſt feele in himſelfe; namely, originall ſinne, the corruption of his nature: for, that hangs on faſt, and hinders him in the practiſe of all good duties. This Paul knew well; and therefore confeſſeth, that hee ſaw another Lawe in his members, rebelling againſt the Law of his mind, and leading him captiue vnto the law of ſinne, which was in his members, Rom. 7.23. This cauſeth him to leaue vndone the good which he would haue done, and to doe the euill, which he would not doe, v. 19. And Dauid felt the the ſame thing when hee ſaide, I will runne the way of thy commandements, when thou ſhalt enlarge my heart. Why doth Dauid ſpake of the enlarging of his heart?

A Surely, hee felt in himſelfe this originall ſinne, which did ſtreighten his good affections, ſo as he could not put them forth ſo much as hee would toward the Law of God. And when hee ſaith, Pſal. 51.12. Stabliſh me oh Lord by thy free ſpirit; he would giue vs to vnderſtand, that by originall corruption hee was reſtrained of his Chriſtian libertie, and hindred in all good affections, holy actions, and heauenly meditations: which cauſeth him to pray for libertie and freedome by the ſpirit. So that it is plaine, the ſeruant of God feeles this corruption, clogging and hindring him from all good duties.

This ſerues to admoniſh all ſecure perſons, which neuer felt ſinne to be a clogge or burden B vnto them, of their fearefull and dangerous eſtate. For, to euery childe of God, originall corruption is a grieuous burthen. Now, conferre with a naturall man, and aske him what imperfections and wants hee feeles in himſelfe: his anſwer is; hee neuer was hindred by any corruption in all his life, he neuer felt doubting or want of loue, either to God or to his brethren: he feeles no pride of heart, no hypocriſie, nor vaine glory, &c. If wee take theſe men vpon their words, they are Angels among men: but indeede they are blinde and ignorant, and wonderfully deceiued by Satan: for, all Gods ſeruants in this life doe continually bewaile the corruption of their nature, crying out againſt C originall ſinne, that it hinders them in doing the good things which they would doe; and cauſeth them to doe that euill which they would not. Theſe men therefore, that are neuer troubled with corruption, but (to their owne thinking) haue grace at will, are in a fearefull caſe, their mindes are ſtill blinded, and their hearts hardned; they are dead in ſinne, abiding in darkneſſe vnto this houre. And if they goe thus on to death, they ſhall finde that ſinne will vnvizor himſelfe, and then they ſhall knowe what ſinne meanes, and finde the terrour, and feele the burthen of it when it is too late; like the fooliſh virgins that knew what the want of oyle meant, when the doores were ſhut.

D Secondly, this ſhewes vnto vs, what is the ſtate and condition of the childe of God in this life; Hee is not here a Saint feeling no corruption, perfectly ſanctified and freed from all ſinne: But ſuch a one as feeles the burthen of corruption, hindring him in his Chriſtian courſe, vnder which he ſighes and groanes, labouring by all good meanes to be diſburthened, and to caſt it off. It is indeede a matter of great comfort for a man to feele Gods graces in himſelfe, as faith, loue, repentance, ſanctification, and ſuch like; but no child of God can alwaies or alone feele the comfort of grace, moſt commonly he ſhall bee troubled with ſinne, if he be Gods childe. Now, if feeling it, he diſlike himſelfe, and ſtriue to be eaſed of it, this is a ſure argument of his happy eſtate.

Fiftly, the commandement to caſt away

ſinne that preſſeth downe; teacheth euery childe of God to labour earneſtly for the gouernment and direction of Gods ſpirit: for we haue within vs originall corruption, that like an armed man beſets vs about, and hindreth vs in euerie good thing wee take in hand. We muſt therefore pray vnto God daily, that hee would guide vs by his good ſpirit: for, by reaſon of the corruption of our nature, and the deceitfulneſſe of ſinne, we ſhall vtterly faile, vnleſſe Gods ſpirit gouernes vs, both in the thoughts of our hearts, in the words of our mouthes, and the actions of our liues. This Dauid knew well, and therefore prayeth to the Lord for his good ſpirit, to leade him into the Land of Righteouſneſſe, Pſal. 143. 10.

Laſtly, ſeeing wee haue this corruption of nature in vs, wee muſt keepe our hearts with all diligence, and ſet watch and ward about them. So Salomon ſaith: Counterguard thy heart my ſonne, Prou. 4. 23. Why doth Salomon giue this commaundement? Surely, for ſpeciall cauſe: for, euery man while he liues on earth, is compaſſed about with his own corrupt nature; which like a home-borne traytor ſeekes to deliuer the heart into the poſſeſſion of Satan, and ſo to defraude God of his right. Againe, the heart is mans Treaſure, from whence comes all actions good and badde: now, if it bee well kept and guarded, the Lord will dwell in thy heart, and thence will proceede the iſſues of life: but, if it be left open, for corruption to enter and take place; then is it made an habitation for the deuill.

If a citie were beſieged about by bloody enemies, the inhabitants thereof would ſet watch and ward in euery place, to keepe out the enemie: ſo, we hauing originall ſinne, as a fierce enemie compaſſing vs about, for to worke our deſtruction ſome way or other, muſt labour to haue our hearts guarded with a watch of grace; that our corruption may not let in Satan there to dwell, or to haue any abode.

But (will ſome ſay) how ſhal we get a watch that may thus keepe our hearts?

Anſw. Wee muſt labour that the word of God may dwell plentifully in our hearts; and there, as the ſcepter of Chriſt, to be held vp by the grace of faith, ruling our wills and affections, & bringing into ſubiection euery thought to the obediẽce of Chriſt. In ſuch a heart Chriſt dwells, who is ſtronger then Satan: and, here can neither corruption ſet open the doore to Satan, nor Satan enter; but all things are in ſafety. Alſo the actions, that proceede hence, ſhalbe the iſſues of life, being holy and pleaſing vnto God.

And thus much of the ſecond point.

The third duty to be performed for our continuance in the faith, is this: We muſt runne with patience the race that is ſet before vs. In theſe words the holy Ghoſt borroweth a compariſon from the games of men that did runne a race: and thus we may conceiue it; The race A that the holy Ghoſt propounds vs to runne, is the race of Chriſtian religion: the parties that muſt runne in this race, are all Chriſtians, men or women, high or low; not one excepted: the price and crowne for which we runne, is euerlaſting glory: the iudge of the runners is the Lord himſelfe, who hath appointed this race vnto euery Chriſtian in this life; who alſo, will giue the reward to euery one that runneth well.

In this compariſon, we may obſerue many good inſtructions. Firſt, in that Chriſtian religion is compared to a race; We are taught, that euery one that profeſſeth religion muſt goe forward therein, growing in knowledge, faith, pietie, and in euery grace of God. He that runnes B a bodily race, muſt neither ſtand ſtill, nor goe backward (for then he ſhal neuer get the price) but ſtill goe forward to the race ende: So muſt euery Chriſtian goe forward in grace, following hard towards the marke, for the price of the high calling of God. If we care not for eternall life, then we may take our eaſe, and let grace alone; but if we tender our owne ſaluation, we muſt goe on in the graces of religion, as a runner doth goe forward in his race. This beeing well obſerued, would rouze vp our drowſie Chriſtians, that make no progreſſe in religion.

Secondly, this reſemblance of Chriſtianity to a race, teacheth vs all to ſtriue to goe one before another in knowledge, faith, and holy obedience: thus runners doe, that runne a bo- C dily race. Alſo in the world, the manner of men is, to labour and ſtriue to goe one before another in riches, preferment, in fine apparell, and in all bodily delights: now, ſhall men ſtriue to be firſt in theſe tranſitory things, and ſhall wee neglect our duty about theſe ſpirituall graces? wherein, the more wee excell, the more acceptable wee are to God, and ſhall bee more glorious in the world to come.

Thirdly, ſeeing Chriſtianitie is a race, we muſt remember to be conſtant therein, till we come to the ende of our faith; euen the ſaluation of our ſoules. It hath beene the manner of our people, to turne in religion with the State and Time; and yet, to this day many thouſands come to our aſſemblies, that would turne to D Poperie, if that abhomination ſhould be ſet vp againe: for (ſay they) It was a merrie world, when that religion was vp. But, this is not the propertie of good runners; If we would haue the crowne of life, we muſt hold true religion conſtantly vnto the death.

Laſtly, like good runners we muſt minde our way, and haue our hearts ſet vpon the end of our race; which is, euerlaſting life. Each ordinarie traueller, is very inquiſitiue of his way, and all his care is to goe the neereſt way he can to his iourneys ende. Behold, we are trauellers, and our iourney is to heauen; we muſt therefore endeauour to goe the ſtraighteſt way we can, to come to life euerlaſting: neither muſt we make delaies in this way, but vſe all helpes

A to further vs herein; for the matter is of great importance whereabout we goe.

Here ſome will ſay, We like this well; but, true religion hath alwaies many enemies, and few hearty friends: beſides, if a man runne this way, he muſt runne alone, and ſuffer many croſſes and reproaches. Anſ. This is moſt true: and therefore the holy Ghoſt addeth; That we muſt runne this race with patience: We muſt not be diſcouraged becauſe of theſe croſſes and afflictions; but labour with patience to beare that part of affliction, what-euer it be, that ſhall light vpon vs in our iourney. This is Chriſts counſell to his Diſciples, Luke 21. 19. Poſſeſſe your ſoules in patience: as if he ſhould ſay, If you would ſaue your ſoules, you muſt labour to beare all croſſes that fall on you, with patience. In the parable, Luk. 8. 15. They that receiue the ſeede in good ground, are they, which with an honeſt and good heart heare the word, and keepe it, and bring forth fruit. But how? with patience: Euery one that heares Gods word, and makes conſcience thereof, ſhall haue enemies to ſcoffe and mocke, and to afflict him; which the deuill ſets a worke, to hinder the growth of the word in his heart: but, muſt he therefore ceaſe to bring forth fruit? no, he muſt bring forth fruit with patience. And ſo muſt we do in the race of true religion: for croſſes, afflictions, and mockings will come; but theſe ſtormes muſt not turne vs backe: nay, the more they beare vpon vs, the more muſt we arme our ſelues with patience, by which we ſhall be able to beare them all. And thus much for this third duty; as alſo B of the exhortation vnto Conſtancie in the faith, after the example of all theſe godly Fathers.

TO THE RIGHT VVORSHIPFVLL AND VERTVOVS Ladie, the Ladie ELIZABETH MOUNTAGU of Hemington in North-hamptonſhire,

Grace and Peace.

IVST cauſe there was (Right Worſhipfull) as well in reſpect of the reuerend Author, whoſe reſt is now in glorie; as alſo of the godly Reader, whoſe good herein claimes ſpeciall ſtroke; that ſome refining hand ſhould recommend vnto the Church of God, a more perfect copie of this godly Expoſition, then the firſt Edition hereof did affoord: and yet no cauſe I finde, why your worthie Children, who no doubt for the Authors ſake, did more gratefully accept the former dedication, ſhould by me be depriued of their right: Nay rather as they in heart (I am perſwaded) did highly honour the Author, for his double labour in Chriſts vineyard; ſo doe I reioyce this recompence is returned for their loue, That with this worke, their memorie with poſteritie ſhall long endure. And ſith my paines herein yeelds me this right, to make choice of ſome, to whom I alſo may commend the patronage hereof, I preſume to preſent the ſame vnto your Ladiſhip. If this be any kindneſſe on my behalfe, I confeſſe it is farre ſhort of your deſert, and of my deſire: ſome others (I know) may challenge me herein, as vnmindfull of their loue; yet becauſe God may offer me opportunitie hereafter, to giue them good content this way, I will entreat their patience for this time, that I may ioyne the Mother with the Children, in this worke of loue, to affoord tuition to theſe godly labours of the dead. It fits you beſt (good Madam) in many reſpects; for neither will your Children complaine of your admiſsion into the ſocietie of their right, nor you eſteeme the leſſer hereof, becauſe of their claime hereto by former poſſeſsion. They are your owne, and you theirs; this comes vnto you all, as vnto one, accounting your vnited loue far greater ſafetie: and looke what grace it finds by your protection, like grace it yeelds by many a good inſtruction. Salomon ſaith, [a] Good vnderſtanding maketh acceptable (meaning to ſuch as feare God, for [b] fooles hate knowledge) how welcome then will this be vnto you, who [c] haue ſaide vnto Wiſedome, thou art my ſiſter, and doe eſteeme the words of her mouth, [d] The ioy and reioycing of your heart; ſith herein you ſhall finde on euery leafe, ſome pleaſant fruit of the tree of life: a taſt whereof I will here ſet before you, that you may iudge the better of the ſtore. When the Diſciples hearts were full of griefe for Chriſts departure then at hand, Philip ſaid vnto him, in the name of all, [e] Shew vs the father, and it ſufficeth. Loe [1] here, behold and you ſhall ſee, not the father alone, but with the father, the ſpirit of grace, and with them both the [2] Sonne of God, ſo liuely deſcribed to your view, that you may truely ſay of this knowledge (God ſanctifying the ſame vnto your Soule) [a] It is eternall life. When Chriſt would hearten his Diſciples for the great worke of their miniſterie, he doth it by the promiſe of his preſence, ſaying, [b] Behold I am with you alway. The euidence and fruite whereof, you ſhall [3] hereby ſo well perceiue, that hereupon I truſt, both you and many moe, will learne to ſay with Dauid in temptation, [c] I haue ſet the Lord before me alway; for he is at my right hād, therfore I ſhal not ſlide: And with Ieremie in affliction, [d] The Lord is with me like a mighty gyant, therfore my perſecutors, ſhalbe ouerthrown, & ſhall not preuaile.

RIght Worſhipfull, as the Patriarch Iacob had [a] twelue ſonnes, ſo Chriſt the Meſſiah had [b] twelue Diſciples: but as Ioſeph was beloued aboue [c] all thoſe ſonnes: ſo Iohn was beloued aboue [d] all the diſciples. Ioſeph was apparelled better then the reſt, and Iohn was inſpired far better then the reſt. [e] Had it not been for Ioſeph, Egypt had wanted her food temporall, and had it not beene for Iohn, the Church had wanted her food eternall. The one was [g] exiled, becauſe his father loued him, and the other exiled, becauſe his maſter loued him. The place of his exile was into the [h] Iſland of Pathmos, beeing before by Traian put into a veſſell of [i] ſcalding oyle. The things in this Booke were (I graunt) very darke to them that liued in the daies of Iohn, as the Prophecie of Daniel was to them who liued in the time of Daniel. But as that Prophecie being fulfilled, we can now tell what was foretold in it; ſo many things being fulfilled which were foretold in this booke, we may eaſily ſee what is meant by it; and the poſteritie to come ſhall better vnderſtand this booke then we doe, becauſe it may be all things are not yet fulfilled. Neither is this booke like the cities of the [u] Anakims, or the [*] tree of knowledge, which may not be reached to: for [x] bleſſed is he that readeth the words of this booke. But to come to theſe three Chapters written by Iohn ſurnamed the Diuine, and expounded by one a moſt worthie Diuine. The firſt Chapter is a Proeme or Preface to the booke: the two latter are Epiſtles dedicating this booke. The dedication is made to [y] ſeuen ſeuerall Churches, and by name to the Miniſters which are called Angels. In the word of God, Miniſters haue many excellent titles giuen them, (though now they are ſcarcely graced with titles) they are called [z] Prophets, [a] Seers, [b] Remembrancers, [c] Trumpets, [d] Watchmen, [e] Husbandmen, [f] Stewards, [g] Maydens, [h] Fiſhers, [i] Leaders, [k] Elders, [l] Salt, [m] Starres, [n] Angels, and [o] Shepheards. Prophets to teach, Seers to foretell, Remembrancers to put in minde, Trumpets to ſound, Watchmen to admoniſh, Husbandmen to plow vp, Stewards to diſtribute, Maydens to keepe pure the doctrine of truth, Fiſhers to catch men, Leaders to goe before, Elders to gouerne, Salt to ſeaſon, Starres to giue light, Angels to declare, and Shepheards to feede: to feede (I ſay) ſoundly by doctrine, liberally by charitie, and religiouſly by life. By doctrine: for Sacerdos ſine doctrina, eſt navis ſine velis, a Prieſt without knowledge, is a ſhippe without saile. By liberalitie: for [p] Nihil habet homo adeò diuinum quàm benefacere, Man is in nothing more like God, then in doing good. By life: cuius vita deſpicitur, eius oratio contemnitur: his words are not eſteemed, whoſe life is not approoued. And that it may be ſaid of them as it was of Origen, Quale habuit verbum, talem habuit vitam: as his words were, ſo were his workes. They muſt not be barren like mount [q] Gilboah, but [r] weaned as Samuel was, before they be offered vnto the Lord. They muſt be pure water if they will cleanſe others, and more then whetſtones, if they will ſharpen others. They muſt be in [s] integritie Abrahams, [t] in meekeneſſe Moſes, [u] in knowledge Aarons, [x] in paines Pauls, [y] and in praying Samuels: and remember, that as Auguſtine ſaid, Manus pauperum ſunt gazophylacium Chriſti, The hands of the poore are the treaſurie of Chriſt. I neede not ſpeake much of the dutie of a Miniſter: for euery one will teach him his dutie, that will not be ranged within any dutie himſelfe.

Theſe Churches were then like [i] Dauids Worthies, excellent aboue all the Churches of the world: but becauſe they loſt their firſt [k] loue, [l] Were not faithfull to the death, [m] maintained the doctrine of Balaam, [n] ſuffered women to teach, [o] bare a name onely to liue, [p] had but a little ſtrength, [q] were neither whot nor colde, and [r] repented not as they ſhould haue done; of all their ſinnes, they are reprehended by Iohn, threatned by Chriſt, and the Candleſticke of the Goſpell is now taken away from them. Iam ſeges eſt vbi Troia fuit: Now Mahomet rageth, where Meſsiah did raigne. Are they reprehended? let vs hearken: are they threatned? let vs feare: are they fallen? let vs labour to continue. From Iohns reprehenſion we ſee that (as one ſaid) hereof our Elders haue complained, hereof doe we complaine, and hereof they which liue after vs will complaine, that men waxe worſe; and liue not according to the doctrine of Gods word. From Chriſts threatning we ſee, that God is mercifull, [f] who firſt offereth peace before he fight againſt vs, that we beeing forewarned, might be forearmed. And by the wofull downefall of theſe ſeuen Churches, let [t] vs that ſtand take heede that we fall not: for if God ſpared not the [u] olde world who deſpiſed Noah, the Sodomites, who vexed Lot, Ieruſalem* which abuſed the Prophets, [x] Coloſſa, Hierapolis, and Laodicea, who reiected Paul, and theſe Aſian Churches, who did not growe in righteouſneſſe as they did in riches, how ſhall we eſcape [y] if we neglect ſo great ſaluation? and for this cauſe theſe Sermons are moſt worthie to be conſidered of in this preſent age. O then let vs now [z] conſider this ſeaſon: [a] redeeme the opportunitie, [b] not harden our hearts, but regard the time of our preſent viſitation. As the day openeth and ſhutteth with the Sunne, ſo ſaluation openeth and ſhutteth with the Goſpell, [c] whileſt it is called to day, let vs heare his voice: [d] He that laboureth in Summer is the ſonne of wiſedome; but he that ſleepeth in harueſt is the ſonne of confuſion.

All things in the world doe take their time, the bird to build her neaſt, the husbandman to ſowe his ſeede, the mariner to goe to ſea, the gardener to ſet his trees, the ſicke patient to take phyſicke, the cooke to ſeaſon meates, and the dreſſer of the vineyard to gather his fruite. It will be too late to build in Summer, to ſowe in harueſt, to goe to ſea when the ſhip is launched, to tranſplant trees when they are olde, to take phyſicke when we are dying, to ſeaſon meates when they are vnſauory, and when winter is come to gather fruit. The [a] fiue fooliſh virgines came too late, Diues [b] in hell repenteth too late, the time preſent is onely ours. Is the figge tree fruiteleſſe? it ſhall heare that ſentence, [c] Neuer fruite growe on thee any more. [d] Get thee then righteouſneſſe before thou come to iudgement, vſe Phyſick before thou be ſick, and whileſt thou mayeſt yet ſinne, ſhewe thy conuerſion, as the wiſe man exhorteth euery man. But alas, whereunto ſhall I liken this generation? We are like the Epheſians, we haue [e] loſt our firſt loue; or the Laodiceans, we are [f] neither hote nor colde: or the twilight, neither day nor night: or the Autumne, neither faire nor foule: or one ſicke of an ague, one day well, another ill: or a man in a Lethargie; neither aliue nor dead: or Hermaphroditus, neither male nor female: or to thoſe creatures called Αμφίβια, which liue in water or on land: or the Lioneſſe, which the oftener ſhe breedeth, the fewer cubs ſhe beareth: or the Mariner, who is onely good in a ſtorme: or the Marigold, that ſhutteth and openeth with the Sunne: or the Mermaides, which are halfe fleſh, halfe fiſh. I would to God we were either hote or colde: that as the hoteſt regions bring forth ſweeteſt ſpices, ſo moſt zealous people might be moſt fruitefull in good works: that as the Sunne in the heauen is ſwifteſt at her ſetting, ſo the ſonnes of God might be beſt at their ending. But is it ſo? no: the more we are taught, the more ignorant are many; and the older we are, the colder in Religion. We haue indeede many of vs, as it was ſade of Ariſtogiton, Martem, or rather religionem in lingua, religion in tongue: but when triall is made of vs, euery [g] Phocion can eſpie our halting: and then with [h] Archilocus we thinke it better clypeum abijcere, quam interiere, euen to caſt off all religion, then to vndergoe the leaſt diſgrace for religion.

throne of his father. And though the [p] ſonne of Iſhai cannot make vs Captaines of thouſands, yet that Sonne of Dauid will [q] make vs the ſonnes of God. That we may doe ſoe, we muſt beleeue the Goſpell, put on Chriſt Ieſus, and be renewed by repentance. The firſt is neceſſary, the ſecond comely, the third profitable. To come to the firſt; it is neceſſary we ſhould beleeue: for he that [r] beleeueth not, is condemned alreadie, he is condemned in the counſell of God, in the miniſterie of the word, and in his owne conſcience, and he ſhall be condemned in the day of iudgement; for [ſ] the wrath of God abideth vpon him. The more I conſider the fruites of faith, the more I ſee the neceſſitie of faith. [t] Thorough it we are ſaued: [u] by it we are iuſtified: [*] in it we liue. We are ſaued from Satan, iuſtified before God, and liue in the Church. In the Church? nay, by it we liue in heauen: for [x] he that beleeueth in the Sonne of God, hath euerlaſting life. Faith is that which [y] purifieth the heart, maketh the whole man to [z] runne the wayes of Gods commandements, [a] giueth entrance to grace, [b] acceſſe to God in praier, [c] made the Elders well reported of, and each Chriſtian to [d] ſtand to the profeſſion of Chriſt. It is that [e] hand by which we muſt apprehend Chriſt: that [f] ſhield by which we reſiſt all the fierie darts of the Deuill: and that [g] meanes by which we doe good to others. [h] By faith we receiue the ſpirit: are members of Chriſt: [k] we are riſen with him: [l] he dwelleth in our hearts: [m] we feede on him continually: reſiſt Sathan: [o] are the children of God: [p] and the word which we heare becommeth profitable. And what ſhall I ſay? faith is of ſuch a qualitie, that it [q] uniteth vs to Chriſt, [r] maketh vs certaine of our ſaluation, [ſ] bold in our profeſſion, miniſtreth [t] true ioy, [u] giueth temporall bleſſings, [*] ſanctifieth our gifts, and maketh vs refuſe the [x] pleaſures, of this preſent world. In a word, no ſinne can condemne him who hath this true faith, and no vertue can ſaue him who wanteth it.

To come to the ſecond, which is Chriſt, the obiect of faith. The moſt comely garment that euer we can weare, it is to be couered with the [y] robes of Chriſts righteouſneſſe: [z] Iacob was bleſſed by Eſaus garments; and we are bleſſed by Chriſts garments. What we ſee through a greene glaſſe, ſeemeth all to be greene: and what God ſeeth through Chriſt, it is all amiable. We muſt put on this apparell, not as the Church in the Canticles: [a] I haue put off my clothes, how ſhall I put them on againe? or as a gowne, that we caſt off when we come to our home: but we muſt ſo put him on, that we neuer put him off againe. We muſt put him on by imputation, imitation, infuſion, and profeſſion: by imputation of his righteouſneſſe, imitation of his vertues, infuſion of his ſpirit, and profeſſion of his name. Thus we muſt labour to get Chriſt: for what though a man could command the earth with Alexander, the [b] ſea with Moſes, the [c] fire with Eliah, and the [d] Sunne with Ioſuah? What though he were as rich as [e] Salomon, as wiſe as [f] Achitophel, as ſtrong as [g] Samſon, as ſwift as [h] Ahimaaz, as beautifull as [i] Abſolon, as fortunate as [k] Metellus, and deſcended as [l] Paul was of the bloud royall of Princes, yet hauing not Chriſt, he hath nothing. Yea, ſay a man had the abſtinence of Ariſtydes, the innocencie of Phocion, the holineſſe of Socrates, the almes deedes of Cimon, the moderation of Camillus, the honeſtie, iuſtice, and faithfulneſſe of both Catoes, all theſe out of Chriſt, were but [m] ſplendida peccata, and to be eſteemed as [n] dung, in regard of Chriſt. For haue him, and haue all things, want him, and want all things: he is in, at, and after death aduantage. I come to the laſt, it is profitable to repent: for if we [o] turne to the Lord, he will turne to vs: and that wee may turne, conſider his [p] mercies in forgiuing, his [q] benefits in giuing, his [r] patience in forbearing, and his [ſ] iudgements in puniſhing: [t] The word preached, [u] ſinnes committed, and that few ſhall be ſaued: [x] the ſhortneſſe of life, [y] the vncertaintie of life, [z] and the certaintie of death: the ioyes of Heauen, [b] the torments of Hell, the [c] comfort of the elect, and that elſe we can haue no [d] comfort in death: [e] pray we cannot, vnleſſe wee repent, and [f] periſh we ſhall, vnleſſe we repent: but bleſſed ſhall we bee if wee doe repent. But manum de tabula, Magiſter adeſt: this diſcourſe following will teach vs theſe things: and it am I bold to preſent to your Worſhips. Iohn ſent his Reuelation to many Churches; and I preſent his Epiſtles to many worthy perſonages: and to whome may I better preſent them then to you. Iohn was a Diſciple full of loue, and you are brethren full of loue. The Preacher of theſe Lectures was well knowne to many, but to none better then to many of you, eſpecially to thoſe who were in my time worthie members of that moſt worthy [g] Colledge with him. And the rather I doe it, that times to come may reioyce in the Lord, that from one honourable roote haue iſſued ſo many profitable branches to the Church. You are ſixe brethren as pillars of your houſe, there were three ſiſters as fruitfull vines of the ſame: one is not, but is with the Lord, and her I knew a Ladie of admirable vertues: the other two are, and long may they bee ſo. You are all brethren by nature of one venter, nation of one country, grace of one ſpirit, affection of one heart, fortune in great fauour, and of one hope by your holy behauiour. And [a] concerning brotherly loue, I neede not to write vnto you: for you are taught of God to loue one another. Your [b] Scilurus at his death neede not to teach you concord, by giuing to each of you a ſheafe of arrowes, which cannot well be broken whilſt they are conioyned: for you by your amitie make your ſelues inuincible. If [c] Chilo the Lacedemonian died for ioy to ſee one ſonne crowned at Olympus, and [d] Diagoras Rhodius did the like, when his three children got the garland at a wreſtling: and [e] Iacob ſo reioyced to heare of his ſonne Ioſeph, to be aduanced greatly in the kingdome of Egypt: how might that happy father of yours reioyce, to ſee at one time, one ſonne ſitting as high Sheriffe of the ſhire, another preaching before the Iudges of Aſſize, and the third pleading as Counſellor at the barre, and all the reſt of great expectation in the kingdome? Thus [f] wiſe ſonnes are a ioy to their parents, and all may [g] behold how good and comely a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in vnitie. Ariſtotle could ſay, that parents were not bleſſed, vnleſſe they were after there death bleſſed in their children. And ſurely it is no ſmall part of a fathers bleſſedneſſe, to ſee his children like to flouriſh when he is gone. Nay of all monuments that parents can leaue behind them, there is none (as one ſaith) like to a vertuous ſonne. But all parents are not to be bleſſed. [h] Adams two ſons could not agree in one field, [i] Abrahams in one houſe, [k] Iſacks in one wombe, [l] Dauids in one pallace, nor [m] two brethren in the diuiſion of an inheritance. And though concord amongſt brethren (eſpecially ſuch as diuide the inheritance) be very rare, yet doe you, euen in this, moſt comfortably agree. You are not as Simeon and Leui, Romulus and Remus, Eteocles and Polynices, Atreus and Thyeſtes, Æta and Perſeus: but as Caſtor and Pollux, Dauid and Ionathan, Ioſeph and Beniamin; and (as a true friend is deſcribed to be) [n] one ſoule in two bodies. It ſeemeth that as Agrippa the brother of Auguſtus was beholding to Saluſt for that one ſentence, Small things increaſe by concord, but periſh through diſcord: ſo you haue all learned the ſame leſſon, as being perſwaded, that as the members of a bodie beeing once diſmembred, they cannot poſſibly be ioined againe: ſo if naturall brethren be once vnnaturally diſioyned, no glue will conioyne them faſt again. It were infinite to ſhew examples of brotherly loue and hatred, [o] and others haue eaſed me of this paines. Now that good God, who hath brought you from one roote, placed you in one country, aduanced you to like credit, & giuen you one heart, giue you alſo one inheritance in the kingdome of heauen. Thus right worſhipfull, I am bold to ſpeak vnto you, and the world knoweth I ſpeake the truth, and the Lord knoweth I deſire not to flatter. Go on therefore I beſeech you, continue in loue, be ſetled in the truth, and labour to honour him who thus honoureth you. Bee not carried away with the [p] ſhewe of this world, but thinke religion the beſt nobilitie, and that as [q] Prudentius ſayd,

Generoſa Chriſti ſecta nobilitat viros,
Cui quiſquis ſeruit, ille verè eſt nobilis.
He noble is that comes of Chriſt his race:
Who ſerues this Lord, he ſurely is not baſe.

And this made Theodoſius more to thanke God, that hee was a Chriſtian, then a King; conſidering that he muſt looſe the one, he could not looſe the other. Now as to one of you I am bounden in particular, and by him, beeing a Miniſter, the deſpiſed Miniſterie is not a little graced: ſo for him I pray, that he may be an [a] Abraham to our Abimelech, a [b] Nathan to our Dauid, a [c] Iehoida to our Ioaſh, [d] an Ebedmelech to Ieremiah, an [e] Eliſha to the widow of this Prophet deceaſed, a light in the Court, a trumpet in the Church, and that [f] Ahaſhueroſh may long hold out his golden Scepter vnto him: that by his meanes [g] great men may not want ſuch as will tell them the truth: no [h] earthly Alexander accounted a ſonne of Iupiter, and that no man be more reſpected then a good[i] Paſtor: and that he may euer remember that ſaying of wiſe Salmon: [k] Hee that loueth pureneſſe of heart, for the grace of his lips, the King ſhall be his friend. His Cyrus will not be ſpoken to, verbis biſſinis in ſilken words, to his Alexander he needeth not ſpeake ἢ ἥκιστα ἢ ὡς ἥδιστα, either ſweet words, or no words. For if one Antiochus might bee ſurnamed Holy, and another good Prince called the Good King: much more may hee, whoſe religious knowledge ſurpaſſeth all the Princes that haue beene of this nation: and whoſe humilitie is ſuch, that he will haue his ſonne to remember[l] that he differeth not in ſtuffe, but in vſe from the reſt of his people, and that by Gods ordinance. I am the bolder for that one, to make choyce of all in the Dedication of this booke: no man knew, loued, conuerſed with, and reſpected this Authour more then he. Hee reſorted to him in his health, viſited him in ſickneſſe, and preached a learned Sermon for him at his death. Concerning this Author, as he ſaid of Carthage, I had rather bee ſilent, then ſay little, and his worthy labours doe ſpeake enough for him, by name, that his [m] Poſthume, dedicated to his excellent Maieſtie, by[n] an excellent Diuine. In a word therefore, whatſoeuer this man did, he deſired to profit others by it, he thought (as it is written[o] of Bernard in his life) that he was not his owne man, but deputed to the ſeruice of others. He was neuer idle, but as[p] Hierome reporteth of Ambroſe, and Bernard of himſelfe, he did either read, or meditate, or pray, or conferre, or counſell, or comfort, or write, or preach. And thus (as the[q] Embleme is of a faithfull Teacher) he like a wax candle, in giuing light to others, in a ſhort time extinguiſhed himſelfe. Yet in this ſhort time of his, what Art was he not maſter of? what vertue was he not endowed with? He was a complet Diuine, and hath his bleſſings in the Church, that no mans writings are read of all ſorts, and in all Countries with greater grace and profit then his. He was peaceable in the Church, patient of wrongs, and free from ambition. For as Ierome ſaid of Nepotian, Aurum calcans, ſchedulas conſectabatur: he regarded not his purſe, but followed his booke: and as Bernard ſaid, he liued in terra auri ſine auro, in a Kingdome of gold without gold. An excellent gift he had to define properly, diuide exactly, diſpute ſubtilly, anſwer directly, ſpeake pithily, and write iudicially: and how he preached, if theſe Sermons doe giue a teſtimonie, what witneſſe had they who often heard him themſelues? I haue publiſhed of his now two Diſcourſes, and I onely did it, that theſe his labours might not periſh: I haue no benefit by them, but exceeding great paines. And ſince I vnderſtand that his other labours are in the hands of his friends, to make benefit for his children; I will eaſe my ſelfe of the like labour, and be a meanes that they may haue the benefit of the future impreſſion of this booke: the which, how faithfully I haue publiſhed, I appeale to the godly and indifferent Reader, and I hope no honeſt minded man will be hired to caluminate it. Thus as one deſirous to bee ſeruiceable in my calling, profitable to the Church, not forgetfull of my friend, and to teſtifie the happineſſe of your houſe, which was in your fathers time, and is now (as it is ſaid of Aurelian the Emperours,) Referta piis, & Eccleſia Dei, repleniſhed with the godly, and a Church of God; and withall to leaue a monument of my dutie to you all, I haue as you ſee, publiſhed this expoſition of ſeuen Epiſtles vnder your eight names, nothing doubting but it will be as welcome to you, as by your countenance it may be profitable to the Church. The God of heauen giue you all that bleſſing of bleſſings, which (if Ierome ſay true) few men haue, that you may tranſire à deliciis ad delicias, go on from grace to grace, and bee a long time happie in this life, and for euer happie in the life to come. London: Saint Martins in the fields, from my worſhipfull friend Maiſter Oldiſworths houſe, by which familie (as Paul was by the houſe of Oneſiphorus) in the time of this late (and I wiſh I may ſay) the laſt viſitation, I haue receiued no ſmall refreſhing. March 12. 1604.

I Am not ignorant (good Reader) how vngratefull a thing it is, to deale by way of Cenſure or reformation, in thoſe things wherein others haue gone before; and many times for the ſmart that followeth, doe men beſhrow their owne fingers. Yet the warrant of a good calling will breed peace in his conſcience, that herein ſhall endeuour the obſeruance of theſe rules of Loue, to wit, [a] Iudge the beſt of that which is done ; and [b] referre his owne paines to the glory of God in the good of others: Hereto I aime in this ſecond Edition of this booke. For my calling to this worke, when mine accuſers ſtand forth, the executors of the dead ſhall anſwer for my diſcharge. And for mine indeauour to doe good; the ſmall gaine of this reuiſed worke, was truly returned to the right owners thereof: If thou therefore returne glory to God, for good receiued to thy ſoule, in this behalfe I haue my deſire. Here onely reſts the doubt, how this ſecond edition ſhould not he preiudiciall to his good eſtimation that publiſhed the former: I anſwer, well enough: For I hope he intended [c] the glorie of God in the good of his Church, and the credit of the reuerend Author of this worke. Now if any addition be brought hereunto, his intent is furthered, and wherein then can he be grieued? If one man ſhould helpe poore Orphanes to ſome lands or liuing, he would not thinke himſelfe wronged by another, that ſhould enlarge their iuſt claimes, or ſettle their poſſeſſion in a better tenure: ſo I truſt it fareth in this worke; where thou ſhalt find vpon thy diligent view, in ſome doubtfull [d] things the Authors meaning truly cleared, his method rectified, many repetitions omitted, and the matter (ſpecially towards the latter ende) ſomewhat enlarged. If any thing be diſſonant to the Authors iudgement in his liue-workes (which I hope thou ſhalt not perceiue) rather charge the fault on me through ignorance, or miſunderſtanding, then entertaine in thy heart the leaſt conceit of wauering leuitie in ſo godly, learned, and iudicious a Diuine, who hath ſo well deſerued of thy loue, if thou loue the truth. Thus crauing thy fauourable acceptance of my helping hand, to doe thee good, I ende with him, That is the beginning, and the ende: Let him that hath an eare heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

A GODLY AND LEARNED EXPOSITION OF THE three firſt Chapters of the REVELATION.

REVELAT. I. 1.

The Revelation of Ieſus Chriſt, which God gaue vnto him, to ſhew vnto his ſeruants things which muſt ſhortly be done: which he ſent, and ſhewed by his Angel vnto his ſeruant Iohn.

A BEfore we come to the words, wherein is contained ſingular matter fitte for this time and age, this queſtion muſt be handled; Whether this Booke of the Reuelation be Canonicall Scripture: For ſome haue heretofore, as alſo in our time, called the authoritie of it in queſtion. But we are without all doubt, to reſolue our ſelues that it is Canonicall Scripture, of equall authoritie with the reſt of Gods Booke. Our reaſons be theſe: Firſt, the doctrine contained in this booke is Apoſtolicall, as any ſhall perceiue which ſeriouſly reads the ſame. Secondly, the ſtyle of this booke is Apoſtolicall, that is, plaine, ſimple, and eaſie, if we conſider that the matter thereof is Propheticall. Thirdly, this booke hath beene approoued and receiued for Canonicall, by the common conſent of Gods Church in all ages ſince the daies of Iohn, and was neuer refuſed of any whole Church, but onely of ſome priuate men. Fourthly, the things foretold in this booke, came to paſſe as they were foretold: as among the reſt (in one for all) may appeare by the Propheſie of the two beaſts; whereof one came out of the Sea, the other out of the earth, Chap. 13. the one prefigured the Romane Empire, the other the Hereticall Apoſtolicall Church of Rome: both which in all things are come to paſſe in theſe latter ages anſwerable to the Propheſie.

The contrarie reaſons brought to improoue the authoritie of this booke, are of no moment. 1. Reaſon. Iohn nameth himſelfe ſundrie times in this Booke; whereas in penning the Goſpel he did not once mention his owne name, though he had iuſt occaſion ſo to doe: therefore, it was not penned by Iohn, but by ſome other, and publiſhed afterward in Iohns name.

Anſw. The reaſon is not good: for there is great difference betweene an hiſtorie and a Propheſie. The Goſpel of Iohn is an hiſtorie of Chriſt: now there is no neceſſarie reaſon, why one man penning the hiſtorie of an other, ſhould name himſelfe. But this booke of the Reuelation is a Propheſie, in penning whereof, it is more requiſite the Prophet ſhould put to B his owne name; ſo did the former Prophets: Ieremie mentioneth his name in his booke at leaſt an hundred times, ſo doth Iſai, and Daniel almoſt in euery chapter. Then ſeeing they doe it ſo often, it is no maruell if Saint Iohn repeat his name fiue ſundrie times in this whole booke.

2. They obiect, that his ſtyle in this booke is not the ſame with that he vſed in the penning of the Goſpel. Anſ. The difference of the ſtyle ariſeth from the difference of the matter, ſeeing there he writes an hiſtory, here he pennes a Propheſie. Againe, he writes not his owne words, but thoſe which he receiued from Chriſt by particular reuelation.

3. They ſay, this booke hath beene reiected in diuers ages, as not Canonicall. Anſ. It cannot be prooued that it was euer refuſed of any whole Church, but of ſome particular men. Now the diſallowing of any priuate man, cannot make a whole booke to be reiected: for then the Epiſtles to the Hebrews, of Iames, and of Iohn, ſhould not be Canonicall; which yet be receiued of all Churches for the pure word of God.

Now come to the words, The Reuelation of Ieſus Chriſt, which God gaue vnto him, &c. Theſe three firſt chapters conſiſt of two parts: A Preface, and a Viſion. The Preface is an entrance to the Viſion, contained in the beginning of the firſt Chapter, from the firſt verſe to the ninth. The Viſion it ſelfe is ſet down in the reſt of theſe three Chapters. The Preface hath two parts: Firſt, the title of the booke: Secondly, the inſcription thereof. The title in the three firſt verſes. The inſcription from the fourth to the ninth verſe. The title in theſe words, The Reuelation of Ieſus Chriſt, &c. A Reuelation is nothing elſe but a manifeſtation, or diſcouery of things ſecret in regard of men, for the common good of the Church: and ſo this word is taken in this place.

Reuelations from God in Scripture, were ſhewed three wayes: Firſt, by dreames: Secondly, by viſion: Thirdly, by created voice of God face to face, as we may ſee, Num. 12.6.8. Now this was not by dreame, nor by viſion, or voice alone; but is a mixt Reuelation, receiued partly by viſion, and partly by voice vttered in the viſion from the Lord.

In the three firſt verſes, this Reuelation is deſcribed by ſeuen arguments: Firſt, by the author: Secondly, the ende: Thirdly, the perſons to whom it was directed: Fourthly, the matter; Fiftly, the inſtruments: Sixtly, the manner of deliuering it: Seuenthly, the fruit of the Reuelation. Firſt, the Author is Ieſus Chriſt: It comes from him and it is called his Reuelation in theſe reſpects: Firſt, not to exclude the Father, and the holy Ghoſt, but to ſhewe the ſpeciall office of Chriſt, the ſecond perſon in Trinitie; which is, to reueale, to publiſh, and to manifeſt the wil of God the Father to his Church: and for this cauſe he is called the [a] Angel of the Couenant, the [b] doctor of the Church, the [c] wiſedome of the father, and the [d] word of God.

Secondly, it is called the Reuelation of Ieſus Chriſt, to teach vs to put difference betweene this, and all Satanicall Reuelations: For as God hath his true Reuelations, ſo Satan (who herein may be called Gods ape) hath his counterfeit viſions, and deliuers them in ſhewe like to Gods, but they differ much: Firſt, the Deuils Reuelations be for the moſt part ambiguous, doubtfull, and vncertaine in ſpeech and phraſe, ſo as a man cannot tel which way to take them: But the Reuelations which come from Chriſt, the author of truth, who knoweth all things, and the reaſons of them, are certaine and in plaine tearmes deliuered. Secondly, the Deuill A ſheweth his Viſions to none but to the wicked, and bad men that be his inſtruments: But the Lord chuſeth the godly which feare his name, and to them he reuealeth his ſecrets, as to Iohn in this place. Thirdly, the deuils Reuelations euermore tend to ſet vp, and vphold hereſie, wickedneſſe, Apoſtacie, and Idolatry, Deut. 13. 1,2. but theſe that come from God ſerue to erect and maintaine truth, according to godlines; euen pure Apoſtolicall doctrine, and the ſincere worſhip of God.

Thirdly, it is called the Reuelation of Chriſt, to ſhew vnto vs his ſpeciall kingly office in heauen: for beeing aſcended, and exalted to the throne of Maieſtie, he ſitteth at the right hand of his Father, farre aboue all principalitie and B power, might and domination; and there doth direct, rule, and gouerne his Church vpon earth according to the good pleaſure of his will: for all theſe Viſions ſerue to direct his Church in their obedience to his command.

The vſe.

Whereas Chriſt Ieſus is author of this Reuelation; and after his aſcention, and exaltation, giues the ſame vnto his Church: We may obſerue his conſtant care ouer his Church in this laſt age of the world. Before his incarnation, euen from the beginning, he gaue vnto his people ſuch doctrine of faith and manners, as was needefull for their ſaluation, and ſtill from time to time reuealed ſuch propheſies of things to come, as were meete for them to know.

C And now behold the continuance, or rather the encreaſe of this his care, in the newe Teſtament: for beſide the perfection of the former propheſies, and the full manifeſtation of his bleſſed will by his Euangeliſts and Apoſtles, for all things needefull to be beleeued, and done, vnto eternall life: Loe here is added the Reuelation of this worthie Propheſie concerning things to come, for the great good and comfort of his children to the ende of the world.

Which God gaue vnto him. Theſe words be added to ſhewe how this became the Reuelation of Chriſt: namely, by the gift of God, that is, of God the Father the firſt perſon in Trinitie: for this is a rule to be obſerued, That where the D title God, in any ſentence of Scripture, is oppoſed to Chriſt, there it importeth the firſt perſon the Father: though this be alſo true, That ſundry times in Scripture, the Father alone is called God, without any addition of the other perſons; becauſe he is the firſt in regard of order, and the fountaine of the deitie; for the ſonne receiueth the Godhead by communication from the father, & the holy Ghoſt receiueth it from them both; but the Father hath his godhead of himſelfe, and receiueth it not by communication from any other.

Here ſome will ſay, this ſeemes ſtrange, that any thing ſhould be giuen to Chriſt, ſeeing he is God, and hath all things of himſelfe. Anſw. We muſt conceiue of Chriſt two wayes; firſt, as God, ſecondly, as Mediator, and head of the Church. As Chriſt is God, the Father

[b] Matt 23.8.
[c] 1.Cor.1.24

ther giueth him nothing: for ſo he is of himſelfe the ſame with the father, and hath all things belonging vnto him that the father hath (excepting perſonall properties) and is no way inferiour to the father, neither receiueth any thing from him, but giueth all things as well as the father doth. But yet as Chriſt is Mediator, he is not God ſimply, but God incarnate, or God made man: and ſo is ſaide to receiue of his father, in reſpect of his manhood, as himſelfe confeſſeth, All power is giuen to me, Matth. 28. 18. And Paul ſaith, God gaue him a name aboue all names, Philip. 2. 9. He receiued of his father the promiſe of the holy Ghoſt, ſaith Peter, Acts 2. 33. And, God made him both Lord and Chriſt, v. 36. and ſo God gaue him this Reuelation in this place.

If it be ſaid, this makes Chriſt inferiour to his father, for the receiuer is vſually inferiour to the giuer. Anſw. As Chriſt is God, he is equall with the father, but as he is Mediator, God incarnate, and made man: he is inferiour: and receiueth of him. So much himſelf confeſſeth, My father which gaue them me, is greater then all, Iohn 10. 29. And in the ſame reſpect, Paul calleth God the Father, The head of Chriſt, 1. Cor. 11. 6. And as Chriſt now ſitteth at the right hand of his father, beeing Mediator, and ruler of his Church, he is inferiour to his father, and receiueth his kingdome from his father, which he muſt giue vp at the laſt day, 1. Cor 15. 24.

And here we muſt conſider in what manner God giues his Reuelation to his ſonne. Firſt, therefore Chriſt Ieſus, as he is mediator, is made Lord of this reuelation: ſo as he may ſay, it is his owne right, and royaltie, beeing a part of that Law, whereby his Church is now gouerned, whereof he is Lord and King. Againe, this Reuelation was reueled vnto Chriſt as he is man, before it was euer known to any creature, man, or Angell, by reaſon of the vnion of his manhood, with the Godhead.

In this which hath beene ſaid, we may obſerue, that this booke of the Reuelation is Chriſt his right, and belongeth vnto him as his owne royaltie and priuiledge. For as the lawes in any kingdome belong to the Prince thereof, and are called his lawes alone, and no mans elſe: So this booke, beeing a part of that law whereby Chriſt gouerneth his Church, is his royaltie alone, for God gaue it him, and he hath by his Angel ſent it to his Church. And that which is here ſaid of this booke, muſt be vnderſtood proportionally of all other bookes of holy Scripture, Chriſt is made Lord of all, and they are al of them his royalties and poſſeſſions. And from hence will follow neceſſarily; Firſt, That no man in the world hath authoritie aboue this booke, or any other part of Canonicall Scripture: Indeede Monarchs and Princes haue great authority and preheminence in their dominions ouer all perſons, and ouer all cauſes of men: but in the Church they with all others owe homage vnto Chriſt: there he hath the Canonicall Scriptures to be his lawes, whereto euery one muſt ſubiect himſelfe. The diſpenſation of the word, and the adminiſtration of the Sacraments, be his royal ordinances, ouer which none may dare to claime rule or authoritie; for ſo ſhould the Scriptures haue beene giuen vnto them for their prerogatiues, as they were to Chriſt; but God gaue them to him alone, and he diſpoſeth thereof, as pleaſeth him. And therefore the Pope in taking vpon him to diſpence with the word, and to mangle the Sacraments, doth herein ſteppe into the roome of Chriſt, and ſo declare himſelfe to be that man of ſinne, by ſeeking to rob him of that princely royaltie which belongs to him alone.

Secondly, that the ſoueraigne power and authoritie of expounding Scripture, belongeth to Chriſt alone, and to none other with him. True it is, that man hath a miniſterie committed vnto him, by vertue whereof he may expound Scripture by Scripture: but men haue no power of themſelues, to determine of the proper ſenſe of Scripture. And therefore the Popiſh practiſe in giuing to the Church abſolute authoritie, to determine of the ſenſe of Scripture, of themſelues without Scripture, is flat robberie againſt Chriſt: for therein they giue vnto men that ſoueraigne power which is proper to Chriſt.

Thirdly, herein we obſerue the excellencie of this booke, and of the whole Scripture of God: for all of it is the gift of the Father to the Sonne, and of the Sonne vnto his Church. The like cannot be ſaide of any writings of men whatſoeuer, be they neuer ſo excellent: herein the Scriptures ſurpaſſe them all. Whereby we are taught to eſteeme more reuerently of the Scriptures of God, then of all the writings of men in the world. Here then behold the ſinne of this age, which more delighteth to ſpeake and heare the ſayings of men in the publike miniſterie, then the glorious word of the euerliuing God. Whereas the writings of men be full of darkeneſſe, of errour, and deceit: but the word of God is moſt holy and pure, and euery way perfect, proceeding wholly from the father of lights vnto his beloued Sonne, who hath faithfully diſpenſed the ſame, for the good of his Church.

To ſhew his ſeruants things that muſt ſhortly be done. Theſe words contain the ſecond, third, and fourth Arguments, whereby this Reuelation is deſcribed, viz. the ende of it, the perſons to whome it muſt be ſhewed, and the matter which it containeth.

Arg. II. The ende of this Reuelation is, To ſhew, that is, to make knowne, and manifeſt things to come, for the good of the whol church. Whence we may obſerue, that the Papiſts erre exceedingly in debarring lay people (as they call thẽ) from the reading of the Scripture: for the ende of this booke is, To make manifeſt to Gods ſeruants things to come. And who are Gods ſeruants? Are the Clergie onely, and not lay people alſo? God forbid: the lay man is Chriſt his ſeruant, as well as one of the Clergie. And therefore it is Gods will, that he ſhould learne to know and vnderſtand this booke, like one of his ſeruants. And here conſider, that if this booke of Scripture, which is hard and difficult, muſt be learned of the lay man, then much more muſt he ſearch into all other bookes of God, which be more plaine and eaſie, as the hiſtories of the Goſpell, Epiſtles, &c.

Arg. III. The perſons to whom it muſt be ſhewed; viz. The ſeruants of Chriſt. This Reuelation was not giuen of God for all men indefinitely, but for all his ſeruants, that is, ſuch alone as repent of their ſinnes, and truely beleeue in Chriſt for the pardon of them, and ſhew forth the ſame by new obediẽce. So he teacheth elſewhere: The ſecret of the Lord is with them that feare him, and his couenant to giue them vnderſtanding, Pſal. 25. 14. The Lord will reueale his ſecret to his ſeruants the Prophets, Amos 3. 7. And, God will not keepe backe from Abraham the thing he was to do vnto Sodome and Gomorrah, becauſe he knewe Abraham would doe his will, and teach his familie after him, Geneſ. 18. verſ. 17. 19. The conſideration whereof ſhould admoniſh vs not to content our ſelues with the bare hearing of the word and outward participatiõ of the ſacraments: but to labour principally to become Gods ſeruants, and to ſhewe the ſame by the practiſe of that which we heare. Hereby ſhall wee receiue inſtruction from the Lord, and growe in knowledge daily more and more: our vnderſtanding ſhall more eaſily conceiue the will of God, for they that will doe the will of his father, ſhall know his doctrine, Iohn 7. 17 Here then is the cauſe why moſt hearers after long teaching profit little, but remaine as blinde and ignorant as euer they were, euen their owne impietie; they liue in their ſinnes, and labour not to become Gods ſeruants.

Secondly, in this argument we may obſerue, that Chriſt Ieſus is true God: for here he is made the head of the Church; euery true beleeuer is his ſeruant, and he his Lord: the Angels of the Churches be his angels, as after we ſhall ſee: which prerogatiue none can haue, but he that is true, and very God.

Thirdly, in this Argument are thoſe confuted, which holde, that God would haue all to be ſaued, and calls all men without exception. For if he called all effectually, then he would offer the meanes to all: to wit, his holy word, that ſo they might be called to the ſtate of grace. This he doth not: for as we ſee, this booke is giuen not to all, but to his ſeruants: and that which is ſaid of this booke, is true of the whole ſcripture. The Lord ſhewes his word (ſaith) Dauid not to all the world, but to Iacob, that is, his people with whom he made a couenant, Pſal. 147. 19, 20.

The fourth Argument whereby this Reuelation is deſcribed, is the matter thereof, viz. things that muſt ſhortly be done; that is, things A to come. Whereby in generall we may obſerue a difference of this booke from the reſt of holy Scripture, which treats of things preſent, and paſt: this beeing a propheſie of things to come.

The matter of this booke is deſcribed by two Arguments: firſt, by the neceſſity of theſe things to come, They muſt be done: ſecondly, by the circumſtance of time when, ſhortly, or quickly.

For the neceſſitie of theſe things, they be ſuch, as muſt needes be done. So ſpeaketh the holy Ghoſt elſewhere of ſundry things to come: of offences, It muſt needes be that offences ſhould come, Mat. 18. 7, Of hereſies: There muſt be hereſies in the Church, 1. Cor. 11. 19. And of afflictions: Through manifolde afflictions we muſt enter into the kingdome of heauen, Acts B 14. 22. And, They that will liue godly in Chriſt Ieſus, muſt ſuffer perſecutions, 2. Tim. 3. 12. From whence I gather, That things which come to paſſe concerning Gods Church, and the enemies therof, doe come to paſſe neceſſarily. This doctrine muſt be well obſerued: for though it be the truth of God, yet the reaſon of man will not agree vnto it: for ſome will ſay, If all things come to paſſe neceſſarily, then in their actions and proceedings men haue no free will: for neceſſitie and libertie of will cannot ſtand together. Anſw. They may: indeed conſtraint and mans free will cannot ſtand together, but mans will and vnchangeable neceſſitie may well accord: C As I ſhewe thus; In God there is a moſt abſolute freedome of will, yet he doth many things of neceſſitie: as he willeth that which is good neceſſarily (for he cannot poſſibly will that which is euill) and yet he willeth the ſame moſt freely. So Chriſt died neceſſarily, he could not but die, if we conſider the counſell of God, and yet he died moſt freely; For he laid downe his life of himſelfe, and no man tooke it from him, Iohn 10. 18.

It will be ſaid againe, if things come to paſſe by neceſſitie, then it is in vaine to vſe any means for the effecting of them, for Gods will muſt be done, doe we what we will. Anſw. This is mans corrupt reaſon: theſe men muſt conſider, that as God hath appointed what things muſt come to D paſſe; ſo he hath appointed the means how they ſhall be effected; and ſeeing the Lord hath appointed as well the meanes, as the ende, we ſhould by this neceſſitie rather be induced to vſe the meanes, then any way mooued to neglect the ſame. To make this more plaine, we muſt knowe there is a double neceſſitie: one is abſolute; another in part. I call that abſolute neceſſity, which cannot be otherwiſe poſſibly: as that God liueth, and cannot die, is omnipotent, infinite, &c. Neceſſitie in part is, when any thing done is neceſſarie onely, becauſe it depends on neceſſarie cauſes: as fire to burne is neceſſary, in regard of that order which God hath ſet in nature by creation: yet this neceſſitie is not abſolute; for fire would not burne, if God ſhould pleaſe to change that order ſet in nature, as he did when the three children were caſt into the hot fierie ouen, Dani 3. 27. Now, whereas we ſay, Things to come muſt neceſſarily be done, it muſt be vnderſtood of neceſſitie in part, and not abſolute: for in themſelues they be changeable and contingent, and neceſſarie onely in regard of Gods decree appointing them, which is vnchangeable: in regard whereof all things to come are neceſſarie. And yet we may not thinke, that the vnchangeableneſſe of Gods decree doth take away freedome from mans will, it onely inclines the ſame to one part: and ſo diſpoſeth, that man ſhould freely will that to be, which God eternally hath decreed.

The ſecond thing whereby the matter of this booke is ſet out vnto vs, is the circumſtance of time when theſe things muſt be done, Shortly, muſt be well obſerued: and howſoeuer ſome things foretolde were not to be done till many hundred yeares after, which ſpace of time might ſeeme very long, yet in two reſpects it is but ſhort. Firſt, in regard of God, to whom a thouſand yeares are but as one day, 2. Pet. 3. 8. Secondly, in regard of men, to whom a hundred or two hundred yeares ſeeme but a ſhort time when once they be expired, though before they ſeemed long.

This circumſtance of time is ſet downe for two cauſes. Firſt, to terrifie all carnall and careleſſe men: for this booke foretelleth iudgements, plagues, and deſtruction for the enemies of Gods Church, which muſt ſhortly come vpon them; which is a thing worthie our carefull conſideration in this ſecure age of the world, wherein men bleſſe themſelues in their ſinnes, without feare of Gods iudgements, and ſay they ſhall haue peace, though they walke after the ſtubborneneſſe of their owne hearts, putting farre from them the euill day; ſaying, ſpare thy ſelfe, this ſhall not come vnto thee. But ſhall the Lyon roare, and the beaſts not tremble? Yet the Lord threateneth his iudgements, but men will not repent. Well, let vs conſider this, whether we be young or old, high or low, that Gods iudgements are ſhortly to come: and let this be a motiue to raiſe vs out of the ſleepe of ſinne, and of ſecuritie. That which Peter ſaid of falſe teachers, is alſo true of all impenitēt ſinners, vnleſſe they preuent the ſame by ſpeedie and vnfained repentance. Their iudgement long agoe is not farre off, and their damnation ſleepeth not, 2. Pet. 2. 3.

Secondly, this circumſtance of time ſerueth greatly to comfort the ſeruants of Chriſt, and to furniſh them with all patience, and long ſuffering vnder any aduerſitie, or diſtreſſe that may befall them in bodie or minde, or both. Indeede, many are brought to impatience and diſtruſt by afflictions and croſſes: But the child of God in ſuch a caſe muſt call to minde what the holy Ghoſt hath here ſet down concerning the propheſies of this booke, which foretell deliuerance for Gods Church, and for euery member thereof: namely, That they muſt ſhortly be brought to paſſe: yet a very little while, and he A that commeth for their deliuerance will come and will not tarrie, Heb. 10. 37.

Thus much for the matter of this Reuelation: now follow the Inſtruments whereby the Lord doth conuey the ſame vnto his Church, which is the fift argument whereby he is deſcribed, in theſe words: Which he ſent and ſhewed by his Angel to his ſeruant Iohn. Where two points muſt be obſerued, firſt the action of Chriſt, which is the ground of their imployment: ſecondly, the perſons imployed therein as his inſtruments. For the firſt: Chriſt ſent and ſhewed this Reuelation. This action of Chriſt is noted by the holy Ghoſt for two ſpeciall cauſes; firſt, to ſhew that S. Iohn did not pen and publiſh this booke raſhly, but by calling and warrant B from Chriſt. This teacheth vs what muſt be our behauiour in all our actions whatſoeuer we take in hand: we muſt looke we haue warrant from God for the doing of the ſame, by vertue of our calling, and without this we ſhould not dare to enterpriſe any thing.

If this dutie were practiſed, there would be more conſcience of the ſeruice and worſhip of God, and more care of iuſt dealing with men, then there is in the affaires of this life.

Secondly, this action of Chriſt is noted to get more reuerent acceptance, and greater authoritie to this booke: for which cauſe alſo it was ſent by an holy Angel. If an earthly Prince ſhould write his letter to his ſubiect, and withall ſend it by one of his guard, no doubt the C ſubiect would receiue it moſt reuerently. Behold this booke is the Epiſtle and letter of Ieſus Chriſt, ſent by his Angell for the benefit of his Church. What reuerence therefore, and acceptation ought this to finde? ſurely a thouſand folde more with euery one, then the writing of any earthly Prince whatſoeuer.

The ſecond point to be obſerued, is the perſons whom Chriſt imployeth about this Reuelation, and they be two. An holy Angel, and S. Iohn. For the firſt, It hath pleaſed God in all ages to vſe the miniſterie of Angels, as a meanes whereby he would conuay the knowledg of his will vnto his Church. The law in mount Sinai D was giuen to Moyſes by the miniſterie of an Angel, Act. 7. 38. Gal. 3. 19. And Daniel receiued the expoſition of ſundry dreames and viſions by an Angell, Dan. 8. 19. and 9. 21. and 10. 14. And the ſeuen viſions which containe the ſubſtance of this booke, were ſhewed to Iohn by an holy Angel. But here we muſt take heed, that we doe not like the Papiſts ground hereupon the inuocation of Angells, becauſe they be about vs, and bring vnto vs particular meſſages from the Lord: for before we may pray vnto them, we muſt haue from God a particular commaundement ſo to doe, and alſo a promiſe to be heard in that we aſke, or elſe our prayer is not of faith: but the whole Scripture affoords no word of command, or promiſe for any ſuch action, and therefore we cannot doe it without ſinne.

The ſecond inſtrument here imployed by Chriſt, is Iohn. This Iohn was ſonne to Zebedeus, and ſo kinſman to Chriſt; a bleſſed Apoſtle, and Euangeliſt, which penned one of the Goſpels, and the three Epiſtles which beare his name. This was that Diſciple whom Ieſus loued. And to procure the more credit and reuerence to this booke, he deſcribeth himſelfe by two arguments: Firſt, by a propertie, calling himſelfe Chriſt his ſeruant: Secondly, by an effect, or action, *in bearing record to Gods word, verſ.*2.

For the firſt, note that Iohn doth not cal himſelfe that Diſciple whom Ieſus loued, nor the kinſman of Chriſt, which he might haue done, being allied vnto him (for Iohns mother was ſiſter to Ioſeph Chriſts ſuppoſed father, and coſin german to the virgin Mary:) Iohn had learned of Chriſt himſelfe, that the hearers, and doer's of the will of his father, were eſteemed more deere and neere vnto him, then any bond of outward alliance could poſſibly make them. Matt. 12. 50. Luk. 11. 28. But he calls himſelfe Chriſts ſeruant, hauing yeelded vp himſelfe to do his will: for herein ſtands the dignitie of a Chriſtian, to doe ſeruice vnto Chriſt. The bleſſed virgin had neuer found ſuch fauour with God to haue beene Chriſts mother, if ſhe had not withall become Chriſts ſeruant: She bare him in her heart by faith, as well as in her wombe by conception, or elſe ſhe had neuer beene ſaued by him. Hence we learne, that outward dignities, as blood royall, noble parentage, and ſuch like, will nothing further a mans ſaluation: he that would be acceptable vnto Chriſt, muſt become his ſeruant, by beleeuing his word, and doing his will, hauing caſt off the olde man, which is corrupt, and put on the newe man, which after God is created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. So Paul ſaith, Circumciſion is nothing, and vncircumciſion is nothing, but keeping the commandements of God, 1. Cor. 7. 19. and henceforth know I no man after the fleſh, but if any man be in Chriſt, he is a newe creature, 2. Cor. 5. 16, 17.

Againe, conſider in what regard Iohn is here called a ſeruant of Chriſt: not onely for that he beleeued in Chriſt, and obeyed his will, as all true Chriſtians doe; but more ſpecially becauſe he was an Apoſtle, and did ſeruice vnto Chriſt in the worke of his miniſterie, which was his particular calling. So Paul writing to the Romans, calleth himſelfe an Apoſtle and ſeruant of Chriſt: Cap. 1 1. And he rendreth a reaſon thereof, ver. 9. Becauſe he did ſeruice vnto him in preaching the Goſpel. Hence we are taught, that we muſt not onely ſhew our ſelues Chriſts ſeruants in our generall calling of Chriſtianitie: but eſpecially in our particular callings and offices, after the example of Chriſts beſſed Apoſtles. It is a good thing to profeſſe ſeruice vnto Chriſt, by hearing his word, receiuing his Sacraments, and keeping his Sabbaths: but vnles therewithall we ſhewe the power of godlines A in our particular callings, our outward profeſſion is flat hypocriſie. This magiſtrates, miniſters, husband, wife, parents, children, maſters, ſeruants, buyer, ſellor, and euery one in his lawfull calling ſhould carefully obſerue: for vnleſſe in the particular duties of their ſpecial callings, (as the magiſtrate in the duties of a magiſtrate, &c.) they doe ſeruice vnto Chriſt, their publike duties in religion ſhall neuer commend them vnto God, be it neuer ſo glorious, Mic. 6. 6, 7, 8.

V. 2. Which bare record of the word of God, and of the B teſtimonie of Jeſus Chriſt, and of the things that he ſaw.

Here is the ſecond argument whereby Iohn deſcribeth himſelfe; namely, by this action, or effect, in bearing record to the word of God, for partly by writing the Goſpell, and partly by preaching, he bare witneſſe, and teſtified that the word of God was true. And becauſe the word of God hath diuers parts, the Law and the Goſpell; he ſhewes in the next words, that he meanes eſpecially the Goſpell, adding, and of the teſtimony of Ieſus Chriſt, that is, of thoſe things which Ieſus ſayd and did. And that no man might call into queſtion the truth of his teſtimony, he profeſſeth himſelfe to haue beene C an eye witneſſe of all thoſe things whereof he bare record, ſaying, and of all thoſe things which he ſaw. And here he alledgeth his teſtimonie to the Goſpell, to prooue himſelfe a faithfull penman of this booke, that ſo it might haue more reuerence: for he which was faithfull in penning the Goſpell of Chriſt, the ſame is alſo faithfull in penning this Propheſie of the Church.

In this teſtimonie we may obſerue, that the doctrine of Gods word is an infallible marke whereby to know the true Prophet of God, and alſo to diſtinguiſh him from all falſe Prophets. God foretold his people, that falſe Prophets ſhould come among them for their triall, Deut. 13. But how ſhall they diſcerne them? ſurely by their doctrine: for though they ſhew D wonders, yet if their doctrine tend to drawe men from the true God to Idolatrie, they are falſe Prophets, and ſhould die. When our Sauiour Chriſt was asked By what authoritie he did thoſe things, Luk. 20. 2. 3. he approoued his authoritie by the teſtimonie of Iohn, (who bare witneſſe of him, Iohn 1. 15.) and confirmed the calling of Iohn by the truth of his doctrine, which (themſelues beeing witneſſes) was from heauen, Luke 20. verſe 4, 5.

Hereby then we ſee the errour of the Papiſts, who teach, That the onely note of a true Prophet, is to confirme his doctrine by a miracle, and that he which cannot doe ſo, is a falſe Prophet. But this note of difference is not true: for falſe Prophets may confirme their lying vanities by ſignes and wonders, as we may ſee, Deut. 13.

A And ſo doth Antichriſt, 2. *Theſſ.*3.9.

The ſixt argument by which this Reuelation is deſcribed, is the order and manner of propounding it to the Church, and it ſtands in foure degrees: Firſt, God the Father giueth it to Chriſt the mediator, and head of the Church. Secondly, Chriſt giueth it to an Angell. Thirdly, the Angel conuaies it to Iohn the Apoſtle. Fourthly, Iohn directed and aſſiſted by the holy Ghoſt, deliuereth it to the Churches.

Now as this particular booke was, ſo no doubt all other holy Scriptures were conueyed to the Church: from whence we may obſerue; Firſt, the conſtant loue of God to his children, by this his ſpeciall care in propounding and deliuering his will and word to his Church. B

Secondly, that this booke, and ſo all other parts of holy Scripture, are in their kind moſt perfect and excellent.

Thirdly, that the Church of Rome blaſphemeth in calling the written word of God a dead letter, and dumbe Iudge, matching generall Councells with it for authorities; and teaching, that the vniuerſal conſent of the Church is aboue Scripture, for interpretation, and giues life and ſenſe thereto; which otherwiſe of it ſelfe were but an inckie letter and dumbe word.

v.3. Bleſſed are they which read, and they that heare the words of this propheſie, and C keepe thoſe things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

Here is the ſeauenth & laſt argument whereby this Reuelation is deſcribed, to wit, the fruit, effect, and the profit which comes of it, euen true happineſſe. This prophecie concerneth the preſent and future ſtate of the Church: the reading and hearing whereof ioyned with carefull keeping, bringeth with it true bleſſedneſſe, that is, fellowſhippe with God, and life euerlaſting.

D In this Argument we may obſerue, Firſt, the ende of this booke, and ſo of all other books of Scripture, viz. to bring men to happineſſe, to fellowſhip with God, and life euerlaſting. Theſe things were written (ſaith S. Iohn) that ye might beleeue that Ieſus is the Chriſt, and ſo beleeuing, might haue eternall life, Ioh. 20. 31. Againe, he declared to them the word of Chriſt, that by it they might haue fellowſhip with God the Father, and with his ſonne Ieſus Chriſt, 1. Ioh. 1. 3. In which fellowſhip is true happineſſe. Chriſt himſelfe ſaith: Search the Scriptures, for in them you thinke to haue eternall life, Ioh. 5. 39. And in this they differ from all other bookes and writings of men; for mens writings be penned either by the light of nature, and ſo be erronious, and miſſe the ende of true happineſſe: or elſe they be penned by them which haue direction from the word, and ſo all the truth they haue, leading to true happineſſe, is borrowed hence; when as the Scriptures of themſelues do directly guide men thither.

From the conſideration of this bleſſed ende of holy Scripture, we may obſerue, firſt, That the oppinion and practiſe of the Church of Rome is damnable, who barre the people of God from reading and hearing the Scriptures in their vulgar tongue. For in depriuing them of this meanes (as much as in them lyeth) they barre them of their ſaluation, and they doe directly croſſe the purpoſe of S. Iohn, who doth therefore pronounce him bleſſed, that ſhall heare and read this booke, with conſcience to keepe and obey it, that hee might allure and draw all men to doe it with delight.

Secondly, wee are hereby admoniſhed with all care and diligence to reade and meditate in Gods word: That place before named is moſt excellent, Search the Scripture, Ioh. 5. 39. Euen as we would ſearch for gold, or ſome precious thing which we would faine finde (ſo the word imports:) And he addeth the reaſon: For in them you thinke to haue eternal life. The ſame is wiſdomes counſell, Pro. 2. 4.

But ſome will ſay, I cannot reade, I was neuer brought vp in learning, and therefore I cannot ſearch. S. Iohn cuts off his excuſe in the next words, ſaying, Bleſſed is he alſo which heares the words of this propheſie. As if he ſhould ſay: though he cannot reade, yet if he heare, and keepe it, he is bleſſed. Here then is the dutie of thoſe which cannot reade the Scriptures, they muſt procure others to reade vnto them, and by hearing and keeping they ſhall bee bleſſed.

Thirdly, by this ſcope and end of Scriptures, wee muſt learne to carry in minde this plaine difference between the bookes of God, and writings of men: Gods word bringeth a man which keepes it, to happineſſe; but mans writings of themſelues cannot doe ſo, vnleſſe they haue light from the word of God. If this diſtinction were imprinted in our hearts, wee ſhould not be ſo delighted as many are, to heare or ſpeake the words of God mixed with the words of ſinneful men, ſpecially in the publicke miniſterie. In former times the Lord forbad his owne people to ſow their field with mingled ſeed, or to make thẽ garments of diuers things, as of linnen and wollen, Leuit. 19. 19. And no doubt the ſame God doth miſlike, that the pure ſeed of his word ſhould be mingled with the ſayings of erroneous and ſinfull men, when the ſame is ſowne vpon the furrowes of mens hearts.

Secondly, in this ſeauenth Argument wee may obſerue the right manner and way of hearing and reading the Scriptures: a point worthie all ſerious conſideration. It ſtands in two things: Firſt, we muſt ſet downe with our ſelues a certaine end, why we reade, and heare the Scriptures, which is, that wee may attaine to true happines ſtanding in fellowſhip with God, and life euerlaſting. This end muſt be the motiue to induce vs to heare, and read the word of God, and when this takes place in our hearts, it will be of force to make vs reade, & heare with care and conſcience, which beſeemeth Gods word. Secondly, wee muſt keepe in minde the things we reade, or heare; ſo ſaith the text: And keepeth the things which are written: which word imports, that by diligent obſeruation, we would lay them vp in our hearts. This is a weighty dutie, and ſeriouſly commended vnto vs of God. Bind vp the teſtimonie; ſeale vp the law among my diſciples; Iſay. 8. 16. And Mary is therefore commended, becauſe ſhee kept in her heart the words of Ieſus, Luk. 2. 19. 51. It was Dauids practiſe: I haue hid thy ſaying in my heart, Pſal. 119. 11. And hereto tendeth Chriſts encouragement, pronouncing them rather bleſſed, which heare the word and keepe it, then thoſe which bare Chriſt, and gaue him ſucke, Luk. 11. 27. 28. And Iames calleth it the ingraffed word, Iam. 1. 21. because it ſhould abide in our hearts like a ſyence in a ſtocke, and neuer be remoued, but there grow, and fructifie vnto life eternall.

Now becauſe this is a point of great difficultie, and the want hereof the cauſe of ſo little profiting after much hearing and reading; I will therefore ſhew how (by Gods grace) in hearing and reading the word of God, a man may keepe the ſame in memorie.

Firſt, a man muſt learne the grounds or elements of religion, commonly called the Catechiſme, for they are the foundation of all knowledge: without which a man ſhall neuer vnderſtand the Scripture to his comfort, nor keepe the ſame in memorie. The Apoſtle ſaith the Hebrews were dull of hearing (the deepe things of God in Chriſt) becauſe they had not well learned the firſt principles of the word, Heb. 5. 11. 12. This all ignorant perſons ſhould well obſerue, ſpecially the aged, that they may find in themſelues the cauſe of their ignorance and dulneſſe, euen want of knowledge in the Catechiſme. They thinke it a diſgrace to be brought vnto it now they are old: but if they would not be euer learning, and neuer come to the knowledge of the truth, they muſt lay in themſelues this good beginning, and learne the principles of religion.

Secondly, wee muſt not ruſh vpon Gods holy ordinance, but before wee either come to heare, or reade, with reuerence prepare our ſelues thereto. Moſt men at this day vſe to prepare themſelues before they come to the Lords table; and ſo they ought to doe before they come to heare the word: for God ordained both for this end, to be meanes to bring men to true happineſſe: they differ onely in this, that the Sacraments are the viſible, and the Scriptures the audible word of God. At the giuing of the law, The people that muſt heare it, were ſanctified three dayes before, Exod. 19. And when they did offer ſacrifice, or eat the Paſſeouer, both prieſts and people muſt be ſanctified: and the ſame thing for ſubſtance muſt wee performe before we come to heare the word of God. This preparation ſtands in two things: Firſt, wee muſt put out of our hearts all bythoughts, all delights, and cares of worldly affaires, and ſet our hearts (as Ezra did) to ſeeke the law of the Lord, Ezra 7. 10. Secondly, wee muſt make our earneſt prayers to God, that he would open our eyes, that we may ſee his will; ſoften our hearts, and make our ears attentiue, as Lidiaes were; and alſo giue vs grace to embrace his word, and keepe it: For Chriſt is the onely doctor of the heart by his ſpirit, without whoſe inward teaching we can neuer learne vnto ſaluation.

Thirdly, when we are about the holy exerciſe of Gods word, the frame of our heart ſhould be thus diſpoſed.

I. It muſt be an humble heart: for the Lord reſiſts the proud; and giues grace to the humble, Iam. 4. 6. Them that bee meeke, will he guide in iudgement, and teach the humble his way, Pſal. 25. 9. A proud heart is ſo ſtuffed with ſelfe loue, that there is no roome for the word of God to lodge in. But the heart that is lowly in it ſelfe, through the conſcience of ſinne; that is the heart in which the Lord by his grace will take vp his abode, Iſay 57. 15.

II. It muſt be an honeſt heart, ſuch as hath no manner of purpoſe to liue in any one ſinne whatſoeuer, but (though it feele corruption in in it ſelfe) is reſolued to pleaſe God in all the wayes of his commaundements, and that continually: ſuch an heart haue the good hearers, reſembled by the good ground, Luk. 8. 15. As on the contrary, that is a wicked heart, which reſolueth to cheriſh, though it bee but any one ſinne whatſoeuer.

III. It muſt be a beleeuing heart. The olde Iewes heard the word, but it profited them not, becauſe they mingled it not with faith in their hearts, Heb. 4. 2. where he compares the heart to a veſſell, in which there muſt bee both the word, and faith: theſe two muſt be mingled together, and then it will be a word of power, of life, and ſaluation. Therefore when we heare the threatnings of the law, or the promiſes of the Goſpel, we muſt labour to reſolue our hearts of the truth thereof. But incredulitie whereby men except againſt the word, as not pertaining vnto them, is the mother of forgetfulneſſe. The old world knew nothing of the flood, becauſe they did not beleeue, Matth. 24. 39.

IV. It muſt bee an hearing heart: ſuch as is pliable to to word: Sacrifice and burnt offerings (ſaith Dauid) thou wouldeſt not, but mine eares haſt thou prepared, Pſal. 40. 6. As if hee ſhould ſay, beſide thoſe bodily ears which thou haſt giuen me by creation, thou haſt bored new eares in my heart, ſo as I can by thy grace attend and liſten to thy word. And when God ſaith, Seeke ye my face, this hearing heart will anſwer, I ſeeke thy face O Lord, Pſal. 27.8.9.

Fourthly, after wee haue heard or read the word, we muſt become doers of the ſame, euen in the duties of our vocation. We ſee euery man more skilfull in the workes of his owne trade, by reaſon of his daily exerciſe therein: euen ſo the conſtant practiſe of Gods word will make vs expert in it, and cauſe vs to keepe it in perfect memorie. And theſe are the right meanes to become good hearers and readers of the word of God.

Thirdly, this benediction pronounced vpon them that heare, reade, and keepe the propheſies of this booke, ſerues to induce euery childe of God (as much as in him lyeth) to keepe in memorie the whole word of God, but ſpecially theſe propheſies of things to come, that concerne the ſtate of the Church; for therefore did God reueale them, that they might be remembred. When the Angell had told Daniel the ſtate of the Church, from his time to the comming of Chriſt; he bids him, Shut vp the words, and ſeale the booke, till the ende of the time, Dan. 12.4. meaning, that he for his owne comfort ſhould hide them in his heart. And Chriſt ſaith to his diſciples, When yee ſee the abhomination of deſolation, ſpoken of by Daniel the Prophet: let him that readeth, conſider it, Matth. 24.15. Beholde I haue told you before, meaning things to come verſe 25. ſhewing, That hee would haue his children to marke, and remember thoſe weightie things that are foretold, concerning the ſtate of the Church.

For the time is at hand. Here is a reaſon of the former benediction, for ſeeing the time of the accompliſhing of this propheſie is at hand, and muſt ſhortly bee fulfilled: therefore thoſe be bleſſed which reade and keepe the ſame in memorie. And it is an anſwer to a ſecret obiection; for they might haue ſaid, wee need not to read or remember this propheſie, ſeeing it ſhal not be fulfilled in our dayes; but he addeth: The time is at hand, wherein they muſt be fulfilled, and therefore it muſt be marked. Theſe words for ſubſtance were in the firſt verſe; where it is ſaid, The Reuelation was of things that muſt ſhortly be done. And here they be repeated againe. Whereby hee would teach vs, That theſe propheſies containe waighty matter, to be deeply conſidered, and earneſtly thought on. And S. Iohn repeats the ſame for two cauſes: Firſt, to awake the members of the Church out of the ſleepe of ſecuritie, and make them ſtand vpon their watch continually: for though they cannot fall into the dead ſleepe of ſinne, yet the ſlumber of ſecuritie may ouertake them: the wiſe virgines ſlumber, as well as the fooliſh, Matth. 25.5. and the ſpouſe of Chriſt, the true Church, confeſſeth, That ſhe ſleepeth, though her heart waketh, Cant. 5.2.

Secondly, to confirme and hearten the Church, and all true members of Chriſt, againſt the afflictions to come: for herein is the common ſaying true, Hee that is forwarned, is fore-armed.

Now in theſe words (The time is at hand) Chriſt would teach vs to obſerue, That whatſoeuer thing may befall the members of Chriſt in this life, whether afflictions, temptations, death, or the laſt iudgement it ſelfe, all wil come ſhortly. This conſideration ought to take place in our hearts, beeing of great vſe in our liues: as to ſtay vs from many ſinnes, ſo to mooue vs to doe all things with good conſcience. And the want hereof is the cauſe of much euill: The bad ſeruant beats his fellowes, becauſe he thinkes his maſter doth defer his comming, Matth. 24.48.49. The olde world went on in ſinne, neuer regarding Noahs propheſie; and ſo knew nothing till the flood came and ſwept them all away, Mat. 24.39. We ſhould lay theſe to our hearts, and alwaies thinke with Paul, the Lord is at hand: Phil.4.5. The rather, becauſe we haue had the Goſpel, & peace, with all temporall bleſſings theſe eight and thirtie yeares: now the ſtate of the Church is interchangeable, one while peace, and then trouble: ſo as it is like, this peaceable ſtate will not long continue, but we muſt be tried. And the time of our triall is at hand, for whatſoeuer muſt befall the Church, will come ſhortly. We muſt therefore prepare for trouble, and ſo wee ſhall finde it the leſſe grieuous.

v. 4. Iohn to the ſeauen Churches which are in Aſia, Grace be with you, and Peace from him, which is, and which was, and which is to come, and from the ſeauen ſpirits which are before his throne.

Here beginneth the ſecond part of the Preface, to wit, the inſcription of this viſion, and it hath 2. branches: Firſt, a dedication, in theſe words: Iohn to the ſeauen Churches which are in Aſia. Secondly, a ſalutation, in the next words: Grace be with you, and peace, &c. to the 9. verſe. In the dedication obſerue firſt the penman, that dedicated this booke: ſecondly, the parties to whome it is ſent. For the firſt, the penman is Iohn, who here againe repeates his name, to ſhew and certifie euery reader of this booke, that he was without all doubt the true penman of the holy Ghoſt, in writing this Reuelation. But though hee repeats his name, yet he doth not adde any titles of honour, or commendation, as he did in the firſt verſe. Wherein he giues vs a true patterne of modeſtie and humilitie, which is neuer to ſpeake in our owne cauſe to our owne praiſe, but onely in caſes of neceſſity, when Gods glory may bee aduanced, and the credit of our particular callings maintained.

This

This Paul practiſed, who often humbles himſelfe, and calls himſelfe the [a] leaſt of all the Apoſtles, yea, the [b] chiefe of all ſinners: yet when the credit of his Apoſtleſhip cam into queſtion, then he ſets out himſelfe, ſhewing he was a true Apoſtle, one of the chiefe, and aboue thoſe which did falſely call themſelues ſo, as wee may find in both of his [c] Epiſtles to the Corinthians.

[a] 1.Cor.15.
[b] 1.Tim.15.
[c] 1.Cor.9.1, 2. 2.Cor.11.5.

Secondly, the perſons to whome he wrote, were the ſeauen Churches in Aſia: concerning them note two things: firſt, hee writes to Churches, ſecondly to the Churches in Aſia. For the firſt: why writes he to the Churches, rather then to the Church, ſeeing there is but one onely Catholicke Church? Anſ. The Church may be conſidered diuers wayes; firſt, as it is the whole company of the elect, and ſo it is but one: ſecondly, as the ſame is parted into ſeuerall branches and companies, one part beeing in one country, and another part in ſome other. Wherein alſo euery ſeuerall congregation, profeſſing the Goſpel, is a particular Church. And ſo there may be many Churches, all of them being members of one Catholicke Church: As the Sea is onely one, yet it conſiſteth of many parts, which taking their names of the Countryes whereto they adioyne, are called ſo many particular Seas; as the Engliſh Sea, the Spaniſh ſea, French, Italian, Scottiſh Seas, &c. And of particular Churches muſt Iohn bee vnderſtood in this place.

Now Iohn chuſeth rather to write to Churches, then to particular men. Firſt, becauſe the matter of this booke, concerneth the Church, beeing a Propheticall Hyſtorie, touching the ſtate of the Church to the end. Secondly, becauſe particular Churches, which bee true members of the Catholicke Church, are the pillars and ground of truth. 1. Tim. 3. 15. And the Church is ſo called, not that her authority is aboue the word: but firſt, becauſe it is the treaſure houſe wherein the Scriptures are preſerued, from age to age, againſt the rage of Gods enemies. Secondly, becauſe the Church giues teſtimonie to the truth of Gods word. And thirdly, becauſe it publiſheth the truth of Gods word by vertue of that ordinarie miniſterie which God hath ordained therein.

Secondly, in the dedication of this booke, among al particular Churches God directs him to make choiſe of thoſe ſeuen in Aſia; no doubt for ſpeciall cauſe, Firſt, becauſe they were then moſt famous Churches, as the chapters following, and the Hyſtories of the Church doe plainly ſhew. Secondly, that the calling of the Gentiles to the light of the Goſpel, which long before had been foretold, might be more euident: for here the Iewes are paſſed by, & the Gentiles ſent vnto.

Laſtly, we may here obſerue, That S. Iohn knew no prerogatiue of the Church of Rome aboue other Churches: for if it were the mother Church, whereon all other Churches A ſhould depend, as the Papiſts would haue it; I would know of them why Iohn paſſed by it in the dedication of this booke, which containeth matter needfull for al Churches to know.

Grace be with you, and peace from him which is, and which was, and which is to come: and from the ſeuen ſpirits which are before his throne. Here begins Iohns ſalutation of the vii. Churches. Salutations bee of two ſorts, Ciuill, and Religious. Ciuill, is that which men vſe ordinarily one to another, wiſhing health, welfare, and ſuch like. Religious, is that which is peculiar and proper vnto the Church, comprehending in it a benediction alſo. And ſuch is this here vſed by S. Iohn. It may alſo be called Apoſtolicall: becauſe it is ſo vſuall with them in their Epiſtles. And B they vſed it the rather, becauſe it is ſo correſpondent to their miniſterie: which ſtood in two things; firſt, in preaching, which is the miniſterie of grace and reconciliation, the things here deſired; ſecondly, in prayer, whereto belonged the dutie of benediction, to pronounce a bleſſing vpon the people: as did the prieſts in their miniſtration vnder the law, Num. 6. 23. and our Sauiour Chriſt with his Apoſtles, when they preached the Goſpel; and as euery miniſter ſhould doe to his whole congregation, before they depart. And this is alſo included in this ſalutation: for hereby they bleſſed thoſe Churches to whom they did write.

But to come to the words, which bee moſt excellent, and containe in them the ſumme of C the Goſpel. Grace, in Scripture ſignifieth two things: firſt, Gods fauour; ſecondly, ſome gift of God freely beſtowed. Now here by Grace is meant not any particular gift of God, but the gracious fauour and good wil of God, whereby he accepts of ſome in Chriſt for his owne: for it is here oppoſed to peace, a gift of grace, and therefore cannot ſignifie the ſame thing.

Now marke, S. Iohn in this ſalutation begins with grace; becauſe it is the foundation of all happineſſe and of all Gods bleſſings: whatſoeuer we are, and all that we haue, is of grace, our election, redemption, vocation, iuſtification, and ſanctification; our faith and repentance, and our preſeruation in them, both proceed from this fountaine of Gods free grace. It is the D beginning, and the end of all; yea it is all in all in the matter of our ſaluation: firſt we muſt haue this, and then wee may looke for all other bleſſings.

And Peace. Peace is taken ſundry wayes in the Scripture; firſt, for welfare and good ſucceſſe in things of this world by Gods bleſſing, Exod. 18. 7. Moſes and Iethro ſaluting, aske each other of their peace, that is, of his welfare; and ſo it is partly taken in this place. Secondly, for that vnitie and bleſſed concord which is in the kingdome of God, among Gods children: and ſo it is eſpecially taken here. And in this ſence it hath ſix parts, euery one whereof is a moſt worthy bleſſing.

The firſt is peace with God: which is, when wee ſtand in the fauour of God, reconciled to him in Chriſt Ieſus, Rom. 5. 1. Secondly, peace with Gods Angels, for they guard ſuch as be in Gods fauour, and carry them as a nurſe doth her childe in her armes, That they hurt not their feete at any ſtone, Pſal. 91. 11. and they reioyce at our good eſtate. The third, is peace with a mans ſelfe, when his conſcience will not accuſe him, but excuſe and cleare him, beeing waſhed in the blood of Chriſt: This is that Peace of God, which paſſeth all vnderſtanding, Phil. 4. 7. The fourth is, peace with Gods Church, notably prefigured by the peaceable habitation of wild beaſts and tame together, as the Lyon and the Calfe, the Wolfe and the Lambe; the childe and the Cockatrice, &c. Iſay 11. 6. and plainely to be ſeene among the beleeuers, Act. 4. 32. Who were all of one mind and heart. The fiſt is, Peace with the enemies of Gods Church, ſo far as it is for the good of the Church, and the glory of God. So Ioſeph had peace in Pharaohs court: ſo Daniel had peace in the court of Nabuchadnezzer: for when the three children were caſt into the ouen, we muſt not thinke that he did reuolt vnto Idolatrie or hide himſelfe; but beeing in fauour in the court obtained priuiledge to be excuſed. The ſixt is, Peace with all the creatures of God: with the beaſts of the field, foules of the ayre, and fiſhes of the ſea. This the Lord promiſeth in the couenant that he will make for them with all his creatures, Hoſea, 2. 18. yea, The child of God ſhall tread vpon the Lyon and the Serpent, and they ſhall not hurt him, Pſal. 91. 13. And this his peace ſtands herein, That by Gods bleſſed prouidence he ſhall find helpe, and comfort from all Gods creatures.

In this place, whether we take peace for outward welfare, or for the concord of Gods Church, yet it is placed after grace, becauſe it followeth as a fruit thereof: Firſt, a man muſt bee in Gods fauour, and then come all the bleſſings of peace vnto him. This then is the meaning, Grace bee with you, and peace. That is, I wiſh you the fauour of God in Chriſt, with peace, the bleſſed fruit thereof, euen all outward welfare, and eſpecially the concord of Gods Church, hauing peace with God, with his holy Angels, with his Church, with your owne hearts, with your enemies (as farre as may bee for Gods glorie) and with all his creatures.

The vſe.

Whereas S. Iohn wiſheth grace vnto the Churches in the firſt place; he would teach vs, That the fauour of God is to be ſought for aboue all things; for the Apoſtles practiſe muſt bee our precept. So did Dauid: Many ſay, who will ſhew vs any good: But Lord lift thou vp the light of thy countenance vpon me, Pſal. 4. 6. As if he ſhould ſay, Let the moſt of the world ſeeke what they will, as riches, pleaſure, &c. yet my deſire is of thy loue and fauour aboue all. And oftentimes he calleth God his portion, his rocke: and caſtle of defence, the thing that hee longeth for; to ſhewe, that all his ioy was in A Gods fauour. And ſo it ſhould be with vs: but we little practiſe this, becauſe we bring from our cradles naturall preſumption, which perſwades vs, that we be in the fauour and loue of God. But we muſt caſt off this falſe perſwaſion and take a new courſe; and labour firſt to ſee, that we bee out of Gods fauour, loſt ſheepe, prodigall children in our ſelues, yea, the very firebrands of hell: and this, to ſee our owne want of grace, is the firſt ſtep to grace. Secondly, feeling this want and miſerie in our ſeluss, we muſt earneſtly deſire, and in our ſoules hunger and thirſt after the loue and fauour of God in Chriſt aboue all earthly things. Thirdly, wee muſt by the hand of true faith lay hold vpon the grace and mercie of God in Chriſt, B propounded in the promiſes of the Goſpel, and apply them to our ſelues particularly.

Secondly, after grace he wiſheth vnto them Peace: where note, the true order of ſeeking for the bleſſings of this life, we muſt not begin with welfare and proſperitie, but our firſt and chiefeſt care muſt be, to obtaine the grace and fauour of God. So Chriſt bids vs, firſt, to ſeeke the kingdome of God, and his righteouſneſſe: for when we are in Gods kingdom of grace reconciled to him in Chriſt, then all things needefull ſhall bee miniſtred to vs, Matth. 6. 33.

The vſe.

This diſcouers the bad practiſe of moſt men euery where, who in ſeeking the bleſſings of God, begin at the wrong ende. They will toile C themſelues in their callings to get wealth, honour, pleaſures, and preferments; but the fauour of God in Chriſt is not regarded: which notwithſtanding is the true and right foundation of all outward welfare.

Here ſome will ſay, if God giue mee wealth, honour, and reputation, then he loues mee; for theſe be ſignes thereof. I anſwer, Theſe bee no ſure tokens of his fauour in Chriſt, for thoſe that be his enemies, may enioy them all, as Iob 21. 7. to the 14. This Dauid perceiued, how the wicked might flouriſh in their outward proſperitie, hauing more then heart could wiſh, Pſal. 73. 3. 7. And yet they ſtood but in ſlipperie D places. And therefore, let no man herewith deceiue himſelfe: he that wanteth Gods fauour in Chriſt, is but a curſed wretch, and a firebrand of hel, though he had all the world, for outward things, at his commaund. For all earthly things, ſeuered from Gods ſpeciall grace, are but an heape of miſeries. The wicked mans peace is no peace, ſayth the Lord, Iſay 48. 22. And the man that hath Gods grace in Chriſt, though he want all worldly benefits, yet hee hath more then all the world without it: for hereby alone he is truly bleſſed and happie.

From him which is, and which was, and which is to come: and from the ſeuen ſpirits which are before his throne. Here is ſet downe the firſt cauſe and author of theſe two, Grace and Peace, to wit, God himſelfe; diſtinguiſhed into three perſons, the Father, Sonne, and holy Ghoſt. The

Father

Father is noted in theſe words: Which is, and which was, and which is to come. The holy Ghoſt in theſe: And from the ſeuen ſpirits which are before his throne. The Sonne in the fift verſe: And from Ieſus Chriſt, which is a faithfull witnes: and firſt begotten of the dead, and Lord ouer the kings of the earth, vnto him that loued vs, and waſhed vs from our ſinnes in his owne blood, &c.

S. Iohn in the firſt place deſcribes the father, by a diſtribution, which expreſſeth the true nature of God in theſe words: Which is, was, and is to come. In which he alludes to that, Exod. 3. 14. 15. where Moſes demands of God, If the people ſhould aske who ſent him, what hee ſhould anſwer? The Lord bids him ſay, Ehich, Iehouah hath ſent me: which two names ſerue to one ende, namely, to expreſſe the nature of God. They are tranſlated, I am, and the Lord: but theſe Engliſh words doe not fully expreſſe their ſignification. Yet S. Iohn expounds them here, making Ehich, to ſignifie him which is, which was, and is to come. Which words of Iohn alſo in the originall bee more full in ſence then our Engliſh tongue can well expreſſe. And yet they may bee thus explained: Grace and Peace be from him, which is in himſelfe, and of himſelfe, a moſt perfect and abſolute ſubſtance; which was a moſt perfect ſubſtance, and which is to come, a moſt abſolute, perfect, ſimple ſubſtance and eſſence. In theſe words are touched ſundry wheightie points.

Ehjeh

Ehjeh

First, touching the nature of God, namely; That God is a moſt abſolute perfect ſubſtance & eſſence, which hath his beeing in himſefe, of himſelfe, and from none other. Paul ſaith, An idoll is nothing, 1. Cor. 8. 4. that is, nothing ſubſiſting in nature, but a meere fond deuice of mans brane. But the true God is an eſſence ſubſiſting, and that of himſelfe alone perfectly; and herein differeth from all Idols and falſe Gods.

Secondly, hereby wee ſee a difference betweene God and all his creatures. Euery creature is a ſubſtance, as Angels and Men: likewiſe mans bodie and ſoule are ſubſtances: yet none of theſe haue beeing of themſelues, but from God, and of God. And yet wee muſt not conceiue, that the creatures are parts of God, though they haue their ſubſtances and beeing of him; for then each creature ſhould be God: for the communication of the diuine ſubſtance cannot be without the diuine nature: but Gods ſubſtance is indiuiſible, and incommunicable to the creature. My meaning then is, that God made the creatures out of himſelfe of that matter which hee created by his word, and preſerueth them beeing made. Which by the way ſhould teach vs to returne our bodies and ſoules by obedience vnto God, in lieu of thankfulneſſe, endeuouring his glory all the daies of our life.

Thirdly, hence we learne, that the Lord is Eternall euery way, without beginning or ending: for it is he which is, which was, and which is to come. Angels and the ſoules of men they be eternall; but not euery way: though they be eternal in that they ſhall neuer die, yet had they a beginning. Secondly, they are eternall, not abſolutely, but by participation; for God made them eternall: but the Lord is moſt abſolutely of himſelfe eternall.

Fourthly note, he ſaith not from him which ſhall be, but from him which is to come, that is, to iudgement: to giue vs to vnderſtand, That this eternall God is alſo a iudge of all his creatures, eſpecially men and Angels. A point of ſpeciall vſe, to mooue vs to walke before God, with all good conſcience. If any ſhall flatter himſelfe, thinking he ſhall be dead before that day come: I anſwer, it may be ſo. What then? thinkeſt thou thereby to eſcape his iudgement? No verily: for this God commeth to iudge thee particularly by death, and thereby to reſerue thee to the iudgement of the great day. Oh, that we would ſeriouſly thinke on this; it would be a meanes to mooue vs to repentance, by breaking of the courſe of ſinne, and endeauouring to keepe a good conſcience in all things, Acts 24. 16. And ſo ſhall we be ready to meete him at his comming, whether by death or iudgment.

And from the ſeuen ſpirits which are before his throne. Theſe words commonly are expounded of ſeuen Angels of God which ſtand before the throne, and miniſter vnto him. But it cannot be meant of them: firſt, becauſe Grace and Peace is here ſaid to proceede from theſe ſeuen ſpirits; but it cannot come from the holy Angels, which attend to miniſter before the Lord. Secondly, in this verſe, which is a benediction, or a ſalutation of Iohn to the Church, the ſeuen ſpirits, are ſet before Ieſus Chriſt, the ſecond perſon of the Trinitie; but there is no reaſon nor reſpect, for which the angels ſhould be placed before Chriſt. The words are rather thus to be expounded, And from the ſeuen ſpirits, &c. that is, from the holy Ghoſt. This expoſition is moſt agreeable to all the circumſtances of the text; and the holy Ghoſt may be called by the name of the ſeuen ſpirits for two cauſes: First, becauſe though he be onely one in ſubſtance, yet he is ſeuen, that is, manifolde in regard of gifts and operations which proceede from him. Secondly, S. Iohn here ſpeaketh of the Father, Sonne, and holy Ghoſt, as he ſaw them in viſion: (for here he ſetteth downe one viſion which he ſaw) now he beheld the holy Ghoſt in forme of ſeuen lights in a viſion, Rev. 4. 5.

Which are before his throne. This he ſpeakes by compariſon taken from earthly Kings: which ſitting in their thrones, doe there ſhew their glorie and maieſtie. So S. Iohn ſaw in viſion God the Father ſitting in his throne, and Chriſt at his right hand; and before the throne the holy Ghoſt. Which manner of appearance prooueth not, that the holy Ghoſt is inferiour to the Father and to the Sonne: but hereby is expreſſed the office of the holy Ghoſt: which is, to be ſent from the Father, and from the Sonne to the Church, to inlighten the members thereof.

This then is the meaning of the words, And fro the ſeuen ſpirits which are before his throne; that is, Grace and Peace be with you from the holy Ghoſt, the ſpirit of the Father, and of the Sonne, who from them both is ſent vnto the Church, to inlighten, to ſanctifie, and to gouerne the members thereof.

The vſe. First, hence we learne, that the holy Ghoſt is God: for looke from whome commeth grace and peace, that ſame is very God: but here grace and peace proceed from the holy Ghoſt: and therefore he is very God.

Secondly, we learne, that we may and ought to direct our prayers to the holy Ghoſt: for by whome grace and peace is giuen, to him we may direct our praiers: but grace and peace are giuen by the holy Ghoſt; therefore we may pray to him for them. This is the rather to be obſerued, becauſe there be ſome which doubt, whether we may pray to the holy Ghoſt: but they may as well doubt whether he be God. They ſay, we haue no example hereof in Scripture. Anſ. It is not true: for in this benediction Iohn praieth to the holy Ghoſt, ſaying, Grace be with you, and peace from God the Father, &c. For in ſubſtance it is as much as if he had ſaid thus; Thy grace and peace, O Father, and thy grace and peace, O holy Ghoſt, and thine, O Sonne, be with thy Church.

Thirdly, in this deſcription of the holy Ghoſt, by ſtanding before the throne of the Father, we may obſerue, That the holy Ghoſt is a perſon ſubſiſting, and not a qualitie. Some heretikes that acknowledged the Godhead of the Father, denied the Godhead of the Sonne, and of the holy Ghoſt: and concerning the holy Ghoſt, haue held, That he is nothing, but the vertue and qualitie of the Father. But this is moſt falſe: for as the Father is a ſubſtance ſitting vpon the throne; ſo here we ſee the holy Ghoſt is a ſubſtance ſtanding before the throne.

Fourthly, here we learne, that the holy Ghoſt is a diſtinct perſon from the Father and from the Sonne: for he ſitteth not in the throne, as doth the Father, nor ſitteth at the Fathers right hand, as doth the Sonne: but ſtandeth before the throne apart from them both.

V. 5. And from Ieſus Chriſt, which is a faithfull witneſſe, and firſt begotten of the dead, and Lord ouer the kings of the earth, vnto him that loued vs, and waſhed vs from our ſinnes A in his owne blood.

That is, grace and peace from Ieſus Chriſt. Where Chriſt Ieſus is ioyned with the Father, and the holy Ghoſt, in beſtowing grace and peace on his Church. Here ſome may aske, Why is Chriſt the ſecond perſon of the Trinitie placed after the holy Ghoſt, the third perſon? Anſw. For two cauſes. Firſt, in regard of his office; for Chriſt is to be conſidered two waies: firſt, as he is the Sonne of the Father: ſecondly, as he is the Mediatour of the Church. As he is the Sonne of the Father, he is the ſecond perſon in Trinitie, and ſo before the holy Ghoſt in order. But as he is Mediatour, ſo he is after the holy Ghoſt: Iſa. 61.1. The ſpirit of the B Lord is vpon me; he hath ſent me to preach. Where Chriſt confeſſeth himſelfe to be ſent by the holy Ghoſt, as he is Mediatour, and in that reſpect he is ſet after him. Secondly, he is placed after the holy Ghoſt, for the fitter progreſſe of the hiſtorie: for the manner of them which penne the Scriptures, is, to ſet them in the laſt place, of whome they meane to ſpeake moſt; as Matth. 1. the Euangeliſt ſetting downe the genealogie of Chriſt from Abraham (though among them all was none ſo excellent as Chriſt) yet placeth him the laſt, becauſe he intended to goe on with the hiſtorie of his life and death. So Iohn placeth Chriſt the laſt, becauſe he purpoſed to make a large deſcription of the perC ſon, and office of Chriſt, which he could not ſo fitly haue brought in, if he had placed him before the holy Ghoſt.

From this fift verſe, till the ninth he deſcribes Chriſt at large: Firſt, by his offices: ſecondly, by the execution thereof. His offices are three: Firſt, his Propheticall office, in theſe words; which is that faithfull witneſſe. Secondly, his Prieſtly office; The firſt begotten of the dead. Thirdly, his Kingly office; And that Prince of the Kings of the earth.

The execution of all his offices is particularly ſet downe in the words following, To him that loued vs, and waſhed vs from our ſinnes, and ſo forth to the 9.v.

D Touching his offices. In his Propheticall office we may note three things: Firſt, he is a witneſſe. Secondly, a faithfull witneſſe. Thirdly, that faithfull witneſſe. Firſt, he is a witneſſe: Iſa. 55.4. I gaue him to be a witneſſe to the nations. By his witneſſe bearing, is ſignified two duties of his Propheticall office: Firſt, to reueale the will of his Father to his Church: ſecondly, to certifie the Church of the certentie of the ſame: and in theſe two ſtands his whole office Propheticall.

For the firſt, to reueale his Fathers will to the Church immediately, is his office as he is a Prophet: for none hath ſeene God, but he which came from the boſome of the Father, and he hath declared him, Ioh. 1. 18. Now Chriſt declares the Father, by making knowne his will: and that he hath done not only in his own perſon, while he liued on earth, but from the beginning by all the Prophets, and ſo will doe to the ende by all true preachers: for in the Church the father doth all things by the ſonne. When the Lord raigned fire on Sodome, Gen. 19. 24. there Iehouah the father raigned downe by Iehouah the ſonne. So when the couenant was made to our firſt parents, it was made in Chriſt the promiſed ſeede. It was renued to Noah, Abraham, and the Patriarchs, from the father by the ſon: for that Iehouah, which appeared to Moyſes in the buſh, Exod. 3. is by S. Paul called Chriſt, 1. Cor. 10. The Prophets and the Apoſtles wrote as they were inſpired by Chriſt; they were but his inſtruments to ſpeake and write that he put into them by the holy Ghoſt. The matter, and the ſtile, and phraſe of the ſcripture, all came from Chriſt. Nay, when any particular man comes to vnderſtand the Scriptures, this is by the working of Chriſt, he opens his eyes. Luk.24. He gaue the diſciples vnderſtanding, as they went vnto Emaus to vnderſtand the Scriptures.

The ſecond dutie of Chriſts propheticall office is, to certifie men in conſcience of the truth of his fathers will. This certificate is two fold generall, or particular: generall, when he certifieth men in conſcience, That the word written or ſpoken by man, is the word of God: neither nature, nor learning can doe this, but it is proper to Chriſts propheticall office. And for a Ioh.16.13. this he ſaith to his Diſciples, [a] He will ſend them the comforter, which ſhall lead them into all truth: that is, reueale Gods will vnto them, and aſſure their heart that the ſame is true. Vnto this aſſurance two things are required, The outward meanes, which is the word it ſelfe: and an inward cauſe, which is the principall, to wit, the operation of the holy ſpirit.

By this doctrine three points are reſolued: Firſt, this demaund of the Papiſts, How a man can come to know, that the Scriptures read and taught, be the word of God? Anſ. We muſt here haue recourſe to this faithfull witneſſe, and deſire of him his ſpirit, whereby the minde muſt be enlightened, and made able to diſcerne the things of God: for no naturall man can doe it of himſelfe. Secondly, we muſt haue Chriſt his teſtimonie of Scripture, in the Scriptures themſelues: for in them he ſetteth down his teſtimonie of the Scriptures.

But ſome will ſay, if Chriſts teſtimonie of Scripture be ſet downe in the Scriptures, why doe not all men knowe this teſtimonie, and receiue it? I anſwer, the ſhining of the ſunne before a mans face is not ſufficient to cauſe him to ſee, vnleſſe he haue in his eyes the gift and ſenſe of ſeeing; Euen ſo, it is not ynough for a man to haue in Gods word the teſtimonie of Chriſt, that Scripture is Scripture; but withall, he muſt haue in himſelfe the light of the ſpirit, reuealing that teſtimony to his conſcience: and then in reading or hearing the Scripture, in marking the manner, and ſtyle, the maieſtie and power thereof, he ſhall be able to ſee in euery ſentence A the teſtimony of Chriſt, aſſuring his conſcience, that the ſame is vndoubtedly the word of God.

A ſecond doubt reſolued by this doctrine, is this, How can a man know the true religion, ſeeing the Turke, Papiſt, Iewe, and Proteſtant, haue their ſeuerall religions, and die in them? I anſwer, We muſt haue recourſe to Chriſt, this faithfull witneſſe: and looke whereto he giues his teſtimonie, that we muſt hlod for true religion. Now the Scriptures be as a letter ſent from heauen to the Church, wherein Chriſt hath ſet downe his owne teſtimony of the true religion; which in triall ſhall be found to bee the religion of the Proteſtant, and not the religion of Iew, Turke, or Papiſt.

B A third doubt to be reſolued by this doctrine, is, How to know the particular truth in matters of religion, when as ſundry men profeſſing the ſame religion, be of diuers opinions. Anſw. Still we muſt haue recourſe to this faithfull witneſſe and Prophet of the Church, he is the Iudge of all controuerſies in religion; and in the Scriptures, if we marke them, we ſhall ſee his iudgement. Queſt. But if there be diuers opinions about Scripture it ſelfe, and euerie one giue a ſeuerall ſenſe vnto it, who muſt then be Iudge? Anſ. In this diuerſitie of opinions, yea, of the Scriptures themſelues, we muſt ſtill haue recourſe to Chriſt, and that in the Scriptures alone: for though there were a thouſand diuers expoſitions of one place: yet by C the ſcope and circumſtances thereof conferring it with other like places of ſcripture, a man ſhall be able to finde out the true ſenſe; for Chriſt in the Scripture expoundeth himſelfe.

The particular certificate of Chriſt belongeth alſo to his propheticall office: and that is, to aſſure men in their conſciences, that the promiſes of the Goſpel, with all the benefits therein contained, as Iuſtification, Sanctification, and life eternall, which in the word be generally expounded, doe belong vnto them particularly; as to Peter, to Iohn, &c. And this aſſurance (as the former) is principally wrought by the word, not barely read, but preached: for there-D in by the inward worke of the ſpirit, the generall promiſes be particularly applied. This Paul imports, ſaying, Yee haue the ſpirit of adoption, which teſtifies with our ſpirit, we be the ſonnes of God, Rom. 8. 15. 16.

Hence we learne, that the doctrine of the Church of Rome, and of all others which hold, That men cannot be aſſured of their ſaluation by faith, is wicked and damnable: for hereby they cut off a part of Chriſts propheticall office, wherein the dignitie thereof doth conſiſt, that is, to aſſure a man particularly of the truth of Gods promiſes vnto himſelfe. And in this hee differs from all other Prophets and Apoſtles, which be witneſſes: for they can witneſſe onely outwardly to the eare; but hee can ſpeake and teſtifie to the conſcience: Neither can any of them certifie, any man particularly, though their miniſterie tend to that ende.

Secondly obſerue, Chriſt is not onely a witneſſe, but a faithfull witneſſe; and ſo he is for theſe cauſes: Firſt, becauſe he teſtifies not his owne will, but his which ſent him; namely, his father, Ioh. 8. 26. Secondly, he teſtifies all his Fathers will, neither adding thereto, nor detracting from it, Ioh. 17. 4. Thirdly, becauſe he teacheth his Fathers will ſincerely, in the ſame manner which he receiued it, not altering, changing, or deprauing any part thereof: As my Father taught me, ſo I ſpeake theſe things, Ioh. 8. 28.

Thirdly, Chriſt is called that faithfull witneſſe, to diſtinguiſh him from all other witneſſes. The Lord hath ſundrie faithfull witneſſes; as the Prophets, Apoſtles, the Church, nay the Sunne and Moone, Pſal. 89. 37. but Chriſt alone is that faithfull witneſſe: Firſt, becauſe his a Ioh.8.14. witneſſe is [a] authenticall, ſufficient of it ſelfe, and needes no other confirmation. The teſtimonie of the Apoſtles and Prophets is not of it ſelfe authenticall and certen, but as it conſents with Chriſts witneſſe, and proceedeth from his ſpirit. Secondly, he is that witneſſe, becauſe he is the Lord of that houſe, whereto he giues witneſſe, namely, the Church; but the Apoſtles and Prophets are but ſeruants there, Hebr. 3. 5, 6. Thirdly, Chriſt his witneſſe is inward: it ſpeakes directly to the conſcience, and there giues vndoubted aſſurance: but the witneſſe of men, as of the Prophets and Apoſtles, is outward onely; it come to the eares, it neuer binds and aſſures the conſcience of it ſelfe. And thus we ſee why he is called here, that faithfull witneſſe.

The vſe. Firſt, whereas Chriſt the Doctor and Prophet of the Church, is called that faithfull witneſſe, we learne, That all Miniſters of the Goſpel ought to be faithfull witneſſes: for euery Miniſter of the Goſpel, when he preacheth Gods word, is in the roome of Chriſt, and ſpeaketh that vnto the Church which Chriſt would ſpeake. That they may be faithfull witneſſes, ſundrie things are required at their hands. Firſt, they muſt deliuer the teſtimonie of Chriſt aboue all other things, and before all teſtimonies of man in the office of their miniſterie. This was meate and drinke to Chriſt, to b Ioh.4.34. [b] teach his Fathers will. Eleazer, Abrahams eldeſt ſeruant, ſhewed his fidelitie, in that he would not eate or drinke till he had done his maſters meſſage, Gen. 24. 33. Much more ought the Miniſters of Chriſt to haue ſpeciall care of that weightie meſſage committed vnto them. Secondly, they muſt teſtifie all the will of God concerning matters of ſaluation, as faith, obedience, and a godly life: among men, we count him a faithfull witneſſe, which teſtifies all the truth, and no more but the truth: ſo ſhould it be with all Miniſters, that be Gods witneſſes to his Church. Herein Paul cleared himſelfe, Act.20.26,27. That he was free from all mens blood, ſeeing he
A deliuered the whole will of God in matters neceſſarie for ſaluation, and kept nothing backe. Thirdly, he muſt neither adde vnto, or take away, much leſſe in any caſe depraue the word of God. And this is the true marke of a faithfull witneſſe: For falſe prophets teach ſome truth, but withall they adde ſomething of their owne, or detract from Gods truth ſomething that they ought not. In the Church of Rome a man may heare things concerning morall vertues, handled ſoundly; but come to Iuſtification, and thereto they adde the merit of mens workes: and ſo they deale with Faith, and Repentance, matters of ſaluation: they take away one part, and adde another to the Scriptures: they hold the Creede in word, yet
B in deede they denie the ſame, as by their doctrine may appeare, and ſo ſhew themſelues falſe witneſſes. Fourthly, a faithfull witneſſe muſt deliuer the teſtimonie of Chriſt in that ſpirituall manner which beſt beſeemeth the maieſtie of God, and which he beſt approoueth, that is, in a plaine, eaſie, and familiar kinde of ſpeech, that the conſcience of the ſinner may be touched, and the vnderſtanding of the ſimple may be edified. When the word is otherwiſe deliuered, as in the entiſing words of mans wiſdome, or for oſtentation of witte, or much reading, though nothing be ſaid but the truth; yet he that ſo diſpenſeth it, is an vn-
C faithfull witneſſe, becauſe he corrupteth the word by his vaine deliuerie. And this is the ſinne of this age in many Miniſters, who teach the truth indeede, but yet in ſuch ſort, as it may appeare, they ſeeke themſelues, and not Gods glorie, reſpecting little the edification of the ſimple, ſo themſelues may be famous for wit, eloquence, and learning. But theſe men make marchandiſe of the word, like to huxters, that by ſtarching, blowing, and ſpicing, ſet a gloſſe vpon their ware, to make it ſeeme that which it is not: which is a grieuous ſinne, and ſuch as will baniſh the Goſpel out of our land, vnleſſe it be reformed.

Secondly, this title of Chriſt, That faithfull witneſſe, doth diſcouer vnto vs the damnable
D practiſe of men in the ſinne of vnbeleefe: for Chriſt this faithfull witneſſe hath giuen teſtimonie to his word which is preached, that the ſame is true. And therefore [a] they that beleeue a Ioh.5.20.
it not, doe make Chriſt a falſe witneſſe, and a ly- 1 Ioh. 5:10
er, then which, what can be more horrible? and yet this is the common ſinne of this age. For when the law is applied, who is afraid? and when the Goſpel is preached, yet who beleeueth our report? Gods miniſters may ſay with the little children, We haue piped vnto you, but you haue not daunced, we haue mourned vnto you, but you haue not wept. This deadneſſe of heart, whereby men are not mooued with the word preached vnto them, is an euident argument of this fearefull vnbeleefe, whereby they make Chriſt a falſe witneſſe. This therefore ſhould mooue vs to conſider in our ſelues, the hainouſneſſe of this ſinne, that ſo we may ſtriue againſt it, and labour to giue free paſſage to the word into our hearts, trembling at the law, and reioycing in the Goſpel, that ſo each part thereof may haue his perfect worke in vs: for which ende alſo we may conſider, That amongſt thoſe which ſhall haue their portion in the burning lake, vnbeleeuers are ſet in the firſt ranke, Reuelat. 21.8.

Thirdly, ſeeing Chriſt Ieſus is that faithfull witneſſe, which giueth teſtimonie to mens conſciences in particular of their ſaluation; we learne, That euery one which profeſſeth himſelfe to repent, is bound in conſcience to beleeue that the promiſes of the Goſpel, and the benefits thereof, as Election, Redemption, Iuſtification, Sanctification, and Saluation, belong to him particularly. And though this be againſt all humane ſenſe and reaſon, yet ſeeing we haue a faithfull witneſſe, auouching the ſame, we muſt ſubmit our ſelues vnto his teſtimonie: for by vnbeleefe we greatly diſhonour our witneſſe-bearer, by denying truth vnto his reord. Here then we ſee, it is no preſumption (as the Papiſts ſay) to beleeue our election and ſaluation in particular: nay, it is a horrible ſinne in euery one that repenteth, not to beleeue it; ſeeing Chriſt, a moſt faithfull witneſſe, teſtifies the ſame to our conſciences by his holy ſpirit. Hereto alſo ſerue the Sacraments inſtituted by God, to ſeale vp vnto euery worthie receiuer, Chriſt and all his benefits. The miniſters giuing of the bread and wine to them that truely repent, is as much as if Chriſt ſhould ſay, Beleeue thou, and life eternall belongs to thee.

And the firſt begotten of the dead. In theſe words is contained the ſecond office of Chriſt; namely, his Prieſthood: the principall actions whereof ſtand in dying, in riſing againe from the dead, and making interceſſion for vs. And here S. Iohn alludeth to the eſtate of the families among the Iewes, comparing Chriſt to the firſt borne: for as among them, he which was firſt borne, and eldeſt of the familie, had many priuiledges and preheminences aboue his brethren; as Lordſhip, right of the Prieſthood, and double portion, &c. ſo Chriſt he hath his priuiledges, yea euen Chriſt crucified, he hath his prerogatiues among the dead, aboue all that are dead. So Paul expounding this title, calleth him, Tre firſt borne, and beginning of the dead, that he might in all things haue the preheminence, Col. 1. 18.

The priuiledges of Chriſt dead, and buried among all the dead, are two: firſt, That he was the firſt that euer roſe from death to life, and ſo to glory. Some indeede haue riſen before Chriſt from naturall death to naturall life, as Lazarus; but it was to die againe. And Moſes and Elias aſſumed their bodies in the Mount with Chriſt in his transfiguration: but yet they laid them down again to the former miſerie of corruptiō for a time. But Chriſt Ieſus roſe from death, to life eternall, neuer to die againe: And his reſurrection was the firſt ſteppe into his glorie. Secōdly, that by his own power he raiſed vp himſelfe, and by the vertue of his godhead quickned his manhood: The moſt godly man that is, or euer was, cannot doe ſo: but all the Saints of God are raiſed from death by vertue of Chriſts reſurrection, through that myſticall vnion which is betweene Chriſt the head, and all his members; by meanes whereof, the power of Chriſt his godhead, which raiſed vp his manhood, is conueyed to all his members in their reſurrection from death to life. And therefore is Chriſt called [a] The firſt fruits of them that ſleepe: becauſe as the firſt fruits of corne which was offered to God did ſanctifie the whole crop: ſo Chriſt his reſurrection, did make acceptable vnto God the reſurrection of all his members.

In this title is compriſed a notable comfort for all Gods children, againſt the immoderate feare of death. If Iohn had ſaid, Chriſt is the firſt borne of the liuing, it had been a great comfort: for then had he ſhewed, that the liuing Saints on earth were children in Gods familie, hauing Chriſt for their eldeſt brother: but calling him the firſt begotten of the dead, here is a further comfort: the Lord ſheweth hereby, what ſpeciall regard he hath to the faithfull that be dead: for euen then, when they be dead, they continue members of his family, and haue Chriſt Ieſus dead and buried, reckoned among them for their eldeſt brother. In regard whereof Chriſt hath a double right among the dead: firſt, of a King, ſecondly of a Prieſt. The right of a king he hath, to command his members to riſe againe, and to enter into glorie after him. The right of a Prieſt, whereby he offered vp himſelfe in death, a ſacrifice acceptable to God for the ſanctifying of the death of all his members: for by his death he tooke away the ſting of death, and hath made vnto them a ſweete ſleepe in the graue, as in a bed of downe, out of which they ſhall one day riſe to eternall life and glorie.

And Prince of the kings of the earth. Here is the third title giuen to Chriſt, wherein his kingly office is expreſſed. He is called a Prince of the kings of the earth, in two reſpects: Firſt, as he is God, the ſonne of God, equall with the father, and ſo is king, together with the father and the holy Ghoſt, gouerning all things with them by the ſame diuine power, in heauen in earth, and in hell. Secondly, as he is Mediator and Redeemer, God and Man, in two natures. In this reſpect he ſaith of himſelfe, All power is giuen to me in heauen and in earth, Mat. 28. 18. And Paul ſaith, God gaue him a [a] name aboue euery name, at which euery knee ſhould bowe, euen as he is Mediator. And in this ſecond reſpect he is called, A Prince of the kings of the earth in this place. Now Chriſt beeing a king, muſt needes haue a kingdome, which

A is not of this world; ſtanding in the might and policie of man, as earthly kingdomes doe; but it is ſpirituall, directly concerning the hearts and conſciences of men, where he ruleth by his lawes. And this is his priuiledge, which cannot be giuen to any creature, man, or Angel, to rule and raigne ſpiritually in the heart and conſcience. This ſpirituall kingdome of Chriſt is exerciſed not by dint of ſword, or force of armes, but by his holy word, through the worke of the ſpirit: for he is a King, which carrieth his ſcepter in his mouth, euen his word, Iſa. 11.4. That is the rod of his power, by which he rules the heart and conſcience, euen in the middeſt of his enemies, Pſal. 110.2.

B Now Chriſt is here intituled, Prince of the Kings of the earth, in two reſpects: Firſt, becauſe he (and he alone) as Mediatour, can giue lawes to binde the conſciences of men; yea of the greateſt Monarch in the world. Secondly, becauſe he hath ſoueraigne power ouer all Kings and Potentates, as well as ouer others, to ſaue, and to deſtroy: for not onely hath he power to make a law to binde their conſciences; but alſo if they keepe it, to ſaue them: if they breake his law, he hath power to deſtroy them, be they what they may be. He hath the keyes of heauen, and of hell, to open, and to ſhut at his pleaſure, Reuel. 3.7. He can, if he will, lead them to life, and ſaue them: or els leaue them to their own mind, and ſo deſtroy them. Hence C ariſe ſundrie inſtructions.

Firſt, ſeeing our Sauiour Chriſt is a Prince of the greateſt Monarchs of the world, and is farre aboue them; we muſt then with all feare and trembling reuerence his maieſtie. Great is that reuerence which men yeelde to earthly Princes: oh then what reuerence ſhould we performe to him, which is Prince and Lord of all the Kings of the earth? We cannot conceiue, what honour we owe vnto him, which is aduanced in the throne of all maieſtie. And this our reuerence we muſt ſhew, By hearing his word, with trembling and beleeuing hearts, as Iſai ſaith, chap. 66.2. We muſt not dare to thinke, or ſpeake of Chriſt, without great reuerence: At his name euery knee muſt bow; that D is, at the conſideration of the great maieſtie whereto he is now exalted, euery heart, euen of the greateſt Monarchs, ſhould be touched with ſubmiſſion, awe, and reuerence. If this tooke place in mens hearts, the name of Chriſt would not be ſo prophaned and blaſphemed as it is; in ieſting ſports, in curſing and ſwearing, whereby men toſſe it like a ball, without all reuerence to ſo great a Prince as is the King of Kings.

Secondly, ſeeing he is King of Kings, we muſt giue him abſolute obedience. Princes on earth muſt be obeied, ſo farre as they command in Chriſt, but he muſt be obeied without exception, not onely abſolutely, and perpetually in all his commandements, but moſt willinglingly and freely (as it is ſaide) his people come freely in the day of aſſembling, Pſal. 110.3. Men will ſay, they beleeue in Chriſt, as he is their Sauiour, but that is not enough, they muſt obey him alſo, as he is the King of Princes. Many perſwade themſelues, they haue a good faith in Chriſt their Sauiour, which little regard obedience to him, as their King and Lord. But they deceiue themſelues: for none can haue Chriſt for their Sauiour, which haue him not for their Lord and maſter: neither doth that man beleeue in Chriſt, which will not ſtriue to doe his will. And this our obedience muſt be ſhewed in performing thoſe duties which we heare, and learne out of his holy word.

Thirdly, ſeeing Chriſt is King of Kings, all Princes muſt doe him ſeruice: for they be all inferiour and ſubiect to him, Pſal. 72.11. This is the counſell of the holy Ghoſt: [a] Be wiſe now, O yee Kings, be learned yee Iudges of the earth: kiſſe the Sonne, &c. that is, inwardly reuerence, and outwardly obey him. This their homage muſt be ſhewed, in all the affaires of their kingdomes; They muſt frame their lawes after the lawes of Chriſt Ieſus; they muſt ſhew mercie, exerciſe iudgement, keepe Courts, Aſſiſes, beginne, ende, and continue warre according to his commandements. And ſo in euery thing, the direction of Chriſt ſhould be their guide, as it was to Dauid, Thy lawes, O Lord, haue beene my counſellers, Pſal. 119.24.

Fourthly, if Chriſt be ſoueraigne King, then all earthly Princes are bound to plant, and eſtabliſh in their kingdomes the religion of Chriſt, elſe how can they ſhew themſelues his loyall ſubiects? Many imagine, that earthly Princes may admit vnto their ſubiects any religion, for the peace of the ciuill State: but this is againſt the equitie of Gods word in this place, for wherein can earthly Princes doe homage vnto Chriſt, if they maintaine not his religion? And their dutie in this behalfe is ſignified plainly in the parable of the marriage. For when they that were bidden, did not come, the King ſent forth his [b] ſeruants (which may be vnderſtood of Chriſtian Magiſtrates) to compell men to come to the mariage: for that is the Magiſtrats dutie, in reſpect of the outward profeſſion of true religion.

Fiftly, ſeeing Chriſt alone is Prince of the Kings of the earth: hence we learne, that Kings on earth in their dominions, are ſoueraigne gouernours ouer all perſons, and in all cauſes next vnder Chriſt: he is king of kings abſolutely, and they are vnder him alone, and haue no other head but him. Whereby we ſee the preſumption & arrogancie of the Pope, and Sea of Rome, in claiming Supremacie aboue all Kings and Princes in the whole Church vpon earth. This is a deuice of the Deuill, and high treaſon againſt Chriſt: for hereby he is robbed of this royall prerogatiue, to be the onely Prince of the kings of the earth.

Laſtly, ſeeing Chriſt is King of all kings, we muſt not be diſcouraged, when we be called to ſuffer any affliction for his truth: let the tyrants of the earth rage and bend their force to hurt vs, yet we haue a king aboue them all, for whome we ſuffer: he is their king, hee can ſtay and bridle them, and if he pleaſe, confound and bruiſe them in peeces. They cannot do any thing, but that which he permits; for hee rules in the middeſt of all his enemies, Pſal. 110. 2. he can breake them in peeces like a potters veſſell. Thus much of the offices of Chriſt.

[a] Pſal. 2.10, 11, 12.

[b] Luk. 14.23.

The ſecond part of Chriſts deſcription is by the execution of his offices, which conſiſts in foure works. The firſt contained in theſe words, Vnto him which loued vs: the ſecond in theſe, which waſhed vs in his blood: the other two, in the two verſes which follow, viz. 6. and 7. For the firſt, which loued vs, that is, Iohn and the Churches of Aſia, and by proportion, all other Churches, being parts of the true church. The loue of Chriſt hath three degrees: the firſt is a generall loue, whereby he loues all his creatures, approouing the ſame to be good as they bee his by creation. The ſecond, is the loue of mankind, in that he was content to become a Redeemer for mankind, after their fall, and not for any other creature; no not for the Angels, which fell as well as man: who therefore remaine without all hope of ſaluation. The third and principall, is that whereby he loues his elect and choſen children; which is, that ſpeciall fauour, whereby he accepts of them to life euerlaſting. This third degree hath two parts: Firſt, it is taken for his purpoſe to loue: as when hee ſaith, I haue loued Iacob, and hated Eſau, Rom. 9. 13. Secondly, for the act of louing; which is the declaration of his purpoſe by ſpirituall benefits, 1. Ioh. 3. 1. Behold, what ſingular loue God hath ſhewed vnto vs, that we ſhould be called the ſonnes of God: noting the declaration of his loue in the gift of adoption. So in this verſe, by the loue of Chriſt vnto his Church, is meant the actuall declaration of his ſpeciall fauour, in accepting them for his children, and beſtowing many ſingular bleſſings vpon them.

Whereas S. Iohn placeth this in the firſt place of all the benefits of Chriſt, That he loued vs; he would teach vs, That this ſpeciall loue is the very ground of mans redemption; which excludeth all foreſeene faith and workes from beeing motiues of mans election in Gods eternall counſels, and ſo proportionally, al foreſeene ſinnes from being motiues in God of mans reprobation.

It may be obiected, The loue of God as alſo of man, reſpects a thing as it is good: Firſt, the thing muſt be good, and then it is loued; and ſo in mans redemption God firſt foreſees their goodneſſe, and therefore chuſeth them. Anſw. There is great difference betweene the loue of the creature, and of the creator. The loue of the creature followes the goodneſſe of a thing; becauſe he ſeeth it is good, therefore he loues it. But God the creator firſt loues the creature before it bee good, and hence it comes, that it is good becauſe he loues it.

Secondly, whereas Saint Iohn and all the Churches of Aſia, as other true Churches doe beleeue, and are aſſured that Chriſt loues them (for that S. Iohn taketh for granted) this ſhould mooue all men to haue this care, to labour aboue all things to bee rooted and grounded in the loue of God, ſeeing he placeth that in the firſt place. This is a principall thing, wherein the Apoſtle would haue the Epheſians rooted and grounded: and therefore praieth, That with all Saints they may be able to comprehend, what is the breadth, and length, depth, and height thereof, Eph. 2. 17. 18. 19. This we doe when we are aſſured in heart and conſcience, by the working of Gods ſpirit, that hee loues vs in Chriſt. So that hee which denies vnto vs the aſſurance of Gods loue in Chriſt, takes away the very ground of our ſaluation.

Now that wee may haue this aſſurance of Gods loue, we muſt in all good duties to God and man draw neere to God with our hearts, keeping a good conſcience in all things, and then will God draw neere to vs. If any man loue mee (ſaith Chriſt) hee will keepe my word, and then my Father will loue him, and we will come in vnto him, and dwell with him, Ioh. 14. 23. meaning by the holy Ghoſt; which ſhall ſhed this loue into our hearts, Rom. 5. 5. cauſing vs to increaſe in the feeling thereof, as wee grow in faith and obedience towards him.

And hath waſhed vs from our ſinnes in his blood. Here is the ſecond benefit and action of Chriſt to his Church. Where firſt of all the very phraſe, hath waſhed vs, doth import, that the ſinnes of men ars as filthy ſpots in their ſoules: and that himſelfe and this Church of God were touched with a ſerious conſideration of their vileneſſe, by reaſon of their ſinnes: for waſhing preſuppoſeth former filthineſſe and pollution. Thus did Dauid moſt ſenſibly feele his owne filthineſſe, and ſee his miſerable eſtate, when he deſired the Lord to [a] waſh him throughly: confeſſing thereby, that his ſoule and bodie were ſo foully ſtained, and polluted with ſinne, that once waſhing was not ynough: but ſaith he, Waſh me againe and againe, rince, bathe, and ſwill mee in the blood of Chriſt, till I bee purged and clenſed from all my ſinnes. And this ſame affection ſhould bee in euery one of vs: we ſhould labour, that our hearts may bee touched with a liuely ſenſe of our vile eſtate, by reaſon of our ſinnes, which make both bodie & ſoule moſt vgly and filthy in Gods ſight: and that the ſtaine hereof is ſo deepely ſet in our ſoules, that we can neuer be clenſed, but by the waſhing of Chriſt his owne hand, and that in his owne hearts blood; yea, that one waſhing will not ſerue, but wee muſt bee rinced and bathed therein. For till ſuch time as this conſideration doe in ſome meaſure take place in our hearts, it is not poſſible that wee ſhould loath ſinne as wee ought; or come to this comfortable aſſurance of Gods loue, that he hath waſhed away our ſinnes in his blood: for this humilitie in our ſoules by reaſon of our ſinnes, is the beginning of all true grace and comfort. Now this worke of Chriſt in waſhing vs from our ſinnes, doth comprehend a double benefit.

Firſt, the remiſſion of our ſinnes, whereby the guilt and puniſhment due to them is taken away. Secondly, the mortification of ſinne, whereby the corruption of ſinne is remooued and aboliſhed. And we muſt obſerue, that S. Iohn propounds this benefit generally without limitation, ſaying, Which waſhed vs from our ſinnes. That is, from all our ſinnes: to giue vs to vnderſtand, that if any beleeue truely in Chriſt, he hath pardon of all his ſinnes without any reſtraint or limitation, either of number or qualitie, be they neuer ſo many, or neuer ſo great.

By his blood. How can blood waſh away filthineſſe? nay, it rather defiles a man. Anſ. This waſhing ſtands not in the ſubſtance of Chriſts blood, but in the merit thereof: for that ſubſtance of blood which was ſhed is loſt, and we know not what is become of it, whatſoeuer the Papiſts ſay: but the merit thereof remaineth ſtil. And Chriſts blood deſerues to purge away ſinne, rather then any other mans blood, as of Peter, Iohn, &c. becauſe his blood was the blood of God (not of the Godhead) but of him who was both God and man. For the manhood of Chriſt was receiued into the vnion of the ſecond perſon. And ſo it may be called the blood of God, as Paul ſaith, [a] God redeemed his Church by his blood, that is Chriſt, God incarnate. And ſo it beeing the blood of him, that is God, is more meritorious then the blood of any creature whatſoeuer. Beſides Chriſt was appointed by God to be a publike perſon in the worke of Redemption, and in his death and paſſion he ſtood in the roome and ſtead of all his elect, ſo as when his blood was ſhed, their blood was ſhed, becauſe it was ſhed for them. But the blood of any other priuate men cannot anſwer for any beſides themſelues, becauſe it is ſhedde onely for themſelues. Then damnable is the doctrine of the Papiſts, who hold the blood of Martyrs, can merit for others, beeing applied vnto them: for ſeeing they be but priuate men, and ſuffered in their owne perſons onely, they cannot profit any other thereby.

By blood we muſt vnderſtand the paſſion of Chriſt, a part for the whole; and withall his fulfilling of the Law vpon the croſſe; for in his ſuffring he fulfilled the law, and in fulfilling the law he ſuffred. Theſe two cãnot be ſeuered, ſaue onely in thought. And ſo this word containes the whole obedience of Chriſt, whereby he procured the remiſſion and mortification of our ſinnes. Here then we ſee two notable benefits of Chriſt vnto his Church; his loue, and the waſhing away of ſinnes: which S. Iohn ſets downe to mooue the Churches with reuerence and diligence to read, and delight in this book. All of vs will ſay, we are ſure God loues vs, and hath pardoned our ſinnes in Chriſt: why then doe we not ſhew our loue againe to him by hearing and reading his word, ſet downe in this, or any other booke of Scripture, and by yeelding anſwerable obedience thereto? Why then doe we not offer vp our ſelues ſoules and bodies, to ſerue him, as the Apoſtle requires, Rom. 12.1 by way of recompence for his mercies and loue ſhed out vnto vs? But alas, that is more common, which is moſt ſhamefull, to turne Gods grace into wantonneſſe: for when men ſay God loues them, and hath waſhed away their ſinnes yet they rebel againſt him: when as theſe two benefits are here recorded to be inducements of continuall loue, and obedience to his holy word.

v. 6. And made vs kings and prieſts to God euen his father, to him be glorie and dominion for euermore, Amen.

In theſe words is ſet downe the third worke, and benefit of Chriſt, beſtowed on his Church, and on euery true member thereof. For the better vnderſtanding whereof, we muſt conſider in them foure points: Firſt, the dignitie and excellencie of all true members of Chriſt, They are kings and prieſts. Secondly, when they be made kings and prieſts in this life, noted by the phraſe of ſpeech, hath made. Wherein he ſpeaketh of the church on earth, and vſeth a word that ſignifieth the time paſt. Thirdly, the manner how they become Kings and Prieſts; they are not ſo borne, but Chriſt hath made them ſuch. Fourthly, to whom they be made ſuch, to God euen the Father.

For the firſt. The dignitie of all true beleeuers hath two heads; firſt, They be kings, ſecondly, prieſts. They are called kings, not in regard of an earthly kingdome, for vſually the condition of moſt beleeuers on earth is baſe and contemtible: but in regard of a ſpirituall kingdome, the kingdome of heauen, whereto the Lord giues them right, title, and intereſt, in, and by Ieſus Chriſt. So our Sauiour Chriſt ſpeaketh to his diſciples: [a] Feare not little flocke, it is your Fathers will to giue you the kingdome. And againe, Behold I giue vnto you a kingdome. Now the faithfull are kings in theſe reſpects; firſt, becauſe by Chriſt they be lords and conquerers of all theſe enemies, ſinne, Satan, the world, death, hell, and their owne fleſh. Secondly, becauſe in, and by Chriſt, they are partakers of the glorie of Chriſts kingdome and ſaluation: for they receiue of Chriſt grace for grace, and ſo anſwerably glory for glory, and felicitie for felicitie. Thirdly, becauſe they be made lords of all things in heauen and earth (except good Angels, and the Church.) All things are yours, whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas; or the world, or life, or death, whether things preſent, or to come, euen all are yours, and yee Chriſts. Queſt. But if Chriſt be king, and all his members kings, how doe they differ? Anſw. In two points: Firſt, Chriſt is the ſonne of God by nature, and ſo a king by nature, hauing the right of the kingdome of heauen by inheritance: but the members of Chriſt are ſonnes of God by adoption in his ſonne, ſo that our right to that kingdome is not by nature, but by grace. Secondly, Chriſt is an vniuerſall king ouer the Angels in heauen, the Church on earth, and all other creatures whereſoeuer; his regiment is abſolute in the hearts and conſciences of men, and he can by his word bind all things: but true beleeuers be not vniuerſall kings, for they haue no ſuperioritie aboue good Angels, and the Church. Neither are they abſolute kings as he is, nor of themſelues; but by Chriſt Ieſus, and as they participate with Chuiſt in his kingdome.

1.Cor.3.21, 22.

The ſecond part of the dignitie of true beleeuers ſtands in this, That they be prieſts conſecrate and ſet apart by Chriſt, to the worſhip and ſeruice of God here in this life in ſpirit and truth, and in the life to come, to ſerue and praiſe him eternally. Chriſt he is a prieſt, ſo are all his members; but yet there is difference, Firſt, Chriſt he is an externall and reall prieſt of the newe Teſtament, which offers vp a true, reall, and externall popitiatorie ſacrifice to God the Father for the ſinnes of mankind. As for beleeuers, they are not reall and externall prieſts, but ſpirituall, offering vp ſpirituall Sacrifice vnto God. As when any member of Chriſt giues an almes, he offers a ſacrifice to God, not a corporall ſacrifice, though the thing giuen be a bodily ſubſtance; but it is euery way ſpirituall: for to offer a reall outward ſacrifice in the newe Teſtament, is proper to Chriſt. Againe, our Sauiour Chriſt he is a perfect prieſt, and offers vp a perfect ſacrifice, but we beeing imperfect, doe offer vp imperfect ſacrifices, tainted, and blemiſhed with ſinne; yet accepted as perfect, for the worthineſſe of Chriſts ſacrifice.

The ſecond point to be conſidered, is the time when beleeuers be made kings and prieſts; namely, in this life. For as in the entrance into an earthly kingdome there be degrees: Firſt, to haue good right and title to it: ſecondly, to get poſſeſſion of it, which is more then title onely; and yet if a mans title be good, though he want poſſeſſion he may be called a king. So is it with Gods children, they haue the right giuen them of the kingdome of heauen in this life, and in that reſpect are kings. Further, in the poſſeſſion of a kingdome there be two degrees: firſt, the entrance vpon ſome part; ſecondly, the full and perfect enioying of all. Now euery true beleeuer begins to enter poſſeſſion of the kingdom of heauen in this life; for it ſtands [a] in righteouſneſſe, ioy, and peace: and they which haue theſe things in their hearts, haue the kingdome of God begun in them in this life. But the full fruition and perfect poſſeſſion of this kingdome, is reſerued to be giuen at the end of this life, and at the day of iudgement. And as true beleeuers bee kings in this world, ſo likewiſe be they prieſts, in offering ſpirituall ſacrifice to God, and dedicating and conſecrating themſelues to his ſeruice all the dayes of their life.

[a] Rom.14. 17.

The third point is, the manner how true beleeuers become kings and prieſts: they are not ſuch by nature, neither doth this dignitie come by deſcent in the blood or birth-right, or by any other priuiledge they haue from man, but onely from Chriſt Ieſus, who by diuine calling makes them ſpirituall kings and prieſts, like as B vnder the law, by ſolemne election and ordination, ſome were made earthly kings and prieſts. Now in this calling of Chriſt, two things concurre: Firſt, Chriſt giueth his members right to his owne kingdome and prieſthood: yet not ſo, that they can execute the regiment ſubſtained by Chriſt, or performe the office of his prieſthood; but becauſe they haue right in part to theſe offices, and the benefit of them both redoundeth to them wholly. And this right they haue, is brought to paſſe in the couenant of the Goſpel: wherein they are bound to beleeue in God through Chriſt; and God is bound againe to giue vnto them Chriſt withall his benefits: among which, theſe two muſt be accounted: for C indeede, euery thing which belongs to Chriſt, as hee is mediator, is conueyed in ſome ſort to euery true beleeuer. Secondly, in this diuine calling, Chriſt endues al his members with gifts and graces, whereby they are enabled for the duties of ſpirituall kings and prieſts vnto God. For as Chriſt is annointed, ſo are all his members. So the Pſalmiſt ſpeaking of Chriſt ſaith, He is annointed with the oyle of gladneſſe aboue his fellowes, Pſal. 45. 7. Therefore his fellows (that is, beleeuers) are annointed with the ſame oyle, though in leſſe meaſure. And Saint Iohn ſaith, Ye haue receiued the annoynting, 1. Iohn 2.27. Yea God himſelfe chargeth wicked men, not to touch his annointed, Pſalm.105. v.15 51. D meaning not onely Patriarkes, Kings, and Prophets, but all true beleeuers, who are then annointed, when they are endued with the gifts of the ſame ſpirit, in ſome meaſure, wherewith Chriſt in his manhoode was filled aboue meaſure.

The fourth point: To whom hath he made them kings and prieſts? Anſw. To God, euen the Father. This is added for ſpeciall cauſe, to preuent that carnall libertie which mans nature might claime from this ſpitituall royalty: for men might ſay, If all beleeuers be kings, then may they liue as they liſt: but theſe words (vnto God) doe ſhew, that the right of their kingdome, with the offices of their prieſthood, muſt all bee referred to the honour and praiſe of God, vnto whome they are made kings and prieſts.

Laſtly, he addeth, Euen his father, by way of expoſition, to ſhew more particularly to which of the perſons they are firſt of all made kings & prieſts: for the title God, muſt not here bee taken abſolutely for the diuine nature, but with reſtraint to the firſt perſon, the father: vnto whome all true beleeuers are made kings and prieſts in the firſt place, and from the father to the ſonne, and from them both, to the holy Ghoſt. And the firſt perſon in Trinitie is here named aboue the reſt, not as being aboue them in degree or honour, for ſo they be equall: but becauſe he is the firſt in order, and the fountain of the Godhead, which is conueyed from him to the Sonne, and from them both to the holy Ghoſt.

Thus much for the meaning of the words: Now follow ſundry vſes, from the conſideration of theſe two dignities of beleeuers. And firſt their kingly dignitie affordeth matter both of inſtruction and conſolation.

Inſtruct. I. Whereas all true beleeuers are made true kings in this life; hereby euery one that profeſſeth Chriſtian religion is taught, to carry himſelfe as an enemie to all thoſe that are of the kingdome of darkeneſſe; as namely to ſinne, and Satan, to the fleſh, and the world, euen through the whole courſe of his life: for by calling, euery Chriſtian hath title to the kingdome of heauen. What affinitie then can wee haue with thoſe that be both enemies of this kingdome, and of Chriſt himſelfe, that made vs kings? Now, that we may ſo carry our ſelues, as enemies, we muſt doe theſe three things; Firſt, haue care to keepe guard, and defend our ſelues, as kings againſt all our enemies, ſinne, Satan, our owne fleſh, and the enticements of the world. As kings protect their kingdomes, ſo muſt we labour to keepe our ſoules and bodies, and euery facultie and part of them, our wils, affections, thoughts, and inclinations, from the power of ſinne: He which is borne of God keepeth himſelfe (as with watch and ward) that the euill one, that is Satan, touch him not by the aſſaults of ſinne, 1. Ioh. 5. 18. Secondly, we muſt make warre continually againſt Sathan, ſinne, our owne fleſh, againſt all our ſpirituall enemies, & all the enticements of the world: we muſt make no truce with them, becauſe they will neuer be reconciled vnto vs, ſo long as we haue intereſt vnto the kingdome of heauen; and if we yeeld to them, we looſe our kingly dignitie, and become their vaſſals, and bondſlaues. Thirdly, we muſt labour to kill and deſtroy theſe our enemies as much as poſſibly we can, by that power we haue from Chriſt our head, and like valiant kings ſeeke to haue the blood of theſe enemies, and from day to day ſtriue to vanquiſh Sathan, his power and might, to ouercome the world, and to weaken our owne corruption.

Inſtruct. II. If in this life we be kings, then muſt we become Lords ouer our ſelues, and keepe in ſubiection vnto God our wils and affections, and the ſecret thoughts and inclinations of our ſoules. We muſt not looke for rule ouer earthly kingdomes: but herein ſtands our kingdome in this world, That we can ſubdue our corrupt affections, and keepe our bodies & ſoules in obedience vnto God. If a man were prince ouer the whole earth, and yet could not rule himſelfe, he were but a poore prince, nay he were no prince indeede. But though a man haue not ſo much as a foot of ground in this world, and yet can rule and maſter himſelfe, his thoughts and affections, this man is a valiant prince, and one whom Chriſt hath conſecrate to be king in heauen.

Inſtruct. III. Seeing we be kings, wee muſt doe the dutie of iudges: for to him that is a king belongeth ſoueraigne iudgement. In the day of iudgement the [a] Saints ſhall iudge the world, and Angels alſo: but we muſt be iudges in this world. And yet here wee can neither iudge men nor Angels, but we muſt be our own Iudges. Wherefore as Iudges ſummon, arraigne, condemne, &c. ſo muſt we examine our ſelues, call our ſelues to account, and as guilty perſons accuſe and condemn our ſelues for our ſinnes; acknowledging we be worthy to bee caſt into eternall damnation with the deuill and his Angels: And withall plead for pardon, and approach to the throne of grace, and forgiueneſſe in Chriſt: and in this we ſhewe our ſelues vpright ſpirituall Iudges, and by this meanes wee ſhall bee free from the iudgement to come.

Inſtruct. IIII. If we be kings by Chriſt, we muſt carry our ſelues as Kings couragiouſly, and conſtatnly in the afflictions and miſeries which wee ſhall ſuffer for Chriſts ſake. For herein among the reſt ſtands the royaltie of a king, that hee beares with a valour and courage all the troubles which befall him. Hence it is, that S. Peter exhorts vs to reioyce in afflictions, becauſe we are partakers of Chriſts ſufferings, 1. Pet. 4. 13. and ſo are made conformable vnto him that was conſecrate the prince of our ſaluation through afflictions, Heb. 2. 10.

Inſtruct. V. Seeing wee be ſpirituall kings, wee muſt aboue all things labour and ſeeke to haue our part in the kingdome of Chriſt, and in his righteouſneſſe. A Chriſtian muſt not haue his heart glued and faſt tied vnto the things of this world, it is againſt his calling: but he muſt ſo vſe this world, as though he vſed it not. If a king ſhould lay downe his crowne, and goe and become a ſhepheard or of ſome manuall trade, all men would maruell at it. So it fareth with them that profeſſe themſelues to be Chriſtians, and yet bend their wits and endeauours wholly for theſe worldly things: they doe as it were caſt aſide their kingly crowne, and abaſe themſelues to ſlauiſh bondage. But wee muſt euer after haue our hearts fixed in heauen, ſtriuing to come to our inheritance there.

Inſtruct. VI. Seeing all the true members of Chriſt be kings and princes: this ſhould bee an inducement to all backward perſons to loue and embrace true religion. In theſe careleſſe dayes Religion is counted preciſeneſſe, and the profeſſion thereof made matter of reproach. But this ought not to be ſo, ſeeing that by it we come to haue right and intereſt vnto the kingdome of heauen, & to be Lords of all creatures. And why ſhould wee not eſteeme the Goſpell preached as a moſt precious iewell, ſeeing that we which are vaſſals of Sathan, and firebrands of hell (as all men are by nature) become thereby the members of Chriſt, yea kings and princes to God? Yea verily, the conſideration of this ſhould make the miniſters of the Goſpel to ioy in their callings, and to take all paines to preach the word, ſeeing by it men become of vaſſals of Sathan, the true members of Chriſt, and heirs of the kingdome of heauen. In this world it is counted great honour to conſecrate and eſtabliſh one in an earthly kingdome: What a bleſſed and honorable thing then is this, to conſecrate ſpirituall kings for the kingdome of heauen? And this is done, when by the word preached men are conuerted and brought to vnfained repentance for their ſinnes, & to true faith in Chriſt Ieſus.

Thus much for the duties. Now follow the conſolations to euery true beleeuer onely. It is an heauie croſſe, which breeds much anguiſh to the ſoule, to be in pouertie and contempt among men; yet herein may the childe of God ſtay his heart, and leſſen his griefe, by conſidering that euen in this ſtate of miſerie, hee is a King vnto God; though hee ſeeme baſe to the world: yet it appeareth not what he ſhall bee, for he is heire to the kingdome of heauen. If a man bee in ſickneſſe, he muſt conſider it is but Gods meſſenger, to call him out of this world to the full poſſeſſion of the ioyes of his kingdome. If he be in trouble of minde, hauing his owne conſcience tormented fearefully by Satan with his ſinnes; yet he muſt not deſpaire, the Lord will giue him an happie iſſue: he muſt remember hee is a king, and therefore ſhall one day haue full conqueſt ouer ſinne, Sathan, and his owne corruption; yea, ouer all his enemies whatſoeuer. Rom.16:20. If he be in the heat of perſecution turmoiled and toſſed from poſt to pillar, which fleſh & blood cannot brooke: yet then he muſt conſider his calling to bee a ſpirituall king, whoſe propertie it is in the moſt violent afflictions, euen vnto death it ſelfe, (as Paul ſaith) to be more then conquerours, Rom. 8. 37. Laſtly, in the very pang of death, when nature muſt needs be diſſolued, ſoule and bodie ſeparated; then muſt the childe of God remember, that hee is a king in Chriſt; and this will ſtay his heart against the feare of death; for herein ſhall hee ſee, that by death, as through a ſtraight paſſage, hee ſhall enter into full poſſeſſion of his kingdome. And thus much in that we are kings.

From the ſecond dignitie of beleeuers, which is to be prieſts vnto God, we are likewiſe taught ſundry duties.

Firſt, to teach and inſtruct one another. It was A the office of the prieſt vnder the law to teach the people the will of God: The prieſts lips ſhould preſerue knowledge, Mal. 2. 7. And now vnder the Goſpel not onely the miniſter, but euery true beleeuer is a ſpirituall prieſt, and therefore ought to teach, and admoniſh one another, Col. 3. 16. When the Lord ſaith, Touch not mine annointed, and doe my Prophets no harme, Pſal. 105. 15. he calleth all his faithfull by the name of Prophets, becauſe they ought to haue the knowledge of his will, and be able alſo in due time and vpon iuſt occaſion to teach the ſame vnto others, that ſo the Goſpell of Chriſt may flouriſh. And as this dutie belongs to all men; ſo eſpecially to gouernours, as Parents and maſters, they muſt ſhew themſelues prieſts to their charges. B Abraham did it, Gen. 18. Dauid did it, Prou. 4. And Bathſhebath did it, Prou. 31. All muſt doe it, that deſire a holy generation to ſucceed after them. We teach them other things, why not religion?

Secondly, ſeeing we bee prieſts, we muſt pray vnfainedly, not onely for our ſelues, but [a] for all men, eſpecially the members of Chriſt. The prieſt in the olde Teſtament muſt pray and make requeſt, not onely for himſelfe, but for the people alſo. And herein ſtands the praiſe of a Chriſtian, to pray for his brethren. Hence it is that Paul ſaith, Pray for all the Saints, and for me, Epheſ. 6. 18. Moſes is highly commended for this dutie, eſpecially when he prayed for the Iſraelites, and ſtood before the Lord in the gappe, to turne away his wrath, Exod. 32. C Elias for his power in prayer and propheſie, is called the chariot and horſeman of Iſrael, 2. Kin. 2. 12. And this is recorded for the praiſe of Hezekia, That when the people were vnprepared at the eating of the Paſſeouer, He prayed to the Lord for mercie, and was heard, 2. Chr. 30. 18. And ſo when we finde any commended in Scripture for his gift in praier, it is not ſo much for that he prayed diligently for himſelfe, as for the whole Church of God.

Thirdly, beeing prieſts we muſt offer ſpirituall ſacrifice vnto God; that is, dedicate our ſelues, our ſoules, and bodies, and all that is in vs, our wit, learning, knowledge, and euery gift of body or minde to Gods ſeruice. D That we may doe all this to his glorie, we muſt looke, that euery thing we take in hand haue his beginning from a pure heart, a good conſcience, and faith vnfained, and be directed to a good end, to Gods glory principally, and the good of others, whom it may concerne.

Fourthly, we muſt be full of bleſſings. The prieſts in the olde Teſtament, Num. 6. vſed to bleſſe the people: ſo muſt we if we be Chriſtians, becauſe we are ſpirituall prieſts. We muſt take heede of all curſed ſpeaking, of ſlaundering and backbiting, of ſwearing and forſwearing; and giue our ſelues to bleſſed and gracious ſpeeches to all men, and of all men, friends, or foes, Rom. 12. 14.

Fiftly, wee muſt ſeeke to haue God for our portion: The Leuites had no portion in the Land of Canaan, but the tenthes only, [a] The Lord was their portion. So we beeing prieſts to God, muſt bee content with any eſtate in this world, for God is our portion. Wee muſt not ſeeke too much after any inheritance on earth, for then we cary not our ſelues like prieſts vnto God. The ſauour of God in Chriſt muſt be the thing we long for, & therein muſt we reioyce.

To him be glorie and dominion, for euermore, Amen. Theſe words are a thankſgiuing to God for the former benefits of Chriſt beſtowed on his Church: Which S. Iohn putteth in before he haue ended his record of the gracious works of Chriſt for his Church, as it were interrupting himſelfe, for the great deſire he had to the glorie of God. Whereby wee are taught, that the conſideration of Gods benefits towards vs, ſpecially ſuch as concerne the kingdome of heauen, ſhould ſtirre vp our hearts to giue continuall prayſe and glory to God. This was Dauids affection, when he felt in his ſoule the pardon of his ſinnes, and therefore he breakes out into this thankſgiuing: My ſoule prayſe thou the Lord, and forget not all his benefits, Pſal. 103. 1. And ſo did Paul, after the bleſſed memory of Gods mercy in his vocation, 1. Tim. 1. 17.

Secondly, in this example of Iohn wee may learne, what is the true forme of giuing thanks to God, namely, to aſcribe vnto him all power, glory, and abſolute dominion for euermore. But alas, it is too too manifeſt, that our corrupt nature will not doe this, but taking from God his due, beſtoweth it on creatures, yea, on our owne ſelues. It is a matter of grace to know what is due to God, and to aſcribe the ſame vnto him, and therefore we are charged to giue vnto the Lord glory & power, which in the next words hee cals the glory of his name, Pſal. 96. 7. 8. So Chriſt hee teacheth vs to aſcribe all power, glory, might, and dominion to God, when wee ſay in the Lords prayer, For thine is the kingdome, the power, and glory: that is, The kingdome of heauen is thine; all power in heauen and earth is thine, and therefore all glorie is thine; and from our hearts we doe aſcribe the ſame vnto thee.

Laſtly, S. Iohn addeth, Amen, that is, ſo bee it. Let all glory and dominion bee giuen to Chriſt; which is the ſame hee ſayed before. Whereby hee doth teſtifie his feruent affection, and ſtrength of deſire, after the glory of Chriſt, elſe he would not haue doubled his thankſgiuing. And ſo ſhould it be with vs, we ſhould not freeſe in our thankſgiuing for Gods benefits, but labour to haue our hearts and tongues to double the ſame, that thereby we may teſtifie our feruent and earneſt deſire after his praiſe and glorie.

v. 7. Behold, he commeth with clouds; and euery eye ſhall ſee him: yea, euen they which pierced him through: and all kinreds of the earth ſhall wayle before him, Euen ſo, Amen.

Theſe words are a declaration of the fourth action of our Sauiour Chriſt towards his Church; and that is, his ſecond comming to iudgement, to iudge both quicke and dead. Wherein we are to conſider ſundry points: firſt, this note of attention, Behold: ſecondly, the action of Chriſts comming it ſelfe, He commeth: thirdly, the manner how, with clouds; amplified by the manifeſtation thereof, Euery eye ſhall ſee him, euen they that pierced him: fourthly, the effect of his comming: All tribes of the earth ſhal waile: Fiftly, the cōcluſion of this narration, with two notes of aſſeueration, Euen ſo, Amen, to confirme the ſecond comming of Chriſt vnto all people.

I. Point. Behold. Firſt, S. Iohn beginneth this narration with a note of attention. The ſpirit of God is accuſtomed, when any thing is of eſpeciall weight, and worth our carefull marking, to prefixe before it this note of attention; Behold, or ſuch like. Hence then we are taught this ſpeciall dutie, namely, often and euery day earneſtly and ſeriouſly to bethinke our ſelues of the ſecond comming of Chriſt to iudgement. This conſideration is a matter of great vſe, for it is a notable meanes to begin and continue the conuerſion of a ſinner vnto God. When the Scribes and Phariſes, obſtinate enemies, came to the baptiſme of S. Iohn, hee vſed this as a meanes to make them to turne, and beleeue in Chriſt, ſaying, Oh generation of vipers, who hath forwarned you that you ſhould flie from the vengeance to come? Matth. 3. 7. So Peter vſeth this ſame Argument, to bring the Iewes to repentance: exhorting them to turne, that their ſinnes might be put away, when the day of refreſhing (that is) the day of iudgement ſhould come, Act. 3. 19. Paul perſwades the Athenians to repentance, Becauſe there is a day appointed in which the Lord will iudge the world by Ieſus Chriſt, Act. 17. 30, 31.

Secondly, this note of attention ſerues to ſtrike our hearts with a feare and reuerence of Chriſt Ieſus: for it giues vs warning that he ſhal come to bee our Iudge. We are touched with awe and reuerence toward earthly Magiſtrates, when wee conſider, that they haue authoritie to attach, apprehend, and to bring vs to their courts and aſſiſes: How much more ſhould this worke in vs a reuerend awe towards Chriſt, when we conſider, That one day wee muſt all be brought before his Tribunall ſeat, and there be iudged of him.

II. Point. The comming of Chriſt himſelfe, He comes: that is, Chriſt locally deſcendeth from the higheſt heauen, in his manhood, to that part of this world, where the clouds be, there to giue iudgement vpon all mankind quicke and dead. Here marke in what manner Iohn propounds his comming: he ſaith not, hee ſhall come, but in the preſent time, hee commeth. Wherby he would teach vs: Firſt, that this ſecōd cōming of Chriſt is as certaine, as if it were now preſent. Secondly, that it is not long to, or far off, but will be quickly. Thirdly, that our duty is, to conſider of the comming of Chriſt, as of a thing preſent. This Saint Iohn learned, and ſo ſhould we by his example, for it is a matter of great vſe. For hence we are taught, to deſire & doe that euery day, which we would deſire and doe in the day of iudgement; and bleſſed is hee that attaineth hereunto.

Now that wee may come to the practiſe of this dutie, wee muſt daily conſider of the comming of Chriſt, not as a thing to be delayed or farre off, but as a thing preſent. We muſt euery day call our ſelues to a reckoning and account, and perſwade our ſelues this may bee the laſt day; and ſo ſhall we carry our ſelues euery day, as wee would in the laſt day. Now we would wiſh at the day of iudgement, that we did repent and beleeue in Chriſt: and therefore euery day of our life, before the laſt iudgement come, wee ought to repent and beleeue in Chriſt. If this dutie were practiſed, wee ſhould find leſſe corruption, and more grace in our hearts, and leſſe ſinne, and more obedience in our liues euery day then other: but grace is wanting, and ſinne abounds, becauſe this meditation takes no place in our hearts. Againe, in that he ſaith, He commeth, meaning in reſpect of his manhood; hence we gather, he is abſent from vs, in regard of bodily preſence; and the heauens muſt containe him vntill the day iudgement; But if Chriſt were alwaies bodily preſent in the Sacrament, he could not be ſaid to come, but onely to manifeſt himſelfe, beeing before preſent. And therefore the opinion of thoſe, which hold the bread to be really Chriſts body, to be in or about the bread of the Sacrament, is moſt falſe and friuolous, flat againſt that article of our faith, whereby we hold, That he comes from heauen onely at the laſt day, in regard of his manhood.

III. Point. The manner of Chriſts comming, in two things: Firſt, that hee comes with clouds: Secondly, that his comming is open, and viſible to euery eye.

Pſal.18.97.

Firſt, with cloudes. Here S. Iohn ſpeaketh after the manner of the Prophets, who to ſet out God in his maieſty and glory, ſay, hee comes with cloudes, rides on the wings of the wind; as though hee had ſaid, he comes in exceeding maieſtie and glory. Theſe words are added to make a diſtinction betweene the firſt and ſecond comming of Chriſt. His firſt comming was in humilitie, borne of a poore virgin, entertained in a ſtable of an Inne: but his ſecond comming is with glorie, maieſtie, and dominion in the clouds. And the reaſon is, becauſe he came firſt to be a redeemer, and a Sauiour by his ſuffering; and therefore came in the ſtate of a ſeruant. But his ſecond comming is to be a Iudge of all men, yea of his enemies; and therefore he commeth with all might, maieſtie, and glorie, to ſhew himſelfe king and lord of all.

The vſes of this his ſecond comming, are ſet downe in the 97. Pſalme, to make the very mountaines to tremble, to confound the wicked and vngodly; and to comfort the godly in that day.

Secondly, for his open appearance; Euery eye ſhall ſee him, he ſhall come in maieſtie and glorie: not ſecretly, but in viſible ſhewe to all the world. All men ſhall ſee him with their owne eies: All I ſay, which were ſince the world began to his comming.

In theſe words he toucheth three points: Firſt, he taketh it here for graunted, that euery man ſhall riſe from death to life, though their death were neuer ſo ſtrange, or neuer ſo long before. Secondly, that all men beeing raiſed againe, ſhall haue life, and motion, and their ſenſes reſtored to them, as before they died. Thirdly, that all men, none excepted, ſhall come and ſtand before the tribunall ſeate of Chriſt, and there be iudged of him in the clouds.

The conſideration whereof is, Firſt, an exceeding comfort to Gods children, in that they beeing dead, and rotten in their graues, ſhall riſe, and receiue their life, and motion, and ſee Chriſt their Sauiour, and iudge of all men. If a man when he layeth him downe to ſleepe, ſhould be tolde, that when he roſe he ſhould ſee his dead father and mother; or his deereſt friends, whom he ſaw not of long before; this would be a notable comfort to him, that now he ſhould enioy them againe: but how farre greater comfort ſhall this yeeld to all the godly who haue been dead and rotten in the graue, That they ſhall be raiſed vp, and not onely meete with godly friends, but enioy Chriſt Ieſus the ſonne of God, which is the friend of friends; who ſhall giue them not onely life and motion, but eternall life with his owne maieſtie. This was Iobs comfort, that though he died, yet he beleeued he ſhould ſee his redeemer with his eyes. And this ſhould be our comfort againſt the feare of death, and laſt iudgement.

Secondly, this is a terror to the wicked, and to all impenitent ſinners, that they ſhall (will they, nill they) be brought to the barre of Chriſts iudgement ſeate, and there look on him who is their iudge, whom they haue in their life contemned and deſpiſed. And this conſideration may ſerue to mooue them to repentance which haue not begun to repent, and to labour to become the members of Chriſt; as alſo to increaſe and further repentance in them, who haue by Gods grace begun the ſame. It may be ſome doe thinke when they die, all is done, and there is no further account to follow: but though we lie rotten in our graues a thouſand, or two thouſand yeares; yet we ſhall riſe and looke vpon our iudge with our owne eyes. And if we haue not in our life time repented, we ſhall heare him with our owne eares, giuing the dreadfull ſentence againſt vs, Goe yee curſed into euerlaſting fire. And therefore it is beſt for vs in this day of grace to preuent this danger, and now repent, and beleeue in Chriſt: that then we may riſe with ioy, and ſtand with boldneſſe before Chriſt Ieſus. No doubt if we were perſwaded that we ſhould thus appeare, it would mooue vs to repent.

Thirdly, Euery eye ſhall ſee him: that is, all men with their owne eyes ſhall looke on him. Hence it may be gathered, that thoſe who wanted their ſight in this life, ſhall haue it then reſtored. It is graunted of all Diuines, that the Elect ſhall haue all their ſenſes, and other defects reſtored, wherein they were wanting in this life: And it may alſo be added, that the wicked ſhall then haue ſome of their ſenſes reſtored, if they wanted the ſame in this life; as hearing, and ſeeing at the leaſt; for the deafe ſhall heare, the blind ſhall ſee this Iudge. And this can be no glorie to them, ſeeing it is to increaſe their miſerie: for the more ſenſes they haue, the more puniſhment they ſhall feele, becauſe by ſenſe we apprehend miſerie.

Euen thoſe which pierced him. Here is added a further euidence of Chriſts manifeſtation of his comming, and that for three cauſes. Firſt, to ſhew that no power, or wiſdome in the world, can free any one from his appearance. For if any could eſcape, in all likelihood it would be thoſe Iewes and Gentiles who preuailed moſt againſt Chriſt, and put him to death. But none of thoſe can eſcape his iudgement; for euen they which pierced him, they ſhall ſee this Iudge, and be ſummoned before his Maieſtie. For though they had power to kill him, yet none of them ſhall haue power to abſent themſelues from before his barre of iudgement at the laſt day.

Secondly, to ſhew the caſe of all wicked men: namely, that ſuch woe and miſerie ſhall befall them as they neuer once thought of. The Iewes and Gentiles which crucified Chriſt, neuer dreamed of this; that he whome they then put to a temporall death, ſhould one day be a Iudge, and condemne them to eternall death, vnleſſe they had repented.

Thirdly, to ſhew the rufull and woſull eſtate of all impenitent ſinners; they ſhall riſe to iudgment, and haue their greateſt enemie their Iudge, who will ſhew rigor vpon them, and iuſtice without all mercie: for this piercing of Chriſt is meant not onely of the Iew, which put him to death, but of all vngodly perſons; becauſe all ſuch do by their ſinnes, as with ſwords and ſpeares, wound him at the heart, as the ſoldiers did. Impenitent ſinners be as the Iewes which crucified Chriſt, as Iudas which betrayed A him, and as the ſouldiers which goared his ſide: and vnleſſe they now repent, they ſhall one day be iudged as his enemies.

Euen they which pierced him. Out of theſe words ſome gather, that the bodie of Chriſt hath ſtill the wounds and skarres which were giuen him at his death, the print of the nayles in his hands and his feete, and that theſe ſhall be ſeene in him at the laſt day: adding withall, that it is no blemiſh to Chriſt to haue theſe, but rather an encreaſe of his glorie. But this cannot be gathered hence, for though it be ſaid, They ſhall ſee him whom they pierced; yet it followeth not, that they ſhall ſee him as he was pierced: what though they ſee the perſon whom they wounded, ſhall they therefore ſee his wounds? B Many ſhall ſee kings and queenes whom they crowned in this world, but it followeth not, that therefore they ſhall weare their crownes. So we ſhall ſee our fathers and mothers, but not as fathers and mothers.

I V. Point. The fruite and effect of his comming, eſpecially in the wicked in theſe words; And all tribes of the earth, ſhall waile before him. Where S. Iohn ſpeaks of the whole world according to the condition of the Land of Canaan: for onely that part of the world was diuided into tribes. As in like caſe our Sauiour Chriſt ſetteth out the iudgement of the whole world, according to the ſtate and manner of iudging the viſible Church, Mat. 25. So that C his meaning is, that they which repented not, of what nation ſoeuer, of what ſtate, or condition ſoeuer they haue beene, ſhall waile, and mourne at that day. And he addes a reaſon of this their mourning, in theſe words, for him, before him, or ouer him: that is, they ſhall waile, and lament with exceeding lamentation, becauſe they beleeued not his word, but contemned him, and his doctrine, and therefore nowe they want all helpe to free them from the puniſhment of their vnbeleefe, and contempt of the Goſpell: for this time is the onely time of grace and mercie: afterward there is no worke, nor inuocation that can alter mans eſtate.

D Hence then we are admoniſhed, firſt, that in this world we labour aboue all things to be reconciled to God in Chriſt, to get our ſinnes pardoned, to beleeue and embrace his holy word; and vnleſſe we attaine hereunto in this life, we ſhall waile eternally: for when the laſt day is come, there is no hope of helpe, no way to eſcape, no time of grace to repent. Remember the fooliſh virgins, that ſought for oyle, when it was too late, and knocked when the doores were ſhut, Matth. 25. But if by Gods mercey we can in this life get his loue and fauour in Chriſt, then ſhall we enioy the ſame eternally: yea, at this dreadfull day to all the wicked, we ſhall lift vp our heads, & our harts, when we ſhall ſee Chriſt comming to our full redemption: all teares ſhall be wiped from our eies, when the wicked ſhall cry and houle, woe and alas for euermore. The deuill knowing the worth of this admonition will labour by all meanes to keepe it from our hearts. But this ſhall be our wiſedome, betime to ſue for grace, and ſo ſhall we defeat Satan, and preuent eternall wailing.

Secondly, here ſee what an euill conſcience is: It lieth aſleep here while a man liues, and neuer troubleth him, and ſo it may doe in death alſo: but in the laſt day when he ſhall ſee his Iudge with his eies, then it will ſtirre, it will torment him, it will attach, accuſe, and condemne him, it wil lay to his charge all his ſinnes, his contempt of Chriſt and his word, his vnbeleefe in the time of grace; and then it will breake his heart, beeing as good as a thouſand witneſſes to condemne him.

This ſhould cauſe all men to labour to get a good conſcience, waſhed and purged in the blood of Chriſt, which will not ſuffer vs to lie in any one ſinne; and vpon our repentance will aſſure vs we be in the fauour of God: Which if it doe in this life, then it will neuer make vs to waile at the laſt day, but it will excuſe vs, and make vs looke vp to our Redeemer, and to reioyce in him. But take heede when thy conſcience lieth aſleepe, and accuſeth not for thy ſinnes, no not at death; that is an euill conſcience which will awake at the day of iudgement to torment and condemne thee.

V. Point. The meanes whereby he confirmeth the certaintie of the ſecond comming of Chriſt; that is, by a double note of aſſeueration: Euen ſo, Amen. One of theſe is taken from the Greekes, Euen ſo, the ſecond from the Hebrewes, Amen: beeing both as much as Amen, Amen, or verily, verily. In which phraſe Saint Iohn teacheth vs, how to confirme the things we auouch. There be three wayes whereby a thing may be auouched: Firſt, by a ſimple and bare affirmation, or negation: Secondly, by an earneſt aſſeueration: Thirdly, by an oath. Now Saint Iohn vſeth theſe two notes of aſſuring in this weightie matter of Chriſts ſecond comming, ſaying, He commeth, euen ſo, Amen; that is, certainly, and without all doubt it is ſo. Hereby teaching vs, firſt, that an aſſeueration muſt not be vſed, but onely when the matter is of great weight and moment. Here then we ſee that wretched is their practiſe, who vſe to bind euery word with an oath; which is a degree aboue this aſſeueration. Yea, they alſo are here iuſtly reproued, who in their ordinarie communication haue euer in their mouth ſome weightie aſſeueration. Our Sauiour often vſeth theſe words of aſſeueration, yet only in matters of weight and moment, and when the hearers were to be mooued to greater attention, and their hearts were to be more fully ſettled in ſome truth of great importance.

Secondly, by theſe aſſeuerations Iohn would teach vs to hold againſt the practiſe of Atheiſts, that the comming of Chriſt is moſt certaine and vndoubted. Which thing we ſhould more ſeriouſly obſerue; becauſe in our corrupt na- A ture there is bred this falſe perſwaſion, That either we ſhal not be ſummoned to iudgement, or els, that Chriſts comming is farre off: like to the euill ſeruant, who ſaith, My maſter deferres his comming: which euill ſeruant by nature is euery one of vs.

Thirdly, hereby Iohn giues vs to vnderſtand one ſpeciall note and mark of the child of God: namely, to deſire and long after vnfainedly the ſecond comming of Chriſt to iudgement: for as theſe words be an aſſeueration, ſo withall they containe a moſt earneſt deſire: Euen ſo, Amen, as if he ſhould ſay by way of anſwer to the proclaiming of his comming, Lord grant it be ſo, yea Lord, let it be ſo. Hence it is that S. B Paul deſcribes all thoſe, who muſt receiue the crowne of righteouſneſſe, by this propertie, that they loue his appearing, 2. Tim. 4. 8. As for the vngodly it is not ſo with them, they (being not iuſtified nor ſanctified, and ſo not reconciled to God in Chriſt) cannot loue this appearing. Nay they could wiſh with all their hearts there were no hell, nor laſt iudgement. And by this one note we may well iudge of our eſtates; for if from our hearts we deſire and long for this ſecond comming to iudgement, and wiſh he would come [a] quickly, then it is a certaine token and ſigne we be reconciled to God in Chriſt, and ſhall receiue the crowne of righteouſneſſe. But if as yet we feele not this longing and hungring deſire in vs, then we muſt C ſuſpect our ſelues, and labour euery day to feele it: for it is the deſire of the Saints to ſay, [b] How long Lord. And with Iohn, Euen ſo, Amen.

V. 8. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ende, ſaith the Lord, which is, which was, and which is to come, euen the Almightie.

After Saint Iohn had deſcribed Chriſt at large in the former verſes: he bringeth him ſpeaking of himſelfe by a figure, as may appeare by this clauſe (ſaith the Lord.)

D The ende and ſcope of theſe words in this verſe, is to confirme that which was before ſpoken of Chriſt, beeing a proofe and reaſon thereof, after this manner to be conceiued. He which is the beginning and the ende of all, &c. he is ſufficient to be a King, Prieſt, and Prophet to the Church, and is both able and willing to beſtow on them all bleſſings which ſerue for their good. The firſt part of this argument is omitted, the ſecond part is contained in this eight verſe: But I am the beginning and the ende; and therefore I am ſufficient, &c.

In this eight verſe are three points concerning Chriſt. Firſt, he is the beginning and the ende. Secondly, he is, was, and is to come. Thirdly, he is Almighty. For the firſt: that Chriſt is the beginning, and ende, Saint Iohn expreſſeth by a compariſon taken from the Greeke alphabet: and it ſtandeth thus. As in the A, B, C, of the Grecians, Alpha is the firſt letter, and therefore the beginning of all the letters; and Omega is the laſt, and therefore the ende of all the letters: So (ſaith Chriſt) am I the beginning of all things that are, and the ende of all things. The firſt part of this ſimilitude is in theſe words, I am Alpha and Omega; that is, I am as Alpha and Omega. The ſecond part in theſe words, The beginning and the ende.

From this and ſuch like manner of ſpeaking, the Papiſts gather; that it is lawfull to worſhip God in a ſtrange language; And that the Scriptures are to be read and deliuered to the people in an vnknowne tongue. But their collection is friuolous: For though the vnlearned Engliſh man know not what Alpha and Omega is; yet the Churches to whome this booke was written, beeing Grecians, knew generally what was meant hereby.

Againe, though the ſpirit of God vſeth here and there a ſtrange word or phraſe, yet we may not follow that practiſe in the whole ſeruice and worſhip of God, whereby neither the word, nor prayer, ſhould be vnderſtood of the people, as the Papiſts doe.

I am the beginning. Chriſt is ſaide to be the beginning for two cauſes. Firſt, becauſe he was the very firſt of all things: there was nothing before him; he had a beeing when all creatures were not; then was he the ſame that he is now: & for this ſaith S. Iohn, c. 1.1. In the beginning was the word, that is, the Sonne of God, he had his beeing, and ſubſiſting when all other creatures wanted it, and began to be.

This prooueth the eternitie of Chriſt, becauſe he had his beeing before any creature; he was a ſubſtance and eſſence begotten of the Father before all worlds, not created as other creatures are, or made of any other.

Secondly, he is called the beginning; becauſe he giueth a beginning to all creatures: For all things which were created, and had a beeing, were created by him, and had their beeing from him. So ſaith the Apoſtle, All things are from him, Col. 1. 16. And hence we learne, that when we goe about any buſineſſe in word or deede, we muſt begin it with inuocation in the name of Chriſt: for Chriſt he giues the beginning, and proceeding to all things. And without his helpe we cannot haue in any thing good ſucceſſe.

Secondly, the ſame Chriſt is the ende of all things, and that for two cauſes: Firſt, becauſe he is the laſt of all things, and after him is nothing in ſubſiſting, and beeing: for all creatures if they were left to themſelues, would come to nothing. And whereas ſome creatures be eternall, it is not of themſelues, but by him, and from him which is the ende. But though they all ſhould come to nothing, yet Chriſt would remaine the ſame he was for euer, namely, the eternall Sonne, and word of the Father. This then ſhould make vs with full purpoſe of heart

A to cleaue vnto Chriſt in all things, if we would enioy eternall happineſſe; for without him is nothing but changing; and vnleſſe we haue our ſtableneſſe from him, we cannot but come to an ende.

Secondly, he is the end; becauſe all things in heauen and earth were made to ſerue him: For him were all things created, Col. 1. 16. that is, to ſerue for his glorie and praiſe.

The ſecond thing here ſaid of Chriſt is this, Which is, was, and is to come. Theſe words were expounded in the 4. verſe, where the very ſame are affirmed of the Father. The meaning is, that Chriſt is in preſent a perfect ſubſtance, and eſſence or beeing, ſubſiſting in, by, and from himſelfe, and ſuch a ſubſtance he was in time paſt, from all eternitie, and ſuch B as ſhall continue in time to come for euermore.

Hence we learne three things. Firſt, that the ſecond perſon in the Trinitie is conſubſtantiall with the father, that is, of one and the ſame ſubſtance and nature with him. The reaſon is, becauſe there can be but one onely ſubſtance or eſſence, which hath beeing in and by it ſelfe, and from it ſelfe alone: neither can we conceiue how there ſhould be two, or more, but onely one; as there cannot be two eternalls, or two infinites, two omnipotents and abſolute lords, which haue nothing one of another. Now in the 4. verſe it is ſaide of the Father, That he is a ſubſtance of himſelfe, in himſelfe, and from himſelfe alone. And here the ſelfe-ſame thing is C ſaid of the ſecond perſon, the Sonne. And therefore he is of the very ſame ſubſtance with the Father: for though they be diſtinct perſons in the Godhead; yet they haue but one and the ſame ſubſtance; one and the ſame diuine nature, and Godhead.

Secondly, hence we may gather, That Chriſt is God of himſelfe; becauſe as the Father is, was, and ſhall be; ſo the Sonne is, was, and ſhall be; and that in the ſame reſpects: So that as the Father is God of himſelfe, and from none other, ſo the Sonne is God of himſelfe, and from none other. Indeede as he is the Sonne, the ſecond perſon, ſo he is of the Father, and hath his beeing from him by eternall generation: but as he is God, he is conſubſtantiall with the Father, D and coequall with him, and hath his eſſence of, and in him alone. And the ſame is to be affirmed of the holy Ghoſt; as he is the third perſon, he proceedes from the Father and the Son, but as he is God, he is of himſelfe, and from none other.

Thirdly, hence we learne, that Chriſt is coeternall with the Father, being euerlaſting as the father is, & euery way coequal, hauing the ſame attributes of the godhead that the Father hath.

The third point touching Chriſt is, that he is the Almightie. There is in God, and ſo in Chriſt, a double power: Firſt, a Potētial: ſecondly, an Actual power. Potentiall is that, whereby he can doe many things moe then euer he did, or will doe: as he could raiſe children to

Abraham of the ſtones, but he would not: he could haue deliuered Chriſt from death, but he would not. Now Chriſts omnipotencie is not to be vnderſtood of his potentiall power here principally, but rather of his actuall power, whereby he bringeth to paſſe without let and impediment whatſoeuer he decreeth, willeth, or promiſeth.

From this omnipotencie of Chriſt ariſeth a double comfort to his Church: Firſt, That whatſoeuer he hath promiſed in his Goſpel, is yea, and Amen: that is, ſhall be brought to paſſe effectually without ſtoppe and let, as aſſuredly as he promiſed it. Now Chriſt hath promiſed in his Goſpell to all penitent ſinners remiſſion of ſinnes, mortification, iuſtification, and life euerlaſting; euery one whereof, ſhall in due time be done to euery true beleeuer, which is a ſingular comfort to them; for all men and Angels cannot giue one of theſe to any one man, but Chriſt he is omnipotent, and he both can and will effect them all to his elect.

The ſecond comfort: that Chriſt both can and will giue his Church ſufficient ſecuritie and protection through all the miſeries of this life: he can defend and guard her againſt all the fury and malice of Satan, and all her enemies: he is aboue them, and can bridle their might, when and how he pleaſeth.

Hence alſo, that Chriſt is Almightie, we are taught two duties. Firſt, vnder the croſſe and in tribulation to humble our ſelues vnder his mightie hand: for it is he which correcteth vs, who is Almightie, able to doe what he liſt, and more then he will, reſiſtance or repining will doe vs no good. Secondly, this ſhould mooue vs to performe heartie obedience vnto Chriſt in all things, both in our generall and particular callings to walke vprightly before him, for he is Almightie, and ſeeth whether we walk ſincerely before him or not; if we doe not, he is able to puniſh vs. By this Argument God perſwadeth Abraham to walke vprightly before him, becauſe he is Almightie, able to correct & deſtroy thoſe which refuſe to obey him, Gen. 17. 1.

v.9. I John, euen your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdome and patience of Ieſus Chriſt, was in the Iſle called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the witneſſing of Ieſus Chriſt.

Hitherto we haue entreated of the Preface of this booke, containing the title and inſcription thereof. Now from this ninth verſe, to the ende of the third chapter, is contained one of thoſe ſeuen viſions which were ſhewed vnto Iohn, and are ſet downe in this booke. In this A firſt viſion two things are to be noted: firſt, the circumſtances: ſecondly the parts thereof. The circumſtances in the ninth and tenth verſes: the parts, from thence to the ende of the 3. chapter.

The circumſtances of this viſion are foure, firſt, the perſon to whom this viſion was ſhewed, namely, Iohn: The ſecond, the place where, at Patmos: The third, the manner how it was propounded; It was deliuered vnto him beeing rauiſhed in the ſpirit: The fourth, the time when, on the Lords day.

For the firſt: Iohn is the perſon to whom this viſion befel; who doth therefore name himſelfe, to ſhewe, that it was giuen him of the Lord: for as the Lord hath his viſions and reuelations (as hath beene ſaid) ſo the deuill hath his: but verſ. 1. B they may be diſtinguiſhed by the perſons to whom they be giuen; God giueth his viſions not to all men, but vnto thoſe which are moſt fit for them; ſuch as be moſt holy men for life, endued with exceeding gifts of God, as knowledge, wiſedome, conſtancie, zeale, pietie, and religion: So in the olde Teſtament he deliuered not them to all, but to his ſeruants the Prophets, men of ſingular gifts and graces, and of exceeding holineſſe and pietie. Indeede the Lord reuealed ſom particular things by wicked men, as by Baalam, and Cayphas, but they neuer knew what thoſe things meant which were ſhewed vnto them. It is a propertie belonging to the ſeruants of God, to receiue a viſion, and C to know the ſame to their comfort. And for both theſe was Iohn throughly qualified, he was a man of exceeding holineſſe of life (for Chriſt loued him) and of ſingular and rare gifts, full of zeale, loue, and pietie, and alſo had the knowledge of this viſion made knowne vnto him: but the deuill maketh no ſuch choiſe; his viſions befall men which are Heretickes, wicked notorious ſinners, who haue no ſuch rare and ſpeciall gifts as the other haue; ſo that we muſt eſteeme of this, as a ſingular gift of God to his owne Apoſtle S. Iohn.

Now Iohn hauing named himſelfe to be the receiuer of this viſion: for the greater credit hereof, he deſcribes himſelfe by two modeſt D tearmes: Firſt, A brother: ſecondly, A companion: Firſt, he calls himſelfe their brother; that is, of them who by faith were all members of the myſticall body of Chriſt. For the Church of God is a family, whereof God the father is head and houſe-holder, Ieſus Chriſt is the elder brother, and all beleeuers are fellowe brethren in and by Chriſt, beeing by faith the adopted ſonnes of God, members of that familie, and brethren each to other.

By this title (your brother) firſt he ſetteth out his humilitie, and great modeſtie. For he was a man at that time aboue all men which liued, in regard of his gifts and holineſſe of life, he was the laſt Apoſtle, and had the Apoſtolicall authoritie, beeing a moſt zealous and conſtant profeſſor, yet he calleth himſelfe a brother to all true beleeuers, and maketh himſelfe but quall with them, though they were farre inferiour to him. And ſo ſhould we eſteeme better of our brethren then of our ſelues, and make our ſelues inferiour to them.

Secondly, by this title we ſee he had his heart full of brotherly loue to all the members of the Church of Chriſt, he loued them as brethren. So we are bound to loue all men, euen our enemies, as they be of the ſame fleſh with vs, but thoſe that be of the ſame faith and religion with vs, to theſe eſpecially ſhould we ſhew our loue and affection. So Paul ſaith to the Chriſtian Romans, Be affectioned to loue one another with brotherly loue, Rom. 12. 10. And great reaſon: for beleeuers are linked each to other with the neereſt bond: they haue the ſame father, which is God, the ſame Redeemer, the ſame faith, hope, baptiſme, and the ſame benefit by Ieſus Chriſt, his death and obedience.

Iſa.66.5. But this dutie is not practiſed: there be that call themſelues brethren, who (as Iſai ſaith) hate them that tremble at the word, and mocke them euen for the profeſſion of the ſame religion, whereby they thinke to be ſaued. If any ſeeme to make more conſcience of their waies then others, they are reuiled and hated for the name of Chriſt: which ought not to be, for among all true Chriſtians ſhould be brotherly loue.

The ſecond title, Companion, or Copartner in three things: in tribulations, in the kingdome, and in the patience of Chriſt. He calls himſelfe Copartner with them in tribulations for two cauſes. Firſt, becauſe at that time when he wrote this viſion, the whole Church was in perſecution and tribulation, vnder that cruell tyrant Domitian, about fourescore or an hundred yeares after Chriſt, who baniſhed Iohn into Patmos: where he was not vnmindfull of the afflictions of the Church, whereof he was a member: and therefore calls himſelfe a partner with them in affliction.

By which he ſhewes, what is the ſtate of Gods Church in this world, namely, to be vnder the croſſe: and the members thereof muſt not be companions of peace and eaſe, but copartners in affliction and tribulation. And therfore Chriſt teacheth thoſe which will be his Diſciples, theſe leſſons. Firſt, to denie themſelues, to take vp his croſſe daily, and to follow him. And becauſe of this eſtate, the Church in this world is called The Militant Church, beeing in continuall fight againſt the deuill and his inſtruments. The conſideration whereof is of ſpeciall vſe: Firſt, we in this land haue had peace and quietneſſe for many yeares without perſecution, which we muſt acknowledge for a ſpeciall bleſſing vouchſafed to vs for this ende; that now in the time of peace we might prepare our ſelues againſt the day of triall. For ſeeing the eſtate of the Church is to be vnder afflictions; we are all in dutie bound to waite continually when God will call vs out to ſuffer for his ſake. No man can define the time, or the manner of our triall: but yet that it will come, A we muſt reſolue; becauſe of the vſuall eſtate of the Church. God hath for a long time ſent forth labourers into his harueſt, whereby no doubt many ſheaues are gathered into the Lords barne. Now after this long gathering, there will come a day of fanning: The Lord will take into his hand the fanne of affliction, and put it into his corne, and thereby trie the chaffe from the wheat. It ſtands vs therefore in hand to prepare our ſelues in this time of peace that we may be ſound good corne in the Lords ſieue, and not chaffe which muſt be caſt into vnquenchable fire.

Secondly, he calls himſelfe their copartner in affliction; becauſe his pitifull heart was mooued with the bowels of compaſſion, towards all his B fellow members; when he remembred their perſecution, and affliction vnder the cruell tyrant Domitian. And the ſame affection ſhould be in euery one of vs towards the poore afflicted ſeruants of Chriſt: ſeeing they be our fellow members, we ſhould haue a fellow-feeling with them, weeping with them that weep, and ſhew our compaſſion in pitying them. If the foote be pricked, the head ſtoopes, the eye beholds and lookes on it, the finger pulls it out, the hand applies the plaiſter, the other foote is readie to runne for helpe, the tongue to aske for counſell, and all the members are readie to affoard their mutuall helpe in pitie and fellow-feeling: ſo when any members of the Church ſuffer affliction, be pricked with perſe- C cution for Chriſts cauſe; then ſhould we as members of the ſame bodie, be readie to doe all the helpe we can to them, eſpecially in ſhewing our fellow-feeling with them.

The ſecond thing wherein he is this copartner is, in the kingdome of Chriſt, that is, the kingdome of heauen. Where obſerue, that he placeth fellowſhip in affliction, before companion in the kingdome: to giue vs to vnderſtand, that through afflictions and croſſes for Chriſts ſake, is the ready way to this kingdome. It is that way which is beaten and troden by the Prophets, Apoſtles, and the Saints of God: as the Apoſtle ſaith, [a] Through manifold tribu- D lations we muſt enter into heauen. And, [b] This momentanie affliction causeth to vs an infinite weight of glorie; not by deſeruing it, but by ſhewing the plaine way thither. Whereby we are taught, not to thinke it hard, when trialls doe befall vs, but rather to count it a good thing, yea exceeding great gladneſſe, when any affliction doth befall vs for Chriſts ſake: for hereby we are brought like wandring ſheepe into that beaten path which leadeth to heauen. Nay, we muſt rather maruell when we profeſſe the Goſpel, and haue no affliction; then we may [c] feare we be out of the way, ſeeing the Lord afflicts euery child which is his owne.

b 2.Cor.4.27
c Heb.12.8.

Thirdly, he is Copartner in patience; which he addeth, becauſe it is a moſt worthie vertue, whereby we are made able to perſeuere in affliction till we come to heauen. Afflictions are the beaten way, heauen is our ioyfull ende, patience is the meanes to make vs goe on till we come thither. Whatſoeuer things are written, are written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort in the Scriptures might haue hope, Rom.15.4. Where true hope to come to heauen is obtained by patience, which maketh a beleeuer to goe on in ſuffering till he come to life eternall. There is much fruit in the good ground, but not brought forth without patience, and the true beleeuer is ſaued by hope in this world, yet cannot come to heauen without patience, Iam. 5. for thereby he muſt poſſeſſe his ſoule.

Matth.13.

Now becauſe men will ſay, patience is a hard matter, and ſo are diſcouraged from ſeeking for it; therefore to ſet an edge on their deſire, he addes, It is the patience of Chriſt: and it is ſo called, either becauſe he commaunds it, or becauſe it is his gift, and commeth from the ſpirit of Chriſt; or chiefely becauſe he himſelfe ſuffereth in his members, and as their miſerie and ſuffering is his, ſo is their patience. The conſideration whereof is a ſingular motiue to induce euery child of God to patience, in bearing the croſſe for Chriſt his ſake: for they haue Chriſt their fellow ſufferer, he takes part with them, and puts vnder his ſhoulder: Who would not then be content to ſuffer with patience? And thus much of the branches of his fellowſhip ſeuerally.

Now conſider them iointly, and they containe a notable deſcription of the communion of Saints, which is a ſpeciall article of our faith, ſtanding in three things: In tribulation, In the kingdome of heauen, And in patience. And marke well, that this communion begins in tribulation, therein we muſt be parteners, and that with patience, before we come to haue fellowſhip in the kingdome of heauen. That man therefore that hath afflictions laid on him, muſt beare them patiently; and when the members of Chriſt are vnder the croſſe, he muſt in tender compaſſion be touched with their miſeries: and when he doth truly feele in his heart this Chriſtian patience and compaſſion, then may he aſſure himſelfe he is entred into this communion, and ſhall vndoubtedly with all Saints be partaker of the ioyes of heauen. But if patience and compaſſion be wanting, wee perſwade our ſelues in vaine of this communion: and therefore let vs ſtriue againſt impatience, and againſt the deadneſſe and hardneſſe of our hearts; that we may neither murmure againſt God in our owne afflictions, nor yet want compaſſion towards our brethren that any where ſuffer affliction for the name of Chriſt. Thus much for the circumſtance of the perſon,

Was in the Iſle called Patmos. In theſe words is the ſecond circumſtance, namely, the place where this viſion was giuen to Iohn. This Patmos is one of thoſe Iſlands, which the Geographers call Sporades, lying in the Weſt Part of Aſia the leſſe, neere to the Churches to whom Iohn writ, and by the ſea commonly called the Egean ſea. This Iſlande was a ſmall, baſe, and poore Iſland, little or neuer a whit inhabited.

Saint Iohn had his viſion not at Ieruſalem, at Antioch, or Rome, but in Patmos, a baſe, poore, and little inhabited Iſland. By this we ſee, that in the newe Teſtament there is no reſpect of one place aboue another, in regard of Gods preſence, and our fellowſhip with him: he doth as well manifeſt himſelfe to Iohn by this viſion in Patmos, as to other his Prophets and Apoſtles in Ieruſalem the holy citie. In the olde Teſtament there was difference of places in regard of Gods ſolemne worſhip and preſence; as the Lord ſhewed his preſence, and tied his worſhip eſpecially to his Tabernacle and Temple at Ieruſalem. This Daniel ſheweth by his geſture in prayer: for beeing in captiuitie, when he praied in his chamber, He opened the windowe, which was towards the Temple at Ieruſalem, and turned his face thitherward. But now in the newe Teſtament, that difference of place is aboliſhed in reſpect of Gods worſhip. And therefore Paul willeth, That men pray euery where, lifting vp pure hands vnto God: and ſo for all the dutie of religion we muſt thinke the like.

1.Tim.2.8.

The vſe.

I. Then away with Popiſh pilgrimage to Churches and Chappells of Saints, or to their reliques. This is meere ſuperſtition: for God is preſent euery where, and a man that will worſhip God in ſpirit and truth, may haue fellowſhip with him in one place as well as another.

II. Alſo this may ſerue to correct a falſe conceit which many haue of our Churches and chappels: for when they come to a dwelling houſe, they thinke it not their dutie, there to humble themſelues, to kneele downe, and call vpon God: but if they come into a Church or chappell neuer ſo often, vpon ordinarie affaires they fall downe to praier. The reaſon is, becauſe they thinke theſe places be more holy, and God more preſent there, and they ſhall ſooner be heard in them then in their common houſes: which is vntrue: for in the newe Teſtament all ſuch diuerſitie of place is aboliſhed in regard of Gods ſeruice and preſence: the dwelling houſe is as holy as the Church. Indeede Churches muſt be maintained, becauſe in them the people may more orderly and conueniently meete together to ſerue God publikly in the word and prayer: for which time all due reuerence muſt be obſerued in them; but we muſt not think that they are more holy thē other places.

More particularly, in this circumſtance of place note two things: Firſt, by what meanes S. Iohn came thither: Secondly, to what ende, and for what cauſe. The meanes was baniſhment by the Emperour Domitian: the cauſe was, for the word of God.

For the firſt, he came and abode in Patmos, beeing baniſhed thither for the Goſpels ſake. In this his baniſhment conſider many excellent things: Firſt, S. Iohn was a moſt worthy Apoſtle, indued with rare gifts, a ſingular maintainer of the Goſpel, and a famous founder of the church of God, and chiefe pillar thereof in thoſe daies when hee wrote this booke: and for this cauſe hated of the cruell perſecuter Domitian, and of the Romans. And yet obſerue, That whereas other true Chriſtians were put to the ſword, S. Iohn is not, but eſcapeth by baniſhment. The cauſe of this was Gods ſpeciall prouidence, by which hee reſerued him for the benefit of the Church, that he might receiue this Reuelation, and commit it to writing, for the perpetuall good of all his children. And ſo though Domitian was a cruell tyrant, and wanted no malice towards Iohn, yet hee could not kill him. God ouerruled him, that he did but baniſh him and that into ſuch an Iſland, wherein hee might quietly receiue theſe viſions, and pen the ſame for the good of the Church. By this we ſee the great care and prouidence of God ouer his Church, that hee doth bridle and ouerrule the cruell mindes and might of bloodie perſecutors; that they cannot for their hearts doe any thing, but that which ſerueth for Gods glorie, and the good of his Church, though they intend the contrary. For Domitian intended onely the hurt of Iohn, yet ſee, by his baniſhment into that Iſle, he had fit place to receiue theſe viſions for the good of the Church. So in the death of Chriſt, the Iewes and Gentiles, and all the people banded themſelues together, to put Chriſt to death, and the deuill he laboured to ſtirre them on to practiſe their intended malice. Yet the ouerruling power of God, who bringeth light out of darkeneſſe, directeth and ordereth this their malice and wicked practiſe to the moſt excellent worke that euer was, euen the redemption of mankind. So Ioſephs brethren intended no ſuch deliuerance as God wrought by him, in ſelling their brother. This conſideration ſhould comfort all Gods children in the time of any outward diſtreſſe, euen the remembrance of Gods ouerruling hand.

Secondly, in that Iohn went into baniſhment, when it was ſo appointed, wee learne, That when we are oppreſſed and perſecuted by tyrants for Chriſts ſake, we muſt not make reſiſtance, or offer violence, but ſuffer all iniuries with patience: for as one ſaith truly, The Chriſtians weapons in perſecution, are onely prayers and teares. And Saint Iohn often in this booke addeth this concluſion, after the foretelling of perſecutiō, Here is the patience of Saints, ſhewing that patience muſt be the complete armour againſt all our bloodie enemies.

Preces & Lachrimæ, arma Chriſtianorum.

Thirdly, here alſo obſerue, That Iohn came into this Iſland, not of his owne accord, as chuſing a ſolitarie life to bee the moſt happie ſtate of perfection, but by violence and conſtraint. For if he had come into it voluntarily, beeing little or not inhabited, he could not haue done the dutie of his Apoſtleſhip in preaching the Goſpel, and laying the foundations of the Church. This then confuteth the Monkiſh life, which is no life of holy perfection (as Papiſts call it) but of glorious ſuperſtition and flat impietie before God; for hereby they forſake their callings, and vtterly diſable themſelues to doe thoſe duties which God requireth of them in Church, commonwealth, or familie.

Fourthly, whereas Iohn beeing baniſhed, receiued his viſions in a barren and baſe deſolate place; we ſee, that thoſe which honour God ſhall bee honoured of God, euen then when men ſeeke moſt to diſgrace them: for what greater diſgrace could they haue put vpon Iohn, then to baniſh him into ſo baſe an Iſland; Yet becauſe it was for Gods glorie, euen there doth the Lord appeare vnto him, and honour him much in reuealing vnto him theſe viſions. So when Ioſeph was ſould of his brethren, and moſt diſhonoured of them; then did God exalt him moſt of all. The ſame may be ſaid of Daniel in Babylon, whom God did moſt aduance when his enemies ſought his greateſt ruine: and the ſame is true of all Gods children, Them which honour, God will he honour.

II. Point. The cauſe for which he came into this Iſle, is expreſly ſet downe, for the word of God: that is, becauſe he was a publiſher and preacher of the word of God: for the performance of which dutie hee was baniſhed. By which we may note, That all naturall men (as Domitian, and his court, and all the Gentiles, without Gods ſpeciall calling) doe beare a deadly hatred towards Gods word. For S. Iohn was a moſt worthy Apoſtle, a famous man for gifts, a ſingular preacher of the word of God; yet is hated, nay baniſhed, not for his owne cauſe, but for the word of God. This hatred hath appeared in the heathen Emperors, by their bloodie perſecutions againſt the preachers and profeſſors of this word: and yet though men hate it naturally, the ſame word winneth them, and taketh place in their hearts for their conuerſion, and cauſeth them to loue it: ſo as ſucceſſiuely it hath beene ſpread ouer all the world. Which ſhewes againſt the Atheiſt, That the word taught by the Prophets and Apoſtles, is indeede the true word of God, & not the inuention of man: for mans word beeing hated, cannot winne them which hateth it; but the word of God preuaileth by grace in the hearts of thoſe who hate it by nature, which it could not doe, vnleſſe there were in it ſome diuine power.

Againe, ſeeing John was baniſhed for Gods word, all miniſters are to caſt their accounts, and make this reckoning, that they may and muſt ſuffer trouble and perſecution, yea, ſometime baniſhment it ſelfe, for the Goſpels ſake, if they will be faithfull. For that which befell the principall founders and chiefe builders of the Church, cannot bee auoided of them which are ordinary miniſters, if they will be faithfull. Chriſt acquainteth his diſciples with this, telling them, That they are euen accurſed, when Luk. 6. 26.

A all men ſpeake well of them. Let none therefore thinke it ſtrange at this day, if for well doing, they heare and receiue euill: nay, let them feare the curſe, when all men prayſe them.

And for the witneſſing of Ieſus Chriſt. Here Iohn doth note more ſpecially the cauſe of his baniſhment, to wit, for teſtifying the hyſtorie and doctrine of the Goſpel, the ſumme whereof is this, That Ieſus Chriſt, the ſonne of Marie, is the ſonne of God, and redeemer of all that beleeue in him to the iuſtification of life. This teſtimonie S. Iohn puts downe, to giue vs to vnderſtand, what part of Gods word that is, which is moſt hated of the world: and for the preaching whereof Gods miniſters are perſecuted and baniſhed, to wit, the Goſpel of Ieſus Chriſt B especially: for the law is in part naturall, but the Goſpel is ſupernaturall, and to mans reaſon abſurd; for the preaching whereof, men in all ages haue beene perſecuted. The reaſon hereof is this; God in the beginning made a couenant with man, promiſing, That the ſeede of the woman ſhould breake the ſerpents head. Now the Goſpel is that glad tidings, wherein is declared, that this promiſed ſeed is come; who hath indeede bruiſed the head of the ſerpent. Hereupon the deuill maligneth the Goſpell aboue all parts of Gods word, and accordingly hath laboured by all meanes to ſuppreſſe the ſame; partly by perſecution, as he did in the firſt three hundred yeares after Chriſt; C and partly by bringing into the Church damnable hereſies, which did deſtroy the Goſpel by deprauing the natures and offices of Chriſt, when by outward violence hee could not preuaile.

Gen 3.

Now ſeeing the deuill and his inſtruments doe thus hate the Goſpell, and labour to extinguiſh it: wee on the contrary muſt labour to know, and to beleeue, to loue, and embrace the Goſpell, that ſo we may vphold and maintaine the ſame.

V. 10. And I was rauiſhed in the ſpirit on the Lords D day, and heard behind mee a great voyce, as it had beene of a Trumpet.

In this tenth verſe are ſet downe the third and fourth circumſtances of this viſion. The third is the manner of receiuing and giuing this reuelation to Iohn, namely, in a traunce. The fourth is the time when it was giuen, on the Lords day.

Touching the manner, it is noted in theſe words: I was in the ſpirit. That is, I was by the mightie and extraordinarie worke of the ſpirit of God caſt into a traunce. That this is to bee ſo expounded, appeareth by comparing this phraſe with the like in the whole propheſie of Ezechiel, who vſeth to ſay, I was in the ſpirit, when he expreſſeth and ſignifieth that he was caſt into a traunce, and therein receiued ſome viſion by the ſpirit.

To vnderſtand this the better, conſider two things: firſt, what a traunce is: Secondly, the ende of it. Firſt, a traunce is an extraordinarie worke or action of Gods ſpirit. We muſt not thinke that traunces come from the vertue of the ſtarres, nor from the conſtitution of mans bodie, or by the ſtrength of imagination, as ſome haue fondly thought: but they are wrought by the holy Ghoſt. Secondly, it is not euery worke of the holy Ghoſt, but an extraordinarie worke, aboue the order of nature. It is alſo powerfull and mightie, wherein the whole man, both in bodie and minde is altered: which Saint Iohn here expreſſeth, ſaying, I was in the ſpirit. This extraordinarie worke of the ſpirit conſiſteth in two actions; one vpon the bodie, the other vpon the minde. Firſt, in procuring a traunce, the ſpirit of God caſteth the bodie of man into a dead ſleepe; whereby all the ſenſes, both inward and outward, are benummed: ſo Gen. 15. 12. when God renewed his couenant with Abraham, he caſteth him into an heauie ſleepe: that is, into a traunce, wherein all his ſenſes were benummed: onely his mind was waking. The action of the holy Ghoſt on the minde is, to draw it from fellowſhip with the bodie, and all the ſenſes, to haue a neere fellowſhip with God, that ſo the ſpirit of God may enlighten it with diuine light, that it may vnderſtand the things which are reuealed to it: as we may ſee in other extaſies and traunces of the Prophets and Apoſtles. As in that of [a] Peter, when he ſawe the viſions of the beaſts cleane and vncleane. And thus we ſee what a Traunce is, namely, an extraordinarie powerfull worke of the Spirit vpon the whole man, caſting the bodie into a dead ſleepe, and making the minde fit to receiue the things which are reuealed vnto it of the Lord.

a Act.10.11.

What a trance is.

II. Point. The end of traunces. God for two cauſes reuealeth his will in traunces vnto his ſeruants, as to Iohn in this place. Firſt, that they might know, that the things reuealed were not inuented of themſelues, but giuen of God. Iohn herein had no vſe of his bodily ſenſes, he neither heard, ſaw, nor felt, but they were aſleepe. And therefore the viſion muſt needes be from God, and the glory thereof wholly his.

Secondly, and chiefly that the things reuealed might take the deeper impreſſion in the vnderſtanding: for the minde beeing freed from fellowſhip with the bodie, and not hindered by any phantaſies of the ſenſes (they beeing all aſleepe, and quiet) doth then moſt liuely and ſenſibly apprehend and retaine the impreſſion of things reuealed. Here then we ſee the great care of God, that his ſeruants might throughly vnderſtand, certainely beleeue, and conſtantly keepe in memorie the things he deliuered vnto them. The like care he ſhewed in reuealing his will to all his former Prophets, he would not haue their mindes troubled with the fellowſhip of the bodie, nor hindered of the ſences inward or outward; but wholly taken vp for the ſeruice of his ſpirit. And there is good reaſon of this; for if they muſt faithfully teach Gods will to others, to make them know and vnderſtand, to beleeue and remember the ſame; is it not neceſſarie that they themſelues ſhould thoroughly vnderſtand, ſoundly beleeue, and firmely keepe in memorie whatſoeuer God reuealeth.

This dealing of the Lord for this end with his holy Prophets, teacheth vs, that the ordinarie miniſters of the Goſpel at this day ought to imploy themſelues with all care and diligence, that they may throughly vnderſtand the will of God in his word, and withall beleeue it ſoundly, and remember it carefully. We muſt not now looke for traunces and viſions, as they had; but wee muſt vſe continuall ſtudie in the word, which is the ordinarie meanes to come vnto this knowledge. This dutie concerneth all ſtudents in diuinitie, and all others which deſire a good vnderſtanding in the word of God. And for their furtherance herein they muſt haue principall care to ſearch into the text of Scripture throughly: thereby ſhall they beſt conceiue the proper meaning of the holy Ghoſt, and with greater facilitie keepe the ſame in memorie. For one ſaith truly, That euery good miniſter ſhould be a good text man. Whereby is deſcried a common fault of many ſtudents: who rather imploy themſelues in the auncient writings of men, then in the word of God: nay, many ſpend their beſt time in the baſe writings of wicked and hereticall Monks and Friers. It cannot bee denied, but many of the fathers were worthy members of Gods Church: but if the fountaine be left, the miniſtery will ſoone be tainted with the filthy puddles of mens inuentions.

Againe, in this dealing of God with Iohn, we may obſerue the truth of Chriſts ſaying, to him that hath, it ſhall be giuen. Mark.4.24. For though Iohn was endued with rare knowledge, and ſingular gifts, yet the Lord addeth more knowledge to his former. The Lord found him faithfull in the duties of an Apoſtle; and therefore reuealeth the knowledge of many ſecrets vnto him in moſt full manner: euen ſo it is in Gods Church at this day: all that haue care to know the will of God, and doe it, though their knowledge bee ſmall at the firſt, yet the Lord will helpe them, and adde daily to their knowledge. And the cauſe why many heare the word of God, & profit not, but wax worſe, or ſtand at a ſtay, is, becauſe they labour not to haue their knowledge increaſed, by putting in practiſe that which they know: for if they did, then to him which hath, ſhould more bee added, and hee ſhould haue abundance. As on the contrarie, when wee be negligent to heare or know, and to obey the will of God: wee haue a ſpirit indeede ſent vpon vs, yet not Gods ſpirit, but the ſpirit of ſlumber, of blindneſſe and ignorance, ſo that we ſee, and ſee not; heare, and vnderſtand not, Iſay 6.9.

On the Lords day. In theſe words is the fourth circumſtance, namely, the time when this viſion was ſhewed to S. Iohn. This day which here is called the Lords day, among the Iewes was the firſt day of the weeke, called by vs Sunday. It is called the Lords day for two cauſes: Firſt, becauſe on this day Chriſt roſe from death to life; for Chriſt was buried the euen of the Iewes Sabboath, which is our Friday; and he reſted in the graue their whole Saboath, which is our Saturday; and roſe the firſt day of the weeke early in the morning, which is our Sunday.

Secondly, the firſt day of the weeke (according to the Iewes account) came in ſtead of the Iewes Saboath, and was ordained a day of reſt for the New Teſtament; and ſanctified for the ſolemne worſhip of the Lord. And for this cauſe eſpecially it is called the Lords day, the manifeſtation whereof (as ſome thinke) Iohn chiefly intended in this title. And touching this time, for our better vnderſtanding, let vs conſider three points: Firſt, who changed the Iewes Saboath: ſecondly, for what cauſe: thirdly, whether the Church hath now in the New Teſtament power to change the Saboath daie wee now celebrate, to any other day of the weeke.

For the firſt; it is commonly thought that the Iewes Saboath was changed into this Lords day by Chriſtian Emperours, long after the aſcention of Chriſt. But it is more conſonant to the tenour of the New teſtament, to hold, that Chriſt himſelfe was the author of this change. My reaſons are theſe: Firſt, that which the Apoſtles deliuered and enioyned the Church, that they receiued from Chriſt, either by voyce, or inſtinct; for they deliuered nothing of their owne head: But the Apoſtles deliuered, and inioyned this Saboath to the church, to be kept as a day of holy reſt to the Lord, as appeareth, 1. Cor. 16. 1. where Paul ordained in the Churches of Galatia, and Corinth, That the collection for the poore ſhould bee on the firſt day of the weeke: This he left not to the choyce of the Church, but appointed it by authoritie Apoſtolicall from Chriſt.

Now the day of collecting for the poore (as appeareth in the hiſtories of the Church) was the Saboath day, when the people were aſſembled for Gods ſeruice. For this was the cuſtome of the Church for many yeares after Chriſt. Firſt, to haue the word preached, and the Sacraments adminiſtred, then to gather for the poore: and for this cauſe in the writings of the Church, the Lords ſupper is called a Sacrifice, an oblation, and the maſſe: not a reall ſacrifice as the Papiſts vſe it: but ſpirituall, becauſe therewith was ioined collection for the poore, which was a ſpirituall oblation, not to the Lord, but to the Church, for the reliefe of the poore:and it was called the maſſe, becauſe the collected releefe thereat was ſent to the poore Saints abroad. A ſecond reaſon is this: The Apoſtles themſelues kept this day for the Saboath of the New Teſtament, Act. 20.7. And it cannot be prooued that they obſerued any other day for an holy reſt to the Lord after Chriſts aſcention, ſaue onely in one caſe, when they came into the aſſemblies of the Iewes, who would keepe none other but the old Saboath, of the law. A third reaſon is Ioh.20.19. 26. The ſame day whereon Chriſt roſe from death, being the firſt day of the weeke, he appeared to his diſciples, beeing gathered together: and taught them many things, which concerned the gouernment of his Church. And eight dayes after beeing the firſt day of the weeke, he appeared vnto them for the ſame end. Now it is more then likely, that Chriſt in his owne perſon gaue them an example to celebrate and keepe that day, wherein he roſe again, for a Saboath of the new Teſtament.

II. Point. The Saboath of the Iewes was changed for two cauſes. Firſt, to maintaine the libertie of the Church of the new Teſtament, whereof this was a great part, that they were freed from the ceremonies of the Iewes; For when this day was changed, the Church was no more tied to the Iewes Saboath, neither had any ſuch regard of daies and times.

Secondly, that there might bee a more fit time for the memorie of the worke of mans redemption: For as God in the Old teſtament appointed the ſeuenth day to bee a day of reſt to remember the firſt creation: So in the new Teſtament it ſtands with reaſon there ſhould bee a day to celebrate this worke of redemption; which is a wonderfull creation; wherein (as Iſay ſaith) are made a newe heauen, and a new earth, Chapter 66. And whereby men become new creatures, 2.Cor.5.17. Nay this redemption is a more glorious worke then the creation; for in that creation Adam was the head, but in this redemption Chriſt Ieſus is our head. By the firſt creation wee receiued a temporall life; but by redemption we receiue life eternall. In the creation Adam was eſpouſed to Eue, but in the worke of redemption euery Chriſtian is eſpouſed to Chriſt Ieſus. By creation Adam had an earthly Paradiſe: in this redemption wee haue an heauenly kingdome. In the creation Gods power, and wiſedome did principally appeare: in this redemption with power and wiſdome he ſhewed mercie and iuſtice: Iuſtice in Chriſts paſſion, and mercie in our forgiueneſſe. By creation he made man of nothing, but by redemption hee made him of worſe then nothing, and better then he was. Therefore ſeeing this worke of our redemption is farre paſſing the creation; it was meet a day ſhould be ſet apart for the memorie thereof: Now no day could bee more fit then the firſt day of the weeke, in which Chriſt roſe againe; whereby he confirmed the worke of our redemption; for hee died for our ſinnes; and roſe againe for our iuſtification, *Rom.*4.25.

III. Point. Whether may the Church of the new Teſtament change this Sabbath day to any other day of the weeke, as to tewſday, wedneſday, &c. Anſ. The Church hath no ſuch power; for time is the Lords, and the diſpoſing thereof is in his hands. Therefore Chriſt ſaith to his Diſciples; It is not for you to know the times and ſeaſons, which the father hath kept in his owne hands, *Act.*7.6. As if he ſhould ſay, The father hath kept times and ſeaſons in his owne power; and therefore it is not for you to know them: Now if that were a good reaſon, as no doubt it was; then is this alſo ſound and good. If God haue the diſpoſing of times in his hands, then it belongeth not to the Church to diſpoſe of them: but God hath the diſpoſing of all times in his hands; ergo. And it may be otherwiſe hence gathered thus; If that which is leſſe belong not to the Church, then that which is more doth not: But the knowledge of time and ſeaſons which God hath in his power belongeth not to the Church, which is leſſe then the diſpoſing of times and ſeaſons. And therefore the Church hath not power to diſpoſe of them; and ſo by conſequent may not alter the Sabbath day. Obiect. In the Olde teſtament the Iewes appointed feſtiuall dayes: as the feaſt of Dedication which Chriſt kept holy, Ioh. 10.22. inſtituted by the Machabees, in token of thankfulneſſe for their deliuerance: and for reſtoring of religion and the Temple which Antiochus had pulled downe. And alſo Mordecay inſtituted the feaſt Purim, which was celebrated of the Iewes afterwards.

Eſth.9.17.

Now if they had power to make holidayes, then they might alter the Sabbath day; and ſo may the Church in the New teſtament. Anſw. Theſe feaſts of the Iewes were no Sabbaths ſet wholly apart for the ſolemne worſhip of God: but were onely dayes of the ſolemnitie appointed by the Church in token of ioy and thankefulneſſe for the repairing of the temple, and deliuerance of Gods people: And were onely celebrated as they ſerued to put the people in mind of theſe outward benefits. So that whereas ſome hold that the Church hath power to alter the Sabbath day; or to make two more Sabbath dayes in a weeke if it were conuenient: it hath no ground in Gods word. For that authoritie which doth alter this day, muſt not be leſſe then Apoſtolicall. And thus we ſee why this day was called the Lords day.

The vſe.

Now if the firſt day of the weeke be the Lords day, ſet apart for his honour in the memorie of ſo great redemption, then here are three ſorts of men reprooued. Firſt, thoſe that make the Lords day a day of vaine pleaſure and delight. This is the manner of all ſorts of men, but eſpecially of the younger ſort and ſeruants, who ſpend this day in carnall reioycing, in ryot, gaming, and wantonneſſe, neuer thinking of the worſhip of God, which is then to be performed.

formeil. But theſe ſinne greatly againſt the Lord: for hereby they peruert the ende of the Lords day: It ſhould be keept holy and glorious to the Lord, but they turne it to the worſhip and ſeruice of the deuill.

The ſecond ſort here reprooued, are thoſe which loue more ciuilitie then the former; but yet they thinke they may doe what they will on the Lords day; as to take their iourneys thereon, and imploy themſelues in their ordinarie affaires; perſwading themſelues they may ſerue God with as good an heart when they are alone about their buſineſſe, as they doe who goe to the Church. But theſe men ſinne grieuouſly againſt the fourth commandement; for hereby they make that their own day which is the Lords.

A third ſort here reprooued, though not ſo bad as the former, are thoſe who thinke it needfull to ſerue God at thoſe ordinarie times of the Saboath which the lawes of the Land inioyne vnto men; and therefore they will come duly to morning and euening prayer; thinking that they are not bound beſide to heare the word of God preached, and that all the reſt of the day they may do what they will pertaining either to their profit or pleaſure. Of this ſort are our ignorant people, and a great number euery where. But they ſinne grieuouſly againſt God, for the Saboath day is called the Lords day, becauſe it is wholly conſecrated to his worſhip, but they part ſtakes with the Lord, and giue him but a part of his owne day, and that the leſſer, taking the reſt vnto themſelues, which they miſpend vpon their luſts. Now as theſe vices muſt be abhorred, ſo on the contrary, wee muſt with all conſcience keepe the Lords Saboath holy according to the fourth commaundement. And therefore wee muſt thereon ceaſe from all workes of ſinne, and from the workes of our callings; and ſanctifie this day wholly by applying it all to the honour and worſhip of God. And here wee muſt remember, that there is a double ſanctification of the Saboath, publike, and priuate. Publike, when men aſſemble themſelues together publikly to heare Gods word for the increaſe of faith and knowledge; and to call on Gods name for further graces; as alſo to giue him thanks for his mercies, and to receiue his Sacraments. Priuate, when men in their priuate places imploy themſelues in holy dueties of prayer, reading, meditation vpon Gods word and workes; whereby God is honoured, and their ſoules edified; and both theſe muſt bee performed to the Lord euery Saboath day of euery man; For we may not abridge God of that time wherein glorie ſhould bee giuen to his name. If the officers ſhould take our ſeruants in the weeke day from our priuate buſineſſe, and imploy them in publike affaires, wee would thinke much at it; though it were for the common good. And ſhall we not thinke that God will take himſelfe diſhonoured of vs, when we ſhall take either whole or part of his holiday, and imply it in our buſineſſe. A maine cauſe why many profit litle by the publike miniſterie, is want of priuate ſanctification of this day. Therefore we muſt learne to ſanctifie the Sabbath of the Lord, for elſe we ſhall neuer increaſe in faith, knowledge, or obedience as wee ſhould: for the begetting and increaſe whereof this day hath bin ſet apart & ſanctified from the beginning.

Obiect. 2. Why did the Lord ſhew this viſion vnto Iohn rather on this day then any other? Anſ. Though Iohn were abſent from the Church in regard of bodily preſence: yet hee was preſent in ſpirit with all the faithfull, and therefore no doubt in this day he gaue himſelfe to prayer, and other duties which he could performe for the glorie of God in that ſolitarie place. Now it is the Lords manner when his ſeruants are thus humbled, then to come and reueale himſelfe vnto them in ſpeciall manner. So hee did vnto Daniel, Dan. 9. and to Cornelius, Act. 10. and to Peter praying alone in the houſe toppe, Act. 10. 11. And ſo doubtleſſe finding Iohn thus imployed this Lords day, hee reuealed his will vnto him touching the ſtate of the Church to the ende of the world.

Hence wee learne ſundry inſtructions: Firſt, whereas Iohn beeing in a ſolitarie Iſland kept the Saboath: wee may obſerue, that all perſons who are ſeuered from the aſſemblies of the Church: as the priſoners and thoſe which are ſicke of a dead palſie, or other great diſeaſes: as mariners though they be in the middeſt of the ſea, ſhould keepe holy the Lords Saboath, by performing ſuch duties as God requireth; as prayer, confeſſion of ſinnes, and thankſgiuing; whereby God may bee glorified, though they cannot come to the publicke miniſterie of the word.

Secondly, in that Iohn receiued his viſion on the Lords day, when hee gaue himſelfe to prayer and holy duties: Hence ariſeth a conſideration to Gods Church, that God draweth neere to them that draw neere to him, as Iames 4. 8. And ſo let vs humble our ſelues, and draw neere to the Lord by prayer, and thankſgiuing; and the Lord in mercie will ſhew himſelfe ſundry wayes, and draw neere vnto vs.

The cauſe why men haue ſo little taſt of Gods mercie and loue towards them, is becauſe they doe not draw neere vnto him, by doing thoſe duties which he requireth at their hands. For when men draw backe from God, is it not good reaſon he ſhould draw backe from them?

This therefore muſt ſtirre vp our hearts, and mooue vs to come often to God by prayer and thankſgiuing: for by vſe in theſe duties ſhal we get acquaintance with the Lord. Thus much of the circumſtances of this viſion.

And I heard behind me a great voice, as it had beene a trumpet. Firſt, here followeth the parts of the viſion, which are two; The beginning or entrance into it, in this v. the eleuenth and part of the twelft. Secondly, the matter and ſubſtance thereof, from the twelft verſe to the ende of the third chapter.

The entrance into the viſion is a preparation, whereby the Lord maketh Iohn more fit to apprehend and receiue the things reuealed. In which preparation we muſt obſerue firſt, the meanes: ſecondly, the parts thereof. The means whereby God prepareth him, is a voice: And I heard a voice. The like manner of preparation hath God vſed in former times: when he intended to make with Adam the couenant of reconciliation in the ſeede of the woman: Firſt, he prepared him by a voice ſpeaking vnto him before he appeared, and by this voice cauſed him to flie for feare. Then hauing rebuked him for his ſinnes, he made with him this couenant of grace. Gen.3.

Exod.19. and 20.

And in mount Sinai before the Lord gaue the law, he firſt came downe in thundering and lightning, and with the ſound of a trumpet to terrifie the people: and then he vttered his law to Moyſes and to his people. So when the Lord would inſtruct Samuel touching the houſe of Elie, he awoake him by a voice, againe, and againe: and then ſpake plainely vnto him. And in all viſions vſually, and generally the Lord vſeth to prepare his ſeruants by voyces, by ſignes, and words, that they might bee more fit to receiue ſuch things as he reuealed.

1.Sam.3.

This dealing of God with Iohn, in preparing him to the worthy receiuing of this viſion, teacheth vs that we much more ſhould bee prepared to heare and receiue the will of God; for we come farre ſhort of thoſe excellent gifts of God which were in Iohn, who yet muſt be prepared.

Our comming to heare Gods word, is to learne the ſame, for the increaſe of knowledge, faith, and obedience. Now the word of God is hard, and we dull to learne; we muſt therefore by all good meanes prepare our ſelues, that our minds and hearts may be fit to receiue the ſame with profit. The cauſe of ſo little profit after long hearing, is want of preparation: but hereof we haue entreated already vpon the third verſe.

This voice is here ſet out vnto vs three waies: Firſt, by the place whence it came: Secondly, by the qualitie of it: Thirdly, by the matter and ſubſtance which it contained. For the place: it was vttered from behind him: which the Lord obſerued to ſtirre vp more attention in Iohn; for vſually men doe more carefully marke thoſe things which come on a ſudden behind them, then thoſe which are ſpoken or done directly before their face.

Secondly, for the qualitie of it, this voyce was great; as is expreſſed further by a ſimilitude Like the ſound of a Trumpet: that is, full of maieſtie and power. Which alſo God added vnto it, to further attention in Iohn. For if it had beene an ordinarie voice, or ſmall, he would not ſo much haue regarded it: but beeing ſo ſudden, ſo great, and full of maieſtie, it could not but make him verie attentiue.

Now ſeeing Chriſt is ſo carefull to prepare Iohns mind with attentiõ & diligẽce to receiue the things which ſhould be told him: this teacheth vs, that when wee come to heare Gods word, we muſt vſe all meanes of attention: for if it were needful to Iohn, then it is farre more neceſſarie for vs, who are farre inferiour to him in all gifts of vnderſtanding and memorie. And here alſo is another cauſe of ſmall profit and little liking of Gods word, namely, want of attention in the heart. We muſt therefore like godly Lydia Act. 16. ſtirre vp our dull and heauie ſpirits, and with all diligence marke the things we heare. And here we muſt take heede of two enemies to attention: the firſt are bythoughts: as when the bodie indeed is preſent, but the mind wandereth from the word, and is wholly poſſeſſed with thoughts of pleaſure, or other worldly affaires: For theſe bee thornes in the ground of our hearts, which choke the good ſeede of the word. Many will complaine they cannot marke and remember that which is taught: now the cauſe is in themſelues, their wandring thoughts, which hinder both vnderſtanding and memorie: for the mind conceiuing other matters, cannot obſerue how one point dependeth on another, much leſſe remember them afterward.

The ſecond enemie to attention, is dulneſſe and heauineſſe in bodie and ſoule; a common fault in many hearers, which ſheweth it ſelfe by drowſineſſe and ſleepineſſe in the time of preaching, when they ought to ſtirre vp their bodies and hearts to all attention. If a man ſhould bee dull and heauie when his prince is ſpeaking vnto him of ſom weightie matter that is for his good, it would be taken for a part of contempt and diſloyaltie towards his maieſtie. What diſloialtie then is this vnto the king of kings, that we ſhould be dull and heauie, when himſelfe vouchſafeth to ſpeake vnto vs out of his word, the myſteries of our ſaluation? And ſurely, among other things this drowſineſſe is one cauſe of ſmall profit, by the miniſterie of the word. And therefore if we would increaſe in knowledge, and in the gifts of grace vnto ſaluation, we muſt prepare our ſelues before we come, and in hearing caſt of all dulneſſe of fleſh and ſpirit, and with all might ſtirre vp our ſelues to attentiue hearing: ſo ſhall the word be bleſſed vnto vs; otherwiſe our hearing ſhall turne to our deeper condemnation.

v. 11. Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt: and that which thou ſeeſt write it in a booke, and ſend it vnto the ſeuen Churches which

are in Aſia, vnto Epheſus, and vnto Smyrna, and vnto Pergamus, and vnto Thyatira, and vnto Sardi, and vnto Philadelphia, and vnto Laodicea.

Theſe words containe the third deſcription of this voice; whereby Iohns heart was prepared, touching the ſubſtance and matter which was vttered: which conſiſteth in two things. The firſt, is a teſtimonie, in theſe words: I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt. The ſecond, a commandement in the words following; That which thou ſeeſt, write, and ſende, &c.

I. Touching the teſtimonie, the ſubſtance thereof is ſet downe in the 8. verſe, where the words were handled, and the meaning ſhewed. They doe ſerue directly to prooue the Godhead, and eternitie of Chriſt, which Chriſt himſelfe doth here auouch, to giue vnto Iohn, and vnto the Church full aſſurance, that the things now vttered and deliuered, were from God: for ſaying, I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt, is as much as if he had ſaide; I which ſpeake vnto thee am God, and therfore the things I deliuer, are from God.

In this teſtimonie, note Gods ſpeciall care in regard of his truth; he doth not content himſelfe with reuealing his will vnto his Church; but more ſpecially his care is, to certifie the Church of the truth thereof, that it is indeede from God. This hath beene Gods care from the beginning. When Peter receiued a viſion from God, withall a Gods ſpirit aſſured him that the things reuealed therein were certen and ſure. And ſo when Chriſt preached the will of his Father among men, he did withall work ſtrange miracles, to confirme and ſeale vp the truth of his doctrine, that it was from God.

a Act.10.19.

The vſe.

This ſpeciall care of God ouer his Church, doth firſt confute the Papiſts opinion touching Scripture. They hold the Scripture to be certen in it ſelfe, but not vnto men, till the Church giue teſtimonie thereunto. But this is falſe: for god euer had this care ouer his church, not onely to reueale his will vnto them, but alſo to vſe meanes for the aſſurance of their conſciences, that that which was reuealed was his vndoubted and perfect will. And therefore the word of God is certen, and euident alſo, not onely in it ſelfe, but to the conſcience of beleeuers, and that without the teſtimonie of the Church: and ſo ſhould be, though the teſtimonie of the Church ſhould neuer come thereunto.

Secondly, hereby are confuted many carnall men, who will be of no religion; becauſe (ſay they) there is no certentie in the matters of religion: mens opinions therein are ſo diuers, that ſo many men, ſo many mindes almoſt, and no man can tell who ſpeakes the truth. Anſ. It may be that men in ſundrie matters hold ſundrie priuate opinions: yet in the Church of God, all the true members of Chriſt hold the ſame opinions touching the foundation of religion. But let it be granted, That all men on earth were of diuers opinions touching matters of religion, ſhould religion therefore be vncerten? God forbid. For religion is certen vnto men, by the meanes that God hath appointed to certifie the conſcience of the truth thereof; and hereby might men come to the truth and certentie of religion taught by the Prophets and Apoſtles, though all men in the world were of diuers opinions touching the ſame. Thus much of the Teſtimonie.

II. Point. The commandement giuen to Iohn in theſe words; That which thou ſeeſt, write in a booke, and ſend it to the ſeuen Churches which are in Aſia. This commandement hath two parts: Firſt, to write the things ſeene in a booke: ſecondly, to ſend the booke to the ſeuen Churches here named. And both theſe muſt Iohn doe, beeing now diſabled by his exile to preach theſe things vnto them perſonally, for theſe cauſes. Firſt, that theſe Churches might be edified in the faith, and ſtrengthened in theſe moſt grieuous times of perſecution. Secondly, that they might become keepers of this booke for the good of others; for the Church of God is the pillar of truth; not onely, for that it publiſheth Gods truth, but alſo becauſe it keepeth it, and giueth teſtimonie thereunto.

In this commandement note ſundrie things. Firſt, that the word of God, written and penned by the hand of man, is a notable helpe to the Church of God, and a worthie meanes to edifie the ſame; els Chriſt would neuer haue commanded Iohn to haue written theſe viſions, and ſent them to the Churches. Which ſerueth to confute the blind Papiſts, which ſay the word written is but an inke letter, and a noſe of waxe; becauſe the ſenſe thereof may be turned euery way as man will. This alſo confuteth the Anabaptiſts, which ſo much magnifie their Reuelations, and make no account of the word written. If the Lord had thought it beſt, he would haue taught theſe Churches by Reuelation: but they muſt learne by the word written.

Secondly, that the reading of Gods word either publikely or priuately, is an ordinance of God: for the Lord commanding Iohn to write this booke, and ſend it to the Churches, hereby implieth, that they muſt read the ſame as they did other bookes of Scripture. The preaching of the word is indeede the moſt worthie inſtrument for the founding and confirming of Gods Church, whereby ordinarily iuſtifying faith is wrought in the heart: and yet reading muſt haue his due reuerence, as a meanes to confirme, and increaſe true knowledge, faith, and repentance, where it is begunne.

Thirdly, here note, that a man may be vnder the croſſe, and in perſecution, and yet remaine in the ſpeciall fauour of God: for this baniſhment into ſuch a deſert place, was vnto Iohn a grieuous croſſe: and yet the Lord vouchſafed there to reueale himſelfe vnto him, and to make him the penman of this booke. Which honour he vouchſafeth not to all, but to them that are moſt deare vnto him. Which thing each one ſhould obſerue: for our nature is ſo corrupt, that when we are vnder the croſſe, it would perſwade vs, we are caſt out of the loue and fauour of God.

In the ende of the verſe, the ſeauen Churches, Epheſus, Smyrna, & the reſt are named. Which ſeuen places, were 7. famous cities in Aſia, wherein were planted the moſt famous Churches that were in thoſe parts, and for their excellencie are they named. And thus much for the meanes of Iohns preparation: now follow the parts thereof, which are two: firſt is hearing, folded vp with the former meanes: And I heard a voyce. Second is Turning of himſelfe to ſee the partie that ſpake vnto him, in theſe words;

V. 12. Then I turned backe to ſee the voice which ſpake with me: and when I was turned, I ſawe ſeuen golden candleſtickes.

That is, ſo ſoone as I heard this ſudden and mightie voice, I turned my ſelfe to ſee who it was that vttered the ſame. In this behauiour of Iohn we are to learne our dutie: ſo to diſpoſe our hearts towards God in the receiuing of his word, as Iohn diſpoſeth himſelfe towards Chriſt in the receiuing of this viſion. So ſoone as the voice ſpake, Iohn hearkened, and becauſe the ſound thereof came behind him, he turned himſelfe to looke on him that vttered it. Euen ſo muſt we doe, we are by nature ſtrangers with God, ſlowe to heare when he ſpeaketh, and ready to turne our hearts from God, when we heare. Therefore when God ſpeaketh vnto vs in the miniſterie of his word, we muſt hearken: And though we be going another way, yet we muſt turne our ſelues from our euill wayes, and encline our hearts to his voice, that we may haue fellowſhip with him. S. Iohn had not ſeene this meruailous viſion, vnleſſe he had turned himſelfe to behold him that ſpoke. No more ſhall we at any time feele true fellowſhip with the Lord, vnleſſe we turne our hearts vnto his word, and that betimes whiles he ſpeaketh vnto vs in the miniſterie thereof.

Thus much for the firſt part of the viſion, viz. the entrance thereunto. The ſecond part is the matter and ſubſtance of the viſion, containing a moſt worthie repreſentation of Chriſt in his maieſtie, as he is the Prophet, King, and Prieſt of his Church: ſet downe at large by a A deſcription of Chriſt, continuing from this twelfth verſe vnto the end of the third chapter; wherein Iohn ſheweth what he receiued of Chriſt, partly by hearing, and partly by ſeeing. And firſt he beginneth his deſcription of Chriſt, as he ſaw him repreſented in viſion: and ſo deſcribeth him by two arguments. Firſt, by the place where he ſaw him: Secondly, by his forme and figure wherein he appeared.

I. For the place. Iohn ſaw him in the middeſt of the ſeuen golden candleſtickes. Theſe ſeuen golden candleſtickes here ſeene, are the ſeuen Churches of Aſia: the particular Churches of God, beeing compared to candleſtickes, as Chriſt expoundeth himſelfe, v. 20. Now the particular congregations of Gods Church be B called candleſticks, for that reſemblance which is betweene them. For as the candleſtickes ſerue to beare vp and hold forth the light that is ſet therein: ſo the particular Churches of God on earth, they beare vp and ſhewe forth the light of the Goſpel vnto the whole world, partly in the miniſterie of the word, and partly in the profeſſion of the faith of Chriſt.

From hence ſundry things are to be learned: firſt obſerue, that the Churches are rather called candleſtickes then candles; To giue vs to vnderſtand, that they haue no light of themſelues, or from themſelues, but onely are Gods inſtruments to beare vp and holde forth the light in the miniſterie of the word, and profeſſion of the faith: for Chriſt Ieſus is the only true lampe C and candle that giueth light to the heart and conſcience by his holy ſpirit in his word.

Secondly, hence euery one that profeſſeth himſelfe to be a true member of Gods Church, muſt learne his dutie, which is earneſtly to labour to become a ſhining and burning candle. Indeed this principally concernes the miniſters of the Church: and therefore Iohn Baptiſt is called a burning and ſhining light, Iohn 5.35. but yet it muſt alſo be verified of euery member thereof, as S. Paul commaundeth: [a] Shine (ſaith he) as lights in the world, in the middeſt of a naughtie and crooked nation: holding forth the doctrine of life, that is, the Goſpell. Queſt. How D ſhall euery member of the Church become a burning light? Anſ. Firſt, he muſt haue his minde enlightened in the knowledge of Gods will and word: and then as a candleſticke holde out and ſend forth the beams thereof to others, partly by teaching within the compaſſe of his calling, and partly by example of an honeſt and blameles life and conuerſation. Thus we ſhould doe, if we would be anſwerable to our profeſſion. And to induce vs hereunto, let vs obſerue the reaſons following.

Firſt, it is Gods commandement, Shine as lights (ſaith S. Paul) in the world, Philip. 2. 15 And, walke as children of the light, Epheſ. 5.8. Secondly, conſider the fruite hereof, which is wonderfull great. For by godly inſtructiõ in our places, & by anſwerable obedience in our liues, we win many to the Lord: ſhewing foorth ſuch lights,

lights, whereby others may walke in this darke world to the kingdome of heauen, which is a moſt bleſſed light. In the winter ſeaſon men thinke they doe others great pleaſure, if in the night they hang forth a light to guide paſſengers a little way in an earthly walke. What a bleſſed thing then is this, that a man ſhould alwaies hold forth that light which ſhall guide a ſinnefull wicked wretch to leaue the waies of death, and to walk in the paths of righteouſnes to eternall life? But on the contrarie, when men liue in Gods Church like candles put out by reaſon of the blindneſſe of their mindes, and the badneſſe of their liues; hence commeth great hurt and danger to others with whome they liue: for they lead others that depend vpon them to the pit of deſtruction, eſpecially they who know the will of God, and yet make not conſcience to ſhew forth the ſame by good example of a godly life. For as in an hauen towne, if any man in the night time doe remooue the ſea-marke which guideth the ſhips in the right chanell, he doth as much as in him lieth to caſt away all the ſhips that are comming neere the ſhore, by cauſing them to runne on rockes and ſands: euen ſo they that ſhould giue light in the Church, if they giue either no light, or falſe light to ſuch as depend vpon them, who are ſayling in the ſea of this ſinnefull world, hereby they lead and direct them to a wrong hauen, and in ſtead of heauen bring their ſoules to eternall perdition: which muſt terrifie vs from ignorance and euill works, and make vs labour to ſhine as lights in this world by good inſtruction and godly conuerſation. Third reaſon. Conſider the fearefull iudgements of God againſt ſuch as liue in his Church as members thereof, and yet giue no light: they doe incurre the fearefull wrath of Chriſt. In the Temple, the keeping of the lamps and lights belonged to the Prieſt, and therefore he had his ſnuffers, and other inſtruments to trimme the ſame: which notably figured the dutie of Chriſt in the Church of the new Teſtament: for he is our high Prieſt, who looketh to euery light in the Sanctuarie, that is, to euery member of his Church, who ought to ſhine as a lampe; and when they burne but dimmely and darke, he hath his ſnuffers to trimme them, and make them giue a better light, both by godly life, and good inſtruction. But when he hath ſnuffed them againe and againe, if ſtill they burne darke and dimme, and giue either no light, or elſe a falſe light, then ſurely he will either caſt them out of the Temple, or elſe tread them vnder his feete. We graunt this libertie to euery gouernour, when he hath light vp candles for his family, if any of them will not burne clearely, he may ſnuffe it; if that will not ſerue, he may caſt it into the fire, and ſet another in it place. And ſhall we denie to Chriſt Ieſus the like authoritie in his church, which is his houſe, ouer men and women, who ought to ſhine as lights? God forbid. The miniſter therefore in this place, and euery other Chriſtian in the compaſſe of his calling muſt labour to be a ſhining candle, both for knowledge and godly life before all the world, that ſo he may eſcape Gods fearefull iudgements. In common reaſon we ought to carrie our ſelues as ſhining ligts before others. It is an vſuall thing in the winter-time to hang forth lights for the guiding of mens bodies ſafe from place to place. Now if we haue ſuch care ouer their bodies, we ought to haue much more ouer bodie and ſoule both; that by the light of grace in vs, ſinners and wicked men may be guided in the darke and dangerous way of this world to the kingdome of heauen.

Here then all ignorant perſons and looſe liuers, who abound in euery place, muſt be admoniſhed to reforme themſelues, and labour to become lights in Gods Church. They ſtand as candles, but they are extinct and giue no light to others. Ignorant perſons therefore muſt caſt off their ignorance, and labour for knowledge: and wicked liuers muſt reforme their looſeneſſe of life, and become obedient to the word of truth, that ſo they may ſhine vnto others. If a man haue a candle ſet vp in his familie, and ſhall aſſay to light it, and ſnuffe it once or twice, and cannot get it burne, then in diſpleaſure he will trample it vnder his feete, or caſt it into the fire: Euen ſo Chriſt Ieſus ſeeking to enlighten the minds of theſe ignorant perſons, and to reforme the liues of theſe looſe liuers by the miniſterie of the word: when he ſhall perceiue that they refuſe the light, and will not be reformed, vndoubtedly in furie of his wrath, he will at length plucke them [a] from their places, and ſtampe them to powder, and caſt them into hell. Many be ignorant in euery place, and moe be prophane, and ſmall is the number of good ſhining lights: but we muſt remember our dutie, and walke worthie our calling. If we hold forth the light of knowledge and obedience, we ſhall ſhine as the firmament in the world to come, Dan. 12.3.

Golden candleſticks. The Churches of God are not baſe candleſticks, but candleſticks made of gold. There be two cauſes of this reſemblance: Firſt, becauſe gold is the moſt excellent of all mettalls: ſo Gods Churches here on earth are the moſt excellent of all ſocieties. The companies and ſocieties of men in families, townes, and kingdomes, and in other common affaires of this life, be the ordinance of God, and good in their kind; but yet the ſocietie of Saints in the Church of God, doth farre ſurmount them all, and that in theſe reſpects: Firſt, becauſe in Gods Church ſaluation may be obtained, but in other ſocieties, as they are ſocieties, though ſundrie benefits ariſe from them, yet ſaluation is not to be had in them, vnleſſe they be either particular Churches, or members thereof. Secondly, the Church of God is the end of all other ſocieties; and they are all ordained to preſerue and cheriſh the Church, which is the ſocietie of the Saints. Thirdly, the church beautifieth all other ſocieties: the principal dignitie of any towne, houſhold, or kingdome is this; that they are either Churches of God, or true members thereof.

[a] Pſal.52.5.

From this preheminence of the Church we are taught, aboue all things to labour to become true members of this ſocietie. Men haue great care to become members of incorporations and towns of greateſt priuiledges; but few there be that ſeeke for the priuiledges of Gods Church: And commonly thoſe that ſeeke moſt for priuiledges in chiefe townes, haue the leaſt care to become the true members of Gods Church; which is a wretched practiſe, and ought not to be among vs, ſeeing the Church hath priuiledges farre aboue all other ſocieties.

Secondly, hence we are taught aboue all things to haue care to preſerue the ſocietie of the Church of God. True it is, the miniſter and magiſtrate muſt haue chiefe care thereof: and yet euery man in his place muſt doe his beſt indeauour hereunto, becauſe it is the moſt principall ſocietie.

Thirdly, in that Gods Church is the moſt excellent ſocietie, giuing honour to all others, we are taught within the compaſſe of our callings, as much as we can, to bring all other ſocieties vnto this. Thoſe that are maſters of a familie, muſt labour to bring euerie one in their familie to be good members of the Church: And ſo in ciuill ſocieties, men of gouerment muſt labour that the members of the ciuill body become alſo members of Chriſts bodie. Thus gouernours of kingdomes ſhould labour that the parts of their dominions may be particular Churches of God. And there is good reaſon of this dutie; becauſe all other ſocieties without this are companions of men in the darke, ſitting in the ſhaddowe of death, beeing ſpiritually blind, and without all ſound comfort in their ſoules. Secondly, the Church is compared to a candleſticke of gold, becauſe of all ſocieties among men it is moſt precious and deere vnto God: and therefore it is reſembled to a [b] ſeale on Chriſts heart, and a ſignet on his arme: yea it is as deare vnto him as the apple of his eye, Zac. 2. 8. The Church is the Queene that ſtands on Chriſts right hand in a veſture of gold, Pſal. 45. 9. Yea that which ſurpaſſeth all, Chriſt redeemed [c] the Church vnto himſelf by his owne blood. Oh then how deere and pretious is ſhe in his ſight: And hereby alſo we are taught the ſame inſtructions that did ariſe from the former preheminence; namely, to haue ſpeciall care of Gods Church to preſerue the ſame, and to labour to become our ſelues, and to bring others to be members thereof. And thus much of the title of the Church.

Verſe 13. Now it is added, that Chriſt the Meſſias is in the middeſt of the ſeuen golden candleſtickes: whereby is ſignified: Firſt, that Chriſt is preſent with his Church at all times: And ſecondly, that being preſent he hath care to gather his church; and beeing gathered to preſerue the ſame againſt the gates of hell, and all other enemies.

From hence we learne ſundry things: Firſt, that the ſupremacie of the Church of Rome, wherein one is made heade of the militant Church, is needeleſſe: For Chriſt is preſent alwaies with his Church, hauing ſpeciall care to gather, guide, and preſerue the ſame, and he needeth no vicar generall to ſupply his roome, for in the preſence of the Prince all commiſſions of vicegerencie doe ceaſe: though Chriſt had graunted this ſupremacy to any, yet ſo long as Chriſt is preſent, their commiſſion muſt ceaſe; and it is as great pride, and greater, for any to preſume to be head of all churches in Chriſts preſence, then for a man to ſit vicegerent in the preſence of the prince.

Secondly, ſeeing Chriſt is alwaies preſent with his Church, we are taught to walke with God, and before God; as Enoch did, Gen. 5. 22. Which dutie ſtands in theſe points: Firſt, whatſoeuer we ſay, or take in hand, we muſt doe it as in the preſence of Chriſt. Secondly, we muſt continually depend vpon Chriſts prouidence, who is euer preſent with his Church, prouiding all things for the good of his Church, and of euery member thereof. Thirdly, we muſt doe all our actions as looking for approbation at the hands of Chriſt: for which ende we muſt take direction for the ſame out of his word. The practiſe of this dutie is moſt excellent: for by walking with God we ſhall be enabled to many good duties; as namely, liue vnblameably in this wicked world, making conſcience of all ſinne, and approouing our ſelues both to God and man, in heart and life. And thus much for the place where Iohn ſaw Chriſt.

The ſecond argument whereby Iohn deſcribeth Chriſt, is his figure, or forme, in theſe words, One like the ſonne of man. Some thinke that theſe words are a deſcription of ſome Angel, not of Chriſt, becauſe he is ſaid to be like the ſonne of man, not the ſonne of man himſelfe; but they are deceiued. For he which is here deſcribed, is before called the firſt, and the laſt, it is he which was dead, and is aliue, which cannot agree to any but to Chriſt. Now the words may more ſignificantly be tranſlated thus, One like to a ſonne of man: for if it be tranſlated that ſonne of man, then Chriſt muſt needes be the reſemblance: for ſo he is called, Act. 7. 56. But here Chriſt is ſaid to be like to a ſonne of man, by the vſuall phraſe of the Olde Teſtament; whereby is meant that he is like vnto a man. And Chriſt is not here called a man, but is ſaid to be like vnto a man, becauſe he appeared vnto Iohn not in his true manhood, which was then in heauen, but in the likeneſſe of his manhood. And note this, that as Chriſt here appeared to Iohn in this viſion, ſo did he alwaies appeare after his aſcention. Stephen [a] indeede ſaw his true manhood, but it was in heauen: & Paul heard his voice when he was [b] conuerted: & ſaw the Lord, 1. Cor. 9. 5. But no man can prooue

[b] Cant. 8. 5.

[c] Act. 20. 28.

[b] Act. 9. 5.

that Chriſt appeared vnto him in his true manhood, vnleſſe it were in heauen. And in all theſe viſions Iohn ſaw not his true manhood, but a reſemblance thereof. Now Chriſt appeared thus for ſpeciall conſideration. For man is too much addicted to his bodily preſence: this was the fault of his owne friends and Diſciples. Therefore Chriſt would hereby teach vs, not to ſeeke for his bodily preſence, but rather to lift vp our hearts to heauen, and therefore ſeeke to haue fellowſhip with him by faith. For this cauſe he ſaide to Marie after his reſurrection, Touch me not, I am not yet aſcended to my Father, Ioh. 20.17. This Paul had learned, Though we had knowne Chriſt (ſaith he) after the fleſh, yet henceforth know we him no more, 2. Cor. 5. 15. Now if Chriſt after his aſcenſion neuer appeared in his true manhood, it teacheth vs, that the defence of Chriſts reall preſence in the Sacrament is needleſſe. For if Gods Church haue ſpirituall fellowſhip with Chriſt by faith, it is ſufficient. Againe, whereas Chriſt appeareth in the ſhape and forme of man after his aſcenſion, the Papiſts gather, that we may make images of Chriſt, and ſo anſwerably of the Father, and of the holy Ghoſt, in thoſe formes wherin they appeared: as of the holy Ghoſt in the forme of a doue [a]; and [b] of the Father in the likeneſſe of an old man. Anſ. It is not vnlawfull to make, or to haue an image of Chriſts manhood, ſo that it be out of religious vſe (though it be doubtfull whether any now haue a true picture thereof:) but if it be to repreſent whole Chriſt, God and man, or be vſed to remember Chriſt thereby, or to worſhip Chriſt therein, it is an idol. As for the formes of an old man, or of a doue, they may be made for the manifeſtation of the hiſtorie of the Bible, when it is painted or pictured: but then we muſt conceiue, that theſe formes are no images of the Father, Sonne, or holy Ghoſt, but onely repreſentations of ſuch viſible appearances, as ſometimes were ſignes and pledges of the preſence of thoſe perſons. But now to abſtract thoſe formes apart from the hiſtorie, and to make them images of any perſon in Trinitie, is flat againſt the ſecond Commandement; which doth generally forbid all images of God, not excepting thoſe very ſhapes in which himſelfe tooke libertie to teſtifie his preſence for ſome time. And there being no exception againſt Gods commandement, it is in vaine to ſeeke ſhifts and excuſes for a thing forbidden, ſpecially conſidering we may not meddle with God, beyond our commiſſion from God.

a Matth.3.
b Dan.7.9.

De Deo nil ſine Deo.

Cloathed with a garment downe to his feete. Here Chriſt is further deſcribed by his attire. The firſt part whereof is, A long garment reaching to his feete. The cauſes why he ſo appeared, may be theſe. Firſt, to ſignifie that he is the high Prieſt of the new Teſtament, and ſo continueth, doing the offices of the high Prieſt for his Church after his aſcenſion, in preſenting the merit of his owne onely ſacrifice, and making A interceſſion to God the father for them. For the long garment was one of thoſe wherewith the high Prieſt was clothed in his miniſtration, vnder the law.

Secondly, to ſignifie that he is the Prince of peace: for the long garment not onely in the Church of God, but among the Heathen, hath beene alwaies a note of peace: and ſo Chriſt is called, Iſa. 9.6.

Thirdly, to ſhew that he had in his breaſt the [a] treaſures of the wiſdome of the Father, and the [b] ſpirit of counſell. For this long robe alwaies pertained to them that excelled in counſell and wiſdome: and ſo Chriſt is deſcribed, Iſa. 11.2. Now in this example of Chriſt we may learne a B dutie touching our attire, namely, that the outward garment of the bodie ſhould be ſutable to the good things that ought to be in the heart: as to our wiſdome, knowledge, feare of Gods name; to our ſobrietie, modeſtie, temperance, humilitie, and all other vertues whatſoeuer. We muſt not onely in ſpeech and action, as in hearing Gods word, and receiuing the Sacraments, ſhew our ſelues to be burning lights; but euen by the geſture and attire of our bodie, both for matter and forme, ſhew forth the grace of our hearts. But miſerable are theſe times, wherein mens attire is ſutable, not to the graces of God that ſhould be in their hearts, but to the common corruption of the times. For ſuch it is generally, whereby a farre off C (though he neuer had acquaintance with the partie) a man may ſee the vanitie and lightneſſe of his minde, the pride and follie of his heart, that weareth it.

b Iſa.11.2.

The ſecond part of Chriſts attire is this, Girded about the pappes with a golden girdle. It hanged not looſe about him, but was girded cloſe to his bodie: whereby is ſignified, that he is a Mediatour, euery way readie prepared to doe the office of a Mediatour for his Church: for in all ages the [a] girding of the attire to the bodie hath beene a ſigne of care and diligence in the buſineſſe they haue in hand; and the contrarie, not girding, a ſigne of careleſneſſe, and negligence therein. When Chriſt was here on earth, he was moſt pitifull to all penitent ſinners, D he reiected none ſuch that came vnto him, but regarded them farre more then the Scribes and Phariſies, that were the learned men among the Iewes. And ſince his aſcenſion, he hath not left off his care and diligence, but is alwaies readie, doing all ſuch duties which may pertaine to their ſaluation.

a Luk.12. 35,36.

The conſideration whereof, is a matter of excellent comfort vnto all ſuch as haue any ſparke of grace. Firſt, hereby we learne, that when we truly humble our ſelues, Chriſt is readie to receiue our praiers, and in all our troubles and temptations readie to releeue, to comfort, and deliuer vs: & in our death readie to receiue our ſoules, yea at al times prepared to doe whatſoeuer may further our ſaluatiō. He is not like vnto Pharaohs butler, who promiſed to remēber Ioſeph whiſe he was in priſon with him, [a] but forgat him quite when he was aduanced to honour againe. But he is alwayes mindefull of vs, and euer ready to doe all the workes of a mediator for vs. Whence wee are taught anſwerably, to haue our loyns girded, as Chriſt commandeth, Luk. 12. 35. beeing euer readie to doe all duties that concerne Chriſtianitie: as to call on Gods name, and to praiſe God, to practiſe faith, repentance, and obedience; fit to die, and fit to liue: neuer ſuffering our ſelues to be vnfit for any thing that concernes our ſaluation, but at all times ſo ſtand vpon our watch, that whenſoeuer God ſhall call, we may be readie to enter into the kingdom of heauen. But alas the caſe with moſt men goeth farre otherwiſe: they fit themſelues for the world at all times: but few ſeeke to prepare themſelues for the kingdome of heauen till death doe come.

This ought not to be: It is a treacherous part in any ſubiect to bee vnprepared for the ſeruice of his Prince, and yet euer readie to receiue a common enemie. And it is no leſſe treaſon againſt God, to forſlow our preparation for the Lord, by fitting our ſelues for the world.

Further hee is ſayd to be girded, not about the loyns, but about the pappes and breaſt. Wherby ſome ſay (and not vnfitly) is ſignified, that there is no defect, or aberration in any motion or affection in our Sauiour Chriſt, but euery thought and inclination of his heart is kept in order by the fulneſſe of the ſpirit which dwelleth in him bodily.

v. 14. His head and haires were white as white wooll and as ſnow: and his eyes were as a flame of fire.

In the third place, Iohn here deſcribeth Chriſt by the parts of his body. The whiteneſſe of his head and haires, ſignifieth the eternity of Chriſt. For howſoeuer as hee is man, he had a beginning; yet in regard of his godhead hee is eternall, and therefore is called, The auntient of daies, Dan. 7. and is ſaid to haue beene in the beginning, Iohn 1. 1. that is, to haue had a beeing before al other things had their beginning.

In this reſemblance of his eternitie, by head and haires as white as wooll and ſnow, he giueth vs to vnderſtand, an honour & prerogatiue in the aged man, whereby hee excelleth the yonger ſort: to wit, the horeneſſe and whiteneſſe of his haire, for which cauſe in the word of God it is ſet forth by moſt worthy compariſons: as by the white Almond tree, Eccleſ. 12. 5. And by a glorious ſiluer crowne, not made by man, but by the hand of God ſet vpon his head. And herein doth this excellencie of the aged conſiſt; that they beare the image of Gods eternitie before all that are of younger yeares. From whence all yonger men are taught to reuerence the aged by [b] riſing vp before them: acknowledging thereby the preheminence of the hoare-head.

Againe, hereby the aged are taught to carrie themſelues anſwerable to their eſtate and condition, they ought to excell all their youngers in knowledge, wiſedome, and experience of good things, 1. Ioh. 2. 13. I write vnto you fathers ( that is aged men, who by reaſon of yeares are fahters) becauſe you haue knowne him who is euerlaſting.

Alſo they muſt be holy, as he that is eternall is holy, whoſe eternitie they ſhew forth: And therefore Salomon ſaith, The white head is a crowne of glory, when it is found in the way of righteouſnes: that is, in one that walketh in the way of righteouſnes, Prou. 16. 31. for his white haire ſignifieth, that hee hath ſpent much time and care about good duties. But it is no ornament vnleſſe it be ioyned with holineſſe of heart and life. Which I ſay, becauſe many younger men excell the aged in the knowledge of God, and other vertues: wich is a ſhame to the gray headed, for as they goe before others in yeares, ſo they ought to excell in pietie, knowledge, & all vertues. Ignorance and looſeneſſe of life is a foule vice in any; but in him that beats the ſiluer crowne, intollerable. For how can they looke for reuerence from the yonger, when as they bee farre inferiour to them in gifts of grace? It is no excuſe for olde men to ſay, Their wits are not ſo ripe as yong mens are; and their memorie failes them. Their aged ignorance argueth that they ſpent the time of their youth looſely and prophanely: For they that be planted in the houſe of the Lord, ſhall bring forth fruit in their age, Pſal. 62. 13. 14. A plant is young, and therefore hee that would weare the crowne of glorie in his age, muſt receiue the ſappe of grace in the houſe of God while hee is young.

And his eyes were as a flame of fire, here Iohn proceedeth in deſcribing the parts of Chriſts bodie. In the handling whereof it is hard for any to ſet downe certainely, what the holy Ghoſt intendeth in euery particular. It ſhall bee ſufficient for vs to follow that interpretation which is moſt probable & beſt agreeing with the tenor of Gods word.

In this deſcription of Chriſts eyes, are ſignified to vs two things: Firſt, that Chriſt the mediator and redeemer of his Church, is of moſt quicke, ſharpe, and piercing ſight, ſo as hee beholdeth all things that are done vpon the earth: yea, hee ſeeth into the verie ſecret thoughts of mens hearts; thither can the eyes of his godhead more eaſily pierce, then fire can doe into the ſubſtance of bodily things. And there is great neceſſitie it ſhould be ſo, for beeing head and gouernor of his Church, hee muſt knowe all the parts and members thereof; hee muſt behold their ſeuerall eſtates, and ſee the malice and practiſes of Sathan, and other enemies againſt them.

Now in that Chriſt our Sauiour hath this piercing ſight, we are taught to haue care, not onely of our words and actions, but alſo of the very ſecret thoughts, purpoſes, and deſires of our hearts: for the piercing eye of Chriſt ſeeth them all, therefore we muſt be ſure they be well ordered. In the courts of men, thoughts and inward motions beare no action; but with God it is otherwiſe. Chriſt Ieſus hath a fierie eye, that ſeeth into all our thoughts, and there he holdeth a court of iudgement. Therefore we muſt keepe a godly watch ouer all the imaginations of our hearts, that they may be approoued of Chriſt, leaſt for them we be iudged and condemned.

[b] Lev. 19 23.

Secondly, this teacheth vs in matters of religion to be that in deede, which we ſeeme to be in profeſſion. For though we may deceiue men, which know not our hearts, yet we cannot deceiue Chriſt: for by his fierie eyes he ſeeth whatſoeuer is in vs. And yet the common practiſe of the world is here to be reprooued, who tearmeth them hypocrites that take vpon them any profeſſion for the name and religion of Chriſt. But herein men goe beyond their calling: it belongeth onely vnto the piercing eye of Chriſt, to iudge and looke at mens hypocriſie of heart.

Secondly, by theſe fierie eyes is ſignified, That Chriſt is full of anger, wrath, and iudgement againſt all ſinners, ready to take vengeance on all thoſe that will not yeeld ſubiection vnto him by turning from their ſinnes, and beleeuing in him: for Chriſt as he is a Sauiour, ſo is he a Iudge; and therefore in the parable he ſaith: Thoſe mine enemies that would not that I ſhould rule ouer them, bring them hither, and ſlay them before me. The conſideration hereof ſerueth to awake many an one out of the ſleepe of ſinne. This age is miſerable, if we regard the practiſe of faith and repentance which God requireth; for men liue in ignorance without knowledge, they goe on in looſeneſſe of life without reformation; which is both ſcandalous vnto men, and odious vnto God: nor one of an hundred turneth to God at the preaching of his word, renewing his wayes by daily repentance. But vnto many it is meat and drinke to goe on in thoſe ſinnes wherein their hearts delight. But let theſe men conſider, that Chriſt is a righteous Iudge, beholding his enemies with fierce and fierie eyes, alwaies ready to take vengeance on them that doe not repent: and therefore they muſt in time conſider their eſtate, for if they perſeuere in their euill wayes as they haue begun, the truth is, he ſtill beholdeth them with his fierie eyes, and though in his great patience he ſpare them for a time, yet at length he will put in practiſe the execution of his iudgement, and ſlay them for enemies; as it is in the parable, Luk. 19. 27. Let them remember what a fearefull thing it is to fall into the hands of God, if his wrath be kindled neuer ſo little. Pſal. 2. 12.

V. 15. And his feete like A vnto fine braſſe, burning as in a furnace: and his voyce as the ſounde of many waters.

The word in the originall ſignifieth Braſſe that ſhineth, which for ſubſtance is pure and durable, a very choice and excellent kinde of braſſe. And hereunto Chriſts feete are compared, to ſignifie vnto vs his inuincible power, whereby he is able not onely to encounter with ſinne, Satan, and death, but alſo that he hath already entred combat with them, and hath bruiſed the heads of theſe his enemies. Yea hereby is ſignified, that he hath not onely done theſe things in his owne perſon, but alſo will doe the B ſame in all his members, by his inuincible power, vnto the ende of the world. Which is a matter of exceeding great comfort to Gods Church and people, neuer to be forgotten. If any man be exerciſed in any grieuous temptation of Satan, he muſt not be aſtoniſhed and confounded therewith: but remember, that Chriſt our Sauiour hath the braſen feete, wherewith he hath bruiſed the head of the ſerpent, and will (if he ſeeke vnto him vnfainedly) bruiſe in him the ſerpents head: ſo by experience ſhall we finde the benefit of his braſen feete.

If any be oppreſſed with the corruption of his nature, whether it be in thoughts or affecti- C ons; let him come vnto Chriſt Ieſus, lay open his wants before him, ſhew his ſinnes, and make knowne the ſtrength thereof vnto him, and withall crie vnto him for helpe: and he ſhall finde by ioyfull experience, though they were neuer ſo many, or mighty, That the power of Chriſt in him, will vanquiſh, and ſubdue them all.

Againe, doth any feare the terrours of death (as all men doe by nature) let him conſider, that Chriſt hath the feete of braſſe, wherewith he did encounter with death vpon the croſſe: and not content with that, went downe with him into his owne denne, and there did bruiſe his head, and ſubdue his power. Indeede if death were to encounter with vs in his full D ſtrength, it were a matter of feare: but conſidering that Chriſt hath bruiſed his head, this muſt ſtay our hearts againſt ouermuch dread. And as it ſerueth to miniſter comfort to the godly, ſo it is a matter of all terrour and woe vnto thoſe that liue impenitent: for Chriſt hath feete of braſſe to bruiſe the head of all his enemies, and ſuch are all thoſe that goe on in ſinne; vnleſſe they turne, deſtruction will be their ende. Let euery one therefore looke vnto his ſoule, that hath led a courſe in any ſinne. Let him forſake his old maſter Sathan, and the works of darkeneſſe, and turne vnfainedly to Ieſus Chriſt in the practiſe of faith and true repentance, and by all obedience in the duties of his callings. For howſoeuer the patience of God may ſtay for a time the execution of his iuſtice & wrath, yet in the ende they ſhall feele by wofull experience rience the deſtroying power of theſe his braſen feete.

Burning as in a furnace. Feete aſcribed to God and men in Scripture, doe oft time betoken their wayes. So here by Chriſts feete we may vnderſtand his workes and wayes. And whereas they are ſaid to burne as in a furnace; thereby is ſignified the perfection thereof. All the counſels of God, with the execution thereof in the creation & gouernment of the world, with all his works therein, are all moſt holy and pure, like fine braſſe purged in the furnace, Pſa. 18. 30. The wayes of God are vncorrupt, yea, he is holy in all his wayes.

Pſal.111.7.

The conſideration whereof, muſt teach vs to conceiue and ſpeake reuerently of all the works of God, euen of thoſe moſt ſecret and ſtrange iudgements, whereof we cannot comprehend a reaſon. Yet becauſe they proceede from God, we muſt acknowledge them pure and iuſt. In ſundry points of religion there is a learned ignorance, whereof this is not the leaſt, to holde our ſelues content, and to reuerence the works of Chriſt, though we ſee no reaſon thereof; nay, though to vs they ſeeme againſt all reaſon: for all the wayes of God are vncorrupt. Though the blinde eye of men cannot diſcerne the light of the Sunne, yet the Sunne is full of light: ſo though our blinde eyes cannot behold the puritie of Gods works, yet they are all done in iuſtice and equitie, yea they are iuſtice it ſelfe: for his will is the rule of iuſtice. And we muſt not thinke that God doth a thing becauſe it is good and right, but therefore is the thing good and right, becauſe God willeth and worketh it. Examples hereof we haue in Gods word: [a] God commanded Abimelech to deliuer Sarah to Abraham, or els he will deſtroy him and his houſhould. In mans reaſon this might ſeeme vniuſt: for why ſhould Abimelechs ſeruants be puniſhed for their maſters fault. So [a] Achan ſinneth, and all the hoaſt of Iſreel is puniſhed. Dauid committed adulterie, [b] and the childe which he begat dieth. Dauid numbreth the people: but all the people are ſmitten with the plague, 2. Sam. 24. All this to mans reaſon may ſeeme vnequall: yet beeing the works of God, we are with all reuerence to iudge them moſt iuſt and holy. Again, the [c] Scripture ſheweth plainely, that God in his eternall counſell hath decreed to ſaue ſome, and to reiect others: and his reaſon moouing him thereto, is not any thing foreſeene in them, but his will and pleaſure alone. This in mans reaſon ſeemeth to be crueltie towards ſome: and therefore ſundry men diſclaime this doctrine, as charging God with iniuſtice & tyranny. But herein they greatly offend: for it is the manifeſt truth of God in his word: and therefore ought with reuerence to be acknowledged, though we can ſee no reaſon thereof, For who art thou, oh man, that pleadeſt againſt God, Rom. 9. 20.

a Gen.20.

b 1.Sam.12. 18.

c Rom.9.

And his voice as the ſound of many waters. The voyce of Chriſt is reſembled to the ſound of many waters for two cauſes. Firſt, to ſignifie the loudneſſe and greatneſſe of it: the ſound whereof hath bin heard through all the world in the miniſterie of the Goſpell. Secondly, to ſhew the power and efficacie thereof in the eares of his creatures: for ſuch power it is of, that when the creatures were not, He but ſpake the word and they were made, Heb. 11. 3. This powerfull voyce of Chriſt, brought [d] Lazarus out of the graue after he had beene dead foure dayes bound hand and feete: And by this voyce of Chriſt ſhall they that haue beene dead ſix thouſand yeares before, bee raiſed vp to life, The houre ſhall come, in the which all that are in the graues ſhall heare his voyce: and ſhall come forth to iudgement, Ioh. 5. 28. 29.

d Ioh.11.43, 44.

Hereby then wee may ſee the great ſecuritie and the deadneſſe of mens hearts in this age. For though the powerfull word of Chriſt bee daily ſounded into the eares of many; yet it entereth not into their hearts. They liue ſecurely in their ſinnes, though they be daily exhorted to repentance. But ſhall dead Lazarus ſtart out of his graue, when Chriſt ſaith, Lazarus come forth? Nay, ſhall they that were conſumed to duſt many thouſand yeares before, at the hearing of Chriſts voyce riſe out of their graues? And ſhall wee which liue in bodie bee no whit affected with it in our ſoules? Oh, fearefull death in ſinne! And yet this is that ſtate of all thoſe that will not bee mooued to leaue their ſinnes by the miniſterie of the word. It may be the outward eare receiueth the ſound, but the dead heart receiueth no inſtruction. Wee muſt therefore apply our hearts to this powerfull voyce of Chriſt; and leaue the ſinnes wherein wee haue lien dead, that ſo the quickning power hereof vnto ſaluation may appeare in vs.

V. 16. And he had in his right hand ſeuen ſtarres: and out of his mouth went a ſharpe two edged ſword: And his face ſhone as the ſunne ſhineth in his ſtrength.

Here Iohn proceedeth further, to ſet out the parts of Chriſts bodie, and the properties thereof. By ſeuen ſtarres we are to vnderſtand ſeuen Angels: that is, (as Chriſt expoundeth them verſe 20.) the ſeuen miniſters of the ſeuen Churches of Aſia. And they are called ſtarres for theſe cauſes. Firſt, ſtarres giue light to men on earth: And ſo the miniſters ought to giue ſpirituall light to them that liue in the Church, both by doctrine, and by an vnblameable conuerſation. Secondly, ſtarres haue their continuall abode in heauen, and deſcend not vnto the earth: So miniſters aboue all others ought to haue their conuerſation in heauen. This indeed is the dutie of euery Chriſtian; but eſpecially of the miniſter, in regard of his calling. And this heauenly conuerſation hee muſt expreſſe: firſt, by ſeeking the conuerſion of his owne ſoule: and then the conuerſion of others, that they may haue an eternall manſion in heauen. Thirdly, they are called ſtarres becauſe (if they bee faithfull) they ſhall be honored of God, and made to ſhine as the ſtarres for euer and euer. Dan. 12. 3.

It is added, that they are in Chriſts right hand. Whereby is ſignified that to him belongeth the regiment, and gouernment, and the whole diſpoſition of the miniſterie for matters that concerne the Church. From whence ariſe ſundry inſtructions.

I. That it is Chriſt who giueth to his Church miniſters which preach the Goſpel. For, hee [a] aſcended vpon high, and gaue gifts vnto men, ſome to bee Apoſtles, ſome Prophets, and Euangeliſts, ſome Paſtors and teachers for the gathering together of the Saints, and for the worke of the miniſterie, and for the edification of the body of Chriſt. And for this cauſe we ought to pray daily vnto Chriſt, [b] that he would thruſt forth labourers into his harueſt; that the remnant of Gods elect may bee gathered, and ſo wee ſee an ende of theſe miſerable dayes wherein we liue.

Secondly, in that Chriſt holdeth them in his right hand, we may gather that Chriſt giueth protection & defence vnto his miniſters, when they are faithfull and walke in their calling according to his will; which is a matter to be conſidered of all that are called into this office: For they haue ſundry occaſions of diſcouragement: as the negligence and backwardneſſe of their people; the ſlanders and mockings of the enemies: But this protection of Chriſt muſt comfort them againſt them all; ſeeing they are in Chriſts right hand, they muſt goe on with all godly boldneſſe.

Thirdly, this ſheweth the dignitie of this calling. Indeede it is deſpiſed and reputed baſe in the world; and hereby many are driuen from it. But let the wicked iudge what they will: Behold Chriſt honoureth it, for his faithfull miniſters are not onely preſent before him, which were no ſmall thing: but he holdeth them in his right hand; then which, what greater glorie can be done vnto them? This muſt be an inducement vnto all thoſe that are indued with gifts fit for this calling, to effect the ſame.

Laſtly, euery miniſter of the Goſpel muſt hereby learne to bee faithfull in his calling, and holy in his conuerſation: for by vertue of his calling he is placed in Chriſts right hand. Now ſhall we thinke that Chriſt will long beare in his right hand any that are vnfaithfull, or prophane? Nay, he will take them out of his right hand, and put them vnder his feet of braſſe, and there grind them to powder: For as they are honoured aboue others by their place, ſo ſhall their confuſion be the greater, vnleſſe they bee faithfull. This we may ſee in Nadab and Abihu, Leuit. 10. 1. and Hophni and Phineas, 1. Sam. 3. 13. And in the ſame reſpect ought all the people of God to bee carefull to their wayes; for by their calling of Chriſtianitie they bee members of Chriſt. Now if they be not faithfull and anſwerable to their profeſſion, he will ſurely deale with them, as with vnfaithfull miniſters, put them vnder his feet of braſſe, and confound them for euer. They muſt therefore make conſcience of all ſinne, and become not hearers onely, but doers of his will: ſo ſhall Chriſt protect them in this life, and ſaue them eternally.

And out of his mouth went a ſharpe two edged ſword. This ſword that came out of his mouth, is nothing els but the doctrine of the Law and the Goſpel, vttered and propounded in the writings and miniſterie of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Heb. 4. 12. The word of God is liuely, mightie in operation, and ſharper then any two edged ſword. And it is thereto compared, becauſe as a ſword with a double edge entreth ſharply into the fleſh, and pierceth deeply into the bones, euen to the very marrow: So the doctrine of the Law and the Goſpell entreth ſharply, and pierceth deeply into the very marrow of the heart of euery man, to the diuiding of the thought and the ſpirit. This two edged ſword, the word of God, hath a twofold operation. One vpon the wicked: Another in the elect. It woundeth the wicked at the very heart with a deadly wound, and thereby brings them to eternall death, Iſay 11. 4. Chriſt ſhall ſlay the wicked with the breath of his lips: that is, with his word which is this two edged ſword. Herewith ſhall he conſume Antichriſt, 2. Theſ. 2. 8. viſit Leuiathan, and ſlay the dragon, that is, the greateſt enemies of his Church, Iſay 27. verſe. 1.

Here conſider how the word of God ſhould kill an impenitent ſinner. There bee three degrees of ſpirituall death. Firſt in this life, where an impenitent ſinner receiueth his deadly wound: The ſecond at the ende of this life, when the bodie is laid in the graue, but the ſoule goeth to the torments of the damned: The third at the end of the world: when bodie and ſoule together goe to hell eternally. Now a ſinner receiueth in this life his deadly wound after this manner: Chriſt in the giuing thereof hath a threefold worke in his heart by the miniſterie of his word, which is this two edged ſword. Firſt, hereby he reuealeth vnto him his ſinnes, as hypocriſie, pride, and rebellion of heart, with all other his horrible and damnable tranſgreſſions againſt the firſt and ſecond table, 1. Cor. 14. 24. 25. When all propheſie, and there commeth in one vnlearned, he is reprooued of all, the Prophets by the word iudge him, and thereby lay open vnto him the ſecret ſinnes of his heart, with the ſinnes of his life. Secondly, Chriſt hereby reuealeth vnto him his indignation and wrath, which is the curſe of the law due vnto him. In which regard the law is called [a] a killing letter, ſhewing no mercie, but onely thundering out the fierce wrath of God vpon tranſgreſſors. Thirdly, hereby Chriſt awaketh his guiltie conſcience, ſharpneth the ſting thereof, and terrifieth him at the hearing of his word. Thus wicked Felix trembled when hee heard Paul preach [b] of temperance, righteouſneſſe, and the iudgement to come. So when king [c] Belſhazzer ſaw the palme of the hand, writing things againſt him vpon the wall; his countenance was changed; his thoughts troubled him, his ioynts were looſed, and his knees ſmote one againſt another. And all theſe are wrought in the wicked without apprehenſion of mercie, or reformation of life. It may pleaſe God to recouer one that is thus wounded; but while he is in this eſtate, he hath receiued a deadly wound, and without vnfained repentance, is alreadie in the firſt ſtep towards eternall death: for theſe horrours of conſcience ſeuered from the apprehenſion of Gods mercie in Chriſt, are no grace, but the flaſhes of hell fire, and the beginning of eternall woe. And thus we ſee how Chriſt by his ſword woundeth his enemies.

[a] Eph. 4. 11. 12.

[b] Math. 9. 38.

19649a

[a] 2.Cor.3.6.

[c] Dan.4.6.

Hence we are to learne ſundry duties. Firſt, how to carrie our ſelues towards them that after they haue heard the word preached vnto them, will rage and ſtorme againſt it, and the preachers thereof, becauſe it touched them. We muſt not deſpiſe or maligne them, but rather bee mooued with compaſſion towards them. For this their behauiour is a token they are wounded with the ſword of Chriſt at the verie heart, and theſe their ragings are nothing but ſtruglings before death eternall, vnleſſe the Lord in mercy recouer them of this deadly wound.

II. Hereby wee are let to ſee and know the lamentable ſtate of the greateſt number in thoſe congregations where the word hath long beene preached; for we ſhall finde by lamentable experience, that in thoſe places fewe come to true knowledge, repentance, and obedience; but moſt remaine ignorant & impenitent: now this their condition is moſt fearefull. A terrible iudgement of God is vpon them: for when men haue long heard Gods word, and are not thereby bettered, for knowledge in mind, & obedience of life; they are thereby wounded vnto death.

This two edged ſword hath alwaies his worke: it either cureth vnto life by working repentance, and other graces of ſaluation; or woundeth vnto death them that receiue it not. Wee muſt therefore lament the caſe of ſuch perſons as remaine ignorant and impenitent vnder the miniſterie of the word, for they are as yet dead men for ought we know, howſoeuer they may make a faire ſhew by their ciuill honeſtie. If any man ſhould come into a field, and there behold many thouſands ſlaughtered, and guſhing out blood, ſome in the head, ſome in the ſide, &c. this ſight would make his heart to bleed. Well, this is true in Gods Church, though it bee not ſeene with bodily eies, the moſt men are wounded with this ſword of Gods word, and lie pitifully wallowing in the blood of their ſoules, while they continue in ignorance, in ſecuritie and want of repentance.

III. This muſt admoniſh vs all to labour earneſtly to haue further things wrought in vs, then a knowledge of our ſinnes, an apprehenſion of wrath, or horrour of conſcience; namely, true faith and repentance, and ſound reformation of life: for without this, we haue nothing in vs but the deadly wounds of Chriſts enemies. And thus much for the worke of the Word vpon the wicked.

The ſecond worke of this two edged ſword is in Gods elect; in them it hath ſundry works, all which tend to their ſubiection. Firſt, it woundeth to the quicke the corruption of their nature. This is one ſpeciall cauſe why it is called a two edged ſword, becauſe it entreth deepely into the heart of Gods children, and giueth their corruption ſuch a deadly blow, as it ſhall neuer recouer againe: It killeth not the perſon, as it doth in the wicked: but quickening the ſoule, it woundeth his corruption. Paul miniſtred the Goſpel, [a] that the offerings vp of the Gentiles might be acceptable. Where reſembling Gods Church to a ſacrifice, he giueth vs to vnderſtand, that euery true Chriſtian muſt be ſlain, though not in bodie and ſoule, yet in regard of ſinfull motions, corrupt affections, and rebellious actions, by this two edged ſword of the ſpirit. And this is his conuerſion whereby the root of corruption is ſtocked vp.

[a] Rom.15.16.

Secondly, after conuerſion, this two edged ſword ſerueth to cut off and pare away the remnants of vnbeleefe, doubting, impietie, anger, and other ſinnes that be in the elect: Euery branch (ſaith Chriſt) that bringeth forth fruit in me, my father the husbandman pruneth, to make it bring forth more fruit.

Ioh.15.

Thirdly, it ſerueth to keepe Gods children in awe and ſubiection vnto him. In this viſion, Chriſt ſtandeth in his Church, holding vp the ſcepter of his kingdome, which he beareth in his mouth: for this ende, that though his enemies wil not be brought in ſubiectiō vnto him, yet his owne children might hereby be kept in awe of him. He therefore that will not at the lifting vp of this two edged ſword tremble and feare before Chriſt, is but a rebellious ſubiect: If there be brawling in humane ſocieties, let the magiſtrate but ſhewe himſelfe with the ſword of iuſtice, and ſtraightway euery one is quiet; if any reſiſt, he is taken for a rebell. Now ſhall this be effected in ciuill policie, and not be true in Chriſts ſpirituall gouernement? vnleſſe therefore we will ſhewe our ſelues rebells againſt Chriſt, let vs ceaſe from ſinne, and tremble before him, ſeeing he holdeth out vnto vs the ſcepter of his word.

Fourthly, this ſword ſerueth notably for our

A defence and victory in all temptations, Ephe.6.17. This ſword of the ſpirit, the word of God, is one peece of the complete armor of a Chriſtian. Herewith did Chriſt vanquiſh Sathan. Mat. 4. And thus we ſee how the word of God is a two edged ſword, in regard of the elect.

Hence we are taught, that when we haue the doctrine of the Law and of the Goſpell preached vnto vs, wee muſt with all reuerence heare and receiue the ſame. Men will heare it while it is taught generally, but if it once touch their particular faults, then they cannot brooke it. But we muſt ſuffer it to ranſacke our hearts, and bee glad thereof: for by this meanes our corruption is wounded, and ſinne ſlaine in vs: B our ſoules are conuerted vnto God, and ſhal be ſaued. If any man were diſeaſed with a Fiſtula, or any other dangerous ſore, he would willingly ſuffer the ſurgeon to ſearch and pierce into the ſame. Shall we doe this for our bodily health, and ſhall we not ſuffer the word of God to enter into our hearts to rip vp our ſinnes, that they beeing wounded and ſubdued, wee may bee healed, and ſo our ſoules liue for euer? we cannot liue vnto God, til we die vnto ſinne: and wee cannot die vnto ſinne, till the ſame bee wounded in vs by this two edged ſword. Away therefore with all niceneſſe in diſliking the word, when it croſſeth our humour; and if wee loue eternall life, let vs then embrace it moſt willingly.

C Saint Iohn ſaith further of this two edged ſword; that it came out of Chriſts mouth. Other kings carrie their ſwords and ſcepters in their hands; but Chriſt beareth his in his mouth, to teach vs this ſpeciall point, That we muſt receiue no doctrine from any man, which he hath not receiued from the mouth of Chriſt. For firſt, God reuealeth his will vnto his ſonne; and Chriſt deliuereth it vnto his Prophets and Apoſtles by the ſpirit, and to his miniſters in their writings. They therefore muſt deliuer nothing vnto Gods people, but that which they haue from Chriſt: if they deliuer ought elſe, they hold not forth Chriſts ſword; neither can it haue that powerfull effect either in the godly, or in the wicked.

D And his face ſhone as the Sunne ſhineth in his brightneſſe. Here is the laſt braunch of this deſcription of Chriſt; his is compared to the ſhining of the Sunne; and that in his ſtrength: becauſe Chriſt is vnto his Church, as the Sunne is to the world. And looke what duties the Sunne performeth vnto the world, the ſame duties Chriſt performes vnto his Church in a more excellent manner, as their reſemblance will euidently declare.

Firſt, the Sunne in the world diſpelleth night and darkneſſe, and maketh the day by bringing light: ſo Chriſt the ſunne of righteouſneſſe, Malach. 4. 2. ſendeth downe the bright beams of knowledge and grace into his Church, whereby blindneſſe and ignorance is taken away, 2.Cor.4.6. And hereby euery one, of what ſort or place ſoeuer, is taught firſt, to labour for knowledge and the will of God. A great ſhame it is for any to be ignorant herein: when the day commeth wee ſet open our windowes to let in the light of the Sunne for our comfort: behold Chriſt Ieſus is euer a ſhining light in his Church: Why then ſhould wee not open our hearts, that the beams of light and knowledge, which deſcend from him, may enter into vs, & giue vs light? Secondly, we muſt hereby learne in our whole conuerſation among men, to walke by this light. Wee are here but pilgrims trauelling towards heauen: and the way of this miſerable world is full of darkneſſe: yet Chriſt Ieſus is in the middeſt of his Church, ſhining as the Sunne in his ſtrength, to giue the light of knowledge, whereby we may ſee the right way thither. Without him there is nothing but darkeneſſe and wandering: his word is the light, and himſelfe the day ſtarre. We therefore muſt attend vnto him in all our affaires of this life: and in the particular duties of our lawfull callings take direction from the light which ſhineth from his face.

Secondly, the Sunne ſerueth moſt excellently to comfort and reuiue cold and dead ſtarued bodies; as experience in the ſpring time teacheth: So Chriſt Ieſus by the worke of his ſpirit conueyeth ſpirituall life and heat into the dead and frozen heart of man: he is of power to comfort them that mourne, to giue life to the broken hearted, and to reuiue the ſpirit of the humble, Iſay 57.15. and for this moſt excellent worke may well be called the Sunne of Righteouſneſſe. In regard whereof we muſt labour aboue all things to bee partakers of this life and ioy which commeth from Chriſt. In Winter time men vſe to ſtand in the ſunne to comfort and warme themſelues with the heat thereof. Behold Chriſt Ieſus is the ſunne of righteouſneſſe to his Church, which giueth heat and life to all the true members thereof. Wee therefore muſt ſeeke aboue all things to haue his bleſſed beames of grace to ſhine vpon our cold and frozen hearts, that by his ſpirituall heat we may be receiued vnto euerlaſting life. In this world nothing is ſo much regarded, as riches, honours, and pleaſures; Who will ſhewe vs any good, is the worldlings ſong. But with godly Dauid we muſt ſay, Pſal. 4.4. Lord lift thou vp the light of thy countenance vpon vs, quicken thou vs with thy ſpirituall life, and comfort vs with the beames of mercie. Queſt. How may I get gracious beames of grace and life, to come from this Sunne of righteouſneſſe into my heart? Anſ. Before a man can liue by Chriſt, he muſt bee killed in himſelfe. Men doe not kill thoſe whom they would reſtore to temporall life, but the Lord taketh that courſe. Thou therefore muſt ſuffer his two edged ſword to enter into thee, yea to be thurſt vp to the hilts into thy heart, that ſo thy vile ſinnes and corruptions may bee ripped vp, and the wrath of God deſerued thereby made knowne

vnto thee; that in thy ſelfe thou mayeſt be out of hope: and then and not before art thou fit to receiue comfort and life by Chriſt; as a man that is cold in bodie is moſt fit to receiue heat by cloathes and other meanes of warmeneſſe. Now beeing thus humbled in thy ſelfe, thou muſt vſe the meanes which God hath ordained, to wit, the hearing, reading, and meditating in his word, with earneſt prayer for grace and mercie; and then ſhalt thou perceiue the ioyfull beames of life ſhining into thy ſoule. If a man had all the world, and wanted this grace of life and comfort by Chriſt, it were but a curſe vnto him: but though a man want all things elſe, yet by this life of grace in Chriſt he is bleſſed for euer: and therefore aboue all other things men ſhould labour for it.

Thirdly, the ſunne ſerueth to diſcouer all things. In the night nothing is diſcerned; but all things appeare in one forme: but when the ſunne commeth forth, al things are made manifeſt, euen the ſmall motes in the ayre. Euen ſo Chriſt Ieſus the Sunne of righteouſneſſe, hee ſeeth all things, and can diſcouer the moſt hidden ſecrets of men: nothing is hid from the light of his countenance, ſo infinite is his diuine wiſedome and knowledge. In regard whereof we muſt bee mooued to looke vnto all our wayes, both thoughts, words, and actions, that they bee ſuch as Chriſt approoueth; for though wee may deceiue the world by a falſe gloſſe, yet all that wee doe, ſpeake, or thinke, is naked and bare before him, hee knoweth the ſame, and can and will reueale it.

If this were beleeued and remembred, it would be a meanes to ſuppreſſe much fraud & iniuſtice, and many grieuous ſinnes which are rife in the world. Men thinke if they can bleare the eyes of the world, all is well, they may doe what they will: but we muſt think vpon the ſhining face of Chriſt, which diſcerneth and diſcouereth all ſecrets; and labour thereupon to make conſcience of all our wayes, yea of our ſecret thoughts, that God may approoue the ſame.

V. 17. And when I ſaw him, I fell at his feet as dead: then hee laid his right hand on me, ſaying, Feare not, I am the firſt and the laſt.

V. 18. And I am aliue, but I was dead: And behold, I am aliue for euermore, Amen: And I haue the keyes of hell and of death.

Here Saint Iohn deſcribeth Chriſt further by other Arguments; namely, by ſundry actions of his. The firſt whereof, is a confirmation of Iohn, beeing ſore afraid, ſet downe in this and the next verſe. In which action note two things: Firſt, the occaſion thereof: Secondly, the means of his confirmation. The occaſion was Iohns exceeding feare, ſet downe in theſe words: And when I ſawe him, I fell at his feete as dead. The meanes of confirmation, in the words following, Then he laid his hands vpon me, &c.

For the occaſion. Iohns feare was exceeding great, and that of death: as appeareth by Chriſt his confirmation: wherein he telleth Iohn, That he liueth, and hath power ouer death. In this his feare note ſundry points: The cauſe, the effect, and the kind of this feare. For the firſt, The cauſe was Chriſt his appearance in glory and maieſtie vnto Iohn, ſet downe in theſe words, When I ſawe him. Where we learne, that ſinnefull men ſince Adams fall cannot abide the preſence of God. [a] Adam before his fall talked face to face with God without feare: but ſo ſoone as he had ſinned, [b] he fledde away at the hearing of his voice, and hid himſelfe among the trees of the garden. This feare commeth by reaſon of mans guiltineſſe before God. Hence Manoah ſaid to his wife, [c] We ſhall ſurely die becauſe we haue ſeene God.

a Gen.2.
c Iudg.13.22.

The vſe.

Firſt, by this, That no ſinnefull man can abide the preſence of God, we are taught to labour to become newe creatures, to haue the image of ſinne defaced in vs, and the image of God reſtored in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. True happineſſe conſiſteth in fellowſhip with God: but we can neuer haue true fellowſhip with him, while we liue in our ſinnes, 1. Iohn 1. 6. If we ſay we haue fellowſhip with him, and walke in darkeneſſe, we lie. We therefore muſt labour to be purged from our ſinnes, and ſo his preſence ſhall be our ioy.

Secondly, this feare of Iohn at Chriſts preſence in glorie, teacheth vs, That the ſight and preſence of Gods maieſtie is a moſt excellent meanes to humble a man, and to make him know himſelfe to be nothing in himſelfe. When Abraham talked with God, the more he beheld the maieſtie of God, the more he humbled himſelfe, confeſſing at laſt, that he was but duſt and aſhes, Gen. 18. 27. And Peter by a great draught of fiſhes ſeeing but a glimmering of diuine maieſtie in Chriſt, could not abide it, but cried out, Depart from me, for I am a ſinnefull man, Luke 5. 8. And ſo the holy Angels when they ſtand before the maieſtie of God, are ſaid [a] to couer their faces and their feete with their wings: to ſignifie, that they are nothing in regard of the exceeding maieſtie of God, and in themſelues vnable to behold his glorie.

Thirdly, hereby we are taught to acknowledge Gods great goodneſſe towards vs in the miniſterie of the word: wherein he vouchſafeth to ſpeake vnto vs, not in his owne perſon, as he did in mount Sinai, which would be ſo terrible, that none could abide it; but fauourably & familiarly by the miniſterie of men that are like vnto our ſelues. Many abuſe this mercie of God, and deſpiſe the word becauſe of the meſſenger; but we muſt learne by this bountie of God, to receiue the word with all reuerence as from the Lord.

Laſtly, in this exceeding feare of Iohn, who was an Apoſtle and a very godly and righteous man; we learne that the moſt holy man that is wil be aſtonied euen to death with the preſence of Gods glorious maieſtie. And if no man, bee he neuer ſo holy, can ſtand before Gods preſence, much leſſe can the moſt righteous works of any man endure the triall of his iudgement: if his perſon cannot abide his preſence, his works will neuer beare his iudgement. For the perſon muſt firſt be approoued, before the workes be accepted. Therefore damnable is the doctrine of the Church of Rome, which teach that ſuch as in themſelues are ſinneful men muſt ſtand before Gods iudgement ſeat, bringing with them works of grace, as meanes of their iuſtification, and part of ſatisfaction to Gods iuſtice. It is a doctrine of deſperation: for how can our works be perfectly holy, ſeeing our perſons are but ſanctified here in part? And who can think that the infinite iuſtice of God can be ſatisfied by the imperfect righteouſnes of man.

II. Point. The effect of this feare in his body, He fell downe as dead at his feete: This was no ſmall feare, but exceeding great, aſtoniſhing his ſenſes, and laying him downe as dead. Phiſitions ſay, and that truely, the mind followeth the temperature of the body. But hence we may as truely ſay, That the body followeth the diſpoſition of the minde; for the affections of the ſoule will work vpon the body like vnto ſtrong diſeaſes. Iohns feare caſteth his body into a ſoune: And ſo horrour of conſcience when the heart is colde will make the bodie hot, and the intralls to roule in the body. The ſame may be ſaid of anger: 1. Reg. 21.4. whẽ Ahab could not obtain Naboths vineyard, he laid him down on his bed in diſpleaſure, & was almoſt dead: euen ſo will other affections worke vpon the bodie.

Hence we learne that the bodies of men being diſeaſed, muſt not alwaies be cured by bare Phyſicke, but ſometimes by curing of the minde and ordering of the affections: for when the diſtemper of the bodie ariſeth from the diſorder of the minde, then till the mind be well compoſed and ſettled, phiſicke will little auaile.

III. Point. The kind of this feare is inſinuated in theſe words, he fell at his feete: whereby the holy Ghoſt giueth vs to vnderſtand, that this was a religious reuerent feare, which he bare to Chriſt: For this kind of proſtrating the bodie betokeneth humilitie; and argueth a reuerent eſtimation of the thing feared.

Hence we are taught, when we come into the preſence of Chriſt, to proſtrate our ſelues as Iohn did, and looke that we be ſtricken with a religious feare of his maieſty. If any ſhall A thinke that Chriſt is now aſcended into heauen, and therefore we cannot now fall downe at his feete as Iohn did? I anſwer, though Chriſt be now in heauen, yet hath he his feete vpon earth, at which we muſt fall downe. In the olde teſtament the mercy ſeat was the pledge of Gods preſence: and therefore it is called Gods footeſtoole, Pſal. 99.5. before which the Iewes were to fall downe. Well, though the mercie ſeat be now taken away, yet ſome thing is inſtead thereof: For wheresoeuer Gods people aſſemble themſelues in the name of God, there is his footeſtoole: and therefore in the aſſemblies of Gods Saints, we muſt caſt downe our ſelues before Chriſt Ieſus, and do all duties vnto him with all feare, awe, & reuerence of his maieſtie.

B This feare of Iohn, though it was holy, yet is it tainted with ſome ſinne and corruption: for it was immoderate feare of death which made him thus aſtoniſhed and affright. Whence we learne that the moſt holy affections of righteous men are not perfectly holy, but mixed with imperfection according to the meaſure of their ſanctification, which is alwayes in part in this life. Whereby it appeares that no man hath in him a filial feare of God alone, but ſome ſeruile feare (wherby we feare God for his iudgments) is mixed therewith. And thus much for Iohns feare which is the occaſion of his confirmation.

Now followeth the meanes of his confirmation in theſe words, Then he laid his right hand vpon me, ſaying feare not, I am the firſt and the C laſt: and I am aliue, but I was dead: and behold I am aliue for euermore, Amen: and I haue the keyes of hell and death. Here note two things, firſt, the time when Chriſt vſed theſe meanes for Iohns confirmation: ſecondly, the meanes themſelues. The time is noted in this word, then, that is, after his preſence had ſtroken a feare in my heart, which made me as dead; then the Lord vſed means to comfort me. The means of comfort and confirmation are then vſed when the party is humbled. And thus the Lord dealeth with all his ſeruants in the matter of their ſaluation: Firſt, he bruiſeth their ſtonie hearts, and woundeth their ſinnefull ſoules, before he powreth in the oyle of grace. Firſt, a D man muſt be a loſt ſheep, and then Chriſt findeth him and layeth him on his ſhoulders and bringeth him home. And indeede they that would finde ſound comfort by Chriſt, muſt firſt be humbled in themſelues. And the reaſon why men reape ſo little comfort either by the word or ſacraments, is the want of true humiliation before they come, whereby the ſoule is fitted for grace and conſolation.

II. Point. The means vſed by Chriſt to confirme Iohn, and they are two. Firſt, a ſenſible ſigne, He laid his right hand vpon me. Secondly, comfortable words, Feare not.

Here firſt obſerue in generall Chriſts gratious dealing with Iohn: he vſed not one meanes apart, but in great mercie, that he may throughly confirme Iohn, he giueth him both a ſigne and words. And ſo he hath alwaies dealt with his ſeruants: When he called Moſes to be a deliuerer of his people; Firſt, he gaue him his word, ſaying, I wil be with thee, and then a ſigne, ſaying, Vpon this mountaine ſhall ye ſerue God, Exod. 3. 12. So when he would confirme the heart of [a] Ahaz againſt his enemies, he firſt giues him a promiſe of deliuerance, v.7. then biddeth him aske a ſigne, v. 11. And for this cauſe Chriſt in the publiſhing of his Goſpel, addeth ſignes and miracles vnto his word, that the truth thereof might be fully confirmed. And ſo in the worke of our ſaluation, beſides his mercifull promiſes which were ſufficient in reſpect of his fidelitie; he giueth vs further ſignes and ſeales to ſupport our weaknes, and to confirme our faith in the aſſurance thereof, euen the vſe of the holy Sacraments.

[a] Eſai 7.

This teacheth vs, that Chriſt hath a ſpeciall care ouer his Church and people, in that he doth ſo condeſcend and abaſe himſelfe vnto their weakeneſſe, adding vnto his word, which of it ſelfe were ſufficient, ſignes and tokens, that by both he might more euidently giue that aſſurance which by one alone our weakeneſſe would not ſo well conceiue.

Againe, in this meanes of confirmation note the order which Chriſt vſeth: Firſt, he giueth him the ſigne of his preſence, Laying his hand vpon him, to aſſure him of protection from all daunger of death. Then he giueth him his word, bidding him not to feare. Hence we may learne, that the aſſurance of Gods preſence and protection, is a ſoueraigne remedie againſt all feare. When Moſes feared the great calling he was ſent about, to take away that feare, the Lord ſaith, [b] I will be with thee. Hence Dauid ſaith, [c] He will not feare though he walke through the valley of the ſhadow of death, becauſe God is his ſtay and comfort. Wherefore it concerneth vs to labour to be aſſured not onely of Gods preſence, but of his prouidence & ſpecial protection: And ſo in al dangers both of life & death, we ſhall haue ſtay and comfort for our ſoules.

[b] Exod.3.11

[c] Pſal.23.4.

The Lord hauing vſed theſe two meanes to confirme Iohn, both a ſigne and his word; doth yet further condeſcend vnto Iohns weakeneſſe, and eſtabliſheth his owne word by two reaſons. The firſt, in theſe words, I am the firſt and the laſt. Chriſt is the firſt, becauſe nothing was or could be before him: The laſt, becauſe nothing is or can be after him. Theſe two titles are giuen vnto Chriſt, to expreſſe his Godhead and eternity, as before we haue heard, v.8. Now here they are againe ſet downe, to giue vs to vnderſtand, that he hath in his owne power the beginning and end of all things: and therefore is able to protect his ſeruants from all dangers, and from death: and will make good vnto them all his promiſes vnto eternall life.

v. 18. And Am he that liueth, but I was dead, and behold I am aliue for euermore, Amen: And I haue the keyes of hell and of death.

Theſe words contain the ſecond reaſon to confirme Iohn. And it may thus be framed by way of a diſtinction, Although I was dead, yet I am he that liueth, (for ſo the words are) and behold I am aliue for euermore, Amen: yea I haue power ouer death and hell. This diſtinction containeth three parts. Firſt, Though I was once dead, yet I am he that liueth. Secondly, Though I was once dead, yet I liue for euermore. Thirdly, Though I was once dead, yet I haue the keyes of death and of hell. Of theſe in order.

I. Part. And Am he that liueth, though I was dead. Here life is aſcribed to Chriſt in a ſpeciall manner: For Chriſt liueth in a peculiar ſort different from the life of other creatures. For firſt, he hath ſufficient life in himſelfe, and from himſelfe: Secondly, he giueth life to others. For the firſt, that we may better conceiue it, we muſt know that life is twofold, vncreated, and created. Vncreated life is the life of God whereby God liueth: This life is eternall and infinite in it ſelfe, and from it ſelfe. Now as Chriſt is God he liueth this vncreated life: which is all one with the godhead. Againe, created life is twofold. The firſt is naturall, preſerued by meanes of meate and drinke. The ſecond is ſpirituall, both begun and continued by meanes of the immediate operation of Gods ſpirit, whereby we haue fellowſhipp with God. And this ſpirituall life is more perfect then the naturall. Now Chriſt liueth not the naturall life, but as he is God liueth the vncreated life: and as he is man he liueth the ſpirituall life, his body and ſoule hauing all their ſubſiſting and ſuſtentation in the ſecond perſon in Trinitie: and therefore he hath in himſelfe moſt abſolute and perfect life, and ſo liueth of himſelfe.

Secondly, Chriſt is here ſaid to liue, becauſe he giueth life vnto men: & that two waies: Firſt, as he is God; & ſo he giueth life to al good and bad; For in him euery thing liueth, moueth, and hath his beeing, Act. 17. 28. Secondly, as hee is mediator God and man; & ſo he giueth ſpirituall life vnto his Church and people. Hence hee ſaith to his Diſciples, Becauſe I liue, ye ſhall liue alſo, Ioh. 14. 19. For look as Chriſt died not for himſelfe, but for vs, that we might not die eternally: So he liueth now in heauen the ſpirituall life, not for himſelfe alone, but for vs, that we might liue that ſpirituall life in and by him eternally. And therefore our life is ſaid, To bee hid with God in Chriſt. And for this cauſe in the Sacrament, we do eat the bodie and drinke the blood of Chriſt really by the mouth of faith, that wee might know that our life is to be fetched from him. For as wee receiue grace from his grace; ſo we receiue life from his life.

Hereby we are taught to ſeeke for this ſpirituall life at Chriſts hands: that we may ſay with Paul, I liue not now, but Chriſt liueth in me, Gal. 2. 21. and that our life is hid in Chriſt, as in a head and roote. For he liueth in heauen that we might liue by him: our care muſt not be ſo much for our temporall life, which is but a vapour, and like a fleeting ſhadow, as for this ſpirituall life which is eternall. But the practiſe of this dutie is rare to be found, though the omiſſion of it be a grieuous ſinne. Mens whole care is for temporall life: few thinke on this, how to procure to themſelues this ſpirituall life by Chriſt; though he haue ſaide, I liue that you may liue in me. This appeareth by their common practiſe: They will goe tenne, twentie, yea an hundred miles to prouide meanes for their bodily preſeruation; and yet will ſcarſe goe one or two miles to prouide the meanes of their ſaluation for euer. The cauſe thereof is, the hardneſſe of mens hearts, which are not touched for their ſinnes, nor feele the ſmart & weight thereof. This we may ſee plainly in the woman of Samaria: For when Chriſt ſate at the well of Iacob talking with her, and telling her that he was the well of life, of whoſe water whoſoeuer dranke ſhould neuer thirſt, ſhe did nothing but cauill with him: But when he laid to her heart her principall ſinnes, then ſhe left off cauilling, and in reuerence, and ſome beginning of faith, acknowledged him to be the Meſſias. Euen ſo let the miniſter ſay vnto his people, he can bring them to the water of life; they will nothing regard, but cauill at the doctrine of the Goſpel, till their ſinnes be touched, and their ſoules humbled by the ſight thereof. Wherefore if we would haue our hearts fit to receiue ſpirituall life by Chriſt; we muſt firſt labour to haue a ſenſe of our ſinnes, and to feare Gods wrath due vnto vs for the ſame. Hereby we ſhall be weaned from the dangerous loue of earthly things, and our ſoules ſhall be rauiſhed with deſire of Chriſt Ieſus. He is the well of life: and if once we could feele a parching heat in our ſoules, by reaſon of our ſinnes, then would we thirſt and neuer be at reſt till we had drunke our fill, and diued our ſelues in his ſauing merits. This naturall life is but vaniſhing, and therefore we muſt labour for this ſpirituall life by Chriſt which is eternall. This will comfort vs in all diſtreſſe: and take from vs the feare of death, of hell, and all danger.

The ſecond part of the diſtinction: Though I was dead, yet behold, I liue for euermore, Amen. This point is vttered and propounded by two notes to be obſerued. Firſt, by a note of certentie, Amen. Secondly, by a note of attention, Behold. The note of certentie, (Amen) ſerueth to aſſure vs that this is an infallible truth which Chriſt affirmeth of himſelfe: ſaying, I liue for euermore. The note of attention which is prefixed, Behold, ſerueth to ſtirre vp Iohns minde, and the minde of euery one of vs, to a ſerious conſideration of this which Chriſt ſaith, I liue for euermore. And becauſe it pleaſeth Chriſt to propound A this point in this manner, let vs a little ſtand thereon, and herein conſider two points. Firſt, in reſpect of what nature Chriſt is ſaid to liue for euer. Secondly, for what ende he liueth for euer. For the firſt. No doubt as Chriſt is the Mediatour of the Church, he liueth for euer: and therefore this muſt be vnderſtood of Chriſt, in regard of both his natures, Godhead and manhood. In reſpect of his Godhead, he is coeternall with the Father and with the holy Ghoſt, liuing of himſelfe that vncreated and eternall life, which is all one with the Godhead, beeing eternall, without beginning or ending. Secondly, he liueth for euer as he is man: for after his death he aſcended vp to heauen, where in full glorie he enioyeth immediate fellowſhip with B the Godhead: for in him dwelleth the fulneſſe of the Godhead bodily; his manhood beeing wholly & immediatly ſuſtained by his godhead.

II. Point. The ende for which Chriſt liueth for euer, is to giue eternall life to his Church, and to euery true member thereof. So S. Iohn ſaith, This is [a] the teſtimonie of God, euen the Father, that he hath giuen vs life euerlaſting, & this life is in that his Sonne. And here Chriſt muſt be conſidered of vs, as the head of his Church, as the roote and ground of our ſaluation, and the fountaine of all our happines. For as the roote of a tree liueth not for it ſelfe, but for the bodie and for all the branches: euen ſo Chriſt Ieſus, he hath eternall life in him, not for C himſelfe alone, but that he may conuey the ſame to all his members. Yea, we muſt conſider Chriſt as the common treaſurie and ſtorehouſe of all true felicitie: wherein life eternall is laid vp for all the members of his church. For which cauſe he ſaith, [b] His fleſh is meate indeede: and whoſoeuer eateth his fleſh, and drinketh his blood, ſhall liue for euer; to giue vs to vnderſtand, that his manhood hath quickning vertue in it: yet not of it ſelfe, or by it ſelfe, but as it is the manhood of the Sonne of God. For from the Godhead it receiueth this quickning power, to giue eternall life vnto the Church. And here the meanes muſt be conſidered, by which Chriſt giueth life vnto his Church; namely, by vertue D of that myſticall vnion which is betweene him and euery member of his Church. Which vnion is thus cauſed: God the Father giueth Chriſt vnto his Church, and to euery one that is to be ſaued by Chriſt; and that really and truly according to the tenor of the couenant, in which he hath promiſed to giue Chriſt with all his benefits to euery one that beleeueth. The manner and order of this gift is this: Whole Chriſt God and man is giuen to euery beleeuer; euen as he is Mediatour. And yet the Godhead of Chriſt is not giuen with the manhood, but onely the vertue and operation of the Godhead in the manhood; by which the manhood is made able to merit for the beleeuer. But the manhood of Chriſt is giuen both for ſubſtance, and in regard of all benefits that are conueyed to man by it, as iuſtification and re-

A demption; as truely as lands and goods are giuen of man to man. And when God giueth Chriſt to any, he doth withall giue vnto the ſame partie the ſpirit of Chriſt: for he that hath part in Chriſt, hath part in his ſpirit: and this ſpirit createth in his heart the inſtrument of faith, by which Chriſt giuen of the father, is receiued and apprehended; both his bodie and blood, and the efficacie and the benefits thereof. Chriſt is not receiued in imagination, as men receiue things by conceit in the braine: but as he is giuen of the father; namely, in the word and ſacraments really and truely, though ſpiritually. And the ſame ſpirit that worketh this faith, doth knit the beleeuer vnto Chriſt really, though myſticaly, making him one with Chriſt, ſo as Chriſt is the head, & the beleeuer a mẽber. And thus is this myſtical coniunction wrought, from whence proceedeth this eternall life.

The benefits that come from this myſticall coniunction are theſe.

I. Hereby a beleeuer begins in this world to liue eternall life: for by the worke of his ſpirit, Chriſt maketh that man that is thus vnited vnto him, to begin to die vnto all ſinne, and to liue vnto him ſpiritually, as himſelfe liueth.

II. Hence commeth the reſurrection of the bodie, for this coniunction beeing once begun, remaineth eternall, and is neuer wholly broken off, no not from the bodie, while it is conſumed to duſt and aſhes. Looke as in the winter ſeaſon the ſappe returneth to the roote of the tree, and then all the branches ſeeme as they were dead: but when Spring time commeth, by vertue of the ſunne the ſap aſcendeth, and maketh them freſh and greene againe: euen ſo, the bodies of Gods children haue their Winter ſeaſon while they lie dead and rotten: but yet by vertue of their vnion and coniunction with Chriſt, at the laſt day ſhall life be conueied from Chriſt Ieſus vnto them, whereby they ſhall be raiſed to life.

III. Hence commeth eternall life to euery beleeuer: that is, glory and bliſſe in body and ſoule in heauen for euer and euer: ſo being once begun (as it is in this world) it is neuer diſſolued. And thus we ſee how Chriſt conueyeth eternall life vnto his members.

The words bearing this ſenſe doe containe in them the foundation of two maine articles of our beleefe, namely, the reſurrection of the bodie, and life euerlaſting: for both theſe are effected to vs, by vertue of our vnion with Chriſt; for he liueth for euer to giue life to vs. And this is the ground of all true ioy: as wee may ſee in Iob, who in the middeſt of his miſerie ſtaied himſelfe on this, That he knew his Redeemer liued, and that he ſhould riſe againe, and behold him with thoſe ſame eyes, wherewith he ſawe other creatures, Iob. 19. 25. 26.

2. Againe, if Chriſt liue in heauen to giue vnto vs eternall life, then muſt we learne to haue our conuerſation in heauen with Chriſt: for where our life is, there ſhould our conuerſation be. Now that our conuerſation may be with him, we muſt often ſeriouſly conſider with our ſelues of this euerlaſting life which Chriſt there keepeth in ſtore for vs: and for this cauſe principally doth Chriſt here ſay, Behold I liue for euer.

3. This alſo muſt mooue vs to put all our affiance in him, and to place all our ioy and reioycing in him. Men haue moſt regard to that part of their bodie, by which the whole bodie and euery member liueth. Well, we profeſſe our ſelues to be members of Chriſt, and in him is hid our ſpirituall life: we therefore muſt ſet our hearts and affections on him eſpecially.

The third part of the diſtinction is this: Though I was dead, yet I haue the keyes of death and of hell. B Here we muſt not imagine that hell is a bodily place kept with locke and key, and dores, as mens dwelling houſes are: that cannot be prooued by any place of Gods word. Neither yet that the torments thereof are bodily, ſuch as be inflicted in this world: but rather they are ſpirituall, beeing the apprehenſion and feeling of Gods wrath and vengeance, whoſe iealouſie burnes like fire. But Chriſt in this phraſe borroweth a compariſon from ſtewards of great houſes, who at their inſtalling into their ſtewardſhips, haue the keyes of all things giuen vnto them. Which giuing of the keyes is a token of regiment and authoritie beſtowed vpon them. And the meaning is this, That Ieſus Chriſt though he once died, yet by C his death did vanquiſh hell and death, and hath obtained full power and dominion ouer them both for euermore.

Hence ariſe ſundry inſtructions; firſt, that power and authority to forgiue ſinnes properly, belongeth onely vnto Chriſt. No meere creature hath this power; for he that can forgiue ſinnes, muſt be able to take away the puniſhment of ſinne, namely, hell and death, which none can doe but Chriſt alone, who hath the keyes thereof. And to ſay, that a man can properly forgiue ſinnes, is to ſay, that a man hath power in himſelfe ouer hell and death. And therefore the prieſthood of the church of Rome D is full of blaſphemie, who take vpon them properly to pronounce vnto men the pardon of their ſinnes of themſelues: and they deride the cuſtome of reformed Churches, who from God pronounce the pardon of ſinnes vnto them that repent.

Secondly, hereby we are taught to reuerence Chriſt, and to performe vnto him all due honour and loyall obedience. If we neuer haue done this heretofore, we muſt now begin; and if we haue done it, we muſt endeauour to doe it more. For Chriſt hath the keyes of hell and death, he can open the gates thereof at his pleaſure, and caſt thither whom he will. Many deceiue themſelues through their falſe conceit of Chriſt, they thinke not of him as of a Iudge, but as a Sauiour onely: they make him all of mercie and pitie, and thereby they take occaſion to goe on in ſinne. But we muſt conſider, that Chriſt is likewiſe a righteous iudge; who hath the power of hell and death in his hands, and therefore we muſt not flatter our ſelues in our euill wayes; but ſtriue to pleaſe him continually with feare and trembling, leaſt by our ſinnes we ſtirre vp his wrath againſt vs, and cauſe him to caſt vs into hell, whence is no redemption.

Thirdly, this is a matter of great comfort vnto all thoſe in Gods Church, that in this life vnfainedly cleaue vnto Chriſt: and eſpecially in time of affliction and temptation, and at the houre of death; for Chriſt hauing the keyes of hell and death, is able to keepe them from hell, and from the ſting of death. And this he will doe becauſe they truſt in him, for he hath promiſed it. If this were alwaies ſounding in our eares, it would miniſter endeleſſe ioy vnto our ſoules againſt the ſeruile feare of hel and death.

v. 19. Write the things which thou haſt ſeene, and the things which are, & the things which ſhall come hereafter.

Here S. Iohn propoundeth a ſecond action of Chriſt. For hauing confirmed Iohn againſt his great feare, he giueth him a commandement to write the things which he had ſeene, &c. This commandement was giuen to Iohn in the eleuenth verſe, and is here againe repeated for theſe cauſes: Firſt, that Iohn might ſee the ſpeciall care of Chriſt ouer his Church, that he ſtill continueth a prouident head thereof, for their good eſtate after his aſcention. Secondly, that Gods Church in all ages may vnderſtand, that it is neceſſarie men ſhould know the eſtate of the Church to be ſubiect vnto troubles, that thereby they may better arme themſelues againſt the euills to come. Thirdly, that Iohn might be fully aſſured of his calling, to write and publiſh this booke. Fourthly, that Gods Church in all ages might be out of doubt, that this booke is no deuice of man, but a booke of God, and part of holy Scripture reuealed from Chriſt to Iohn for the good of his Church. If it be ſaid; though Chriſt did faithfully reueale his will, yet Iohn might erre in publiſhing it. Anſ. As Chriſt deliuered this to Iohn, ſo he receiued and publiſhed it faithfully, without all fault either in matter or manner: for we muſt make a difference betweene the Prophets and Apoſtles, and all other teachers. As the Prophets in former times, ſo the Apoſtles in the newe Teſtament were called immediately by Chriſt, and had ſuch ſpeciall aſſiſtance of Gods ſpirit, that they could not erre, when they propounded by preaching or writing any doctrine of Chriſt vnto the Church of God: this appeareth by the promiſes of Chriſt made vnto the, Luk. 10. 16. He which heareth you, heareth me, and he which refuſeth you, refuſeth me: and he which refuſeth me, refuſeth him that ſent me. Againe, Math. 10. 20. It is not you which ſpeake, but the ſpirit of your father ſpeaking in you, Ioh. 14. 26. he promiſeth to ſend his ſpirit to be their comforter, which ſhall teach them all things: yea, to lead them into all truth, Ioh. 16. 13. Which promiſe ſome apply to all Gods miniſters; but if we marke the circumſtances thereof, we ſhall ſee that properly it agreeth to the Apoſtles: for though in others the certaintie hereof cannot be affirmed, yet in them it may: for which cauſe, in the councel at Ieruſalem thus they write vnto the Churches: It ſeemeth good [a] to the holy Ghoſt and to vs; as beeing aſſured of the certaine direction of the holy Ghoſt: which no miniſters euer ſince could ſay, beeing ſubiect to errour both in ſpeaking and writing. This diſtinction muſt bee held for the certaintie of our faith in the points of Religion, and for our aſſurance of the faithfull penning and publiſhing of this book. And thus much of the cauſes of this repetition.

[a] Act. 15. 28.

In the words of this commandement is contained the diuiſion of this whole booke, Write the words which thou haſt ſeene: that is, ſet downe what I haue ſhewed thee in this viſion. And which are, that is, all things which I reueale vnto thee touching the preſent eſtate of the Church. And which are to come hereafter: that is, thoſe things which concerne the future eſtate of the Church to the ende of the world, as I will reueale vnto thee. Thus then is the whole booke diſtinguiſhed. I. It containeth things touching the preſent eſtate of the Church in Iohns daies. II. It entreateth of things which concerne the future eſtate thereof from Iohns time to the end of the world.

The vſe.

Hence obſerue the lawfulneſſe of the art of Logicke: for diuiſions are lawfull, (elſe the holy Ghoſt would not here haue vſed them) & ſo by proportion are other arguments of reaſoning; and therefore that art which giueth rules of direction for the right vſe of theſe arguments, is lawfull and good. Thoſe men then are farre deceiued, who account the arts of Logicke and Rhetoricke to be friuolous and vnlawfull, and in ſo ſaying, they condemne the practiſe of the holy Ghoſt in this place.

v. 20. The myſterie of the ſeuen ſtarres which thou ſaweſt in my right hand, and the ſeuen golden candleſtickes is this: The ſeuen ſtarres are the ſeuen Angels of the Churches, and the ſeuen candleſtickes which thou ſaweſt, are the ſeuen Churches.

This is the third action of Chriſt: namely, the interpretation of the Viſion in the principall parts thereof; which he expoundeth for theſe cauſes: Firſt, Iohn in this buſineſſe was to ſhewe himſelfe a Prophet of God, by declaring the preſent and future eſtate of Gods Church. Now the principall part of a Prophet is to expound viſions or dreames reuealed either to himſelfe or to others; as we may ſee in Daniel and the reſt of the Prophets. Secondly, that Iohn might be encouraged in the publiſhing of this booke, and of the things reuealed vnto him: For Iohns calling reſpected the Church of God. And when he ſhould perceiue theſe viſions to concerne the Churches; this would ſtirre vp his diligence, in obſeruing, and penning the things reuealed.

Now Chriſt expounded not the whole viſion, but two principall things therein; namely, what was meant by the ſeuen ſtarres; to wit, the ſeauen Angells, or the ſeauen miniſters of the Churches. And what was meant by the ſeuen golden candleſticks: namely, The ſeuen Churches themſelues. The reaſons why both were ſo called, we haue ſhewed before, with the vſe thereof. Here onely I will obſerue theſe three points: Firſt, why Chriſt in the interpretation of his viſion doth not expound the whole, but onely two principall parts thereof. This he doth for theſe cauſes: Firſt, becauſe hee hath giuen vnto his Church the gift of interpretation, which he would haue them to exerciſe about this viſion: For if he had expounded euery part himſelfe, then he had left herein no matter to his Church, whereabout ſhe might exerciſe her gift. Secondly, to prouoke Gods miniſters eſpecially, with other members of his Church, vnto all diligence in ſtudying this and other parts of Scripture. For if all things were eaſie and plaine, then men would grow careleſſe in reading and ſearching out the knowledge of Gods word. Thirdly, to ſtire vp in euery Reader of this booke an earneſt and hartie deſire to vnderſtand the ſame. Fourthly, to excite all his ſeruants to prayer and inuocation vpon God for his grace, that they may with reading the Scripture vnderſtand the true meaning thereof.

II. Point. Note here, the miniſters of the Churches are called Angels. What theſe Angels are, appeareth in the chapters following, to wit, the paſtors and miniſters of theſe ſeuen Churches of Aſia. So Matth. 11. 10. Iohn Baptiſt is called Chriſts Angel or meſſenger, wherby we haue good light for the expounding of a place in Paul, 1. Cor. 11. 10. ſaying, That the woman ought to haue power vnder her head, that is, be couered, becauſe of the Angels: Where, by Angells may well be vnderſtood the preachers and miniſters of the Goſpel. And the reaſon of that precept may be this: Among the Corinthians the couering of the head was not as it is with vs, a token of preheminence and ſuperioritie, but a ſigne of ſubiection. And therefore the Apoſtle would haue the women of Corinth, when they came into the congregation, to haue their heads couered according to the cuſtome of their country in other aſſemblies, to ſignifie their ſubmiſſion and reuerence vnto the miniſterie of the Goſpel.

The vſe.

Whereas miniſters are the Lords Angels and ambaſſadours; hence wee gather that euery miniſter of the Goſpel muſt carry himſelfe as the meſſenger of the Lord. Meſſengers haue regard of two things; of the matter of their meſſage, and of their manner of deliuerie, that they ſpeake all which they are commanded; and in ſuch order as their Lord and maſter would haue it ſpoken, or ſpeake it himſelfe if hee were preſent: and hee that faileth in either of theſe, may iuſtly bee chalenged of vnfaithfullneſſe. The miniſter therfore being Chriſts meſſenger, muſt deliuer the whole will of Chriſt alone vnto his people: as alſo in that manner which Chriſt approoueth, and would himſelf obſerue, if he were preſent. Now can we once imagine, that Chriſt would deliuer his will, partly in Engliſh, partly in Latine, and other languages, or intermingle with the teſtimonies of the Prophets and Apoſtles, the ſentences of Fathers, of Philoſophers, Poets, and other writers? Thoſe therefore that in this ſort diſpenſe Chriſts Goſpell, doe hereby bewray vnfaithfullneſſe in their deliuery. Indeede this is counted the learned kind of preaching: But it is not that maner which Chriſt approoueth. And beſides, if this kind of teaching may take place, it will bring in as great Barbariſme, in regard of true Diuinitie, as was among the Schoolemen, when Gods word was wholly turned vnto needleſſe diſputation, yea it would ſhortly baniſh the Goſpel out of this land.

III. Point. Note the phraſe which the holy Ghoſt vſeth: he ſaith not, The ſeuen ſtarres ſignifie the ſeuen Angels, but are the ſeuen Angells: and the ſeuen candleſtickes are the ſeuen Churches; giuing to the ſigne the name of the thing ſignified. Wherein we haue a good warrant for our expoſition of that phraſe in the Sacrament: This bread is my bodie: this cup is my blood: Which the Papiſts vnderſtand properly of the very bodie and blood of Chriſt by reall tranſmutation. But as theſe ſeuen ſtarres are ſaid to be ſeuen miniſters, becauſe they did ſignifie the ſeuen miniſters; ſo is the bread called the bodie of Chriſt, becauſe it ſignifieth and repreſenteth his bodie, and the cup his blood. And as it is abſurd to ſay, the ſeuen miniſters were indeed ſeuen ſtars, becauſe they are ſo called: ſo it is abſurd to hold the bread in the Sacrament to be really Chriſts bodie, or the wine his blood, becauſe it is ſo called. And thus much of the third action of Chriſt in the interpretation of this Viſion.

Verſ. 1. Vnto the Angel of the Church of Epheſus write: Theſe things ſaith he that holdeth the ſeuen ſtarres in his right hand, and walketh in the middeſt of the ſeuen golden candleſticks.

IN this Chapter and in the next, is contained the fourth actiõ of our Sauiour Chriſt: wherein hee giueth ſeuen particular commandements to Iohn, to write vnto the ſeuen Churches of Aſia, and to ſende vnto them ſeuen letters or Epiſtles. The firſt of which commandements is expreſſed in the beginning of this firſt verſe: Vnto the Angel of the Church of Epheſus write: Then after followeth the Epiſtle, Theſe things ſaith he, &c. continuing to the eight verſe. Firſt, for the commandement: the party to whom Iohn muſt write, is the Angel: which word may be expounded two wayes: either to ſignifie the miniſter or paſtor of the particular Church of Epheſus, and ſo it is commonly taken of the moſt: or els it may betoken the company of the miniſters, teachers, and gouernours of the Church of Epheſus: for therein were many paſtors and gouernours, as appeareth Act. 20. 28. where Paul calleth together the Biſhops (as the word ſignifieth) and giueth them charge ouer their particular flocks. Now in Scripture the name of one perſon taken collectiuely, oftentimes ſignifieth the whole multitude, as Exod. 4. 22. Iſrael is my ſonne, euen my firſt borne. Where the whole body of the people of Iſrael is called by the name of one man. And ſo though Antichriſt be not one particular man, but a ſtate and company of men in the ſucceſſion of the Popes; yet is that whole eſtate noted by the ſpeciall name of one man: as that a Antichriſt; that man of ſinne, and ſonne of perdition. Thus we ſee how the word Angell may be taken: and whether we vnderſtand it of one man, or of the whole company of elders, it is not much materiall.

a 2.Theſſ.2.

In this particular commandement note two points: Firſt, that Chriſt his intent is to write to the whole Church of Epheſus, as appeareth Chap. 1. 11. where Iohn is commanded to write in a booke, and ſend it to the Churches: as alſo by the concluſion of this Epiſtle, where it is ſaide, Let him that hath an eare to heare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches: and yet he directeth his Epiſtle not to the whol church, but particularly to the angell or paſtor thereof. This he doth for two cauſes: Firſt, to intimate vnto this miniſter his dutie, which ſtood in two things: In teaching the contents of this Epiſtle vnto the whole Church: and in becomming a patterne and example to them all, of doing the things therein required. Secondly, becauſe either much good or much euill comes to euery particular Church by the miniſters thereof; ſuch is the efficacie of his place and calling. If he be faithfull, he bringeth great good to the Church: if vnfaithfull, exceeding great hurt; as may eaſily be prooued by many examples in all ages. Now Chriſt writeth to the angel of this Church that he might be a meanes of much good vnto them all, by exciting them to the practiſe of all good duties required in this Epiſtle.

verſ.7.

II. Point. Among all the Churches of Aſia, Chriſt writeth firſt to the Church of Epheſus: not for that this Church had authority ouer the reſt (for they were all candleſticks, and all of gold) but becauſe Epheſus was the mother citie farre exceeding the reſt in riches and eſtimation. Whereby Chriſt giueth vs to vnderſtand, that his will is, that thoſe people, townes, and cities which excell others in eſtimation and wealth, ſhould alſo goe before them in knowledge, obedience, and other graces of God. And ſo anſwerably ſhould it be with particular perſons: They which excell others for outward reputation and temporall bleſſings, ought to goe before them in ſpirituall graces, as godlines and religion. Thoſe which ſhall faile herein, and ſuffer others that are farre their inferiours to go before them in ſpirituall graces, ſhall finde it true to their ſhame before men, but eſpecially at the tribunall ſeat of Ieſus Chriſt.

Thus much for the commaundement. Now followeth the Epiſtle it ſelfe, which containeth three parts (as all ordinarie Epiſtles doe.) A preface, a propoſition, and the concluſion. The preface is in theſe words: Theſe things, ſaith he, that holdeth the ſeuen ſtarres in his right hand, and walketh in the middeſt of the ſeuen golden candleſtickes. The propoſition and concluſion, in the verſes following. The preface is borrowed from the former chapter, v. 16. and 13. where alſo it was handled. The intent of Chriſt herein, is to drawe this Church to a reuerent adoration of his perſon: and to cauſe in them a greater care to embrace and obey his admonition. This appeareth by that twofold action which he auoucheth of himſelfe, to wit, his holding the ſeuen ſtarres in his right hand, and his walking in the midſt of the ſeuen golden candleſticks: by the firſt whereof is ſignified his power in protecting and gouerning his miniſters: and by the ſecond is noted his preſence in the midſt of his Church, guiding and bleſſing his miniſters with all the members thereof. As if he had ſaid: If I be he that haue power to protect and gouerne, that am preſent alſo to bleſſe and direct both miniſters and people; then my admonitions are to be reuerenced and obeyed.

In this preface note two ſpeciall points. Firſt, that Chriſt here againe repeateth that which was before deliuered, touching his preſence in his Church, and his mightie power and prouidence ouer the ſame in protecting, guiding, and bleſſing both miniſter and people. By which repetition he would giue vs to vnderſtand, the ſpeciall weight and moment of this point, to wit, that it ought to be ingrauen in the hearts of euery one in Gods Church. And indeede till we be perſwaded thereof, we ſhall neuer learne religion ſoundly. The ground of true religion is this: To take the true God for our God: and Chriſt Ieſus for our Redeemer: and it conſiſteth not in a ſwimming motion hereof in the braine, but in the ſure perſwaſion of the heart, which wee neuer haue till wee be reſolued both of Chriſts preſence with vs, and of his prouidence ouer vs, for our bleſſing and defence.

II. Point. In this preface alſo note, that the perſwaſion of Chriſts preſence and ſpeciall prouidence in his Church, is a notable meanes to draw vs on to all good duties: for thereby Chriſt would perſwade both the Miniſters and people of Epheſus, to receiue and embrace this his Epiſtle. And no doubt he that is indeede perſwaded hereof, cannot but be mooued to walke before God in all holineſſe and obedience: as did Enoch, Abraham, and all the godly Patriarks. Thus much for the preface.

v. 2. I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canſt not forbeare them which are euill, and haſt examined them which ſay they are Apoſtles and are not, and haſt found them lyers.

Here beginneth the ſecond part of this Epiſtle, to wit, the propoſition, containing the ſubſtance and matter of the whole Epiſtle. This propoſition hath two points. Firſt, a commendation of this Church, in the ſecond and third verſes. Secondly, a rebuke and reprehenſion, in the 4. verſe. The commendation is firſt generall, in theſe words; I know thy workes. Then more particular, for ſpeciall duties and actions, in the words following, and thy labour, and patience, &c. For the firſt, I know thy workes: many doe expound this of works of mercie and liberalitie: but that will not ſo well ſtand: for he ſaith to euery Church, I know thy workes; and yet ſome of them are blamed for want of theſe good workes. By workes then is meant, the waies, that is, the practiſes and dealings of the whole Church: as well of miniſters as people, in all their affaires. Alſo by knowledge here we muſt vnderſtand, a knowledge that goeth with approbation, as may appeare by comparing this with the 4. verſe, whither it hath relation: for thus they muſt goe, I know thy workes, and approoue of them: and yet I haue ſomething againſt thee. So that his meaning is, I know thy workes, that is, all thy waies and dealings in thy life and conuerſation are manifeſt vnto me, and I doe generally approoue of them.

Here firſt in this teſtimonie of his knowledge, Chriſt miniſtreth a remedie againſt ſecret ſinnes and offences. The theefe, the murtherer, and adulterer waite for the night wherein to attempt their ſhamefull practiſes: The tradeſman in ſecret falſifieth his weights, and mingleth his wares: among moſt men, fraud, oppreſſion, and iniuſtice doe abound: and all becauſe they thinke, that if men ſee not, all is well: as David ſaith, the wicked man ſaith, God ſhall not ſee, he will not regard. Pſal.94.7. But if men could thinke and be perſwaded of this, that Chriſt ſeeth and knoweth all their waies, it would cauſe them to make conſcience not onely of groſſe ſinnes, but euen of their hidden and ſecret offences.

Secondly, whereas this knowledge is ioyned with approbation, it may be demanded, how this can ſtand with the iuſtice of God, to approoue of that which is not anſwerable to the tenour of his law, as the beſt works of the moſt righteous man are not; being ſtained with ſome corruption, Iſa. 64. 6. Anſ. The Goſpel, which is another part of Gods will, reuealeth more vnto vs then euer the Law could doe: namely, that if a man be in Chriſt, to him there is no condemnation; and that God will accept his true deſire and endeauour to pleaſe him, for the deede it ſelfe, 2. Cor. 8. 12. And thus according to the tenour of the Goſpel, Chriſt approoueth of their works in this place, though they were not able to abide the rigour of his law. But a Papiſt will here reaſon thus: If a righteous mans workes be approoued of God, then they are no ſinnes (for God will not approoue of any thing that is ſinnefull) and if his workes bee no ſinnes, then he may fulfill the law; and ſo be iuſtified by his workes. Anſw. That which Chriſt approoueth ſimply, hath no ſinne in it; but here hee onely approoueth of their works in part, namely, ſo farre forth as they came from the worke of his ſpirit in them: but as they proceede from the will of the worker, which is in part corrupt, they are not free from the ſtaine of ſinne; and ſo he approoueth them not. Againe, workes of grace are approoued of Chriſt with the pardon of ſinne; for accepting of the perſon, he remitteth the faults that be in his good workes, and ſo onely approoueth his owne worke in him. And ſo here wee muſt conceiue of his approbation of their works, to wit, as proceeding from his ſpirit, and hauing the faults thereof remitted in his owne merit.

The ſpeciall commendation of this Church is for particular actions: The firſt whereof is diligent labour: which is an excellent worke eſpecially in a miniſter of Gods word, to bee painfull in his particular calling, for the faithfull inſtruction and godly regiment of his particular charge. Hence Paul ſaith, 1. Tim. 5. 17. He that laboured in the word and doctrine, is principally worthy double honour. And herein Paul matcheth, yea preferreth himſelfe before other Apoſtles, That he laboureth more aboundantly in the miniſterie of the Goſpel, then they all, 1. Cor. 15. 10. Hence wee learne that the worke of the miniſterie, if it bee done as it ought, is a worke full of great paines and labour, contrary to the common opinion of men, who thinke that the life of the miniſter is full of eaſe, and his calling a matter of nothing, ſuch as may bee done with the turning of the hand: but here the iudgement of Chriſt is otherwiſe, who vſeth not thus to approoue a light or idle worke.

Secondly, this commendation of diligence in the miniſter, muſt admoniſh all Chriſtians that deſire to be approoued of Chriſt, to giue all diligence to learne and know the will of God, that they may doe the ſame. And here a common fault is to be reprooued; many will heare, but where is their labour to grow in knowledge and in grace? that is wanting: which is the cauſe of ſuch fruitleſſe hearing as is common in the world. For earthly things men refuſe no paines; but Gods heauenly knowledge and graces are not regarded. What a ſhame is this that men ſhould beſtow their ſtrength and wit about baſe and tranſitorie things, and yet neglect the maine good which concernes their ſoules for euer.

Thirdly, the miniſters diligence in teaching, muſt prouoke conſcience of obedience in the hearers; that is the ende of his worke, without this he ſpends his ſtrength in vaine, and therefore with the Apoſtle they muſt indeuour in all things to keepe a good conſcience before God and all men, Act. 24. 16.

The ſecond thing which Chriſt here commends, is patience in bearing the croſſe, which doth vſually accompanie the Goſpel of Chriſt. And this indeede is praiſe worthy in the Angell of this Church; for herein hee goeth before ſundry worthy Prophets: Ieremie was maruellous impatient, for the mocking of the people:[a] And though Ionas had beene ſchooled in the Whales belly, yet when all things went not according to his minde in the deſtruction of Niniuie, hee became exceeding diſcontent.

[a] Ier. 20. 14, 15.

The vſe.

Herein muſt all the miniſters of the Goſpell become followers of the Angell of this church. While they labour in the Goſpel of God, they muſt poſſeſſe their ſoules with patience, and make knowne to all men their meeke and mild ſpirit. Yea euery Chriſtian in the profeſſion of religion muſt learne to practiſe this duty, Luk. 8. 16. The good ground receiueth the ſeede, and bringeth forth fruit: but how? with patience: Neither can we poſſibly attaine to eternall life, vnleſſe we arme our ſelues with patience to beare the croſſe: for whoſoeuer will liue godly muſt ſuffer afflictions, 2. Tim. 3. 12. Through many tribulations wee muſt enter into heauen, Act. 14. 22.

II. Againe, here obſerue how Chriſt ioyneth labour and patience together: this he doth for two cauſes. Firſt, to let vs ſee the fruit of ſinne which God hath ſet on the labour of mā. Before the fall, the labour of mans calling was practiſed without all trouble or paines; but ſince mans fall, the beſt callings haue their croſſes and vexations, which are the puniſhments of mans tranſgreſſion. Secondly, to ſhew the malice of Sathan againſt the good progreſſe of the Goſpell. Paul ſaith to the Theſſalonians, Hee would haue come to them, but Sathan did hinder him. Hee ſeeketh the trouble and ſorrow of the miniſter, not only by ſtirring vp perſecution, but by keeping his people from profiting by his miniſterie: and therefore euery miniſter had need to take pains with patience in his calling.

1. Theſſ. 2. 18.

And as Chriſt ioyneth together labour and patience in the worke of the miniſterie; ſo ſhould euery Chriſtian after this direction ioyne patience with his paines in the duties of his particular calling, whether it be in Church, commonwealth, or family. For look what is the eſtate of the miniſter in his place, ſuch ſhould bee the eſtate of euery childe of God in his. This therefore they muſt doe: firſt ſeeke to know the duties of their particular callings, and therein labour and take paines with all good conſcience: Then conſidering the croſſe doth accompanie godly diligence, they muſt labour to ioyne patience with their diligence, for their continuance in weldoing euen vnder the croſſe. And for attaining of this patience, they muſt ſet before them the promiſes of Gods bleſſing and protection while they ſo continue; not ſuffering themſelues to bee diſmayed by any affliction. And if wee ſhall thus walke in the duties of our particular places painefully and with patience, we ſhall haue our commendation of Chriſt Ieſus and his bleſſed reward, which farre ſurpaſſeth the praiſe of men, and their rewards. But on the contrarie, if we walke in our callings negligently, or elſe forſake them becauſe of afflictions: or bee impatient in labour, we ſhall looſe our reward, and vndergoe the rebuke of Chriſt, which is worſe then all outward euils that can befall vs.

on

The third ſpeciall worke for which Chriſt commendeth this Church is, ſeueritie ſhewed againſt wicked men: in theſe words, And how thou canſt not beare them which are euill. By euill men, he meaneth ſuch as liued offenſiuely, & maintained manifeſt errors and hereſies. Theſe ſhee could not beare, but iudged them as burdens: & therefore ſought to diſburden her ſelfe of them.

The vſe.

Hence we may gather, that it is a neceſſarie thing for euery Church to bee purged of euill men. The Church of God in all ages hath put in practiſe this worke. So ſoone as Cain had ſlaine his brother Abel, [a] God caſt him out from his face, as appeareth by his owne complaint, to wit; from that particular place where Adam & his family worſhipped God. When falſe Prophets and Idolaters did riſe among the Iſraelites, the Lord commaundeth [b] That they ſhould bee killed and taken from among them. And therefore hee ſaith to Ieremie, [c] If thou turne and repent, I will bring thee againe, and if thou take away the pretious from the vile, thou ſhalt be according to my word, 1. Cor. 5. 4. 5. Paul commaundeth in the name of Chriſt, that the inceſtuous man be deliuered vnto Sathan, the Church purged of that olde leauen, and that wicked man put from amoug them, verſe. 13. Beſides the euidence of theſe teſtimonies, ſome reaſons may be added to prooue the neceſſitie of this ſeparation. Firſt, God will be worſhipped in an holy manner; and they that worſhip God muſt bee purged and ſanctified; but euill men defile Gods worſhip, and therefore they ought to be ſeuered from the Church. Secondly, leaſt the whole Church be infected with the contagion of their doctrine, or the infection of their life: for as leauen ſowreth the whole lumpe, ſo will euill men defile the whole Church. Thirdly, they are burdens to the Church, and therefore muſt bee caſt out. For the Church ſhould bee eaſed of euery burden.

This doctrine is the truth of God, and ought to be practiſed of Gods Church. Whereby we may ſee a common fault in the moſt congregations among vs; wherein all that wil are admitted not onely to the hearing of the word, but alſo vnto the Lords table, hand ouer head without reſtraint, as though euery man were a good and ſound Chriſtian: Whereas experience ſheweth, that many bee ignorant, many contemners of the Goſpell, many Sabbath breakers, drunkards and blaſphemers, all which ought to be barred from the Sacraments: and in that reſpect ſeuered frō the church as burdens.

Secondly, hence we may gather, that Chriſt hath giuen to his Church a power iudiciall, to ſuſpend euill men from the ſacraments, and to excommunicate them from the outward fellowſhip of the Church: for elſe he would not haue commended this miniſter with his Church for the execution of this power. The reaſons alledged to the contrary, are of no force. I. Say they, the parable, Matth. 13. 30. alloweth the growing together of tares and wheate till harueſt: and therefore euill men muſt be ſuffered in the Church without ſeparation. Anſw. In that parable Chriſt ſpeaketh not of any particular purging of the Church by Eccleſiaſticall iuriſdiction; but of the vniuerſall purging of his whole church by his holy Angels in the end of the world: for there the field doth not ſignifie any particular Church, but the whole world: and the ſeruants are not men, but Angels, that muſt gather together all both good and bad in the ende of the world, to the laſt iudgement. Againe, they alledge, Luk. 14. 23. Compell them in the high wayes to come in to the ſupper. Here (ſay they) all muſt be brought in, but none muſt be excluded the ſocietie of the church. Anſw. Chriſt ſpeaketh not of compelling men vnto the ſacraments, but vnto the miniſterie of the word, whereto men muſt be cauſed to ſubiect themſelues: which hindereth nothing why the vngodly ſhould not be debarred from the ſacraments, which are the ſeale of Gods mercie in Chriſt, ordained onely for ſuch as repent and beleeue. Queſt. Seeing this ſeparation muſt be made, how farre forth may we conuerſe with thoſe that are openly euill and offenſiue either for life or doctrine? Anſ. Euill men muſt be conſidered diuers wayes: firſt, as they be members of ſome common wealth, of ſome citie, and incorporation: ſecondly, as they are members of ſome particular Church by toleration. In the firſt regard, it is lawfull for vs to conuerſe with them. I. for outward dealings and ciuill affaires, as bargaining, buying and ſelling, &c. II. we may maintaine outward ciuill peace with them: So Paul commandeth the Romanes [a] to haue peace with all men ſo much as in them lay; that is, ſo farre as it would ſtand with faith and good conſcience. III. In this ciuill conuerſing with the wicked we muſt performe all duties of outward courteſie and loue vnto them, ſo farre forth as it doth not diſhonour God, or hinder the good of the church. And therefore Paul commandeth vs to be [a] ſoft and courteous, ſhewing all meekeneſſe vnto all men; euen to euill men, as the reaſon following ſheweth: For we our ſelues were in time paſt vnwiſe, diſobedient, deceiued, &c. and then were we euill.

Secondly, conſider them as dwellers in the church, and members by permiſſion: and ſo we may liue with them in it; for we muſt not make a ſeparation from the Church becauſe wicked men are permitted therein. Chriſt liued among the Iewes, though their teachers and rulers were both heretickes and hypocrits: and yet we muſt remember, that liuing among them, and beholding their wicked conuerſation, we muſt not approoue of their vngodlineſſe, but be grieued for the ſame; as righteous Lot was for the abhominations of Sodome, 2. Pet. 2.7. Further, if it fall out by the negligence of the gouernours, that euill men be admitted to the Sacraments, we muſt not for their company refuſe to communicate: for our Sauiour Chriſt liuing among the Iewes, communicated with them in their Sacraments and ſeruice of the Temple, though many of them were notorious both for wicked life and falſe doctrine. The reaſon is, for that another mans euill conſcience doth not defile our good conſcience: but we may keepe a good conſcience in that action wherein the wicked is defiled. Now though we may thus conuerſe with euill men, yet theſe two caueats muſt be obſerued, I. To haue no priuat company with knowne and open euill perſons. This Paul expreſly forbiddeth, saying: I haue written vnto you, that you companie not together: that is, in priuate and familiar manner. II. We muſt not ſhewe ſpeciall familiaritie to euill perſons. God will not take the wicked by the hand, Iob. 8. 20. and we ſhould be followers of God. Therefore S. Iohn ſaith: If any man come vnto you, and bring not this doctrine, receiue him not into houſe, neither bid him God ſpeede, 2. Iohn 10. Which muſt be vnderſtood of ſpeciall familiaritie: for thereby we doe not onely performe outward duty to the perſon, but alſo giue countenance to their ſinnes: which in any caſe we muſt not doe: And thus we ſee how to conuerſe with euill men.

1.Cor.5.10, 11.

The vſe.

Hereby all thoſe are iuſtly blamed which fit themſelues for the humors and diſpoſitions of all companies. This ought not to be. If any be knowne to be openly wicked, either for life or opinions, we muſt not keepe priuat company with them, or affoord them our ſpeciall familiarity; but by withdrawing our ſelues from them, eaſe vs of ſuch burdens.

Our Sauiour Chriſt hauing commended this church for her ſeueritie againſt the wicked, in that ſhe could not endure them, doth prooue the ſame to be true by two arguments. The firſt whereof is contained in theſe words: And haſt examined them, &c. to the ende of the third verſe. The ſecond, in the 6. verſe. For the firſt, it is taken from the ſharpe and round dealing of this church againſt euill men; and it hath two parts: Firſt her diſcouery of falſe Apoſtles, And haſt examined them which ſay they are Apoſtles, and are not, and haſt found them liers. Secondly, her oppoſing her ſelfe againſt them, beeing diſcouered, in the third verſe: Thou haſt ſuffered, and haſt patience, &c.

In their diſcouerie of theſe falſe Apoſtles note two ſpeciall points: firſt, that God hath giuen to particular Churches the ſpirit of diſcerning: This appeareth by ſundry teſtimonies of Scripture, 1.Cor. 2. 15. The ſpirituall man, that is, he which is endued with Gods holy ſpirit, diſcerneth all things. And Paul [a] aſſumeth, That the faithfull Corinthians did diſcerne the Lords body: that is, ſee and put a great difference betweene the bread and wine in that Sacrament, and other common bread and wine: which none that want the ſpirit of God can doe. Againe, he biddeth them [b] prooue themſelues whether they be in the faith or not: to giue vs to vnderſtand, that they had a gift of diſcerning, whereby they did knowe their owne eſtate, whether they were vnder the curſe, or vnder grace. And S. Iohn biddeth the Church [c] try the ſpirits: that is, thoſe doctrines which men pretending the gifts of the ſpirit, did teach. And in this place this Churches diſcouering of falſe Apoſtles, declareth plainely, that ſhe hath a gift to diſcerne who be ſent of God to teach his church, and who not. And hence the godly learned in the church are ſaid to haue their ſenſes exerciſed to diſcerne both good and euill, Heb. 5. 14. And in this regard, the Churches of God differ from all other companies of men. For vnleſſe men be of Gods church, they want this gift of diſcerning ſpirituall things that differ, as true Apoſtles and falſe, good and bad, truth and falſehood, &c.

[a] 1.Cor.11. 29.

[b] 2.Cor.13. 5.

[c] 1.Ioh. 4 1.

The vſe.

Hence we may gather, that the Church of God hath a gift to diſcerne which is a true Church, and which is not: for the Church can diſcerne whether a man bee a true Apoſtle, or not, and by the ſame gift it may diſcerne the ſtate of any particular Church. Whence alſo it followeth, that we may eaſily ſee whether the Church of England be a true Church, or not: It pleaſeth ſome to call it into queſtion, as it now ſtandeth; and they auouch, That it is no church of God, that there are no true Miniſters, no true preaching, or right adminiſtration of the Sacraments in it; and that theſe things with vs are illuſions of Sathan, and our Church his ſynagogue. But that ours is a true church of God, is thus prooued. The Churches of Germany, Fraunce, Scotland, and Italy, that haue receiued the Goſpel, are the Churches of God: and they haue the gift of diſcerning which is a true Church of God, and which is not. Now they giue the right hands of fellowſhip vnto vs, and reuerence our Church as the Church of God. To whoſe teſtimonie wee muſt rather cleaue, the to the opinion of a few priuate men, and ſo reſolue our ſelues, that we are the true Church of God.

Secondly, hence wee may gather, that the church of God hath a gift to diſcerne Scripture from that which is no Scripture. The Papiſts ſay the Church indeed hath this gift: but it is by counſell and commiſſion from the Church of Rome; which is a meere forgery. For the Church of Epheſus, which could diſcerne of falſe Apoſtles, could no doubt by the ſame gift diſcerne of the bookes of God, and that without counſell from the church of Rome; for at this this time when Iohn writ, it was a more famous Church then the church of Rome, and therefore went not thither for counſell.

II. Point. In what things this diſcerning of falſe Apoſtles doth conſiſt. It is a iudiciall action of the Church, conſiſting in two things here noted; Firſt, in examination of falſe doctrine and falſe teachers; ſecondly, in condemnation afterward. The examination of them is ſet downe in theſe words; And haſt examined them that ſay they are Apoſtles, and are not. Their condemning or ſentence giuing, in the words following, And haſt found them liers.

For the firſt; examination is a gift of God to his Church, and was here vſed for the triall of falſe Apoſtles. Queſt. How may any church trie a falſe teacher? Anſ. This is a point of large diſcourſe; but the heads of true examination are theſe.

Firſt, that church, or that man that would rightly examine a falſe teacher, muſt prepare himſelfe thereunto after this manner; hee muſt looke that he haue a meeke ſpirit and a humble heart; for God reuealeth his will, not to the proud, but to the meeke and lowly; and as Iſay ſaith, to them that are of a contrite ſpirit, Iſay 57. 15. And in this humbling of himſelfe, a man muſt renounce his owne naturall wit and reaſon, and become nothing in himſelfe but euen a foole, in reſpect of his owne conceit. Alſo he muſt vnfainedly pray to God, that he would reueale vnto him his truth. Aske (ſaith Chriſt) and it ſhall bee giuen you, euen [a] the holy Ghoſt, vnto them that deſire of the father. And Saint Iames ſaith [b]; If any man lacke wiſedome, let him ask of God, which giueth to all men liberally.

[b] Iam.1.5.

Secondly, after preparation he muſt labour to know throughly what the falſe teachers are, and what bee their opinions, with the grounds and foundations thereof; wherein they agree, and wherein they differ from the truth of God, maintained by the Church: for it is a foule ouerſight to miſconceiue the ſtate of the aduerſaries queſtion, by propounding it otherwiſe then they hold, as it falleth out with many in the handling of controuerſies.

Thirdly, due proofe muſt be made, whether the aduerſaries doctrine be of men or of God. This is Gods commaundement, 1. Ioh. 4. 1. Prooue the ſpirits, whether they be of God, or not. And for triall hereof, we muſt haue recourſe vnto the word of God; it muſt be Iudge in this cauſe, Iſay 8. 20. To the law, and to the teſtimonie, if they ſpeake not according to this word, it is becauſe there is no light in them. Ioh. 5. 39. Search the Scriptures, for in them ye looke to haue eternall life, and they are they which teſtifie of mee. Who ſo fit to iudge in the matters of God, as God himſelfe? and ſo hee doth in his written word, of all doctrine and opinions in religion. The Scriptures ſhew whether the doctrine examined be directly gathered thence, and by iuſt conſequent, or not.

Fourthly, ſerious conſideration muſt be had of the faith and liues of the teachers examined: for a falſe teacher by Gods iuſt iudgement is vſually a wicked liuer. And therefore Chriſt ſaith: [a] yee ſhall know them by their fruits: if they be throughly examined, ſuch they will appeare, howſoeuer for a time they may blear the eyes of men: as the hyſtories of the Church in many famous heretickes do plainly declare.

[a] Mat.17.16.

The ſecond braunch of this diſcouerie, is ſentence giuing, in theſe words: And haſt found them liers. The Church here giueth out a ſharpe and ſeuere ſentence againſt them; ſhee calleth them falſe Apoſtles, and liers; and yet ſhe ſinneth not, for Chriſt commendeth her for it. Though to raile or taunt cannot beſeem any, yet magiſtrats and miniſters in their places may giue out ſeuere ſpeeches againſt offendors in token of deteſtation to their ſinnes, and not offend. Thus Iohn called the Scribes and Phariſies a generation of vipers, Matth. 3. 7. and our Sauiour Chriſt called Herod a foxe, Luk. 13. 32. and Paul called the Galathians fooles, Gal. 3. 1. And in this place the Church calleth theſe falſe teachers lyers, which is very much: for therein ſhe accuſeth them of three things: Firſt, of teaching that which was falſe indeed: Secondly, that they knew it to be falſe, and ſo ſinned of knowledge: Thirdly, that they did it of malice, with intent to blind the eyes of the Church, and to deceiue the people.

The vſe.

In this diſcouerie, we may obſerue the iuſt accompliſhment of Pauls prophecie, Act. 20. 29. 30. namely, that there ſhould riſe vp among the Epheſians grieuous wolues, and men ſpeaking peruerſe things; and ſuch were theſe falſe Apoſtes, who after examination were found lyers.

Againe, ſeeing in the daies of this Apoſtle Iohn, men durſt preſume to claime Apoſtolicke authoritie, and call themſelues Apoſtles, when they were not: no maruell if the Pope of Rome ſix hundred yeares after did challenge to himſelfe to be Peters ſucceſſour, and to haue Apoſtolicke authoritie: and that they dare now auouch ſome bookes to bee Scripture which are not; as alſo bring in their traditions and vnwritten verities to be receiued and obeyed equally with Gods word.

v. 3. Thou haſt ſuffered, and haſt patience, and for my Names ſake haſt laboured.

Here our Sauiour Chriſt declareth how this miniſter & church of Epheſus oppoſed thēſelues againſt falſe teachers after their diſcouery. The manner we ſhall ſee in handling the points particularly as they lie in order. Thou haſt ſuffered, or, Thou haſt borne a burden: for the word ſignifieth to be preſſed down under a great burden. This burden was the troubles which falſe Apoſtles brought vpon them after they were diſcouered, partly by open affliction and perſecution, partly by the ſpreading of their hereticall and ſchiſmaticall doctrine. Theſe falſe teachers were Ebion, Cerinthus, Marcion, and ſuch like, who in the daies of Iohn troubled this Church, as hiſtories doe ſhew.

Here we may obſerue, that it is Gods will, that the beſt Churches ſhould be troubled by wicked men, and hereticall teachers, who both by falſe doctrine, and perſecution, become grieuous burdens. This the Lord permits for weightie cauſes: I. That true beleeuers may be excited more conſtantly to embrace the ſincere doctrine of the Goſpel; and therefore [a] Iude moſt worthily exhorts the Chriſtians in his time, to fight for the common faith. II. That profeſſors may be tried whether they ſoundly hold the doctrine of the Goſpel, or not: 1. Cor. 11.19. It is meete (ſaith Paul) that there ſhould be hereſies in the Church, that they which are ſound in the faith, and approoued, may be knowne. III. That God may execute his iudgements vpon wicked men and hypocrites that haue not loued his truth, reuealed vnto them: 2. Theſſ. 2. 10, 11. God gaue them vp to ſtrange illuſions to beleeue lies, becauſe they haue not loued his truth. For many know the word, that loue it not.

a Iud.3.

The vſe.

This muſt teach vs to take heede of a common ſcandall in the world, which is; to be offended at religion, becauſe there be in the Church ſchiſmes and hereſies: which come not from the Goſpel, but from the malice of Satan, who ſoweth his tares among the Lords wheat. We muſt conſider, that it is the will of God there ſhould be ſuch euills in his Church; and therefore ſhould labour to be ſo farre from offence, that hereby we be rather prouoked with more cheerefulneſſe and courage to loue and embrace religion.

And haſt patience, and for my name haſt ſuffered, &c. Here is ſet downe the dealing of this Church againſt theſe falſe Apoſtles in all their perſecutions. But firſt note the coherence of this vertue with the former: Thou haſt ſuffered trouble, and haſt had patience. Queſt. How can theſe ſtand together? It is againſt mans nature in trouble to be patient: for troubles and afflictions make men diſcontent, and to fret againſt God and man. Anſ. They ſtand not by nature, but by grace: Rom. 5. 4. Tribulation bringeth forth patience: namely, to all thoſe that haue receiued to beleeue in Chriſt: for to them God giueth the ſpirit of meekeneſſe in their troubles, ſhedding his loue into their hearts, whereby they are enabled to ſuffer any thing for his name, euen with ioy.

And haſt patience. This is the firſt meanes whereby this Church oppoſed her ſelfe againſt the falſe Apoſtles: they troubled her two waies, by perſecution, and by falſe doctrine. Now by patience this Church oppoſeth her ſelfe againſt their perſecutions. And indeede that is the moſt excellent meanes for any man or any Church to oppoſe themſelues againſt their enemies, and to vanquiſh them: for hereby they ſhall ſtoppe their mouths, and if it be poſſible, winne them to their faith and religion.

In this their practiſe we haue an example for our direction, how to oppoſe our ſelues againſt wicked men, with whome we liue; or any enemie that ſhall trouble vs, either by oppreſſion, or hereticall doctrines: We muſt not render taunt for taunt, and abuſe for abuſe; but labour for patience, not in bearing with their ſinnes (that may not be) but in a meeke enduring of their iniuries and wrongs whereby they trouble vs. Thus ſhall we ſtoppe their mouths, and ſooneſt ouercome them.

And for my Names ſake haſt laboured. Here Chriſt ſetteth downe the ſecond meanes wherby this Church oppoſeth her ſelfe againſt the ſpreading of falſe doctrine by theſe falſe Apoſtles, which was the ſecond way whereby they became a burden vnto her. The meaning of the words is this, that they had taken much paines to maintaine the glorie of God, and the true doctrine of Chriſt Ieſus, labouring therein as much as the falſe Apoſtles did to broach their damnable hereſies.

Here we are taught a ſecond dutie, how we are to oppoſe our ſelues againſt all hereticall and ſchiſmaticall teachers: namely, as they labour to publiſh their falſe doctrine, ſo muſt we endeauour to maintaine the glorie of God and his true religion. Hereunto a twofold labour is required, partly of the Miniſter, and partly of the people. The labour of the Miniſter ſtands in theſe things principally: I. He muſt endeauour by reading and ſtudie to furniſh himſelfe with the true knowledge of the foundation and ſubſtance of the Goſpel and true religion, that he may be able ſoundly and plainely to teach the ſame. For this cauſe Saint Iohn is commanded to eate the little booke, Rev. 10.9, 10. which was as it were by ſtudie and meditation to haue the ſame digeſted and ſetled in his heart. Hence Malachie ſaith, [a] The Prieſts lips ſhould preſerue wiſdome, and thither ſhould the people come for inſtruction. And euery Scribe taught of God, muſt haue ſtore in the treaſurie of his heart, like a good houſholder, Matth. 13. 52. Secondly, he muſt deliuer the whole will and counſell of God, concerning ſaluation, truly and diſtinctly vnto his people, as it is propounded in the bookes of the Prophets and Apoſtles. This Paul commendeth by his owne example, Act. 20.27. teſtifying vnto this Church that he had taught them all the will of God, and kept backe nothing which he was commanded to deliuer vnto them. III. He muſt labour to diſcerne and be able to diſcouer falſe teachers vnto the people; that he may not only know them himſelfe, but alſo cauſe the Church to take notice of them: Tit. 1.9. Paul requireth that the teacher in the Church, Be able to conuince the gainſayers to his truth. In this diſco-uerie he muſt doe two things. Firſt, detect the hereticall doctrines. Secondly, their wicked manners. Thus dealt our Sauiour Chriſt in his owne perſon liuing in the Church of the Iewes, with the Scribes and Phariſies: he did detect vnto the people their falſe interpretations of the law, Matth. 5.21. to the ende. And alſo their wicked liues and damnable hypocriſie, Matt. 23.3.4. &c. to the ende. And S. Paul in all his Epiſtles, laboureth to diſcouer the wicked liues, and to confute the hereticall opinions of the falſe Apoſtles. IV. He muſt endeauour that the doctrine of the Goſpell thus publiſhed, may edifie. This is the ende of all teaching, as Paul ſheweth, 1. Cor. 14. throughout the whole chapter. Now it doth edifie, when it is ſo applyed to the hearers, that thereby they are wonne to Chriſt, ſuffering themſelues to be reformed by it in heart and life, and ſo made fit for the kingdome of God. V. He muſt be carefull in his owne perſon to become a patterne of the doctrine of the Goſpell which he teacheth, that ſo the people may haue a double light to followe. This is a notable meanes in the miniſter to make men to loue the Goſpel, and the neglect thereof causeth many to contemne and deſpiſe the ſame. VI. Laſtly, he muſt be diligent in praying for his owne and other particular Churches of God, that they may knowe, beleeue, and obey the ſame doctrine which is taught them out of Gods word. Thus did Paul as we may ſee in his particular Epiſtles pray for euery Church: that by the bleſſing of the ſpirit, they might embrace and obey the Goſpel of Chriſt. Phil. 1.4.9.10. Col. 1. 9, 10, 11.

The people alſo for the name of Chriſt and his religion, muſt vndergoe a threefold labour. I. Euery one muſt ſee that himſelfe knowe and beleeue the true and ſincere doctrine of the Goſpell. This Chriſt inioyneth to all, in this commandement, Repent and beleeue, which none can doe vnleſſe they firſt know and vnderſtand the doctrine thereof: and therefore euery one muſt doe as Marie did, for which Chriſt ſo commends her: namely, lay aſide matters of leſſer moment, and giue our ſelues to heare and learne the doctrine of Chriſt, Luk. 10. 39.42. II. Euery one muſt vſe all good means that knowledge of religion which himſelfe hath receiued, be conueyed to others. And indeede if we truely beleeue, we cannot containe our ſelues, but muſt needes teach others. For as Chriſt ſaith, He [a] that drinketh of the water of life, out of his bellie ſhall flowe riuers of water of life, ſtreaming out for the good of others. Que. How ſhould priuate men conuey their knowledge vnto others? Anſ. I. All maſters and gouernours of families are bound in conſcience to teach thoſe that are vnder them the maine points and grounds of true religion: his place requireth gifts, and God looks for encreaſe. For euery chriſtian family ſhould be a little church, as it is ſaid of the houſe of Aquila and Priſcilla, 1. Cor. 16.19. II. Euery man in his place muſt labour to conuey that knowledge he hath vnto his neighbour, yea to his enemies. The Iewes [b] would compaſſe ſea and land to make a man a proſelyte: And Idolaters at this day will trauell farre and neere to make a man of their profeſſion. Much more therefore muſt all true Chriſtians labour to conuey their knowledge to others, ſo to winne them vnto Chriſt. III. Euery man is to edifie thoſe that be members of the ſame Church, in theſe three things; faith, hope, and loue, as Iude notably exhorteth in the ende of his Epiſtle, Edifie one another in your moſt holy faith, v.20. haue cōpaſſion of ſome in putting difference, and others ſaue with feare, in pulling them out of the fire, v.22,23. IV. Euery priuate man muſt profeſſe and defend the true religion of Chriſt againſt all the enemies thereof: 1. Pet. 3. 15. Be ready alwaies to giue an anſwer to euery man that asketh you a reaſon of the hope that is in you. And this confeſſion muſt be, not onely in word, but in deede. For by a blameleſſe and holy conuerſation euery Chriſtian holdeth forth the word of life, Philip. 2. 15, 16.

[b] Matth.23. 15.

The vſe.

Seeing the maintenance of true religion is ſo excellent a worke: we muſt be admoniſhed euery one in our place, to take paines in all the duties that belong vnto vs, that by vs Chriſts religion may be furthered. For Gods Church is not called the pillar of truth, onely becauſe the miniſter thereof maintaineth Gods truth: but alſo becauſe euery member of the Church is as a pillar in his place to maintaine and profeſſe the true doctrine of Chriſt for his glory. Beſides, this is a duty of the firſt Table, and therefore we muſt haue more ſpeciall care for the performance thereof. And thus we ſee the two meanes whereby the Church of Epheſus oppoſed her ſelfe againſt falſe teachers.

And haſt not fainted. Here Chriſt ſetteth downe in what manner this Church laboured to maintaine his true religion, and thereby his honour and glory: namely, by conſtancie and perſeuerance in labour. This is an excellent vertue, and a notable example for vs to follow: for we through Gods goodneſſe haue the true religion of Chriſt among vs, and for many yeares ſundry among vs haue maintained the ſame againſt all enemies, though not without ſome trouble and danger. Now this which hath been done is nothing, vnles we hold on in our good courſe conſtantly, and labour vnto death in the maintenance thereof. This exhortation is the more neceſſary, becauſe we knowe not how long we ſhall enioy the Goſpell with peace; for vſually after long peace God trieth his by perſecution; neither knowe wee by what meanes of triall God will exerciſe vs. Therefore as we now profeſſe the Goſpel, ſo let vs continue conſtant therein, and not turne with time or ſtate: for then we looſe our commendation at Chriſts hands. And thus much for the commendation of this Church for her vertues.

v.4. Neuertheleſſe I haue ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt loue.

Theſe words containe the ſecond part of the propoſition of this Epiſtle, to wit, a ſharpe and ſeuere reproofe of this Church for decay in grace; as will appeare in the opening of the words. Neuertheleſſe I haue ſomewhat againſt thee: Here Chriſt ſpeaketh as a Iudge vnto this Church, and to the miniſter thereof, and laieth this action vnto their charge; that they had left their firſt loue, that is, that loue which they bare to God, and his religion, and to their brethren, at that time when they were firſt called vnto the profeſſion of the Goſpel. This loue they are ſaide to haue left, not as though they had quite loſt it, but onely becauſe they ſuffered it to decay, & to waxe cold in good works. But ſome will ſay, they are before commended for their zeale and labour for Gods glorie, and for their ſeueritie againſt falſe teachers: how then had they left their firſt loue? Anſ. At this time when Chriſt doth thus reprooue them, their loue was commendable; but yet it was nothing in regard of that which they had at their firſt conuerſion.

The vſe. If Chriſt haue ſomething againſt this church for leauing her firſt loue; then no doubt he hath ſomething againſt the Church of England, and againſt vs at this day; howſoeuer we may perſwade our ſelues that we be high in his fauour, yet we are in the like, or a worſe eſtate then this Church now was: for a great part of the bodie of our Church hath left off their firſt loue; and the greateſt part hath no loue at all. That many haue left their firſt loue is too too euident. For ſuch as in Queene Maries time were content to ſuffer for the Goſpel, as the hiſtories of our Church doe ſhew, after they inioyed a little quietneſſe became meere worldlings, as their liues haue teſtified afterward. And in ſuch congregations where the word hath long beene preached, this is too apparent, that men who for the ſpace of twentie, or tenne, or ſeuen yeares, haue ſhewed feruent loue to Chriſt and his Goſpel, and to their brethren, doe now fall away, and ſhew none at all. He that hath but halfe an eye, may ſee many for a yeare or two very forward and zealous in religion, who ſoone after ſuffer pleaſures, profits, or preferments, to draw them quite away: ſome I confeſſe through the mercie of God are free from this decay. But there is yet a more grieuous fault amongſt vs: for the greateſt part of our people haue no loue at all. Theſe are the daies whereof Chriſt ſaid, [a] loue ſhould waxe cold: and whereof Paul ſaide, Men ſhould be [b] louers of themſelues: for take the moſt congregations where the Goſpel hath beene long preached, yet you ſhall finde that the hearers are neither bettered for knowledge, nor for obedience, but

A remaine ſtill as ignorant and prophane as euer they were. This argueth that they haue no loue of God in their hearts, though they haue a formall profeſſion of his name in their mouth: For where the loue of God is, there muſt needes be increaſe in knowledge, in grace, and in obedience. Againe, ſee how men generally walke in their callings, and therein behold a meere defect of loue. All the paines they take is for their priuate gaine and pleaſure; no regard is had of Gods glorie, of the maintenance of true religion, and of the good of their brethren: herein their owne conſciences ſhall be the witneſſes. So that generally this may be ſaid, We haue no loue at all. What an action then ſhall we thinke B hath Chriſt againſt vs? It muſt needes be grieuous; and ſo our caſe fearefull and dangerous. If an earthly Prince and potentate had an action againſt vs, and his caſe were good, it would make vs looke about vs, yea to tremble and quake, and to be at our wits ende. Behold, not a worldly Prince, but the King of heauen and earth hath a matter againſt vs, iuſt and grieuous: oh how ſhould this mooue vs to ſearch our ſelues, to trie our eſtate, and to humble our ſelues vpon the knees of our hearts before his maieſtie. We may not imagine that this charge of Chriſt doth not concerne vs: the concluſion of this Epiſtle ſhews it belongs to all that haue eares to heare. And therefore we ſhould labour to preuent Gods iudgement, by iudging our C ſelues for our decay and want of loue.

Againe, this rebuke of Chriſt for decay of loue, ſhould teach vs to labour for increaſe in loue to God and to our brethren; adding grace to grace in our hearts, as we adde day vnto day in our liues, that ſo our loue may abound: read 1.Theſſ.4.1.9.10. where Paul vrgeth this dutie at large: he confeſſeth they did loue one an other, and yet beſeecheth them to increaſe therein. Phil.3.13.14. in Pauls perſon we haue a worthie preſident, which we muſt follow, if we thinke to come whither he is gone before: though he had gone farre in the loue of God, yet he laboured to perfection: and therefore conſidered not that which was paſt, as reſting in it, but rather how farre he was too ſhort, that D ſo he might vſe meanes to increaſe in loue, and in all other good graces, till he come to perfection. A Chriſtian mans life is a way that leadeth to heauen, wherein we once ſetting foote, muſt euer goe forward, and not ſtand ſtill or turne backe, leaſt we neuer come there. The ſtate of a Chriſtian is like vnto a child, which ſtill groweth till it come to a perfect ſtrength: and ſo muſt euery child of God labour to grow in the graces of God, till they be perfect men in Chriſt: For if they ſtand ſtill, Chriſt hath ſomething againſt them.

The Rhemiſts in their annotations abuſe this place, to prooue that a man may quite fall away from grace. Therefore to cleare this text, & to confirme our hearts in the truth of Gods word, this queſtion muſt be ſcanned, Whither a man may quite fall away from grace? Anſw. Grace in Scripture is taken two waies; First, for that fauour of God whereby he accepteth of ſome for his children in Chriſt. This is the firſt grace and the fountaine of all other: and taking grace in this ſenſe, I ſay, that the ſignes of grace and the ſenſe thereof in the heart, may be loſt: But the fauour of God it ſelſe cannot be loſt of them that truely beleeue. When an earthly father is diſpleaſed with his child for ſome notorious crime, he will turne the ſignes of his fauour into ſignes of diſpleaſure, and ſhew the ſame partly by words, and partly by ſtripes: and yet he ſtill continueth his fathet, and holdeth him for his ſonne without any purpoſe to diſinherite him: Euen ſo God dealeth with his children; for their ſinnes and corruptions, he will turne away his louing countenance from them, and change the ſignes of his fauour into anger and diſpleaſure; when as yet the good purpoſe of theit adoption is not altered, but remaineth firme fot euet: and God is ſtill their father, though an angrie father thorough the prouocation of their ſinnes. Secondly, grace in Scripture is taken for the gifts of grace which are beſtowed on them that beleeue in Chriſt. Theſe gifts of grace be of two ſorts, ſome more principall, of abſolute neceſſitie vnto ſaluation, whithout which none can be ſaued; as faith, and alſo hope, and loue, which proceede from faith. There be others alſo leſſe principall, which be very profitable and requiſite, yet not abſolutely needefull vnto ſaluation: As the feeling of Gods fauour, alacritie in prayer, and ſenſe of ioy and comfort in the holy Ghoſt. Theſe leſſe principall graces may quite be loſt. The principall graces alſo may be decayed, leſſened, and couered in regard of operation, euen in Gods children: but quite extinguiſhed they cannot be, for God vpholdeth them by perſeuerance: where faith, hope, and loue are once truely wrought by Gods ſpirit, they are neuer wholly or finally taken away, but onely in part, and in ſenſe and feeling for a time. This anſwer is agreeable to this text, for the Church of Epheſus is here blamed, not for quite looſing her loue, but becauſe ſhe had left her firſt loue, ſuffering it to decay and waxe leſſe then it was at their firſt conuerſion.

[a] Matth.24.12.22.

And becauſe this doctrine is oppugned earneſtly, not onely by the church of Rome, but alſo by ſome churches & ſchooles of the Proteſtants: I will firſt ſhewe the truth thereof out of Gods word, and then ſcanne their chiefe reaſons that are brought againſt it. That grace cannot be wholly and finally loſt, theſe reaſons prooue: I Matth. 16.18. The promiſe is made to Peter, and in him to all the faithfull: That vpon that faith which he profeſſed, Chriſt would build his Church, and the gates of hell ſhould not preuaile againſt it. Which laſt words muſt be marked, for they intimate, that the deuill with his adherents would ſhew much force and violence againſt the faith of the elect, but yet they ſhould neuer get the victory or ouercome it wholly. II. Mat. 24. 24. Chriſt foretelling that falſe Prophets ſhould come, ſaith: They ſhould ſeduce, if it were poſſible, the very elect. Where he taketh this for graunted, that the elect, albeit they may be aſſaulted grieuouſly, yet they can neuer be wholly or finally drawne away from their faith. III. Ioh. 10. 27, 28. My ſheep heare my voice (ſaith Chriſt) and I knowe them, and they followe me, and I giue vnto them eternall life, and they ſhall neuer periſh. To this they anſwer: It is true they ſhall neuer periſh, ſo long as they remaine the ſheepe of Chriſt. But that cauill is cut off in the next words: Neither ſhall any plucke them out of my hands: my father which gaue them me, is greater then all, and none is able to plucke them out of my fathers hands: And therefore neither the deuill, nor the world, nor the fleſh, can by any temptation draw the ſheep of Chriſt from their faith, and make them no ſheep. IV. Reaſon. Ioh. 3. 36. He that beleeueth in Chriſt hath eternall life. They ſay he hath it in hope, and no otherwiſe. I anſwer; If they haue it in hope, they ſhall neuer periſh: [a] For hope maketh not aſhamed. V. Reaſon. Rom. 8.30. Whom he predeſtinate, them alſo he called: and whom he called, them alſo he iuſtified, and whom he iuſtified, them alſo he glorified. Thoſe which are elected, called, and iuſtified by faith, muſt needes be glorified, and therefore cannot fall away finally: for ſuch ſhall neuer be glorified. And in the ende of the chapter, v. 38. he addeth, That neither death, nor life, Angels, principalities, nor powers, nor any thing elſe can ſeperate vs, viz. the faithfull, from the loue of God, which is in Chriſt Ieſus our Lord. But if the faithfull might fall away finally, thẽ they might be ſeuered from the loue of God. VI. Reaſon. Rom. 11. 29. The gifts of Gods calling (that is, the peculiar gifts that pertaine to ſaluation) are without repentance. They ſay it is true, God indeede neuer repenteth him of his gifts: but yet a man may periſh and fall away, becauſe he may refuſe and reiect Gods grace giuen vnto him. This anſwer is friuolous, maintaining this abſurditie; that the powerfull will of God ſhould be brought vnder the ſilly will of the creature: if man could repell Gods grace giuen vnto him, then ſhould mans will take place; and Geds will be made fruſtrate & void. VII. Reaſon. 1. Ioh. 3. 9. Whoſoeuer is borne of God ſinneth not, becauſe his ſeede remaineth in him: neither can he ſinne, becauſe he is borne of God. How is that true, for chap. 2. 10. He that ſaith he hath not ſinned, maketh God a lyer, and his word is not in him? Anſ. The place muſt be vnderſtood thus: He that is borne of God ſinneth not, that is, with full conſent, and with all his heart. Sinne doth not raigne in him: for the regenerate man conſiſteth of two parts: fleſh and ſpirit; he ſinneth not as he is ſpirit, that is regenerate; but as he is fleſh and ſinnefull. His will ſinneth not as it is ſpirituall, but as it is carnall. The Papiſts ſay, Indeede he ſinneth not, ſo long as he continueth to be borne of God. This ſhift is cut off by the word of the text, Neither can be ſinne, becauſe the ſeede of grace, euen the word of God abideth in him. This place plainly prooueth, euen in the iudgement of the Papiſts, that the child of God cannot wholly or finally fall from grace. They ſay it is a hard place, and indeede they cannot anſwer to it. VIII. Reaſon. If a man may finally fall from grace, then may he be wholly cut off from Chriſt: for grace is neuer wholly loſt, till a man be quite cut off from Chriſt. But it cannot be, that a member of Chriſt can be quite cut off: for then it ſhould follow, that one and the ſame man muſt be often ioyned to Chriſt; namely, ſo often as he falleth by ſinne, if he would be ſaued. Whereupon this would alſo follow, that one and the ſame man muſt be often baptized; for Baptiſme is the Sacrament of inſition, the meanes of admiſſion into the Church, and the ſeale of our vnion with Chriſt. But Rebaptization may not be admitted. The Church of God denieth it vpon this ground, becauſe a man is onely once borne of God. IX. Reaſon. Chriſt teacheth vs to pray thus, Lead vs not into temptation: that is, ſuffer not Sathan and ſinne wholly to vanquiſh vs. This petition beeing taught by Chriſt, muſt needes be lawfull, and according to Gods will: and therefore hereunto, as to euery lawfull petition, belong theſe two things: Firſt, Gods command to make it: Secondly, his promiſe to aſſure vs it ſhall be graunted. Whereby this is euident, That there is in Gods word a promiſe, aſſuring euery child of God, that he ſhall neuer wholly be conquered of the deuill: and therefore he can neuer wholly or finally fall from grace; for if he might, then were he wholly ouercome in temptation.

The contrarie arguments be of three ſorts; places of Scripture, Examples, and Reaſons. For the firſt, Exod. 32. 32. when the Iſraelites had ſinned that great ſinne of Idolatrie, Moſes prayeth God to forgiue them; If not (ſaith he) blot me out of thy booke. Hence they gather, that a childe of God may be blotted out of Gods booke of life, and ſo finally periſh. Anſ. That place muſt be vnderſtood with this condition; If it be poſſible: as in the like prayer it is expreſſed by Chriſt, Father, if it be poſſible, let this cuppe paſſe from me. This condition muſt needes be added: for els we muſt ſay, that Moſes prayed for that which he knew was impoſſible; namely, that one priuate man ſhould ſuffer eternall puniſhment for the ſinnes of others; though in temporall puniſhments ſuch a thing may be, yet in eternall, it is impoſſible. Againe, Moſes in this prayer doth principally ſhew his exceeding affection and zeale for Gods glorie, and for the ſafetie of his brethren, both which he preferred before his owne life; as if he ſhould ſay, Lord pardon them, and rather then thy name ſhould looſe glorie, blot me out of thy booke. The like affection was in Paul, when he ſaid, [a] He could wiſh himſelfe to be ſeperate from Chriſt for the loue of his brethren the Iewes. They further vrge the Lords anſwer to Moſes, verſ. 33. Whoſoeuer hath ſinned againſt me, I will put his name out of my booke. But as the Lord therein anſwereth to Moſes prayer, ſo muſt it be vnderſtood, with the like exception.

II. Obiect. Ezek. 18. 24. If the righteous man turne away from his righteouſnes, and commit iniquitie, and doe according to all the abhominations that the wicked man doth, ſhal he liue? All his righteouſnes that he hath done ſhall not be mentioned: but he ſhall die in his ſinne. Here (ſay they) it is plaine, that a man may fall from grace. Anſ. Righteouſneſſe is twofold: of the outward action, and of the perſon. So Paul diſtinguiſheth, when he deſireth to be found [b] not in his owne righteouſneſſe, which is of the law; that is, ſuch as was in him while he was a Phariſie: but in the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt. The righteouſneſſe of the action is, when a man for outward actions keepes the law of God. The righteouſneſſe of the perſon is that, whereby a man is accepted righteous before God. And anſwerable hereunto, there be two kinds of righteous men: one that is outwardly righteous before men, though not indeede: the other, that is truly righteous before God. Now of the former of theſe two, muſt that place be vnderſtood: for the Lord there pleadeth with ſuch as did eſteeme and auow themſelues to be righteous, ſaying, Their fathers had eaten ſoure grapes; that is, had ſinned, and they were puniſhed for their fathers offences, though they were righteous: And the holy Ghoſt ſpeaking according to their owne conceit and opinion of themſelues, calleth them righteous: and of ſuch it is true they may turne from their righteouſneſſe.

III. Obiect. Luk. 8. 13. Some beleeue for a time, and in time of temptation goe away. Anſ. There be three kinds of faith: Hiſtoricall, Temporarie, and ſauing faith. In Hiſtoricall faith, is knowledge of the word of God, with aſſent vnto it. In temporary faith, are three things: knowledge of the Word, Aſſent, and Approbation alſo, with ſome ioy. In ſauing faith, there are foure things: Knowledge, Aſſent, Approbation, and Apprehenſion: that is, in applying of the promiſes of God vnto a mans ſelfe; whence proceedeth ioy. And anſwerably, there are three kinds of beleeuers: I. ſuch as know the word of God, but yet haue no loue thereof: II. ſuch as know it, aſſent vnto it, and reioyce in it alſo, for a time. The third are ſuch as apprehend the promiſes, and applie them to themſelues. Now the two firſt kinds of faith may be loſt: and the two firſt kinds of beleeuers may fall away, whereof Saint Luke ſpeaketh: But hence it followeth not, that ſauing faith may be loſt; for he that is endued therewith can neuer fall away. But faith (ſay they) is onely one, Eph. 4. 5. There is but one faith, one God, one hope, and one Baptiſme. Anſ. By one faith is there meant one religion, and doctrine of ſaluation: as elſwhere is vſuall by the name of Faith, 1. Timoth. 1. 19.

Their ſecond kind of arguments are Examples: which are chiefly two: one of Adam, the other of Dauid. For Adam; they ſay he was created righteous, and yet he fell wholly from grace: and therefore any beleeuer now, may much more fall away, who haue farre leſſe grace then he had. Anſw. This argument is not good: for though Adam had a greater meaſure of grace then we now haue, yet our grace hath a greater priuiledge then his had: his grace came by creation; ours is by redemption and regeneration. Adam had the firſt grace, to be able to obey; but he wanted the ſecond, to be ſure to perſeuere: becauſe God would permit his fall, to make a way both to manifeſt his iuſtice and mercie in our redemption by Chriſt. But the child of God after his conuerſion, wherein he hath the firſt grace to repent and beleeue, hath alſo an infallible promiſe, That he ſhall receiue the ſecond grace, to abide in that faith. And therefore Paul ſaith: [a] I am perſwaded, that he which hath begun this good worke in you, will performe it vntill the day of the Lord Ieſus Chriſt. And againe, [b] The Lord is faithfull, who will ſtabliſh you, and keepe you from euill.

a Phil.1.6.

b 2.Theſſ.3.3.

Secondly, Dauid (ſay they) by his two grieuous ſinnes fell wholly from grace? Anſ. He fell indeede grieuouſly, but not wholly: for after his fall he contemned not Gods word, he hated not God, nor deſpaired of mercie; which he muſt haue done, if he had fallen wholly. And therefore he had remorſe for his ſinne, ſo ſoone as the Prophet Nathan came vnto him. But (ſay they) he prayeth God to create a new heart in him, therefore he had then no grace: For creation is a making of that which hath no beeing. Anſw. Dauid then ſpeaketh not as he was before God, but as he was in his owne ſenſe and feeling: for by his ſinnes Gods graces were ſore decayed. But (ſay they) he repented not for the ſpace of one whole yeare: Now where there is no repentance, there is no faith, and conſequently no grace nor pardon. Anſw. In repentance there be two things: the gift of repentance, and the act and practiſe thereof. The gift of repentance was in the heart of Dauid when he yet lay in his ſinnes: but the act lay hid, and he wanted the renewing thereof all that time. Againe, Dauid had the pardon of his ſinnes paſt, though he had not the pardon of thoſe two ſinnes, till he repented of them. Neither was his repentance loſt, but decayed onely, he wanted not the power of it ſimply, but the practiſe of it onely in that act.

Their third kind of arguments are drawne from equitie and reaſon.

I. He that is a member of an harlot and of the deuill, ceaſeth wholly to be a member of Chriſt: but a child of God truely beleeuing, may become the member of an harlot, and of Sathan, as Dauid did. Anſ. There be three kinds of members; dead, decaied, and liuing members: a dead member is that which is onely in ſhew a member: as a legge of wood, or of braſſe in a mans bodie. A decaied member is a true member, though weake, as is a legge or arme that is taken with a palſie, or ſore wounded. But a liuely member is that which doth mooue, and doe all it functions perfectly. So in the Church there be ſome members dead, and onely in ſhew; others feeble and weake, that by reaſon of ſome grieuous ſinnes are not able to doe their duties. And there be liuely members, which ſerue God with an vpright and perfect heart. Now, though a member of an harlot cannot be a liuely member of Chriſt, becauſe by his ſinnes he weakeneth and woundeth the graces of God (for euery adulterer and fornicator doth as much as in him lieth cut himſelfe off from Chriſt) yet he may be a decayed member of Chriſt. And this may the rather ſtand, becauſe a man is made the member of Chriſt one way, namely, ſpiritually; and the member of an harlot another way, namely bodily.

II. Reaſon. If a man cannot fall from grace, then preaching, prayer, the Sacraments, and all meanes of perſeuerance are needeleſſe? Anſw. Nothing leſſe: for they haue all their good and neceſſarie vſe vnto them which haue grace; euen to make them conſtant in grace. For where the Scripture teacheth the certaintie of ſaluation, it implieth the vſe of the meanes of perſeuerance. Paul in his iourney to Rome was certaine they ſhould come all ſafe to Land [a] by the promiſe of God: yet when the mariners would haue gone out of the ſhip, He telleth the Captaine, vnleſſe [b] theſe ſtay in, we cannot be ſaued: becauſe they were the meanes to bring them to land. So when Iſay had told Ezechias from the Lord that he ſhould liue fifteene yeares longer, he was thereby aſſured of recouerie, and yet he vſed [c] a bunch of figges as a meanes thereof, as alſo foode and raiment to preſerue his life afterward.

c Iſa.38.21.

III. Reaſon This doctrine of certaine perſeuerance maintaineth men in ſecuritie? Anſw. Securitie is twofold, carnall, and ſpirituall: carnall, when a man regardeth not at all the means of his ſaluation, but giueth himſelfe wholly to the profits & pleaſures of this world. Spirituall, when a man relieth on God for his ſaluation, by beleeuing his promiſes: and this ſecuritie it maintaineth, but not the carnall ſecuritie: For it teacheth the vſe of the meanes of perſeuerance, as prayer, hearing, and reading of the word, and receiuing the Sacraments. And thus I conclude this queſtion, That the true child of God, who truely beleeueth when he ſinneth, doth neither wholly nor finally fall away, neican doe.

Laſtly, if this were true of this famous Church of Epheſus, which was founded and preſerued by the Apoſtles, that ſhe ſuffered her firſt loue to decay; then how can it be otherwiſe with vs, but that we ſhould ſuffer our firſt

loue as well towards God as man, to leſſen and diminiſh? and that this is ſo, our conſciences will tell vs, if wee looke to that loue and zeale we had at our firſt calling: and though we haue not felt this decay, yet we muſt know we be in danger of it continually. And therefore wee muſt take heede that wee ſuffer not our good affections in religion to diminiſh. Water that hath beene once hot, will afterward bee moſt cold, and freeſe the hardeſt: euen ſo, when our hearts haue beene once heated with the fire of the Lords altar, as true loue, and other graces of the ſpirit, if we ſuffer them to decay, we ſhall become more frozen in iniquitie then any others. The hawke while ſhe is quicke to take her prey, is ſet vpon the hand of kings & nobles, but if ſhe waxe weake and die, ſhee is caſt off to the dunghill. Euen ſo we while wee are hot and cheerefull in loue towards God and his Church, we are carried as it were on Gods owne hand: but if we faint and decay in loue, we ſhall be caſt lower then if we had neuer beene ſo exalted. This loue of God in vs is like a little flame of fire, for the maintaining whereof wee muſt doe three things: Firſt take heed of all manner of ſinne, which quencheth loue and other graces of the ſpirit, as water quencheth fire. In the old teſtament the prieſts kept fire burning vpon the altar day and night, to bee alwaies readie to ſacrifice vnto the Lord: and ſo muſt wee keepe the flame of loue and other graces continually burning in our hearts, that thence we may offer vp acceptable ſacrifices of praiſe and thankſgiuing vnto the Lord. Secondly, wee muſt ſtir vp the gifts of grace that are in vs, as Paul ſaith to Timothie, 2. Tim. 1.6. vſing a compariſon from the fire, which burneth more bright and cleare when it is ſtirred vp. Laſtly, we muſt exerciſe our ſelues in the duties of pietie, as faith, repentance, loue, and ſuch like: and ſo ſhall they not decay. And thus much for the ſinne of this Church.

V. 5. Remember therefore whence thou art fallen, and repent, and doe thy firſt works: or elſe I will come againſt thee ſhortly, and will remooue thy candleſticke out of his place, except thou amend.

Our Sauiour Chriſt the faithfull phyſition of our ſoules, hauing ſharpely rebuked this Church, doth here preſcribe vnto them a ſoueraigne remedie againſt their ſinne of decay in loue. From whence we may learne, that the law whereby ſinne is reprooued is to be taught, but with this qualification, that withall the doctrine of the Goſpell bee ioyned thereunto, that the ſinnes which are ripped vp by the law, may bee cured by the Goſpel. This is Chriſts manner of preaching in this place, whoſe practiſe is a moſt worthy platforme for all his miniſters: for wee haue no warrant at this day to preach the law barely, which onely maketh the wound, without the Goſpel which alone ſheweth the remedie.

This remedie here preſcribed is of ſpeciall vſe, and worthy our conſideration: generally, by it wee haue direction to anſwer to two neceſſarie queſtions of practiſe, which often fall out in the life of man. Firſt, a man is effectually called to profeſſe the Goſpel, and yet after his conuerſion, either through the corruption of his nature, or by the temptation of the deuill and the world, falleth into ſinne againe: what muſt this man doe for his recouerie? Anſ. Hee muſt remember whence he is fallen, and repent of thoſe his ſinnes, and do his firſt works. The ſecond queſtion is this: A man that hath all his life long liued in ignorance and ſinne, is now touched in conſcience for his looſe life; how ſhall this man eſcape the wrath of God, and become reconciled vnto him? Anſ. Hee muſt firſt remember whence he is fallen by Adams ſinne, and by his owne tranſgreſſions: Secondly, hee muſt repent of his ſinnes: Thirdly, endeuour to doe the firſt workes, whereto hee is bound by the law of creation, and ſo ſhall he eſcape the wrath of God, and be receiued into his loue and fauour.

In particular, this remedie hath three parts: The firſt, Remember whence thou art fallen: The ſecond, And repent: The third, And doe thy firſt workes. Theſe words following, Or elſe I will come againſt thee, &c. are a reaſon of this remedie to perſwade them to doe the duties preſcribed.

For the firſt, Remember whence thou art fallen; The words beare this ſenſe; Examine thy ſelfe throughly, and ſee in thy ſelfe the decay of thy former loue: and then ponder the ſame in thy heart ſeriouſly and throughly. Here Chriſt inioyneth to this Church two duties. I. Examination, whereby ſhee muſt deſcend into her owne heart, and ſearch out her owne wants; eſpecially the want of her loue to God, to his word, and to her brethren. II. Conſideration, whereby ſhee muſt often thinke of theſe her wants, and lay the ſame to her heart vnfainedly.

This courſe which Chriſt taketh with this Church, teacheth vs firſt, that it is a dangerous thing for any perſon in Gods Church not to be acquainted throughly with his owne eſtate, that ſo he may ſearch out his owne wants, and deepely conſider of the ſame. For this very thing Ieremie blamed the people in his time, that no man ſaid with himſelfe, [a] what haue I done. And Chriſt layeth this ſinne to the charge of the people of the olde world, that they were ignorant of their eſtate, [b] They knew nothing till the flood came and tooke them all away. And this is the common ſinne of this age: no man almoſt doth examine himſelfe and conſider in his heart his owne eſtate, by reaſon of his ſinnes and wants. Nay, men are growne to this; that they count it a meanes to breed melancholy, & therefore do flie the practiſe of this dutie, and ſo nuzzell themſelues in their fearefull ſecuritie.

[a] Ier.8.6.

[b] Matth.24.38,39.

Secondly, here we learne that it is a ſpeciall dutie for them that liue in Gods Church, to be throughly acquainted with their owne eſtate: to examine and ſearch out their owne ſinnes: and often to conſider ſeriouſly of their particular wants. Zephanie preaching the doctrine of repentance vnto the people, beginneth thus: Search ye, ſearch your ſelues O nation not worthy to bee beloued: Where the word tranſlated ſearch, ſignifieth ſuch a ſearch as a man would make for ſome ſmall thing in a great heape of chaffe. This is the Lords counſell, Hag. 1. 7. Conſider your owne wayes in your hearts: and it muſt bee our practiſe if we would bee ſaued. This dutie is the beginning and ground of true repentance, and therefore Chriſt here giueth it the firſt place, for no man can truly repent before he be acquainted with his own infirmities, and, with his owne fearefull and damnable eſtate, by reaſon of his ſinnes. And therefore Dauid ſaith, [c] I firſt conſidered my wayes, and then I turned my feet into thy teſtimonies. The cauſe why ſo fewe in the world doe truly repent, is want of conſideration from whence they are fallen: and what be their ſinnes, and the dreadfull iudgements thereby deſerued. For till the minde doe truly conceiue her owne miſerie, the heart can neuer rightly hunger after mercie; Sinne muſt be our greateſt woe, before Chriſt become our chiefeſt ioy. The ſecond part of this remedie is Repentance it ſelfe: for after a man is well acquainted with his wants, and hath throughly conſidered of his owne miſerie, then he commeth to repent. In handling hereof fiue points are to be obſerued. I. What repentance is. II. How it is to bee practiſed. III. Who commaundeth it. IV. To whome it is commaunded. V. For what they muſt repent.

c Phil. 119. 59.

For the firſt. Repentance properly is in the minde, as the word in this place doth import: for it ſignifieth thus much, After ſome folly or ouerſlip to be better aduiſed. Repentance then in the mind is a change from euill to good, or a turning from ſinne vnto God, Act. 27. 20. Repent and turne to God. Which latter words expound the former, and plainly ſhewe what repentance is. And this change in the minde ſtandeth in this reſolution, whereby a man by Gods grace purpoſeth to leaue all his former ſinnes, and to cleaue vnto God in holy obedience vnto all his commaundements. And when this reſolution is in the minde, therewithall followeth a turning of the whole man in will, in affections, and in all the actions of his life. This appeareth by that deſcription of the practiſe of repentance, which Paul reduceth to A ſeuen heads, viz. Care, clearing of themſelues, indignation, feare, great deſire, zeale, and reueng, 2. Cor. 7. 11. whereof ſome are renewed affections, and ſome reformed actions.

Hereby appeareth that their deſcription of repentance is not ſo fit and proper, which ſay it ſtandeth in theſe three; contrition, faith, and new obedience. For contrition is not a part of repentance, but a cauſe thereof, and ſo is faith, as Chriſt teacheth in his well knowne Sermon: [a] Repent, and beleeue the Goſpell: where they are plainely diſtinct. And indeede a man muſt firſt beleeue in Chriſt, and then followeth repentance; and for newe obedience it is not a part of repentance; but a fruit thereof. Others make regeneration and repentance all one, but that B cannot ſo well ſtand: for regeneration goeth before, and repentance followeth after as a fruite thereof: for godly ſorrow which is a part of regeneration, cauſeth repentance. The minde therefore muſt firſt be renewed, and then it turneth it ſelfe vnto God, and withall turneth the whole man. And thus we ſee what true repentance is.

a Mark. 1. 15.

II. Point. How muſt repentance be practiſed? The practiſe of it, ſtandeth in two things: in true humiliation, and true reformation. In humiliation a man humbleth himſelfe vnder the hand of God, making true confeſſion of all his ſinnes, from a ſorrowfull heart, condemning C himſelfe for the ſame, and earneſtly crauing pardon for them at the hands of God in Chriſt. Reformation is a change of all bad actions into good: and if caſe require, a making of ſatisfaction vnto others for iniuries done vnto them: Example hereof we haue in Dauid; who hauing committed thoſe two great ſinnes of whoredome and murder, when he was reproued by Nathan, repented, confeſſing his ſinnes, and made the one and fiftie Pſalme, and (as it is thought) the 32. Pſalme, therein notably ſhewing both his humiliation in heart, and reformation of life. So Manaſſes, when he was conuerted, [b] he repented, humbling himſelfe before God, and praying for the pardon of his ſinnes, God heard him. And thus came the prodigall D child vnto his father, ſaying, [c] Father I haue ſinned againſt heauen, and before thee, I am not worthie to be called thy ſonne, make me one of thine hired ſeruants. And ſo in all the Pſalmes of repentance, we may ſee theſe duties of humiliation and reformation, ioyntly practiſed, as Pſal. 6. and 38. and 77. and 130. 143.

b 2. Chron. 33. 12.

c Luk. 15. 21.

Here then conſider the fearefull practiſe of the Church of Rome in their doctrine of repentance, receiued generally for many hundred yeares. Repentance with them ſtandeth in three things: In contrition, in confeſſion of all his ſinnes to the Prieſts, and in ſatisfaction to God by good works. But all theſe things may a wicked man doe: For Iudas was grieued for betraying his maſter; he confeſſed his ſinnes; and alſo gaue againe the money wherewith he was hired. A ſecond abuſe is, that they make contrition a part of the practiſe of repentance; by contrition wee muſt vnderſtand remorſe of conſcience for ſinne; which is no grace of it ſelfe, though it may be an occaſion thereto in Gods elect. A third abuſe is, that they preſcribe a confeſſion of all a mans ſinnes vnto men; which is a gibbet for any mans conſcience; wherein they require more then God doth. A fourth abuſe is, that they require ſatisfaction to Gods iuſtice by mans good workes; whereby they ouerthrow ſatisfaction by Chriſt; and exact that of men which none is able to performe. Wee therefore muſt reiect their wicked doctrine, brought by the deuill into Gods Church, and embrace that ſauing repentance which ſtandeth in true humiliation and reformation.

III. Point. Who is it that commandeth repentance vnto his Church: namely, Ieſus Chriſt. Many, not onely Papiſts but Proteſtants, gather vpon this and ſuch like commandements, That God giueth to euery man ſufficient grace to repent if he will: For elſe (ſay they) he ſhould but mocke them, in bidding them repent: conſidering that without his grace it is as impoſſible for any man to repent, as for a man to riſe and walke that is faſt bound hand and foote. Anſw. This collection is vnſound: For the manifeſtation whereof, I will firſt lay downe the grounds of the true anſwer; and then apply the ſame, Firſt, this commandement to Repent, is not giuen to euery man, but onely to the Church of God, or to that people which is to be a Church: and God giueth it to them for this end, that he may gather among them his elect. In Gods Church there be two ſorts of men; Elect, and Reprobate; both which are mingled in this life. Now when the commaundement to beleeue and repent, is giuen out in Gods Church, it is directed properly to the elect; and to the other whom God hath refuſed onely by conſequent, becauſe they are mingled with the elect. Againe, theſe commandements bee giuen to the elect for two cauſes. I. To teach them, not what they are able to doe of themſelues; but what they ought to doe. II. To be an outward meanes to bring them to repent and beleeue. For with the commaundement Chriſt is preſent by his ſpirit to worke in the elect grace to repent and beleeue. Phil. 2. 12. Worke out your ſaluation in feare and trembling: rendring this reaſon in the next words, For God worketh in you both the will and the deed. In the Church there be ſome reprobates who haue the ſame commandement giuen vnto them; but for other vſes; as I. To keepe them in outward order. II. To teach them their owne impotencie. III. and principally, that God in his iuſtice may make them void of all excuſe at the laſt day. From hence I anſwer thus: This propoſition is not true, to wit, If God command men to repent, then hee giueth them grace to repent, vnleſſe it be thus qualified; That God commaund them to repent, for this end, that they may practiſe repentance. For God giueth out his commandements for diuers ends: Some that they may be practiſed; and others, to take from men all excuſe in their diſobedience. Thus he commanded Pharaoh to let the people goe; that by his diſobedience his heart might bee more hardned, and God more iuſtly manifeſt his glorie in his deſtruction. So he commanded Iſay to goe and preach vnto the people: not for their conuerſion, but to [a] blind their eyes, and to harden their hearts. And ſo he commands the reprobate to repent: but neither directly, as hee doth his children, in whom hee intends the practiſe of repentance; but by conſequent, becauſe they liue among his children: nor yet with intent they ſhould obey, but rather to harden them, and to make them inexcuſable, becauſe of their ſinnes. And therefore in them his commandement cannot import any abilitie to obey.

[a] Iſa. 6. 9.

IV. Point. Who be commanded to repent? namely, The Church of Epheſus, that is, the miniſter with the whole bodie of the Church. This may ſeeme ſtrange that hee ſhould command them to repent, ſeeing they had alreadie repented at their conuerſion. Here therefore we muſt learne that there bee two degrees in the practiſe of repentance: Firſt, the beginning of repentance: Secondly, the renewing of the ſame. And in theſe two conſiſteth the whole ſtate of a Chriſtian mans life. He muſt begin to repent when hee is receiued to mercie: he muſt renew that repentance for his daiely offences.

The vſe.

If God therefore haue giuen vs grace to repent, we muſt not content our ſelues with that good beginning, but adde more repentance daily vnto it. For no man liueth that hath receiued grace to repent, but he ſeeth in himſelfe continuall cauſe of renewing the ſame, by reaſon of his daily falls and wants; for euery ſinne decayeth grace, which muſt be repaired by a new practiſe of repentance. This duty muſt needs bee practiſed. It is the moſt dangerous caſe that can be for any man to lie in ſinne, for ſinne makes a man liable to all Gods iudgements. And it is not ſo much the act of ſinne, as the lying in ſinne that bringeth damnation. For this cauſe Paul 2. Cor. 5. 20. ſpeaking to thoſe that were reconciled to God, doth ſtill moſt earneſtly beſeech them to bee reconciled vnto him, ſaying, Wee beſeech you in Chriſts ſteed, as though God did beſeech you through vs, that yee be reconciled to God: Intending thereby to prouoke them to the daily renewing of their repentance, that thereby they might get a more full aſſurance of their reconciliation.

V. Point. For what muſt they repent? namely, for the decay of their loue: not for the want thereof, but for that they ſuffered it to waxe leſſer, both towards God and his word, and towards their brethren. The ſame thing is ſpoken to vs daily in the miniſterie of the word: that whereas our firſt loue is gone, many hauing fallen from it, and moe hauing none at all, we ſhould vnfainedly repent, of this our decay and want: that if we haue had loue, and now waxe cold, we may renew it; and if wee neuer had it, we may labour for it; that ſo wee may be anſwerable to his bleſſed deſire. And here obſerue, that Chriſt enioineth vs a ſtrait repentance. It is not ynough for men to repent them of groſſe ſinnes, as whoredome, theft, drunkenneſſe, and ſuch like: but they muſt repent them of their wants of grace, as of the knowledge, & feare, and loue of God, and of brotherly loue, & of decay in any grace, be it neuer ſo little. We haue many iuſticiaries in conceit, that bee Phariſaically minded, thinking too well of themſelues, that they neede no repentance, becauſe they liue ciuilly, and are not tainted with groſſe ſinnes. But theſe conſider little what God doth here require; euen repentance for our ſecret wants and decayes. And great reaſon it ſhould be ſo, for els to what ende ſhould we examine our ſelues of our ſecret wants, vnleſſe we ſhould repent vs of them, hauing found them in vs.

Againe, if this Church muſt repent for her wants; then what great cauſe haue we to repent in this laſt age of Atheiſme, a groſſe and common ſinne: of outward pride in apparell, a ſinne flat againſt Gods word: and for contempt of the Goſpel; a ſinne that enlargeth it ſelfe more and more among vs; and for crueltie, and want of mercie and compaſſion, all which are riſe in our Church: & may more eaſily remooue the candleſticke from vs, then want of loue could remooue the candleſticke from this Church. And thus much for the ſecond part of this remedie.

The third part of this remedie, is, to doe their firſt workes: that is, ſhewe the like zeale and feruencie of loue to God, to his word, and, to their brethren, that they did at the firſt time of their conuerſion. This dutie Chriſt addeth to the former; becauſe true repentance neuer periſheth in the heart, but alwaies breaketh out into action in the life.

Here then is an excellent leſſon for vs to learne and put in practiſe: we muſt ſearch our owne hearts, and ſee what good things haue beene in vs; what good motions and deſires, or good affections. We muſt alſo call to mind our former wayes, and ſee what good things wee haue done: and if in heart or life we find decay, we muſt recouer our loſſe, and ſeeke to doe our firſt workes, and ſtriue to continue ſo doing to our liues end, that ſo we may eſcape this heauie charge of decay in grace. Thus much of the parts of this remedie.

If not, I will come againſt thee ſhortly, and remooue thy candleſticke out of his place, except thou amend.

In theſe words Chriſt laies downe a reaſon to perſwade the Church of Epheſus to the practiſe of the former remedie, eſpecially for repentance. This reaſon containeth three parts, I. A generall commination in theſe words, If not, I will come againſt thee ſhortly. II. A particular threatning of a particular iudgement, And remooue thy candleſtick out of his place. III. The condition of them both: except thou amend.

I. Point. If not, I will come againſt thee ſhortly, that is, if thou doe not practiſe this remedie, and the duties therein preſcribed, eſpecially the dutie of repentance; then I will come againſt thee ſhortly. The words may aſwell be read thus, If not, then will I come to thee ſhortly: For ſo they are in the originall, and doe containe in them ſufficient and profitable inſtruction: God is ſaid to come to any people two wayes, in mercie, and in iudgement. In mercie, when he teſtifieth his preſence by workes of mercie: As when Chriſt in ſpirit went vnto the olde world, and preached vnto them in the perſon of Noe an hundred and twenty yeares before the flood, 1. Pet. 3. 19. 20. Secondly, God commeth in iudgement, when he teſtifieth his preſence by iudgements. In the ſecond commaundement God ſaith, He will viſit the ſinnes of the fathers vpon the children, that is, he will make inquirie among the children for the fathers ſinnes, and if he finde them to liue in the ſame ſinnes that their fathers did, then will he puniſh them, this is properly to viſit. So in this place, If thou repent not, I will come vnto thee, and teſtifie my preſence, not in mercie, but in iudgement.

The vſe.

In this generall threatning we may obſerue, that when a Church or people decay in loue to God, to his word, or to their brethren; or elſe lie in any ſinne: then God prepareth himſelfe to come vnto them in iudgement, Amos 4. 12. Becauſe I will doe thus and thus vnto thee, for thy ſinnes, therefore prepare to meet thy God, O Iſrael, meaning that, becauſe they lay ſtill in their ſinnes, therefore he would make known his preſence by more fearefull iudgements. This doctrine according to Chriſts direction is to be applied to vs, and to our Church: for the ſinnes that were in the church of Epheſus, are the ſinnes of our church and people. They decayed in loue to God, to his word, and to the brethren, ſo doe we. Nay, generally there is no loue at all in vs, as hath beene ſhewed: and beſides theſe wants, there be many groſſe ſinnes wherein our church and people doe lie, as in Atheiſme both in iudgement and practiſe, in contempt and neglect of Gods worſhip and true religion: in crueltie, oppreſſion, and want of mercie: and that which is more, though God ſummon men to repent by his daily iudgements, yet few or none by true humilitie prepare to meete God, and to preuent his iudgements. Security ſpreads it ſelfe ouer the whole body of our people. And this beeing our caſe and ſtate, it muſt needes be, that God hath beene long ſince in comming to vs by his iudgements, and at this day he is ſtill comming, becauſe we ſtill decay in our loue and other graces, and more and more goe on in ſinne. So that if we thus continue, the truth is, he will come ſhortly vnto vs, and that by moſt fearefull iudgements. For this was written to the Church of Epheſus, to bee a direction not onely vnto them, but to all Churches to the end of the world, that be in the like or worſe caſe. What ſhall we then doe?

Our duty is taught vs in theſe words (If not) that is, if thou repent not. Wee muſt preuent the Lords comming in iudgement by vnfained repentance: euery man and euery family apart muſt repent priuatly, and the whole Church openly and publickely: no way elſe we haue, to ſtay the Lords comming againſt vs by his fearefull iudgements.

The ſecond part of this reaſon, is a more particular threatening then the former: And will remooue thy candleſticke out of his place. Where he ſheweth with what particular iudgement he will puniſh this Church: namely, by remoouing away the candleſticke. The meaning whereof may bee gathered out of the former chapter, where particular Churches were called candleſtickes; therefore here he threateneth to remooue his Church from the citie of Epheſus, to take away the Miniſterie of his Goſpel, and the profeſſion thereof; and in his iuſt iudgement to ſend among them, Ignorance, Apoſtaſie, and Hereſie, in ſteed of the knowledge of his truth. This particular iudgement muſt be referred to the firſt words, If not; that is, if thou repent not, this will I doe; I will make thee to bee no Church, and take my Goſpell from thee.

The vſe.

In this particular threatening, three points are to bee obſerued; one concerning the Miniſter; the ſecond concerning the whole bodie of the Church; the third concerning euery priuat man. Touching the miniſter note this; If hee ſhall decay in loue to God, to his word, or to his brethren, or if he lie in any one ſinne known to himſelfe, it is a meanes to depriue him either of his calling, or of Gods gifts beſtowed on him; for this threatening is here directed eſpecially vnto the Angell of this Church of Epheſus. When Ieremie had beene wanting in deliuering the Lords wil vnto the people, partly for feare, and partly through impatience; then the Lord becomes a Prophet vnto him, ſaying, If thou [a] returne, I will bring thee againe, and thou ſhalt ſtand before me. Whereby he would giue him to vnderſtand, That if he returned not, he ſhould ceaſe to be a Prophet vnto him. The ſame thing is true of all Gods Miniſters; if they decay in loue, faile in their dutie, or lie in any ſinne, they muſt ſpeedily renew themſelues by repentance, or els God will depriue them either of their calling, or of the gifts thereof. True repentance and the renewing thereof is needfull vnto all Chriſtians; but eſpecially to Gods miniſters, if they would continue in his fauour, and ſtand before him, becomming his mouth vnto the people.

a Ier.19.15.

The ſecond point concerneth the whole body of a Church; to wit, if a Church or people decay in loue to God, to religion; and to their brethren; or doe lie in any common ſinne, they procure hereby the remouing of the Goſpel from thẽ, & the aboliſhing of true religion. [b] The Prophet is a foole (ſaith the Lord) and the man of the ſpirit is madde: This was a great and fearefull iudgement: but marke the cauſe; All is for thine iniquitie: that is, for the ſinne of the whole Church doth God ſend fooliſh miniſters. If this be ſo, then we haue iuſt cauſe in our Church to feare the remoouing of the Goſpel from vs: for there is a generall decay of loue in many, and in the moſt no loue at all. Many ſcorne and contemne true religion, and hate the profeſſors thereof. In regard whereof, wee may wonder at the great patience of God, that yet continueth his Goſpel among vs: For [a] God giueth men vp to ſtrong deluſion, to beleeue lyes, becauſe they loue not his truth. Wherfore beeing in this danger, our dutie is, to vſe all good meanes to preuent this iudgement of God: which can no other way be done, then by true and vnfained repentance by the whole Church in generall: and by euery man apart, and euery family apart. For when God ſhall ſpeake ſuddenly againſt a nation or kingdome, to root it vp, and to deſtroy it: if that people repent of their wickedneſſe, the Lord will repent of the plague and iudgement which he thought to bring vpon them, *Ierem.*18.7,8.

b Hoſ.9.7.

a 2.Theſſ.2.11.

The third point concerneth euery priuate man; and it is this: If any man decay in loue, or want loue to God and to his brethren, or lie in any ſinne knowne to himſelfe: This is a meanes to remooue the candleſticke from him; to depriue him of his knowledge and other graces of God. The affection of loue in the heart is like the watch of the clocke: if the watch ſtand, the wheeles ſtand: as the watch goeth faſt or ſoftly, ſo goe the wheeles anſwerably. And ſo it is in man: if his loue to God and to his Goſpel doe encreaſe, then doth his knowledge and other graces of God encreaſe in his heart: but if this loue decay, then other graces decay; and if loue be gone, then farewell all pietie and true religion. If we would know the cauſe of ſuch palpable ignorance as is in many that haue long heard the Goſpell preached, it is nothing but want of loue. Hebr. 3. 12. 13. the holy Ghoſt ſheweth by what degrees men come to fall away from God. Firſt, ſinne deceiues them, by drawing them to commit it: then their hearts are hardened by the cuſtome of ſinning. Thence followes vnbeleefe in many points of Religion: and ſo they make Apoſtaſie from God, and ſet themſelues againſt his truth. Take heed therefore of lying in any ſin, for that is the high way to finall Apoſtaſie: rather ſtriue to encreaſe in loue vnto God and vnto his word, and ſo ſhall all his good graces encreaſe in thine heart.

Out of this particular threatning ſome gather, That a man may be cut off from Chriſt, and fall away finally from true faith and repentance. For (ſay they) if a whole Church may be cut off from Chriſt, and become no Church: then may any one member of the Church be cut off, and become no member: But a whole Church may be cut off, as here we ſee, and therefore may any one man. Anſw. This reaſon is not good: there is great difference betweene the ſtate of a whole Church, and of one man that is a true member of Chriſt. For a particular Church is a mixt company of true profeſſours and diſſemblers: like vnto a field wherein are good corne and tares; and like vnto a barne floore, wherein is wheat and chaffe mingled together: and yet all are reputed beleeuers, becauſe they profeſſe the Goſpel outwardly. Now by reaſon of this mixture, it may come to paſſe, that a particular viſible Church may fall away, and become no Church: either when the Godly are taken away, and hypocrites and diſſemblers made manifeſt; or els when true beleeuers waxing few, are not able to maintaine the publike profeſſion of the truth againſt the might and multitude of the enemies, which may daily encreaſe. But the caſe is not ſo with a particular member of Chriſt, he cannot finally fall away, as hath beene ſhewed at large, ver. 4. And thus much for the ſecond part of this reaſon.

The third part of this reaſon, is the condition of both the former threatenings, in theſe words; Except thou amend, that is, I will come in iudgement vnto thee, and take my Goſpell from thee, vnleſſe thou preuent my comming by true repentance.

Here note, that all the threatenings of the olde and newe Teſtament are conditionall: Ionas commeth to Niniue, and crieth, yet forty dayes and Niniue ſhall be deſtroyed. He ſayd no more; but yet that threatening muſt be vnderſtood with this exception, vnles they repent. Why (will ſome ſay) are the threatenings in Gods word propounded conditionally? Anſw. Gods whole will and pleaſure is one alone in it ſelfe: and yet it may be thus diſtinguiſhed, to be partly ſecret, and partly reuealed. Gods ſecret will is touching thoſe things which he hath not made manifeſt vnto men. His reuealed wil is touching thoſe things which are manifeſted in Scripture, or doe fall out euery day. Now Gods ſecret will is without condition; for as euery thing commeth to paſſe, ſo God willed it: when good things come to paſſe, them he willeth ſimply: when euill things fall out, them he permitteth to be done. And to make Gods ſecret will conditionall, is to bring Gods will vnder the power of man, and to ſubiect the Creator vnto the creature. But Gods reuealed will is conditionall; becauſe it containeth the matter of mans ſaluation: and this manner of propounding it, is a moſt effectuall way to bring the ſame to paſſe, for it keepeth men more in awefull obedience, then if it were abſolute.

In this condition note two things, that Chriſt repeateth it twice, both in the beginning of this reaſon, If not: and in the end, Except thou amend. Hereby he would giue vs to vnderſtand. That when men commit ſinne, and lye therein: or when they decay in any grace, then haue they moſt neceſſarie cauſe to repent, if they would eſcape Gods fearefull iudgements. And ſeeing our eſtate is like to the ſtate of this Church, or elſe worſe by much (for wee lye in ſinne, and thereby cauſe God to come to vs in iudgement) as we tender our owne good both in this life, and after death, let vs turne from our ſinnes and repent, euery man apart, euery family apart, and the whole Church publickly: for repentance is moſt needfull, els would not the Lord haue doubled this condition.

V. 6. But this thou haſt, that thou hateſt the workes of the Nicolaitans, which I alſo hate.

Theſe words are a ſecond reaſon to prooue that which was ſet downe in the ſecond verſe: namely, That this Church could not abide them that were euill. In the ſecond verſe this was made manifeſt, by their diſcouerie of the falſe Apoſtles; & here he prooueth it by their affection of hatred, towards the works of the Nicolaitans. Theſe Nicolaitans were certaine hereticks in the primitiue Church, that held theſe two opinions: Firſt, that adulterie and fornication were no ſinnes; Secondly, that men might communicate with the ſacrifices of idolaters in their Idoll temples; and according to their opinions were their practiſes. Theſe hereticks (as it is thought) came of one Nicholas, one of the ſeuen deacons mentioned Act. 6. who though for a while hee did faithfully diſcharge his dutie outwardly; yet after fell away, and became the head of this hereticall ſect.

But this thou haſt. This Particle, But, hath reference to the former verſe. As if he ſhould ſay, Though this be thy fault, that thou faileſt in thy firſt loue; yet for this I commend thee, that thou hateſt the workes of the Nicolaitans.

The vſe.

This practiſe of Chriſt diſcouereth the common ſinne of this age: which is, to ſet out in their colours mens faults and infirmities, to their greateſt diſgrace; and yet by ſilence and obliuion to burie all their vertues, which are praiſe worthy. This ought not to be ſo; wee muſt follow Chriſts example, who with iuſt reproofe adioyneth due deſerued praiſe. If our friend or our foe haue a fault, when we are called thereunto, we may ſpeake of it, and we muſt reprooue them; but yet withall wee muſt commend the good things that bee in them. Secondly, Chriſt here teacheth vs, That it is not ſufficient to any mans good eſtate before God, that he haue good things in him; for that a man may haue, and yet bee in danger to be cut off from Chriſt. Saul had good things in him at the firſt entrance into his kingdome, but what was he afterward? Iehu was very zealous for Gods glory in killing all the Idolatrous

2 King 10. 25.31.

prieſts, but he would not depart from the ſinnes of Ieroboam. And Iudas no doubt had many good gifts while he was with Chriſt, but his ende was moſt fearefull: And this Church had many good things in her; yet is ſhee in daunger of beeing cut off from Chriſt: And ſo many among vs haue excellent gifts: ſome for knowledge, ſome for mercie and conceiuing of prayer: and yet for all theſe they may be cut off from Chriſt. Therefore we muſt not content our ſelues with theſe, but labour for the principall, which is true, heartie, and vnfained repentance, which we muſt daily renew for our continuall falls. And this will keepe vs in Gods fauour, and from his iudgements.

More particularly Chriſt here commendeth this Church, for hating the errors of the Nicolaitans. Whereby he would teach vs our dutie if we be Chriſtians; namely, to take knowledge of the ſinnes and errours of our times, and to hate the ſame vnfainedly. Yet note, he commendeth them for hating their workes, not their perſons: giuing vs direction how to temper our hatred in the world. We muſt ſet it againſt the ſinne, not againſt the perſon of any man. Some will ſay, the Prophets prayed againſt the perſons of the wicked. And Dauid profeſſed hatred of the men, Pſal. 139. 21. Doe not I hate them that hate thee. Anſ. Dauid was an extraordinarie Prophet, and had no doubt this reuealed vnto him, that thoſe his enemies were obſtinate, and would not repent. Againe, imprecations of the Prophets in Scripture, muſt be vnderſtood as prophecies of Gods iudgement to come vpon thoſe againſt whome they prayed. But we which want that extraordinarie ſpirit, muſt keepe our ſelues to our ordinarie rule: Hate the ſinnes, and loue the perſons.

Further, obſerue the workes here hated: namely, Idolatrie, and Adulterie, which are ioyned together in theſe Nicolaitans. Adulterie is the puniſhment of Idolatrie; and Idolatrie the puniſhment of Adulterie. Spirituall Adulterie is puniſhed with bodily adulterie. This was verified in the olde Iewes: when they fell a whoring after ſtrange gods, God gaue them vp to vncleane luſt. And it is palpable in the Church of Rome: they beeing fallen to idolatrie, doe abound in all vncleanneſſe: for they tolerate Stewes for fornication: and adulterie and Sodomie are common among them.

Againe, ſundrie men may here be well admoniſhed, who will be of no religion, becauſe there are many ſects and ſchiſmes among the profeſſors thereof. Theſe men ſhould conſider, That in the beſt Churches planted by the Apoſtles, there were ſects and hereſies, euen in the Apoſtles times, as here in Epheſus. And therefore no maruell, if there be ſects and ſchiſmes among vs at this day. This offence ſhould not mooue any to diſlike the Goſpel, but rather cauſe them more firmely to cleaue vnto the truth.

Which I alſo doe hate. This Chriſt addeth to encourage them to goe forward in the vertue for which he commended them, in hating euill workes: for what could more prouoke them to zeale and conſtancie therein, then to know they did that which Chriſt himſelfe did? And here we ſee, that Chriſt would haue euery member of his Church to be like minded, and like affected vnto him, as he was man. We muſt loue thoſe things which Chriſt loueth, and hate thoſe things which Chriſt hateth, reioyce wherein Chriſt reioyceth, and mourne for thoſe things for which Chriſt mourned. And great reaſon it ſhould be ſo: for we profeſſe our ſelues to be members of Chriſt, bone of his bone, and fleſh of his fleſh, for out of his blood ſpring the Church: and there muſt be conſent and conformitie betweene the head and the members. Queſt. If Chriſt hated theſe wicked men, why did he ſuffer them to liue, and not cut them off from troubling his Church? Anſ. Becauſe hereby he would manifeſt his loue to his Church, and his iuſtice vpon the wicked: for he can bring light out of darkeneſſe, and good not onely out of good, but out of euill.

V: 7. Let him that hath an eare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches: To him that ouercommeth, will I giue to eate of the tree of life, which is in the middeſt of the paradiſe of God.

Theſe words containe the concluſion of this Epiſtle: the ſcope whereof, is to excite this Church to the more carefull performance of the duties before preſcribed. This concluſion hath two parts: a commandement, and a promiſe. The commandement in the beginning of the verſe; Let him that hath an eare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches. In this commandement note three points, I. who are commanded, Thoſe which haue eares. II. The dutie commanded, They muſt heare. III. What they muſt heare, namely, What the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

I. Point. The parties commanded are thus ſet forth, He which hath an eare: who theſe be, Chriſt doth more fully expound, Matth. 13. 9. when he ſaith, Let him that hath an eare to heare, heare. Where he maketh this diſtinction of hearers: that ſome are deafe hearers, ſome hearing hearers. The deafe hearers are thoſe that bring with them to the miniſterie of the word their outward eares onely, but their hearts are not affected with it: neither doe they care to learne, to beleeue, or obey, that which is taught them. The hearing hearers are all ſuch as beſide their bodily eares, haue eares pierced in their hearts by the ſpirit of grace, whereby they do not onely heare the word outwardly, but their hearts are alſo affected with it, and made pliable vnto it; ſo as they beleeue it, and bring forth obedience vnto it. This hearing eare is ſet forth by David, when he ſaith: [a] Sacrifice and burnt offerings thou wouldeſt not haue: but mine erres haſt thou opened and prepared; and then I ſaide, Loe I come. Hereof Iſay ſaith, Thou [b] openedſt mine eares, and I was not rebellious. And this hearing eare Lydia had giuen her, when God [c] opened her heart wherby ſhe became attentiue to the word of God preached by Paul.

a Pſal.40.6.
b Iſa.50.5.
c Act.16.14.

By this diſtinction of hearers which Chriſt maketh, we may learne, that Gods grace vnto ſaluation is not vniuerſall, that is, God giueth not vnto all men ſuch meaſure of grace, whereby (if they will themſelues) they may beleeue, repent, and be ſaued: For in Chriſts time, and euer ſince there haue beene in the Church theſe two kinds of hearers: whereof the deafe hearer doth not receiue nor beleeue the Goſpel vnto ſaluation. Neither is it true, that God giueth grace ſufficient vnto all, whereby they might be ſaued, if they by their malice and ſinne did not aboliſh the ſame. For though he admit all ſorts into his Church, yet not all, but ſome onely haue eares pierced by the ſpirit of grace that they can heare. And therefore when the Diſciples asked Chriſt, [d] Why he ſpake in parables? he anſwered thus, To you it is giuen to knowe the will of God, and the ſecrets of his kingdome: but to others it is not giuen. Shewing plainely that the gift of hearing to ſaluation is not giuen to all, and in ſome made void by their owne willfulneſſe: but to ſome it is giuen, and they haue hearing eares: and to ſome it is not giuen, and their eares are deafe.

d Matth.13. verſ.11.

Secondly, ſeeing this commandement is directed to the hearing hearers; we muſt hereby be admoniſhed to vſe all good meanes to become good hearers of Gods word; bringing with vs not onely the bodily eares which we haue by creation, but the ſpirituall eares of the heart, which we haue by regeneration. For it is not ſufficient to our ſaluation to receiue the word into the outward bodily eares, vnleſſe the inward eares of the heart be opened, that our ſoule may be affected with the word, and fitted to receiue, to beleeue, and obey the ſame. Thus did good king Ioſias heare the law read, the text ſaith, [e] His heart melted within him. And thus did David heare when the Lord ſaid to the Church, [f] Seeke yee my face: his heart anſwered, I ſeeke thy face O Lord. And as we muſt be carefull to get ſpirituall eares; ſo we muſt take heede of deafe eares. Which is when a man commeth and heareth the word of God, but yet hath no care in his heart to learne, beleeue, or obey the ſame. This deafe eare is a fearefull iudgement of God, whereof we may read, Iſay 6. 9. where the Prophet is ſent, To make their eares heauie, and their hearts fatte, that they might not heare, nor beleeue; leaſt they A ſhould turne and be ſaued. And this the rather we muſt looke vnto: becauſe it is a iudgement of God vpon many among vs at this day. The greateſt part of hearers are deafe hearers; which appeareth by this, that after long teaching they neither increaſe in knowledge, nor in faith, nor in obedience: but remaine the ſame for blindneſſe of minde, hardneſſe of heart, and profaneneſſe of life, that they were at the firſt hearing of the word; theſe muſt knowe that Gods iudgement is on them; and if they would be ſaued, they muſt labour to come out of this eſtate, and endeauour ſo to heare with their hearts, that they may be turned vnto God both in minde, heart, and life.

e Chr.34.27.
f Pſal.27.8.

B II. Point. The dutie commanded: namely, to heare. Hearing in Scripture is not onely to liſten with the bodily eare: but to be attentiue to that which is taught, and with attention to bring faith, conuerſion, and obedience euery way. Eph. 4. 21. 22. the hearing of Chriſt is notably deſcribed: It is not ſo much to conceiue the doctrine of Chriſt in our minds, & to be able to vtter it, as to die vnto ſinne, and to the luſts of the fleſh, and to riſe to neweneſſe of life. And indeede, a man doth heare and learne no more of Gods word, then he doth beleeue and practiſe. From whence we are againe to be admoniſhed, that we ſo heare with attention, that by hearing we ſuffer our ſelues to be changed; and that with our change we ioyne care to be- C leeue, and conſcience to obey. This is that ſauing hearing which bringeth eternall life: all other hearing doth encreaſe our ſinnes to our further condemnation. Whereby alſo appeareth the fearefull ſtate of many, who lend onely the outward bodily eare to heare the word, but their hearts be not mooued, nor their liues changed thereby.

III. Point. What is to be heard? namely, That which the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches. Which words muſt be referred to that which went before, and not to that which followeth: for this commandement belongs to the matter of the Epiſtle which went before. The promiſe following rather concernes the perſons themſelues then the matter. The things then D that are to be heard, are theſe; Chriſt his ſharpe reproofe for ſinne: his threatenings of puniſhment: a remedie preſcribed; and motiues to practiſe the ſame, eſpecially repentance: for of all theſe Chriſt ſpake before.

The vſe.

From this, that Chriſt bids them heare theſe things which concerned their eſtate in ſinnes, and amendement by repentance, we learne two things. Firſt, that it is a moſt neceſſarie thing for euery Church of God, and euery member thereof, to know and conſider their own wants and ſinnes: and alſo the iudgements of God that hang ouer them for the ſame. Secondly, that after any man, or any Church hath conſidered of their ſinnes and of Gods iudgements; it is a moſt neceſſarie thing, to turne vnto God by true repentance, if they haue not repented:

and if they haue repented, to renewe the ſame daily, and doe it more; that ſo Gods iudgements both priuate and common may be auoyded. We therefore muſt hereby be mooued to ſearch into our owne waies, to find out our own ſinnes, and to conſider of Gods iudgements thereby deſerued, that by true repentance we may turne vnto God, and ſo eſcape his fearefull iudgements.

Further, theſe words, What the ſpirit ſaith vnto the churches, containe two reaſons to mooue euery man to heare. I. Becauſe they are ſpoken by the ſpirit, that is the holy Ghoſt. II. becauſe they are not ſpoken to one man, or one Church alone, but to all Churches. For the firſt: It may be demanded ſeeing Chriſt ſpake theſe words, How can it be ſaide that the ſpirit ſpeaketh them? Anſw. Both may ſtand: firſt, becauſe all the outward actions of any perſon in trinitie are common to the reſt: But to teach the church is an outward action of Chriſt, and therefore it agreeth to the father, and to the holy Ghoſt. As when the father created things in the beginning, the ſonne alſo created, and the holy Ghoſt created them; So here when the ſonne teacheth, the father teacheth, and the holy Ghoſt teacheth: For as the three perſons are one in nature, ſo muſt they be ioyned in all outward actions. Secondly, Chriſt ſaith the ſpirit ſpeaketh, becauſe he now ſitting at the right hand of the father, doth not teach his church in bodily preſence, but by his ſpirit, which after his aſcention he ſent to be their comforter and inſtructor.

Here then obſerue that the holy Ghoſt ſpeaketh to the Church in Scripture. The Church of Rome appoints a Iudge to ſpeake vnto men in matters of controuerſie, which is the Church: becauſe (ſay they) a Iudge muſt ſpeake: and Chriſt is abſent from his Church: and the word is a dumbe letter, and cannot ſpeake: Therefore the Church muſt needes be iudge. But they erre groſſely: The Church cannot be iudge: It is but Chriſts miniſter to put in execution that which he commaundeth. Chriſt therefore muſt bee Iudge vnto his Church by Scripture, which is not a dumbe iudge; for therein his ſpirit ſpeaketh plainely and ſufficiently for the reſoluing of any point in controuerſie, that is needfull in Gods Church.

The vſe.

The ſecond reaſon to attention is, becauſe theſe things are ſpoken to all Churches. Where we ſee that things ſpoken to one Church agree to all. From whence we muſt learne this ſpeciall dutie in reading and hearing Gods holy word; namely, to read and heare with application. We muſt not reſt in a flouriſhing knowledge of the ſtorie, but apply euery precept and example vnto our ſelues. If it be an example of vertue, we muſt apply it to our ſelues for imitation; if it be an example of vice, we muſt apply it to our ſelues to mooue vs to eſchew and auoid the like. For God would haue all to learne that which hee ſpeaketh vnto one. And thus much of the commaundement.

To him that ouercommeth will I giue to eate of the tree of life, which is in the middeſt of the paradiſe of God. Theſe words containe the ſecond part of this concluſion, to wit, a moſt excellent promiſe: wherein conſider two points. Firſt, to whome it is made: Secondly, what is promiſed. For the firſt. The promiſe is made to him that ouercommeth: That is, to him that in fighting, preuaileth againſt all the ſpirituall enemies of his ſaluation, ſinne, Satan, hell, and condemnation. There be three things requiſite to make a man able to ouercome theſe enemies. Firſt, he muſt be borne anew in Chriſt, of water, and of the ſpirit, 1. Ioh. 5. 4. He that is borne of God ouercommeth the world; ſo by generation he is freed from the bondage of hell, death, ſinne, and Satan. Secondly, he muſt haue true faith, by vertue whereof he muſt denie and renounce himſelfe, and be whatſoeuer he is in the death, paſſion, and obedience of Chriſt. Therefore S. Iohn ſaith in the ſame place; This is the victorie which ouercommeth the world, euen your faith. For when a man is in Chriſt, by faith he is made partaker of Chriſt his victorie vpon the croſſe, and by it receiueth power to ſubdue his owne corruptions, the world, and the deuill. Thirdly, he that would ouercome muſt keepe faith, that is, true religion, and a good conſcience, ſtanding out in life and death againſt all aduerſarie power whatſoeuer.

The vſe.

In this, that life euerlaſting is promiſed to them that ouercome. Firſt, we obſerue, that the doctrine of vniuerſall grace, affirming that the promiſes of the Goſpel for life and ſaluation, belong to all and euery man whatſoeuer, vnleſſe he will reiect them, is a deuice of mans braine. For life eternall is not promiſed to euery man as he is a man comming of Adam; but to a man as he is in Chriſt by faith, and a new creature. The promiſes of the Goſpel be vniuerſall indeede to all that ouercome: but that is a propertie which reſtraines them wholly to true beleeuers. Secondly, hereby we are taught ſo to liue, that we may ſay truly in the teſtimonie of a good conſcience, we haue ouercome all our ſpirituall enemies, and doe continually ſtand conquerours ouer them. This is a matter of endleſſe ioy and comfort, which will cheere the ſoule in great diſtreſſe: But to liue and lie in ſinne, is or will be a hell to the conſcience. What auaile the treaſures and honours of this world to any man, while his conſcience ſhall tell him he is a vaſſall to ſinne and Satan? for while he continueth in that eſtate, he is out of the fauour of God, and hath no part nor portion in the kingdome of heauen. Therefore it ſtandeth vs vpon to labour to feele in our hearts the certen euidence of this victorie ouer our ſpirituall enemies, by the ſure teſtimonie of the ſpirit of grace.

The ſecond point is the thing promiſed, to wit, life euerlaſting, noted by this gift, To eate of the tree of life. And it is ſet out vnto vs by two circumſtances. Firſt, by the cauſe of it: Secondly, by the place where it is to be ſound. The cauſe is Chriſt Ieſus: I will giue to him to eate of the tree of life. Where he maketh an oppoſition betweene himſelfe and the firſt Adam. The firſt Adam ſinned; and thereby caſt himſelfe and all his poſteritie out of the earthly paradiſe, and loſt the benefit of the tree of life: But Chriſt the ſecond Adam commeth and ſuffereth for ſinne: and thereby openeth the way to a better paradiſe, then the firſt Adam loſt: and to all that ouercome he giueth libertie to enter in, and to eate of the tree of life. The tree of life properly, was a tree placed in the middeſt of the earthly paradiſe: and it was ſo called, firſt, becauſe it was a pledge and ſacrament vnto Adam, that he ſhould liue for euer, if he continued in obedience to God: ſecondly, becauſe it had in it (as may be prooued) vertue and power, whereby it would haue preſerued him from death and olde age for euer, if he had ſtood in his innocencie.

This earthly tree of life was a figure and ſigne of Chriſt our Sauiour and mediator: who liueth an eternall ſpirituall life, not onely as he is God, but as he is mediatour, and that not for himſelfe alone, but for this ende, that he may conuey quickning ſpirituall life to all that beleeue in him: and for this cauſe he tearmeth himſelfe the tree of life. Further he ſaith, He will giue hereof to eate: To eate, ſometime ſignifieth to beleeue, Ioh.6.50. but it cannot here be ſo taken; For faith endeth with this life, and hath no vſe afterward. Therefore to eate, in this place ſignifieth to haue immediate fellowſhip with Chriſt in heauen: where Chriſt ſhall be vnto him a tree of life to make him liue for euer.

In this promiſe note two points. I. In what things eternall life conſiſteth: namely, in immediate fellowſhip and communion with Chriſt in heauen. Secondly, that life eternall ſtandeth not in outward meanes, as meate, drinke, clothing, phyſicke, recreation, ſleepe, and ſuch like: but in an immediate partaking with Chriſt in all his bleſſings. So that when Chriſt is all in all vnto vs immediately, then doe we eate of the tree of life, and thereby ſhall liue eternally.

II. Circumſt. The place where eternall life is to be had is in the paradiſe of God. This paradiſe of God is the third heauen, a place wherein the Lord doth manifeſt himſelfe in his glorious maieſtie, and which he hath prepared for the the glory of all his elect. Hereof Chriſt ſpake to the theefe on the croſſe, ſaying, This day ſhalt thou be with me in paradiſe, Luk. 23. 43. and hither was Paul rapt in viſion: and ſaw and heard things that cannot be vttered, and he calleth it the third heauen, in reſpect of the heauens vnder it, for the place wherein we breath is the firſt heauen, the ſtarry firmament is the ſecond heauen, and this paradiſe of God is the third: which is therefore called paradiſe, becauſe it is a place of endeleſſe ioy and pleaſure. And the adding of the name of God, doth not onely put a difference, betweene it and Adams earthly paradiſe, but alſo ſheweth it to be a great and moſt excellent place. So Rahel ſaith, I haue wreſtled with my ſiſter [a] the wreſtlings of God, that is, ſtrong wreſtlings. And in the Pſalmes, the mountaines of God, doe ſignifie high and mightie mountaines. And that this paradiſe is ſuch an excellent place, appeareth at large, Reuel. 22. For therein muſt come none vncleane thing, but the Saints and Angels doe there enioy the preſence of God, and behold his glorie ſo much as the creature is able to comprehend: There God communicateth himſelfe to all the elect, and becommeth all things vnto them immediately; ſo that this muſt needs be a place of all ioy and comfort.

[a] Gen.30.8.

The conſideration whereof muſt admoniſh vs to ſeeke the things that be aboue, that we may haue a place in this heauenly paradiſe. For why ſhould we ſet our hearts vpon the vaine glorie of this world, which paſſeth away as a ſhadowe and commeth to nothing, and in the ende is but labour and ſorrowe, when we haue all that the world can affoord? But the ioyes and glorie of this paradiſe of God be endeleſſe and vnſpeakeable: Let vs therefore denie our ſelues, depend vpon Chriſt, and in all things keep faith and a good conſcience vnto the end. And thus much for the firſt Epiſtle.

V. 8. And vnto the Angel of the Church of the Smyrnians, write theſe things ſaith he that is the firſt and the laſt, which was dead and is aliue.

In this verſe and the reſt that followe to the twelfth, is laid downe the ſecond letter or Epiſtle of Chriſt to another Church of Aſia, called Smyrna. Before the Epiſtle Chriſt giues a ſecond particular commandement vnto Iohn; touching the writing hereof vnto this Church, in theſe words, And vnto the Angel of Church of the Smyrnians write: Which is prefixed to this Epiſtle, that this Church, and all other churches of God might be aſſured, that Iohn had ſufficient warrant and calling for the writing hereof. Which thing is neceſſarie to euery penman of the holy Ghoſt, that the Church need not to doubt of the authority of ſcripture, but receiue the ſame as the pure word of God.

The vſe.

Hence we may gather, that all ordinarie Miniſters of the Goſpel muſt haue warrant and calling for euery doctrine which they teach in Gods Church: for the Apoſtles, that were extraordinarie men, of more excellent gift, might doe nothing without warrant. Of the parts of this commandement we ſpake in the firſt verſe of this chapter.

The Epiſtle it ſelfe followeth, contayning three parts, a Preface, a Propoſition, and a Concluſion. The Preface containeth a preparation to the matter of the epiſtle, in theſe words: Theſe things ſaith he, that is the firſt and the laſt: which was dead, and is aliue. In this Preface he ſheweth in whoſe name this Epiſtle was written vnto this Church; namely, in Chriſts name: which he ſetteth downe for two cauſes. Firſt, to ſtirre vp the people in this Church to a religious attention, and a reuerent care of receiuing the things therein written, as the pure words of Chriſt Ieſus. Secondly, becauſe no commandement, in the matter of Gods worſhip and religion, is to be receiued from any creature, but from Chriſt alone. And therefore this Epiſtle concerning the true worſhip and religion of God, is propounded in his name alone. In this Preface Chriſt is deſcribed by two notable Arguments: Firſt, To be the firſt and the laſt: ſecondly, that he was dead but is aliue. The meaning of them both was ſhewed in the 17. and 18. verſes of the former chapter, whence they are borrowed. By the firſt, Chriſt would ſignifie, that he is euerliuing God, without beginning or ending, before all creatures, and after them. By the ſecond, that he is true man, and aſſumed mans nature to ſuffer death for our ſinnes, and roſe againe to liue for euer, and to giue to man eternall life.

In this deſcription two points of doctrine are expreſſed.

I. That Chriſt is a perſon, conſiſting of two natures, Godhead, and Manhood: He is the firſt and the laſt, and therefore God: He was dead, and is aliue, and therefore is true man. If any aske how one perſon can conſiſt of two natures? Anſ. As bodie and ſoule concurre to make one man: ſo the Godhead and manhood of Chriſt concurre to make one Chriſt; and therefore are vnited.

II. Doctr. Here is the foundation of all true comfort vnto Gods Church and people, in any miſerie or affliction. Which ſtandeth in two points: firſt, that Chriſt is able to helpe them in any miſerie; either by freeing them quite from it, or eaſing them in it, ſeeing he is God, the firſt and laſt. Secondly, that as he is able, ſo he is willing and readie to helpe them: for he is man, who tooke on him our nature, died for vs, and roſe againe vnto life, to giue to vs eternall life. This is the very ſcope and end for which Chriſt thus deſcribeth himſelfe to this Church that was in affliction. Here then we haue direction, where and whence to ſeeke for true comfort in any tribulation of this life: namely, we muſt haue recourſe to Chriſt, and in him conſider both his abilitie and his willingneſſe, to eaſe all his children in affliction. And by theſe we muſt arme our ſelues againſt deſpaire, and againſt immoderate griefe and ſorrow vnder the croſſe.

v. 9. I know thy workes, and tribulation, and pouertie, (but thou art rich) and I know the blaſphemie of them which ſay they are Iewes and are not, but are the Synagogue of Sathan.

Here beginneth the Propoſition of this Epiſtle, containing the matter and ſubſtance of the whole Epiſtle. This propoſition hath two parts: a commendation of this Church, and counſell how to behaue her ſelfe in the time to come. The commendation is in this 9. v. wherewithall are mingled ſome comforts vnto this Church, beeing in affliction.

I know thy workes. Theſe words were handled in the former Epiſtle. The meaning briefly is this: I know all thy dealings, and thy waies, I know the whole tenor of thy life; and I doe withall well like and approoue of them. Here Chriſt ſetteth downe an excellent propertie touching himſelfe: namely, that he ſeeth and knoweth all things whatſoeuer, nothing is hid from him: and that this Church might be reſolued hereof, he repeateth this vnto them; I know thy workes. Neither is it any vaine repetition, beeing indeede the ground of all true pietie, and ſincere obedience.

Wee therefore in all our affaires are here taught to labour to be fully reſolued in our conſciences, that Chriſt is with vs, and ſeeth vs, and knoweth the whole tenour of our wayes in thoughts, words, and deeds. Dauid had learned this, when as he ſaid, [a] Thou knoweſt my ſitting and my riſing, thou vnderſtandeſt my thoughts a farre off. Thou compaſſeſt my paths, and my lying downe, and art accuſtomed vnto all my waies: there is not a word in my tongue, but thou knoweſt it wholly. This perſwaſion is very neceſſarie: for it will mooue a man to make conſcience of euery thought, word, and action, and of his whole behauiour; but where this perſwaſion is wanting, there is no religion in the heart, nor good behauiour in the life. When this takes place, Religion beginneth and encreaſeth with it; ſo doth good conſcience and true obedience; for he that hath the Lord alwaies before him, wil not greatly fal, Pſal. 16. 8.

And tribulation. Marke here how workes, that is, a godly conuerſation, and tribulation goe together. Hence we learne, that God will haue tribulations ioyned with his grace; where he beſtowes his graces, there alſo he layeth tribulation; and that for weightie cauſes; as to humble them for their ſinnes paſt, to make triall of their faith and other graces, and to preuent in them ſinnes to come. The conſideration whereof muſt mooue all Gods children in this our Church to looke for ſome tribulation: for God hath beſtowed among vs plentie of his graces, with long peace, and many outward bleſſings: and his will is that trouble and affliaffliction ſhould accompany the ſame.

Further, Chriſt ſaying, I knowe thy tribulations, would hereby comfort this Church; as if he ſhould ſay, True it is thou art in great trouble, but it commeth not by chance; but by the ſpeciall prouidence of my father; and I doe know and regard the ſame. Pſal. 113. 6. 7. The raiſing vp of the poore & needie, is made a fruit of Gods beholding the things that are done vpon the earth. This is an excellent comfort for any church or people that be in affliction: for when they ſhall knowe, that beſide the hand of God threin, Chriſt Ieſus regardeth their ſorrowes; this muſt needes arme them with long-ſuffering and ioyfulneſſe. We in this Church (as hath beene ſhewed) may perſwade our ſelues, that God wil ſend tribulations among vs; now when they come, what ſhall we doe? Shall we ſinke vnder them? No, but we muſt now forecaſt to vſe the meanes whereby we may ſtay our hearts vnder the ſmart and burden of them; that is, by ſetling our hearts in this perſwaſion, that Chriſt ſeeth our affliction, and withall hath ſpeciall care to comfort or deliuer vs, as he ſeeth moſt for his glorie, and the good of our ſoules.

In the next words Chriſt ſetteth downe two kinds of tribulations in this Church, Pouertie, and Reproach: By Pouertie he meaneth want of temporall things, to maintaine this naturall life. Where obſerue ſundry things: I. that true religion and pietie will not free any from outward pouertie. The religion of this Church was excellent; and yet they were in want: and therefore let no man thinke, becauſe he is godly, he ſhal be rich, or not fal into pouerty. If it be ſaid: Godlineſſe hath the promiſe not onely of the life to come, but alſo of this life, that is, of earthly bleſſings and riches: I anſwer, it is true; but yet with difference: Eternall bleſſings onely are promiſed abſolutely; and temporall bleſſings with reſtraint, namely, if they ſerue for Gods glorie, and the good of his children: otherwiſe they muſt want as this Church did. II. The Lord would comfort this Church in her pouertie, by ſaying that he knewe it and regarded it. Where we ſee a meanes to comfort all thoſe that be in want of outward bleſſings: They muſt conſider, that Chriſt ſeeth and obſerueth their want whatſoeuer; and if they be his ſeruants, he will free them from it, ſo it be for his glory and the good of their ſoules; or els arme them with patience to beare it, if they pray vnto him. III. Chriſt here approoueth of works, where he acknowledgeth pouerty: ſo that good works and pouertie may ſtand together. And therefore good works doe not conſiſt onely in large almes, as the Church of Rome would haue it; though theſe haue due reward and praiſe in their place. But euery work of a mans lawfull calling, done in obedience to God, with an honeſt heart, from a good conſcience, and for Gods glorie, is a good worke, be the calling neuer ſo baſe. Thus may the ſhepheard praiſe God in his calling, as well as the magiſtrate or miniſter. For it is not the matter of the worke that commends it to God, but the manner of doing.

1. Tim. 4. 8.

But thou art rich. Here Chtiſt intendeth both to praiſe and to comfort this Church: as if he ſhould ſay, Notwithſtanding thy outward pouertie, yet thou art rich in God, as Luke 12. 21. Men are rich in God in two reſpects: I. when they are reconciled to God in the merits of Chriſt, 2. Cor. 8. 9. Chriſt became poore for our ſakes, that we through his pouertie might be made rich: that is, that we might haue the pardon of ſinne, and be receiued into Gods fauour. Hereupon Dauid calls the Lord his portion and his cup. And durable riches, and righteouſneſſe are with wiſedome, Prou. 8. 18. II. When they receiue his grace, whereby they are enabled to bring forth good works, both in duties to God and man. Of this Paul ſpeaketh when he exhorteth rich men to be rich in good works, and to lay vp for themſelues a good foundation againſt the time to come, 1. Tim. 6. 16.

In this commendation ſundry duties are to be learned: I. poore men are here taught, ſeeing God denieth vnto them earthly riches and wealth, to labour to be rich in God, to be reconciled vnto him in Chriſt, and to get ſuch grace, that they may doe good duties both vnto God and man, in faith and with a good conſcience. II. Rich men, on whom God beſtoweth outward wealth, muſt hereby be admoniſhed to embrace Pauls charge, 1. Tim. 6. 17. 18. Aboue all things ſeeke for true riches in the liuing God: and not ſuffer theſe outward bleſſings to puffe vp their minds; but vſe them as a meanes to make them rich in God, by getting Gods grace doing good works, and diſtributing to the poore. This admonition is moſt neceſſarie, for though the promiſes of Gods grace be not denied vnto the rich; yet ſure it is, riches doe choke the ſeede of grace in the heart, and hinder the care men ought to haue for ſpirituall riches. And hence it commeth, that more of the poorer ſort receiue and obey the goſpell then of the rich. III. Herein behold the madneſſe of the world. For the moſt mens greateſt labour and care is after worldly wealth and honour: neuer regarding the true treaſures of Gods grace which will commend them vnto God, when the other muſt periſh and the wicked owners thereof. Let vs therefore iudge as Chriſt doth of true riches, and accordingly labour to be rich in his ſight.

The ſecond part of their tribulation is the reproach and blaſphemie of their enemies, in theſe words: I know the blaſphemie of them which ſay they are Iewes, and are not, &c. that is, I knowe the grieuous ſlanders and reuilings which thine enemis faſten vpon thee. For blaſphemie ſignifieth not only ſpeeches of diſgrace againſt God, but againſt men: As Naboth was accuſed, 1. Kings 21. 10. to haue blaſphemed God and the king. And of this Paul ſaith, When we are reuiled, we bleſſe: when we are blaſphemed, we pray, 1.Cor. 4.12.13.

Hence we learne, that all Churches and men that deſire truly to ſerue God, and to keepe good conſciences, muſt looke for ſlaunders and reuilings. Neither muſt this ſeeme ſtrange vnto them; for Chriſt hath ſaid, it muſt be ſo. Nay, rather they might maruell, if they ſhould ſuffer no reproaches for Chriſts ſake, ſeeing he hath ſaid; Curſed are you, when all men ſpeake well of you, Luk. 6.26. It is indeed a grieuous thing, to be ſo euill rewarded for well doing; but this muſt be their comfort, and ground of patience, That Chriſt heareth and knoweth euerie reproach, and will in his good time remedie the ſame.

The perſons which blaſpheme this Church are thus deſcribed: Which ſay they be Iewes, and are not, but are of the Synagogue of Sathan. As in other famous cities, ſo in Smyrna dwelt ſome of the Iewes, who had their Synagogue, that is, ſuch places of aſſemblies, where they ſerued God after their manner: and though they denied Chriſt, yet they thought themſelues to bee the onely true worſhippers of God in all the world; and therefore did blaſpheme and rayle vpon the Chriſtians that beleeued in Chriſt. And of theſe Chriſt ſaith, though by birth they were Iewes, yet indeed they were not the Iſrael of God, nor his true worſhippers, as they accounted themſelues. Whereby in generall we may ſee, from whome come raylings and reproches on Gods ſeruants; namely, from thoſe which ſay they are true worſhippers of God, and are not; For he is not a Iew, that is one outward, Rom. 2.18. He therefore that ſlandereth the truth, and the profeſſors thereof, is an enemie to Chriſt, as well as to his ſeruants: for no friend of Chriſt can poſſibly ſpeake euill of his Goſpel and religion. This ſhould be conſidered for the comfort of the godly, becauſe they that endeuour to ſerue God in ſinceritie, are of all men moſt ſubiect to reproch: Hee that refraineth from euill, maketh himſelfe a prey, Iſay 59. 15.

Touching theſe Iewes, two points are to be conſidered: I. What they are in their owne opinion: II. What they are in the iudgement of Chriſt. For the firſt, becauſe they were Iewes, by birth deſcending from Abraham, Iſaac, and Iacob, Gods auncient ſeruants, therefore they thought themſelues the onely true worſhippers of God, as their forefathers were. And this is the manner of all wicked men; to bleſſe themſelues in their wickedneſſe, and whatſoeuer they do, yet ſtill to ſay & think, God will bleſſe them. Take an hereticke, who ouerthrowes the truth of God by his errours, and hee will ſay he teacheth that which in conſcience he is perſwaded is the truth, for which he will ſhed his blood, and whereto he would haue all men yeeld. So take a profeſſed witch, man or woman, they will ſay, all that they doe is by the power of the good Angels, and by ſome ſpecial gifts giuen vnto them aboue others; but they will not be brought to acknowledge, that they doe any thing by vertue of their league with the deuill, from whence indeed commeth all they doe. And ſo the carnall Proteſtants of our time, they looke for Gods bleſſings in this life, and for eternall life by Chriſt after death, and yet walke in the broad way to deſtruction, in ſinne and profaneneſſe. Thus they bleſſe themſelues in their euill wayes, and make Chriſt a packhorſe for their iniquities. But in the example of theſe Iewes wee muſt learne to lay downe all preſumptuous thoughts of our owne goodneſſe, and vaine perſwaſions of Gods fauour, without his true grace, and rather looke vnto our ſinnes, and be humbled for them, that God may lift vs vp. II. Point. Chriſts iudgement of them is this; They are not Iewes, but a Synagogue of Sathan; that is, a company of men that ſeemed to ſerue God after the Iewiſh manner, but did indeede worſhip the deuill. Herein are many things to bee conſidered. I. How this could be true of any company of the Iewes, who were the choſen people of God? Anſ. Election is twofold: ſpeciall, and generall. Gods ſpeciall election is, when in his eternall counſell hee chuſeth a man to life eternall; and this befell not all the Iewes, but ſome onely: Gods generall election is, when hee vouchſafeth any people to become his viſible Church, to haue and carry the outward ſignes and priuiledges of his couenant: and thus was the nation of the Iewes elect, and therefore were circumciſed, and receiued the paſſeouer. From this generall election, a Church and people may fal, as the Iewes did, and ſo became the Synagogue of Sathan; beeing indeed neuer within the particular calling, from which a man cannot fall away: for Gods election remaineth ſure, 2.Tim. 2.19. His calling is without repentance, Rom. 11.29.

Pſal. 10.3.

Rom. 7.

II. Point. At what time did the Iewes begin to be a Synagogue of Sathan? Anſ. Not at the crucifying of the Lord of life, (though that were a moſt hainous ſinne) for though ſome therein ſinned of malice, yet many did it of ignorance. This Peter confeſſeth, Act. 3.17. and therefore in his firſt Sermon after Chriſts aſcenſion telleth them, that the promiſe belonged to them and to their ſeed that were a far off, Act. 2.39. But when the Apoſtles had a long time preached Chriſt vnto them, and conuinced their conſciences out of the old Teſtament, that he was the true Meſſias, and yet they remained obſtinate, reiecting and perſecuting both them and their doctrine; then they ceaſed to be a Church of God, and became the Synagogue of Sathan; for this cauſe Paul and Barnabas ſhooke off the duſt of their feete againſt them, and turned to the Gentils. Whereby we ſee when a Church of God becommeth no Church, namely, not ſo ſoone as they hold an hereſie; for the Church of the Galatians held iuſtification by works, yet thereupon ceaſed not to be a Church; but when they embrace an hereſie againſt the foundation of religion, and be conuicted of it, not by priuate men, but by Apoſtolicall authoritie, or by publike iudiciall ſentence of the Church from the authoritie of Gods word.

Hence we may learne, firſt what we are to thinke and iudge of the church of the Papiſts, of the Libertines and Anabaptiſts, familie of Loue, and ſuch like: namely, that they are no chuches of God: for they hold hereſies againſt the foundation, which the Church long agone condemned by Apoſtolical and iudiciall authoritie. Againe, here we learne what to iudge of this our church of England: many there be that ſay we haue no Church among vs, becauſe ſome priuate men haue reprooued the ſame for ſome things that are amiſſe, and yet they are not reformed. But this is a fond and fooliſh reaſon: For firſt, the errour muſt be againſt the foundation, and yet that maketh not a Church to be no Church, vnleſſe it be obſtinately maintained after ſufficient reproofe and iudiciall conuiction by the word of God: But no ſuch thing can be affirmed of vs, and therefore we remaine the true Church of God.

III. Point. How became the Iewes a Synagogue of Sathan? Anſw. Through their vnbeleeſe: as is plainely prooued, Rom. 11. 20. Obiect. But they held the word of God and deſended the books of the old Teſtament, for which we are beholding vnto them. Anſw. Indeede they held the letter: but if we regard the true meaning of the Prophets, and the ſubiect of the old Teſtament, which is Ieſus Chriſt, that they raced out and denied. And ſo though they held the letter, yet worſhipping God out of Chriſt, they worſhipped an Idoll, and not that God which would giue vnto them eternall life: For out of Chriſt there is no ſaluation. And ſo we may ſay of the Church of Rome: though they holde the bookes of the Olde and Newe Teſtament, with the Creede of the Apoſtles, (whereupon ſome ſay we ought not to depart from them,) yet the truth is, that indeede they hold them not. The Chriſt of the Papiſts is but a fained Chriſt: for they take from him both his nature (eſpecially his humanitie) and his offices: and therefore we haue iuſt cauſe to ſeparate from them.

This example of the Iewes, that were once a moſt famous people, but are now become the Synagogue of Satan, muſt be ſet before our eies continually. For when all the world were reiected, they ſtood high in Gods fauour: but now for their vnbeleeſe they are caſt off from God, and are become the Synagogue of the deuill. Which muſt admoniſh vs, Not to be high minded, but to feare. Rom. 11. 20. For if God ſpared not the naturall branches, them that were his firſt choſen people, he will not ſpare vs that are but wilde oliues graffed into the true vine, We muſt therefore take heede of vnbeleeſe, and labour for true faith, which we muſt teſtifie by obedience in our liues and conuerſations.

v. 10. Feare none of thoſe things which thou ſhalt ſuffer: Behold, it ſhall come to paſſe that the deuill ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon that yee may be tried, and yee ſhall haue tribulation tenne dayes. Bee thou faithfull unto the death, and I will giue thee the crowne of life.

Here followeth the ſecond part of the propoſition of this Epiſtle, to wit, that heauenly and ſpirituall counſell which Chriſt giueth to this Church of Smyrna; which I call counſell, becauſe in the next chapter our Sauiour Chriſt calleth ſuch kind of inſtruction, by the name of counſell. Firſt, here note that Chriſt commendeth this Church, and giueth her counſell, but doth not at all rebuke her for her faults, as he did the Church of Epheſus. Hence the Papiſts gather, that Gods Church, and ſo the members thereof, may liue without ſinne, and fulfill the law. But they are deceiued: Chriſt therefore abſtaineth from reproofe of this Church, not for that he had not any thing againſt them, but for theſe two cauſes eſpecially. Firſt, becauſe this Church of Smyrna did truly repent and beleeue, and did not decay in grace as the Church of Epheſus did; and therefore had the pardon of her ſinnes, and was in Gods loue and fauour. Secondly, this Church did indeuour to obey Chriſt, and to teſtifie her faith and loue thereby. Now God accepteth the deſire and will of obedience in his children, as obedience it ſelfe: and therefore did not reprooue them for any fault that was among them.

Seeing this Church beeing in affliction is ſo farre forth accepted, that Chriſt reprooueth nothing in her, we are taught, it is profitable for Gods Church and people ſometime to bee in affliction: for thereby are the gifts and graces of God preſerued, as Faith and Repentance; and many grieuous ſinnes preuented, which otherwiſe Gods children might fall into.

The counſell it ſelfe containeth three parts. A precept. A propheſie. And a precept againe. The firſt precept is in theſe words, Feare none of theſe things which thou ſhalt ſuffer. This precept may ſeeme to bee againſt other places of Scripture, as Phil. 2. 12. Worke out your ſaluation in feare and trembling. And Rom. 11. 20. Bee not high minded, but feare. Anſw. There bee three kinds of feare. I. naturall feare. II. feare proceeding from grace. III. a diſtruſtfull feare proceeding from vnbeleeſe. The naturall feare is a declining and eſchewing of death and thoſe things that tend thereto: this feare is in all men, in as much as euery thing deſireth to preſerue it ſelf: this was in Chriſt, who in his agony feared death, as it was a ſeperation of ſoule and bodie aſunder: yet this was no ſinne in him, but onely an infirmitie without ſinne. The ſecond kind of feare, is that which commeth from grace, Mal. 1.6. If I be a father, where is mine honour: If I be a maſter where is my feare. This feare is a reuerent awe towards God in regard of his mercie and iudgements: and this is a vertue and no ſinne. The third is diſtruſtfull feare; when men for affliction forſake religion and obedience to God, ſtanding more in feare of men then of God: and this is that feare which Chriſt in this place forbiddeth, beeing a ſinne that draweth men from God vnto perdition.

In this commaundement Chriſt doth two things. Firſt, hee giueth them and vs to vnderſtand, what is the ſinne in which euery man is conceiued, and the ſeed whereof remaineth ſtil in the children of God; namely, diſtruſtfull vnbeleefe, whereby men feare the authoritie of the creature more then the glorious maieſtie of the eternall God: which proceedeth from this, that men conſider not of God as he extendeth his prouidence ouer all things, and as he is a mightie iudge taking reuenge vpon all ſinne and wickedneſſe.

Secondly, here Chriſt deſcribeth the meanes whereby Gods people may arme themſelues againſt all perils and troubles whatſoeuer, to wit, Chriſtian fortitude: which is a gift of God proceeding from true faith, inabling a man to lay aſide all feare, and with courage to vndergo all dangers whatſoeuer, that he may in life and death maintain faith & a good conſcience. This vertue God preſcribed to the Prophets when they were to enter into their calling, & our Sauiour Chriſt to his Apoſtles, and to this Church of Smyrna. And it were to bee wiſhed, that all the miniſters of the Goſpel might ſpeake vnto their people as Chriſt ſpeaketh vnto this Church, Feare not. But the truth is, if they deale faithfully they muſt change their note, & ſay with Ioel, [a] Wale and houle yee prieſts and people, lying in ſackcloth and aſhes, becauſe the day of the Lords vengeance is at hand. For it is lamentable to ſee the ſtate of the whole bodie of our people, of whome we may generally ſay with the Prophet, [b] There is no knowledge of God in the Land. And where knowledge is, there is little conſcience to liue thereafter. Conſider alſo how the moſt are carnall minded, dead in ſinne, they ſauour not the things that pertaine to Gods kingdome, but their hearts are wholly poſſeſſed with earthly deſires and delights, and ſpirituall things affect them not. Yea in all places wee ſhall ſee that as naturall ſleep wrappeth vp the ſenſes of the bodie: ſo a ſpirituall ſlumber benummeth their minds and hearts. For though God preach daily vnto vs A by his iudgements, yet like the olde world wee know nothing of the euill day; we neuer call to mind the iudgement to come. And if hereunto we ioyne the common crying ſinnes of this land, as ſwearing, curſing, oppreſſion, ſaboath-breaking, drunkenneſſe, whooredome, and all vncleanneſſe, yea Atheiſme it ſelfe the ground of all; How can we ſay with Chriſt, Feare not? yea rather we muſt cal men to repentance in ſackcloath and aſhes. For God is iealous for his glorie, neither will he alway bee chiding, nor winke at our iniquities, he hath whet his ſword, and bent his bow, and vnleſſe we repent, the day of hauock wil come ſhortly, wherein he will take vengeance vpon all our iniquites. And although this be the common B ſtate of our land, yet Chriſt hath his remnant among vs who mourne for the ſinnes and abhominations of the times, and doe endeuour to keepe faith and a good conſcience in all things: and to theſe it may be ſaid, Feare not, but take to your ſelues chriſtian courage, and arme your ſelues therewith; lay aſide all diſtruſtfull feare, and glorifie God in your hearts, ſtriue to keepe the faith in a pure conſcience vnto the end, and ſo ſhall Chriſt appeare to your ioy, when the wicked ſhall be aſhamed. And to mooue Gods children to this Chriſtian fortitude; firſt, let them conſider what a iudgement of God is due vnto them that are diſtruſtfully fearefull, when they ſhould ſuffer any thing for the name of Chriſt, Reuel. 21.8. They muſt haue their reward in the C lake that burneth with fire and brimſtone among the damned. Secondly, let thē obſerue the Lords preſence and his gracious promiſe of protection in diſtreſſe, Hee will cauſe his Angels to pitch their tents about them, that no perill ſhall hurt them. 2. King. 6. when a mightie armie came againſt Eliſha, his ſeruant was ſore afraid: but marke how he comforted him, [a] Feare not (ſaith he) for they that be with vs are more then they that be with them: And ſo it is with Gods children. Thirdly, let them conſider that it is a moſt honorable eſtate to ſuffer any thing for the name of Chriſt. And therefore the Apoſtles reioyced exceedingly when they had bin beaten, D That they were counted worthy to ſuffer any thing for Chriſts ſake. Gal. 5. 14. The croſſe of Chriſt is Pauls whole reioycing. And if hee would boaſt of any thing, it ſhould be herein, 2. Cor. 12. 9. 10. Thus were Gods ſeruants affected; and therefore they that repent and beleeue, neede not to feare what fleſh can do vnto them.

Act.5.41.

The ſecond part of Chriſts counſell is his propheſie: which is a prediction of that particular affliction which this Church of Smyrna ſhould ſuffer: and firſt he prefixeth this note of attention, behold: then hee ſetteth downe the propheſie it ſelfe, The deuill ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon. Behold, hereby he would teach vs an excellent leſſon: that we muſt often conſider before hand of the day of our viſitation, wherein God wil try vs, leaſt we periſh therein:

our

A our Sauiour Chriſt comming towards Ieruſalem [b] wept ouer it, and when he came to it he foretold the finall deſtruction of that citie: which therefore came vpon them, becauſe they conſidered not the day of their viſitation, neither the things therein foretold that did concerne their peace. And the like deſtruction will come vpon vs in this land, if we conſider not the daies of our viſitation: let vs therefore now in the dayes of peace forecaſt what is to come, and prepare our ſelues againſt the day of the Lords triall; and ſo ſhall we eſcape the fearefull and finall deſtruction that ſhall come vpon the wicked. It ſhall come to paſſe that the deuill ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon, that yee may be tried: and yee ſhall haue tribulation ten daies. B Theſe words contain Chriſts propheſie; wherein hee ſheweth himſelfe to be true God: for as Iſay in many places ſheweth, it is a propertie of God alone to [c] foretell a particular affliction that is contingent. But ſome will ſay, others can foretell certain things to come: as the Phiſition, the ſick mans death; and the Aſtronomer the time of the eclyps; how then is this proper to God? Anſw. The Phyſition foretelleth the ſicke mans death, only by vertue of cauſes preſent, in which the future death is to him apparant: And the Aſtronomer foretelleth the eclyps by the conſideration of the naturall and ordinarie courſe of the heauens in preſent, C and by that can come to foretell it in time to come. So that ſimply none can foretell a thing contingent, except hee ſee it preſent in the cauſes; but Chriſt foretelleth things to come ſimply of himſelfe, though no cauſe be preſent, as appeareth in this place.

b Luk.19.41.

c Iſa.44.7.

In this propheſie Chriſt deſcribeth this affliction by ſundry arguments. Firſt by the cauſe thereof, which is the deuill. Secondly, by the parties that were to be afflicted, Some of you of the church of Smyrna: Thirdly, by the kind of puniſhment, Impriſonment. Fourthly, by the end thereof, their triall. And fiftly by the time of its continuance, for ten dayes.

I, Argument. The cauſe of their affliction is the deuill. Queſt. How can that be, for beeing D a ſpirit he cannot offer violence to mens bodies to caſt them into priſon? Anſw. True, but he is the God of the world that ruleth in the hearts of the wicked; he inclineth their wils to hate Gods children, hee ſtirreth them vp to perſecute, and maketh them his inſtruments to caſt Gods ſeruants into priſon.

In this that the deuill cauſeth the afflictions of Gods Church, we may learne ſundry points. I. What manner of men thoſe bee that perſecute the Church of God? namely, wicked men, ſuch as are inſpired by Sathan, and wholly guided in minde, will, and in affection by him: this made Paul ſay, [a] He was the head of all ſinners: becauſe in perſecuting the Church of God hee was guided by the deuill, and made his miniſter: which muſt teach vs to take heed how we perſecute the Church of God, or any member thereof, either in word or deed: for he that doth ſo is the vaſſall of Sathan in that action, and while he holdeth that courſe, he ſheweth himſelfe to bee no better then one that is wholly guided by the deuill: for the deuill is the principal agent in perſecutions, and wicked men be his inſtruments.

II. Hereby we are taught to take pitie vpon all perſecutors, be they kings or monarchs, or whatſoeuer. Yea we muſt pray for them, though they be our enemies: becauſe they are poſſeſſed and guided by the deuill, and in their perſecutions doe his will, and become his ſeruants and vaſſals.

III. Here we learne with what weapons we are to defend our ſelues in time of perſecution: namely, with ſpirituall weapons of praiers, and inuocation, wherein we muſt ſhew our faith in Chriſt, our repentance and true obedience; for our principall aduerſarie is a ſpirit, and hereby we ſhall beſt defend our ſelues againſt him, and get the chiefeſt victorie. Elias for his prayer is called [b] The Chariot and horſemen of Iſrael. Nothing doth ſo much preuaile in troubles and perſecutions, as prayer from a penitent and beleeuing heart. And if God ſhould ſend a forrain nation againſt vs, howſoeuer the weapons of the ſouldier muſt be vſed, yet our principall weapons muſt be praier and faſting: for thereby we ſhall ſooneſt foile our principall aduerſarie Sathan, who feareth not the ſpeare nor ſword, and yet will flie before theſe ſpirituall weapons.

b 2.King 2.12.

II. Argument. The parties that muſt be afflicted, were ſome of the Church of Smyrna, not all.

III. Argu. The kind of their affliction was impriſonment.

IV. Argu. The ende of their affliction, was the triall of their faith, hope, loue, and patience, with other graces of God, and the manifeſtation of the ſame, firſt to their owne conſcience, and then vnto the world. In theſe three arguments note firſt a ſpeciall point touching Gods prouidence, to wit, that it is the firſt cauſe of all, aboue all cauſes ruling and diſpoſing them all. God in gouerning the world by his prouidence vſeth inſtruments of two ſorts: good, or euill. The good inſtruments are good Angels, and regenerate men; by whom commeth no diſorder, for God worketh both in them and by them. Wicked inſtruments, are the deuill and wicked men; and though God vſe them well, yet from them is much diſorder and ſinne: for he worketh not in them, but onely by them, permitting their ſinnes and diſorders, that thereby he may ſhew forth his iuſtice, mercie, and power: which herein do notably appeare in vſing theſe inſtruments, which be euil in themſelues, that notwithſtanding their malice he cauſeth wonderfull order: firſt by his prouidence he reſtraineth their fury and rage, ſo as they cannot ſhew it to the full as they deſire. See this in the deuills perſecution againſt this Church: he can-

cannot kill the members hereof, but onely caſt them into priſon: he cannot impriſon them all, but ſome onely: neither can he keepe them in priſon alwaies, but for a ſhort time. Secondly, by his prouidence he turneth all that they doe, to the good of the Church: the deuill afflicteth the Church for the deſtruction and damnation of their ſoules; but God turneth it to their good, to make their faith manifeſt, and to preuent many ſinnes in them. Theſe things we ſhould often thinke of, and bleſſe Gods name for euer, that by his prouidence he doth maſter Sathans power and malice: and ſo diſpoſe of all actions of the wicked, that they tend to the good of his Church. This muſt alſo teach vs to renounce our ſelues, and to put all our truſt and confidence in Chriſt his prouidence, making that our comfort, our ſtay and protection in all diſtreſſe.

Againe, whereas the end of afflictions in Gods Church is the triall of faith and other graces, hence we are taught many things: Firſt, to labour to haue in our hearts the power of godlineſſe in true faith and vnfained repentance; and not content our ſelues with the forme and ſhew thereof in a naked profeſſion only: For we muſt be caſt into the fierie triall of afflictions, to ſee what is in our hearts. In the day of triall ſhewes will not ſerue the turne, nor ſtand vs in ſteed: Trials and afflictions will conſume them, as the fire doth droſſe and ſtubble. Secondly, to be ioyfull and glad, when the Lords will is to call vs to ſuffer for his ſake: Becauſe this is a meanes to make knowne good graces in our hearts. Iam. 1. 2. Brethren, count it exceeding great ioy, when yee fall into diuers afflictions, knowing that the tryall of your faith bringeth forth patience.

V. Argument. The time of their continuance in affliction is for tenne daies. By which ſome vnderſtand a long time: according vnto that which Iacob ſaith to Laban; Thou haſt changed my wages tenne times, that is, often. And ſo the Iſraelites are ſaid to ſinne, [a] tenne times againſt the Lord; that is, many times; but this expoſition will not ſo fitly ſtand in this place; for Chriſt intendeth to comfort this Church. But what comfort could this be, to ſay they ſhould be ſo long in affliction? Others expound tenne dayes to be tenne yeares. And ſo the word daies is ſometime vſed to betoken yeares; for in the Scripture there be yeares of daies, as well as yeares of weekes. But though this expoſition may well ſtand with the words, yet none can ſhewe by true record, That this Church was afflicted onley for tenne yeares and no longer. Therefore a third expoſition is this, That by tenne daies is meant ſome ſhort ſpace of time; and ſo I vnderſtand this place, becauſe it is moſt ſutable to all circumſtances. For here Chriſt intendeth to comfort this Church, which is moſt fitly done, by foretelling a ſhort time of their affliction.

[a] Numb. 14. 22.

In this circumſtance of time, Chriſt ſetteth downe two things; Firſt, that the afflictions of Gods Church & people are for a certaine time decreed of God, which cannot be changed, lengthened, or ſhortened. Particular proofes hereof we haue in Scripture. So God foretold Abraham, That the afflictions of his people ſhould be 430. yeares: which time they were afflicted, eſpecially in Egypt: but at the ſame night when thoſe yeares were expired, they were led out of Egypt, and their afflictions ceaſed, Exod. 12. 46. And the 70. yeares captiuitie were well knowne vnto Daniel to be determined of the Lord: And therefore hee armed himſelfe with patience during that time, and prayed not for deliuerance, vntill it ſhould be expired.

The conſideration hereof muſt mooue vs to arme our ſelues with patience when God ſhall ſend affliction, becauſe we cannot deliuer our ſelues before the time which god hath appointed: for the continuance of our afflictions is ſet downe by God, and cannot be changed by vs. Secondly, here Chriſt ſheweth, that the afflictions of his Church are but for a ſhort time: and therefore Paul [a] calleth them momentanie, in regard of the eternall weight of glorie which ſhall be reuealed at the end of this life, and neuer haue ende. Which is a ſingular ground of comfort vnto the childe of God in any diſtreſſe.

Thus we ſee the parts of this propheſie; yet in the words there is a further thing intended, for euery word containeth a reaſon to comfort this Church: as firſt from the cauſe of their perſecution, which is the deuill; and therefore they muſt not feare, for if he caſt them into priſon, their caſe is good, he is Gods enemie, and ſo the Lord is on their ſide, who then can be againſt them to doe them hurt? Secondly, not all your whole Church, but onely ſome (ſaith Chriſt) muſt be afflicted. Thirdly, Sathan cannot kill you, but onely caſt you into priſon. Fourthly, his impriſonment ſhall not tend to your damnation, but make for the triall of your grace. And laſtly, it is but for a ſhort time. In all which you may ſee the power of Gods prouidence ouerruling your enemie, and turning his rage vnto your ſaluation; and therefore take comfort and courage vnto your ſoules, lay aſide all feare and all dread, and keepe faith and good conſcience to the end.

The third part of this counſel, is a moſt bleſſed precept, containing moſt heauenly aduice: Bee thou faithfull vnto death, and I will giue thee the crowne of life. Gods ſeruants are called faithfull, in regard of their fidelitie which they owe to God, and that is in two reſpects: I. Euery member of Chriſt is baptized, wherein God for his part promiſeth Chriſt, with life euerlaſting: and the partie baptized promiſeth vnto God againe, that he will denie himſelfe, and caſt himſelfe wholly vpon God in life and death, and keepe faith and a good conſcience. Which promiſe is called the ſtipula- tion of a good conſcience, 1. Pet. 3.21. And when a man keepeth this promiſe made to God, then is he faithfull, and when he breaketh it, he is vnfaithfull. II. God giueth vnto his children many good gifts and graces, as knowledge, faith, repentance, and care to keepe a good conſcience, which he would haue them in all things to keepe and preſerue. And therefore Paul biddeth Timothie, [a] keepe that thing which is committed vnto him of truſt. Now a man is faithfull vnto God, when he maketh good vſe of the gifts and graces of God, and ſtill preſerueth the ſame, vſing them for Gods glorie, and the good of his owne ſoule, and of his brethren: like as we are counted faithfull with men, when we keep that thing ſafe which is committed vnto vs of truſt. The meaning then of Chriſt is this: Thou haſt made a promiſe vnto me in baptiſme, to renounce ſinne and Sathan, and to keepe faith and a good conſcience vnto death; therefore performe this thy promiſe: and for thoſe gifts which I haue committed of truſt vnto thee, ſee thou keepe them well, and vſe them to my glorie in the good of thy brethren.

[a] 1. Tim. 6. 10.

Againſt this precept, three ſorts of men offend, and be vnfaithfull vnto God. I. Thoſe that beeing baptized, doe yet liue in ignorance and ſecuritie, neuer ſeeking to know God, or to vnderſtand his will, no not ſo much as for their owne vowe in baptiſme; although none will brag more of fidelitie vnto God, then theſe men doe. II. Thoſe that haue knowledge and vnderſtanding in Gods will, and yet make no conſcience to liue accordingly. III. Thoſe that for a time ſhewe forth many good things, as care to get knowledge, and to keepe faith and a good conſcience, but after ſuffer themſelues to be intangled and drawne away with the profits and pleaſures of the world, or elſe to be driuen backe by trialls and perſecution. And of theſe three ſorts be moſt men generally: whoſe caſe is fearefull and dangerous, for they ſhall neuer haue the crowne of life, if they continue thus vnfaithfull.

To induce men to fidelitie, Chriſt addeth a moſt forcible reaſon: promiſing thereunto, The crowne of eternall life. Hence the Papiſts conclude, that Martyrs by ſuffering martyrdome, doe merit the kingdome of heauen; becauſe it is called a crowne, therefore ſay they it is a reward. Whereunto I anſwer two waies: I. The kingdome of heauen is called a crowne onely in reſemblance, becauſe as with men after the race is run, they receiue the garland; euen ſo after men haue fought the good fight of faith, and kept good conſcience in this life, then in the life to come they receiue the crowne of glory. For the keeping of faith and good conſcience is not the cauſe, but the antecedent of eternall life. Secondly, the reward is promiſed not to the martyrdome, but to the martyr; and yet not for his ſufferings, but becauſe he is a member of Chriſt, and by ſuffring death A hath ſhewed his faith in Chriſt; for whoſe merit alone hee is ſo rewarded. And ſo muſt this, and all other promiſes of like ſort be vnderſtood: for the Papiſts doe foulely erre, when they apply the promiſes vnto the workes, which are made vnto the workers. By this promiſe, we all that haue made our vow to God in baptiſme, muſt learne to become faithfull in keeping the ſame vnto the end. It is a ſhame for a man to bee vnfaithfull vnto men, much more with God. And the more fearefull is this ſinne, becauſe onely the faithfull ſhall inherite eternall life. Secondly, all ſuch as haue made a ſhew of good things heretofore, and now doe ſuffer the ſame to decay, muſt cal to mind from whence they are fallen, and become faithfull B keepers of the graces of God, holding faſt true religion and good conſcience, and walke conſtantly in obedience: and then ſhall they haue the crowne of life, though not for their deſerts, but onely for the merits of Chriſt.

V. 11. Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit ſaith vnto the Churches: he that ouercommeth ſhall not be hurt of the ſecond death.

Theſe words containe the laſt part of this Epiſtle: namely, the Concluſion. Wherein ob- C ſerue generally, as alſo in the two next verſes, that Chriſt repeateth the ſame things which he ſpake before in this and the former chapter, yea, in the very ſame words. This muſt be conſidered, becauſe it is done by Chriſt, who is the doctor of his Church; whoſe example both for matter and manner of teaching muſt bee our rule and precept. The like did the Apoſtles: It grieued not Paul to write the ſame things, Phil. 3.1. And Peter ſaith vnto the diſperſed church, [a] That hee will often put them in minde of the ſame things before his departing, wherein they had knowledge and were eſtabliſhed. Hereby all miniſters of the Goſpel in their miniſterie haue D warrant, often to teach and repeat the ſame points of doctrine, euen in the ſame words. Yea, Gods faithfull Miniſter may preach the ſame Sermon oftentimes, if he doe it not for eaſe to himſelfe, but for the benefit of the people. And therefore if any hearer of Gods word ſhall at any time marke the miniſter to deliuer the ſame things often; he is not curiouſly to finde fault with his miniſterie, for by that reaſon they may find fault with Chriſt, who ſeuen times repeateth the ſame things vnto theſe Churches.

[a] 2. Pet. 1. 12.

This Concluſion hath two parts: a Commaundement, and a Promiſe: The words of this commaundement haue beene expounded in the ſeauenth verſe, with the doctrines and vſes thereof; yet here is to be obſerued what the ſpirit commendeth thus ſeriouſly to our hearing. The things are three, which were handled

verſ. 11.

A in the former verſes. Firſt, touching Gods prouidence, that he ſeeth and regardeth the tribulations of his Church. The ſecond, touching triall, that Gods Church and people ought beforehand to conſider of the day of viſitation, and thereby arme themſelues with courage againſt all afflictions, that they ſuffer not themſelues to be ouermuch daunted with any feare. The third touching faithfulneſſe: Gods people muſt conſider what promiſes they haue made to God in baptiſme; namely, to keepe faith, true religion, and good conſcience vnto the end; and theſe they muſt performe vnto death. Theſe things being ſo carefully commended vnto vs by Chriſt, we muſt labour to haue them B engrauen in our hearts, that we may practiſe them in our liues. And to incite vs hereunto, wee muſt marke the two reaſons contained in the words. Firſt, becauſe the ſpirit of Chriſt ſpeaketh vnto vs. Secondly, becauſe they concerne all Churches, (though principally they were ſpoken to the Church of Smyrna) and therefore none may ſeeke excuſe to exempt himſelfe from learning and obeying theſe things.

The promiſe, He that ouercommeth ſhall not be hurt of the ſecond death. Of the meanes of ouercomming, we haue ſpoken in the ſeauenth verſe. By ſecond death is meant the condemnation of the ſoule and bodie for euer and euer. For there be two kinds of death mentioned in C Scripture: The firſt is the ſeperation of bodie and ſoule aſunder at the end of this life: The ſecond is, when ſoule and bodie both are ſeuered for euer from Gods comfortable preſence, Reu. 21. 8. This ſecond death is expounded to be an abode in the lake that burneth with fire and brimſtone. The meaning therefore of the promiſe is this; that they which ouercome, though they may ſuffer the firſt death, yet they ſhall neuer ſuffer damnation; their ſoule and bodie may be ſeuered one from the other for a time, but neither ſoule nor bodie ſhall euer be ſeuered from God, to goe into that lake that burneth with fire and brimſtone. Which is a moſt gracious and happy promiſe.

Here firſt marke to whome this promiſe is D made, namely, To them that ouercome. Where learne, that it is not ſufficient for a man to profeſſe and approoue, or to teach the doctrine of the Goſpell; but withall he muſt ioyne a fight againſt himſelfe, againſt ſinne, the world, the deuill, and againſt all the enemies of his ſaluation, and not ſuffer them to reigne ouer him, but ſo fight, as by Gods grace he may ouercome; and then ſhall the ſecond death neuer hurt him. It is nothing to profeſſe, if we ſtill liue in ſinne: and therefore we muſt not content our ſelues with knowledge, but labour to feele in our hearts ſuch power of grace, as will make vs truely to ſay we are conquerours ouer our ſpirituall enemies. This is that bleſſed ſtate of all thoſe, vnto whome life euerlaſting belongeth, who ſhall neuer taſte of the ſecond A death.

Secondly, here is anſwered a great queſtion, which euery mans conſcience will mooue vnto him; namely, How may I ſcape the ſecond death, that lake that burneth with fire and brimſtone? Anſw. Thou muſt in this life truely turne vnto God from all thine euill wayes, renounce thy ſelfe, and put all thine affiance in Chriſt his death and paſſion; and euermore labour to keepe true religion, faith, and good conſcience vnto death in all eſtates. This doe, and though thou taſt of the firſt, yet the ſecond death ſhall neuer touch thee.

Thirdly, hereby Chriſt giueth vs to vnderſtand, that of the two deaths the ſecond is the B worſer. The bodily death is terrible vnto nature; but the ſecond is the proper death indeed, the deſtruction of the creature in ſoule and bodie eternally. And yet behold the madneſſe of man, who feareth greatly the firſt death, and regardeth nothing the burning lake; like vnto little children that feare their owne ſhadowes, and yet are not afraid of fire and water, that will burne and drowne them. This is mans miſerable eſtate, through the blindneſſe of his minde, and the hardeneſſe of his heart.

V. 12. And to the Angel of the Church which is at Pergamus write, This ſaith C he, that hath that ſharpe ſword with two edges.

Here is the third particular commandement which Chriſt gaue to Iohn, whereof we haue ſpoken before in the firſt verſe: ſhewing there what is meant by Angell; and why this particular commandement was giuen vnto Iohn. This third Epiſtle of Chriſt, as the former, hath three parts: a Preface in this verſe. The propoſition of the Epiſtle, verſ. 13. and ſo forward vnto the 17. And the Concluſion in the 17. verſe.

I Part. The Preface ſheweth in whoſe name this Epiſtle is written; namely, in Chriſts name; The cauſes whereof we haue ſhewed before in D the firſt verſe. Chriſt is here ſet forth by an action of his Kingly office, borrowed from the former Chapter, verſe 16. Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſharp two edged ſword: that is, He who is not onely Prieſt and Prophet of his Church, but the king thereof, to guide and gouerne the ſame. The ſword which he hath in his hand, or in his mouth (as Iſay ſaith) is that two edged ſword, yea that ſharp two edged ſword: thereby is ſignified the whole word of God, the Law and Goſpel; which is ſo called, by reaſon of the operation thereof, as it is Heb. 4. 12.

Chriſt is thus deſcribed to comfort this Church of Pergamus. For hereby three things are ſignified: Firſt, his wonderfull power in ſlaying originall ſinne and corruption by his

A word, in all them that beleeue in him: ſo as there is no hope of recouerie for ſinne, after it is once wounded. Secondly, that he will ſtrengthen and preſerue his Church, and all the true members thereof, by the ſame word, againſt all their enemies. This it doth after this manner: The whole word of God both law and Goſpel, muſt be knowne, and beleeued; then whenſoeuer any temptation commeth, faith maketh the ſame word powerfull in vs, to repel the temptation, and to ſtrengthen vs in affliction: for it is that ſword of the ſpirit, whereby we wound all our enemies. But if it be not beleeued, it is but as a ſword in a ſheath, and will nothing helpe vs. Thirdly, hereby he ſignifieth that he B deſtroyeth all their enemies: this is the chiefe ende why he ſo deſcribeth himſelfe in this place. How Chriſt woundeth his enemies herewith, we haue ſhewed in the former Chapter, and the ſixteenth verſe, with the vſes thereof.

verſ. 13. I knowe thy workes, and where thou dwelleſt, euen where Sathans throne is: and thou keepeſt my Name, and haſt not de- C nied my faith, euen in thoſe dayes when Antipas my faithfull Martyr was ſlaine among you, where Sathan dwelleth.

Here beginneth the ſecond part of this Epiſtle; to wit, the Propoſition: which containeth two parts: A commendation of this Church, in this verſe; and a Reproofe, v. 14. 15. The commendation is twofold: Firſt, generall, in theſe words: I know thy works; then ſpeciall, in the words following, I know where thou dwelleſt, &c. Of the generall commendation D we haue ſpoken in the former Epiſtles v. 2. and 9. This yet muſt be obſerued, that Chriſt herewith beginneth the matter of all his epiſtles: intending no doubt, hereby to ſettle the perſwaſion of his preſence deepely in euery one of our hearts: for it is indeede the ground of the holy feare of God, which is the beginning of all true religion and godlineſſe. And here Chriſt giueth a preſident for his miniſters: namely, that the firſt thing they muſt teach their people, is to be perſwaded of this preſence of Chriſt; whereſoeuer they are Chriſt is with them, and whatſoeuer they doe he ſeeth them. This will cauſe them make conſcience of all their wayes, and it is impoſſible that any ſhould euer haue ſound knowledge or good conſcience, till he be perſwaded hereof: Abraham knewe well that in Abimelechs court they would make no conſcience of murther, becauſe they [a] wanted this feare of God: to feare God and keepe his commandements is the whole man: and therefore we ſhould giue all diligence hereunto. It is indeede a hard leſſon for vs to learne, and of our ſelues we cannot learne it: but if we vſe the meanes, Gods bleſſing will be vpon our endeauour, and then ſhall we haue knowledge vpon knowledge, and grace vpon grace, with the comfort of a good conſcience.

The particular commendation of this church is, for her conſtancie in maintaining the doctrine of the Goſpell, in theſe words, I knowe where thou dwelleſt, euen in a place where Sathans throne is, and yet for all that thou keepeſt my name: that is, thou holdeſt ſtill my true religion and doctrine. The throne of Satan is any place where ſuperſtition, idolatry, or profaneneſſe is maintained without controlement, and from whence wickedneſſe is conueied to other places. For the diuell is the God of the world, and he hath his thrones among men. Pergamus was a great citie of the Gentiles which maintained Idolatrie, and perſecuted the Goſpell, from whence alſo iniquity was deriued to other townes and places; therefore it is called the deuills throne.

Herein we may obſerue ſundry points of great importance. Firſt, the exceeding policie of Sathan: he hath his kingdome in this world: and for the eſtabliſhing thereof, he muſt haue his thrones where wickedneſſe and idolatrie is maintained without controlement, and whence ſinne is deriued to other places. In all ages it hath beene thus, and will continue ſo to the ende. In the olde world he had his thrones among Cains poſteritie: In the church of the Iewes, euen in the dayes of the Kings of Iſrael, the high places and groues, where the people ſacrificed to their idols, were the deuils throns; the oracles of the Gentiles where the deuills gaue anſwer vnto men, were his chiefe thrones: in the dayes of Poperie, euery church and chappell were thrones of Sathan, wherein were erected images and holy roods for the worſhip of Saints; whether the people came to worſhip from country to country. In moſt ſchooles of learning for many hundred yeares the deuill had his thrones; For therein was nothing taught but errours, hereſies, and moſt abhominable idolatries. In theſe our dayes the deuill hath his thrones among vs, where any wizzard dwelleth or cunning perſon (as they are called) for thither whole countries doe flocke for helpe and for counſell, and ſo yeeld homage to Sathan. All dicing, and all brothell houſes, wherein abhominable wickedneſſe is freely committed, are Sathans thrones. Yea all thoſe families are the deuills thrones, where men liue without loue or practiſe of religion, in blindeneſſe and ignorance, in blaſphemie, drunkenneſſe, whoredome, iniuſtice, or any ſuch impieties.

And in reaſon it muſt needes be thus, for the deuill beeing a prince of this world, will haue his throne in ſome parts thereof.

The vſe. Hereby we ſee it is moſt needefull in euery Chriſtian kingdome, there ſhould be thrones of iuſtice in ciuill courts, for the maintenance of equitie, the reward of vertue, and for the repreſſing of iniuſtice and iniquitie. And alſo thrones of Eccleſiaſticall iuriſdiction for the reprehending and puniſhing of all thoſe ſinnes which the ciuill court reacheth not vnto. And it is neceſſarie that in theſe thrones iuſtice ſhould be adminiſtred without partialitie, that Gods throne may be erected, which is oppoſite to the throne of Satan.

Againe, the deuills cunning appeares notably in the choiſe of the place where he ſetteth vp his throne: it was no pettie towne or village, but a chiefe and famous citie, which had beene the ſeate of many Kings. This hath beene his practiſe in all ages, to chuſe the chiefeſt places for the ſeate of his throne. Great Babylon in Scripture is called, A citie of iniquitie, that is, a throne of the deuill. And Rome that was once a famous Church, is now, and hath beene long that ſpirituall Babylon, the throne of the deuill. Yea, in Ieruſalem the citie of the great King, had the deuill got vp his throne, when Chriſt called the temple a den of theeues. And in our daies the people of great towns and cities are generally more backward in embracing the Goſpel, then in little villages. The cauſe hereof is, the malice of the deuill, who will haue his throne in chiefeſt places, for the greater hinderance of religion: there he much preuaileth by choaking the word with pride, profit, and pleaſures, cauſing them to content themſelues with a forme of godlineſſe, when as they want the power thereof. And thus he dealeth in greater townes, that thence impietie may be deriued to the countrey round about, as tradeſmen doe their wares from place to place. And therefore the people of great townes eſpecially, muſt labour not onely to know the Goſpel, but to beleeue and obey the ſame. Euery man muſt reforme himſelfe, and euery family themſelues, that Gods throne may be eſtabliſhed, and the deuills throne battered downe among them.

Secondly, whereas this Church dwelleth where the deuills throne is, we may obſerue, whence the Church of God is gathered, namely, out of Satans kingdome. Gods Church is a companie of men ordained to ſaluation, taken from vnder the power of the deuill: though after their calling they be Gods peculiar flocke, yet they are by nature the children of wrath. Thus Paul ſpeaketh of all the Gentiles, Act. 26. 18. And particularly of the Church of Coloſſa, Coloſſ. 1. 13. That God deliuered them from the power of darkeneſſe, and tranſlated them into the kingdome of his deare Sonne.

The vſe. Hence we learne, I. That no man is to ſtand vpon his gentilitie, or glorie in his parentage for nobilitie and great blood, but onely reioyce in this, that he is drawne out of the kingdome of darkeneſſe, and from vnder the power of Satan, and placed by Chriſt Ieſus in the kingdome of grace. For what will it profit a man to weare about his necke a chaine of gold, if ſo be his heart, will, and affections, be chained to the deuills ſeruice? and what auaileth it Princes to ſit vpon their ſtately thrones, if they themſelues be in ſubiection vnto Satan, and doe homage vnto his throne? yea, what will all the treaſures, honours, and pleaſures of the world auaile to him that is debarred from the riches of Gods loue in Chriſt, and deſtitute of the treaſures of his grace, and ſo led captiue by Satan at his will and pleaſure? Secondly, ſome doe thinke that a man may be ſaued by any religion, the Iew by his religion, the Turke by his, the Papiſt by his, &c. yea, it is the common receiued opinion of our ignorant people, that euery one ſhall be ſaued by his good meaning. But all theſe are meere dotages of mens braine: for a man may hold his good meaning, and yet ſerue the deuill at his throne. It is not ſufficient to hold this or that religion, or to practiſe ciuill vertues, as iuſtice, temperance, &c. vnleſſe a man be one of Gods Church, ſeuered from the companie of them that ſerue Satan. Thirdly, here all Gods ſeruants haue a notable meanes of ſtay and comfort in afflictions. If they be perſecuted, and caſt into moſt darke dungeons for the name of Chriſt, they muſt call to minde, that they are taken out of the deuills priſon in the kingdome of darkeneſſe, and placed in the glorious kingdome of Ieſus Chriſt, and made members of his Church, and ſhall be inheritours of his glorie. Fourthly, hence we learne, that the preaching of the Goſpel hath in it a diuine power: no creatures, except the good Angels, haue power comparable to the deuills: and yet the preaching of the Goſpel is ſtronger then all the power of Satan, for it gathereth a Church where the deuill hath his throne, it deliuers men from vnder the power of Satan, and placeth them in the glorious liberty of the ſonnes of God: although therefore it be preached by ſinnefull man, yet it muſt be reuerenced as the power of God, and his owne arme to ſaue his Elect. Fiftly, hence we gather that God will haue his people to dwell with wicked and vngodly men: for the Church of Pergamus dwelleth where Satans throne is. This he doth for good cauſes: I. That their faith, obedience, and repentance might be exerciſed, and they preſerued from many ſinnes which otherwiſe they ſhould fall into. Moſes telleth the Iſraelites, that the Cananites muſt not be all caſt out at their firſt entrance, but dwell among them, leaſt wilde beaſts did growe vp which would deuoure them: and ſo the wicked muſt dwell among the godly to exerciſe Gods graces in them, leaſt they fall into ſinne and ſecuritie. II. That they might ſhine forth as lights vnto the wicked by their vngodly conuerſation, Philip. 2. 15. That ye may be blameleſſe and pure, the ſonnes of God without rebuke in the middeſt of a naughtie and crooked nation, and among whom ye ſhine as lights in the world, holding forth the word of life. And thus the godly muſt doe, that by their vnblameable life, others might be wonne to the faith; for godly example is a notable meanes to drawe men to loue and embrace faith and true religion, 1. Pet. 3. 1. III. That God may ſhewe on the godly tokens of his ſpeciall loue and fauour: which he doth when he ſendeth iudgements vpon the wicked, and ſpareth his children. Hence it was, that when the Lord would bring a common iudgement vpon the Iewes, he cauſeth thoſe that mourned for their owne ſinnes, and for the abhominations of the people, [a] To be marked in the forehead, that they might be ſpared. So that if any godly perſon dwell among ſuch as hate religion, and be prophane, he muſt content himſelfe, knowing it is Gods will his church ſhould be vexed and troubled by the ſocieties of the wicked and vngodly. Sixtly, hence it appeareth that Gods people may lawfully dwell among wicked and vngodly men, alwaies remembring that they communitate not with them in their ſinnes and rebellions againſt God: For ſo Lot dwelt in Sodome, and this church of Pergamus where the deuill had his throne. 1. Cor. 7. 1. This queſtion is anſwered: a maſter is a heathen man, and his ſeruant is conuerted to the faith; whereupon he thinketh he is free from ſeruing his maſter: but Paul telleth him he muſt doe externall ſeruice ſtill, ſo farre forth as he keepe good conſcience, and be not conſtrained to renounce true religion. Laſtly, hence we haue direction to anſwer a queſtion much vrged againſt vs by the Papiſts, to wit, Where our Church was fourescore yeares ago, when Luther firſt began to preach: they intend hereby to prooue our church to be but of fourescore yeares continuance, and ſo our religion to be newe. We anſwere by the like, Where was the church of Pergamus, when the deuills throne was in that citie? Surely it was there where the deuill had his throne. And ſo when Antichriſt that man of ſinne, had ſpread poperie ouer all Europe, at that very time was Gods church in Europe where poperie was profeſſed, mingled with the Papiſts: which to be thus appeareth by this, that in all ages there haue beene ſome, who openly haue oppugned poperie, more or leſſe, partly by writing, and partly by ſpeaking, as the records of all ages doe teſtifie and make manifeſt: ſo that though iniquitie had the vpper hand, yet our church had his being in the midſt of poperie.

And thou keepeſt my name, That is, though thou dwell in a place where the deuill hath his throne, yet thou holdeſt faſt my name, ſo as neither force nor fraud of the aduerſarie can take my name from thee; ſo much the words import. By Chriſts name we muſt vnderſtand the doctrine of the Goſpell: ſo Paul is ſaid to be [b] A choſen veſſell to carrie Chriſts name among the Gentiles: That is, to publiſh among them the doctrine of the Goſpell.

2 Here this church of Pergamus is particularly commended for her conſtancie, in holding faſt true religion againſt all aduerſarie power whatſoeuer. Hence we learne that it is not ſufficient to teach, or know and beleeue the doctrine of the Goſpell in time of peace: but we muſt be conſtant in holding it faſt againſt all gainſayers, and not be turned about with euery winde of doctrine, but in life and death keepe ſure the truth, that neither fraud nor force of any aduerſarie power draw it from vs, or vs from it. Mat. 13. The kingdome of heauen is compared to a treaſure hid in the field, which when a man findeth, he goeth and ſelleth all he hath to buy the field. The ſcope of that parable is this. If any man ſhould come into any of our fields, and by ſearching finde a gold mine, he would not make it knowne to any, but couer it cloſe, and goe his way, and ſell all that he had to buy that field, that thereby he might inrich himſelfe: euen ſo hauing found this, that the goſpell reuealeth the way to life euerlaſting, though we muſt not conceale the ſame from others, yet we muſt be like this man herein, that wee could be content to part withall, that we haue, that ſo we might make the Goſpel ours, 1. Tim. 3. 9. Deacons muſt haue this propertie, To haue the miniſterie of faith in a pure conſcience. There a good conſcience is compared to a ſure treaſure houſe, which cannot be robbed by any aduerſarie power: and faith, that is, true religion is the treaſure there ſafely laid vp: ſuch a ſtore-houſe muſt we get for the preſeruation of the faith. Any thing elſe we may loſe, but if we part with true religion, ſaluation is gone and all is loſt. And therefore in life and death we muſt keepe faſt faith.

Further, Chriſt amplifieth the praiſe of their conſtancie by two arguments: Firſt, that they held Chriſts name without deniall: Secondly, that they kept the faith in the time of bloody perſecution. For the firſt in theſe words, And haſt not denied my faith. This is an excellent commendation; for many wil hold the doctrine of the goſpell for a time, and yet after denie the ſame by apoſtaſie: but this church held faſt true religion, without any reuolt at all. Their practiſe muſt we followe, and ſo hold faſt true religion, that therein we neuer make reuolt: for if we ſhall once denie religion, we knowe not whether God will giue vs the grace of repentance, that we may profeſſe it againe; which if he doe not, we periſh eternally. Conſider Eſaus example, who ſold his birthright for a meſſe of redde broth, and after loſt the bleſſing, which when he would haue recouered, he was reiected: [a] and found no place to repentance, though he ſought it with teares. Therefore to preuent the fearefull danger of not repenting after reuolt, we muſt ſtil hold faſt true reli-

Here in this place the faith of Chriſt, is all one with Chriſts name, that is, with the true doctrine of the Goſpel. And it is called Chriſts faith: Firſt, becauſe Chriſt with the Father and the Spirit, is the author thereof: Secondly, becauſe Chriſt reuealeth the ſame from the boſome of his Father: for God reuealeth his Goſpel vnto men by his ſonne Chriſt Ieſus: Thirdly, becauſe Chriſt is the ſubſtance and matter of the Goſpel: for indeede Chriſt Ieſus is the principall ſubiect of the whole Bible, beeing the ende of the Law, and the ſubſtance of the Goſpel.

The ſecond argument of their praiſe for conſtancie, is taken from the circumſtance of time; they held faſt true religion in the time of bloddy perſecution: Euen in thoſe daies (ſaith Chriſt) when Antipas my faithfull martyr was ſlaine among you where Satan dwelleth. Who this Antipas was, is not knowne, neither certenly recorded in any hiſtorie: it is thought he was the miniſter of this Church, who oppoſed himſelfe againſt idolatrie and gentiliſme in this citie of Pergamus.

In this argument note two points. I. That Chriſt commends Antipas, calling him his faithfull martyr. Whereby we ſee, that in Gods Church it is lawfull to honour Saints and martyrs. For that which Chriſt doth, his Church may doe. This their honour muſt ſtand in two things; In due deſerued praiſe and commendation, and in a carefull imitation of their good vertues and godly liues: and for this ende doth Chriſt commend Antipas vnto this Church, that they might follow his good conuerſation: but as for Popiſh honour of inuocation and adoration, it hath no ground in Gods word. Againe, in calling him faithfull martyr, he commendeth more the cauſe of his death, then the death; to ſhew that the cauſe maketh a martyr, not the death: For an heretike may be put to death for his damnable opinions. Therefore Antipas is a martyr, not becauſe he was ſlaine, but becauſe he was faithfull vnto death for the maintenance of Chriſts true religion.

II. Point. In the ende of the verſe Chriſt ſheweth who were the authors of Antipas his death; namely, ſuch among them in whome Satan ruled: for he was ſlaine (ſaith Chriſt) among you, where Satan dwelleth. Which words he repeateth, to giue vs to vnderſtand, that all perſecuters let them carie what face they will, are in truth ſuch, in whome the deuill ruleth, where he hath his hold, and keepes poſſeſſion. Queſt. Why did Satan more dwell there then in other places? Anſ. Becauſe many in this place were Gentiles, who contemned and mocked the Goſpel, & maintained idolatrie, whereby they became the holds of Satan. And by proportion we may gather, that all contemners of religion, and all that walke in their owne wicked waies, are indeede the ſtables and holds of the deuill, though they ſhould be the Temples of the holy Ghoſt. And ſo many families as there are, where religiō is mocked, Gods name blaſphemed, iniuſtice and impietie practiſed; ſo many holds of Satan there are where the deuill ruleth: and ſuch they continue till they reforme themſelues of their impieties, and embrace the Goſpel ſincerely. And therefore all maſters of families eſpecially ſhould loue the Goſpel, and ſee that in their families religion be taught, embraced, and obeyed, that ſo the deuill may haue no hold in their families. Queſt. Whether might not Antipas, beeing Paſtor of this Church, haue fled for the ſafetie of his life? Anſ. There be two kinds of perſecution, one that is directly intended againſt the Paſtor principally: the other againſt the whole Church equally. In the perſecution directed againſt the Paſtor, this muſt be conſidered, Whether God gaue him opportunitie and libertie to flie, or not: if God gaue him libertie and opportunitie, he may flie, and the Church is to aſſiſt him, & to vſe meanes for his preſeruation: but if God denie him meanes to eſcape, then he muſt iudge himſelfe to be called of god, to ſuffer death for his name; and ſo he may not flie. And ſuch was the cauſe of Antipas in this Church. But if the perſecution be directed againſt the whole Church equally, then the Paſtor may not flie, but take part in their ſufferings, that he may be a meanes to ſtay and comfort his brethren.

v.14. But I haue a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt there them that maintaine the doctrine of Balaam, which taught Balac to put a ſtumbling blocke before the children of Iſrael, that they ſhould eate of things ſacrificed vnto Idols, and commit fornication.

Here followeth the reproofe of this Church of Pergamus, which is firſt generally propounded in theſe words, I haue a few things againſt thee: Secondly, in particular, for want of zeale, in ſuffering among them ſuch as maintained the doctrine of Balaam. Thirdly, he ſetteth downe a reaſon or confirmation thereof in the ende of the 14.v. and in the 15.

The generall reproofe is the ſame which was giuen out againſt the Church of Epheſus, verſ. 4. Whereby he would teach vs a ſpeciall dutie: namely, that euery man muſt ſeriouſly conſider with himſelfe, what ſinnes he hath in him, which Chriſt may haue to lay vnto his charge. For this very cauſe doth Chriſt rehearſe it vnto this Church. And therefore wee muſt call our ſelues to reckoning, and examine our ſelues not by our owne wits, but by the rule of Gods word, and ſearch out all our thoughts, words, and actions; and ſee how many things Chriſt may haue againſt vs, that ſo making a forehand reckoning, and ſeeking to be cleared by true repentance, we may not be condemned for them at the laſt day: for if we would iudge our ſelues we ſhould not be iudged. This is a neceſſarie dutie, and the practiſe of it is the ground of all grace, and conſcionable obedience: as on the other ſide, the want hereof is the cauſe why many that liue in the Church doe periſh eternally. For a day of accounts will come, wherein we ſhall neuer eſcape, vnleſſe by a forehand reckoning in the practiſe of true repentance from dead works, and by faith in Chriſt Ieſus we preuent the ſame. Lamentable and fearefull is the ſtate of all thoſe, that neuer call themſelues to this account: it cauſeth them to goe on in ſinne without remorſe, Hoſ. 7, 2. Hereof Ieremie complained, [a] That no man ſaid what haue I done. And for that cauſe he denounceth fearefull iudgements againſt the people. This was the ſinne of the olde world: [b] men knewe nothing till the flood came and deſtroyed them all. This ſecuritie bringeth mens ſoules to hell, before they wot where they are; and therefore Dauid crieth out, Pſal. 50, 22, Oh conſider this (meaning the account that God will take with them) leaſt God teare them in pieces, and there be none to deliuer them. The ende of preaching and hearing Gods word, is to bring the ſoule to eternall life and ſaluation: but the want of this account maketh the holy ordinance of God to be of none effect to many a one. For how ſhould men embrace with comfort the word of reconciliation, till they feele in themſelues their enmitie with God, and deſert of condemnation.

a Ier.8.6.

b Matth.24.

II. Point, Becauſe thou haſt them that maintaine the doctrine of Balaam, &c. Here is the particular reproofe of this Church for want of zeale, in that they entertained and ſuffred hereticall Miniſters to liue among them which maintained the doctrine of Balaam. This ſhewed, that though they loued the Goſpel, and embraced it, yet it was very coldly, and without that feruent zeale which they ought to haue ſhewed againſt ſuch hereticks.

The vſe. Here firſt Chriſt teacheth this Church to ſhew forth zeale in excommunicating and caſting out ſuch heretiks, as by damnable doctrine did trouble them. This place is a ſufficient ground for the practiſe of that Eccleſiaſticall cenſure. When men hold hereticall opinions, the Church after two or three admonitions is to excommunicate them and caſt them out. So did Paul to Hymeneus and Alexander, 1. Tim. 1. 20. Secondly, Chriſt reproouing this church for entertaining ſuch heretickes and wicked men, doth giue vs to vnderſtand, that euery member of Gods Church ſhould haue a great diſlike of all perſons, that hold not the A doctrine of Chriſt in truth, but maintaine errours againſt the tenour of Scripture, and the profeſſion of the Church. For this cauſe Paul chargeth Timothie to [a] ſeparate himſelfe from ſuch as teach otherwiſe then he had giuen direction, and conſent not vnto the wholeſome words of our Lord Ieſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine which is according to godlineſſe, beeing puffed vp and knowing nothing. This then muſt be our carefull practiſe: we haue by Gods mercie true religion among us, which we muſt maintaine with zeale: and if any bring in other doctrine we muſt reiect it, and ſhew forth deteſtation to him that bringeth it, not bidding them God ſpeed, 2. Ioh, 10. We muſt rather looſe our liues, then ſuffer the truth of God to be defaced. Thirdly, B that which Chriſt laieth to the charge of this church, may in ſundry reſpects be charged vpon our churches and congregations at this day: namely, want of zeale againſt ſinne, and ſeueritie againſt ſinners: for though the gouernours of our Church repell the hereſies of Poperie, Anabaptiſts, and family of Loue, and ſuppreſſe all doctrines that race the foundation, which are commendable things; yet in the middeſt of our congregations be aboundance of Athieſts, who by deede and conuerſation deny Chriſt Ieſus: for many know nothing in the matters of religion, and men be profane: who both thinke and ſpeake moſt baſely of religion, and of the teaC chers and profeſſours thereof. Yea, we haue flat Epicures permitted to liue in our church, ſuch as make their bellie their God: who giue themſelues wholly vnto eating, drinking, ſports, and delights, without all regard either of the generall duties of Chriſtianitie, or the particular duties of their calling. We haue alſo among vs many cruell and mercileſſe perſons, that in their affaires abound in the practiſes of fraud, wrong, vſurie, and oppreſſion, [a] whoſe treading is upon the poore in the pride of their couetouſneſſe, whereby alſo they eate the fleſh of Gods people, and flea off their skin from them, and breake their bones, and chop them in pieces as for the pot, and as fleſh within the cauldron, Mich. 3. 6. And yet all theſe, becauſe they ſubmit them-D ſelues to the ciuill authoritie, are permitted without controlment to be partakers of the priuiledges of Gods church, euen to the receiuing of the ſeales of Gods couenant, beeing themſelues flat enemies to the grace of God. Yea many of theſe are greatly countenanced and graced for wiſedome and reputation; when as ſuch as feare God, and make conſcience of their wayes are counted vile. All which, as it argueth exceeding want of zeale in ſeueritie againſt ſinne: ſo it cannot chuſe but prouoke the Lord to come againſt vs in iudgement, as he did againſt this church. The means whereby this euill is to be reformed, doth follow afterward.

a 1.Tim.6.3,4.5.

a Amo.5.1

III. Point, The reaſon or confirmation of the former reproofe, whereby the Lord would mooue this church to deteſt theſe falſe teachers, is taken from the effect of their doctrine, and it is layed downe in this ſimilitude. As Balaam the falſe Prophet taught Balac to put a ſtumbling blocke before the children of Iſrael, to cauſe them to eat of things ſacrificed to Idols, and to commit fornication: ſo this Church maintained among them Nicholaitans, who taught, it was lawfull to eat things ſacrificed at Idol feaſts, and to commit fornication. The firſt part of this ſimilitude is in the ende of this 14. verſe; Which taught Balac to put a ſtumbling blocke, &c. The ſecond part is in the 15. verſe.

Touching the doctrine of Balaam we are to obſerue three points: Firſt, What a ſtumbling block, or an offence is. Secōdly, what it is to caſt a ſtumbling blocke. Thirdly, by what meanes king Balac did caſt a ſtumbling blocke before the children of Iſrael. For the firſt, a ſtumbling blocke is properly any thing, as wood, or ſtone, or ſuch like, that is caſt in a mans way, to hinder him in his gate, and to cauſe him to trip or fall: And by reſemblance in this place, an offence is any thing that cauſeth a man to ſinne againſt God, and ſo to ſlip or fall, or to goe out of his way that leadeth to life. Further, an offence is twofold; either giuen, or taken. An offence giuen, is any ſpeach or deede, whereby a man is prouoked to ſinne: and ſo was Peter an offence vnto Chriſt, though he tooke it not, Matth. 16. 23. An offence taken, is when any man taketh occaſion to fall and ſinne, by that which is well done by others: ſo were the Phariſies offended at the ſacred preaching of our Sauiour Chriſt. II. Point. The caſting or putting of a ſtumbling blocke, or giuing an offence, is the doing or ſaying of any thing, whereby a man is occaſioned to ſinne: and this is done, either about things euill in themſelues, or in things indifferent. Things euill are ſuch as Gods word forbiddeth: and they are twofold, either perſwaſions, or examples. Bad perſwaſions are falſe doctrine, and euill counſel. Bad example is alſo a giuing of offence becauſe it doth embolden euill men in their ſinne, and draw the godly to euill. Againe, in things indifferent, as meat, drinke, apparrell, &c. may offence bee giuen, when as they are vſed vnſeaſonably, not in fit time and place, and before fit perſons. And of this Paul ſpeaketh, ſaying; If I knew my eating did offend my brother, I would not eat fleſh while the world ſtandeth. The offence here ſpoken of, was an offence giuen in euill things, for it was an euill act done by Balaam, and accordingly receiued and taken of the Iſraelites, for he vſed outward prouocations to allure them vnto ſinne. III. Point. The meanes whereby king Balac did caſt a ſtumbling blocke before the children of Iſrael, is ſet downe in the end of the verſe, by prouoking them to eat of things ſacrificed to Idols, and to commit fornication. That we may vnderſtand this fully, read Numb. 25. The ſumme of the hiſtorie is this: When Balaam had aſſaied ſundry wayes to curſe the children of Iſrael, and could not, he gaue Balac counſell to vſe meanes to cauſe them to ſinne. At his counſell Balac ſent foorth the moſt beautifull women in his kingdome into the campe of Iſrael, to entice them to the ſeruice of their Idols, and to banquet with them at their Idol feaſts, that ſo they might draw them to fornication; whereunto the Iſraelites condeſcended, and ſo ſinned againſt God. Thus much of the meaning of the words.

Firſt, here obſerue a ſpeciall propertie of falſe teachers, namely, to caſt offences before men, to cauſe thē to fall in the way that leadeth to ſaluation. By this Chriſt intendeth to make knowne vnto this Church the falſe doctrine of Balaam, Paul in his Epiſtles [a] calleth the doctrine of the Goſpel a truth according to godlineſſe: becauſe the intent of the Goſpel is, to leade men to true godlineſſe. On the contrary, the doctrine of Antichriſt is called [b] the myſterie of iniquitie; becauſe the ſcope thereof is, to draw men to all iniquitie and abhomination. Here then we haue a rule, whereby wee may iudge betweene true doctrine and falſe, euen by looking into the end and ſcope thereof: if it ayme at true pietie & ſincere obedience, wee may iudge it to bee good; but if it tend to draw men to idolatrie and ſinne, then it is a falſe doctrine. Thus wee might ſcan all falſe religions, as the religion of the Turke and Iew at this day. But becauſe wee are more troubled with the doctrine of Poperie among our common people, who call it The old religion, therefore let vs a little examine the ſame by this rule.

The ende of Poperie is to pull downe the kingdome of Chriſt, and to diſanull his laws; as will appeare by a ſhort view in euerie commaundement: and therefore it cannot be the true religion. The firſt commaundement teacheth vs, To chuſe and acknowledge the true God for our God alone. But the Church of Rome teacheth to make more gods then one, and to acknowledge the creature to be God; for by their doctrine men are to pray vnto Saints, whereby they make them gods, in giuing this diuine propertie vnto them to know the heart. Their doctrine alſo aſcribeth vnto Saints, power to merit; which is a propertie of God: for none cā merit but he that is god. The humane nature of Chriſt could not haue merited any thing, vnleſſe it had beene ioyned to the godhead. Yea, they make the wood of the croſſe to be god, for in their maſſe booke at this day they call (not Chriſt crucified on the croſſe) but the very croſſe it ſelfe, our onely hope: yea, the vergine Mary, who is but a creature, they place as Queene in heauen, giuing her power ouer Chriſt to command him in the matter of ſaluation, and ſo they diſanull the firſt commaundement. The ſecond commaundement they reuoke, in teaching it to bee lawfull to make images of the Trinitie, according as they ſhewed themſelues in the old and new Teſtament: the father like an old man, the ſonne as he he liued, and the holy Ghoſt like a doue; and therein to worſhip them. Againe, they teach that men may adore the Images of Saints, which is flat againſt that commaundement. The third commaundement they diſanull, in teaching it to be lawfull to ſweare by Saints, and not by God onely. The fourth they diſanull, by making the feaſtiuall dayes of Saints, equall with the Lords Sabbath, and to be kept holy vnto God as ſolemnly as the Lords day. Whereby alſo they take away the libertie of the Church in the lawful vſe of ſix dayes, for honeſt labour in a mans calling. The fift they diſanull, in giuing freedome and immunitie to their clergie from ſubiection to ciuill authoritie: and in diſpenſing with ſubiects, for their loyaltie and allegeance to their lawfull Princes: and with children and ſeruants from yeelding due helpe, ſeruice, and obedience, to their parents and maſters. The ſixt, by their houſes of refuge which they call Sanctuaries; wherein murderers may be in ſafetie; and by maintaining ignorance in religion, through which they murder many a ſimple ſoule. The ſeauenth, by tolerating of ſtewes, and allowing of inceſt: for by their law it is lawfull for the great vncle to marrie his neece, deſcending from his brother or ſiſter, ſo it be without the fourth degree, which is againſt nature. The eight, by making ſale of all things, of heauen, hell, of earth, of pardons, and deliuering men from purgatorie: which is flat robberie, & moſt groſſe deceit and couſenage. The ninth they diſanull, by falſifying the canon of Scripture, for they make that canonicall which is no Scripture: and beſides in their doctrine practicall they defend a lie, for when a man hath confeſſed his ſinnes to the prieſt, if the magiſtrate aske the prieſt what ſinnes the man confeſſed, they teach the prieſt to ſay, I know not, that is (ſay they) to tell it to thee: which is a flat lie. And whereas they would defend this by an expoſition of Chriſts words, when he ſaith: [a] The day of iudgement is not knowne to the Sonne of man: that is, (ſay they) to reueale it vnto others; they doe but deceiue the ſimple by an expoſition which is not fit. The laſt commandement they diſanull, by holding concupiſcence before conſent to bee no ſinne, when as wee know by Gods word, that the firſt euill motions in vs be ſinnes. So that hereby we may ſee, that Poperie is but a falſe religion, though it haue falſely among our common people the name of The olde religion, and therefore we muſt abhorre the ſame, as vngodly.

Now whereas ſome doe charge the doctrine of our religion to be ſundry wayes ſcandalous, they may be eaſily anſwered: Firſt they ſay, it is a doctrine of deſperation, becauſe it imports, that God created men ſo, as he will ſaue but a few, making them for this ende, to caſt the greateſt number to hell. To this I anſwer two things: Firſt, touching the number of them that are to be ſaued: of which little is A ſayd in Scripture, and therefore I will not ſay much: yet this may be auerred, The number of the elect in it ſelfe is [b] a great company, but beeing compared with them that ſhall be damned, it is but ſmall. II. touching the ende of mans creation, our doctrine is not, that God created men for this ende, to caſt them to hell: but this we teach, that God created all men to manifeſt his glorie in them: in ſome, by their iuſt and deſerued damnation for ſinne. We teach not that men are otherwaies condemned then for their ſinnes, and therefore he that is condemned hath his iuſt reward. II. Charge. They ſay further, our doctrine is a doctrine of blaſphemie; for that we teach God to haue decreed the fall of B man, and ſo make God the author of mans ſinne. Anſ. We teach indeede that God decreed Adams fall, but thence it followeth not, that he is the author of mans ſinne. For Gods will is twofold, generall, and ſpeciall. Gods generall will is, to permit that which is euill, not ſimply, but becauſe with God euill hath ſome reſpect of good, and in this reſpect we ſay God decreed Adams fall. Gods ſpeciall will, is his approouing will; whereby he taketh pleaſure and delight in that which is good: and in this regard God nilled Adams fall, and mans ſinnes: And yet in ſome reſpect he may be ſaid to will them. A magiſtrate, though he take no comfort or delight in the death and execution of a malefactor, yet he decreeth and appointeth it, and C ſo may be ſaid to will it. Euen ſo God, who out of darkeneſſe can bring light, permitteth euill, becauſe with him it hath ſome reſpect of good, and ſo may be ſaid to will it. III. Charge. They ſay alſo that the doctrine of our church is a doctrine of ſecuritie: becauſe we teach, that a man may be certaine of his ſaluation, and of perſeuerance in the faith vnto the ende. Anſ. This is not a doctrine of carnall ſecuritie; becauſe we doe impoſe neceſſarily the vſe of meanes to them that would be certaine of their ſaluation, and perſeuere vnto the ende, as namely, deniall of themſelues, and humbling themſelues in continuall praier, with hearing and meditating in the word of God, and receiuing the Sacraments for the increaſe of faith, and renewing of their D repentance: All which will rather make a man fearefull and carefull then ſecure. For with the meanes, is certaintie of ſaluation, both attained and preſerued: ſo that our doctrine is not a doctrine of offences, but a true doctrine that beateth out the plaine way that leadeth vnto life.

Secondly, Chriſt his deteſtation of this doctrine of Balaam, muſt admoniſh vs to be ſo carefull of our behauiour euery way, that we giue no offence vnto any, for if we doe, we are Balaams ſcholers. This is a point of ſpeciall obſeruation; we muſt looke to our communication, that it be voide of railing and bad ſpeeches, and to our conuerſation that it be holy and vnblameable. In euery thing we muſt haue care not to hinder others in the way of life, Woe

[b] Rev.7.9.

[a] bee to them (ſaith Chriſt) that giue offences: it were better that a huge milſtone (ſuch as an aſſe can but turne about, as the word imports) were tied about his necke, and that hee were caſt into the ſea. The reaſon is, becauſe when a man by any meanes giueth his brother offence; he doth as much as in him lyeth, to plunge his brothers ſoule into the pit of deſtruction, and therefore we muſt fly offences as hell it ſelfe; yea rather on the contrary, we muſt helpe our brethren forward in the way of ſaluation, and remooue from them all ſtumbling blockes that cauſe them to fall. If this dutie were practiſed, our Church would abound with graces and godlineſſe: but this duty is wanting; and hence it comes that we haue ſo ſmall increaſe after long labour in preaching, for example and euil counſell do quench the graces of the ſpirit in mens hearts.

a Matt.18. 6,7.

Thirdly hereby we muſt learne to haue ſpeciall care againſt offences giuen by euill counſell, or bad example. For if it be the propertie of a falſe Prophet to caſt ſtumbling blocks before others, then is it a dangerous thing to fall vpon them when they are laid before vs. While we liue in this world we ſhal ſee many offences giuen: but we muſt take heed we take them not. And therefore Chriſt biddeth vs [b] If thy foote offend thee, or thine hand, cut it off; or thine eye, plucke it out: Teaching vs to forgoe the deareſt thing that can be vnto vs, if it would cauſe vs to ſinne againſt God. And to mooue vs hereto, marke the Iſraelites example in the wilderneſſe: while they kept a good conſcience, and obſerued the true worſhip of God, all Balaams curſes were turned into bleſſings: but when they fell to idolatrie and fornication with the Moabitiſh women, then was Gods wrath kindled againſt them, and his plague ſeized vpon them. Euen ſo, if our Church be carefull to keepe it ſelfe to the true religion, which by Gods mercie we inioy, and withall haue care to keepe good conſcience in becomming a penitent & obedient people vnto God; then may Balaam curſe, and all our enemies ſpit their venom, yet we ſhall be ſafe. But if we let goe true religion and good conſcience, and fall to ſinne, then we muſt looke for Gods heauie iudgements to fall vpon vs in his wrath, as they did vpon his owne people. Fourthly, when Balaams curſing would not preuaile, then did faire women, and banqueting draw them to idolatrie and fornication. Hence we learne, that temptations on the right hand, that is, taken from prophets, pleaſures, and preferments, are moſt dangerous, and ſooneſt preuaile to draw men from God. The ſtate of a chriſtian, is like a beſieged citie; when a huge armie cannot ſack it, then ſiluer and gold will open the gates thereof: euen ſo, when aduerſitie cannot make a man to forſake religion and good conſcience, then by proſperitie, eaſe, and pleaſure hath the deuill ſtollen away his heart. Thoſe therefore that haue eaſe, pleaſure, and outward bleſſings at will, are in a farre more dangerous caſe in reſpect of ſinne, then others; vnleſſe God vouchſafe vnto them ſpeciall grace to watch againſt theſe pleaſing temptations. This made godly Iob [a] To ſanctifie his children euery day when they feaſted each other at their houſe: leaſt any one then ſhould haue blaſphemed God in his heart. Becauſe hee knew the deuill by pleaſures would ſooneſt winde himſelfe into their hearts.

Matt.18.8.

a Iob 1.5.

Laſtly, note the order of theſe ſinnes: Firſt, they are drawne to ſit at Idol feaſts, and then to commit adulterie: where we ſee that theſe two goe together, Spirituall adulterie, that is, Idolatrie; & bodily adultery, one is the plague & puniſhment of the other; that people which giue themſelues to Idolatrie, will God giue vp to bodily adulterie. As this was true in theſe Iſraelites, ſo is it to be ſeene among the Turkes, and with the Papiſts at this day, who maintaine fornication, in tolerating ſtewes, and further it much by their vow of ſingle life, wherewith they bind the conſcience, though the partie want the gift of continencie.

v. 15. Euen ſo haſt thou them that maintaine the doctrine of the Nicholaitans, which thing I hate.

Here followeth the ſecond part of the compariſon, where Chriſt ſetteth downe two things: Firſt, what the Nicholaitans were. Secondly, how hee was affected towards them. What they were is expreſſed in the firſt words, Euen ſo, which is a note of reſemblance or compariſon, hauing reference to the words going before. They may be thus deſcribed: The Nicholaitans were a ſect in the Church of Pergamus, that maintained two damnable opinions according to the doctrine of Balaam. I. That it was lawfull to eat things offered to idols in the honour of idols, ſitting in the idols temple. II. that fornication was no ſinne: but that a man might lawfully commit it. It may ſeeme ſtrange, that in the daies of the Apoſtles there ſhould be men profeſſing the name of Chriſt, & yet hold ſuch damnable opinions; but the truth is hereby euident, that there were ſuch in this Church. And that we doe not conceiue a liking of their wicked opinions, let vs examine their reaſons, whereupon they might ſeeme to bee grounded.

For the eating of things ſacrificed to idols, they would plead thus. I. From the doctrine of Chriſtian libertie, Things indifferent may bee lawfully vſed. Things offered to Idols are things indifferent, as meats, and drinks: and therefore may lawfully be vſed. Anſ. Meats and drinks, if they be conſidered in themſelues, are things indifferent, and may lawfully be vſed: yea after they haue beene offered to idols, if they be ſold in the market, they may be lawfully bought and eaten in priuate houſes, if it be done without offence of the weake, as Paul teacheth at large, 1. Cor. 10. 25. 29. But if theſe meats be conſidered as they are offered to Idols, and eatẽ in the Idols temple in the honour of Idols, they be vnlawfull. And yet the Nicholaitans held this to be lawfull.

II. Reaſon. An idoll is nothing. 1. Cor. 8. 4. and therefore we ſinne not in eating meats offered vnto them. Anſ. An idoll is nothing, that is, in nature ſubſiſting: nothing created or ordained of God, it hath no propertie of the godhead: but yet an idoll is ſomething in mans imagination, which giueth to it the honour of God, and reputeth it as God, making it a God vnto himſelfe.

III. Reaſon. Naaman the Syrian [b] went into the temple of the God Rimmon, and there kneeled downe; Euen ſo may Chriſtians goe eat in idols temples? Anſ. When Naaman went in thither, he did not kneele down to the idoll, but to the king, performing a ciuill dutie vnto his Prince; who vſed to leane on Naamans ſhoulder and worſhip his falſe god. And though Naaman were preſent at Idol-worſhip & ſeruice, yet it was with proteſtation againſt it: for beeing cured of his leproſie, hee promiſed to worſhip no god but the God of Iſrael: and thereupon he laded two mules with the earth of the land of Iſrael, in token of his publike profeſſion of thankfulneſſe to the true God for his cleanſing. If theſe in Pergamus whome Chriſt diſliketh, had gone as Naaman did into idolls temples, they had not ſinned as they did. And at this day if men proteſt againſt the idolatrie of the maſſe, they may enter into thoſe congregations where maſſe is ſaid: for this proteſtation is a flat condemning of their falſe worſhip.

[b] 2.King.5.18.

The ſecond opinion of theſe Nicolaitans was, That men might lawfully commit fornication: This opinion they would thus iuſtifie; Firſt, from the practiſe of Lot, Who offered to the men of Sodome his daughters, when they called for the ſtrangers that were come into his houſe. Which thing (ſay they) Lot would neuer haue done, if fornication had beene a ſinne? Anſ. It ſeemeth that Lot cannot be excuſed in that action, though his purpoſe was by a leſſer euill to preuent a greater: but God hath plainly taught, That no man may doe the leaſt euill, for the procuring of the greateſt good that can be, Rom. 3. 8.

Gen.19.8.

II. Reaſon. The Lord (ſay they) commanded Hoſea, to take a wife of fornication, and children of fornication, Hoſ. 1. 2. It is not therfore vnlawfull? Anſ. There be diuers interpretations of that place. Some ſay, that was onely in viſion, and not a fact done. Others ſay, it was in ſpeech onely, becauſe he propheſied vnto the people that he himſelfe was a man of fornication vnto them. Theſe expoſitions may well ſtand. Yet others hold that the Lord commanding him this, it was to be done, and was done indeed. And ſundry circumſtances ſeeme to prooue that it was a fact done; for the womans name is ſet downe to be [b] Gomer, and her fathers name Diblaim. Secondly, a thing in viſion or in ſpeech onely, doth not ſo much preuaile with wicked people, as that which is done indeede. Thirdly, the auncient opinion of beſt diuines that liued neereſt to the Apoſtles times auouch it was a fact done. Obiect. But this maintaineth fornication, againſt good maners, and the expreſſe law of God. Anſ. It were ſo indeed if the Prophet had done it on his owne head, but he did it by Gods ſpeciall appointment, who is Lord of his owne law, and may diſpenſe with it at his pleaſure. God in his law forbiddeth to kill, yet Abraham is commanded to kill his ſonne: which if he had done, he had not ſinned, becauſe he had a ſpeciall commandement for it, which a man muſt obey, though it be againſt a morall precept. Againe, Hoſea tooke a wife of fornication, not to maintaine her in her ſinne, but to make her a chaſt womã, And whereas he was commaunded alſo to take vnto him children of fornication: it muſt not be vnderſtood of children begotten by him, but borne of her in fornication: As if he ſhould ſay, Take a wife with her children which ſhee brought forth in fornication. So that this place which way ſoeuer wee take it, doth nothing maintaine their wicked errours.

[b] verſ.3.

III. Reaſon. Acts. 15. The Apoſtles charge the churches, To abſtaine from that which is ſtrangled, from blood, and from fornication: There (ſay they) fornication is reckoned among things indifferent, and therefore may be vſed lawfully. Anſ. It is there reckoned among things indifferent: Firſt, becauſe it was ſo accounted of among the Gentiles: Secondly, becauſe the Gentiles did ioyntly by theſe three things offend the churches of the Iewes. But hence it followeth not that it is indeed a thing indifferent.

II. Point. The affection of Chriſt towards theſe men is noted in theſe words: Which thing I hate. This hatred muſt be referred not to the perſons of the Nicolaitans, but to their opinions, liues, and practiſes.

Hereby Chriſt would inſtruct vs in ſundry needefull duties. Firſt, if we will followe him, we muſt hate all honour and approbation that may be giuen to idols, be it neuer ſo little. Theſe Nicolaitans might ſay, they abhorred idols, and worſhipped them not, onely they went with their friends into their Temples, and ſate downe to eate meate before them; now euen this dealing Chriſt hateth. Wherein he doth notably condemne the practiſe of the Romiſh church, which ſay, they worſhip not idols, but the true God: and yet they doe that which Chriſt hateth; for they kneele downe before them, and adore them, and light candles vnto them, and offer vnto them rich Iewels, and much ſumptuous attire, which is a great deale more then the Nicolaitans did: And therefore they are much more to be condemned, and their practiſe alſo hated of vs. Secondly, Chriſts hatred of the leaſt honour of Idols, doth affoord a ſpeciall caueat to ſuch men as giue themſelues to a trauelling life; as into Italy, Spaine, and other Idolatrous places: they ſhould content themſelues within the precincts of the church, and not proceede further without warrant of a ſpeciall calling, whereby they may aſſure themſelues of Gods gracious protection. For hereby they giue occaſion to themſelues to doe that which Chriſt hateth; though they ſay they hate idolatrie: For if a man eſcape to be preſent at their abhominable ſeruice, yet he cannot auoid the going to their Temples, where he is to offer ſome gifts, or performe ſome ceremonie after the cuſtome of the country; whereby he ſhall giue ſome approbation at the leaſt of their idolatry: whereas he ought to hate the leaſt appearance thereof, euen the garment ſpotted with the fleſh. Thirdly, by this his affection Chriſt would teach vs to growe to an hatred of all familiar ſocietie with idolaters: for though we may haue ſocietie of concord with them, yet ſocietie of amitie, which is a ſpeciall liking betweene man and man, we muſt not maintaine with them.

Fourthly, Chriſt hateth not onely their idolatry, but their fornication alſo. Hereby teaching vs to growe to a hatred of fornication; which the rather muſt be deteſted, becauſe [a] the bodies of euery man and woman be not their owne, but Chriſts: and therefore ought not to be imploied in the honour or ſeruice of the deuill, but of Chriſt: Againe, the bodies of euery Chriſtian man and woman are the members of Chriſt, now it is an vnſeemely thing to take the member of Chriſt, and make it the member of an harlot. Thirdly, their bodies are temples, and dwelling places; not for earthly Princes, but for the holy Ghoſt: and therefore muſt be furniſhed with Gods graces, and adorned with charitie and other gifts of Gods ſpirit, that they may bee fit manſion places for ſo worthie a gueſt. But by fornication they are made the ſties and ſtables of the Prince of darkeneſſe.

v. 16. Repent thy ſelfe, or elſe I come vnto thee ſhortly: and will fight againſt thee with the ſword of my mouth.

Chriſt hauing laid downe the ſinnes of this Church, and the errours of the Nicholaitans, doth here propound vnto this Church, Firſt, a remedie for her recouerie: Secondly, a reaſon to inforce the practiſe of the remedie. The remedie is in theſe words: Repent thy ſelfe. In it conſider theſe points: Firſt, what it is to repent; Secondly, why Chriſt ſo often vrgeth thereunto; Thirdly, to whome Chriſt preſcribeth this remedie. Of the firſt, we haue ſpoken in the firſt verſe of this chapter: Briefly therefore, Repentance is a change of the mind from euill to good, and a turning from ſinne vnto God. Here repentance muſt be taken more largely, for all the duties that accompany repentance in the practiſe thereof: as I. Humiliation of a man by confeſſing of his ſinnes vnto God, and condemning of himſelfe for the ſinne. II. Praier, whereby a man doth earneſtly intreat the Lord for the pardon of the ſame ſinnes. III. Reformation, whereby a man in heart propoſeth, and in life indeuoreth to leaue all his former ſinnes, & for euer after to doe all things in obedience vnto God: vnto all theſe doth the holy Ghoſt exhort them in this place.

II. Point. Why doth Chriſt ſo often preſcribe this dutie of repentance, and ſo much vrge it? Anſ. Not for that it is a cauſe or a meritorious meanes to procure remiſſion of ſinnes and life euerlaſting, as the Papiſts doe falſly and damnably teach; for that nothing can doe but the obedience and paſſion of Chriſt: but firſt becauſe it is a token of Gods fauour procured, and a moſt excellent fruit of faith, ſuch as maketh a man ceaſe to doe euill, and moueth him to doe good; II. becauſe it is a way wherein men muſt walke vnto the end, that would haue remiſſion of ſinnes, and life eternall.

III. Point. To whom is this remedie preſcribed? Anſ. Firſt to the Church of Pergamus, and then to the Nicholaitans in that Church, though they were moſt wicked. Touching the Church of Pergamus: they were before commended for moſt worthy graces, for they had repentance: and yet note, Chriſt ſaith ſtill vnto them, Repent thy ſelfe. Herein teaching vs a moſt worthy leſſon, which euery one ought to learne and practiſe: namely, that the life of a Chriſtian is a continuall practiſe of repentance. When a man hath once repented, that is not ſufficient; but euery new day muſt haue a new repentance for his daily ſlips. Wee [a] are Gods Embaſſadours (ſaith Paul) for Chriſt: beſeeching you in Chriſts ſteed, that you would be reconciled vnto God. Now they were reconciled to God before, for they are called [b] the Temple of the liuing God. His meaning therefore is, That they ſhould ſtriue more and more after reconciliation with God; both in regard of their further aſſurance, and alſo for their particular ſinnes wherein they daily offended. Euery Chriſtian muſt daily wreſtle with his owne corruptions, which he feeleth in himſelfe, that the longer he liueth, the more he may grow in diſlike with himſelfe. And in this diſtaſt of himſelfe he muſt daily proceed, that he may euery day more and more grow vp in Chriſt. And leaſt any ſhould thinke, that this was ſpoken to this Church alone and not to vs: conſider, that we are in the ſame caſe with them; their ſinnes are our ſinnes, as we haue prooued: We want zeale and ſeueritie againſt ſinne and ſinners. Now beeing in the ſame fault with them, wee muſt therefore practiſe the ſame remedie, and renew our repentance, though we haue repented heretofore.

[b] Cap.6.16.

Secondly, he preſcribes this dutie to the Nicolaitans, that held two damnable errours, and no doubt liued accordingly in thoſe ſinnes: and yet Chriſt barres them not from his kingdome, but bids them repent. Where note that great and grieuous ſinners are not barred from Gods mercie; if they will repent. Excellent is that ſaying of Iſay, God is much in ſparing: and that of Dauid alſo, With God is plentifull redemption. This point is ſeriouſly to be conſidered: for we haue in our congregations many that are well ſpoken of in the world: and yet for knowledge of God, and practiſe of life, are flat Atheiſts. We haue alſo among vs Epicures, blaſphemers, murtherers, and fornicators, with theſe Nicolaitans. Now to all theſe and ſuch like, this doctrine appertaines, not to embolden them in ſinne, but to aſſure them there is mercie in ſtore for them with God, if they will truely repent. They muſt not turne the grace of God to wantonneſſe, and make his mercie a bolſter to their iniquitie; for this is deſpiſing of Gods bountie; whereby they heape vp vnto themſelues wrath againſt the day of wrath: but if with Iob they humble themſelues in duſt and aſhes, and crie to heauen for mercie from a broken heart that carrieth a reſolute purpoſe to leaue all ſinne; then, though their ſinnes were neuer ſo many, they ſhall all be drowned in the bottomeleſſe ſea of Gods mercie: though they were as crimſon and ſcarlet, which will take no other die, yet in Chriſts blood they ſhall bee made as white as woll and ſnowe: yea, though they haue fallen often into the ſame ſinnes which is moſt fearefull and dangerous, yet vpon this vnfained repentance they ſhall be reſtored to mercie: for the fountaine thereof cannot be dried vp: but ſee they doe repent; for whoſoeuer looketh for Chriſts merits, muſt knowe that he looketh for true repentance. Thus much for the remedie.

Pſal.130.7.

II. Point. The reaſon whereby Chriſt would ſet an edge vpon the former remedy, containeth a twofold threatening or commination: the firſt, againſt the whole Church in theſe words: If not, I come vnto thee ſhortly. The ſecond againſt the Nicolaitans in theſe words; And will fight againſt them with the ſword of my mouth. For the firſt, If not, I will come vnto thee ſhortly, theſe words were expounded in the fift verſ. The meaning is this: If thou repent not, I will come vnto thee, and teſtifie my preſence by taking puniſhment vpon thee, for thy want of zeale, and of ſeueritie againſt ſinne and ſinners. To this effect the Prophet Iſay ſaith, Chap. 30. 27. The name of the Lord ſhall come from farre, to take puniſhment vpon the Aſſyrians.

In his threatening the phraſe is to be noted. Chriſt ſaith: If not, I come vnto thee: expreſſing a thing to come, by a word of the time preſent. To giue them to vnderſtand, that his comming vnto them by iudgements was as certaine, as if it were preſent, vnleſſe they did repent. Where this generall rule is to be obſerued of all: namely, that when a church or people doe not repent, the Lord will come vnto them to execute his iudgements vpon them. Yea, though they haue before repented, if for particular ſinnes and wants they do not renew their repentance, he will ſurely come to puniſh them. This might be prooued at large by teſtimonies of the Prophets and Apoſtles: but it is ſo euident in this text, that I omit all further proofe; onely I will apply it to this our Church, of which this may be truely ſaid; Thou doeſt not repent, nor renewe thy repentance for thy daily ſinnes. For albeit there be ſome among vs, that by Gods grace repent, and ſet themſelues daily to the exerciſe thereof: yet take the greater part of our congregations, and they are ſo farre from renewing their repentance, that they doe not repent at all; for either they haue no knowledge of Gods will; or if they haue knowledge, yet they want care and conſcience to put the ſame in practiſe. This beeing our caſe and condition, what man may not be a Prophet againſt our Churches and congregations, beeing thus directed by this portion of Scripture, to ſay and that truely, That God will come vnto vs in iudgements to plague and puniſh vs for our ſinnes and iniquities? We may ſooth our ſelues in hope of mercie ſtill; but the ſtate of our church continuing as it is, nothing can be expected but iudgements from the Lord. This then muſt be a motiue to perſwade vs to repent, euery perſon apart, and euery family and congregation apart, we muſt humble our ſelues in duſt and aſhes for our ſinnes paſt, entreating the Lord to be reconciled vnto vs, and purpoſe fully in our hearts, and ſtriue in our liues to obey God in all his commandements: yea though we can ſay we haue repented, yet for our daily wants and ſinnes we muſt renewe our repentance. Thus doing, we ſhall ſtay the Lord when he is comming againſt vs. But if we go on in blindeneſſe, ignorance, and rebellion, following the luſts of our owne hearts, then nothing but vengeance and iudgements are to be expected: for this concluſion muſt ſtand with all churches and people: If they repent not, God will come in iudgement againſt them.

The ſecond threatening or commination is directed vnto the Nicolaitans, in theſe words: And will fight againſt them with the ſword of my mouth; that is, I will be at enmitie with them, and teſtifie the ſame by waging battell againſt thoſe among you, that maintaine the lawfulneſſe of eating things ſacrificed to Idols, and of fornication. Thus I ſay will I fight againſt them with the ſword of my mouth; that is, with the preaching of thy word, the law, and the goſpell.

In this commination Chriſt alludeth ſtill to the ſtorie of Balaam: for when he was ſent for by Balac to curſe the people of God, the Lord ſtood againſt him in the way with a naked ſword, to keepe him frõ going: & when his eies were opened, that he ſaw the angel of the Lord withſtand him in that ſort, he fell down & adored the Angel, for it was the Lord: yet becauſe he ceaſed not from his wicked couetouſnes, but gaue bad counſel againſt the Iſraelites, when he could not curſe thẽ, to cauſe thẽ to ſinne: therefore he was ſlaine with the edge of the ſword among the Midianites by the children of Iſrael. Euen ſo Chriſt dealeth with the Nicholaitans, becauſe they go on in their bad coũſell, perſwading the lawfulnes of eating things ſacrificed to Idols, & alſo of fornication; therefore firſt he wil fight againſt thẽ with the ſword of his mouth, the miniſterie of his word, therby to reclaim thẽ from their wicked waies, if it be poſſible; but if that wil not ſerue, he will ſtil fight againſt them, and with the ſame ſword deſtroy them for euer.

Firſt, here marke, Chriſt ſaith not, I wil kil thẽ, but fight againſt thẽ; for he intended not at the firſt to deſtroy theſe Nicolaitãs, but his purpoſe was to withdraw them frõ their wicked wayes; yet ſo, as afterward if they would not be reclaimed by his word, he would therewith deſtroy thẽ. Wherein we may behold the exceeding patience of Chriſt Ieſus toward lewd & greeuous ſinners, that maintained the lawfulnes of idolatrie & fornication, & gaue thẽſelues thereunto. So the Lord[a] in ſpirit ſtroue with the old world, & ſpared them 120. yeares to withdraw them from their wickednes by the preaching of Noe. So likewiſe he ſpared the Ammonites [b] till their ſinnes were come to the full, and the Egyptians alſo for many 100. yeares, though they were moſt cruell perſecuters of his owne people. And though the Iewes moſt maliciouſly crucified the Lord of life; yet he ſpared thẽ fifty years, before he cut thẽ off frõ being a people. Yea, daily experience teacheth vs this his long ſuffring: we may heare moſt bloodie & bitter oathes frõ blaſphemers, whereby they daily crucifie Chriſt with their tongues. The like may be ſaid of the adulterers, & all cruell perſons, & yet he forbeares the ſame; yea, in our owne ſelues we daily taſt of this his patience; for ſo ſoone as we were borne, we deſerued to be caſt into hell, and yet in mercy he vouchſafeth vnto vs, to ſome twentie, to ſome thirtie, and to ſome moe yeares, for a time of repentance; when as euery day he might in iuſtice condemne vs. This therfore muſt amoniſh vs in the feare of God, not to abuſe this his long ſuffering any lõger, but now while the day of mercie laſteth, to humble our ſelues & turne vnto him by true repentance. Theſe are the dayes of grace, but how long they will laſt, God onely knoweth: for when death once comes, he ſhews no more mercy. The old world becauſe they abuſed the long ſuffering of God[c] were deſtroied, and are now in hel in priſon for it, as Peter teacheth. And vndoubtedly the ſame priſõ wil be our portiõ, if we take the ſame courſe that they did.

[c] 1.Pet.3.19, o.

Secondly, in this threatning we may obſerue, that all irrepẽtant ſinners haue God for their enemy, to fight againſt thẽ with a drawn ſword. A For this cauſe ſinne in Scripture is called rebellion, and euery ſinner is a rebell againſt God. A fearefull thing it is to haue God for an enemie: & yet this is the condition, not onely of ſuch as did neuer repent, but of all thoſe that hold the name of Chriſt in profeſſion, & yet continue in any one ſin, without renuing their repentance. This alſo muſt ſerue to induce euery man that hath not repented, now to begin: & if they haue begun, to repẽt more, daily renuing the ſame for their daily ſlips, & ſo ſhall they be the friends of Chriſt, as[d] Abrahã was, & as his[e] diſciples were.

Thirdly, in theſe two threatnings Chriſt ſhews himſelfe to be the true Doctor of his church: for he will fight againſt theſe Nicolaitans, when as B he will onely come vnto his church. Where we ſee he diuideth his word aright; wherein conſiſteth the principal wiſedome of a true Prophet, giuing cõforts to whom comfort belongeth, & threatning iudgements to whom iudgement is due; & making difference of iudgements according to the ſtate of the perſons againſt whom they are threatned. For the heauy iudgemẽts of God muſt not be threatned againſt all perſons, but againſt the impenitẽt. And becauſe there be degrees of iudgements, temporall, and eternall; therefore temporal iudgements muſt be threatned to thoſe to whom they belong, and eternall iudgements denounced againſt thoſe to whom they belong; obſeruing the circumſtances of time, place, and perſons, according to Chriſts C example in this place, and elſwhere. So likewiſe the benefits of the goſpel are not to be propoũded to euery perſon hand ouer head without difference, but with reſtraint to ſome onely, as Gods Prophets haue done. It is often a great offence in the Church, when the benefits of the Goſpel are propounded to all, & the threatning of the law denounced againſt all, without limitation or reſtrant. The conditions therfore of repentãce & impenitencie, of faith & vnbeleefe, & alſo the degrees of thẽ all, muſt carefully be obſerued in the diſpenſation of the Law & goſpel.

Fourthly, the end of Chriſts fighting muſt be conſidered: for the firſt he intends to reclaime them from their euill wayes, but if they will not be reclaimed, then to cauſe the ſame word to be D an occaſion of their deeper condemnation. This muſt be deepely weighed of vs all, who haue had by Gods grace for many years the plentiful preaching of the Goſpel, by which God hath continually rebuked & checked the ſinnes that be among vs, as ignorãce, blaſphemie, & filthynes, cruelty, & all iniquities whatſoeuer, and the ſame thing the Lord yet continues to doe vnto vs. We therefore muſt thinke, that all this while the Lord is fighting againſt vs: whẽ ignorance is reprooued in the miniſtery of the word, the ignorant perſon muſt thinke the Lord is fighting againſt him, & ſo al Atheiſts, blaſphemers, adulterers, oppreſſors, and cruell perſons, when their ſinnes are reprooued, they muſt know that the Lord ſtands face to face againſt them with the ſword of his mouth, ſeeking to reclaime them from theſe iniquities, as he did to Balaam in his way. And when any mans ſinnes be thus touched, he muſt not rebell, but humble himſelfe, as Balaam fell before the Angel: conſidering it is the Lord that wageth battell againſt him. When we heare that forraine nations ſhake their ſwords againſt vs, how are we mooued, both high and low? Shall we feare the ſworde of mortall man, and ſhall we not tremble when we heare that the ſword of the euerliuing God is ſhaken againſt vs? Thoſe therefore whoſe hearts are guilty of any one ſinne, muſt humble themſelues by true and ſpeedie repentance, there is no withſtanding of the Lord: if his ſword doe not cure vs, it will cutte vs in pieces: if his word doe not conuert vs from our ſinnes, it will be an occaſion to caſt our ſoules deeper into hell. Thus he dealt with Balaam, when he would not be reſtrained from giuing bad counſell, he was ſlaine among the Midianites. Fewe thinke on theſe things: from whence commeth ſuch great contempt of Gods ordinance in the miniſterie of the word, as we ſee at this day: but they muſt knowe, that either death or life come by the ſtroke of this ſword, and therefore they muſt repent.

Fiftly, note the title giuen to Gods word: it is called The ſword of Chriſts mouth: not onely becauſe it was once deliuered by himſelfe, from his owne mouth: but becauſe it doth daily proceede from his mouth: for the miniſters of the Goſpell, which be truely called, are the very mouth of Chriſt, from which Gods people receiue his word. a If thou ſhalt returne (ſaith the Lord to Ieremie) and ſhalt ſeparate the precious from the vile, then ſhalt thou ſtand before me, and be according to my word, 2. Cor. 5. 19. We are the embaſſadours of Chriſt, beſeeching you in his ſteed: which is an high and wonderfull honour. The conſideration whereof is a ground of ſundry duties.

a Ier.15.19.

Firſt, all ſtudents that are in the way of preparation to higher callings, muſt hereby learne to conceiue a good opinion of the Miniſterie of the Goſpell, and to affect the ſame aboue other callings. For though the blind world count it a baſe calling, yet Chriſt we ſee maketh the miniſter his owne mouth: which honour is not giuen either to the Lawyer or to the Phyſitian.

Secondly, hereby euery Miniſter of the goſpel is taught to deliuer nothing in his publike miniſterie, but the pure word of God, ſo farre forth as Chriſt ſhall enable him; and that alſo in ſo pure a manner, as in the perſwaſion of his owne conſcience he thinks Chriſt would ſpeak, if he were there preſent; like vnto faithfull embaſſadours, who ſpeake onely the will of their lord and prince, and in that manner which their lord and prince doth beſt approoue. If this were weighed, we ſhould not haue ſuch preaching as is commonly vſed, conſiſting of a mixture of teſtimonies: partly diuine, and partly humane, conſidering that neither Chriſt nor his Apoſtles ſo preached.

Thirdly, the people alſo are hence taught their dutie: when they heare a ſinnefull man like vnto themſelues ſpeake vnto them in the miniſterie of the word, they muſt not deſpiſe Gods ordinance; becauſe it is deliuered by man, but receiue the ſame, as from the mouth of Chriſt, and as the pure word of God, ſo farre forth as it conſenteth with holy ſcripture. In this behalfe Paul bleſſed God for the Theſſalonians, That they receiued the word from him, not as the word of man; but as it is indeede the word of God, 1. Theſ. 2. 13.

Sixtly, where Chriſt ſaith, I will fight againſt thee with the ſword of my mouth; We may obſerue, that the kingdome of Chriſt is ſpirituall, and not of this world: for if it were worldly, then a ciuill ſword weilded by the hand of man, ſhould belong vnto him. But he hath no ſuch ſword; he gouernes his church and people by the ſword of his mouth, his holy word. Whereby appeareth, that the primacie of the ſea of Rome is from hell, not from heauen: for the Pope ſaith he is Chriſts vicar, and yet he will be armed with both ſwords: when as Chriſt dealeth not with the ciuill ſword, but onely vſeth the ſword of his mouth.

verſ. 17. Let him that hath an eare heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches: To him that ouercommeth will I giue to eate of the Manna which is hid, and will giue him a white ſtone, and in the ſtone a newe name written, which no man knoweth, ſaue he that receiueth it.

Theſe words are the concluſion of this Epiſtle, which containeth two parts, a commandement, and a promiſe. The commandement in theſe words, Let him that hath an eare heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches. The promiſe in the words following, To him that ouercommeth, &c. The commandement ſerueth to ſtirre vp Gods church to attention, in marking that which Chriſt deliuereth vnto them, as hath beene ſhewed before, verſ. 7.

In this commandement of Chriſt note two things; Firſt, that all men in Gods church are bound in conſcience to frequent Sermons, whereby they may come to the knowledge of thoſe things that God preſcribeth vnto them. At the natiuitie, Eaſter, and ſuch good times as they are called, ignorant people will come to the church: but it may be not once more of a month after, or a quarter of a yere. But Chriſt ſaith, a my ſheep heare my voice. So that he

that

A that will not come to heare the voice of Chriſt, is none of his ſheepe. Matt. 16.19. Chriſt ſaith to Peter, I will giue thee the keyes of the kingdome of heauen. There the preaching of the Goſpel, is the key of the kingdome of heauen: So that looke how neceſſarie it is for a man to haue his ſoule ſaued, and to enter into heauen, ſo behoouefull it is for him to heare Sermons: for that is the turning of the key whereby wee enter into this kingdome. 2. Cor. 5. 18. the preaching of the Goſpell is the doctrine of reconciliation: and therefore looke how neceſſary it is for a man to bee reconciled to God; ſo needfull it is for him to heare the word preached. He that is of God, heareth Gods word: & and he that heareth it not, is not of God, 1. Ioh. B 4. 6. But men haue many excuſes to exempt themſelues from hearing Sermons: Some ſay, if God himſelfe would preach, or Chriſt, or an Angell from heauen, then they would heare; but ſo long as ſinneſull man preacheth it is no great matter though they abſent themſelues. Anſw. This is a preſumptuous reaſon; for the preaching of the Goſpel by man; is Gods own ordinance; and that for theſe cauſes: Firſt, ſince Adams fall man cannot abide the voyce of God: ſo as if man ſhould heare God ſpeake, he would cry out with the Iewes, Exod. 20. 19. Let not God talke with vs leſt we die. And with Peter [b], Depart from me, I am a miſerable ſinner. Secondly, God ſpeaketh by man to trie the C obedience and humilitie of men; to ſee whether they would be content to receiue and beleeue his word, being propounded by ſinneſull man that is like vnto themſelues. And thirdly, to maintaine loue betweene man and man, by mutuall conuerſing in this holy ordinance. Others do ſay, they may well ynough keep themſelues in their families, for there they haue their Bible wherein be the ſermons of Chriſt, and of his Prophets & Apoſtles, then which no miniſter can preach better. Anſ. It is Gods ordināce, that theſe Sermons of Chriſt, of the Prophets, and Apoſtles, ſhould be againe handled, preached, and expounded in his Church: and therefore euery man is bound in conſcience to come D into the congregations, and there to heare with reuerence Gods holy word. Others will not come to the Church, for (they thanke God) they can ſerue God with as good a heart on horſe-back, or on their iourneyes, as thoſe that come vnto the Sermons. Anſ. Theſe perſons are blind and ignorant, a ſeduced heart beguileth them, and therefore they deſpiſe the ordinance of God; but let them heare what Salomon ſaith, [c] Hee that turneth away his eare from hearing the law, that is, the doctrine of God: euen his prayer ſhall be abhominable. God ſpeaketh to vs in the miniſterie of his word, and if we refuſe to heare him there, ſhall we thinke he wil heare vs when we pray? Know therefore, if thou refuſe his word, he wil refuſe thy praiers: neither indeed can any without the word pray aright. Such people deceiue themſelues, their prayers in their needleſſe iourneyes ſhall bee their iudges to condemne them; for therein they confeſſe God is to bee worſhipped, and yet in practiſe they reiect his direction for the ſame. Laſtly, others ſay they haue knowledge ynough, the miniſters can teach them no more then they know: and therefore they need not goe heare ſo much preaching. Anſ. Theſe that pretend ſuch perfect knowledge, are commonly the moſt ignorant, not knowing the ende of this ordinance of God: for preaching ſerueth not onely to teach men to know God and his will; but alſo to increaſe in knowledge, and to yeeld obedience to that which they know. If therefore thou haſt knowledge, it is well; but that is not ynough, if thou wouldeſt be bleſſed thou muſt doe that which thou knoweſt, Ioh. 13. 17. And for this cauſe the moſt learned man that is, muſt ſtill frequent the hearing of Sermons, to further himſelfe in obedience: becauſe a man may know much, and yet want conſcience to obey.

[b] Luk.5.8.

[c] Prov.28.9.

.10.17.

Secondly, in this commaundement men are inioyned the reading of the word, and hearing of it read, not onely publikely, but alſo priuatly in their families: that thereby alſo they may come to the knowledge of that thing which Chriſt propoundeth vnto them. Luk. 10. 26. Chriſt ſaith to one of the Scribes; what is writtē? how readeſt thou? taking it for granted, that men muſt read the Scriptures priuatly. And the Lord ſaith, [a] My people go into captiuitie, becauſe they haue no knowledge: yea they periſh, Hoſ. 4. 6. But wofull is the defect of this dutie; for many haue not the Bible in their houſes for their priuate exerciſe in the word: and in many families it is ſet vp for a ſhew, or lieth couered with duſt, when as cards and tables are worne with vſe. It is not amiſſe for men to get ſtatutes of the land into their houſes, & to read therein for the knowledge of mens laws: but yet herein they are blame-worthy, that either they haue not, or elſe regard not the book of God, whereby they might be acquainted with the ſtatutes of the Lord, for the better guiding of their vnruly affections. Other things in this commandement haue beene obſerued before.

[a] Iſa.5.13.

The ſecond part of this concluſion, is an excellent promiſe made to him that ouercommeth, which for ſubſtance hath beene handled in the concluſion of the former Epiſtle. Here onely ſome ſpeciall bleſſings are particularly promiſed: In the handling whereof two points are to bee conſidered: Firſt, the perſons to whome the promiſe is made, To him that ouercommeth: whereof entreatie was made before verſe 7. Secondly, the bleſſings promiſed, compriſed in this threefold gift of God: Firſt, To eat of the Manna which is hid: Secondly, To receiue a white ſtone: Thirdly, A new name written in the ſtone. All which three ſignifie in effect, The election, vocation, iuſtification, & glorification of Gods people. But I will handle thē in particular. The I. benefit is, The giuing of the hidden Manna to eate. Manna properly ſignifieth that foode which God gaue from the clouds to the people of Iſrael, which for the excellencie of it, is called, The [b] wheat of heauen. The [c] food of the ſtrong, or the food of Angels. In forme it was like [d] Coriander ſeed, and in colour white, in taſt it was pleaſant and ſweet. Herewith God fed his people in the wildernes 40. yeares: to [e] teach them, That man liueth not by bread onely, but by euerie word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. This is thought to be the ſame white Manna which is vſed in ſhops at this day; but I will not diſpute thereof, ſeeing it is doubtfull. That Manna did repreſent a more excellent food: and therefore Paul calleth it, [f] A ſpirituall meat, becauſe it repreſented vnto them the ſpirituall food of the ſoule, Chriſt Ieſus the true Manna, [g] The liuing bread that came downe from heauen: as we may ſee at large, Ioh. 6. And ſo in this place by Manna, we muſt not vnderſtand the Manna of the people of Iſrael: But Chriſt himſelfe the true food of life eternall. How Chriſt doth become vnto vs our ſpirituall Manna, and the true food of life, I will ſhew by theſe concluſions. I. He is this food, not in regard of his doctrine, or of his miracles, nor yet onely in regard of the bleſſings of his death and paſſion: But Chriſt himſelfe God and man is true food of life as is ſhewed at large, Ioh. 6. And in Chriſt himſelfe are his death and paſſion, and the benefits thereof, food vnto the ſoule. II. Concluſ. Chriſt is this food, not as he lay in the manger, or as he now ſitteth in heauen at the right hand of his father: but as he ſuffered the wrath of God & pangs of hell vpon the croſſe, and as he died and was buried; for our life commeth out of Chriſts death. III. Concl. He is this food, not in regard of his godhead, for that no creature can receiue or apply to his iuſtification, or ſanctification: but in regard of his manhood, ſubſiſting in the perſon of the ſonne of God. Chriſts fleſh profiteth nothing, ſeuered from the godhead: but yet his bodie & blood haue this vertue, to bee true ſpirituall food, becauſe they are the fleſh and blood of that perſon which is God. IV. Concl. Chriſt is not a bodily food to be receiued with the hãd, eaten with the mouth, and digeſted in the ſtomack; but he is a ſpirituall food, to be receiued, applyed, and digeſted by faith: And being ſo receiued, he doth preſerue the ſoule vnto eternall life. This faith is that whereby a man is enabled to beleeue that Chriſt crucified is his Chriſt. And thus doth he become our ſpirituall Manna, when by true faith we aſſure our ſelues that he ſuffered for our ſinne, and roſe again for our righteouſneſſe.

The vſe.

Is Chriſt crucified, the true bread of life, and our ſpirituall Manna? then ſhould we long after him, with a true ſpirituall hunger in our very hearts, as truly as any man longeth after meat and drinke. When a man is famiſhed, for the ſtaying of his hunger he will pull his owne fleſh from his bones, and eat it; Euen ſo, for the ſatisfying of our hungry ſoules with Chriſt Ieſus this food of life, we muſt forſake the deareſt thing in all the world, though it be our owne fleſh: For that which we will doe for our bodies, we muſt doe much more for our ſoules. Queſt. How ſhall we attaine to this true ſpirituall hunger? Anſw. It is with the hunger of the ſoule, as it is with the hunger of the bodie. In bodily hunger be two things: A great paine in the ſtomack for want of nouriſhment: And a ſtrong and earneſt appetite, which continueth till the ſtomacke be filled. Euen ſo we ſhould feele a paine in our hearts, riſing from a ſenſe of the wrath of God for our ſinnes; And then we muſt labour to haue a greedy appetite, and earneſt deſire to be filled with Chriſt crucified; and neuer be at reſt till we be ſatiate with the merit of his paſſion, which onely can free vs from Gods wrath, and fill vs with true ioy. But wofull be theſe times: for there is in moſt mens hearts a deadneſſe of ſpirit, whereby they are made inſenſible of inward wants and miſeries: They are like vnto full men that feele no paine for want of food. There is indeede an hunger, nay a greedie worme in many after the profits, pleaſures, and honours of this world: but few or none doe hunger after Chriſt. But if wee would haue [a] a part in the feaſt of the Lambe, we muſt labour to haue this longing appetite after Chriſt: If we be full ſtomacked, we ſhall haue no refreſhing from his merits. Mary ſaith truly in her ſong, [b] God filleth the hungry with good things, but the rich and full go away emptie. Which is a moſt fearefull curſe, when the ſoule is debarred from the food of life: But [c] bleſſed are we if we hunger after Chriſt and his righteouſneſſe, for then we ſhall be ſatisfied: Chriſt will giue vnto vs our fill of the water of life freely, Reue. 21. 6.

a Rev.19.9.
b Luk.1.53.
c Matth.5.6.

Secondly, here we may take a view of the profane madneſſe of the world; For though this bread of life Chriſt Ieſus, be the moſt excellent food of all, farre ſurpaſſing the Iſraelites Manna, the food of Angels; yet it is nothing or little deſired. Men are like to the fooliſh Iſraelites that had more regard to leekes and onions, and to the fleſh pots of Egypt, then to the Angels food which God gaue them from heauen. They ſpend their wits, and their ſtrength, by day and by night that they may ſatiate themſelues with the fraile riches and vaine pleaſures of the world: And yet theſe men haue the name to bee the onely men, whereas indeede they are profane Eſaus, and wicked Iſraelites. As therefore this practiſe is damnable: ſo muſt wee learne to deteſt it. And on the contrarie, ſeeing Chriſt Ieſus is the true Manna, our principall care and deſire muſt bee to be fedde therewith. Wee muſt thinke it is a great diſgrace to Chriſt Ieſus, which he cannot endure without reuenge, that we ſhould haue leſſe regard to him the true bread of life, then to earthly foode which periſheth.

Thirdly, here we may ſee that which is vſuall in the Scripture intreating of the Sacraments, to wit, the name of the ſigne giuen to the thing ſignified: for Chriſt here promiſeth them Manna, meaning thereby not the Iſraelites foode, but himſelfe, whereof their Manna was a ſigne, a ſeale, a pledge: as appeareth plain, becauſe Paul calleth it ſpirituall meate, 1. Cor. 10.2.

Further, Chriſt is not onely called Manna, but hidden Manna, to put a difference betweene himſelfe and the Manna of the Iſraelites, which was viſible that euery man might ſee it. And Chriſt is called hidden Manna for two cauſes: firſt, becauſe no man by nature knoweth this foode, or deſireth it: ſecondly, becauſe God doth not reueale this foode to all men effectually; as may appeare, Matth. 11.25. I giue thee thanks (O Father) that thou haſt hidden theſe things. that is, the doctrine of the Goſpel, and the myſteries of the kingdome of heauen) from the great and wiſe men of the world, and haſt opened them vnto babes.

The vſe.

Is Chriſt hidden Manna? then firſt here learne to take knowledge of the ſtate of men in the world: They know not Chriſt, neither doe they feele in themſelues any want of this food, and therefore they know not what it meaneth: for meate and drinke is neuer knowne, till a man be hungrie. Yea, to many that liue in the Church this Manna is hidden: for though men heare the doctrine of Chriſt, yet not one of an hundred feel in themſelues any want of Chriſt: let the conſcience ſpeake, and this will prooue true. Ignorant people bleſſe themſelues, and ſay all is well, Chriſt is a Sauiour: when as indeede to them Chriſt is hidden. Nay, which is yet more lamentable, to many which teach and preach Chriſt, Chriſt is hidden Manna: for many of them neuer felt in their hearts and conſcience, that they had neede of Chriſt for the pardon of their ſinnes, and the ſaluation of their ſoules. It is not the knowledge in the braine that maketh Chriſt knowne to man; but knowledge in the conſcience, when a man feeles in his heart and ſoule, that he ſtands in neede of the blood of Chriſt, and all the benefits of his paſſion for his redemption and ſaluation. And ſeeing this is the condition of the world, we on the contrarie muſt labour to feele in our ſelues that we ſtand in neede of Chriſt, and of all the benefits of his paſſion, to free our ſoules from the gulfe of hell, and the wrath of God. Away with bare mentall knowledge: for till we haue this true ſenſe of our owne wants, we can neuer get into our hearts any ſound grace.

Secondly, is Chriſts hidden bread not reuealed to all? Then calling effectuall to ſaluation (ſo as if he will, euery man may be ſaued) is not vniuerſall: for then ſhould Chriſt not be hidden, but reuealed to all: which is not ſo. Election therefore and effectuall vocation is definite and particular. And thus much of the firſt branch of this gift.

The ſecond gift, is a white ſtone. Here Chriſt borroweth a compariſon from the cuſtome and manner of the Gentiles, to whome theſe Epiſtles are directed. A white ſtone was of great vſe among them: For firſt, the Iudge in giuing ſentence, vſed white ſtones, and blacke ſtones: the giuing of a white ſtone, was a token of abſolution; the giuing of a blacke ſtone, a ſigne of condemnation. Here then the giuing of a white ſtone, may ſignifie abſolution from Chriſt, of all a mans ſinnes and treſpaſſes. Againe, when the Gentiles would know, which were luckie daies (as they ſpeake) and which were vnluckie, they vſed to caſt lots with white and blacke ſtones, and that day which light on a white ſtone, was iudged to be a luckie day, that which light on a blacke ſtone was iudged to be vnluckie. This practiſe they vſed as might be ſhewed by ſufficient records. And though this practiſe haue no warrant, yet may Chriſt allude vnto it, to ſignifie vnto them that he will giue them good ſucceſſe in all their actions: yea happie daies, and a bleſſed life full of all ioyes and pleaſures. Others doe expound it of giuing victorie, whereof the giuing of a white ſtone was a ſigne: but this is not ſo fit, neither can it be ſhewed by true record that they had ſuch a practiſe. I rather take it Chriſt alludeth to the firſt, and here promiſeth to him that ouercommeth, the true remiſſion of all his ſinnes, and full abſolution; not in regard of ciuill puniſhment, but in reſpect of guilt and puniſhment before God, which is eternall damnation.

Here note one infallible token of the pardon of ſinne; namely, to ouercome, that is, to renounce our ſelues, and by faith relie wholly on Chriſt, teſtifying this faith by maintaining good conſcience, and true religion vnto the ende: And therefore if any deſire to know whether God haue abſolued him of his ſinnes, let him labour thus to ouercome, and then ſhall this aſſurance be ſealed vp vnto him.

The third gift, is a new name written in the ſtone. What this new name ſhould be S. Iohn expreſſeth in his firſt Epiſtle, chap. 3. verſ. 1. ſaying, Behold, what loue the Father hath ſhewed to vs that we ſhould be called the ſonnes of God. This new name therefore is to be the ſonne and heire of God in Chriſt. And becauſe it is giuen of God himſelfe, therefore we muſt not thinke it is an idle name, or a bare title onely: but withal God giueth him a new cōdition, wherof this name is a token and title. God chaunged Abrams name, and called him Abraham; but it was when he had changed his eſtate, and made him the father of the faithfull. And there was a change in Iacob, when God called him Iſrael. This new name then ſignifieth the giuing of a new eſtate to a man or woman, which they had not before: namely, their regeneration, whereby they are made to die vnto ſinne, and to liue vnto God: for therewith goeth

A the bleſſing of adoption, whereby they become the ſonnes of God, and heires with Chriſt, and ſo haue heauen and earth for their poſſeſſion: and all miſeries and croſſes, yea ſinne it ſelfe turning to their good; they haue alſo the protection of Gods holy Angels in this life, and at the laſt gaſpe death to be no death, but a ſtrait paſſage to eternall life.

Further, this newe name is ſaid to be written in the white ſtone: that is, in the pledge of abſolution; which ſheweth the vnion of theſe two: Abſolution, and Regeneration. So that whom the Lord of his mercie abſolues from their ſinnes, them in his bounty he brings to a newe eſtate and condition. He that is in Chriſt is a newe creature, 2. Cor. 5. 17. A point to be B obſerued, as yeelding ſpeciall aduiſe to reforme the groſſe and common abuſe of Chriſt. Men perſwade themſelues, that Chriſt is their Sauiour, and will pardon their ſinnes, for he is mercifull: and thereupon they take occaſion to liue as they liſt. But let no man herewith deceiue himſelfe: for they that haue abſolution, haue regeneration alſo: a newe condition of life goes with the fruition of Gods mercie in Chriſt: they that goe on in ſinne, haue not the pardon of ſinne: the corruption of ſinne muſt be aboliſhed, where the guilt of ſinne is abſolued; and their liues are reformed that haue their ſinnes remitted. Here ſome man may ſay, Why are not thoſe C called by this newe name, to whom Chriſt giues it, for vſually men are called after their names? The anſwer is made in the ende of the verſe: Becauſe no man knoweth that name ſaue he that receiueth it: that is, in that manner and certaintie as he that receiueth it. And therefore the children of god muſt not be much offended when they are reuiled for their profeſſion, becauſe the world knowes not their eſtate.

Here we may obſerue diuerſe points: Firſt, that he which is the child of God, and hath this newe name giuen him, knowes that he is Gods child, iuſtified and ſanctified. Neither is this knowledge by probable coniecture onely, and good hope, as the Papiſts would haue it; but certaine and infallible: for elſe others D ſhould knowe it as well as he that receiueth it: which is here denied. Each one is bound in charitie to be perſwaded, that godly profeſſors are the ſonnes and daughters of God: But the man himſelfe that hath receiued this newe name and newe eſtate, he knowes it otherwiſe, and therefore certainely and infallibly.

Secondly, if no man knowe this name but he that receiueth it; then can none beſide God and the conſcience, know from within the man, his particular faith and adoption. And hereby we are to be admoniſhed, to beware of charging the euill and hard cenſure of hypocriſie vpon any that liue in the church: in ſo doing we ouerſhoot our ſelues: this iudgement belongs to god, not to man, ſaue onely to the man himſelfe; for we cannot diſcerne the good within the man properly, but by effects. Queſt. How farre forth may a man iudge of another mans election? Anſ. There be two degrees of iudgement, iudgement of certaintie, and iudgement of charitie. Iudgement of certaintie is when a man can ſet downe certainely, ſuch a man ſhall be ſaued: This is peremptorie iudgement belonging vnto God, and to ſome men onely, ſo farre forth as the Lord reuealeth it vnto them: as he did the eſtate of ſome men, to Dauid and to ſome Prophets. Whereupon Dauid ſometimes prayes for the finall deſtruction of his enemies: but this is not giuen ordinarily, no not to Gods miniſters. The iudgement of charitie is that, which binds a man to iudge the beſt of another: and herein be two degrees. Firſt, touching the vnregenerate, charitie binds vs, not to deſpaire of ſuch as yet liue profanely; but to hope that God will in good time call them. And touching the regenerate, who haue giuen good teſtimonies of their vocation, charitie binds vs to be perſwaded without doubt that they be the children of God. And this we may do without repugnãce to this place: for though we cannot from within the man knowe his eſtate, yet by the fruits we may; which is the higheſt degree of iudgement that charitie can exerciſe.

Thirdly, here we ſee the Church of Rome is deceiued, who make Viſibilitie the marke of Gods Church: for Gods Church is a companie of men which beleeue: the ground of the church is Gods election, and adoption, and mans faith, which none other can ſee but the parties that haue them. The ſignes thereof may be ſeene, but properly the church cannot be ſeene. It comes to be viſible by the fruits of election, and by the outward works of loue, which proceede from faith. We therefore hold farre better, that we beleeue there is a church, and not that we ſee the church.

Laſtly, if others knowe not the name of Gods children, then what maruell is it, if the wicked miſcall them? 1. Iohn 3. 2. The world knowes vs not. Gods children therefore muſt not be daunted at the reproches of the wicked, but pray with Chriſt, Father forgiue them, they knowe not what they doe, Luk. 23. 34.

v. 18. And vnto the Angel which is at Thyatira write, Theſe things ſaith the ſonne of God, which hath his eyes like to a flame of fire, and his feete like fine braſſe.

Here followeth the fourth particular commaundement of Chriſt vnto Iohn, as alſo the fourth particular Epiſtle. The commaundement in theſe words: To the Angel which is at Thyatira write; of the ſubſtance of this commandement I haue ſpoken before: onely remember the ende thereof, which is to certifie this church of Thyatira, that Iohn had a calling and commandement from God to write this Epiſtle vnto them: and further to certifie the whole Church of God, to the end of the world, of his calling to write this booke of the Reuelation.

The Epiſtle it ſelfe containeth three parts: a Preface, a Propoſition, and a Concluſion. The Preface in theſe words: Theſe things ſaith the ſonne of God, which hath his eyes like vnto a flame of fire, and his feete like fine braſſe: all which things almoſt haue beene handled in the beginning of this chapter, and in the former from whence they are borrowed. Verſ. 5. 14. 15. In the Preface, firſt is ſet downe in whoſe name the Epiſtle is written, to wit, in Chriſts name: the cauſes thereof we haue ſhewed before. Then Chriſt is deſcribed by three arguments: Firſt, To be the ſonne of God: Secondly, To haue eyes like a flame of fire: Thirdly, To haue feete like fine braſſe. For the firſt, in the former chapter he was called the ſonne of man; but here he is called the ſonne of God: where by God we muſt not abſolutely vnderſtand the godhead of the whole Trinitie, but the perſon of the father, who beeing oppoſed either to the ſonne or to the holy Ghoſt, is vſually called God: not that hee is God more then the ſonne, or then the holy Ghoſt; but becauſe he is the firſt in order, and becauſe he is that perſon from whom the godhead is communicated to the ſonne and to the holy Ghoſt. So that here Chriſt is called the ſonne of the father: which myſterie we cannot fully vnderſtand, for the word hath not reuealed the ſame; neither can we find it elſwhere out of the word. But yet for the better conceiuing thereof, remember theſe two rules. I. That Chriſt is the ſonne of the father, not in reſpect of his godhead, but in reſpect of his perſon: For the Godhead of the Sonne is the ſame with the Godhead of the Father: The Godhead of the Father doth not beget, neither is the Godhead of the Sonne begotten. II. Rule. Chriſt is the ſonne of the father, not by creation, as the Angels and Adam were; nor by adoption, as euerie beleeuer is; but by nature, in that he is begotten of the ſubſtance of his father before all the world; for the father communicates from himſelfe the whole godhead that is in himſelfe vnto his ſonne.

The vſe. Chriſt is here called the ſonne of God, to ſtirre vp reuerence, attention, and care in this Church, in marking and obeying the things that follow in this particular Epiſtle. And in their example Chriſt alſo teacheth vs, that when we heare the word of God preached or read vnto vs, we ſhould receiue it with feare, and trembling and reuerence: becauſe he that ſpeaketh vnto vs out of his word, is the ſonne of God. When Pilat was about to condemne our Sauiour Chriſt, he heard it ſaid, that Chriſt was the ſonne of God; and thereupon he trembled, and was the more afraid, Ioh. 19. 8. Shall a ſilly heathen man that knowes not Chriſt A tremble towards him when he heares his name; and yet we that profeſſe our ſelues to beleeue in him, be nothing mooued with reuerence towards him, when hee ſpeakes vnto vs in his word? At his preſence the hils melt, and at his voyce the rocks cleaue in ſunder: and therefore if our hearts ſhall not melt and cleaue aſunder with a reuerent feare when he ſhall ſpeake vnto vs, wee are worſer then theſe ſenceleſſe creatures.

Secondly, Chriſt is ſaid, To haue eyes like a flame of fire: which we muſt not conceiue literally. The words are borrowed from the former chapter, verſ. 14. where Chriſt is deſcribed not as he is in truth, but as hee appeared to Iohn in viſion. We haue ſhewed before what is B ſignified by theſe fierie eyes: namely, Chriſts infinite wiſedome in himſelfe, and vigilant zeale ouer his Church. The end wherefore hee ſo deſcribeth himſelfe to this Church, is, to giue them to vnderſtand, that he can ſee and diſcerne their verie ſecrets ſinnes: for ſundrie among them were giuen to priuate offences, as to fornication and idolatrie, as wee ſhall ſee afterward.

The vſe. Here then we haue an excellent remedie againſt ſecret ſinnes: ſhame and feare of puniſhment reſtraine ſome men from open ſinnes, but yet the ſame men when they are in ſecret, doe without feare commit priuie ſinnes againſt the firſt and ſecond table. But theſe men muſt re- C member, that beeing withdrawne from the preſence of men, they are yet in the preſence of Chriſt; for hee hath fierie eyes, wherewith he ſeeth their moſt ſecret ſinnes, which they hide from the world. For though we may make faire weather with men, yet we can neuer bleare the eyes of Chriſt. If fornicators, wantons, vſurers, and blaſphemers, would remember this, by Gods grace it would be a notable meanes at leaſt to reſtraine them from their ſecret ſinnes, if not to mooue them vnto the practiſe of true repentance.

Thirdly, Chriſt is ſaid to haue feet like fine braſſe. Whereby is ſignified (as hath beene ſhewed) his infinite power and ſtrength, where- D by he doth ſubdue ſinne, Sathan, and all his enemies, firſt vnto himſelfe, and then vnto his members. And Chriſt is thus deſcribed vnto this Church, to terrifie certaine wicked men among them, that gaue themſelues to fornication, idolatrie, and other ſinnes: as alſo to affright this whole church, who by their wicked companie were almoſt drawne away to the ſame ſinnes.

The vſe. Here wee haue a notable remedie againſt looſeneſſe of life: namely, to conſider that Chriſt, whom we call our Sauiour, walketh continually, in his Church, with feet of braſſe to tread Satan and all his enemies vnder his feet: and ſuch are all that will not ſubmit themſelues to the regiment of his word, Luk. 19. 27. If the blaſphemer could conſider this, it would ſtop his mouth: and when the adulterer, the theefe, or any ſinner goeth about his wicked deuices, this by Gods grace would be a notable meanes to make him breake of his wicked purpoſe. When Benhadad heard, that the king of Iſrael would come againſt him in battell, [a] He ſent his men with ropes about their neckes to craue peace, and in them humbled himſelfe. Shall men be thus afraid of the fury of man, and ſhall not we tremble and feare at the fury of Chriſt, who hath theſe feet of braſſe to trample in peeces all his enemies? The want of this conſideration is one mayne cauſe why ſinne doth abound.

V. 19. I know thy workes, and thy loue and ſeruice, and faith, and thy patience, and thy deedes, which are moe at the laſt then at the firſt.

Here begins the ſecond part of this Epiſtle, to wit, the Propoſition; which containeth the ſubſtance and matter thereof: and it hath two parts; a commendation of this church, and a rebuke thereof. The commendation in the 19. verſe; the rebucke or diſpraiſe in the 20. verſe, and thoſe that follow, almoſt to the end of the chapter. The commendation is twofold: generall in theſe words, I know thy workes. This hath beene handled before, verſ. 2. The particular commendation ſtandeth in fiue notable works: to wit, Loue, Seruice, Faith, Patience, and Encreaſe in godlineſſe.

For the firſt, by Loue wee muſt vnderſtand, Loue to men: for afterward they are commended in duties to God, in faith and patience: but loue and ſeruice are duties of man to man. Touching Loue note three points: What this loue is; What is the propertie of this loue: and how it is to be practiſed. Firſt, Loue to man is a gift of the ſpirit of God, whereby a man is well affected to his neighbour for Gods ſake. That loue is a gift of the Spirit, is plaine, Gal. 5. 22. where it is reckoned among the gifts of the ſpirit. Next I adde, That hereby a man is well affected to his neighbour. To be well affected to another, is to reioyce at his good, and to deſire and ſeeke the ſame; and withall to be grieued at his miſerie, and to beare the bowels of compaſſion towards him, beeing readie to releeue and helpe him to our vttermoſt. By Neighbour we muſt not vnderſtand onely thoſe that are neere vnto vs in habitation, but euen all thoſe that are of the ſame nature with vs, euen any of mankind. He is thy neighbour, that is a man as thou art, and ſo bearing the image of God as thou doeſt, be he friend or foe, neere or ſtranger vnto thee: and to him muſt thou be well affected. Laſtly, I ſay, For Gods ſake: for God is firſt and principally to be loued for himſelfe, and man in God and for God, becauſe he is the creature of God, and beareth his image. The loue we beare to man, is a fruit of our loue vnto God for this commandement we haue of him, That he that loueth God, ſhould loue his brother alſo, 1. Iohn. 4. 21.

II. Point. The propertie of this loue is, To be feruent; and that for two cauſes: Firſt, if neede require, euery man is bound within his calling to teſtifie his loue [a] by giuing his life for his neighbour, though he be our enemie or a ſtranger; which we ſhall neuer doe vnleſſe our loue be feruent. Secondly, there is much ingratitude, hatred, emulation, and many iniuries in the world: Now the perſons from whom theſe come, muſt be loued: the vnworthineſſe of the partie muſt not quench our loue, but it muſt burne when the waters of mens iniuries and malice would quench the ſame.

a Ioh.3.16.

III. Point. The practiſe of our loue muſt be ſquared by this rule, The loue of our ſelues; as we wiſh our owne good heartily, ſo we muſt wiſh our neighbours good. This is the law of Nature, To doe as a man would be done vnto: And it is the law of God, Thou ſhalt loue thy neighbour as thy ſelfe. Example: A man of ſome trade is to make a bargaine, and if he will lie, or vſe falſe weights and meaſures, he may aduantage himſelfe. This the deuill and his owne corruption will ſuggeſt vnto him, while he is about the bargaine: he therefore muſt call to minde this rule of loue, and examine his owne heart, whether he would haue another man to deceiue him by lying, by falſe weights, &c. The ſame thing muſt men doe, when they are tempted to oppreſſion or crueltie, let them thinke whether they would haue others to wrong or oppreſſe them; and ſo ſhewe forth loue by this rule, doing as they would be done vnto. It were to be wiſhed, that our Church might haue the deſerued praiſe of this vertue of loue: But Chriſt foretolde of theſe our dayes, That loue ſhould waxe colde, Matth. 24. 12. And [a] that men ſhould be louers of theſmelues. And ſo it is, for euery man now is for himſelfe, no man ſeekes anothers good. Goe through townes, markets, and faires, and rare it is to finde a man that in his affaires ſeeketh the common good, as well as his owne. For this is the common rule, May I not make of mine owne what I will? But he that hath the grace of loue, Seeketh not his owne onely, but the good of others alſo, 1. Corinth. 13. 5.

a 2.Tim.3.2.

The vſe.

Here then we muſt learne to practiſe this vertue, that we may haue Chriſts commendation with this church. Euery man in the generall calling of a Chriſtian will make great ſhewe of loue; as when he comes to the Lords table, and in prayer: But in their particular affaires fewe ſhewe forth true loue, nay many by lying, oppreſſion, crueltie, Flea the skinne from the fleſh, and the fleſh from the bone of the poore, and breake the bones within the fleſh, and chop them as for the pot, as the Prophet ſpeaketh. Theſe little conſider this rule, or that account which the Lord will take of them, who hath ſworne

A neuer to forget theſe works, Amos. 8. 7. Learne therefore in thy particular calling to ſhew forth loue: and imploy thy commodities, not for thy ſelfe alone, but for the good of thoſe with whom thou liueſt: herein is loue, and hereby ſhalt thou be known to be the ſeruant of Chriſt, Ioh. 13. 35. and the childe of God, Tranſlated from death to life, 1. Ioh. 3. 14.

The ſecond thing for which this church is commended, is ſeruice. To omit the diuers ſignifications of the word, here it betokeneth a worke of loue, whereby a man within the compaſſe of his calling becomes a ſeruant vnto euery man for that mans good. Read Hebr. 6. 10. where this is both commended and B deſcribed. Gal. 5. 13. Doe ſeruice one to another in loue. 1. Cor. 13. 5. Loue ſeeketh not her owne, but maketh herſelfe ſeruant to all, to doe them good. And Chriſts commandement is, Let him that would be chiefe among you, be as the ſeruant, Luk. 22. 26. Now the principall part of this ſeruice is, when a man is ready with his goods, according to his abilitie, to helpe the poore, eſpecially thoſe that be godly. This is a fruite of loue, and therefore it is here ſet after it, as alſo in the places before named, Heb. 6. 10. Gal. 5. 13.

The vſe. It were to be wiſhed that our church and people might haue the like praiſe for this vertue. But the richer ſort ſpend their ſubſtance and wealth vpon haukes and hounds, buls, and C beares, vpon coſtly attire, and banqueting: ſo as when the poore that are in need come for reliefe, they haue nothing to ſpare; and if any thing be giuen, it is drawn as hardly from them as a ribbe out of their ſide: Men will giue frankly to delight themſelues with plaies and paſtimes, and ſuch like vanities; but the poore that be their owne fleſh, may die in the ſtreets for want of that which men giue to their dogs. But if we reſpect the commendation of Chriſt Ieſus, let vs abandon theſe vanities which hinder vs in the practiſe of this vertue of ſeruice for the good of our brethren. And to induce all men hereto, let them conſider, I. how the church of the olde teſtament was charged with giuing the firſt fruites of their wine, corne, and D oyle; and likewiſe with many ſacrifices and ceremonies which belonged to the temple: Theſe things indeede be ceaſed, and yet we may not miſpend theſe goods which hereby are ſpared; for in the newe teſtament the poore are in ſtead of the altar, and they muſt haue that which the altar had among the Iewes. Againe, Iſay 58. 18. He that powreth forth his ſoule to the hungrie, that is, he that ſeeing the poore in miſerie, hath the bowells of compaſſion mooued towards them, and from his pitifull heart releeueth their wants, according to his abilitie, his light ſhall neuer be put out, but ſhall ſpring out of the darkeneſſe, and his darkeneſſe ſhall be as the noone day. This is pure religion and vndefiled before God, to viſit the fatherleſſe, and the widdowe in their aduerſitie. Iam. 1. 27. Remember this, He that hath mercie vpon the poore, lendeth vnto the Lord, Prou. 19. 17. So that when the poore come for releefe, God commeth to borrow of vs ſome of that which he hath giuen vs. The poore are the Lords collectors, now when the Lord would borrow of vs, ſhall we make deniall, and ſend him emptie away? Thirdly, conſider that Chriſt himſelfe comes in the perſon of the poore that is hungrie, ſicke, naked, or in any want; and therefore if we would eſcape the fearefull ſentence of condemnation at the laſt day, Away from me ye curſed into euerlaſting fire, for I was an hungred, and yee gaue me no meate, &c. then we muſt haue regard vnto the poore, and ſhew our bounty in their releefe, who are our owne fleſh: ſo ſhall we make God our debtor, and be commended with this church by Chriſt himſelfe in this world, and at the day of iudgement heare that bleſſed voyce of his approbation, Come ye bleſſed, Mat. 25. 34.

The third vertue for which this church is commended, is their faith. By faith here we are to vnderſtand fidelitie; which is a vertue whereby a man is faithfull to God in keeping that vowe and promiſe which he made to him in his baptiſme: which was to renounce and denie himſelfe, and wholly to giue vp himſelfe to acknowledge one God in three perſons; and accordingly to beleeue in, to worſhip and obey the ſame God all his life long. In this ſenſe is faith taken of Paul [a] when he ſaith, That younger widdowes haue damnation, becauſe they haue forſaken their firſt faith: and in the former Epiſtles of Chriſt vnto theſe Churches, where he commands them to be faithfull.

[a] 1. Tim. 5. 12.

The vſe. It were to be wiſhed that our churches and congregations, might in like manner be commended for their fidelitie to God: but that cannot truly be done of vs generally. It is a common thing for men to ſweare by their faith; but it is a rare thing to finde a man to keepe his faith; as will appeare by this ſhort ſuruey of our people: For firſt, the greateſt part in all places are ignorant of God, of his word, and of their vowe in baptiſme; and alſo voide of care to attaine hereto. Now all theſe are vnfaithfull vnto God. Others, though they haue knowledge, yet they haue no loue, nor care of good things, which concerne the kingdome of heauen: but all their delight is in eating, drinking, gaming, and in paſtimes and pleaſures: Herein they ſpend their time and ſtrength, and theſe alſo haue denied their firſt faith, and their caſe is dangerous: for as yet their bellie and their pleaſure is their God, and their ende will be damnation. A third ſort are tearmed the wiſe men of the world; but if we regard their fidelitie to God, there is nothing in them; they are worldly perſons and earthly minded, ſuch as ſpend both wit and ſtrength to get wealth; like vnto the mole, who is alwaies in the earth. Theſe alſo are vnfaithfull vnto God, in regard of their vowe in baptiſme. For as they account gaine godlineſſe, ſo gold is their God,and they ſay to the wedge of gold, Thou art my confidence. Seeing then all theſe be vnfaithfull vnto God, we muſt be admoniſhed to remember what we haue promiſed in our baptiſme: And withall haue care to performe the ſame as we tender the ſaluation of our ſoules. For if we be vnfaithfull, as Paul ſaid of the younger widdowes, damnation belongs vnto vs.

The fourth vertue for which this church is commended, is patience. Of this I haue ſpoken before verſ. 2. Here onely note,that it is ioyned with loue to men, with fidelitie to God, and with ſeruice both to God and men in the dutie of loue. Whereby Chriſt would ſignifie that no good thing can be done by any man, without patience. Loue is no loue without patience:neither is faith any faith without patience: for when a man loueth another, for his loue he ſhall ſometime receiue hatred. Now vnleſſe he haue patience to beare that hatred, his loue will ſurceaſe. And ſo if a man haue care to be faithfull vnto God, in the world he ſhal be ſure to haue much contempt: ſo that vnleſſe he haue patience to beare the ſame,his faithfulnes wil faile: Patience bringeth forth experience, and experience hope, Rom. 5.4. and 15.4. No comfort of the ſcriptures,nor hope without patience. And therefore in the parable of the ſower, The good ground [a] bringeth forth fruit with patience: though a man haue neuer ſo good gtfts, yet without patience he cannot put them in practiſe. This therefore we muſt ioyne with all the good graces we haue: as Peter counſelleth vs, 2. Pet. 1.6. When a man is in temptation, and apprehendeth the wrath of God, which is the ſoreſt thing that can be, without patience he will deſpaire: Without patience a man will be wearie of wel-doing, both in duties to God and man, and to his owne ſoule.Hence the Apoſtle ſaith, yee haue neede of patience, Heb. 10. 36.

[a] Luk.8.15.

And thy works. Here Chriſt repeateth his generall commendation of this church, which we muſt not thinke to be done in vaine, but hereby he would let vs ſee,how exceeding well he did approoue of their works. The cauſe why he liked them ſo well, was their encreaſe in wel-doing: whereof wee ſhall intreat afterward.

The vſe. Chriſt repeateth his approbation of their works after foure worthy vertues, to ſhew vnto vs, what things are required in the doing of any worke that ſhall be acceptable to God: Namely, theſe foure things, faith, loue,ſeruice, and patience. Faith is neceſſarie, becauſe in wel-doing a man muſt teſtifie his fidelitie to God, which he ſhall beſt doe, if firſt he learne out of the word, whether God haue commanded that worke to be done or not: that ſo he may be ſure to doe or not to doe that which God will haue him: for it is not ſufficient to haue a good intent in the doing of our workes, as is commonly thought, though falſly;but our workes muſt be done in faith, that is, in a ſure perſwaſion out of Gods word, that the things we doe are approoued of God; for whatſoeuer is not of faith, is ſinne. Secondly, loue is neceſſarie in euery good worke we goe about, *For faith worketh by loue. Gal.*5.6. Hence the Apoſtle ſaith, 1. Cor. 13. 3. If a man ſhould giue his bodie to be burned, and beſtowe all his goods in almes vpon the poore: yet if he did not theſe in loue, it would not pleaſe God. Thirdly, ſeruice to man is required in our good works. This muſt be carefully marked: for the ende of mans life is in his calling to ſerue man, and by that to ſerue God. Col. 3. 24. Seruants muſt obey their maſters, and in their perſons doe ſeruice vnto Chriſt. And that which is there ſpoken of ſeruants, muſt be referred to the works of euery man in his calling: they muſt be done for the good of men,ſo as God may be ſerued in them. This ouerthrowes the fooliſh conceit of the Papiſts,which think that the moſt excellent works of all are faſting, pilgrimage, wearing of rough attire, and whipping of their bodies: For good workes muſt be done in faith and loue, to benefit men, either in ſoule or bodie: but theſe works of theirs are not done in faith, neither doe they profit the doers nor any others: Faſting hath it place, yet it is no good worke,but a thing indifferent in it ſelfe. Laſtly, patience is neceſſarie in euery good worke, that men faint not in doing that which is good: for they that doe any good thing,ſhall be ſure of many croſſes, partly from men, and partly from Sathan, as alſo by Gods prouidence. Now when theſe befall a man in wel-doing, without patience they will ſtay his proceeding:And therfore it is truely ſaid, That the good ground bringeth forth fruit with patience.

The vſe. Theſe beeing the vertues that make a worke acceptable to God: we muſt labour in euery action of our lawfull calling whatſoeuer it be, to practiſe the ſame in faith, loue, ſeruice, and patience. Wee muſt not tie good workes to church matters onely, as hearing the word, and giuing almes; but the practiſe of any worke of a mans lawfull calling, be it neuer ſo baſe, with theſe vertues is a good worke, and approoued of God in it kind, as well as the beſt worke that is: not for the worke it ſelfe, but becauſe therein doth appeare faith, loue, ſeruice, and patience:and becauſe this Church ſo performed their works,therefore doth God double his approbation.

The laſt vertue for which this church is commended,is increaſe in godlines, in theſe words, And that they are moe at the laſt then at the firſt. The church of Epheſus was before reprooued for decay and loſſe of the graces of God: but this church did growe and increaſe in graces, and therefore are her workes more approoued, then the workes of any other church.

The vſe. It were to be wiſhed, that our congregations might be commended for their increaſe in godlineſſe, in faith, obedience,and other good works; but that cannot iuſtly be done, for the number of our people is increaſed, but their growth in grace doth not appeare. Many liue in ignorance, and though they heare much, yet they profit little, ſo as it might be ſaid of them, as the author to the Hebrews ſaith, [a] Whereas concerning the time yee ought to bee teachers, you haue need againe that we teach you the firſt principles of the word of God. And as Paul ſaith of certaine women, [b] They are alwaies learning, and neuer come to the knowledge of the truth. Others alſo, though they knowe ſomething, yet they practiſe leſſe then they which know nothing. And which is worſt of al, many that heretofore haue had good beginning in them, by their bad conuerſation, and the greedie cares of this world haue loſt the ſame againe, and goe backward in knowledge, in obedience, in faith, and loue. Rare it is to finde thoſe that are like to this Church of Thyatira, whoſe workes are better at the laſt then at the firſt. A fearefull caſe it is, to bee ignorant of Gods will, and a great iudgement of God, to decay in loue, and other graces: and therefore that we may preuent Gods iudgements, wee muſt haue care to get knowledge, and to increaſe therein, and with knowledge to ioyne obedience in all good duties to God and man. Some plead for themſelues by reaſon of age, want of memory, and capacitie: but theſe muſt learne to ſhew forth better affections, and more ſincere obedience.

The yonger ſort alſo muſt imploy their wit and ſtrength to get knowledge, & with knowledge ioyne obedience, that they may increaſe in grace as they grow in dayes. Yea euery one that hath any good beginning, muſt endeuour to make it more: For to him that hath ſhall more bee giuen, and he ſhall haue abundance; but from him that hideth his gift, or abuſeth the ſame, ſhall be taken away that which he ſeemeth to haue, Luk. 8. 18.

V. 20. Notwithſtanding I haue a few things againſt thee, that thou ſuffereſt that woman Ieſabel, which calleth her ſelfe a Propheteſſe, to teach and deceiue my ſeruants, to make them to commit fornication, and to eat meat ſacrificed to idols.

Here is Chriſts reproofe of this Church of Thyatira, and it is twofold: Firſt, of the whole Church, in this 20. verſe. Secondly, of a woman in that Church, verſ. 21. In the reproofe of the whole Church note two things: The reproofe it ſelfe; And the reaſon thereof. The reproofe it ſelfe is contained in theſe words, Notwithſtanding I haue ſomething againſt thee: that is, though I haue praiſed thee for many worthy workes, yet there be ſome things which I doe not approoue. This reproofe hath beene handled in the former Epiſtles. The reaſon of the reproofe followeth in theſe words, That thou ſuffereſt the woman Ieſabel, who calleth her ſelfe a Propheteſſe, to teach and ſeduce my ſeruants.

This reaſon of her reproofe containeth ſundry points worthy our conſideration. I. From the phraſe & forme of the words, we may conſider the large power that God gaue to his Church: which was, beſides the power to preach the word, and adminiſter the Sacraments, a further power to appoint who ſhould preach among them, and who ſhould not preach: and alſo a power to repreſſe euill men and euill women, and ſo to keep them in order. The like power was giuen to the Church of Epheſus, as we haue ſeene in the Epiſtle to that Church: they had power to diſcerne falſe Prophets, and Apoſtles, and to reſtraine the ſame. The like power did God giue to all Churches, as wee ſhall ſee if we read the hiſtories of the Church; and great cauſe there is hereof: For without this authoritie no Church could long ſtand and be a Church.

II. Here note that it is not ſufficient for a Church to haue the preaching of the word, but it muſt haue ſeueritie and ſharpe gouernement, whereby wicked people may be reſtrained. This Church is therefore diſcommended, for that ſhee vſed not that ſeuere authoritie, which God had giuen her in ſuppreſſing of ſinne. And in our congregations the like fault is to bee found; where much preaching is, yet ſinne abounds, as adulterie, blaſphemie, vſurie, and crueltie; and the cauſe is, for that this ſeuere execution of gouernement in reſtraining ſinnes, is not ſo ſtraitly put in practiſe as it ought to be.

Againe, in this reaſon of his reproofe Chriſt doth charge them with two faults: Firſt, for ſuffering a woman to teach: Secondly, for ſuffering a woman to ſeduce his people. For the firſt, the word tranſlated teach, is in the new teſtament commonly put for publike teaching in the miniſterie. Their fault then was this, that they ſuffered a woman to teach openly: and it is againſt the word of God, 1. Tim. 2. 12. I permit not a woman to teach. And, 1. Cor. 14. 34. 35. Women ought to keepe ſilence in the congregation, and be ſubiect to their huſbands, and learne of them at home. Obiect. But Deborah was a Propheteſſe, Iud. 4.4. And Hulda propheſied, 2. Kin. 22. 4. For Ioſiah ſent to her for counſell, 2. Chr. 3.4. And therefore women may propheſie. Anſw. Theſe women had extraordinarie gifts and calling: and therefore vpon their example we may not make an ordinarie rule. II. Obiect. But it may ſeeme Paul alloweth it, when he ſaith, A woman praying, or prophecying vncouered, diſhonoureth her head

[a] Heb. 5. 12.

[b] 2. Tim. 3. 7.

A 1. Cor. 11. 5. Anſ. Hereto ſome doe anſwer thus, that in the infancie of the church ſome women were extraordinarily indued with that gift, and did indeede propheſie. Others iudge it to haue beene a fault in that Church, and therefore ſay, in the 14. chapter, the Apoſtle reprooueth it, commanding women to keepe ſilence in the Churches. Thirdly, a woman may be ſaid to pray, when ſhe giueth her aſſent to the prayer of the miniſter, by ſaying, Amen: And ſhe may be ſaid to propheſie, when ſhe ſingeth Pſalmes, or readeth the Scripture: For ſo the word is vſed in Scripture, 1. Chron. 25. 1. Aſaph and his company propheſied with harps and vialls: that is (as it is tranſlated) they ſung propheſies, and plaid thereunto vpon their inſtruments. B

From the rebuke of Chriſt againſt this church, we gather that it is not warrantable by Gods word for a woman to adminiſter the Sacrament of baptiſme. For baptiſme is a ſeale of the couenant in the publike miniſterie, and ſo a part thereof, and muſt goe with the preaching of the word, and may not be adminiſtred by women, who are not allowed to preach, no not in the time and caſe of neceſſitie when men are wanting. And although they may not teach publikely, yet they may teach at home, and in the abſence of their husband it is her dutie to teach her children. Prou. 31. Lemuel, that is, Salomon is taught many worthie things of his mother. And Timothie was brought vp of a child in the Scriptures by his grandmother Lois, and his mother Eunice, 2. Tim. 1. 5. C

Hence ſome would gather, that as a woman may not teach publikely, ſo ſhe may not publikely gouerne in a Common-wealth. But this conſequence is not good: For publike teaching is flatly forbidden to a woman, ſo is not publike ciuill regiment. There is ſpeciall reaſon why ſhe may not publikely teach; for it is the will of God, that as Chriſt was a man, ſo they that ſtand in his roome and ſtead in the publike miniſterie, ſhould alſo be men. But the regiment of a kingdome is a ciuill thing, and ſo may lawfully be adminiſtred by a woman when ſhe commeth vnto it by lawful ſucceſſion to her father, D whoſe whole patrimonie in the want of ſonnes ſhe may rightly enioy. Obiect. But the woman muſt be in ſubiection vnto the man. 1. Cor. 14. 34. Anſ. So ſhe may, and yet haue ſoueraigntie in the kingdome. Obiect. But the man is the head of the woman, 1. Cor. 11. 3. Anſ. That is, the man in that he is a man is a perſon more excellent then the woman as ſhe is a woman: Yet the perſon that in regard of ſexe is inferiour, may haue more excellent gifts, and ſo likewiſe may exerciſe authority and rule: and we finde by good experience, that the gouernement of a woman is a happie gouernement; no records of time can ſhew a more happie regiment for bleſsings temporall and ſpirituall vnder any man, then we haue long enioyed vnder our noble Queene.

The ſecond fault of this Church is, that they ſuffered a woman to ſeduce and teach falſe doctrine, and thereby to ſeduce Gods people. That this is a fault, Chriſts reproofe ſheweth euidently, and therefore I will not ſtand to prooue it.

The vſe. Hence we may gather, that euery man is not to be left to his owne conſcience, to teach and hold what doctrine he will: but all ſuch men or women as teach erronious doctrines, by the gouernours of the church are to be reſtrained. It is a grieuous fault in any Church not to reſtraine the authors and maintainers of ſects and falſe doctrines, and of opinions which ſtand not with the truth of Gods word: and on the contrary, it is a vertue and a good gift in any church, when they reſtraine the authors and fauourers of ſects and falſe doctrine. And in this regard our Church is to be commended and approoued, and the commonwealth likewiſe, for making lawes to reſtraine both Popiſh recuſants, and ſome Proteſtants, who depart from this our Church, as beeing no Church of God, but a member of Antichriſt and of Babylon.

Now that Chriſt might aggrauate theſe their offences, he deſcribeth the woman, firſt, by her propertie, in this name Iezabel, that is, one like Iezabel: ſecondly, by her action, Which calleth her ſelfe a Propheteſſe: her teaching is deſcribed in the ende of the verſe. Touching her propertie, Chriſt calleth her Iezabel for two cauſes: Firſt, for that ſhe was like to Iezabel, and in her perſon reuiued the manners and opinions of Iezabel. For as Iezabel brought among the Iſraelites the falſe worſhip of the Idol Baal: ſo this woman laboured to bring into this Church of Thyatira, Idolatrie, and other ſinnes.

Againe, Iezabel was giuen to fornication, as the Scripture recordeth of her by the mouth of Iehu, 2. Kings 9. 22. and ſo was this woman giuen to fornication. Thirdly, Iezabel was a woman of authoritie, and by her place and dignitie did countenance and maintaine Idolatry, & other wicked ſinnes: ſo it is like, that this woman was of ſome place and authoritie, and did thereby countenance her wicked opinions and damnable ſinnes.

The vſe. In this reaſon of her name, note firſt a notable practiſe of Sathan for the furtherance of his kingdome, which is this: In ſucceeding ages he laboureth to reuiue the erroneous opinions and wicked vices of vngodly perſons of former times. This we ſee plaine in this place: for long after Iezabels death (the wife of Ahab, a wicked woman) euen in the Apoſtles time, he raiſed vp another woman like Iezabel both for wicked life and doctrine. And the like practiſe he vſeth at this day. In all ſuch as followe the rules and counſell of Machiauel, is reuiued the craft of Achitophel: in the Papiſts are reuiued the opinions and manners of the wicked Scribes and Phariſies: in the recuſant Proteſtants is reuiued the ſect of the Donatiſts, and

verſ.20.

A the ſect called Audiani. The familie of Loue reuiues the opinions and manners of the Valentinians and the Montaniſts, and many other damnable errours. Now this the deuill doth, becauſe he knowes by experience the great hurt that theſe opinions and ſinnes haue formerly done vnto Gods Church.

Secondly, Chriſt calleth this woman Ieſabel, that he may prouoke this church to a greater deteſtation of her in regard of her damnable wayes: and that ſhe might be in as great diſgrace with them, as was Iezabel in the olde Teſtament to the people of God, that ſo they might better eſchew her wicked ſeducement. And herein we haue a good direction for our profitable reading of the bookes of the olde and newe Teſtament: namely, that when we B meet with examples of wicked men and wicked women, we muſt thereby take occaſion to be vnlike them. And if we finde our ſelues like them any way, either in wicked opinion, or in practiſe, we muſt thereupon growe to a diſlike with our ſelues. Againe, finding the examples of good men or good women, we muſt labour to conforme our ſelues thereto, and become like them: and in this regard approoue our ſelues, when we ſee our ſelues conformable vnto the godly in any vertue and grace.

The ſecond argument whereby Chriſt deſcribeth this woman, is her action: She calleth her ſelfe a Prophetеſſe; that is, ſhe challengeth C her ſelfe to be one that doth teach Gods will by the inſtinct of his ſpirit. And herein ſhe became a notable patron of the damnable ſect of the Nicolaitans: for ſhe held the lawfulneſſe of fornication, and of eating things ſacrificed to Idols. And for the maintenance hereof, ſhee ſaith ſhe is a Propheteſſe, one that ſpeaketh nothing but as ſhe is taught by Gods ſpirit. This is the practiſe of heretikes, vnder pretence of the ſpirit to maintaine their damnable deuices, as might eaſily be prooued by induction of particular heretikes in former ages.

Firſt, hence then we are taught to labour to haue the ſpirit of diſcerning; whereby we may trie the ſpirits whether they be of God or not. D Many will be of no religion, becauſe there be ſo many falſe teachers, and ſuch diuerſitie of opinions in religion. But herein they bewray their profaneneſſe: they ought the rather to labour for this gift of diſcerning, whereby to know what is from God, and what is not.

Secondly, hence we are taught, that when we are vniuſtly ſlaundered, diſgraced, or iniured, we ought not to fret and fume, but by patience to content our ſelues: for we ſee that wicked men to maintaine their wicked opinions and manners, will not ſticke to abuſe God himſelfe, and make his bleſſed ſpirit the author and patron of their errours and ſinnes. We by our ſinnes deſerue diſgrace and reproch: but the ſpirit of God hath done nothing amiſſe. And therefore we muſt be patient, beeing in the ſame condemnation, as Luk. 23. 40. 41. and rather reioyce, in as much as we are partakers of the ſufferings of the ſpirit, 1. Pet. 4. 13.

Againe, here obſerue how ſhe approoueth herſelfe to be a Propheteſſe, namely, by her owne teſtimonie onely, She calleth her ſelfe ſo. Where we may ſee the note and marke of a falſe Prophet: to wit, their owne bare word and teſtimony: A true Prophet or Propheteſſe hath ſundry teſtimonies, beſides their owne words, to prooue the lawfulneſſe of their callings: as in the primitiue Church, they had the gift of ſpeaking of diuers languages without ſtudie, and of working miracles: they had alſo puritie of doctrine, ioyned with integritie of life; and laſtly, many excellent gifts of God, as zeale, courage, and conſtancie to maintaine the ſame.

Chriſt hauing deſcribed this woman, for her further diſgrace, as alſo to aggrauate the fault of this Church in ſuffering her, proceedeth to deſcribe her doctrine. And firſt he ſheweth the ende and ſcope thereof, namely, to ſeduce and to deceiue. Wherein he giueth vs a further note of a falſe Prophet or Propheteſſe, to wit, to teach ſuch doctrine as drawes men to ſinne againſt the firſt or ſecond Table. True doctrine is according vnto godlineſſe, and leadeth men thereto; but the ende of falſe doctrine is impietie againſt God and man: as was ſhewed by the doctrine of Balaam, verſ. 14. and ſuch was the doctrine of this woman.

The vſe.

Sundry ſtudents now adayes are maruellouſly affected with the ſermons, commentaries, and poſtils of Monks and friers. Theſe they preferre before the writings of other godly and ſound Diuines, which is a lamentable caſe: for they are in their kind Ieſabels; the ſcope of their doctrine is to drawe men to errours and tranſgreſſions againſt the law of God; yea to bring men from heauen to hell. And therefore this exceeding approbation of them is no ſmall offence: beeing in truth the right way to bring in againe errours, Atheiſme, and Popery. For turne a Papiſt from a morall point (wherein he often erreth) and his doctrine and ſermons are nothing but falſe and erronious: and therefore as Chriſt would haue this Church to hate the doctrine of this woman, becauſe it did deceiue; ſo muſt we labour to growe to diſlike with the commentaries and poſtils of Monks and fryers, which tend to that ende.

Secondly, Chriſt ſetteth forth the ende of her doctrine by two arguments: Firſt, by the perſons deceiued, his ſeruants: ſecondly, by the meanes whereby they are deceiued: to wit, by cauſing them to commit fornication, and to eate meats ſacrificed vnto Idols.

Touching the perſons. Whereas ſhe deceiued not all men, but the ſeruants of God (for here is a plaine diſtinction of men) this encreaſeth her fault, becauſe they belonged vnto God. But here two queſtions may be mooued: Firſt, why ſome men are the ſeruants of God, and ſome are not. Secondly, whether the ſeruants of God may be ſeduced by falſe teachers. To the firſt ſome anſwer, that God would haue all men to be his ſeruants, and for his part doth all things needefull vnto all men, to make them his ſeruants; redeeming them, and giuing them ſufficient grace hereunto: yet ſome are not his ſeruants, becauſe they themſelues will not, but wilfully reiect his grace that is offered vnto them. But this doctrine is againſt common reaſon, and doth much derogate from the glorie of God: for hereby they make euery man an Emperour, and God an vnderling ſubiect vnto man; they make Gods good pleaſure to depend vpon mans pleaſure, and the accepting of his grace to depend on mans will. But God is the firſt cauſe of all things, his will ouerruleth mans will: and therefore it is abſurd to ſay, ſome men are not Gods ſeruants becauſe they themſelues will not. The true cauſe hereof is Gods good pleaſure, electing ſome, and they alone become his ſeruants becauſe he hath choſen them. But God did neuer chuſe all men firſt to grace, and then to glorie: and therefore as Luke ſaith, [a] ſo many as were ordained to euerlaſting life, beleeued. So we may ſay, ſo many as are elected of God to grace and ſaluation, they become his ſeruants.

a Act.13.48.

The ſecond queſtion. Whether may Gods ſeruants be ſeduced by falſe Prophets? Anſw. There be two ſorts of ſeruants of God: ſeruants in appearance, and ſeruants in truth. Seruants in appearance, are ſuch as outwardly onely embrace the word, and receiue the ſeales of Gods couenant: and the greateſt part of particular churches are ſuch ſeruants. Now theſe may fall away, and that wholly: and hence it commeth that whole particular churches may fall away, as did the church of Galatia, and many other: and theſe are called ſeruants, becauſe we muſt in charitie iudge, that all which make profeſſion of true religion in Gods Church, are the ſeruants of God. But the true ſeruants of God, though they may be ſeduced in part, and for a time, yet they can neither wholly nor finally fall away: for the promiſe of Chriſt is to the contrary, [b] Thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke, that is, the faith which thou profeſſeſt, will I build my Church: and the gates of hel ſhall not preuaile againſt it. Which laſt word (preuaile) inſinuateth, that the deuill ſhall ſhewe great malice and ſtrength to vanquiſh their faith, but yet ſhall neuer wholly ouercome it. And Mat. 6. 13. we are taught to pray, Lead vs not into temptation. To lead into temptation, is wholly to be ouercome in temptation; which beeing a lawfull petition, muſt needs haue Gods promiſe to graunt the ſame, belonging vnto it. And therefore though Sathan may aſſay to ouercome the child of God, yet he ſhall neuer get finall victorie ouer him: for true faith purifieth the heart, and cannot ſtand with a purpoſe to continue in any one ſinne: theſe two baniſh each other, ſinne brings the child of God vpon his knees; but true faith doth raiſe him vp again.

b Matth.16.18.

A II. Point. The meanes whereby ſhe ſought to ſeduce them, was by drawing them to commit fornication, and to eate things ſacrificed to Idols. Whereby it is plaine, ſhe was a fauourer of the ſect of the Nicholaitans; whereof entreatie was made in the foureteenth verſe. And thus much for the reprooſe of the church.

V. 21. And I gaue her ſpace to repent her of her fornication, and ſhee repented not.

Here Chriſt reprooueth this woman for her B obſtinacie and hardneſſe of heart, whereby ſhe went on in ſinne without repentance. By ſpace to repent, we are to vnderſtand, libertie to liue: for though by her ſinnes ſhe deſerued preſent death, temporall and eternall; yet God of his mercie gaue her libertie to liue, that ſhe might repent.

The vſe.

In her example we are taught what to iudge of that ſpace of time which God giueth vs to liue in this world; namely, that it is a time of repentance: for before a man be borne, and after this life, can none repent: but the time we now liue, or haue liued, or ſhall liue, is the onely time allotted for repentance. This point ought ſeriouſly to be conſidered of all eſtates, for it doth plainely rebuke the ſhamefull C practiſe of many at this day, who lead not their life as a time of repentance, but ſpend it wholly in another courſe: ſome in following their vaine pleaſures, as carding, dicing, &c. ſome in heaping vp riches, ſeeking nothing but temporal profits: others in good felowſhip, (as they cal it) that is, in company keeping, in eating and drinking. God in iuſtice might haue cut off theſe men ſo ſoone as they were borne, and yet in mercie he giues them time to repent, to ſome twenty, to others thirtie, fortie, or fiftie yeares: but they abuſe this mercie of God, and in ſteed of repenting imploy themſelues in ſuch works as are contrary thereunto. Their caſe is moſt fearefull, they treaſure vp to themſelues wrath againſt the day of wrath, and declaration of the D iuſt iudgement of God: like vnto a man that euery day for ſome certaine time, carrieth a faggot for his owne burning in the ende.

Secondly, from this ende of life, all that haue not repented, muſt learne not to deferre their repentance, but now beginne while it is called to day, and in the exerciſe thereof ſpend the whole time of their life. The ende of all our endeuours while wee liue, ſhould be this, to get a roome in the kingdome of God, which we can neuer haue without repentance.

Next conſider, who it is that giues this time of repentance: neither man nor Angel hath this time in his hands, but the power of appointing it belongs vnto Chriſt alone.

Hereby then all perſons whatſoeuer are to be admoniſhed, without delay to repent. The

A young man will take his pleaſure in his youth, and repent when he is old: but hereby he robbeth Chriſt of his honour, who onely hath power to point out the time of repentance. Vſe therefore the time preſent while thou haſt it, and deferre not repentance: for how knoweſt thou that thou ſhalt liue to be old? And though thou doeſt, yet how canſt thou tell whether God will giue thee repentance, conſidering thou diddeſt refuſe, while he called for it? Men thinke, that if they die quietly and peaceably, all is well, they goe to heauen ſtraight: but herewith many are deceiued; for vnleſſe they haue truly repented, they goe ſtraight to the deuill, let their manner of dying be what it will. B A quiet death is a comfortable thing, but no ſure ſigne of grace, becauſe it may come by reaſon of ſome eaſie lingering ſickneſſe. Conſidering therefore we haue no title vnto this grace of repentance, to claime it at our pleaſure, it beeing the rare gift of God; nor any leaſe of our life, but be meere tenants at will; let vs ſeeke to turne vnto God with full praiſe of heart, while it is called to day: and if we haue begun, let vs daily renew this grace to the ende of our life.

Thirdly, conſider to whome God giues ſpace of repentance: namely, to a wicked woman, as wicked as Iezabel. Wherein behold the endeleſſe mercie of God, that vnto ſuch a wicked perſon, who blaſphemed God, in fathe- C ring her ſinnes vpon the ſpirit of grace, and diſhonoured God by ſeducing his ſeruants, doth yet vouchſafe a time of repentance. This hath beene and is the dealing of God with moſt grieuous ſinners. Manaſſes was one that ſold himſelfe to worke wickedneſſe, giuing himſelfe to Sorcerie and Idolatrie; and yet vpon his heartie repentance God receiued him to mercie. And Salomon fell moſt fearefully, but yet before his death, we may perſwade our ſelues he repented and was receiued to mercie: for he was a pen-man of Scripture, all which were holy men of God, as Peter ſaith, 2. Pet. 1. 20. The Iſraelites were [a] a people of Sodome and of Gomorrha, as bad as thoſe who are condemned in hell, and yet mercie is offered vnto D them vpon their true repentance and conuerſion.

a Iſa.1.10.

The vſe.

Hereby no man muſt take occaſion to liue in his ſinnes: but thoſe that feele themſelues laden with the huge burden of their tranſgreſſions, haue here a comfort to keepe them from deſpaire: for if they can humble themſelues, and turne vnto Chriſt, and pray for the pardon of their ſinnes, there is yet with the Lord mercie in ſtore, that they may be ſaued.

Laſtly, Chriſt ſaith, He gaue her ſpace to repent of her fornication. No doubt ſhee had many other ſinnes whereof ſhee was to repent, for no ſinne goeth alone, but euery capitall ſinne draweth many with it: Chriſt his meaning therefore is not that ſhee ſhould let paſſe other ſinnes without repentance: but he nameth this one ſinne of fornication, becauſe it was a principall ſinne in her: for ſhee both practiſed it in her owne bodie, and ſo made her ſelfe the ſtable of the deuill, who ſhould haue beene the Temple of Gods holy ſpirit: and alſo maintained this ſinne, and ſo drew others thereto. Now ſpeciall and principall repentance muſt be of principall ſinnes.

The vſe.

Here then is a patterne for all ſinners how to practiſe repentance. They muſt beginne with their capitall ſinnes, which burden their conſcience, and whereto they are moſt addicted, and repent of them. For the man that truly repenteth of one ſinne, repenteth of all: for true repentance maketh the heart alike affected to all ſinnes: And that heart which is brought to hate his ſpeciall ſinnes, will neuer approoue of pettie ſinnes. This leſſon ought carefully to be learned and put in practiſe: For the repentance of moſt men is onely in generall, to ſay we are all ſinners, Lord haue mercie vpon me, or God forgiue me. But this confuſed repentance is not good, it ſtands with a purpoſe to ſinne againe. In particular therefore we muſt ſearch our conſciences, and ſee wherein we haue moſt diſhonoured God, and what ſinne hath neereſt plunged our ſoules to the pit of hell; and with that we muſt beginne to bring our ſoule to heauen, by repenting truly for the ſame, and turning from it with all our hearts.

Hence the Papiſts gather that man hath free will to doe that which is truly good before God, as namely to repent: for, ſay they, God gaue Ieſabel ſpace of time to repent, and therefore ſhee had power to repent, or elſe the giuing of that time vnto her had beene in vaine. Anſ. Their reaſon is naught: it followeth not becauſe God gaue her time to repent, therefore ſhe had power of her ſelfe to repent: as will eaſily appeare, if we conſider the ends for which God giues men ſpace and time of repentance, and commandement ſo to doe. The ends are two. I. That in that time of repentance, which he allotteth to men, he may giue his children grace, whereby they may be enabled to obey his commandement and to repent: for the Lord vſeth the commandements and threatnings of the Law, and the promiſes of the Goſpel, as outward meanes of giuing grace vnto men by the worke of his ſpirit. II. He giueth commandement and time to repent, that men may ſee what they ſhould doe, not what they can doe: and that the wicked may be without excuſe at the day of iudgement, and be aſhamed of their ſlauerie and bondage vnto ſinne in this life.

And ſhee repented not. Here the ſinne of Ieſabel is expreſſed, namely, her impenitencie and hardneſſe of heart: Whereby without remorſe ſhee liued in her fornication and idolatrie. For the vnderſtanding of this her ſinne, two points are to be handled. I. Where this ſinne of impenitencie is forbidden in Gods word. II. What

A

What is the greatneſſe of this ſinne. For the firſt, there be two parts of Gods word, the Law, and the Goſpel, which muſt not be confounded, but diſtinguiſhed, or els we ſhall ouerturne many points of Chriſtian religion. The Law giues commandement touching things that were by nature in Adam before his fall, forbidding thoſe things which are contrarie to thoſe vertues which were in his perfect nature. But the Goſpel commands, and forbids things that are aboue nature, and in that part of Gods word is the ſinne of impenitencie forbidden; for the Law condemnes no more then it reuealeth, but it neuer reuealed repentance, and therfore it doth not forbid or condemne the want thereof.

B

Secondly, for the greatneſſe of this ſinne, it may appeare, becauſe hereby men heape ſinne vpon ſinne, and [a] wrath vnto themſelues againſt the day of wrath. Some to aggrauate the grieuouſneſſe of this ſinne, ſay that impenitencie is the ſinne againſt the holy Ghoſt: and that opinion is auncient, but yet falſe and erroneous, for the ſinne againſt the holy Ghoſt is a blaſphemie, Matth. 12. 31. but this is not a blaſphemie. Againe, the ſinne againſt the holy Ghoſt is in this life, but finall impenitencie is neuer before the ende of this life.

a Rom.2.5.

The vſe.

Hence alſo the Papiſts gather free will to good by nature: ſhee did not repent, therefore ſhee had freewill and power to repent if ſhee would. Anſ. This reaſon is not good: thus much may hence be gathered, that ſhee had freewill not to repent, and to ſinne:

for euery man ſinneth freely, but yet it followeth not, that they haue the ſame power to ceaſe from ſinne, or to repent without Gods ſpeciall grace, without which no man can will or doe that which is truly good before God.

Againe, the ſame ſinne which is reprooued in this wicked woman, may be laide to the charge of the greateſt number in our Churches and congregations. God hath giuen vnto men a long time of repentance, to ſome ten, to ſome twentie yeares, but they repent not, as their liues doe plainly teſtifie: for ſome liue in irreligion and prophaneneſſe, ſome in Sabbath-breaking, ſome in fornication and adulterie, ſome in idleneſſe, ſome in couetouſneſſe and extortion, giuing themſelues wholly and ſpending all their time in ſeeking the things of this life, neuer regarding with reuerence the things of God.

v. 22. Behold I will caſt her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her into great affliction, except they repent them of their workes.

Chriſt hauing reprooued this Church and this woman for their ſeuerall faults, doth here giue ſpeciall counſell and direction vnto them both, whereby they may auoid and eſcape the grieuous iudgements due vnto them for their ſinnes, both in this life, and in the life to come. This counſell of Chriſt hath two parts: Firſt, to Ieſabel and her companie, v.22. The ſecond to the Church of Thyatira, v. 24, 25. The ſumme of Chriſts counſell to Ieſabel is, to repent: which is not expreſſed, but in ſteed thereof the reaſon to mooue her to repentance is propounded. And it may be framed thus, If thou repent not I will puniſh thee with ſundrie iudgements: But thou wouldeſt not be ſo puniſhed, and therefore repent.

This reaſon hath two parts: A threatning; and an expoſition thereof. The threatning in theſe words, I will caſt her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her into great affliction. And before this threatning, Chriſt prefixeth a word of attention (Behold:) whereby he would teach them and vs, that we ought ſeriouſly to conſider of the threatnings that are propounded in Gods word againſt ſinne and ſinners. When Ioſias heard the booke of the Law read, his [b] heart melted: which it could neuer haue done, vnleſſe it had firſt trembled at the iudgements therein denounced. And the pricking that was wrought in the hearts of the Iewes, by [c] Peters firſt Sermon, was nothing elſe but a compunction wrought in them vpon conſideration of the iudgements and condemnation due vnto them for crucifying the Lord of life. The cauſe why ſinne is ſo riſe in euery eſtate and condition of men at this day is, for that men ſet light by the threatnings of Gods word. If men would tremble when they heare of Gods iudgements, it would make them crie out, Men and brethren, what ſhall we doe? but becauſe God is mercifull, therefore men feare him not, Iſa.57.11.

b 2.King.22.19.

c Act.2.37.

This threatning hath three ſeuerall parts according to the three ſeuerall ſorts of perſons whome it concerneth. The firſt is againſt Ieſabel her ſelfe, who was the chiefe of them all, in theſe words, I will caſt her into a bed. The meaning whereof may be gathered out of the like words of Ionadab to Ammon, bidding him lie downe [a] on his bed, and make himſelfe ſicke. So that Chriſts meaning is, that he will ſtrike her with ſome grieuous ſickneſſe: the place for the ſicke perſon beeing put for the ſicknes it ſelfe: As if he ſhould ſay, Ieſabel takes her pleaſure in fornication, and thereto abuſeth the bed, I will therefore ſend on her ſome great ſicknes which ſhall caſt her into her bed.

a 2.Sam.13.5

The vſe.

Here note Gods dealing with ſinners: In thoſe things which they abuſe for the furtherance of their ſinnes, will the Lord plague and puniſh them. Ieſabel abuſed her bed with fornication, and thither ſhee muſt be caſt with ſickeneſſe: Diues in his life time abuſed his tongue and taſt by gluttonie, and therefore is he now in hell, therein moſt of all plagued and torb Luk.16.24.

c 1.King.21. 23,24.

A tormented, as his crying [b] for a drop of water to coole his tongue, doth import: gameſters take their pleaſures in carding and dicing, which many times God turneth to their woe; for thereby they are vſually brought to extreame want and miſerie. Ahab ſhed Naboths blood to get his vineyard, and for that ſinne muſt [c] his blood, the blood of Ieſabel, and his children, be ſhedde. And now in theſe dayes the couetous for their gaine doe ſucke the blood of the poore, but that blood will haue blood from them againe, The Lord will ſpoyle the ſoule of him that ſpoyleth the poore. Prou. 22. 23. This muſt make vs to beware how we abuſe any creature of God to ſerue vs for any ſinne: for the Lord will cauſe B that to be a means of woe and puniſhment vnto vs, which we miſuſe vnto our luſts.

e Heb.11.21.

Againe, note here who is the author of grieuous ſickneſſes, namely, Chriſt himſelfe: For he ſaith, I will caſt her into a bed. Sickneſſes come not by chance or fortune, but from the hand of God. This we muſt learne to beleeue, and it will cauſe vs to make better vſe of ſickneſſes then vſually we doe: If men did beleeue this, it would make the hardeſt heart to repent in time of ſickeneſſe: for this they would ſay: Hath God caſt me downe with ſickeneſſe? no doubt it is to humble me for ſome of my ſinnes, to make me knowe them, to leaue them, and to turne vnto him. This vſe the ſeruants of God haue made hereof: [d] when the Prophet came to Hezekias, and told him he ſhould die, he turned his C face to the wall and wept, as for other things, ſo for his ſinnes eſpecially. And Iaacob beeing to die, [e] leaned on his ſtaffe, and by faith worſhipped towards the beds head: lifting vp his bodie to doe reuerence vnto God, thereby teſtifying his humilitie, faith, and hope. And the like ought we to doe, which if we could, we ſhould finde our ſickeneſſe would become a bleſſing vnto vs.

The ſecond part of Chriſts threatening is the puniſhment of her followers, which receiued her doctrine, and committed fornication with her, They muſt be caſt into great affliction.

The vſe.

First; this muſt teach all perſons, that it is a deuilliſh ſpeech to thinke and ſay, that fornication is but a tricke and ſlip of youth: for great D affliction is the puniſhment of this ſinne, which notably argueth the hainouſneſſe thereof.

f Num. 15.9.

g 1.Cor.11. 30.with cap. 6.18.& 10.8.

Secondly, hence we may gather ſome of the cauſes, why townes and kingdoms are afflicted with grieuous warres, famine, and peſtilence: among the reſt theſe are two, fornication, and embracing of errours and ſuperſtition. Sodome for fornication and other ſinnes was burnt with fire and brimſtone from heauen: the Iſraelites [f] for this ſinne ſuffered moſt grieuous afflictions. And among the Corinthians, for comming to the Lords table in this ſinne, among others [g] many were ſicke, many weake, and many ſlept. And this land of ours hath beene afflicted with famine, and peſtilence, as for other ſinnes, ſo for fornication; which in time of peace is multiplied, and ſo will continue till it drawe vpon vs bloodſhed alſo and great afflictions: For that which is ſaid of the followers of Ieſabel, muſt be verified of all that liue in the like ſinnes.

The ſecond part of the reaſon is, the exception of theſe comminations: except they repent them of their works. Where we may ſee: Firſt, that all the threatenings of Gods iudgements and of eternall deſtruction, muſt be vnderſtood, with the exception of repentance. Whence alſo this followeth, that men of yeares liuing in the church, are not ſo much condemned for other particular ſinnes, as for liuing in their ſinnes without repentance: euerie ſinne makes a man ſubiect to damnation, but it is this impenitencie that brings vpon them actuall damnation. Want of repentance for ſinne is more dangerous then the ſinne it ſelfe; The conſideration whereof, muſt teach vs not to lie in ſinne, though we haue committed it, but turne to God by ſpeedie repentance: for it is the continuance in ſinne without repentance that caſteth the ſoule to hell. When thou ſhalt turne from thy ſinne by true repentance, thou art free from the threatening and the curſe of ſinne: For they admit the exception of true repentance, Ier. 18. 8.

Further obſerue, how this exception of repentance is placed betweene two threatenings of iudgements, which ſheweth how God mingleth his iudgements with mercie, he ſheweth not wholly either iuſtice or mercie, but tempereth them together in all the works that concerne mans ſaluation.

Thirdly, here note that repentance preuents not onely eternall damnation, but alſo temporall iudgements, as grieuous ſickeneſſes, and other plagues and afflictions. This point may haue ſpeciall vſe among vs: We haue by Gods mercie enioyed his goſpell with long peace, but for our abuſe thereof we may iuſtly feare it ſhal be taken from vs; and if we would eſcape that iudgement we muſt repent both high and low.

Of their workes. That is, of their idolatry and fornication, where he ſheweth of what things true repentance muſt be, namely, of bad works in particular, whereto men giue themſelues: euery man that would truely repent muſt conſider of his particular faults: The drunkard in particular of his drunkenneſſe, and the couetous man of his couetouſneſſe: and inſteede of iniuries and hard dealing ſhew mercie to the poore. The common repentance of the world that is done in generall, is nothing but a viſard of repentance, and yet it is all that is vſed of the greateſt part of our people: for they will come to heare the word, and to receiue the Sacraments, and in generall confeſſe themſelues to be ſinners, and then they thinke they haue done ynough: But true repentance is of particular ſinnes: As Dauid Pſal. 51. cried out of blood-guiltineſſe.

V. 23. And I will kill her children with death, and all the Churches ſhall knowe that I am he which ſearcheth the reines and harts: and I will giue vnto euery one of you according to his works.

Here is the third part of Chriſts threatening againſt Iezabels children: by children we are to vnderſtand properly thoſe which are borne of her, and were of her houſhold, and not her followers, for they were threatened with grieuous afflictions in the former verſe. It had been ſufficient to haue ſaid, I will kill her children. But to note the certaintie and grieuouſneſſe of this puniſhment, he ſaith, I will kill them (with death.) Queſt. How can this ſtand with the iuſtice of God, to puniſh the offences of the parents in the perſon of the children? Anſw. God dealeth ſo for temporall puniſhments, not for eternall.

And though we could not perceiue the iuſtice of God in ſo doing, yet we muſt reuerence the ſame, blaming our owne ignorance. Albeit, euen in reaſon we may conceiue of the equitie of this courſe: for ſocieties, as church, commonwealth, and families, are Gods ordinance, and the parties in them muſt be conſidered, as members of thoſe ſocieties: ſo God conceiueth of them when he inflicteth the puniſhment deſerued by one vpon another; as of the Prince vpon the people, of the parents vpon the children. This he may iuſtly doe by reaſon of that neere bond which is betweene the members of the ſame ſocietie: like as in the naturall bodie when the ſtomack is diſtempered, the head aketh: and when the head is wounded, the ſto. is ſicke; and the bodie may be ſmitten for the errours of the tongue. Thus when Dauid ſinned the child died, and when he numbred the Iſraelites, the people were plagued. And thus is the child ſtained in blood for the fathers treaſon againſt earthly Princes: and ſo God puniſhed this woman in her children, that ſhe might know the greatneſſe of her ſinnes, he ſmote her children with death.

Hence parents are taught to make conſcience of euery ſinne: For thereby they may bring iudgements vpon their children and familie euen to death. Now what bloodie hearted parents are thoſe that will make no conſcience of doing that whereby they bring vengeance vpon their own childrē? And by the ſame reaſon muſt euery man that liues in any ſocietie be admoniſhed to take heede of ſinne: becauſe thereby a man (eſpecially if he be a principall member of a ſocietie) may bring deſtruction vpon many: As Dauid did by numbring the people: And Achan by his couetous ſtealth, Ioſua 7. And Ahab vpon his poſteritie. So that impeni- A tent perſons which will not be reformed but go on in ſinne, ought to be baniſhed both from church and commonwealth, as hurtfull members, yea enemies to all good ſocieties.

That theſe threatenings might take place in the hearts of Iezabel and her followers, Chriſt remooueth two carnall conceits, whereby they might thinke to delude or eſcape theſe iudgements threatned. The firſt is this, Iezabel and her companie might thinke that their practiſes were ſecret, not known to the world; & therfore they were not in danger of Gods iudgements. This is a wicked imaginatiō that comes into the mind of all ſinners, but this Chriſt cuts off ſaying, And all the Churches ſhall knowe that I am he which ſearch the reines and the hearts: As if B he ſhould ſay to Iezabel and her companie; you may perſwade your ſelues that becauſe your ſinnes are ſecret, therefore my iudgements ſhall not befall you. But know, that I will diſcouer your ſecret ſinnes and practiſes in ſuch ſort, as all Churches ſhall know by experience in your perſons, that I doe ſee and diſcerne the moſt hidden thoughts of mans heart.

Firſt, here obſerue to whom Chriſt will diſcouer their ſinnes; not to all the world, but to the Church of God, All Churches ſhall knowe; This Chriſt doth to terrifie Iezabel and her companie: For as it is an excellent honour to be well eſteemed of with the churches of God, ſo it is a moſt ſhamefull diſhonour to be in diſ- C grace with the Churches of God: For [a] whatſoeuer is bound or looſed by the Churches on earth, the ſame is bound or looſed in heauen. And therefore by true proportion it followeth, that they which are in diſgrace with Gods Churches on earth, are alſo in diſgrace with God himſelfe in heauen.

[a] Matth.18.

Hence we are taught that howſoeuer we muſt (ſo much as in vs lieth) endeauour to approoue our ſelues to the whole world, yet eſpecially we muſt labour to be in good account with the Churches of God, and the members thereof: And on the contrary, we muſt continually auoide the doing of all ſuch things as may iuſtly bring vs into diſgrace with the church of D God. Rom. 16.16. The Churches of Chriſt ſalute you. And, 1. Cor. 16.19. All the Churches of Aſia ſalute you. Where the Apoſtle meaneth not, that they did by word of mouth ſend greetings vnto them: But hereby he would ſignifie that all Churches did approoue of them, which he ſaith for their great comfort. Paul receiued Timothie into the company becauſe the Churches gaue him a good report, Act. 16.2.3.

But what is the thing that all Churches ſhould know by experience in the perſons of Iezabel and her company; namely, that Chriſt is he which doth indeed ſearch the reines and the hearts: where, by Reynes and hearts we muſt vnderſtand the ſame things, namely, the thoughts and affections of men: for in that ſence thoſe words are often vſed in the old Teſtament. Qu. How can reines ſignifie the thoughts and affections, ſeeing the thoughts are ſeated in the braine, and the affections in the heart? Anſ. The reynes are put for the thoughts and affections, not becauſe they are ſeated therein, but for that reſemblance & analogie that is betweene them: for as the reynes are ſeated in the moſt ſecret part of the bodie, ſo the thoughts and affectiōs are ſeated in the moſt ſecret place of the ſoule: & the heart is put for the thoughts and affections, firſt, becauſe the affections are there ſeated: Secondly, becauſe the thoughts, though they bee ſeated in the braine, yet they haue their operation in the heart: for ioyfull thoughts make a merry heart, and fearefull thoughts an heauie heart. Againe, the word (Search) ſignifieth a moſt narrow ſearch, and ſuch a one as goeth with finding; therby ſhewing that nothing is ſo ſecret in man, but the Lord both can and doth ſee & diſcern the ſame.

The vſe. Hence we learne firſt, that Chriſt our Sauiour is not onely man, but verie God, one perſon ſtanding of two natures. That Chriſt is man, heretickes deny not: but whether he bee God or not, there is the queſtion. Which yet is here euidently prooued: for hee that hath in him the peculiar properties of God, muſt needes be God: But Chriſt hath in him the true properties of God, he can ſearch and diſcerne all the thoughts and all the affections of the hearts of all men, which none can doe but God onely, Ier. 17.9, 10. The heart is deceitfull and wicked aboue all things, who can know it? I the Lord ſearch the heart, and trie the reines. And therefore Chriſt is the true and very God.

Secondly, hereby wee are taught to beware and take heede of hypocriſie in all things, but eſpecially in the matters of religion. Hypocriſie is, when a man ſeemes outwardly to be that which he is not inwardly. But we muſt haue care to be truly in heart that which we appeare to be in life and profeſſion: we muſt come as neere Chriſt in thought and affection, as in our outward actions: for Chriſt knows as well the whole ſtate of euerie mans reynes and heart, as he doth their ſpeeches and their deeds.

Thirdly, hereby wee muſt learne to ſuſpect our ſelues of our vnknowne ſinnes, as of our vnbeleefe and preſumption; not contenting our ſelues with an acknowledgement of our knowne ſinnes, for wee can neuer diſcerne the depth of our corrupt heart, and yet God knoweth them. This was Dauids practiſe, [a] after due examination of himſelfe hee yet cryeth: Lord cleanſe me from my ſecret ſinnes: As if he ſhould ſay, I haue O Lord ſearched my heart, but I cannot ſufficiently know mine owne corruptions, therefore doe thou O Lord helpe to cleanſe mee from them. If this were practiſed, true religion would flouriſh: for many iuſtifie themſelues, when as they know not what is in their hearts, little conſidering what Chriſt ſaith vnto the Phariſes, [b] You are they which iuſtifie your ſelues before men, but Chriſt knoweth your hearts.

Pſal.19.12.

Luk.16.15.

A And I will giue to euery one of you according to your workes. Here Chriſt proceedeth to remoue a ſecond wicked conceit, whereby they might ſeeme to illude Gods iudgements threat-ned. For they might ſay, Let the Lord ſend iudgements and plagues vpon vs, yet we ſhall eſcape them: as Iſay ſaid of the wicked in his time, That they made a league with death and hell, and ſaid the iudgements of God ſhall paſſe ouer them, Iſay 28. 15. But to cut off this vaine conceit, Chriſt threatneth a iuſt reward to e-uerie one, according to his workes. As if hee ſhould ſay: You may ſooth vp your ſelues, and falſly thinke, that you ſhall eſcape my iudge-ments: but know it, that I will reward e-B uery one of you partly in this life, and principally at the day of iudgement, according to your workes, be they good or bad. For theſe words muſt eſpecially be vnderſtood of the day of iudgement, as they are vſed, Rom. 2.6. Reu.
20. 12.

The vſe. Hence the Papiſts gather, that men are ſaued not onely by faith in Chriſt, but alſo by workes: for thus they reaſon; By that whereby wee muſt be iudged, muſt we be iuſtified and ſaued; but by workes we muſt be iudged, and therefore ſaued. Anſ. The Propoſition is falſe:
There is great difference betweene iuſtifying and iudging: for iudging is onely the declaration of a man to be iuſt; but iuſtification is the making of a man iuſt. And becauſe the declara-C tion of a man to be iuſt, is by workes, therefore is iudgement by workes. Againe, it is not ſaid, I will giue to you for your workes, but accor- ding to your workes. If he had ſaid, I will giue to euery one of you for your workes, then it might haue ſeemed they had beene iuſtified by them:
But here Chriſt doth only make works an outward ſigne or rule, whereto he will conforme and ſquare the laſt iudgement.

Secondly, whereas euery man muſt be iudged, that is, ſaued or condemned according to his workes; hence we may gather, that good workes are neceſſarie to ſaluation, yet not as cauſes thereof, either efficient, or helping any way, but onely as a way or meanes to come vnto ſaluation: For faith is neceſſarie, and good D workes, are the tokens and fruits of faith, and ſo are neceſſarie.

Thirdly, here we muſt be admoniſhed to be carefull to abound in good workes; not to win heauen by them, but to get aſſurance of ſalua-tion in our ſelues. And theſe good workes are the doing of the duties of pietie vnto God, and of charitie vnto our brethren, euen the duties of the Morall law; or more plainely, the doing of the generall duties of a Chriſtian, and the particular duties of a mans calling: for if theſe be done in obedience to God and to his glory, proceeding from faith and loue vnto our brethren, though the calling be neuer ſo baſe, they are good workes. And on the contrarie, this muſt admoniſh vs to make conſcience of euery euill way; for ſinnes be the markes of condemnation: and ſo many wicked workes as wee commit, ſo many markes and brands doe wee ſet vpon our ſelues of our iuſt and deſerued condemnation, vnleſſe wee repent.

Laſtly, hence we may gather, that there bee degrees of ioy in heauen, and of torments in hell. For iudgements and rewards goe according to mens workes. And therefore they that teſtifie their faith by great and many good workes, ſhall haue great reward: they that teſtifie their faith by leſſer and fewer workes, ſhal haue leſſer reward: and ſo for ſinnes, the more haynous they be, the deeper condemnatiō they do procure.

v. 24. And to you I ſay, the reſt of them of Thyatira, as many as haue not this learning, neither haue knowne the deepeneſſe of Sathan (as they ſpeake) I will put vpon you none other burden.

25. But that which you haue alreadie hold faſt till I come.

Here Chriſt commeth to a ſecond part of his counſell, which concernes the Angell, and the better part of this Church of Thyatira: and firſt he beginneth with the preface of this counſell; wherein we may obſerue two points: Firſt, who ſpeaketh: Secondly, to whom he ſpeaketh. For the firſt, he that ſpeaketh is Chriſt. I ſay, hereby Chriſt challengeth vnto himſelfe the abſolute and all ſufficient authoritie of the ſupreame Doctor of his Church, in that he ſpeaketh in his owne name, Whereby he putteth a plaine difference betweene himſelfe and all other his miniſters, either Prophets, Apoſtles, or ordinarie teachers: for they muſt not propound any thing vnto Gods people in their owne names, but in the name of Chriſt. But Chriſt teacheth in his owne name, beeing the fountaine of all diuine knowledge & vnderſtanding, that is reuealed in the word of God. And thus Chriſt himſelfe ſpeaketh in his owne name, to ſtrike the hearts of the Angell of this Church and the better part thereof, with reuerence, and to mooue them to receiue and obey the counſell following, conſidering it comes immediately from Chriſt, the Doctor of the Church.

II. Point. The parties to whom he ſpeaketh, To you, that is, the Angel and the better part of this Church: for ſo Chriſt expounds it in theſe words following, though firſt hee ſay in generall To you: that is, The reſt of them of Thyatira.

When as Chriſt will behaue himſelfe as the doctor and chiefe Angell of this Church, note that hee maketh a diſtinction of the perſons in the Church, and alſo diuideth his counſell, giuing one doctrine and one iudgement to one part, and a diuers doctrine and iudgement to another.

The vſe. This giueth vs good direction for ſundry actions, for ſome may aske, how muſt doctrine bee deliuered in a mixt congregation, where ſome are Papiſts, ſome Proteſtants, ſome are hardened, others deſpaire? Anſw. The perſons muſt be diſtinguiſhed after the example of Chriſt, and ſutable doctrines diuided for them, that euery one may haue his due. Impenitent ſinners muſt be terrified, and threatenings deliuered againſt them, with exception of them that repent: Comforts muſt bee propounded and applied to them that deſpaire, with reſtraint from all impenitent perſons that goe on in ſinne.

If any demaund more particularly who theſe be whom Chriſt calleth The reſt of them of Thyatira, Chriſt anſwers directly (as the words import) to as many as haue not this learning, neither haue knowne the deepeneſſe of Sathan. Where Chriſt giueth two notes whereby to diſcerne who be the reſt of them of Thyatira; The firſt is; the not receiuing or maintaining of the falſe doctrine of Ieſabel, whereof entreatie hath beene formerly made: The ſecond note is, ignorance in the deepeneſſe of Sathan, neither haue knowne the deepeneſſe of Sathan, that is, neither haue acknowledged nor approoued the doctrine of Ieſabel, which is the deepe and profound learning, as themſelues do iudge.

In this obſerue a moſt wicked practiſe of Ieſabel and her followers: they eſteemed highly of their owne opinions, calling them profound and deepe learning: but for the doctrine of the Prophets and Apoſtles in the old and new Teſtaments, in it there was no ſuch matter. This in all ages hath beene the practiſe of wicked perſons, highly to eſteeme their owne conceits, and baſely to neglect the word of God. The teachers of the Iewes do hold to this day, That the Lord gaue to Moſes a moſt plaine and eaſie law which he deliuered to his people; but the moſt ſecret and profound doctrine was vnwritten, ſhewed to Moſes by reuelation, and by him deliuered to the Prieſts and Leuites, which [illegible] ſtill in their Cabbala. And of the [illegible] iudgement touching Scripture are the Popiſh Churches: The word written is but an inkie word, a dead letter, or a noſe of waxe: but the moſt perfect Scripture is vnwritten; which is, the conſent of faith and of doctrine in the hearts of all Catholikes. And by ſuch great tearmes the Anabaptiſts, Libertiues, and Arrians, maintaine their doctrine, [illegible] Scripture, calling the written [illegible] for euerie nouice, but the conſ[illegible] themſelues with reuel[illegible] is the [illegible] meats. Yea, this [illegible] hath cre[illegible]

verſ. 24. vs in part : men thinke baſely of Scripture, and A preferre other mens writings before it. For let a man preach plainly the bare word of God, and deliuer doctrines and exhortations out of the ſame, this is but plaine preaching: But let another come and vtter his minde partly in Latine, and partly in Greeke, and other languages, alleadging withall the teſtimonies of Fathers, Councels, and other Writers: that is the learned preaching. And thus doe moſt men abaſe Scripture, and exalt the writings of men aboue it. But ſeeing this is the practiſe of Ieſabel and wicked men, let vs on the contrarie learne to reuerence the written word, and giue place thereto aboue all the teſtimonies and ſayings of men whatſoeuer. B

The deepeneſſe of Sathan. As if he ſhould ſay: They count it deepe learning; but it is the learning of the deuill, wherein you may ſee his profound craft and policie. Where note, that when Chriſt will alleadge the ſpeech of Ieſabel and her followers, he doth it with diſgrace vnto them: for they counted their doctrine deepe learning; but Chriſt repeating their opinion, calleth it the deepeneſſe of Satan.

The vſe. Hence I gather, that Chriſtians cannot ſafely act and play the Comedies of heathen men: for they are full of many blaſphemous ſpeeches and oathes flat againſt the word of God: which they ought not to repeat, but with diſgrace vnto them. For Chriſts practiſe muſt be a patterne for our imitation: he would not repeat ſo much C as one word of a wicked woman, without ſome note of diſgrace. If it be ſaid: they repeat theſe ſpeeches with diſgrace and diſlike: I anſwer, it is not ſo: for if they did, that would take away the whole Comedie, beeing full of ſuch bad ſpeeches. And this I take to be the equitie of Gods word, thus to reaſon from Chriſts example.

As they ſpeake. Theſe words Chriſt addeth: Firſt, to ſhewe that the words going before were not his owne, but the words of Ieſabels followers touching her doctrine. Secondly, to ſhewe the proud and preſumptuous minds of heretickes, in maintaining their wicked opiuions. Thus haue falſe teachers vpheld their errours, by proud and ſwelling words, as Iude the D 16. and 2. Pet. 2. 18. The pure word of God is not ſo maintained; but in the humilitie and lowlineſſe of ſpirit, and in the practiſe of pietie from an humble heart: for God teacheth the lowly his wayes, and giueth grace to the humble, Pſal. 25. 14. And therefore this is a note of falſe doctrine, by ſwelling words to maintaine the ſame.

Hitherto we haue ſpoken of the Preface before Chriſts counſell: now followeth the counſell it ſelfe in this ſentence: Though I lay no other burden vpon you, yet I would haue you to hold faſt that which you haue already, till I come. This ſentence is a diſtinction, containing two parts: Firſt, in theſe words, I will lay no other burden vpon you, then that which you haue already: that is, howſoeuer I threaten my iudgements vnto Ieſabel and her followers, yet I will lay none other puniſhment vpon you but my reproofe onely, for ſuffering Ieſabel among you with her falſe doctrine and followers.

This braunch of this diſtinction containeth a moſt comfortable inſtruction: namely, that all thoſe that giue themſelues to maintaine puritie of doctrine and ſinceritie of life ſhall be ſafely preſerued in the time of common iudgements, vnder the bleſſed protection of God, ſo farre foorth as is for Gods glory and their good. And conſidering this mercie is offered to the godly, we muſt hereby learne to become followers of this Church of Thyatira: that is, we muſt endeauour to maintaine the pure truth of Gods holy word, and withall haue care to ſhew forth ſinceritie of manners, in making conſcience of euerie ſinne, and endeuouring our ſelues to walke in all the wayes of Gods commaundements with cheerefulneſſe. Hereby wee ſhall get protection from common iudgements, when they are laid vpon the wicked: but if we partake with the wicked in their ſinnes, wee ſhall receiue part in their plagues.

The ſecond part of this diſtinction is in theſe words: But that which you haue alreadie, hold faſt till I come: Verſ.25. that is, mine Apoſtles haue deliuered vnto you the pure & ſound doctrine of ſaluation; now I charge you that you hold that faſt, & maintaine it vntill I come to iudgement. Here is a plaine and moſt excellent commandement, containing ſpeciall inſtructions meete for this Church of Thyatira, and all Churches. Before, our Sauiour Chriſt had commended this Church for not approouing the doctrine of Ieſabel and her companie: but here he giueth them another commaundement, To hold faſt the true doctrine of Chriſt, taught them by his Apoſtles. Whereby he would teach them, and in them all Churches, to content themſelues with the pure doctrine of the Apoſtles, and not to affect or approoue any other doctrine beſides, whatſoeuer: According as Paul biddeth the Galatians, [a] though we, or an Angell from heauen, preach vnto you any other doctrine then that which we haue preached vnto you, let him be accurſed.

[a] Gal.1.8.

The vſe. By the light of this commaundement we are directed in ſundry duties. Firſt, not to regard vnwritten traditions, which the Church of Rome doth ſo highly magnifie, for it cannot be prooued that the Apoſtles euer taught them.

Secondly, not to regard the doctrines of men, which ſome bring vnto vs vnder colour of Reuelation from God ſince the Apoſtles times.

Thirdly, hereby we learne what to thinke and iudge of the three great religions of the Turkes, the Iewes, and Papiſts at this day. The Turkiſh religion is not to bee regarded: for it had it beginning ſixe hundred yeares after the Apoſtles time, with whoſe doctrine onely wee muſt content our ſelues. Alſo the Iewiſh religion we muſt not regard, for they reiect the doctrine of the Apoſtles. And the religion of the Papiſts we muſt renounce, becauſe it is not of the Apoſtles teaching, but had it beginning by little and little long after their times. If this commandement were ſafely kept, which is laid on this Church, men would not be of ſo many religions: but all would bee of one religion, cleauing faſt to the doctrine of the Apoſtles, and contenting themſelues with it, which is the true rule for reformation of life, and the right way to attaine ſaluation.

we

Laſtly, here is a rule and direction for thoſe which will be of no religion, becauſe of the diuerſitie of opinions touching the ſame. They muſt haue recourſe to the doctrine of the Apoſtles, and content themſelues therewith, nothing regarding new doctrines, be they neuer ſo glorious.

Till I come. Here Chriſt ſheweth how long the doctrine of the Apoſtles muſt be held faſt: namely, not for a ſhort time, but till his ſecond comming to iudgement. Whereby we learne, that it is the dutie of Gods Church to preſerue and maintaine the puritie of true religion vnto the end of the world. This is no ſmal matter: but a moſt needfull dutie enioyned vnto vs by ſpeciall commaundement, and withall a matter of great conſequence: for the puritie of religion is the foundation and marke of the Church, & the right way to direct mens ſoules to eternall life. For this cauſe Paul chargeth Timothie, [a] To keepe the true patterne of wholſome words and to continue in the things which he had learned. And in regard of this dutie, the Church is called, The pillar and ground of truth. And Chriſt for this cauſe gaue to his Church both Paſtors and Teachers; Paſtors to inſtruct in righteouſneſſe, for the maintenance of puritie in manners: and Teachers to maintaine the puritie of doctrine in ſoundneſſe of iudgement. This therefore muſt admonſh vs, that we haue care not onely to learne religion in our owne perſons, but alſo to conuey the ſame to ages following, that the puritie thereof may be preſerued to the comming of Chriſt. This dutie eſpecially concernes the preachers of the Goſpel, they ſhould teach the truth, and confute errours, and beat downe falſe doctrins, which poyſon the truth of God. If in the night ſeaſon a man ſet vp a falſe light in the heauen, all the ſhips that are comming to land are in danger of ſhipwracke. So in Gods Church, if the bright light of pure religion be not ſet vp and aduanced, the ſoules of men are caſt into the gulfe of hell. The want of care in performing this dutie, is the cauſe why God ſends hereſies and Apoſtaſies into his Church. Thus came in the Apoſtaſie of Antichriſt, 2.Theſſ.2.10,11. Becauſe men loued not the truth. And ſo no doubt will the Lord deale with vs, if we haue not care to maintaine the puritie of Apoſtolicall doctrine.

Eph.4 11.

v. 26. For he that ouercommeth and keepeth my works vnto the end, to him will I giue power ouer nations.

27. And he ſhall rule them with a rod of yron, and as the veſſels of a potter ſhall they be broken.

28. Euen as I receiued of my father, ſo will I giue him the morning ſtarre.

29. Let him that hath an eare heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

Here is the concluſion of this Epiſtle, which containeth two parts: Firſt, a promiſe, verſ. 26. 27. 28. Secondly, a commandement, ver.29. In the promiſe note two things: the parties to whom it is made; and the benefit promiſed. The parties to whom, are euery one that ouercommeth; whom Chriſt deſcribeth by a propertie of ſincere obedience, To keepe his works vnto the ende.

Here then we haue a deſcription of true obedience. Firſt, the forme thereof conſiſteth in obſeruing the works of Chriſt: which we muſt not vnderſtand, of doing them according to the rigor of the law, but of a purpoſe & endeauour to keepe them. For this is a priuiledge belonging to all that are in Chriſt, that God accepteth their wils and indeauours of obedience, for perfect obedience it ſelfe. This we muſt knowe and hold for truth, for many haue but little knowledge, and thereupon are driuen to deſpiare: yet they muſt know for their comfort, that if they haue care to get more knowledge, and make conſcience to obey that which they knowe, then they are keepers of the works of Chriſt, and ſhall haue the reward promiſed.

Secondly, obedience is here deſcribed by the obiect or matter thereof, to wit, the works of Chriſt: that is, all ſuch workes as Chriſt hath ordained in his word, and thoſe whereof he is the author by his ſpirit in his members.

The vſe.

Hereby we learne: firſt, that he that will obey God in Chriſt Ieſus, muſt not thinke his owne thoughts, ſpeake his owne words, nor doe his owne deeds; but he muſt thinke, ſpeake, and doe that which Chriſt would haue him: Secondly, that no worke is, or can be acceptable to Chriſt, but that which is ordained by him. Iſay [a] complaineth of them that would teach the feare of God by mens commandements: ſo that that there is no true feare of God, but that which is taught by Gods commaundements; and the like may be ſaid of all other our obedience. This rule ouerthroweth all other religions beſides the true religion, as of the Iewes, Turkes, and Papiſts: For almoſt all their works, are of mens inuenting, and were neuer ordained by Chriſt: ſuch are moſt points in Popery, as ſaying of Maſſe, going on pilgrimage, faſtings, vowing, and praying to Saints, &c.

[a] Iſa.29.13.

Verſ. 26.

Thirdly, whereas, he ſaith, my workes, meaning not one or two, but all his workes; wee learne that true obedience, conſiſteth in doing all the workes of Chriſt: For Chriſt and the deuill wil neuer part ſtakes, God muſt either haue all our workes or none: And therefore David ſaith, I ſhall not be confounded, becauſe [b] I haue reſpect vnto all thy commandements. And good king Ioſiah is commended, For that he turned to the Lord according to [c] all the law of Moſes. This point muſt bee learned of all: For many think if they do many good things with [d] Herod, all is well; and for this cauſe many a man abhors couetouſneſſe and pride, and yet is a contemner of the Goſpel: But true obedience muſt be in all things.

Vnto the end. Here is the fourth branch of true obedience, it is conſtant. That obedience which Chriſt will reward muſt not be for a day or a yeare: but from time to time through the whole courſe of our life to the ende of our daies. And thus we muſt iudge of obedience, not by ſome particular actions, but by the whole tenour of a mans life. Put caſe a man hath made conſcience of all his waies, through the whole courſe of his life, and yet in ſickneſſe by reaſon of the extemity thereof is deſtracted, and raueth, blaſpheming God, and ſo dyeth; What muſt we iudge of this man? Surely wee muſt not cenſure him by his behauiour in his ſickneſſe, but conſider what hath beene the tenour of his life: if that haue beene vpright, then his obedience was good, and ſhall bee rewarded.

Verſ. 27. II. Point. The benefits promiſed: and they are two. The firſt is, power to rule, verſ. 27. And he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron: And as the veſſels of a potter ſhall they be broken: euen as I receiued of my father. The ſecond is the morning ſtar, verſ. 28. where note by the way, that theſe words, Euen as I haue receiued of my father, are referred amiſſe in our Engliſh tranſlation, to the giuing of the morning ſtarre, when as they properly belong to the former words in this ſence. As I haue receiued power ouer nations of my father, ſo will I giue to him that ouercommeth, power to rule with the rod of Iron, &c. Now come to the benefits.

1. Firſt, here is promiſed by Chriſt, A power to rule ouer nations: Chriſts power as he is mediator is very great: and here it is ſet forth by three arguments, borrowed from the ſecond Pſalme verſe. 8. 9. Firſt, by the largeneſſe of it, it reacheth not to one countrie alone, but to all countries, and to all men, in all nations. Secondly, by the Soueraigntie of it: Chriſts power is abſolute in ruling and ouerruling. And this his Soueraigntie conſiſteth in two things: Firſt, in making lawes vnto the conſciences of men; ſo as if they be not kept, he may iuſtly condemne them: and in ouerruling the wils of all men, conforming them to his will, will they nill they: which is ſignified, by this, Hee ſhall rule them with a rod of iron. Secondly, in that he hath this abſolute power in himſelfe to ſaue & to deſtroy, and therefore is ſaid to haue [a] The keyes of Heauen and Hell. Which is ſignified in the next words, And as the veſſells of a potter ſhall they be broken. Thirdly, by the fountaine of it, Chriſt receiueth this power from his father. Indeed as Chriſt is God he is equall with his father, and hath this power of himſelfe: But as he is mediator, his power is giuen him of his father, Matth. 28. 18.

For the better vnderſtanding of this place, two queſtions muſt be handled: Firſt, how farre foorth doth Chriſt giue this his power vnto men? Anſw. Chriſts Soueraigne and generall power ouer the whole world is not indeed giuen to any creature, nay it is incommunicable, and cannot be conueyed from the perſon of any creature man or Angell: this truth we muſt hold of all Chriſts offices, they are onely in the perſon of Chriſt, and cannot paſſe from him to any other. II. Queſt. How then doth Chriſt ſay truly, that he will giue him that ouercommeth, power ouer nations. Anſ. Not that his Soueraigne power is actually giuen to the creature; but becauſe the creature beeing in Chriſt, hath the fruite and benefit of this power in his ſaluation. And this power is in them two waies: Firſt, hereby Chriſt makes all his ſeruants (beeing his members) partakers of his glorie in heauen, whereas the whole world beſides is condemned in hell; and therefore we are ſaid to [b] be raiſed vp together, and made to ſit together in the heauenly places in Chriſt Ieſus. And againe he ſaith, The [c] Saints ſhal iudge the world, not in giuing ſentence vpon them; but as witneſſes and approouers of Chriſt his ſentence: For the elect ſhall firſt receiue the ſentence of abſolution, and then beeing taken vp into the clouds, ſhall ſit with Chriſt, and there approoue of the iuſt condemnation of all the wicked. Secondly, by this power he enableth thoſe that be his, in their owne perſon to ouercome al the enemies of their ſaluation. His meaning then is this, as if he had ſaid, Howſoeuer my Soueraign power ouer all creatures in my ſelfe, cannot be deriued to any other; yet by vertue of this my power, I will exalt them that ouercome, to partake of my glorie: and will giue them power in themſelues ouer their ſinnes, ouer death, hell, the world, and all the enemies of their ſaluation.

Here then behold vnto what exceeding dignitie euery true ſeruant of God is aduanced, not in himſelfe, but in Chriſt: He hath rule ouer

A nations, and victorie ouer all the enemies of his ſaluation, yea he is made partaker of Chriſts glorie.

Hence we are taught to make conſcience of euery ſinne whatſoeuer; for the priuiledge of euery Christian is to haue power to iudge the wicked world: Now as it is a ſhame for a iudge that ſitteth and condemneth a murtherer or a theeſe, to be a theeſe, or a murtherer himſelfe; ſo it is for any chriſtian to liue in any one ſinne, ſeeing he himſelfe muſt condemne the world of thoſe ſinnes. Neither can wee thinke that Chriſt will euer aduance him that liues in ſinne, to condemne the ſame in others, vnleſſe he firſt reforme it in himſelfe.

B Secondly, the conſideration of this priuiledg of a Chriſtian, muſt be hid in our minds againſt the time of aduerſitie and affliction, and of the pangs of death. For he that hath kept faith and a good conſcience all his life, is a prince in Ieſus Chriſt, and ſhall rule ouer all his enemies. And therefore though now he bee afflicted and wronged by them, yet in Chriſt hee is their iudge, and ſhall one day condemne them that doe him wrong. And as for death, it is ſubdued in Chriſt, and ſhal be no death vnto him. 1. Cor. 15. 54.

Fotpatriis.

Againe the words in the originall are thus, Hee ſhall feede and rule the nations, as a ſheepheard ruleth and feedeth his lambs with his hooke. The Papiſts vpon the words of Chriſt C to Peter, Ioh. 21. 16. Feed my ſheepe, that is, feede and rule my ſheepe, would gather Peters ſupremacie ouer the Church in all the world. But their groſſe abuſe of that place will appeare, by comparing it with this promiſe of Chriſt, to euery one that ouercommeth: for if their collection bee good, then hence will follow, that euery Chriſtian man ſhould haue the like ſupremacie, and bee a Pope: which how abſurd it is, euery man may iudge. Therefore that place of Iohn muſt not be vnderſtood of any ſupremacie: for their Chriſt teacheth Peter the faithfull diſcharge of his office and duty. From this firſt gift of Chriſt the Papiſts gather two things. I. That the ſeuerall Saints in heauen are patrons of countries and kingdomes, as D Saint George for England, Saint Denis for France, Saint Patricke for Ireland &c. Secondly, that we may pray vnto Saints, for the Saints rule the Nations, and therefore know all Nations; and if they know them, then they muſt bee prayed vnto. But they ſwarue from the meaning of this text: for firſt, it is not ſaide, that the Saints ſhall haue power, one ouer one countrie, and another ouer another; but euery Saint hath power ouer all Nations: Secondly, they haue power ouer all nations, not becauſe they rule them actually, but becauſe they haue the fruit and benefit of Chriſts power, whereby they are ruled. And for their ſecond collection: we muſt by nations vnderſtand not all Churches, but vnbeleeuers, for the wicked are they that muſt be broken like potters veſſels. Now A the faithfull haue no power ouer the Churches, but ouer infidels: and therefore both their collections are abſurd.

Verſ.28.

I will giue him the morning ſtarre. Here is the ſecond benefit promiſed by Chriſt to him that ouercommeth. The morning ſtarre properly ſignifieth that bright ſtarre which riſeth a little before the Sunne, ſome time of the yeare, which the heathen call Venus. And hereby is meant Chriſt himſelfe, as Reu. 22. 16. I am the bright morning ſtarre. Christ is called a ſtarre: Firſt, becauſe hee illuminateth all men with the light of vnderſtanding, & his Church with the knowledge of the will of his father, and that ſufficiently in all matters that concerne B ſaluation. Secondly, to ſhew that the propheſie by Balaam touching Chriſt whom he calleth [a] the ſtarre of Iaacob, is now fulfilled, when as Chriſt by his Apoſtles hath plentifully reuealed himſelfe to all nations.

Further, hee is called a morning ſtarre, for that ſpeciall reſemblance which is betweene him and it; for the morning ſtarre riſeth not in the beginning or middle of the night, but in the end of the night towards the beginning of the day when the ſunne is about to riſe, and then it ſhineth brighter then all other ſtarres. Euen ſo Chriſt, he came not in the beginning or middle of the darke time vnder the law; but in the laſt age of the world, wherein after his incarnation he did ſhine moſt fully to all nati- C ons, ſo as there was no ſuch light of knowledge before his comming as hath beene ſince. This Peter verifieth when he ſaith, [b] We haue a moſt ſure word of the Prophets, to which ye doe well that yee take heed, as vnto a light that ſhineth in a darke place, vntill the day dawne, and the day ſtarre ariſe in your hearts. Where the time of the law and Prophets is called a time of darkeneſſe: and their preaching then, as a candle light: but the preaching of Chriſt vnder the Goſpell, is as the day-ſtarre which ſhineth moſt brightly; he is not called the morning ſtarre, becauſe he ſhineth to al the world in all times as the morning ſtarre doth, but becauſe he ſhineth vnto men in the laſt age of the world.

It is further ſaid, I will giue him it. Where is D promiſed fellowſhip and participation with Chriſt, as he is the day-ſtarre. And herein are two benefits compriſed: Firſt, perfect illumination, whereby ignorance ſhall be wholly taken away after this life, when as men ſhall know God fully, ſo farre foorth as a creature can know the Creator. Secondly, the light of perfect glorie, for by fellowſhip with Chriſt we ſhall be made to ſhine as the ſtarres, as Daniel [c] ſpeaketh: yea, we ſhall become [d] Saints in light, as the Apoſtle ſaith.

The vſe.

Whereas Chriſt compares himſelfe to the morning ſtar: Firſt, we ſee the groſſe errour of many among vs, who liue in blindneſſe of mind and ignorance: walking in their wicked luſts and pleaſures, without care of keeping faith or good conſcience, and yet perſwade themſelues that they haue part in Chriſt, and ſhall be partakers of this light and glorie. But they are deceiued: for all ſuch as liue in blind ignorance, and in ſinne, are meere darkneſſe, and ſo can haue no fellowſhip with Chriſt, who is that bright morning ſtarre: for what fellowſhip can be betweene light and darkeneſſe? This bright morning ſtarre ſerueth onely for them that receiue the light thereof, and walke by it: but thoſe that walke in the darkneſſe of their ſinnes haue no benefit by it.

Secondly, ſeeing Chriſt is this morning ſtarre, we muſt haue care to learne Peters inſtruction namely, Labour that this bright ſtarre may riſe and ſhine in our hearts. This we ſhall feele, when we vſe thoſe meanes whereby the beames of this ſtarre may ſhine vpon vs, not onely for the enlightening of our minds, but alſo for the heating and reuiuing of our frozen and dead hearts. For as the Sunne in the Spring time quickeneth by it warme beames ſome things that lie dead all winter: ſo Chriſt Ieſus this morning ſtarre by the beames of his grace doth enlighten our minds, and reuiue our dead and frozen hearts. And till ſuch time as we feele theſe things wrought in vs, we cannot ſay, that this morning ſtarre is riſen vnto vs, or hath ſhone into our hearts.

Thirdly, whereas Chriſt appeareth in the morning, when darkeneſſe is paſt; we are hereby taught to lead our liues in godlineſſe, righteouſneſſe, ſobrietie, and in all manner of vpright and godly conuerſation, For the night is paſt, and the day is come, wherein we may ſee to walke vprightly, And therefore we muſt caſt off the vnprofitable workes of darkeneſſe, as the Apoſtle exhorteth vs, Rom. 13. 12. And know this, That thoſe who in this light doe not walke accordingly, but delight in ſinnes the works of darkeneſſe, ſhall one day haue their fill: He that loueth the darke, for the hiding of his talent, muſt be caſt for his reward into vtter darknes. Matth. 25. 25 30.

Verſ. 29. Let him that hath an eare to heare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches. Here is Chriſts commandement, the ſecond part of this concluſion: But hereof we haue ſpoken before.

CHAP. 3.

Verſ. 1. And write vnto the Angel of the Church that is at Sardis, Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeuen Spirits of God, and the ſeuen ſtarres, I know thy workes, for thou haſt a name that thou liueſt, but thou art dead.

These words containe the fift particular commandement of our Sauiour Chriſt vnto Iohn, wherein he is inioyned to write and ſend a ſpeciall Epiſtle to the Church of God in Sardis: of this commandement we haue ſpoken before. The Epiſtle it ſelfe, is contained in the ſixe firſt verſes, and hath three parts: A Preface, the matter of the Epiſtle, and the Concluſion. The Preface in theſe words; Theſe things ſaith he which hath the ſeuen Spirits of God, and the ſeuen ſtarres. In this Preface, firſt is ſet downe in whoſe name this Epiſtle is written, to procure authoritie vnto it: to wit, in Chriſts name, whoſe ſoueraigntie is deſcribed by two royalties, that is, by two prerogatiues or priuiledges belonging vnto him, as he is a ſoueraigne king of his Church: the firſt is, The hauing of the ſeuen Spirits of God. The ſecond, his hauing of the ſeuen ſtarres.

For the firſt royaltie: In the firſt Chap. verſ. 4. I ſhewed that by ſeuen ſpirits, were meant the holy Ghoſt; from whom proceede all the gifts and graces that any men enioy: and therefore whereas Chriſt is ſaide to haue the ſeuen ſpirits of God; the meaning is, that he hath the holy Ghoſt. And this is a royaltie of Chriſt, as he is the King and head of his Church. If it be ſaid, that other ſeruants of God, as Dauid, Peter, and Paul, had the holy Ghoſt. Anſ. It is true: but not in the ſame manner with Chriſt; for he hath the holy Ghoſt two waies: in regard of his diuine nature and of his manhood: as Chriſt is God, he is the beginning of the holy Ghoſt: for the holy Ghoſt is a perſon in the Trinitie, proceeding from the Sonne as well as from the Father; in regard of which proceeding, Chriſt is ſaid to ſend the holy Ghoſt, and to doe whatſoeuer he doth by the holy Ghoſt, as to ouercome death by the eternall ſpirit, and to riſe from death to life.

Secondly, as Chriſt is man he hath the holy Ghoſt: becauſe the holy Ghoſt powred into him the perfection of all graces and gifts whatſoeuer. And for this cauſe he is ſaid to be [a] anointed with the oyle of gladneſſe aboue his fellowes, and to be inriched with the perfection of all graces, and that two waies: both for number and degrees. For number: with men, ſome haue ſome graces, and ſome men others; but Chriſt he hath the graces of all men, and all Angels: moe graces in number then all men and all Angels haue. And as they are in number perfect, ſo they are perfect in degree: for in meaſure they exceed the graces of all creatures, men or Angels: and therefore the father is ſaid to haue giuen the ſpirit vnto his ſonne [b] without meaſure: and thus much is meant by this firſt royaltie of Chriſt. Now the ende why Chriſt is ſaid to haue the holy Ghoſt is, to ſhew that he is a moſt liuely head of his church, who is filled with plentie of all ſtore of graces, whereby he is able to inrich his Church, and to reuiue the members thereof, who are dead in their ſinnes; and ſuch indeede was the ſpeciall ſtate of this Church.

[a] Pſal.45.7.

[b] Ioh.3.34.

The vſe.

Firſt, hence we learne, no man can haue true fellowſhip with the holy Ghoſt but by Chriſt: it is manifeſt, that none can haue fellowſhip with the Father but by Chriſt. And here the ſame is yet verified touching fellowſhip with the holy Ghoſt, eſpecially for the obtaining of thoſe graces that concerne eternall life. This ſerueth for our ſpeciall inſtruction, for among the Papiſts there are many, that haue worthie and excellent gifts of God, as knowledge, memorie, &c. And yet in them be wanting the ſpeciall gifts of the ſpirit, as faith which iuſtifieth, and regeneration: for touching aſſurance of theſe in themſelues, they profeſſe themſelues to be ignorant. And whence commeth this, but onely from their want of Chriſt: for the Chriſt of the Papiſts, as they teach him; is an idol Chriſt; and therefore we are not to maruell though we ſee the moſt learned among them to ſcoffe and mocke at our doctrine of aſſurance of faith, and certaintie of election. I I. We haue many among vs that will ſay, they looke to be ſaued by Chriſt, and to haue their ſinnes pardoned by him, and yet you ſhall perceiue in them no grace of knowledge or conſcience of true obedience. But theſe things cannot ſtand together, to wit, looſeneſſe of life, and forgiueneſſe of ſinnes: and therefore theſe men deceiue themſelues, for if they had Chriſt, they ſhould haue his ſpirit, and the graces thereof purging their hearts, for Chriſt and his ſpirit are neuer ſeuered: he that hath the ſpirit of Chriſt working in him faith and good conſcience, hath an infallible token that Ieſus Chriſt is his. This muſt admoniſh vs to labour for true vnion with Chriſt Ieſus our head, to become fleſh of his fleſh, and bone of his bone: that in him we may haue fellowſhip with the father and with the holy Ghoſt, for till we be vnited vnto

A Chriſt, we ſhall neuer haue the graces of ſaluation wrought effectually in our hearts.

The ſecond royaltie of Chriſt is, that he hath the ſeuen ſtarres: that is, the ſeuen Paſtors of of the ſeuen Churches of Aſia: they are called ſtarres, becauſe in their miniſterie they inlighten men in the way that leadeth vnto life. And Chriſt is ſaid to haue them, becauſe he is a soueraigne Lord ouer them, and they be his ſeruants. For he appointeth that perſon that ſhall be his miniſter among men, he giueth him gifts meete for his calling, he preſcribeth alſo vnto him his office and duties. But the Paſtors of churches (will ſome ſay) are made by the Church? Anſ. The right of ordaining Paſtors belongs to Chriſt, as his royaltie: the office of the church

B is to teſtifie, ratifie, and according to the word of God to approoue of them whom Chriſt maketh and indueth with gifts: and for that cauſe is the Church ſaid to call and ordaine Miniſters.

The ende why Chriſt is ſaid to haue soueraigntie ouer the miniſters, is to ſtrike the heart of the miniſter of this church of Sardis with conſcience of his former negligence, and to ſtirre him vp to diligence and careſulneſſe in his place. And indeede the conſideration of Chriſts ſoueraigntie ouer them, is an excellent motiue to ſtirre vp all miniſters to be diligent in their place, and ſo likewiſe all Chriſtians. For conſidering that they are Chriſts, and the gifts they haue come from him, this muſt mooue them to

C make conſcience of all good duties, for beeing Chriſts they muſt giue themſelues wholly to doe the will of Chriſt, whoſe they are. If he would haue vs liue, we muſt be thankfull becauſe he is Lord of life: if our death will glorifie him, we muſt be content, becauſe we are his. Thus much of the Preface.

The matter of this Epiſtle containeth two parts: A reproofe of a vice, with the remedie thereof, ver. 1, 2, 3. And a praiſe or commendation; ver. 4. The reproofe in theſe words, I know thy works, that is, I know all thy workes, they are all manifeſt vnto me, and I miſlike them. So muſt theſe words be vnderſtood in this place, as may appeare by the reaſon of this re-

D proofe in the words following, Thou haſt a name that thou liueſt, but thou art dead. Wherein is ſet downe the fault of this Church, namely, Hypocriſie: for that they pretended Chriſtian religion in outward profeſſion, but yet wanted the life of chriſtianitie, and the power of godlineſſe: for the meaning of the reaſon is this: thou haſt a name that thou liueſt: that is, Churches round about thee iudge and ſpeake of thee, as of a church that is borne a newe in Chriſt, and is guided by his ſpirit (for by life we muſt vnderſtand ſpirituall life, not corporall) but yet for all this thou art dead: that is, thou wanteſt true ſpiritual life by regeneration, and art indede dead in thy ſinnes: this is a great and a ſharpe reproofe.

That which is here ſaid of this Church of Sardis, may be truly verified of diuers Churerſ.1.

ches in this age. As firſt, of the great church of A Rome, who are guided by the Pope as by their head. That Church hath a name to be aliue, and in their owne pretence it is the only true church of God in the world, but in truth and before God it is dead. Some ſay, it is as a bodie full of diſeaſes, and whoſe throat is cut: but yet the heart panteth, and life remaineth therein. But we may ſay, it hath no manner of ſpirituall life, but lieth ſtark dead as a carkas in the graue. The reaſons that ſome alleadge for it are of ſmall moment: firſt they ſay it hath the ſacrament of baptiſme, which is a note of a true Church: and therefore it hath ſome life? Anſw. Firſt, Baptiſme is not alwaies a note of a true church: for circumciſion, in whoſe ſtead commeth bap- B tiſme, was a Sacrament vſed of the Samaritants when they were [a] no people of God, and ſo no Hoſ 1.9. Church of God. Againe, Baptiſme without the true preaching of the Goſpel, is no infallible ſigne of a Church: it is but a ſeale pulled from the writing, or ſet to a bare paper to no vſe: and further, outward baptiſme, without inward baptiſme, is no note of a Church: but ſuch is baptiſme in the Church of Rome; it hath not inward baptiſme ioyned vnto it, neither the true preaching of the word; for the doctrne which they teach, is a quite ouerturning of Chriſt and his Goſpell: and therefore outward baptiſme may bee where there is no Church. Secondly I anſwer, that baptiſme in C the church of Rome, is a Sacrament not to their Synagogue, but to the hidden church of God among them. For God had his Church among them, euen in the midſt of Poperie. There were alwayes ſome among them that renounced their religion, whom God called home vnto himſelfe by the meanes which were among them; as the vſe of this Sacrament, the Apoſtles Creed, and of other bookes of holy Scripture. For as God ſaid to Elias in Ahabs King. time, [b] I haue reſerued ſeuen thouſand that neuer bowed the knee to Baal: So may it be ſaid of many among the Papiſts, God hath there his ſecret Church, who neuer yeelded to the Popes gouernement and doctrine.

Second reaſon. Antichriſt (ſay they) ſitteth in D the [c] Temple of God. Now the temple of God, Theſſ.2.4. is Gods Church; and therefore the Church of Rome is Gods Church? Anſ. He ſitteth there, not as a member thereof, but as an vſurper and deceiuer. For in the Church of Poperie is the hidden church of God: they are therein mingled, as a little wheat with much chaffe, and as little gold with much droſſe. So that though the Church of God bee where Antichriſt ſitteth, yet the church whereof he is head, is no Church of God; for whether we regard their doctrine or worſhip of God, there is no meanes to beget or preſerue ſpirituall life in their Church. Further, this which Chriſt ſaith of Sardis, may be ſaid not onely of the Papiſts, but of the churches of the Proteſtants, as of this our Church of England, and of the moſt congrega- A tions in the great townes thereof, though not for doctrine, yet in regard of mens conuerſations: for the bodie of our people ſeeme to be aliue by their outward profeſſion, but indeede they are dead in reſpect of the power of godlineſſe; for by occaſion of outward peace theſe ſinnes abound, fulnes of bread, pride both inward in heart, and outward in attyre; alſo cruelty couetouſnes, and carnall ſecurity; like as it was in Noahs time. Now where theſe ſinnes raigne, there the power of godlineſſe is wanting: men content themſelues with an outward profeſſion, but the ſpirituall life of grace is not to be ſeene. And yet this doth not preiudice the ſtate of our church, to nullifie it from bee- B ing the Church of God: for God hath his choſen among vs in all places, who liue indeed a ſpirituall life; though the bodie of our people bee dead in ſinne, and ſo will continue while peace abideth; the threatnings of the miniſters, will not awake men out of the ſleep of ſinne; it muſt be the rod of correction that muſt put into them the power of religion. Men are like to little children, who beſides admonition, muſt feele the ſmart of the rod to bring them to their dutie.

Further, in this Church of Sardis, whome Chriſt calleth dead, though they had a name to liue, note the ſtate of the Church of God; for this was a true church of God, who among the reſt was waſhed in the blood of Chriſt, c.1. C 5: and yet Chriſt ſaith, it is dead in ſinne: that is, in part, not wholly. And therefore a church that is in a very corrupt ſtate, both in regard of outward conuerſation, and of ſundry erronious opinions, may yet remaine the true Church of Chriſt, if ſo be they erre not in the foundation. Which ſerueth for anſwer to them, that thinke our Church to be no church, becauſe it maintaineth not that outward order which they think ſhould be in it. And therefore though we muſt preferre Church before Church: yet wee muſt not condemne a church to be no Church, for ſome corruptions that bee therein. A true body may haue ſome blemiſh, and a true Church ſome wants.

Againe, the Churches of God ſay, this is a D Church; yet Chriſt ſaith, they are dead. How can theſe two ſtand? Anſ. The Churches about Sardis iudged this to be aliue, according to the rule of charitie, becauſe of their outward profeſſion of true religion: for as infants are not indeed all holy, as experience ſheweth, yet till we ſee the ſame made manifeſt, we are in charitie to iudge them to be holy, that are borne of faithful parents: euen ſo ought the miniſter & euery one in Gods church, to thinke the beſt of euery one in gods church, til god make manifeſt what he is. Paul following this rule, calleth whole Churches elect.

But thou art dead. Here are two iudgemēts, one of neighbour Churches, the other of Chriſt; and Chriſts iudgement is preferred. We muſt therefore regard ſpecially the iudgement of Chriſt, and labour to approue our ſelues and our conuerſations vnto Chriſt, rather then to men: for let men ſay what they will of vs, it is Chriſt that muſt ſaue and condemne: this made [a] Paul to ſay, I paſſe little to be iudged of you, or of mans iudgement: why ſo? for hee that iudgeth me is the Lord.

a 1.Cor.9. 3.4.

And indeed, without Chriſts commendation the iudgement of men is nothing: for Chriſt may condemne vs, when men thinke well and ſpeake well of vs: therefore he ſaith, Woe bee vnto you, when all men ſpeake well of you, Luke 6. 26.

v. 2. Bee watchfull, and ſtrenghthen the things that remaine, that are readie to die: for I haue not found thy workes perfect before God.

There bee two degrees of hypocriſie: firſt, when men profeſſe that which is not in their heart at all. The ſecond, when men make profeſſion of more then is in their heart. This ſecond kinde of hypocriſie oft befalleth the children of God; and it is that which Chriſt reprooueth in this Church of Sardis, in the former verſe. After which reprooſe, here he propoundeth remedie to their vice, and a reaſon to mooue them to vſe the ſame. The remedie is in the beginning of the verſe, where are two duties preſcribed: To bee watchfull, and to ſtrengthen or confirme the decaied graces of God in them. For the firſt, Bee watchfull: to be watchfull, here is a moſt worthie and excellent dutie, it is not bodily, but ſpirituall: and it is practiſed when any man hath a circumſpect care and diligent heed in reſpect of the ſaluation of his ſoule. This dutie of watchfulneſſe concerneth two things; ſinne, and death. Watchfulneſſe againſt ſinne ſtands in two duties; Firſt, a man muſt daily and continually bethinke himſelfe beforehand of all ſinnes and vices into which he may haply fall: and for the doing of this, he muſt conſider in himſelfe two things: his Nature, and his Calling. Touching his Nature, he muſt conſider, that in him remaines the ſeede and root of all ſinne, and therefore that he may fall into any ſinne whatſoeuer. Againe, a man conſidering his nature, ſhall find himſelfe more inclined to ſome ſinnes, then to others; and thoſe he muſt eſpecially marke and obſerue. Secondly, for his calling: a man muſt mark the ſins thereof; for ſince the fall of man, euery calling hath his eſpeciall ſinnes, whereto men that walke therein are more incident. The Magiſtrat hath his ſinnes, the Miniſter his, the Lawyer his, the Phyſitian his, and the Trades-man his. And touching theſe, a man muſt conſider vnto what vices and abuſes men are moſt ſubiect, that walke in that calling wherein he liueth, and ſo ſhall he haue a foreſight of the ſinnes that hee may fall into. Secondly, after this foreſight of ſinne, he muſt watch his heart with al diligence, that though it be tempted and aſſaulted, yet it be not tainted with any one ſinne; as the wiſeman counſelleth, [b] Keepe thy heart with all diligence, that ſo the fountaine of all thy actions may be kept holy and pure. The ſecond part of this watchfulneſſe reſpecteth death, or the ſecond comming of Chriſt. In this two things muſt be practiſed: firſt, a man muſt euery daie bethinke himſelfe of his end, and of the comming of Chriſt, either in generall to all the world, or particularly vnto him by death: and in this conſideration he muſt eſteem and iudge of euery day, as of the day of his death, or the day of iudgement. Secondly, hee muſt prepare himſelfe againſt death, and againſt the day of iudgement, euery day, euen this preſent day, as though he ſhould now die, or meete Chriſt in iudgement; and the next day doe the like, and ſo goe on continually to the day of his death. And for our furtherance in this Chriſtian watch, we muſt be mindfull of temperance and ſobrietie, that we keepe mediocritie in the vſe of the creatures of God, and of the things of this life. For when men plunge themſelues, either in the cares of this world, or in earthly delights, they quite forget both ſinne and death, and the day of iudgement; and thus we ſee what Chriſt meaneth by watchfulneſſe.

b Prov.4.23.

The vſe.

As Chriſt preſcribeth this duetie vnto this Church: ſo are we in the name of Chriſt to be enioyned the ſame Chriſtian watchfulneſſe, both againſt ſinne and death, and the day of iudgement. And to mooue vs hereto, conſider theſe reaſons. Firſt, we are watchfull for the preſeruation of the things of this life: as if a towne bee in danger of ſacking, or burning, there is watch and ward kept continually: and if a mans houſe be in danger of robbing, he will ſit vp night and day to ſaue his goods: yea euery man is very painfull and watchfull to heape vp to himſelfe, the things of this world. Now, what a ſhame is it, that men ſhould be watchfull in temporall things, and yet haue no care of their ſoule that muſt liue for euer? Againe, want of watchfulneſſe is the forerunner of death, and eternall deſtruction. 1. Theſſ. 5. 3. When men ſay peace and ſafetie, then ſhall come vpon them ſudden deſtruction. When the rich man had enlarged his barnes vpon the encreaſe of his ſubſtance, he promiſed to himſelfe eaſe and ſecuritie: ſaying, [a] Soule, ſoule, take thy reſt, &c. but it was ſaid vnto him, Oh foole, this night ſhall thy ſoule bee taken from thee. And the [b] old world knew nothing, till the flood came and deſtroied them all. Now, if the want of watchfulneſſe be the forerunner of deſtruction, how great a cauſe haue wee to watch.

a Luk.12. 19,20.

b Matth.24 35.

The ſecond dutie inioyned, is to confirme the graces of God decaied in them. Strengthen the things which remaine, that are readie to die: as if hee ſhould ſay, Sundry be the graces which I haue beſtowed on you: but many are loſt and gone: and thoſe which remaine are about to periſh, vnleſſe you confirme them; therefore ſee now you ſtrengthen and repaire the ſame.

In this dutie, Chriſt teacheth this Church and vs an excellent leſſon, that whoſoeuer hath receiued any gift of God, muſt haue care to preſerue it, and to make the ſame gift ſtrong in him by continuall increaſe. If a man haue receiued knowledge, faith, and repentance, or any other gift of grace, he muſt not ſuffer the ſame to lie dead in him, but ſtirre vp, increaſe, and confirme it daily, that he may be a perfect man in Chriſt. For the gifts which men haue are not their owne, but Gods alſo, who looketh to receiue his owne with aduantage. And therefore men like good Stewards muſt ſo vſe the gifts receiued, that they may returne them to God with increaſe. Thus Paul perſwadeth Timothie, [c] Stir vp the gift of God which is in thee: for els the receiuer is an vnfaithfull ſeruant, and ſo ſhall be rewarded. And for the better performance of this dutie: we muſt often read the word of God, and meditate therein: we muſt heare it often preached; and with due reuerence and preparation receiue the ſacrament: and pray continually, ſtriuing earneſtly againſt the corruptions that be in vs; & daily ſtirring vp our heart to al good duties. Thus did Dauid check the corruption & deadneſſe of his heart: [d] Why art thou ſo caſt downe O my ſoule? and alſo ſtirre vp the ſame vnto all good duties, ſaying, I haue applied my heart to fulfill thy ſtatutes alway euen to the end, Pſal. 119.112.

2.Tim.1.6.

Pſal.42.11.

The vſe.

Hereby are reproued the common ſort of profeſſors and hearers of the word: who ſtand at a ſtay, and goe not forward in grace. This is a great fault, for as we haue receiued grace, ſo we ought to ſtirre vp the ſame, that we may confirme and encreaſe it daily.

Further, Chriſt addeth, Which are about to die, where he anſwereth to a queſtion that is mooued by ſundry at this day, namely, whether graces that cōcerne ſaluatiō may be vtterly loſt or no? Chriſt anſwereth by a diſtinction, that ſome graces that pertain to ſaluatiō, may be loſt quite: and others may be decaied ſo as they are about to die. For the graces of God that pertain to ſaluation, be of two ſorts: ſome be abſolutely neceſſarie, ſo as without them a man of yeares cannot be ſaued: and ſuch are faith and regeneration. Others be leſſe neceſſarie, which ſometime goe with faith, but not allwaies; ſuch are, A plentifull feeling of the fauour of God, ioy in the holy Ghoſt, and boldneſſe in prayer; theſe may be loſt wholly for a time in the ſeruants of God. Yea, faith and regeneration themſelues, may decay grieuouſly and be ready to die, as this text ſaith. Secondly, conſider faith and regeneration in themſelues, and they may be wholly loſt, for nothing in it ſelfe is vnchangeable, but God. The ſtate of the elect Angels by nature is changeable, for they ſtand by the power of God. Thirdly, theſe graces may periſh and decay finally, vnleſſe they be confirmed. Queſt. Why then doe not the elect finally fall away after their calling? Anſ. Their ſtanding commeth not from the conſtancie of grace or faith, but from the promiſe of God made vnto them, and to their faith: ſo Chriſt ſaith to Peter, [a] Thou art Peter, and vpon this rocke, that is, vpon thy faith which thou haſt profeſſed, will I build my Church, and the gates of hell ſhall not preuaile againſt it: that is, though they may aſſault it, and greiuouſly weaken it, yet they ſhall neuer bee able finally to ouercome it.

a Matth.16.16.

The vſe.

Seeing ſundry graces of God may bee loſt, & the moſt neceſſarie graces greatly decay, yea of themſelues quite die; we that haue receiued from God any grace, either of faith or repentance, are hereby taught not to be preſumptuous, or ouer confident in our ſelues, but with feare and trembling worke out our ſaluation.

Phil.2.12.

The reaſon to enforce the former remedie, is this: For I haue not found thy works perfect before God: and therefore watch, and confirme the decaied graces of God that be in thee. In this reaſon, Chriſt giueth them and vs to vnderſtand, that he maketh a ſearch in his church of all the workes that men doe in the ſame, that he may accordingly reward them: for not finding doth preſuppoſe a ſearch. And ſo the Scripture ſpeaketh of God vſually. Before the old world was deſtroyed, it is ſaid; The [b] Lord ſaw that the wickedneſſe of man was great vpon the earth, as if he had looked from heauen vpon the earth, and beheld that it was corrupt, ſpeaking after the manner of men, to ſignifie that ſearch which he maketh into mens actions. And ſo he is ſaid to come downe from heauen, at the building of Babell, Gen. 11. and before he deſtroyed Sodome and Gomorrah, [c] he came downe to ſee whether they had done according to that crie, which was come vp to him. And ſo before the Lord puniſhed the wickedneſſe of the Iſraelites, [d] Hee made a ſearch into their waies: and the ſecond Commaundement is this, God will viſit the ſinnes of the fathers vpon the children: that is, he will make a ſearch, whether the ſinnes of the fathers bee among the children, and if they be, he will puniſh them.

b Gen.6.5.

d Ier.8.12.

Seeing Chriſt makes this ſearch into al mens actions, wee are taught in all things to haue care to conform our ſelues to the will of Chriſt: and ſo ſet our ſelues to the doing of all good duties, according to his word: If we knew a magiſtrate would come to make ſearch in our houſe, we would be ſure to ſet all things in order againſt he came: Shall we be thus circumſpect to prepare for the comming of an earthly man? and ſhall we not much more prepare our ſelues againſt the ſearch of our Sauiour Chriſt the euerliuing God, from whome nothing can be hid?

I haue not found thy works perfect. Works are perfect two waies; by the law, or by the goſpell. By the law, when in our workes we doe all that the law requireth: and thus are no mans workes perfect in this life. By the Goſpel, our works are perfect when they proceede from a beleeuing heart, that hath a care to pleaſe God in all things: and theſe works are perfect not in themſelues, but in the acceptation of Chriſt. Here by perfect workes, Chriſt meaneth not the perfection of the law, but of the Goſpel, as if he had ſaid, I haue ſearched into your waies; you doe many works in ſhew, but they proceede not from ſincere faith, nor from a heart that hath care to pleaſe God in all his commandements, and a full purpoſe not to ſinne againſt him: you haue a ſhew of godlineſſe, but you want the power thereof.

Here obſerue that Chriſt condemneth this Church, not becauſe their works were not outwardly conformable to the will of God; but becauſe they proceeded not from a beleeuing heart, that had a ful purpoſe to forſake all ſinne, and to pleaſe God in all things.

The vſe. We therefore muſt take heede of all hypocriſie by the example of this Church: and labour to be of Dauids minde; and pray with him, [e] That our hearts may be vpright in the ſtatutes of the Lord: That we may ſay with Hezekias, [f] Behold Lord how I haue walked before thee with an vpright minde: for this is a notable token of grace, and an infallible badge of him that is the child of God.

[e] Pſal.119.80.

[f] Iſa.38.3.

Before God. Some may ſay, Chriſt here diſtinguiſheth himſelfe from God, and therefore he is not God. Anſ. By (God) in this place we muſt vnderſtand not God ſimply, but God the Father. For Chriſt here ſpeaketh of himſelfe, not as he is God, but as he is mediatour God and man; in which reſpect, euen as he is now glorified, he is inferiour to his Father.

Where note, that Chriſt beeing now glorified in heauen, carrieth himſelfe as Mediatour; whence we gather that we may lawfully, and without preſumption pray vnto Chriſt, without the meanes or interceſſion of Saints or Angels. The Church of Rome denie this; and ſay, becauſe Chriſt is now in full glorie in heauen, therefore we muſt vſe vnto him the mediation of Saints: but Chriſt being now in heauē, marks our works in particular: and therefore we may without preſumption come vnto him by praier.

V. 3. Remember therefore how thou haſt receiued and heard, & hold faſt, and repent: If therefore thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a theefe, and thou ſhalt not know what houre I will come vpon thee.

When Chriſt hath reprooued them for their ſinne of hypocriſie, and preſcribed them a remedie with a reaſon thereof; he doth as a good Phyſitian and paſtor, ſhew them the way how they may practiſe that remedie. For they might ſay; we are commanded to watch, and to renew our decaied graces, but how ſhall we doe this? Chriſt anſwereth, by doing three things: I. by remembring that which thou haſt receiued by hearing: II. by holding faſt: III. by repenting of thy ſinnes.

For the firſt, Remember therefore, that is, call to minde the doctrine of ſaluation which thou haſt beene taught by mine Apoſtles. This remembrance is a moſt excellent meanes to mooue a man to ſubiection to Gods will, to repent, and to practiſe all good graces. When Dauid ſaw the proſperitie of the wicked, his feete had almoſt ſlipt: but his remedie againſt that temptation was his [b] going to Gods Sanctuarie, and there calling to minde the ende of thoſe men. Againe, [c] I haue remembred thy name, O Lord, in the night, and haue kept thy law. Peter denied his maſter, when he forgot his word: but when he was put in minde thereof by the looke of Chriſt, and the crowing of a cocke, he then repented, and wept bitterly, Luk. 22.61, 62. Sinnes committed by men of ignorance, are many and grieuous: and therefore all ſinnes are called ignorances, Heb. 9. 7. but if men would by faith keepe in minde the word of God, it would be a notable meanes to keepe them from ſinning.

[b] Pſal.73.17.

[c] Pſal.119.55.

The vſe. Here then we haue a ſoueraigne remedie againſt ſinne: namely, whereſoeuer we are, or whatſoeuer we doe, we muſt call to minde the word of God, and the promiſes of God: and thoſe will be a lanterne vnto our ſteps, and a light vnto our pathes. The deuill laboureth aboue all things, to bring vs to forget the word, for then he knowes he can eaſily draw vs into any ſinne. Queſt. How ſhall we keepe in minde the word and promiſes of God? Anſ. That is a grace of God, and for the attaining vnto it, we muſt firſt labour to haue our hearts affected with the loue of Gods word and promiſes: for a man can neuer keepe in minde that, whereof he hath no liking. Secondly, we muſt labour to beleeue the word of God: For faith giues it rooting in our hearts, Coloſſ. 2. 7. The cauſe why there is ſo little remembring of that which is taught, is, for that it is not mixed with faith in thoſe that heare it.

Againe, the thing to be remembred is, How thou haſt receiued and heard: that is, looke what doctrine thou haſt receiued by hearing, and that remember. Where we ſee Chriſt ioyneth receiuing and hearing together. Whence we may gather, that teaching and receiuing of the word of God by hearing, is the preſcribed generall meanes, whereby God reuealeth his will, counſell, and purpoſe touching the ſaluation of mankind: neither is there any other meanes appointed hereunto in the word of God.

The vſe. This ſheweth, that their opinion is falſe, who teach that God calleth all the world effectually vnto ſaluation, for how can they be called, that neuer heard of the word of God? but all in all ages neuer heard of the word of God; albeit ſince the comming of Chriſt, their ſound hath gone forth into all nations. Secondly, this ſheweth the fondneſſe of their opinion, who defend the doctrine of vniuerſall grace: that God ſhould giue grace pertaining to ſaluation, vnto euery man in the world, ſo as he may be ſaued if he will: for the meanes to receiue grace is the hearing of the word, which all men in all ages neuer had vouchſafed vnto them.

The ſecond dutie preſcribed, is the holding faſt of this doctrine. To hold faſt here ſignifieth two things; firſt, to maintaine the doctrine of the Goſpel receiued and taught by the Apoſtles. Secondly, to put the ſame in practiſe in a godly life: of theſe we haue ſpoken before, cap. 2. 25.

The third dutie is to repent: where by repentance is not meant the beginning of repentance: but the renewing and reſtoring of the ſame, for their hardneſſe and deadneſſe of heart, whereby they did ſlackly and coldly practiſe the good duties which they did profeſſe.

The vſe. Hereby we are taught not to content our ſelues with the beginning of repentance, but we muſt renewe the ſame continually, and that not for groſſe ſinnes onely, but euen for the wants that be in vs, as for our dulneſſe and deadneſſe of heart, and for our hypocriſie, and decay in Gods graces.

And becauſe this church was very dead and dull of heart; therefore Chriſt addeth a reaſon to mooue them to the practiſe of this dutie: which is a moſt terrible threatening, in theſe words: If thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a theefe, and thou ſhalt not know what houre I will come vpon thee.

Here marke Chriſts order and dealing: hauing preſcribed a remedie for their fault, he giueth them a direction to practiſe the ſame; and after addeth a moſt terrible threatening to driue them thereunto; as if he ſhould ſay, If thou wilt not watch againſt ſinne, and againſt death, and for that ende remember my word, hold faſt the ſame, and repent; then looke as a theefe comes vpon a man on a ſudden, and ſpoyles his goods, and cuts the throat of his children; ſo will I come on thee on a ſuddaine, and powre vpon thee my wrath, whereby I will euen cut the throat of thy ſoule, and thou ſhalt haue no meanes to eſcape my puniſhment.

Here Chriſt threateneth ſuddaine and ſpeedie deſtruction: but yet with condition and limitation of repentance. Now, becauſe we be like this Church (as hath beene ſhewed) by reaſon of the long peace which we inioy; we may alſo vſe the ſame reaſon and threatening at this day, to ſtir vp our dead hearts. We muſt watch againſt all ſinne, and againſt death: and for this ende muſt haue in memorie the word of God, and hold faſt the faith vnto the end, and repent vſe.

A continually of all want: but if we doe not this, then are the vengeances, and eternall puniſhments of God, to bee powred vpon vs without meaſure, and that ſuddenly, when wee cannot preuent them. If a man haue but a ſparke of grace, the conſideration hereof will mooue him to repentance, and to watchfulneſſe; but if this will not awake a man out of his ſinnes, then nothing remaineth but a fearefull expectation of the wrath of God, which ſhall be vnauoidable, and endure for euer. Indeed if a man had ſome thouſand yeares allotted for the puniſhment of his ſinnes, there were ſome cauſe why he might continue in them: but ſeeing this puniſhment is eternall, and when many thouſand B yeares are expired, they are as far from the ende of their woe as euer they were; therfore it muſt ſtirre vp all dead and drowzie hearts vnto repentance, and cauſe them to ſhake off ſecuritie, ignorance, and coldneſſe in religion, and to breake of the courſe of euery ſinne.

V. 4. Notwithſtanding thou haſt a few names yet in Sardie, which haue not defiled their garments, and they ſhall walke with me in white: C for they are worthie.

Here beginneth the ſecond part of the matter of this Epiſtle, namely, the praiſe and commendation of ſome part of this Church. The words doe thus depend vpon thoſe which went before; whereas Chriſt had ſaid, that this Church was dead in ſinne, and had onely a name to liue; ſome man might aske, how it could be a true Church. To this Chriſt anſwereth in the beginning of this verſ. That though the greateſt part in this Church were dead in their ſinnes, yet ſome few there were among them that were aliue in Chriſt, and did teſtifie the ſame by true and ſincere obedience.

In this coherence we may obſerue two inſtructions. I. that a particular congregation on D earth is made a church of God, and ſo called in regard of Gods elect therein, who doe truly beleeue. For the priuiledges of a Church belong vnto particular congregations, onely by reaſon of the faith of the elect among them. The Catholicke Church is the whole company of the elect truly beleeuing in Chriſt, and particular congregations are members of it, ſo farre forth as they doe truly beleeue: the reſt that doe not truly beleeue are not members of the Church before God, but only in the iudgement of men: like vnto ſuperfluous humors which are in the bodie, but no parts thereof. This confuteth the doctrine of the Church of Rome, who teach that wicked men that are reiected in Gods decree, may yet be true members of the church of God.

Secondly, in this coherence Chriſt intimateth vnto vs a diſtinction betweene man and man in this Church, for all that were in this Church, were men called, profeſſing Chriſt and his Goſpel: and yet of them, ſome were dead in their ſinnes, and others were aliue in Chriſt. Touching this diſtinction of men, we muſt ſearch the cauſe thereof. It muſt not be aſcribed to any power or will in man, but to the good pleaſure of God, as the Scripture teacheth; for when the bodie of the Iſraelites had giuen themſelues to Idolatrie, there were yet [a] ſeuen thouſand that neuer bowed the knee to Baal. What was the cauſe why they did not liue like to the other Iſraelſtes? Surely nothing in the will of man (though the Idolatrie of the other, was to be aſcribed to themſelues) but the text is cleare, it was the good pleaſure of God, who had preſerued and kept them.

By this we ſee how erroneous and falſe the diuinitie of ſome Proteſtants is, which aſcribe the cauſe of this diſtinction betweene man and man, to the libertie of mans will beeing renewed by grace, ſaying, That God giues to euery man ſauing grace, by vertue whereof, he may repent and beleeue if he will: but yet becauſe the will of man doth ſtill remaine ſinnefull, hence it commeth, that he hath libertie to obey, or not to obey. And therefore the cauſe why ſome men lie dead in ſinne is, becauſe they ſet their will to refuſe the grace ot God; and the cauſe why ſome men liue in Chriſt is, becauſe they incline their will to embrace the grace of God. But this doctrine doth greatly diminiſh the grace of God, in that it maketh the acceptance thereof to lie and depend on the pleaſure and will of man: when as the power of almightie God ioyned with his will, is the true cauſe thereof, leauing ſome to themſelues, who doe fall, and enabling others to ſtand by his grace.

Now follow the words of this commendation. Notwithſtanding thou haſt a few names yet in Sardie: that is, There be yet in this church a few perſons knowne to me by their names: (for by Names, we muſt vnderſtand perſons named) which haue not defiled their garments. Here (to omit many expoſitions) is an alluſion to the Ceremoniall law, wherein God ſet downe a diſtinction betweene things cleane and vncleane, not in themſelues, but by his appointment: and among the Iewes, if any man had but touched an vncleane thing with his hand, or with his garment, thereby he was defiled, and his garment defiled legally; and ſo he or his garment were reputed vncleane: whereupon they had a ſpecial care not to touch the things that were defiled, no not with their garments. Now this ſignified an other thing vnto them, namely, That they ought to abſtaine, not onely from the outward ſinnes of the morall Law, but euen from all occaſions, intentions, ſhewes, and appearances of euill. And in this place, this is meant hereby: that ſome in this Church of Sardie, had ſo farre made conſcience of ſinne, that they would not meddle with the very occaſions and appearances of euill.

Hereby we ſee, that the ſeruants of God are but few in number: for the bodie of this people were dead in ſinne, and a few onely in this great place liued in Chriſt; ſo Chriſt ſaith to his Diſciples, The flocke to whome the father [b] will giue the kingdome of heauen, is but a little flocke. The Prophet Iſai is ſent, [a] To harden the hearts of the bodie of the people for their iniquities: and [b] the tenth part onely muſt be ſaued: and in the Goſpel it is ſaid, [c] The way to hell is broad, and many there be that walke therein: but the way to heauen is ſtraight, and few there be that enter into it.

Hereby then we are taught not to follow the example of the multitude, but of the fewer and better ſort. It is a foule ſinne that keepes many from religion, and brings them to deſtruction, when they will liue after the manner of the world, and as their forefathers haue done. This is a falſe rule, and a dangerous courſe.

Thou haſt a few names. That is, perſons whoſe names I know, and haue recorded. They are called names, becauſe Chriſt obſerues and knowes them by their names. Where note, that thoſe that are the true ſeruants of God, are particularly knowne vnto Chriſt. [d] The haires of your head are numbred (ſaith Chriſt to his Diſciples) much more were their names knowne. Againe, he biddeth them reioyce that their names [e] were written in heauen. And Chriſt the good Shepheard knowes his ſheepe, and calls them by their names, Ioh. 10. 3.

[d] Luk.12.7.
[e] Luk.10.20.

This is a matter of endeleſſe comfort vnto the people of God: for what can cauſe a man more to reioyce, then to knowe that his name particularly is knowne to the King of Kings, & that accordingly he hath ſpeciall regard vnto him? When the Lord would comfort Moſes, and put courage into him in doing the duties of his calling; he telleth him, That he was knowne vnto him by [f] name. Yea, this is the foundation of mans ſaluation: [g] The Lord knoweth who are his.

[f] Exod.33.12,13,14,and 17.
[g] 2.Tim.2.19.

Which haue not defiled their garments: Here they are commended for vprightneſſe and ſinceritie of life and conuerſation, in that they kept themſelues from the very ſhewes and appearance of euill; when as the reſt of this church was dead in ſinne.

In their example Chriſt preſcribeth vnto vs a patterne of true pietie, how we ought to carry our ſelues in the Church of God on earth: we muſt not content our ſelues with a bare profeſſion of Religion, and keepe our ſelues from groſſe ſinnes onely, but abſtaine from the very ſhewes of euill. Yea, more particularly, here are three things taught vs, touching ſinne. Firſt, that we ought to make conſcience of euery ſinne in our owne perſon. Secondly, that we ought to keepe our ſelues from the contagion of ſinne in others, either by giuing conſent vnto them, or furthering and allowing them any way therein. Thirdly, that we ought to abſtaine from the very occaſions, and ſhewes, and appearances of ſinnes: So Paul teacheth vs [h] to abſtaine from all appearance of euill, Eph. 5. 3. He will not haue ſundrie ſinnes, as fornication, vncleanneſſe, &c. ſo much as once named, thereby to giue the leaſt approbation vnto them. We muſt therefore looke on this example, lay it to our hearts, and conforme our liues vnto it: ſo ſhall we be good ſeruants of God, and haue the ſame commendation with theſe few: for true religion ſtands not in knowledge, but in obedience, and this is true obedience, to make conſcience of euery ſinne in our owne perſons; to take heede of the infection of ſinne in others: and to abſtaine from the appearance of euill. A happie Church ſhould we haue, if theſe things were practiſed: but this is the ſhame and reproach of our profeſſion, that we haue no care of true obedience in our ſelues and others, whereby we ſhould glorifie God, and grace our holy Religion.

[h] 1.Theſſ.5. 22.

The Church of Rome hence gather, that a man after baptiſme, may liue without mortall ſinne. For theſe fewe perſons in this church in their baptiſme, put on Chriſt, and after kept themſelues from all occaſions of ſinnes, ſo as they had not committed any mortall ſinne. But their collection is vnſound: For firſt, though they had to this time abſtained from all mortall ſinne, yet how can they prooue that they ſinned not afterward? Secondly, they are ſaid not to haue defiled their garments, not for that they had not committed any ſinne, but becauſe they endeauoured to keepe themſelues from the appearance of all ſinne; and ſo muſt the obedience which is aſcribed to Gods children in ſcripture be vnderſtood: namely, of their ſincere purpoſe and endeauour to obey, and ſo among vs, thoſe that haue a ſettled purpoſe and reſolution to make conſcience of euery ſinne, and in all things to doe the will of God, they are reputed for the keepers of the law. For God in his children accepts the will for the deede. And they ſhall walke with me in white. After the commendation of theſe fewe, Chriſt addeth a promiſe of liuing with him in glorie. For ſo white garments haue alwaies beene vſed to ſignifie ioy, happineſſe, life, and glorie, Eccleſiaſt. 9. 8. At all times let thy garments be white, that is, take the delight and pleaſure in vſing the creatures of God; So that here theſe few haue a promiſe to be freed from all want, and to liue with Chriſt in all glorie, ioy, and pleaſure.

This benefit, hath beene in effect further vrged in the former Chapter: here onely I will note one Doctrine: namely, That they wich liue in the world among the wicked, and doe not communicate with their ſinnes, shall not partake with them in their puniſhments; for the A bodie of this Church muſt haue Chriſt to come amongſt them as a Theefe, but the godly muſt walke with Chriſt in white, in glorie. [a] Lot was freed from the deſtruction of the Sodomites, becauſe he partaked not with them in their ſinnes: and among the Iſraelites, [b] Thoſe that mourned for the ſinnes of the people, are marked in the fore-head, that when Iudgements came vpon the wicked, they might be ſpared.

[b] Ezek.9.6.

This point muſt be remembred, for by reaſon of long peace and proſperitie among vs, many ſinnes abound, as Ignorance, Atheiſme, contempt of Religion, and prophaning of the Lords Sabbath, with innumerable ſinnes of the ſecond Table. All which call for Iudgements B from heauen, and no doubt they will be puniſhed; partly in this life, and partly in the life to come, vnleſſe our people doe repent. Thoſe therefore that would not partake of the common Iudgements that are to come, muſt now beware that they communicate not with the common ſinnes that doe abound, and ſee that they keepe faith and good conſcience, hauing their righteous and zealous hearts grieued, for the abhominations among which they liue.

After the promiſe, is adioyned the reaſon thereof, For they are worthy. Hence the church of Rome doth cõclude, that a man by his works may merit Heauen, becauſe they be worthie of reward. A moſt blaſphemous concluſion, and a C manifeſt abuſe of the word of God. Gods children indeede are worthie life euerlaſting; but not by the merit of their works, for then they ſhould be done according to the rigour of the Law: but for the worthineſſe of their perſon, when as they ſtand righteous before God in Chriſt; for when God will ſaue any man, he giues Chriſt vnto that man truely and really; ſo as he may ſay, Chriſt is mine. And with Chriſt God giues his ſpirit which worketh in his heart true ſauing faith, whereby he doth receiue Chriſt: and ſo Chriſt and his righteouſneſſe belongs vnto that man really, and by vertue thereof he is worthie life euerlaſting; and this is the worthineſſe which Chriſt meaneth in this place, and not any worthineſſe of their works: D ſo that this doth helpe them nothing at all, and yet it is the moſt probable place of Scripture, to prooue and iuſtifie the Doctrine of mans merits.

Two kinds of worthineſſe.

v. 5. He that ouercommeth ſhall be clothed in white array, and I will not put out his name out of the Booke of life: but I will confeſſe his name before my Father, and before his Angels.

v. 6. Let him that hath an eare heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

Here is the concluſion of this Epiſtle: and it containeth two parts: a promiſe and a commandement. The promiſe in the fiſt verſe, and the commandement in the ſixt. In the promiſe note two things; firſt, the parties to whom it is made, To him that ouercommeth, whereof we haue ſpoken [c] before. Secondly, the thing promiſed: to wit, glorie and eternall happineſſe, which is expreſſed three wayes: Firſt thus, He ſhall be cloathed in white array: that is, he ſhall haue euerlaſting life and happines, ſo much is ſignified by white rayment, as we haue alreadie ſhewed.

c Chap.2.7.

The vſe.

Hence the Church of Rome conclude, that a man may doe good workes reſpecting a reward. Anſw. In ſome ſort it is true; for ſo it is recorded of Moſes, Heb. 11. 26. He had reſpect to the recompence of reward. But yet the recompence of reward, muſt not be the principall ende of our good works: for chiefely we muſt thereby intend to teſtifie our faith, and our obedience vnto God, and with that we may haue reſpect to euerlaſting life.

The ſecond thing promiſed; And I will not put out his name out of the booke of life. For the vnderſtanding of this, two queſtions muſt be ſcanned; Firſt, what this booke of life is: Secondly, whether a man may be blotted out of this Booke. For the firſt; this booke of life is nothing elſe, but Gods predeſtination or eternall decree of Election, whereby he hath choſen ſome men vnto ſaluation vpon his good pleaſure. And this is called a Booke, becauſe it is like vnto a Booke. For as the Generall in a Campe, hath the names of all his ſoldiours that fight vnder him, in a Booke; and as the Magiſtrate of a Towne hath the name of euery free man and denizon inrolled; ſo God in the booke of his Election, hath the names of all that ſhall be ſaued.

For the ſecond Queſtion. A man may be written in the booke of life two waies: either truely before God, or in the iudgement of men onely. Thoſe whoſe names are truely before God written in this booke, cannot be blotted out: For Gods counſell touching the eternall ſtate of euery man, is vnchangeable. This the golden Chaine of Gods decree, doth plainely ſhewe: [a] For whom he hath predeſtinated, them he hath called, and whom he called, them alſo he iuſtified, and whom he iuſtified, them he alſo glorified. Others there be that haue their names written in this Booke, onely in the iudgement of men: and thus are all men written in the Booke of life, that profeſſe the Goſpel of Chriſt in his Church: for ſo charitie binds vs to iudge of them: And theſe may haue their names blotted out. In this ſenſe doth the Scripture often ſpeake: as when the Prophet wiſheth, [b] That a Rom.8.30.

b Pſal.69.28

A God would blot his enemies out of the Booke of life (meaning Iudas principally) his meaning is, that it might be made manifeſt, his name was neuer written therein. This then is the meaning of this promiſe: that they who doe auoid the occaſions of ſinne, and haue care to keepe faith, and good conſcience vnto the ende, haue their names written in the booke of life, and they ſhall neuer be blotted out.

Hence I gather two things: Firſt, that the number of the elect, in reſpect of God is certaine: for the names of thoſe which are to be ſaued, be as it were written in a booke, and being once written in, they remaine there for euer. Some doe teach, that all may be ſaued, if they will: but this is a meere fancie of man: B for what ſhould there neede any booke of life, if that were ſo? Secondly, hence I gather, that this number can neither increaſe, nor be diminiſhed, let men doe what they can: If they had beene of vs, they would haue continued with vs, 1. Ioh. 2. 19. All that thou haſt giuen me haue I kept, and none of them is loſt, Iohn 17. 12.

The vſe.

Whereas a man may be written in the booke of life; to wit, in the iudgement of men, and yet be blotted out: hereby we are to be admoniſhed, to looke vnto our ſelues, and to make conſcience of euery ſinne, and to auoid and ſhunne the very occaſions thereof. For ſo long as we profeſſe the Goſpel, and obey the ſame, our names be in the booke of life: but when we commit any ſinne, we do as much as in vs lieth, C make a penne, and reach it vp to heauen to blot our names out of that booke: and they that keepe a courſe in ſinning, doe plainely ſhewe that they were neuer truely written therein.

Secondly, conſidering that the number of the elect is certaine, it muſt be a motiue to cauſe vs to labour for ſome aſſurance of election, that we may truely ſay, we haue our names written in Gods booke. But here ſome bad perſon will ſay, ſeeing the number of the Elect is vnchangeable, I will liue as I liſt; for if my name be in the booke of God, it ſhall neuer be blotted out; and if it be not in, it can neuer be added. Anſw. Theſe men deceiue their owne D ſoules: for they that haue their names written in the booke of life, ſhall liue as theſe fewe did in this Church of Sardis, in true faith and holy obedience. For he that is ordained for glorification, is ordained to iuſtification and ſanctification: and it is impoſſible for him that ſhall be ſaued, to liue alway in ſinne, and therefore theſe men muſt rather labour to repent and beleeue, and to get ſome ſignes of their election, that they may knowe that their names are written in the booke of life.

The third benefit is this: I will confeſſe his name before my Father, and before his Angels. That is, in the day of iudgement I will acknowledge and profeſſe him to be mine; one of my elect, that keepeth faith and good conſcience vnto the ende. I will take him from the company of the wicked world, and ſet him on my right hand, and aduance him to glorie, pronouncing vpon him the bleſſed voyce of abſolution, Come, thou bleſſed of my father, Matth. 25.34. The end why this benefit is thus propounded, is to draw this Church to profeſſe the name of Chriſt in this world: for if they would profeſſe Chriſt before men, he will acknowledge them for his owne at the laſt day.

The vſe. This ſame reaſon here propounded, muſt induce vs to make a true confeſſion of Chriſt, againſt the world and all Chriſts enemies: which to doe is a very hard matter: A man of himſelfe cannot ſtand out; but yet the conſideration of this, that Chriſt will confeſſe him at the laſt day, will be a notable motiue and meanes to inable him thereto. If an earthly Prince ſhould come to a man among a great company, and call him by his name, ſpeaking kindly vnto him, he would eſteeme it a great honour vnto him; and for that he would not ſticke to die in the Princes cauſe. O then, what honour is this, that Chriſt Ieſus will in the laſt day vouchſafe to all thoſe that in this life doe ſincerely confeſſe him, and ouercome. He will confeſſe them to be his, and receiue them to his owne glorie. But on the coutrarie, thoſe that will not confeſſe him here, but diſgrace him; either by falſe doctrine, or profaneneſſe of life, will Chriſt at the day of iudgement vtterly diſgrace, by denying them to bee his, and there pronounce vpon them the fearefull ſentence of condemnation, Goe yee curſed, &c. Which if we would then eſcape, and alſo procure vnto vs the ioyfull voyce of abſolution: we muſt here labout to hold the truth of Chriſts doctrine, and alſo keepe a good conſcience vnto the end. But if we onely profeſſe him in iudgement, and not in the practiſe of an holy life, ſurely Chriſt will profeſſe that he knowes vs not, and then giue vs our portion with the deuill and his Angels.

The Commaundement followeth: verſ. 6. Let him that hath an eare, &c. of which we haue ſpoken.

V. 7. And vnto the Angell of the Church which is of Philadelphia, write: Theſe things ſaith hee, which is holy and true: which hath the key of Dauid, which openeth and no man ſhutteth, and ſhutteth and no man openeth.

Here beginnineth the ſixt particular Epiſtle of our Sauiour Chriſt, from this verſe to the 14. And before (as to the reſt) is prefixed a ſpeciall Commandement vnto Iohn, whereby he is inioyned to write this Epiſtle vnto the Church of Philadelphia; the end of which commaundement, is to warrant the calling of Iohn to write this Epiſtle: but of this we haue ſpoken before.

The Epiſtle it ſelfe containeth three parts: a Preface, the matter of the Epiſtle, and the Concluſion. The Preface in this verſe, Theſe things ſaith hee, &c. Wherein is ſet downe, in whoſe name this Epiſtle is ſent; namely, in Chriſts: where (as in the former Epiſtles) he is excellently deſcribed, for the winning of more credit vnto this Epiſtle; and that, firſt by his properties: Holineſſe and truth: Secondly, by his Kingly office, in the words following.

For his properties. Firſt, Chriſt is ſaid to be holy. Queſt. How can Chriſt be ſaid to be holy as he is man, conſidering he deſcended from Adam, who conueyed his ſinne and the guilt thereof, to all his poſteritie? The common anſwer is this; That indeede Chriſt deſcended from Adam, as he is man: but his ſubſtance was ſanctified by the holy Ghoſt in the wombe of the Virgin, and thereby he was freed from Adams ſinne. This anſwer is true, but not ſufficient: for men beſides the corruption originall, take from Adam the guiltineſſe of that ſinne which Adam committed. Now ſanctification taketh away the corruption of ſinne, but not the guilt thereof, therefore a more full anſwer is this: That all which come of Adam by naturall generation, doe receiue by that order which God ſet in nature at the creation, ſaying, increaſe and multiply, both the nature of Adam, and the ſinne and guilt thereof. But God for the preuenting of this in the Incarnation of Chriſt, ordained that Chriſt ſhould not come of Adam by naturall generation, but by a miraculous conception of the holy Ghoſt: whereby hee tooke the nature of man with the infirmities thereof, without the ſinne of mans nature, or the guiltineſſe thereof. And thus is Chriſt free from ſinne as he is man.

Further, Chriſt is holy two wayes. In himſelfe; and in regard of his Church. In himſelfe, he is holy ſundry waies: Firſt, in regard of his Godhead, for his diuine nature is holineſſe it ſelfe. Secondly, as he is man; for his manhood was not onely free from all manner of ſinne, by reaſon of his miraculous conception, but it was alſo inriched and filled with holineſſe, and that in greater meaſure then all men and angels, for he receiued the gifts of the holy Ghoſt without meaſure. And againe, as he is man, Chriſt is holy in regard of his obedience and actions; for liuing on earth he did actually as our ſuretie fulfill the Law for vs. Secondly, Chriſt is holy in regard of his Church. Firſt, becauſe he is the authour of that holineſſe, which is in euery member of his Church. Yea, hee is holy in regard of men in a further reſpect; namely, as the roote of all mens holineſſe, as he is Mediatour. For looke as from Adam is actually conueyed originall ſinne to euery one of his poſteritie that commeth by naturall generation: ſo from Chriſt is righteouſneſſe neſſe and holyneſſe conueyed to all that beleeue in him: and for this cauſe he is called [a] our righteouſneſſe and ſanctification: and in this ſence eſpecially is Chriſt ſaid to be holy in this place.

The vſe. Whereas Chriſt is ſaid to be holy not only in himſelfe, but for vs: here we muſt marke what is the principall thing in Chriſtian Religion: namely, to haue care to be ingraffed into Chriſt, that from him we may receiue grace to become new creatures, and feele in vs his power to kill our corruptions, and daily to renew his own Image in vs, in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe; and that as truly, as wee feele in vs Adams corruption. It is not ſufficient for vs to plead, that Chriſt will be our Sauiour, and will free vs from all ſinnes: but we muſt labour to haue Chriſt conuey holineſſe into vs, and that as ſenſibly as we ſee the root conuey ſappe into the branches: and this holineſſe we muſt make to appeare in our liues, as the branches by their fruit, & leaues do ſhew they receiue ſappe from the root.

Secondly, here note, Chriſt propounds himſelfe vnto vs and to all Churches, as a notable patterne to bee followed; giuing vs to vnderſtand, that all that beleeue in him, and looke to bee ſaued by him, muſt be holy as he is holy, making conſcience of euery euill way: for Chriſt is holy to make vs holy. Let vs therefore behold Chriſt, and ſee wherein he expreſſeth himſelfe to bee holy; and therein let vs follow him. So Iohn ſaith; He that hath this hope, purifieth himſelfe as hee is holy: that is, vſeth all good meanes to conforme himſelfe to Chriſts holineſſe.

Thirdly, hereby we learne, that the common title giuen to the Pope, whereby he is called (Holineſſe) is a blaſphemous title: for to be holy, is here made a propertie of Chriſt. And yet more is giuen to the Pope, then to Chriſt in this place, for hee is called Holineſſe, which is a title of God alone.

The ſecond propertie, whereby Chriſt is deſcribed, is Truth: Chriſt is ſaid to be true, in three regards: Firſt, becauſe he is without all errour or ignorance, knowing euery thing as it is, Truth is in Chriſt properly, and in the creatures onely by meanes of him. Secondly, becauſe whatſoeuer he willeth and decreeth, he doth it ſeriouſly, without fraud, deceit, change, or contradiction, as the whole tenure of Scriptures doe ſhew, wherein euery part is ſutable and agreeable to another. Thirdly, becauſe he maketh good euery promiſe made in his word, for in him all the promiſes of God are yea, and Amen, 2.Cor. 1. 20.

The vſe. Whereas Chriſt is ſaid to be true, yea Truth it ſelfe: Firſt, we learne a full difference betweene him, and all falſe wicked ſpirits, for they are ſpirits of errour and falſhood, for the deuill is the father of lyes, and the author thereof.

Againe, whereas Chriſt is true in all his wayes, we ought without all doubting to beleeue A his word, and all promiſes made therein, that concerne our ſaluation. If Chriſt could erre or lye, and men be deceiued by him, then they might iuſtly doubt of the truth of his word: but ſeeing he is true in all his promiſes, we muſt beleeue in him: and in all our deſtreſſes either of bodie or minde, depend vpon him: for he hath made a promiſe to helpe, and he will neuer faile them that reſt on him.

Thirdly, in this propertie, he propounds himſelfe an example, to be followed of his Church and of vs, that as Chriſt is ſerious in his decrees, and conſtant in his promiſes; ſo muſt we purpoſe euery good thing ſeriouſly, and alſo make good whatſoeuer good thing we B promiſe. For, Lyers muſt be deſtroyed, Pſal.5.6. They that loue, or make lyes, muſt neuer come into heauen, but be ſhut out thence, and caſt into the burning lake of fire and brimſtone, Reuel. 22. 15. But it is a note of a man, that is a good member of Gods Church in this world, and that ſhall be inheritor of Chriſts kingdome in heauen, to ſpeake the truth from his heart, Pſal. 15. 22. And lying is a note of the child of the deuill, Ioh.8.44.

Secondly, Chriſt is deſcribed by his kingly office, Which hath the keyes of Dauid, which openeth and no man ſhutteth, and ſhutteth no man openeth. Where firſt, let vs ſee the meaning of the words; For which purpoſe we muſt haue recourſe to Iſay 22. 22. whence theſe words are C borrowed, beeing there ſaid of Eliachim. The circumſtances of the text will eaſily ſhewe the meaning of the words in this place: Shebna, who had beene an auncient Steward to many of the Kings of Iſrael, was Treaſurer alſo vnto King Hezekias: And becauſe he was an hinderer of reformation intended by Hezekias, the Lord threatened to caſt him out of his office: and further, the Lord ſignifieth that Eliachim ſhall come in his roome and haue the ſame office: now to expreſſe this thing, the Lord ſaith, The keyes of the houſe of Dauid ſhall be laid vpon his ſhoulders: That is, Eliachim ſhall be made a Steward of the houſe of Dauid, euen of the kingdome of Dauid, whereof Hezekias was gouernour: (for ſo the houſe of Iuda, and the D houſe of Iſrael, are often put for the whole kingdome of Iuda and Iſrael.) And the giuing of a key was an auncient token of placing and inueſting men in chiefe rule and authoritie; ſo that the meaning of this place, is this: that God hath giuen vnto Chriſt ſoueraigne power and authoritie of gouerning his Church. Queſt. But why is Chriſt ſaid to haue the key of Dauid, for Dauids kingdome was a temporal kingdome, but Chriſts kingdome is not of this world, Iohn 18. 36. And yet it is ſaid, The Lord God ſhall giue vnto him the throne of his father Dauid: and he ſhall raigne ouer the houſe of Iaacob, Luke. 1. 32. 33. Anſw. Chriſt may be ſaid to haue the keyes of Dauid two wayes: Firſt, properly; for when he was borne of the bleſſed virgin Mary, he was borne King of the

Iewes,

verſ. 7.

A Iewes, by right diſcent from his father Dauid, as his Genealogie plainely ſheweth, Luk. 3. And alſo the queſtion of the wiſe men at Ieruſalem, ſaying: Where is the King of the Iewes that is borne? Matth. 2.2. And therefore when the Publicans asked tribute of him, he pleaded the priuiledge of a kings ſonne: albeit, to auoid offence, he was content to yeeld of his right, and to pay tribute; Thereby ſhewing, that he had right to the kingdome of Iſrael, though he would not take it vpon him, and therefore came in ſuch a time when the kingdome was taken of the Roman Emperour. Secondly, he may be ſaid to haue the key of Dauids kingdome typically; for Dauids kingdome was B a figure of Chriſts kingdome, and Dauid himſelfe a type of Chriſt: as it is moſt excellently deſciphered in the Prophets, Ierem. 23. 5. 6. Hoſea 3. 5. where Chriſt is plainly called Dauid, by the name of him that was his type, ſigne, and figure. Queſt. Why were not as well the kingdomes of Nebuchadnezzar and Pharaoh, types of Chriſts kingdome, as Dauids? Anſ. Becauſe Dauids kingdome, was a kingdome of light and pietie; but theirs were kingdomes of ſinne and iniquitie. And he is ſaid to haue the key of Dauids kingdome, becauſe his kingdome and the righteouſneſſe thereof, was figured by the pietie in Dauids kingdome. And this kind of ſpeaking is iuſtifiable by Gods word. So Mat. 2.23. Chriſt is called a Nazarite: C which place hath relation to that which is ſaide properly of [c] Samſon, who was a moſt excellent figure of Chriſt, and did moſt notably repreſent him in his death, wherein he killed more then in his life. Now Chriſt is called a Nazarite, not becauſe he obſerued their rites and orders, for that he did not: he dranke wine, ſo did not the Nazarites: but becauſe he was the truth, and ſubſtance of that order: for in him was fully accompliſhed that holineſſe, which was figured by that order; for he was perfectly ſeuered from all ſinne and pollution. And ſo here he is ſaid to haue the key of Dauid, becauſe he had the ſoueraigntie which was figured by Dauids kingdome.

Which ſhutteth and no man openeth, and o- D peneth and no man ſhutteth. Here Chriſts kingdome is compared to a houſe, which can be opened and ſhut, by none but Chriſt; whereby is ſignified, that none hath power aboue Chriſt in his kingdome, and that his power therein, is ſoueraigne and abſolute. So that hereby is meant, that Chriſt Ieſus ſitting in heauen, hath ſoueraigne power & authoritie ouer the whole Church of God, to gouerne the ſame. That we may the better vnderſtand this ſoueraigne power of Chriſt, we muſt know, it hath three parts. I To preſcribe. II. To iudge. III. To ſaue, or deſtroy. In Preſcribing, Chriſt hath abſolute power, and that in ſundrie things: as firſt, in preſcribing doctrines of faith, and religion vnto his Church, to bee beleeued and obeied, and that on pain of damnation. This power he puts in execution, when in the books of the old and newe Teſtament, he preſcribeth the doctrine of the Law and the Goſpell, to be obeyed and beleeued. And none but he can make an Article of faith, or a law to bind the conſcience: and therefore Paul ſaith, Whoſoeuer ſhall teach any other doctrine, then that which yee haue receiued of vs, let him be accurſed, Gal. 1. 8. Secondly, for regiment; he hath abſolute power to preſcribe how he will haue his church gouerned, and by whom: and therefore Moſes when he was to make the Tabernacle, [d] did all things according to the patterne that the Lord gaue vnto him. So Dauid gaue to Salomon patternes of all things that were in him by the ſpirit, touching the building of the houſe of God, 1. Chron. 28. 12. Thirdly, he hath abſolute power to appoint the time of keeping his Sabbath: for as the ordaining of a Sabbath belongs to Chriſt, ſo doth the changing thereof; he that preſcribeth worſhip, muſt preſcribe the ordinarie ſet time thereunto, which is to continue to the ende. And therefore it is but an opinion of men, to hold that the church may make two or moe Sabbath dayes in a weeke, if they will. Fourthly, In preſcribing the Sacraments; and therefore [e] Paul ſaith, What I haue receiued of the Lord, that deliuer I vnto you: ſpeaking of the Lords Supper. For he that giues grace, muſt alſo appoint the ſignes and ſeales of grace.

The ſecond part of Chriſts ſoueraigne power, is power of iudgment: which is a ſoueraigne power to determine on his owne will, without the conſent of others, or ſubmiſſion to men or Angels. And in determining, Chriſt hath two priuiledges. Firſt, to expound Scripture; the abſolute power of expounding the law, belongeth to the Law-giuer; and his expoſition is authenticall. Secondly, to determine of all queſtions, and controuerſies in Scripture. And therefore it is a wicked opinion of the church of Rome, which hold, that the principall Iudge of interpreting Scripture, and deciding controuerſies, is the Church.

The third part of Chriſts ſoueraigne power, is to ſaue, and deſtroy. This is expreſſed in theſe words: He openeth and no man ſhutteth, and ſhutteth and no man openeth: and for this cauſe he is ſaid [f] to haue the keyes of hell and of death. Whereby is ſignified; firſt, that he hath power to forgiue ſinnes: for that he procureth at his Fathers hands. Secondly, that he hath power to condemne: for when men beleeue not his word, he hath power to hold them in their ſinnes, for which he can caſt them into hell. The ground of this threefold power of Chriſt is this, becauſe he is ſoueraigne Lord ouer his church, and the members thereof.

The Church of Rome ſay, That this key of Dauid, hath more in it then ſoueraigntie ouer his church: to wit, a power to make and depoſe kings that be in his Church. This they teach, that they might prooue the Pope to haue title in ordaining and depoſing of Kings, by vertue of the keyes. But they erre groſſely: for though Chriſt as he is Mediatour, be aboue all Kings, yet in that regard he neither maketh nor depoſeth any Kings: and therefore he ſaith plainely, [a] My kingdome is not of this world. This cauſed him to refuſe to take vpon him the office of an earthly Iudge or Prince, to [b] diuide an inheritance betweene two brethren. Hence it was, that he [c] refuſed to giue ſentence of the adulterous woman. And yet as Chriſt is God, he maketh or depoſeth earthly Kings: ſo the wiſe man ſpeaketh of him in the perſon of wiſdome, [d] By me Kings raigne.

The power of the keies.

For the further clearing of this, we muſt handle another point, which is deliuered hence, concerning the power of the keyes: which is a power whereby the power of the keyes of Dauid is put in execution. This power of the keyes is mentioned, Matth. 16. 19. when Chriſt ſaith vnto Peter, I will giue vnto thee the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, and whatſoeuer thou ſhalt bind vpon earth, ſhall bee bound in heauen: and whatſoeuer thou ſhalt looſe on earth, ſhall be looſed in heauen. This power of the keies, is a miniſterie graunted to Gods Church, to open and ſhut the kingdome of heauen. Firſt, I call it a miniſterie: that is, a ſeruice, becauſe whatſoeuer the Church doth in Chriſts name, is nothing but the dutie of ſeruants vnto their Lord: from whence it is, that the moſt worthy members and officers that euer were in the Church, as the Prophets and Apoſtles, were but the Miniſters of Chriſt. That this is a ſeruice, I ſhew more plainely thus; When Adam fell, in his ſinne all mankind fell with him, and thereby were all barred from the kingdome of heauen. Now ſince that fall, Chriſt became man, and in his manhood ſatisfied the iuſtice of God for mans ſinnes. And this ſatisfaction of Chriſt, is properly that key whereby heauen is opened, beeing oppoſite to mans ſinne whereby it was ſhut. And Gods Church and miniſters cannot properly open heauen by any power they haue, but onely reueale vnto men what Chriſt hath done for them; and withall apply vnto them, the doctrine of Chriſts ſatisfaction which is reuealed. And in this regard they are ſaid to open and ſhut the kingdome of heauen; not as Lords, but as miniſters and ſeruants.

Next I adde, that this power is giuen to the Church: that is, to the company of true beleeuers called to ſaluation by Chriſt, and to none other: and therfore it is ſaid of thē, [e] Whatſoeuer you binde on earth, ſhall be bound in heauen, &c.

e Mat.18.18.

Thirdly, I adde the end of this power of the keyes; To open and to ſhut heauen. How the Church doth this, Chriſt that gaue this power knoweth beſt, and hee hath ſet it downe, Iohn 20.23. Whoſoeuers ſinnes yee remit, they are remitted: and whoſoeuers ſinnes yee retaine, they are retained. The Church therefore opens heauen, when it pardons mens ſinnes: and it ſhuts the ſame, when it lawfully retaines their A ſinnes, and holdeth them vnpardoned: beſides this, there is no opening and ſhutting of heauen committed to he church. Queſt. Can the church pardon ſinne, or retaine the ſame? Anſ. Yes, for theſe are the words of Chriſt: but let vs ſee how. It is one thing to giue ſentence of the pardon of ſinne, and another to pronounce the ſame ſentence giuen. To giue the ſentence of the pardon of ſinne, is onely proper to Chriſt the head of the Church; no Saint, nor Angell, hath that priuiledge: but yet the church pronounceth the ſentence of pardon giuen by Chriſt. If we ſhould ſay, the Church ſhould pardon ſinne, we ſhould rob Chriſt of his honour, for that is a priuiledge of his Godhead. Thus we ſee what the power of the keyes is.

B The right vſe of this power, is when the church doth vſe the ſame for the opening and ſhutting of heauen: Firſt, in the name of Chriſt alone, as a ſeruant; Secondly, according to the rule of Gods word, not after mens affections or inuentions; Thirdly, for this ende, to bring ſinners to repentance, and to continue them therein that they may be ſaued: and to the Church thus vſing this power, Chriſt hath promiſed, that Whatſoeuer they bind in earth, ſhall be bound in heauen; and whatſoeuer they looſe in earth, ſhall be looſed in heauen, Matt. 18. 18.

Further, this power of the keyes, hath two parts: the miniſterie of the word, and ſpirituall iuriſdiction. The key of the miniſterie of the word, is ſet downe and eſtabliſhed by Chriſt, C Mat. 16.19. I will giue vnto thee the keyes of the kingdome of heauen, &c. This miniſterie of the word is a key, becauſe it opens and ſhuts heauen; this it doth two wayes. Firſt, by teaching and explaning the ſubſtance of religion, the doctrine of ſaluation, whereby men muſt come to heauen; and in that regard, is called the key of knowledge, Luke. 11. 52. Secondly, by applying the promiſes of the Goſpel, and the threatening of the Law: For when in the miniſterie of the word, the promiſes of remiſſion of ſinnes, and life euerlaſting, are applied to beleeuers that repent, then the kingdome of heauen is opened: and when as in the ſame miniſterie D of the word, the curſes of the Law are denounced againſt impenitent ſinners, then is the kingdome of heauen ſhut. Yet touching the miniſterie of the word, this diſtinction muſt be remembred; that otherwhiles the Church is certaine of the faith and repentance of ſome men, or ſome congregation; and then they may pronounce remiſſion of ſinnes abſolutly: but otherwhiles they are vncertaine of their faith and repentance, or of their impenitencie; and then they muſt accordingly remit or retaine mens ſinnes, that is, conditionally; pronouncing the remiſſion of ſinnes to all that repent: and denouncing damnation to all that repent not. And thus is the word to be publikely handled in Gods Church at this day, becauſe our Congregations are mixt companies, conſiſting of ſome that repent and beleeue,

beleeue, and of others that doe not truely repent not beleeue.

The ſecond part of this power of the keyes, is ſpirituall iuriſdiction: I call it ſpirituall, to diſtinguiſh it from that outward iuriſdiction whereby the commonwealth is gouerned. That this ſpirituall iuriſdiction is a key, may appeare, Mat. 18. 16. 17. 18. If thy brother offend thee (ſaith Chriſt) admoniſh him priuately: if he heare thee not, yet take with thee two or three: and if he heare not them, tell it to the church; if he refuſe to heare the Church, let him be vnto thee as an heathen man, and as a Publican. Then followeth the promiſe, Verily, I ſay vnto you, Whatſoeuer you bind on earth, ſhal be bound in heauen, and whatſoeuer ye looſe, ſhall be looſed in heauen.

This ſpirituall iuriſdiction, is a power whereby the church pronounceth ſentence vpon the obſtinate offenders in the Church, and puts the ſame in execution. And it hath two parts: Excommunication, and Abſolution. Excommunication is an action of the Church in Chriſts name, excluding an obſtinate offendor that is a profeſſor of the Goſpel, from all the priuiledges of the Church, and from the kingdome of heauen. So Paul [a] commaundeth the inceſtuous man to be committed to Sathan: that is, not onely put out of the kingdome of Chriſt, but alſo after a ſort made ſubiect vnto Sathan, to be outwardly afflicted by him. And therefore Chriſt ſaith: [b] If he heare not the Church, let him be vnto thee as an heathen man: that is, as one that hath no title to the kingdome of heauen. Here may ſome ſay, Can the Church thruſt any man out of the kingdome of heauen? Anſw. It is Chriſt onely that receiueth men thither, and it is he alone that muſt thruſt them out: the Church doth not properly either receiue men in, or put them out; but onely pronounce and declare what Chriſt doth in this behalfe. As if a man that liues in the church, be a common drunkard; the church finding in Gods word, that [c] no drunkard can inherite the kingdome of heauen, which is the ſentence of Chriſt, may pronounce the ſame againſt him, and ſo exclude him from the kingdome of heauen. Obiect. The true child of God may be excommunicated, but he can neuer be excluded from the kingdome of heauen. Anſw. The true child of God may for a time, and in part be excluded the kingdome of heauen. In part; as a man that hath freedome in any incorporation, may lie in priſon for ſome treſpaſſes, and ſo want the vſe of his freedome, though he be a freeman: ſo the child of God, for committing ſinne, may want the vſe of his libertie and freedome which he hath in Gods kingdome; and for a time, while he liueth in ſinne without repentance, yet wholly and for euer he cannot: but ſo ſoone as he repents, he ſhall be receiued certainly againe: for no man is to be barred either frō heauen or the church, any lōger thē he remaineth impenitent.

a 1.Cor.5.5.
c 1.Cor.6.10.

The vſe.

Whereas this cēſure is ſuch, as doth exclude a man, both from the kingdome of heauen and the liberties of the church till he repent; we may here ſee, that this cenſure ought to be vſed with great reuerence, feare, and conſideration: euen ſuch or greater, as we would vſe in cutting of a member from the body. The abuſing therefore of this ſentence in ſmall matters, cannot but be a grieuous ſinne, and a breach of the third commandement, wherein one of Gods moſt weightie ordinances is taken in vaine.

Further, one ſpeciall degree of Excommunication is Anathema: which is when one is pronounced to be condemned, whereof Paul ſpeaketh, 1. *Cor.*16. 22. But this is not pronounced vpon any, but on thoſe that ſinne againſt the holy Ghoſt; and therefore it is ſeldome vſed, becauſe that ſinne is hardly diſcerned: conſiſting not ſo much in the ſpeech, as in the malice of the heart againſt Chriſt.

The ſecond part of this ſpiritual iuriſdiction, is abſolution: which is, when a malefactor vpon his ſufficient repentance is approoued to be a member of the church; and is admitted to the kingdome of heauen. And yet here the church receiues him not into the kingdome of Chriſt, but onely declareth vpon his repentance what Chriſt doth: and thus we ſee wherein Eccleſiaſticall iuriſdiction conſiſteth: and what be the parts of the power of the keyes.

For the better diſcerning of this power of the keyes, we muſt remember foure ſpeciall abuſes hereof that haue taken place in Gods church for many hundred yeares. The firſt is this: that in former ages the church hath giuen this power of the keyes to Peter alone, debarring the ſame from all other, euen from the reſt of the Apoſtles; as though they had onely the vſe, not the right of this power. But the caſe is plaine, this power belongs to euery miniſter of the Goſpell, though they be not Apoſtles, as well as it did to Peter; for in the promulgation of this power, Mat. 16. 19. though Chriſt direct his ſpeech to Peter, yet he ſpeaketh vnto all, as the circumſtances of the place doe plainely ſhew; for Chriſts queſtion (Whom ſay yee that I am) was made to all; now becauſe it would haue beene greater diſorder in that holy company, for all of them to haue ſpoken; therefore Peter beeing both more auncient and bold of ſpeech ſpeaketh for all, and the reſt anſwered in his perſon: and ſo accordingly Chriſt ſpeaking to Peter, doth make a grant of this power vnto all his diſciples in his perſon. And therefore Iohn. 20. 23. he giues this power to all; ſaying plainely, Whoſoeuers ſinnes ye retaine, they are retained, &c. So that the word of God is plaine in this point, to ſatiſfie the conſcience of any, that is not wilfully addicted to the Popiſh religion. Queſt. Whence haue the miniſters of the Goſpell this power? Anſ. By ſucceſsion from the Apoſtles; for Chriſt ſaith, Matth. 28. 19,20. Goe and preach: I will be with you to the ende of the world. Where he cannot meane the Apoſtles onely; but with them all miniſters that did preach and baptiſe, after them, making this promiſe to the Apoſtles, not as they were Apoſtles, but as they were miniſters and preachers of his Goſpell.

The ſecond abuſe is, that the Church of Rome, hath turned the power of the keies into a ſupremacie ouer the Church, making it to be a ſoueraigne authoritie, whereby Peter, and his ſucceſſors the Popes, haue libertie to make lawes, canons, and conſtitutions which binde the conſcience; as alſo to make kings and to depoſe the ſame. A moſt notorious abuſe of this power, which is no ſuperiority but a miniſterie: the chiefe power whereof, conſiſteth in the diſpenſation of the word, and will of Chriſt: For Chriſt ſaid not to Peter, I will giue thee the keyes of the kingdomes of men, but of the kingdome of heauen. The third abuſe hereof is, that the church of Rome, hath thereby for 1000. yeares almoſt, barred Kings, Queenes, and Emperours from beeing gouernours ouer the churches of God; an error flat againſt Scripture: for when as good king Ioſias intended the reformation of religion, and the abandoning of Idolatry, he made a couenant with the Lord for the accompliſhment of the ſame: and is ſaid [a] to haue cauſed all that were in Ieruſalem, and Beniamin to ſtand to the couenant which he made. Now ſhall we ſay Ioſiah did euill in cauſing them ſo to doe? God forbid: It is recorded of him by the holy Ghoſt for his commendation. Obiect. But Gods Paſtors and teachers haue the power of the keies, and Princes haue not? Anſ. True; but yet they haue a ciuill power whereby they rule ouer Gods church: for there is a ciuill power, and a ſpirituall power. Princes rule not by any ſpirituall power, but ciuilly: and thereby they haue power to compell all their ſubiects to the outward meanes of Gods worſhip, and to forſake Idolatrie, and may alſo puniſh thoſe that obey them not. Obiect. By this power of the keyes, Kings and Queens are brought vnder Paſtors? Anſ. In Paſtors and Miniſters we muſt conſider their perſons and goods, and their office & word which they bring: Princes are ouer their perſons and goods, and yet may be vnder their word and miniſterie; becauſe therein they ſtand in Chriſts ſtead. Yet all this ſheweth nothing why Princes in Gods Church ſhould be ſo robbed of their right, as the church of Rome doth.

[a] 2.Chron. 34.32.

The fourth abuſe is, that the Church of Rome for ſome 800. yeares, hath turned the power of the keyes vnto the Prieſts in their Sacrament of Penance: for whereas by Gods word, the Miniſters power is onely to pronounce the abſolution of Chriſt: with them euery Prieſt ſits as a Iudge, and the people come vnto him as to a Iudge, making knowne vnto him all their thougts, words, and deeds, (as neere as they can) wherein they haue broken any commandement: which done, the prieſt inioins him to bewaile his ſins, & after contrition, doth properly giue ſentence of pardon, euen as Chriſt himſelfe doth: and then after appoints him workes of ſatisfaction, to be done for the temporal puniſhment of his ſinnes: which done, his ſinnes are pardoned in heauen. Where behold a moſt deuilliſh practiſe, as may appeare by the manifold errours contained therein. As firſt, the confeſſion of all a mans ſinnes; which hath no warrant in Gods word.

Secondly, that the Prieſt ſhould giue ſentence of pardon, is a moſt notorious practiſe, whereby Chriſt is robbed of his honour: for the Phariſies could ſay, None can forgiue ſinnes but God, that is, properly, Mark. 2. 7. Which Chriſt approoueth, and it is moſt true; for he that can forgiue ſinnes properly, muſt make ſatisfaction for ſinnes. Thirdly, they abſolue from the fault, but they will not forgiue the puniſhment: and thereby they robbe others to inrich themſelues. Fourthly, they inioyne ſatisfaction to God by men for their ſinnes: whereby they doe nothing els but ouerturne the al-ſufficient ſatisfaction of Chriſt, and inioine that to man which is impoſſible. All theſe are moſt horrible abuſes of this power, which ought to be knowne and conſidered, beeing a ſufficient warrant vnto vs, that the Church of Rome is no true Church of God: for though the Pope carrie in his armes the keyes, yet they are not the keyes of heauen, but of hell. For he hath made moe places of reſt and woe, then euer God did: as Limbus patrum, and Purgatorie, and therefore muſt needs make moe doores thither, and ſo moe locks and keies.

By this doctrine, touching the keyes of Dauid giuen to Chriſt, and the power of the keies in the Church deriued thence, we may learne ſundry things. Firſt, that Chriſt, who hath the keyes of Dauid to open and ſhut, doth not open to all, but to ſome onely. The reaſon hereof is this: Adam beeing created in integritie, was in the fauour of God: but by his ſinne he loſt the fauour of God, and ſo barred himſelfe both out of the earthly and heauenly paradiſe: and all his poſteritie by the ſame ſinne, and by their owne actuall ſinnes are likewiſe debarred: for [a] ſinne is a partition wall betweene vs and God: and a [b] cloud betweene our prayers and God himſelfe; as Ieremie ſpeaketh: ſo that ſinne is the cauſe of this excluſion: and ſo many ſinnes as a man committeth, ſo many bolts and barres he maketh to exclude himſelfe from the kingdome of heauen. The conſideration whereof, ſhould mooue euery one to take a narrow view of his miſerable ſtate in himſelfe, through Adam: for by originall ſinne wherein we were borne, and by our actuall tranſgreſſions wherein we liue, we barre our ſelues from the kingdome of heauen. It is lamentable to ſee how the whole world lyeth in ſinne, & how the deuill bewitcheth men to conceale or diminiſh their ſins, making great ſinnes ſmall, & little ſins none at all; when as the leaſt ſinne which they commit (without repentance) is ſufficient to barre them for euer out of the kingdome of heauen. Again, ſeeing euery ſinne doth barre vs out of heauen, this muſt be a motiue, to induce euery one of vs, to repent of all our ſinnes, to bewaile the ſame, and to pray earneſtly for the pardon of them in the death of Chriſt: and continually to labour to turne vnto God from all ſinne; becauſe if we liue but in one ſinne, it will be a mightie barre ſufficient to exclude vs the kingdome of heauen eternally. Thirdly, ſeeing Chriſt keepes the keyes of heauen; hereby we are taught to come vnto Chriſt, and to ſeeke by him to enter into the kingdome of heauen. For Chriſt by his death hath opened heauen: as he ſaide vnto Nathaniel and Philip, [a] Verily, verily, I ſay vnto you, hereafter ſhall ye ſee heauen open: meaning by the miniſterie of the Goſpel; and ſeeing it is open, we muſt ſtriue to enter into it, as the men in Iohn Baptiſts time did, Matth. 11. 12. This we doe by endeauouring to become good members of Gods Church on earth: for that is the doore and ſuburbs of the kingdome of heauen, which euery one muſt enter into, that would come to heauen it ſelfe; euen as a man that would goe into a houſe, muſt needes come to the doore. Now in the Church there is the true doore which is Chriſt himſelfe, and the key thereof which is his word and the miniſterie of the word, which doth locke and vnlocke the ſame. Queſt. What ſhall we doe to become true members of the Church? Anſ. We muſt doe two things: Firſt, humble our ſelues for all our ſinnes, praying vnto God for the pardon of them, and beleeuing the ſame through Chriſt. Secondly, endeauour and purpoſe by Gods grace euery day to leaue the ſame ſinnes. This doing, we are at the doore of heauen, and if we would haue our ſoules enter into heauen when we die, this we muſt doe while we liue. But if we enter not into the doore of grace, by the key of knowledge in the miniſterie of the word while we liue, we ſhall neuer come to the gate of glorie after death.

[b] Lam.3.44.

[a] Ioh. 1. 51.

v. 8. I know thy workes: behold, I haue ſet before thee an open doore, and no man can ſhut it, for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name.

In this verſe, and ſo forward to the twelfth, is contained the matter of this Epiſtle, which may be reduced to three heads: a Praiſe, a Promiſe, and a Commandement. The Praiſe in this eight verſe. The Promiſe in the ninth and tenth. The Commandement in the eleuenth. For the firſt, the Praiſe of this Church is firſt ſummarily propounded; I know thy workes: which hath beene expounded, and the ende thereof, with the vſes in the former Epiſtles. Then he addeth the reaſon of his commendation, wherein are two things to be obſerued. I. The ſigne of Chriſts approbation, in theſe wordes; I haue ſet before thee an open doore. II. Their conuerſation, or the workes which Chriſt approoued, in the wordes following, Thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name. Both theſe may be vnderſtood, either of the Angel and Miniſter of this Church, or of the whole Church alſo. I take it to be meant of both. Beeing ſpoken of the Miniſter of this Church, the words beare this ſenſe; Behold, I haue ſet before thee an open doore, &c. that is, behold and conſider, I haue vouchſafed vnto thee opportunitie and libertie to preach the Goſpel, and thereby to conuert men vnto me. So much Saint Paul meaneth by the doore of vtterance, 1. Corinth. 16. 9. For thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name: That is, though thou be indued but with a ſmall meaſure of gifts pertaining to thy calling, yet thou haſt maintained my Goſpel, and haſt not denied my name.

Theſe words beeing thus expounded, doe afford vs theſe inſtructions. Firſt, from the ſigne of his approbation, we learne; that it is a great priuiledge for any Miniſter to haue libertie to preach the Goſpell, and thereby to conuert men vnto Chriſt: ſo much the word of attention behold importeth, which may alſo further appeare by this, that the moſt famous and worthy Prophets of God, were not alwaies vouchſafed this fauour, as Iſay and Ezechiell: who were ſent ſometime to harden [b] the people. And Chriſt himſelfe complaineth of the want of this priuiledge, ſaying [c] I haue ſpent my ſtrength in vaine: and in regard of this priuiledge, the Miniſters of the Goſpel are called [d] Sauiours. And by reaſon of this libertie, they haue title to the promiſe of ſhining, as ſtarres in Glorie, Dan. 12. 3. This therefore is an vnſpeakable mercie, and ſo ought to be eſteemed: and all miniſters that haue the ſame vouchſafed vnto them, ought highly to magnifie the name of God for it, and to value it more worth, then al earthly bleſſings whatſoeuer.

[b] Iſa. 6. 9.

[d] Obad. 21. 1. Tim. 4. 16.

Secondly, from the workes which Chriſt approoueth in the Angell of this Church, we may obſerue, that Miniſters indued with ſmall meaſure of gifts, may be able to doe great ſeruice vnto God in his Church. This thing is plaine in the Miniſter of this Church: and might alſo be ſhewed by manifold examples of ſuch men in all ages: but to come to our times. In the daies of Queene Marie, when Religion was in baniſhing, this our famous Schoole of the Prophets, had many learned men in it; yet not one of them ſtood out for the defence of the Goſpel: when as a poore ſecular Prieſt not three miles off, who was farre behind them in Cambridge.

A in gifts of learning and knowledge, yet hauing the truth reuealed vnto him, did ſtand out for the maintenance of the ſame, euen to the ſealing of it with his blood. And at this day many men of ſmaller gifts in the miniſterie, doe more further the goſpel, by the encreaſe of the knowledge of Chriſt crucified and true obedience, then thoſe that are inriched with farre greater gifts of knowledge both in tongues and Arts: ſo as though they be many hundred degrees ſhort in regard of ſchoole-learning, yet they goe as farre before them in benefiting Gods Church.

If this be ſo (will ſome ſay) then it is needeleſſe for men to be brought vp ſo much in the ſchooles of learning? Anſ. Not ſo, for as much as may be, Gods Miniſters ought to haue knowledge of Schoole-learning, both in Artes and tongues. And yet for all this, it oft commeth to paſſe by Gods prouidence, that the greateſt Clerks for learning, are leſſe profitable to the Church, then men of ſmaller gifts. This God doth to humble the learned, that they be not proud in themſelues: and to magnifie the worke of his ſpirit in the weaker inſtruments.

Further, theſe words muſt alſo be vnderſtood of the whole Church: and then they beare this ſenſe; I haue ſet before thee an open doore: that is, I haue vouchſafed vnto thee a ſpeciall priuiledge, euen libertie to enter into the kingdome of heauen. From whence we obſerue, That libertie to life euerlaſting, is a ſpeciall priuiledge belonging not to all men, but onely to the Church of God, and the true members of Chriſt.

This point hath ſundrie vſes. I. to confute this erroneous opinion; That Chriſt did effectually redeeme all and euery man: Which is flat againſt Gods word, and this text: for thoſe that are effectually redeemed, haue libertie to enter into the kingdome of heauen; but all men haue not that libertie; for then it were no priuiledge of Gods Church alone, to haue heauen opened vnto them.

II. Seeing this is a priuiledge which God vouchſafeth vnto his Church, to haue heauen gate opened vnto them. Hereby we are taught to take the benefit of this libertie while the doore is open: and in time to ſtriue to enter therein. For as Chriſt telleth Nathaniel, the Church of the new Teſtament, ſhall by faith ſee heauen open. We muſt not therefore neglect this opportunitie. But it is our common ſhame, that we be ſlacke in ſeeking the kingdome of God, and the righteouſnes thereof, ſuffering our ſelues to be clogged with heapes of ſinne, and worldly luſts, that we can neither walke in that ſtraite way, nor enter into that doore that leadeth vnto life; for ſinne is an heauie burden, like a great packe that will not ſuffer a man to enter into ſo ſtrait a doore. We muſt therefore caſt off all ſinne, that we may ſo enter in, and walke in the way of life.

Ioh.1.51.

And no man can ſhut it. Here is the continuance of the former benefit, againſt all aduerſarie power whatſoeuer. And this againe confuteth an other opinion of the ſame kinde with the former; to wit, That Chriſt died for euery man, but yet ſome are not ſaued, becauſe they will not: they ſhut heauen doore againſt themſelues. But this opinion cannot ſtand: for none can ſhut heauen doore againſt them; to whome Chriſt hath ſet it open effectually, neither ſinne, Sathan, nor the world, no not man himſelfe, nor all their power together. For herein is the will of man ruled by the will of God: and looke whome God will haue to enter into heauen, them doth he encline to will their owne ſaluation: and alſo make vnwilling euer to ſhut this doore againſt themſelues. B For thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, &c. that is, thou art indued with ſome meaſure of grace, as of faith, hope, and righteouſneſſe: and according to that meaſure thou haſt maintained my word, and not denied my name.

Hence we learne, that a man indued with a ſmall meaſure of Gods grace, may doe workes pleaſing vnto God, and by the ſame grace come to life euerlaſting. Chriſt ſaith to his Diſciples, [a] If your faith were as much as a graine of muſtard ſeede, by it ſhould you be able to remoue mountaines. Now that which is here ſaid of the faith of miracles, may in like ſort be ſaide of all faith, and ſo of iuſtifying faith; if a man haue neuer ſo ſmall a meaſure thereof, yet thereby he ſhall doe workes acceptable to God: for as C Paul teacheth, Gods children receiue not the tenth, but [b] the firſt fruits of the ſpirit; that is, a ſmall meaſure of grace in this life, which is onely a pledge of that which they ſhall fully receiue in the world to come; for this cauſe is Rahab commended for her faith, [c] although it was but ſmall and weake, as we ſhall ſee if we read the whole hiſtorie, Ioſh. 2. For God accepteth of man, according to that he hath receiued. It is not ſo much the meaſure of grace that ſaueth a man, as the truth of grace before God.

[c] Heb.11.31

This ſerueth notably for the comfort of thoſe that haue care to keepe faith and good conſcience. Such are moſt diſmaied by reaſon of their wants and corruptions; but they muſt know that God approoueth of their grace, D though it be but ſmall, if ſo be they haue care to increaſe in grace, and doe ſtriue to pleaſe God in all things, according to the meaſure of grace receiued. II. Hereby euery one muſt be encouraged to embrace and obey true Religion. Many be diſmaied herein, by reaſon of the great meaſure of obedience, which they thinke God requireth; and therefore they leaue off all obedience. But this ought not to be ſo: for God approoueth of a man in Chriſt, according to that grace which he hath, be it more or leſſe; and not according to that which by the law he ought to haue. And yet none of all this muſt make vs ſlacke and negligent in vſing thoſe meanes which God hath vouchſafed vnto vs for the increaſe of grace, that ſo we may alſo increaſe in true obedience.

And haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name. Here he ſetteth downe two workes, for the which he commendeth this church. Firſt their faithfull keeping of the word of Chriſt. Secondly, the profeſſion of his name in the time of perſecution. This behauiour of this Church, muſt be a patterne and a looking glaſſe for vs to ſquare our conuerſation by. For theſe words; Thou haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name, though the words be few, they containe much in them: ſignifying, that this Church had ſpeciall care of keeping Gods word in euery Commaundement, both legall, and euangelicall. Happie were our Church if the ſame might truely be ſaid of vs, that we had care of obedience vnto God, and of the true profeſſion of his name. But generally we faile in practiſe, though in outward profeſſion we make ſome ſhew thereof. Thus much of the praiſe of this Church.

v. 9. Behold, I will make them of the Synagogue of Sathan, which call themſelues Iewes, and are not, but doe lie: behold, I will make them, that they ſhall come and worſhip before thy feet, and ſhall knowe that I haue loued thee.

Here followes the ſecond part of this Epiſtle; namely, the promiſes of Chriſt, which are two. Firſt, concerning the conuerſion of certaine Iewes, verſ. 6. Secondly, concerning the deliuerance of theſe Philadelphians in the time of temptation, verſ. 10. For the firſt of theſe promiſes: In all likelyhood, there was in this Citie of Philadelphia, a Synagogue of the Iewes, which bare an outward ſhewe, that they were the true worſhippers of God; albeit they denyed the name of Chriſt, and perſecuted his Church. Yet Chriſt here promiſeth, that he will conuert them, and make them members of his Church, and cauſe them to worſhip him in the congregation before this Church of Philadelphia.

In this promiſe, note three points touching the conuerſion of theſe Iewes. The Author thereof: The partie conuerted: and the fruit of their conuerſion. For the firſt; (ſaith Chriſt) Behold, I will make them. The words are very ſignificant; beeing doubled: and they make Chriſt the whole and ſole author of their conuerſion.

Hence wee learne, that in the conuerſion of a ſinner, God hath the whole and ſole work: true it is, that a man willeth his conuerſion in the act thereof, but yet it is God that worketh that will in him, it is not of himſelfe. This confuteth the erronious Doctrine of freewill in the church of Rome, whereby they teach, that a man can diſpoſe himſelfe to worke out his ſaluation, beeing onely helped by Gods grace. Like vnto a ſicke man, who though he be weake, yet beeing holden vp by another, can goe of himſelfe. Anſ. But ſaint Paul teacheth vs, That a man by nature is not ſicke, or weake with ſinne, but ſtarke [a] dead in ſinne: and can no more mooue himſelfe in the work of his conuerſion, then a dead man in the graue, in the worke of his reſurrection. But they ſay, by this we make a man like vnto a blocke. Anſ. Not ſo, for though he cannot turne himſelfe vnto God, yet he hath his will and vnderſtanding free to vſe in ciuill and outward actions: and beſides there is a poſſibilitie in his nature to be conuerted by grace, which is not in a blocke.

Againe, whereas Chriſt ſaith, I will make them come, and they ſhall come. Here is plainely confuted the Doctrine and opinion of ſome, which hold, That a man beeing effectually called, may come vnto Chriſt or not come at his pleaſure; when God hath giuen grace, man may receiue it, or refuſe it, if he will. This is flat againſt this text, for God will make them come, and mans will muſt be plyable to Gods will in this matter.

But they alleadge, Matth. 23.37. Oh Ieruſalem, Ieruſalem, how oft would I haue gathered thee, as a hen, &c. but thou wouldeſt not. Anſ. Chriſt there ſpeaketh not of the will of his good pleaſure, for that cannot be reſiſted; but of his ſignified will in the miniſterie of his Prophets, and himſelfe as he was a Prophet, and the Miniſter of circumciſion vnto the Iewes: for ſo he might will their conuerſion, and yet they will it not. Obiect. 2. Act. 7.51. Ye ſtiffe-necked Iewes, ye haue alwaies reſiſted the holy ghoſt. Anſ. That muſt be vnderſtood of the miniſterie of the Prophets and Apoſtles, who ſpake by the ſpirit of God, and not of the ſpirit himſelfe.

II. Point. The parties conuerted, namely, Them of the Synagogue of Satan; Such as called themſelues the onely true worſhippers of God, and yet indeede and in truth, were no better then the ſlaues of Satan.

This is to be obſerued: for hereby we may ſee, that not onely ſinners which commit ſmall ſinnes, are conuerted vnto God; but euen grieuous and auncient ſinners: ſuch as haue long continued the ſlaues of Satan. Chriſt died not for painted ſinners, but for grieuous ſinners: and therefore Paul chargeth Timothie and the Miniſters with him, [b] To waite for the conuerſion and repentance of them that were taken in the ſnare of the Deuill, and that according to the Deuills owne will. Rom. 1. 28. Paul ſpeaketh of ſome Gentiles that were giuen vp to a reprobate ſenſe: which was a fearefull caſe, and yet no doubt, many of them were after turned to beleeue the Goſpell; for ſuch are they that are taken in the ſnare of the Deuill, and yet there is repentance to be waited for of them.

[a] Eph.2.1.

[b] 2 Tim.2.26.

The vſe. This Doctrine muſt not be abuſed to libertie in ſinning; for that is the right way to caſt our ſoules into the pit of deſtruction. But yet ſeeing Chriſt will bring home into his kingdome moſt grieuous ſinners, we muſt hereby take occaſion not to be diſcouraged, either by the greatneſſe or multitude of our ſinnes from comming vnto Chriſt. For marke, Chriſt onely raiſed three that were dead to life: Iayrus daughter that was newe dead: the widdowes ſonne that lay on the herſt: and Lazarus that lay ſtinking in the graue. This is a notable figure of conuerſion of ſinners: he will not onely call to repentance ſmall and young ſinners, but euen great and old ſinners, that lye rotting and ſtinking in the graue of ſinne, as Lazarus did in the graue of death. He came to call ſinners to repentance, and to ſaue the loſt ſheepe, which are readie to be deuoured by Woolues and wild beaſts. We muſt all bleſſe the name of Chriſt for this large mercie, and in time lay hold vpon it, and repent.

III. Point. The fruit of their conuerſion, in theſe words: They ſhal come and wotſhippe before thy feete, and ſhall knowe that I haue loued thee. Theſe words may be fitly expounded by another place of Scripture, 1. Cor. 14. 24. 25. If all propheſie, and there come in one that beleeueth not, or one vnlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and iudged of all, ſo as the ſecrets of his heart are diſcloſed, and he will fall downe on his face, and worſhip God, and ſay plainely, God is in you indeede: ſo that the meaning of theſe wordes is this: I will cauſe them to come to the congregation of Gods people, and at their feete to fall downe and worſhip the true God.

Here are ſet downe two notable fruits of the conuerſion of a ſinner. Firſt, concerning God: The ſecond, concerning the Church. The fruit of conuerſion that reſpecteth God is, The true worſhip of God, noted in theſe words: I will make them come and worſhip; that is, In ſpirit and truth with bodie and ſoule, to adore the true God. This fruit no man can bring forth till he be conuerted: For [a] the wicked and naturall man calls not vpon God. True it is, they will acknowledge there is a God, and that the ſame God is to be worſhipped, and therefore they will come outwardly, and heare the word, and receiue the elements of the Sacraments: but the true worſhip of God, is in ſpirit and truth from the heart, which a naturall man cannot performe vnto God. This is the fruit of true conuerſion, which when a man receiueth he doth heare the word of God with reuerence, tremble at Gods iudgements, and mingle the Doctrine of the Goſpel with faith in his heart; and in calling vpon God he feeles his ſinnes, and therefore by prayer doth earneſtly deſire the ſupply of grace, and the remiſſion of his ſinnes, hauing his heart alſo beleeuing that hee ſhall receiue A mercie: And in thankſgiuing his heart is filled with ioy, and the grace of thankfulneſſe; ſo as beeing conuerted, all his worſhip vnto Gods is in ſpirit and truth.

In the worſhip of theſe Iewes, are noted three properties required in Gods ſeruice. Firſt, it muſt be willing and cheerefull: ſo did theſe Iewes worſhip God: For they are ſaid, not onely to worſhip God, but to come and worſhip God: thus doe all Gods children worſhip him. Iſay 56. 7. Thoſe whom God bringeth to his mountaine, hee maketh ioyfull in his houſe of prayer. Pſal. 110. 3. They ſhall come willingly in the day of aſſemblies. By this propertie, wee may ſee a great number at this day euery where come farre ſhort in the true worſhip of God; B for moſt men neuer regard the preaching of the word, but content themſelues with morning and euening prayer: which they frequent to auoid the penaltie of the lawes of the magiſtrate and the ſhame of the world. But theſe are miſerable worſhippers of God; his worſhip ought to be free and willing.

The ſecond propertie: The worſhip of God, muſt be expreſſed with ſeemely, meet, and conuenient geſture. The word tranſlated Worſhip, ſignifieth doing of reuerence, with bowing of the bodie and knee: and therefore it is not an indifferent thing, but neceſſarie, to vſe conuenient geſture in Gods worſhip, that thereby the grace and humilitie of the heart way bee ex- C preſſed. The [b] Angels that ſtand before the throne of God, haue two wings to couer their feet, and two to couer their faces: thereby teſtifying their reuerence to Gods Maieſtie. In this point alſo many come ſhort; for as the common complaint is, the manner is to lie ſnorting and ſleeping vnder mens elbows at ſermons, and in the time of prayer to ſit vnreuerently with their heads couered. Theſe things ought not to be: for God is Lord of body and ſoule, and ought to be worſhipped with both.

The third propertie. All that will truly worſhip God, muſt firſt be humbled for their ſinns, and haue the pride of their hearts brought downe, and bee ſtriken with a feare of Gods D glorious Maieſtie. So theſe Iewes did proſtrate their bodies at the feet of the congregation, when they came to worſhip God. The Iaylor that impriſoned Paul and Silas ouer-night, and put their feet in the ſtockes, would then haue verie little regarded Pauls doctrine, beeing ſo cruell and rigorous to their perſons: Yet when he was about to haue killed himſelfe with his ſword, (ſuppoſing the priſoners had bin gone, becauſe he ſaw the doores open) he was glad & ioyfull to heare the voice of Paul, who called vnto him, that he ſhould do himſelfe no harme, for they were all there: then beeing humbled by that ſtrang and wonderfull worke of God, he comes in vnto them, humbles himſelfe, and fals downe before them, crauing them to tell him what he muſt doe to be ſaued. In like manner, ſo long as men haue not their proud hearts Act.16.29.

[b] Iſa.6.2.

A beaten downe, they will neuer worſhip God in ſpirit and truth. Would we therefore knowe why the moſt part worſhip God formaly? Surely it is becauſe they haue not beene humbled with a feare of Gods maieſtie, and a terrour of hell: Neither can it be hoped, that we ſhall euer worſhip God ſincerely, till our hearts be thus broken within vs, and we touched with a feare of Gods iudgements. The want hereof is the cauſe, why men and women content themſelues with a bare mumbling ouer of the words of the Lords prayer, the Creed, and ten Commandements, neuer ſeeking in the ſinceritie of their heart, cheerefully, and willingly, both with ſoule and bodie, to doe worſhip vnto God.

B The ſecond fruit of true conuerſion concerneth man, and that is, A reuerence of the true worſhippers of God, noted in theſe words, Before thy feete. Theſe Iewes when they were conuerted, did not thinke themſelues worthie to be members of this congregation, but ſubmitted themſelues to be foote-ſtooles vnto them. This reuerence ſhewes it ſelfe in this one thing which is the ground thereof; namely, a baſe opinion which euery true conuerted perſon hath of himſelfe, by reaſon of his owne vnworthineſſe: This was in Paul, cauſing him to call himſelfe the [a] chiefe of all ſinners. And the ſame ought to be in euery one of vs; for this is true grace and a note of true repentance, when a man or woman can truely abaſe themſelues beneath C all Gods people; ſo as if the queſtion were, who is the vileſt perſon in the Church? the conſcience of euery man ſhould anſwer, I my ſelfe. The proud and phariſaicall heart, is farre from true conuerſion; but the humble heart is pleaſing to God.

And ſhall knowe that I haue loued thee: Theſe words containe a reaſon of the former ſubmiſſe behauiour of the Iewes, for it might be asked, why ſhall theſe Iewes come to ioyne themſelues with Gods people, and be content to make themſelues foot-ſtooles vnto them? The anſwer is, becauſe Chriſt will make them know, that he hath loued his Church.

Here marke and ſee the ground of all true reuerence, Gods loue and fauour. Sundry perſons D both in Church and Common wealth, haue reuerence due vnto them, as Maſters from their ſeruants; parents from their children; and all ſuperiours from their inferiours. Now if theſe then would attaine to true reuerence indeede, firſt, they muſt ſeeke to be in the loue and fauour of God, and of his children; and ſo they ſhall procure vnto themſelues true reuerence: for when men ſet their hearts to feare God, then will God turne the hearts of men to reuerence them. This ought to be thought vpon of thoſe that be great in birth and wealth; They muſt not ſtand on theſe things, but looke to the foundation of true reuerence; namely, the fauour of God, which they muſt ſeeke for: and getting that, God will get them reuerence, euen of wicked men. The cauſe why many in high place, as Magiſtrats, Maſters, &c. want due reuerence, is for that they care not for the fauour of God, the ground thereof.

v. 10. *Becauſe thou haſt kept the word of my patience, therefore will I deliuer thee from the houre of temptation, which will come vpon all the world, to trie them that dwell vpon the earth.

Theſe words containe the ſecond promiſe of Chriſt vnto this Church, concerning their preſeruation in time of moſt bloodie perſecution: for this Epiſtle vnto this Church: as alſo this booke, was written by Iohn, after the aſcention of Chriſt in the dayes of Domitian the Emperour of Rome; after whom ſucceeded Traianus, who when he was ſeated in his Empire, raiſed vp grieuous perſecution againſt Gods Church in all places of his Dominion, wherein he put to death innumerable thouſands of Chriſtians for the ſpace of foureteene yeares. Of this perſecution our Sauiour Chriſt fore-tells this Church, calling it, The houre of temptation, and withal he promiſeth to preſerue this church in the time of this bloodie perſecution: adding a reaſon thereof, Becauſe they had conſtantly and ſincerely profeſſed his Goſpel.

In this promiſe of preſeruation, note ſundry points; I. The occaſion thereof, The keeping of the word of his patience. II. The thing promiſed, deliuerance vnder Traianus. III. A prediction of this perſecution, That it ſhall come vnto the world, for this ende, to trie them.

I. Point. The word of Chriſts patience ſome expound to be, Chriſts commandement of patience: but that expoſition is too ſtrait; here it ſignifieth the whole Doctrine of ſaluation by Chriſt; which is called the word of patience: firſt, becauſe it teacheth patience: Secondly, becauſe it is the inſtrument of patience; for when a man knows ſaluation by Chriſt, and alſo beleeues the ſame to belong to him, that will make him patient in all the miſeries of this life. Thirdly, becauſe it cannot be profeſſed and holden vnto death without patience, but as it is ſaid of the good ground, It bringeth forth fruit with patience: ſo muſt euery one doe that profeſſeth this Goſpell.

In this occaſion of Gods promiſe obſerue, that Gods grace well vſed, is rewarded with increaſe. Thoſe which haue receiued but ſmall meaſure of grace at the firſt, by becomming faithfull therein, haue receiued increaſe: which ſerues to mooue vs to be faithfull in the vſe of thoſe talents, which we haue receiued: For hereby we ſhall receiue increaſe, when as thoſe which hauing receiued good gifts from God, as knowledge, and ſuch like, becauſe they haue not beene faithfull in the vſe thereof, haue bin depriued of the ſame. Wherefore whoſoeuer hath begun to know the will of God, to beleeue, and to repent; let the ſame parties proceed to vſe thoſe gifts ſtill to Gods glorie, and the good of his Church and people, among whom they liue; and they ſhall ſee the Lord wil double and treble, and greatly increaſe the ſame vnto them.

Againe, note the doctrine of the Goſpel is a Doctrine of patience. This ſheweth how good and meete it is for euery one to learne the Goſpel in the dayes of peace; for euery one, in times of triall, would wiſh for ſtrength and patience: & we know not how long theſe dayes of peace will laſt. Againe, each man in his calling, is ſubiect to many croſſes and miſeries: for in the ſweat of our face muſt wee eat our bread. And who is free from paines and diſeaſes, yea who can ſcape death it ſelfe? Now in all theſe, and in all other troubles, we haue neede of patience. And therefore in the time of health and eaſe, let vs hide in our hearts the ſeedes of this grace, to wit, the Doctrine of the Goſpell, and then in due time, we ſhall reape the fruit of patience, which will make vs contented in all diſtreſſes both of life and death. And, if we would know why moſt men are ſo impatient in afflictions: it is becauſe they haue ſo little knowledge and faith in the goſpell of his grace.

Secondly, ſeeing the Goſpel is the word of patience; hereby all perſons that looke to bee ſaued by the Goſpel, muſt learne to put on patience, keeping a moderation in all their thoughts, wils, and affections; for when we be impatient any way, we are not ſutable to the doctrine of our ſaluation.

Thirdly, this word of patience is called Chriſts (The word of my patience) becauſe Chriſt is the author of it. This is added to beat downe the pride of this Church; for when God doth praiſe them for their obedience, their hearts might haue beene puffed vp with pride. But to preuent this euill in this Church, whom he now praiſed, hee calleth it his patience, that they might not thinke this good thing was of themſelues. And the ſame conſideration muſt checke the proud thoughts that riſe in our hearts; namely, to remember that no good thing wee haue is our owne, but Chriſts. What haſt thou which thou haſt not receiued? Why then ſhouldeſt thou boaſt? 1. Cor. 4. 7.

II. Point. The thing promiſed, is preſeruation and deliuerance in the bloodie perſecution vnder Traianus: in which for the ſpace of fourteene yeares innumerable Chriſtians were put to death, I will deliuer thee from the houre of temptation.

Here firſt obſerue, that God hath appointed certaine ſet houres and times for the triall of his Church, as well for the gifts of his grace; as of their wickedneſſe and hypocrſie. Thus he led the Iſraelites [a] fortie yeares in the wilderneſſe to ſee whether they would obey him, and he ſent [a] falſe Prophets among them, to trie whether they would turne from the true God or no. And as God thus dealeth with his Church; ſo he hath appointed particular times and houres, wherein he will trie particular perſons. [b] God bid Abraham kill his ſonne, and that was his tryall. And [c] Hezekias was left vnto himſelfe, That the Lord might ſee all that was in his heart. And ſo for euery Chriſtian, God hath a ſet time of tryall, wherein he will either make manifeſt his grace, or diſcloſe their hypocriſie.

[a] Deut. 13. 3.

[b] Gen. 22. 2.

[c] 2. Chron. 32. 31.

The vſe.

This point ought to be well weighed, for herein the Lord dealeth like the worthy founders of great Schools: who haue appointed certaine ſet times of poſing, for the tryall of their Schollers, to ſee what euerie ones proceeding is, that they may be accordingly rewarded. And as it is a ſhame for one to haue beene long in a good Schoole, and to haue made no proceedings in learning: ſo it is for any one, that hath liued long in the Schoole of Chriſt, and hath not profited in grace. This therefore muſt teach vs theſe duties: Firſt, to trie our ſelues, and that ſtraitly cõcerning our progreſſe in knowledge, faith, repentance, and obedience; for God himſelfe wil trie vs, whoſe eyes we can neuer blind, though we may deceiue men: He will lay open our hearts, and make knowne what is in vs, whether it be true grace, or falſe hypocriſie. Let vs not couer our ſelues with figge leaues, for God will ſtrip vs naked; but rather let vs ſearch our ſelues, touching our ſinnes & Gods graces; and neuer reſt contented, till we haue found in our ſoules the good gifts of grace, which wil abide his tryall.

Secondly, hereby we are admoniſhed, as neere as we can to conforme our hearts & liues, vnto the word and will of God; for he will trie vs. Wonderfull it is to ſee how common the reproach of preciſeneſſe is, and if it were not well knowne that the world is full of Atheiſts, that might diſcourage many a Chriſtian. But the remembrance of this tryall, wherein hypocriſie will vaniſh as the ſtubble before the fire, muſt mooue vs to labour for ſinceritie. When we haue done our beſt, we ſhall be farre ſhort of that we ought to be. And therefore through the reproach of the world, let vs hold on our good endeuour, and labour to haue the maine graces of true faith, and a good conſcience, with a reſolute purpoſe not to ſinne: that ſo we may ſtand in the day of tryall. But if we want theſe, and liue looſely, we ſhall be found like the fooliſh Virgins, that haue onely the blaſing lamps of an outward profeſſion, and want the ſauing oyle of grace, which may make vs acceptable vnto God at his appearing. We haue beene trained vp in the Schoole of Chriſt; what a ſhame will it be, if when Chriſt comes to prooue vs, we be then found barren and void of ſound grace? Dauid bethinking himſelfe of this triall of the Lord, doth conforme himſelfe vnto the will of God: and therefore offereth himſelfe vnto his tryall, ſaying, [d] Lord prooue me: meaning in regard of the truth and ſinceritie of a good conſcience, not of the perfectneſſe of his own wayes. And hereunto muſt we indeuour; not ſuffering any ſinne to raigne in vs.

Queſt. But how was this promiſe verified touching their deliuerance from perſecution, ſeeing no Church was free from it? For euen the Churches of Aſia, whereof this in Philadelphia was a principall one, were perſecuted by Traianus. Anſ. This and ſuch like promiſes of deliuerance to Gods children from tryals and afflictions, muſt be vnderſtood not ſimply; but with condition: to wit, ſo farre foorth as they may be hurtfull vnto them, and in the leaſt meaſure hinder their ſaluation; and indeed they are promiſes of deliuerance from the euill of temptation and perſecution; not from perſecution and temptation it ſelfe. Pſal. 91, 10. The Lord promiſeth to him that truſteth in God, The plague ſhall not come neere his dwelling: and yet by experience we know that Gods children in generall plagues, are taken away as well as others; and therefore that promiſe muſt be vnderſtood of deliuerance, not from the plague it ſelfe, but from the hurt thereof; ſo as it ſhall not hinder the good or ſaluation of any in the godly mans houſe. We pray, Lead vs not into temptation; which wee muſt not vnderſtand of freedome from all temptation; for it is the will of God we ſhould be tried: but therein we are taught to pray, that God would not forſake vs in our temptations, or giue vs vp wholly to the power of the deuill; but that it may tend to our profit, and not to our hurt, as well in reſpect of grace, as of ſaluation. And ſo farre foorth was this promiſe accompliſhed to this Church.

The vſe. The due conſideration whereof, is moſt comfortable to Gods Church and people; teaching them not to feare the croſſe in any temptation. God will haue his church tryed, but the faithfull therein neede not to be diſmaied; for God by his promiſe hath taken away the euill and poyſon of all tryals and temptations, to them that haue care to keepe faith and a good conſcience, though they ſuffer a thouſand croſſes in this world neuer ſo long; yea though they die vnder the croſſe: which may put comfort into the heart of any diſtreſſed ſoule whatſoeuer, and reuiue thoſe that are oppreſſed with temptations.

Againe, in that this promiſe is not made ſimply and abſolutely, but with reſtraint: hereby we are taught, that the petitions of thoſe perſons which pray ſimply and abſolutely to be freed from all temptations and aduerſities, are not according to Gods will and word: For euery petition muſt depend vpon ſome promiſe of God: but we haue no abſolute promiſe of freedome from all tryalls & temptations: but onely ſo far forth as they be euil. And therefore in praying againſt temptations, we muſt qua-

A liſie our petions for temporall deliuerance, according to the tenour of the promiſes of Chriſt: that is, ſo farre foorth as may moſt aduance Gods glorie, and beſt further our ſaluation.

Queſt. How can this great perſecution be called but an houre of temptation, ſeeing it laſted foureteene yeares? Anſw. In diuers reſpects it may be ſo called: Firſt, in regard of God [a] with whome a thouſand yeares are but as one day: and therefore 14. yeares with God are but as one houre. Secondly, in regard of that puniſhment which euery man by his ſinnes deſerueth in hell eternally. Thirdly, in the affection of Gods people which were tried. When Iacob ſerued Laban ſeauen yeares for Rahel, his affection

a 2.Pet.3.8.

B made him thinke it was but a ſhort time, Gen. 29.20. So when Gods children ſuffer for the name and Goſpell of Chriſt, the conſideration thereof will make them thinke long afflictions to be but ſhort. This affection cauſed Paul to wiſh to himſelfe eternall perdition for the glory of God, in the ſaluation of the Iewes, Rom. 9.3.

The ende of this phraſe touching the ſhortneſſe of time, was to comfort this and all other churches in the time of this grieuous perſecution: for the conſideration of the ſhortneſſe of the time, is a meanes to eaſe any affliction; and to arme an impatient man with ſome meaſure of contentation.

III. Point. The propheſie or prediction of

C this affliction, is in theſe words: Which will come on all the world to try them that dwell vpon the earth. Here Chriſt foretelleth a thing which was to come, ſimply by himſelfe, and from himſelfe: not by the helpe of any cauſe, or any man or Angell. And hereby he prooues himſelfe to be true God: for it is a propertie and priuiledge of the true God, of himſelfe, and by himſelfe, to foretell a thing to come, before it can be ſeene either in it ſelfe, or in the cauſes thereof: no man nor Angel, can ſo abſolutely foretell that which is to come: but in their predictions they firſt ſee the things preſent in their cauſes, vnleſſe they be reuealed vnto them from God. But ſome may here demand, Whether Chriſts foreknowledge and prediction, were the cauſe of this

D grieuous perſecution. Anſw. Not ſo. for things come not to paſſe becauſe of Gods foreknowledge thereof, but becauſe they would come to paſſe, therefore God foreſeeth and foretelleth them: there is a higher cauſe of all things, then preſcience and prediction, to wit, the good wil, and pleaſure, and decree of God. So Chriſt is ſaid [c] to be deliuered to be crucified, by the determinate will and counſell of God: and from the ſame eternall counſell did this perſecution vnder Traian originally proceede: for the firſt cauſe of the euent of euery thing is Gods decree, either ordaining or diſpoſing the ſame. It will be ſaide, if this be ſo, then is God the author of ſinne. Anſw. God forbid: For the manner of Gods will and decree is diuers: ſome things he decreeth to cauſe

and effect of himſelfe, and by himſelfe, as all good things: ſome other things God decreeeth to be effected by others, as ſinne. And ſo euill things though they be not according to his reuealed will, yet they come in ſome ſort from his will and decree: for if he ſimply nilled them, they could neuer be. Beſide, in Gods decree are ſet downe, not onely the things to be done, but alſo the meanes and circumſtances thereof; as we may ſee in this perſecution, the place and ende are plainly noted. This we muſt remember, and on the contrarie, take heede of the opinion of ſome Proteſtants, which hold and teach, that ſundrie things come to paſſe, God onely foreſeeing them, and no way decreeing or willing them: as namely ſinne. But to giue vnto God a bare fore-knowledge without a decree, is to put vpon him an idle prouidence, which the nature of God will not admit.

The ende why Chriſt alleadgeth this Propheſie, is to expound his former ſaying: For it might be asked, Why doth Chriſt call this perſecution, the houre of temptation? Chriſt anſwereth, becauſe it will certenly come, to trie them that dwell on earth. Where we may note, what is the propertie of afflictions and perſecutions, be they publike or priuate; namely, they ſerue to diſcouer the ſtate of mens hearts; either by making manifeſt their faith, repentance, and feare of God: or by detecting their impatience and hypocriſie.

V. 11. Behold, I come ſhortly: hold that which thou haſt, that no man take thy crowne.

Here is Chriſts commandement to this Church; wherein conſider firſt what he inioyneth them: then the reaſon thereof. The thing he inioyneth is this, Hold faſt that which thou haſt; that is, hold as it were with both hands, that little meaſure of faith and grace which thou haſt receiued from me, and in no wiſe part with the ſame. This commandement hath bin before expounded, Chap. 2. v. 25.

The reaſons to enforce this commandement are two: One going before it in theſe words; I come ſhortly: that is, either in the general iudgement, or by death vnto thee particularly. Before this reaſon is put a note of attention, Behold; to giue vs to vnderſtand, that the ſpeedie comming of Chriſt vnto vs, either by death in particular, or in iudgement generall, is a matter of great moment neuer to be forgotten, but laid vp and treaſured euen in the bottome of our hearts. Herein we muſt not flatter our ſelues, and ſay with the bad ſeruant, Matth. 24. 48. My maſter doth foreſlow his comming: for that is the cauſe of ſo much wickedneſſe and impenitencie as is in the world: but rather with an auncient Father, thinke we euer heare the ſound of his trumpet. Ierome.

This daily perſwaſion of the ſpeedy comming of Chriſt, is of notable vſe. For firſt, it will daunt the moſt deſperat wretch that is, and make him to tremble in himſelf, & reſtrain him from many ſinnes. And if a man belong to God and bee yet a looſe liuer, this perſwaſion will rowze him out of his ſinnes, and make him turne vnto God, by vſing the meanes of repentance; for who would not ſeeke to ſaue his ſoule, if he were perſwaded that Chriſt were now comming to giue him his finall reward? Secondly, if a man haue grace and haue repented, and doe beleeue, this perſwaſion is a notable meanes to make him conſtant in euery good dutie, both of pietie to God, and of charitie towards his brethren. Thirdly, this ſerueth to comfort any perſon that is in affliction: for when he ſhall beleeue this which Chriſt hath ſaid, I come ſhortly; he cannot but thinke but his deliuerance is at hand: for at his comming, hee bringeth perfect redemption to all his Elect.

The ſecond reaſon is ſet after the commandement; that no man take thy crowne: that is, the crowne of thy glorie, euen euerlaſting life. This muſt not be reſtrayned to the miniſterie of this Church, taking it onely for the crowne of his miniſtrie, though it be alſo vnderſtood of him; but the ſame muſt be referred to the whol Church; as if our Sauiour Chriſt ſhould ſay; If thou hold not faſt thy faith and other graces, thou wilt looſe the crowne of glory that is ordained for thee. + Minister

Hence ſome gather, that a man ordained to life may finally periſh, becauſe another may haue that crowne which was ordained for him. But this is a flat abuſe of this and ſuch like texts of Scripture: for the words are not abſolute, that a man may looſe his crowne, but conditionall: Hold faſt, or els thou ſhalt periſh, and looſe eternall life, though it be ordained for thee. Now the vſe of ſuch ſpeeches, is not to ſignifie falling from grace, but to ſhew vnto vs our owne weakenes in our ſelues; that we might acknowledge, that if we were left of God wholly to our ſelues, we could not but periſh. Therefore they ſerue to ſtirre vp the child of God to humble himſelfe in the acknowledgement of his owne weakeneſſe, vnto a carefull vſing of the meanes to come to ſaluation. Like as a Father that takes his child and ſets him on a horſe, guiding the horſe with one hand, and holding him with the other; and then ſaith to the child, take heed leaſt thou fall: Not meaning thereby that the child ſhall fall, but intending to make him ſit faſter; and let him know that if he ſhould leaue him he would fall.

Secondly, Chriſt vſeth ſuch ſpeeches, that thereby he may make his Church perſeuere in grace vnto the ende; for all exhortations and threatenings in Gods word, are inſtruments of perſeuerance in grace vnto Gods children: becauſe as God hath appointed who ſhall be ſaued certainely, ſo he hath ordained certaine meanes to bring the ſame to paſſe: part whereof are exhortations and threatnings, which doe not import any finall relaps, but ſerue as means and cauſes of perſeuerance: and for this end, doth Chriſt here bid this Chruch, hold faſt, leaſt another take her crowne.

In this threatning we may note, that when God withdraws his grace from one man, or his bleſſing from any one people for the abuſe thereof, he hath others readie to beſtow the ſame vpon, who will vſe the ſame well: when Iudas was cut off from the Apoſtleſhip, Matthias was choſen in his roome: and when the Iewes by infidelitie fell away from God, he had the Gentiles in ſtore to ingraffe in their ſtead: for the arme of God is not ſhortned. When any one people ſhall abuſe his goſpel, he can giue it to other that will bring forth the fruit thereof, Matth. 21.43.

The vſe. This muſt be thought vpon, for by Gods mercie, we are now Gods people, and doe inioy his Goſpell; but we muſt not flatter our ſelues herewith, for if we abuſe the ſame, we muſt know, that he hath another Nation in ſtore, whom we now contemne, whither he can ſend his goſpel, and cauſe them to bring forth the plentifull fruts thereof. We therefore muſt imbrace and hold faſt this bleſſing of God which now wee enioy, and ſhew foorth the power of obedience, or elſe God will take it from vs. And we know not how neere this iudgement is, ſeeing other particular iudgements haue not brought vs to repent. And what elſe meane the rumors of wares? are they not Gods warnings, bidding vs hold faſt his Goſpell, or elſe it will be taken from vs? Although therefore we looſe all other things: as honours, riches, lands, or life it ſelfe: yet let vs hold faſt our crowne: When the Arke of God is gone, no glorie is left, 1. Sam. 4. 21.

V. 12. Him that ouercommeth, will I make a pillar in the Temple of my God, and he ſhall goe no more out: and I will write vpon him the name of my God, and the name of the Citie of my God, which is the newe Ieruſalem, which commeth downe out of heauen from my God, and I will write vpon him my nevve name.

V. 13. Let him that hath an eare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

Theſe words are the concluſion of this Epiſtle, which containeth two parts. Firſt a promiſe in the twelfth verſ. Secondly, a commandement the 13. For the promiſe: In it we are to obſerue two points; The partie to whom it is made; and the thing promiſed. The partie is, he that ouercommeth, of whom we haue ſpoken before: for this promiſe hath beene propounded ſixe times, for ſubſtance the ſame, though in other tearmes. Yet here the verie word Ouercommeth, doth giue vs to vnderſtand, that he that would haue his ſeruice pleaſing, muſt diſpoſe himſelfe to a battell or combate, (for ouercomming preſuppoſeth a fight.) The enemies which he is to fight againſt, are ſpiritual: to wit, his owne corrupt nature, the wicked world, and the deuill: and in this ſpirituall combate a man muſt be a good ſouldier, before he can be a good Chriſtian: for all theſe enemies will ſeeke to draw him backe and hinder him, ſo ſoone as he ſhall any way endeauour to pleaſe God. Indeede God could haue freed his ſeruants from all temptations, but he will not; it is Gods pleaſure by temptations to haue his ſeruants tried. Wherein it is manifeſt that they are deceiued, that imagine the ſtate of a Chriſtian to be a freedome from all miſeries and temptations, or a ſtate of eaſe wherein is no ſtrife or trouble to diſquiet the minde: nay it is a Souldiers condition, in which he that would ouercome, muſt wage a perpetuall battell againſt all his enemies; both within him, and without him, and that vnto death.

The thing promiſed. Will I make a pillar in the houſe of my God, and he ſhall goe no more out. Here Chriſt doth moſt notably expreſſe the ſtate and condition of eternall life; In the deſcription whereof he doth allude to the cuſtome and practiſe of men, who minding to preſerue the memorie of their names after their death, vſed to erect durable pillars of wood, or ſtone, in ſome towne, valley, or mountaine, with their names ingrauen or written thereon. This practiſe is common in humane hyſtories: and [a] Abſolon wanting iſſue, ſet vp a pillar with his owne name vpon it, in the Kings dale, thereby to continue his remembrance with poſteritie. The meaning then is: as if Chriſt had ſaid, Others for the continuing of their memory after their death, do in ſome ſpeciall place erect ſome durable pillar of wood or ſtone, with their own names written or engrauen thereon. But to him that ouercommeth, I wil not ſet vp ſuch a pillar, but euen make him a pillar durable and euerlaſting, whoſe memorie ſhall alwayes continue.

He addeth further, he ſhall be a pillar in the Temple of my God: as if he ſhould ſay, Other ſet vp their pillars in valleyes and mountains, or ſuch places where ſome notable exploit hath bin wrought; but the place which I will chooſe (ſaith Chriſt) is the temple of my God: that is, A the Church triumphant, which was figured by the Temple in Ieruſalem, and by the Tabernacle, as we may ſee, Heb. 9.9. and Reuel. 21. 3. for thoſe were two places where Gods people worſhipped him: and where God teſtified his preſence in a ſpeciall manner vnto his people. And ſo in the true temple, the kingdome of heauen, Gods Saints and Angells doe worſhip him immediately: where God is preſent with them in moſt glorious and comfortable manner. This then is Chriſts meaning: he ſhall not onely be a part of that Temple, but an excellent part, euen a pillar in the triumphant Church in heauen. And to ſhew what is meant by this temple, Chriſt calleth it the temple of his God: B thereby noting the higheſt heauen. Where obſerue, that God is called Chriſts God: which argueth inferioritie, and therefore it muſt bee vnderſtood of Chriſt, as he is man, and as hee is mediatour: in which reſpect he receiueth from his father all his offices, and power to execute the ſame. But as Chriſt is God, he is equall with his Father, and receiueth nothing from him.

[a] 2.Sam.18.18.

And to inſtruct vs yet further herein, (Chriſt ſaith) He ſhall goe no more out. When men erected pillars for their memoriall, in proceſſe of time they would weare away: and therefore they cauſed them to be renewed, or elſe their remembrance thereby would not continue; but he that is once made a member of the triumphant Church, ſhall there remaine for euer C and euer: and no time ſhall euer come, wherein he ſhall ceaſe to be a pillar in the ſame.

Further, in the pillars erected by men, their names were written or engrauen: And to this practiſe Chriſt alludeth, ſaying, That he that is made a pillar in the triumphant Church, ſhall haue names written on him; theſe names are three, I. The name of my God: that is, I will make it manifeſt, that this man is indeed the ſonne of God, and that God is all in all vnto him. The ſecond name is: The Name of the Citie of my God: By Citie, he meaneth not the triumphant Church, but the place where the triumphant Church ſhall be; to wit, the higheſt D heauen: as it is taken Reuel. 21. 10. So that hereby Chriſt would teach vs thus much, that he which ouercommeth, ſhall be knowne to be a citizen of heauen, and that the priuiledges of that kingdome belong vnto him.

And leaſt any ſhoud doubt, what is meant by the citie of God, Chriſt here deſcribeth it: firſt, by the reſemblance thereof, calling it Ieruſalem: becauſe that citie, in regard of the Temple eſpecially, was a figure of the kingdome of heauen. Secondly, he calleth it, the new Ieruſalem: that is, the place of the triumphant church, euen the higheſt heauen: which is not called new in reſpect of beeing, for it was from the beginning; but in reſpect of the manner of reuealing and manifeſting it: for in the old Teſtament the new Ieruſalem was reuealed to the Iewes onely, and that obſcurely: but vnder the kingdome of Chriſt, it is more fully reuealed not onely to the Iewes, but to all the world. Thirdly, he addeth that it doth now deſcend out of heauen from his God. Therein anſwering to an obiection; for it might be ſaid, this temple of God in heauen is ſo farre off, that we cannot aſcend or attaine vnto it, how then ſhall we come thither? Chriſt anſwereth, that this new Ieruſalem commeth downe from God out of heauen. Queſt. How (will ſome ſay) can heauen come out of heauen? Anſ. As Paul ſaith of Chriſt, that he was crucified among the Galatians before their eyes, becauſe his crucifying was ſo liuely repreſented vnto them in the miniſterie of the Goſpel; So here heauen may be ſaid to come downe from God out of heauen, in regard of the preaching of the Goſpel, which doth moſt viſibly repreſent and ſet open heauen vnto vs, that Gods people may enter therein: by the faithfull embracing whereof, we become citizens with the Saints, and of the houſhold of God, Eph. 2. 19.

The third name which ſhall be written on him, is Chriſts new name: whereby is not meant any title of Chriſt, as Ieſus, Mediator, &c. but the dignitie, power, and glorie of Chriſt. Queſt. How can that bee called new, ſeeing he had power and glorie from all eternitie? Anſ. It is called new, becauſe it is receiued of Chriſt, as hee is Mediatour, God incarnate; beeing that which was giuen to him after his death and paſſion; ſtanding in his riſing againe, in his aſcenſion, and ſitting at the right hand of his Father. Hereof Paul ſaith, Phil. 2. 9. God gaue him a name aboue euerie name; that is, dignitie, power, and glory: as it is expounded, Heb. 2. 7. And this glorie, power, and dignitie, will Chriſt giue to them that ouercome. And thus we haue eternall life ſet out vnto vs by the authour of life himſelfe. The ſumme whereof is this; That he which ouercommeth ſhal be made a true member of the tryumphant Church, and there continue for euer: and ſhall haue three Names written on him: The name of God, hauing this made euident, that he is the childe of God: The name of Gods Citie: being made partaker of the priuiledges of Gods kingdome of heauen: The new name of Chriſt, communicating with Chriſt in his glorie and maieſtie.

And Chriſt doth thus deſcribe life eternall vnto vs for ſpeciall cauſes; which may be theſe. I. To comfort them which haue care to keepe faith and a good conſcience; and to encourage them againſt all hinderances and miſeries of this life; for what can more harten a man in good duties, then to ſet before him his recompence and reward? Whereby we learne, that in all miſeries and troubles that may befall vs for the maintenance of true religion and good conſcience, we muſt comfort our ſelues & not faint. And to encourage vs herein, we are carefully to propound and ſet before vs the due conſideration of life eternall; for this it was that cauſed

a Heb.11. 24,25,26.

b Heb.12.2.

[a] Moſes to deſpiſe worldly honour, and to chooſe affliction with the people of God. We muſt alſo looke vnto Chriſt [b] Who for the ioy that was ſet before him, endured the croſſe, & deſpiſed ſhame. Soldiours that are vncertaine of any reward, are yet content vnder their Generall to aduenture their liues at his command: how much more then ought Chriſtian Souldiours to fight manfully, and ſtand faſt in all troubles for Chriſts ſake, who hath ſet before them ſuch a great reward.

Secondly, it is thus deſcribed, to bring Gods people to a view and taſt of life eternall, that thereby they may the more affect it. Many caſt off all care of religion and good conſcience, for the preſent delights of earthly things: they can ſee no goodnes nor pleaſure in ſpiritual things: The ſweetneſſe of earthly pleaſures puts mens mouthes out of taſt, in regard of any relliſh of life eternall: but this muſt not be ſo with vs; we muſt be of Moſes minde, who deſired to ſee the land of Canaan when he was not permitted to enter into it; and thereupon God tooke him vp into Mount Nebo, and ſhewed it vnto him: So conſidering Chriſt hath thus largely deſcribed this kingdome vnto vs, we muſt labour to comprehend in our vnderſtandings, and in our hearts to poſſeſſe by faith, ſomething of life eternall, though we cannot as yet fully inherit the ioyes and pleaſures thereof.

Thirdly, it is thus deſcribed, to teach vs to practiſe Pauls rule, 1. Tim. 6. 12. Namely, to paſſe through all the miſeries and troubles of this world, and to take hold of eternall life. This is a moſt neceſſarie dutie, but yet little practiſed: men with both hands lay hold vpon the things of this world, vpon riches and pleaſures; but who conſidereth what is prepared by Chriſt in heauen for them that ouercome? and who laboureth to hold thereon, and to keep that ſure, though he looſe all things els.

Laſtly, this deſcription of eternall life, here ſerueth to make the people of God to feare no death, though it were moſt cruell and terrible; for death is but a ſtrait doore, whereby the child of God muſt paſſe to all glorie and happineſſe, when he ſhall be made a pillar in Gods temple. Thus much generally of the thing promiſed: Now followe in particular the parts thereof.

Firſt, whereas Chriſt promiſeth to make them that ouercome, pillars and chiefe members in the church tryumphant: Hereby we are taught to labour to become true members of Gods church in this life. For life eternall muſt begin here, and they that would be pillars in his church tryumphant, muſt now become members of his church militant: for not onely miniſters and teachers are pillars in Gods church; though they be chiefe pillars therein; but euery one young and old, man and woman, that is a true beleeuer. And thus ſhalt thou become a pillar in Gods Church on earth, by maintaining and vpholding the Goſpel of Chriſt; which thou muſt doe, partly by teaching thoſe, whome thou art bound to teach within the compaſſe of thy calling: and partly by good example of life and conuerſation; and chiefly by a true and bold profeſſion thereof, not onely in time of peace, but euen in the greateſt trialls and afflictions.

Secondly, he addeth; He will make him a pillar in the Temple of God: that is, in the Church triumphant; for in the new Teſtament we haue no other Temples, but Gods Church triumphant and militant. Hereby then we muſt learne to renounce that ignorant opinion of the world, who iudge euery materiall Church to be the Temple of God, and as holy as the Church in Ieruſalem was. But the diſtinction of place and place in regard of holineſſe, which was vnder the Law, is taken away by Chriſt. The houſe is now as holy as the Church; Churches indeede muſt be regarded and maintained, not for holineſſe, but for order ſake: now men may euery where offer the calues of their lips, and lift vp pure hands from a pure heart vnto God.

Thirdly, I will write vpon him the name of my God: that is, whereas God the Father is my God firſt, I will alſo communicate vnto him the ſame name of God; and he ſhall haue God euen my God, to be his God alſo. By this it is plaine, that no man can haue fellowſhip with God but by Chriſt: we muſt not looke to haue immediate fellowſhip with God of our ſelues, or by any other, but by Chriſt: God heares not, God helps not, God ſaues not, but by Chriſt; nay, God is no God vnto vs out of Chriſt. For firſt, he is a God vnto Chriſt, and then in him and by him vnto vs. Therefore if we would call vpon God, we muſt call on him through Chriſt; if we would giue him thanks, it muſt be in and by Chriſt; for in him onely are we heard. If we would know God, it muſt be by Chriſt, for he is the very engrauen Image of his Father, in whome is manifeſted the wiſdome, iuſtice, and mercie of God, in him dwelleth the fulneſſe of the Godhead: and to conceiue of God out of Chriſt, is to make God an idol in the braine. Laſtly, if we would receiue any temporall bleſſing from God, it muſt be in and by Chriſt; as meate, drinke, and cloathing. For if we receiue them from God out of Chriſt, we are but vſurpers of them, and the vſe thereof ſhall turne to our further condemnation.

Fourthly, he ſaith, I will write on him the name of the citie of my God: that is, he ſhall haue the priuiledges of the kingdome of heauen. We doe all deſire, and looke for the inheritance of Gods kingdome after this life: therefore here we muſt liue as citizens of Gods kingdome; conforming our ſelues to Gods commandement, abandoning all ſinne, and ſo liuing in faith and a good conſcience vnto the ende, that after this life we may aſſuredly perſwade our ſelues, we ſhall be made partakers of the priuiledges of this kingdome.

A Fiftly it is ſaid: this Citie of God, is the new Ieruſalem, which commeth downe out of heauen from God: that is, by the preaching of the Goſpel. Hereby we are taught more carefully to ſeeke to attaine to the kingdome of God: for behold Gods endleſſe mercie herein: our ſinnes ſhut heauen gates againſt vs, but by the blood of Chriſt he hath opened them; and by the Miniſterie of the Goſpel, he makes heauen come downe vnto men; God therefore would not ſee vs damned; he hath made open a way, euen a new and liuing way, whereby we may come to heauen and eſcape hell. God hath brought downe heauen among men, we muſt therefore with the people in Iohn Baptiſts time, violently enter into this kingdome, and ſtriue to take it by force, Matth. 11.12.

Laſtly he ſaith; I will write my new name on him: that is, I will make him partaker of that glorie and dignitie wherewith I my ſelfe am glorified ſince my death and reſurrection. Marke this: All that after this life muſt haue Chriſts new name, muſt in this life become new creatures; So Paul ſaith, [d] If any man be in Chriſt, he is a new creature. And againe, [e] Neither circumciſion nor vncircumciſion auaileth any thing, but a new creation. Would we then partake with Chriſt in his glorie? we muſt here be partakers of his grace: herein ſtandeth true religion to become new creatures, and not in bare knowledge and profeſſion. We muſt therefore put off [f] the old man which is corrupt with ſinne, & be renued in the ſpirit of our minds, putting on the new man, which after God is created in righteouſneſſe and true holineſſe. But if we content our ſelues with the image of the olde man wherein we were borne, we ſhall neuer partake of Chriſts glory; for this new name muſt be giuen to the new creature, olde man and it cannot agree together.

V. 13. Let him that hath an eare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

This concluſion hath beene handled in the former Epiſtles.

V. 14. And vnto the Angell of the Church of the Laodiceans write: Theſe things ſaith Amen, that faithfull and true witneſſe, that beginning of the creatures of God.

Here followeth the ſeauenth and laſt Epiſtle to the Church of the Laodicians: whereto is prefixed a commandement vnto Iohn, whereby hee is authoriſed to pen the ſame, in theſe words: And vnto the Angel of the church of the Laodiceans write, which hath beene handled before.

The Epiſtle it ſelfe hath three parts, a Preface, the ſubſtance or matter of the Epiſtle, and the concluſion. The Preface in this 14. verſ. wherein is ſet downe, in whoſe name this Epiſtle is written; to wit, Chriſts: who is here deſcribed by two arguments: I. He is called, Amen, which is that faithfull and true witneſſe: II. He is the beginning of the creatures of God.

For the firſt (Amen) is an Hebrewe Aduerbe of aſſeueration, ſignifying as much as verily, truely, or certainely. This title is giuen to Chriſt, and the reaſon thereof is expreſſed in the words B following, which are a full expoſition of the ſame. Amen, is that faithfull and true witneſſe: So that Chriſt is called Amen, to teſtifie that he is a witneſſe, a faithfull witneſſe, and a true witneſſe, which title was giuen to Chriſt in the fifth verſe of the firſt Chapter; where it was expounded, and reaſons rendred why he is ſo called. Vnto which title is here added, that he is a true witneſſe; becauſe he ſpeakes the truth, according as euery thing is in it ſelfe, without errour, deceit, or falſhood, for that which he receiueth from his Father, is the will of his Father, which is the Rule of all truth.

That we may come to the right vſe of this Argument; we muſt firſt ſearch out the endes, for which Chriſt is here called Amen, that is a faithfull and true witneſſe, which by the contents C of the Epiſtle, we may eaſily geſſe to be theſe. Firſt, to ſet forth himſelfe vnto the Angell of this Church, an example, and patterne of fidelitie in his Miniſterie, in the duties whereof he had beene ſlacke and negligent: Chriſt therefore by his owne example, would teach him without reſpect of perſons, to inſtruct the Church of God truely and faithfully. How this dutie is to be performed, hath beene ſhewed before, Chap. 1.5. And not onely to the Angell of this Church of Laodicea, but alſo to all the church, and to all them that profeſſe themſelues to be his members, doth Chriſt propound himſelfe an example of two moſt worthie vertues: Faith and Truth. For the firſt: Faith is a D vertue, whereby a man makes good all his lawfull words, promiſes, othes, leagues, compacts, and bargaines whatſoeuer, ſo as his word is as ſure as an obligation, as we vſe to ſpeake. Truth is another vertue, whereby a man without fraud lye, or deceit, ſpeaketh the truth from his heart, that is neceſſarie to be knowne for his owne good, the glorie of God, and the good of others.

We therefore muſt ſet before our eyes this preſident of our Sauiour Chriſt: As he is a witneſſe, yea a faithfull and true witneſſe, without any faining or falſhood, ſo let vs labour to ſhew our ſelues faithfull in all lawfull promiſes, and true in all our ſpeeches; that ſo by theſe vertues, wee may be knowne to be like vnto Chriſt, through our whole liues and conuerſations.

Secondly, Chriſt is here called Amen, to induce this church of Laodicea, to apply vnto her ſelfe effectually the word of God, whether threatenings or promiſes; This church had beene negligent in the duties of Religion, which came for want of applying Gods word vnto themſelues. The right manner of applying Gods word is this: In Gods word we are to conſider the Law and the Goſpell. In the Law, there are Commaundements and threatenings: now a man muſt apply to his owne perſon and life Gods commandements particularly; that thereby he may come to know his particular ſinnes; then he muſt alſo apply the threatenings of God vnto himſelfe, that thereby he may be humbled through the ſight of his miſerie, and ſo made fit and capable of Gods grace. Thus the prodigall ſonne applyed the law vnto himſelfe, when he ſaid, [a] I haue ſinned againſt heauen, and againſt thee, and am no more worthie to be called thy ſonne. So did [b] Daniel, and [c] Ezrah, by applying the law vnto themſelues, humble themſelues and their people: for this is the way to humble any man, and to make him fit to receiue grace: for the law is our ſchoolemaſter to bring vs to Chriſt, Gal. 3. 24. and the want of this ſpeciall application of the Law, was a cauſe of the dulneſſe of the Laodiceans, and is alſo of our ſlacknes in Religion at this day.

[a] Luk.15.21.
[b] Dan 9.
[c] Ezr.9.

B

Secondly, the Goſpell alſo muſt be applyed: not onely by beleeuing it to be true, as the Papiſts teach: but alſo by applying vnto our ſelues particularly the promiſes of righteouſneſſe and life euerlaſting by Chriſt. According as Paul ſaith, [d] I deſire to win Chriſt, and to be found in him, not hauing mine owne righteouſneſſe which is of the law, but that which is throrough the faith of Chriſt. Let vs (ſaith he) as many as be perfect be thus minded, teaching euery one this ſpeciall dutie of particular application. For as ſaint Iohn ſaith, he that by faith doth not apply the promiſes of the Goſpel particularly to himſelfe [e] makes God a lyer. And the want of this application is the cauſe of negligence in Religion, and of ſo many lukewarme Goſpellers as be at this day. For it is not ſufficient to know the Goſpel to be true, or to be able to teach it vnto others, vnleſſe we can thus apply it to our ſelues. This then ſerues to prooue that iuſtifying faith muſt not onely be a bare aſſent to the truth of the Goſpel, but a ſpeciall faith which doth apply vnto a man, thoſe promiſes which are propounded concerning righteouſnes, & life euerlaſting by Chriſt.

[e] 1.Ioh.5.10.

The ſecond argument and title whereby Chriſt is deſcribed, is this; That he is the beginning of the creatures of God. The meaning whereof is, that Chriſt is he that is the Creator of all Gods creatures that were created: ſo it is ſaid, [f] By him all things were created in heauen and in earth: and though this be true, yet I doubt not but that Chriſt is here called the beginning of the creatures of God, for a further reſpect; namely, becauſe he is the beginning of the newe creature in regeneration; ſo it is ſaid, [g] We are the workemanſhip of God, created in Chriſt vnto good workes. So that euery regenerate perſon is a new creature; to which purpoſe it is ſaid of Chriſt, [h] When he ſhall giue his ſoule an offering for ſinne, he ſhall ſee his ſeede, &c. Becauſe Chriſt is the roote and ſeede of all that are borne againe. How is Chriſt (will ſome ſay) the beginning of a newe creature? Anſw. Two waies. I. As he is the author of regeneration; for he is the cauſe whereby a man is regenerate, in which reſpect he is called the father of eternitie, Eſay. 9. 6. And againe he ſaith: Behold, [i] I and the children whom thou haſt giuen mee. Secondly, becauſe he is the matter and root, out of which a newe creature doth ſpring: and ſo the Church is called [k] bone of his bone, and fleſh of his fleſh: alluding vnto Adam and Eue, who were a type of Chriſt and his Church. For as Eue was taken out of Adams ſide, ſo the church and euery member thereof ſprang of the blood that iſſued out of Chriſts ſide, which was of infinite merit, beeeing the blood of him that was God.

C

The ende why Chriſt in this Epiſtle is called the beginning of Gods creatures (as we ſee by the contents thereof) is to meete with this common vice of this Church; that they had more care to ſeeme to be religious, then to be religious indeede: now Chriſt would by this his title giue them to vnderſtand, that their chiefeſt care muſt be, to become new creatures indeede. And no doubt this is the fault of our daies; our care is leſſe for the power of godlineſſe, then for the name thereof; we more reſpect ſhew, then ſubſtance, and ſhadow, then truth it ſelfe. Which ought not to be, for if we would be in Chriſt, we muſt become new creatures. To exerciſe our ſelues in the word, and Sacraments, and Prayers are good in their kind; but without this new creation, they are not ſufficient to ſaluation.

Secondly, hereby he would meete with this ſpeciall pride of theirs, whereby they did boaſt themſelues to be rich, and to want nothing. But Chriſt tels them, that there was no dignitie in any thing out of this, whereby in Chriſt they are made new creatures. Wherefore we muſt learne by them, not to be puffed vp with outward priuiledges of nobilitie, wealth, ſtrength, or ſuch like, as many doe: but he that would reioice, muſt reioyce in this, that he is a new creature in Chriſt Ieſus.

Further, by calling himſelfe the beginning of the creatures of God, Chriſt would teach them and vs, that he doth loue his Church, and preſerue the ſame. Eue was created by the hand of God, not apart from Adam, but of his ribbe; for this end, that he might loue & protect her, and that ſhee might reuerence and ſerue him: Euen ſo euery new creature ſpringeth out of Chriſts hart blood, which god hath ſo wrought that we might know how Chriſt hath loued vs, and that we ought to magnifie and honour him: Adam was not the author, but the matter onely, whereof Eue was made: but Chriſt is both the author, and the matter of our regeneration: wherein appeareth his exceeding loue vnto vs. And looke as the roote ſpends it ſelfe for the preſeruation of the braunches: ſo did Chriſt ſpend his own blood for the ſaluation of his Church.

Fourthly, whereas he is called, The beginning of his generation; hence we may gather that the doctrine of the church of Rome is erronious, which teach, that a man in his firſt conuerſion, hath vſe of his naturall free will, & can diſpoſe himſelfe in the act of his regeneration. But the creature of God cannot diſpoſe himſelfe in his creation; now euery man that is regenerat, is the new creature of God, and therfore hath no power to diſpoſe himſelfe in his new creation.

v. 15. I know thy workes: thou art neither cold nor hot, I would thou wereſt cold or hot.

v. 16. Therefore becauſe thou art lukewarme, and neither cold nor hot: it will come to paſſe, that I ſhall ſpew thee out of my mouth.

In theſe words, and ſo forward to the 21. verſe, is containd the ſubſtance or matter of this Epiſtle; and it hath two parts: A diſpraiſe, verſ. 15. 16. 17. And Counſell, verſ. 18. 19. 20. They are diſpraiſed for two vices: firſt, for lukewarme-neſſe, v. 15. 16. ſecondly, for their pride, verſ. 17.

I knowe thy workes. This is a generall reproofe, ſignifying thus much: All thy workes are knowne vnto mee, and I vtterly diſlike them. Then followeth the reaſon of this diſlike, Thou art neither cold nor hot: which is a compariſon borrowed from waters, whereof there be three ſorts: hot, cold, and luke-warme. Now hot and cold waters doe not ſo much annoy the ſtomacke, as luke-warme water doth: they are ſometime comfortable to the ſtomacke, but luke-warme water doth diſquet it, till it be caſt vp, and to theſe three kinds of waters, he compareth three ſorts of men. By cold water, he vnderſtandeth ſuch as are enemies to religiō: as at this day are the Iewes & Turkes, and other barbarous people. By hot water, he vnderſtandeth men that are earneſt & zealous of the truth. So that when he ſaith of this church, Thou art neither cold nor hot, his meaning is; thou art neither an open enemie, nor truly zealous of my Goſpel.

I would thou wereſt cold or hot: Chriſt wiſheth not ſimply, that they were enemies vnto him; but onely in reſpect of that eſtate of luke-warmnes, in which they were, as if he ſhold ſay; I had rather thou wereſt either cold or hot, then thus luke-warme as thou art. For if we would vnderſtand it ſimply, wee ſhould make Chriſt to deſire that men ſhould be his enemies. By luke-warme men, he vnderſtandeth a people, who are in ſhew Gods Church, but in truth want the power of godlines, & the zeale of the ſpirit. Becauſe thou art ſuch (ſaith Chriſt to this Church) therefore I will ſpew thee out of my mouth: that is, looke as he that hath drunke luke-warme water, cannot abide it on his ſtomack, but muſt needs ſpew it vp againe; ſo am I wearie of this thy ſecuritie, I cannot abide it, & therefore will I caſt thee of from all fellowſhip with me, and make thee which art a Church in ſhewe, to be no Church.

Thus we ſee their fault, namely, luke-warmneſſe; the greatneſſe whereof, he aggrauats: firſt, by comparing it with the extreams, cold & hot, both which he preferreth before it, as may appeare by his wiſh and deſire: And ſecondly, by the puniſhment thereof; namely, vtter reiectiō.

The vſe.

Hereby we muſt examine our ſelues, whether this fault may not iuſtly be charged vpon vs: after due triall, it will appeare, that we are guiltie of this ſinne. The which that it may the better appeare, I will note the ſeuerall kinds of luke-warme Chriſtians.

The firſt luke-warme profeſſor, is the Papiſt; as the tenor of his religion, and the manner of his worſhip of God, doth plainely ſhew, for he doth part ſtakes with Chriſt in the matter of ſaluation, affirming that he receiueth from Chriſt to worke out his owne ſaluation, and ſo aſſumeth part of Chriſts glorie to himſelfe.

Secondly, all time ſeruers are luke-warme Goſpellers: that is, all ſuch as alter their religion with time and ſtate: and of this ſort are the bodie of our people, who profeſſe themſelues to be of the ſame religiō the Prince is of: which ſheweth euidently, what they will doe in time to come, namely, turne with the time as their forefathers haue done.

The third ſort, are the followers of Nicodemus, who came to Chriſt by night onely: that is, ſuch as ſay and think that they may go to maſſe with their bodies, if they keep their hearts vnto God, theſe halt betweene two opinions, and neither ſerue God nor Baal.

Fourthly, all Mediators: ſuch as will make pacification betweene the religion of the Proteſtant and the Papiſts, ſo holding our religion, as not caring to embrace theirs alſo, becauſe they thinke they differ not in ſubſtance, but in circumſtances onely. Let theſe pretend what they will, they are in heart Laodiceans.

Fiftly, all Worldlings, which as Chriſt ſaith, Lu. 16. 13. Serue God & Mammon, God & the world, by ſetting their heart vpon riches. Theſe men abound euery where, for though they heare God in the miniſterie of his word, and as it were touch him in the Sacrament, yet their hearts are farre from him, running after their couetouſneſſe, *Ezech.*33.31. and who are ſuch their conſciences will witneſſe: yea, their behauiour proclaims it to the world: for though they will heare the word, yet their wit and ſtrength is ſpent vpon the world, and the things thereof.

Sixtly, thoſe that profeſſe Chriſts religion in outward actions of his worſhip, but yet in their liues, giue themſelues to the common ſinnes of the time, ſome to drunkenneſſe, to fornication, to couetouſneſſe, or crueltie: ſome to this ſinne, and ſome to that. To this ſort we muſt referre thoſe, that in word approoue religion, and yet their hearts delight is, in garniſhing themſelues with the monſtrous, brutiſh, and irreligious formes of ſtrange and forraine attire: Theſe ſpend their time and wit in the decking of their bodies, and ſo ſuffer their ſoules to goe to wracke; when as apparell ſhould be an occaſion to put vs in mind of a ſhame through ſinne: and by modeſt attire, we ſhould expreſſe the vertues of the heart, but theſe hereby profeſſe the vanitie of their minde.

Now though we be not intangled with theſe groſſe ſinnes, yet we cannot excuſe our ſelues from this ſinne of luke-warmeneſſe. For the want of zeale of Gods glorie, of loue to his truth, of care to obey his commandements, and to keepe good conſcience, the want of hatred of ſinne, what argue all theſe but luke-warmneſſe? Herein we muſt lay our hand vpon our mouth with Iob; for we cannot plead with God no not for this common ſinne. But that we may be out of al doubt that this ſinne of luke-warmneſſe hath infected our congregations, as it did this Church of Laodicea, I will make it plaine by the ſignes thereof, which are common among vs, that ſo we may the better know our fearefull eſtate.

The firſt ſigne is, Negligence in the duties of that true Religion which we profeſſe. This appeareth ſundry wayes: for firſt, howſoeuer we come to the aſſemblies where the word is preached, yet fewe doe profit there, by increaſe in the knowledge of that Religion which is taught, and in the amendement of life. This may any man ſee to be true, that hath halfe an eye to looke into the ſtate of our aſſemblies; and mens owne conſciences will herein witneſſe againſt them. Againe, where Gods word is ordinarily heard, there are very fewe that ſpend any time in ſearching out, and trying whether the things be ſo or not which are taught them. Nay men will not be at coſt to buy a Bible: and if they haue one, yet they will not take paines to reade the ſame, at leaſt in ſuch a conſtant courſe as they ought to doe. Thirdly, the Lords Sabbath is broken, for though moſt men at ſet times will come into the congregation; yet there is not that priuate ſanctifying of the Sabbath after the congregations are diſſolued, which Gods word A requireth; but men betake themſelues to their owne affaires, and to outward delights; to omit thoſe that haue no care at all of ſanctifying the Sabbath in any ſort. Now theſe perſons muſt needs want both knowledge, obedience, and all ſound grace, that will not ſet apart ſome time, wherein they ſhould imploy themſelues in Gods word. And by theſe ſignes it is euident, that there is a grieuous diſeaſe of negligence in the duties of Religion, that infects our congregations. Now where this negligence is, though coldneſſe be not, there cannot be zeale, and ſo luke-warmeneſſe muſt needes abound.

II. Signe of luke-warmeneſſe. The Religion of moſt men is this; In the generall calling of a Chriſtian they ſhew religion, but in the affairs B of their particular callings where is religion? In the Church they are good Chriſtians, but in practiſe of the duties of their particular callings, who ſheweth his religion? For when as men ſhould practiſe their callings, according to Gods word and true godlineſſe, they follow the deſires of their owne hearts. Little conſcience is made of lying and oppreſſion: that loue and plaine dealing, which ought to be betweene man and man, is wanting: which prooueth them plainely to be luke-warme Goſpellers.

III. Signe. There bee many that profeſſe themſelues to be luke-warme, neither hot nor colde. For though all generally come to the hearing of the word, and the receiuing of the C Sacraments, yet many when they ſee ſome make conſcience to become anſwerable in ſome meaſure to the word which they heare, and the Sacraments which they receiue, doe take vp in their mouthes this ſlaunder of precizeneſſe againſt them; mocking thẽ for doing that which in the word and Sacraments thẽſelues profeſſe ſhould be done. Theſe men will not be enemies to the religion of Chriſt; and they profeſſe themſelues not to be zealous, by reproaching zeale in others: Therefore they doe more then theſe Laodiceans did, euen profeſſe themſelues to be luke-warme. For he that reproacheth another for zeale in religion, brandeth himſelfe with this ſinne of luke-warmeneſſe. And who D knowes not how many of this ſort are euery where? I dare ſay with good conſcience, our congregations generally conſiſt of ſuch. Now marke what followeth hereupon.

Firſt, that our common profeſſors of religion are in worſe caſe then heathen men, Iewes and Turkes, that knowe not Chriſt. This Chriſt teacheth in preferring cold perſons before luke-warme: as if he ſhould ſay; I had rather thou wereſt a Pagan, then a profeſſor without zeale. And [a] S. Peter to this purpoſe ſpeaking of ſuch ſaith; It had beene better they had neuer knowne the way of truth, then after they haue knowne it, not to obey the commandements of God. So that vnleſſe there be further matter in vs then knowledge and bare profeſſion, our caſe is worſe then the caſe of Iewes and Turkes. Religion knowne will not make thee better then them, them, but it is zeale and obedience that muſt preferre thee before them.

Secondly, from the conſideration of our eſtate, I gather that we are in danger to be ſpewed out of the mouth of Chriſt, as luke-warme water out of the ſtomacke. This is the puniſhment here threatned, which was written for our inſtruction, that we might know where luke-warmeneſſe takes place, there this puniſhment will follow. We may flatter our ſelues as the men in the old world did, and thinke all is well, neuer regarding till the iudgement come: but the truth is, that in regard of this ſinne, we are in danger to be cut off from the Church, & from true ſocietie with Chriſt; God can doe this ſundry wayes, either by bereauing vs of his Goſpell, and making vs as the heathen: or by ſending the enemie among vs, to deſtroy and roote vs out of this land: & euen in our neighbour countries, and townes, he ſets ſpectacles before vs, that by them wee may ſee how he can ſpew vs out, and cut vs off from beeing a people. And thus much of the firſt fault, namely luke-warmeneſſe.

v. 17. For thou ſaiſt, I am rich, and made rich, and haue neede of nothing, and knoweſt not how thou art wretched and miſerable, and poore, and blinde, and naked.

Here is the ſecond ſinne of this Church, namely, ſpirituall pride. The words depend vpon the former, as a reaſon thereof: before he charged them with deadneſſe in religion, and here he painteth out the cauſe thereof: namely, ſpirituall pride of heart. As if he ſhould ſay, Thou thinkeſt thus within thy ſelfe, I am rich, for it is the manner of the Scripture to expreſſe the thoughts of men by their ſpeeches: becauſe the thoughts of men are as euident to Chriſt, as any mans ſpeeches can be to another.

The vſe. In that Chriſt doth expreſſe mens ſecret thoughts, and propound the ſame in this book; we may hence gather, that it is a part of Canonicall Scripture, for it is a priuiledge of the Scriptures to ſet downe the thoughts of churches, and of particular men, euen as they conceiue them. This can no man doe in any booke of his owne deuiſing. And hence we may gather an argument againſt Atheiſts, That Scriptures are the word of God, becauſe they reueale mens ſecret thoughts.

Now followeth the thought it ſelfe of the Angell and people of this Church, I am rich, that is, I haue many excellent gifts and graces of Gods ſpirit: by this effect he expreſſeth their ſpirituall pride, in ouerweening their eſtate before God. A This is a common ſinne in the world, and euer hath beene. Chriſt ſaid, [a] He came not to call the righteous, but ſinners to repentance; by righteous meaning ſuch as think themſelues righteous. And [b] the proud Phariſie in his prayer, which he conceiued in his heart, thought himſelfe farre better, then the poore Publican, or other men. And Paul [c] bringeth in the Corinthians thinking proudly of themſelues, ſaying; We are full, and made rich, &c. This ſinne takes place in the Papiſts at this day; who perſwade themſelues, that they can ſatisfie Gods iuſtice by temporall workes, and fulfill the law of God, and merit for themſelues, and for others.

B To come to our ſelues: this ſame proud thought hath place among vs. Firſt, we thinke we are rich, in regard of knowledge: both yong and old ſcorne to be catechized, becauſe they would not ſeeme to be ignorant; ſome ſticke not to profeſſe this pride by bragging thus, that they know as much for ſubſtance as any man can teach them, when as indeed they know nothing, but that which nature will teach a man. II. men plead that they haue a moſt firme faith, ſo as they neuer doubted of Gods mercie: which is nothing but the preſumption of a proud heart; for true faith is troubled with doubting. Thirdly, men will profeſſe, that they are rich in loue, both towards God and their neighbours; when as they loue the world, and C the pleaſures thereof, more then Chriſt; and ſo haue no true loue of God in their hearts. IIII. (to make more plaine, that this ſpirituall pride raigns in mens hearts) marke this; let any bodily calamity bee made knowne to a man, that is newly befallen him, oh how is he preſently perplexed! but let Gods Miniſter out of his word, make knowne vnto him his inward fearefull eſtate: that by reaſon of ſinne, he is in danger of Gods iudgements, and a firebrand of hell, he is not afraid. Worldly newes doth affright men much, when as the threatnings of the word mooue them nothing. What argueth this, but that their hearts are foreſtalled with this falſe conceit, I am rich. The drunkard in his drunkenneſſe, D the filthy perſon in his vncleanneſſe, and euery man in his ſinne ſootheth himſelfe with this, God is mercifull, I am rich, and in his fauour, he will not condemne me. Well, it beeing thus manifeſt that ſpirituall pride is our common ſinne; wee muſt labour to ſee it in our ſelues, and vſe all good meanes that it may be remooued. The meanes followe afterwards.

And increaſed with goods: or, am made rich, ſo the words are: theſe words are added onely for amplification, to ſhew that this Church had not any ſmall portion, but an exceeding meaſure of ſpirituall pride: The doubling of the words, ſheweth the ſtrength of this conceit. Whats the cauſe that this Church was growne to ſuch an height of pride? Anſ. It may be it was knowledge, wherewith no doubt the Angell of this Church, and many therein did abound:

[a] Luk.5.32.

[b] Luk.18.9, 10.

[c] 1.Cor.4.8.

bound: now the holy Ghoſt ſaith, [a] That knowledge puffeth vp. This is true in all places: great knowledge, (without ſpecial grace) great pride. This is the ſinne of the Schooles of learning. Where knowledge abounds, there pride of heart abounds, and men are puffed vp according to the meaſure of their gifts, vnleſſe by his grace, and the ſight of their ſinnes, God doe humble them.

And haue neede of nothing. This is a further ſign of their great pride, that they thought they needed not the helpe of any thing, or any perſon beſide themſelues: And all ſuch as thinke they haue no neede of the blood of Chriſt for the waſhing away of their ſinnes, doe ſurfet and abound with this ſpirituall pride of heart. This ſerues further to conuince our congregations of this damnable ſpirituall pride. If any one be ſicke in bodie, he ſtraight ſendeth to the Phyſitian; but not one of a thouſand ſeeketh to the Miniſter till the pangs of death draw neere. The ſoules diſeaſe by ſinne is not felt; there is no complaint for want of the blood of Chriſt. But if we would be emptied of this pride, we muſt labour to ſee that we ſtand in neede of Chriſt, and euery droppe of his blood; till ſuch time as we feele that in vs there is no goodneſſe in our hearts: We are but the proud Laodiceans, and our caſe is wretched and damnable.

And knoweſt not how thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poore, and blind, and naked. Chriſt intending to ſtrike this ſinne of pride to the very heart, doth here ſet downe the true cauſe thereof; to wit, Ignorance: as if he ſhould ſay, Thou knoweſt not thine owne naturall eſtate, as thou art borne of Adam out of Chriſt, and therefore thou art proud, and thy pride maketh thee luke-warme. Then he ſheweth whereof they were ignorant, namely, of their naturall eſtate.

For the firſt, Chriſt making Ignorance the cauſe of their pride, teacheth vs that pride is not the firſt ſinne, that euer was in the world, as many both Papiſts and others haue thought. True it is, pride is a great and mother ſinne, and the cauſe of many foule iniquities: but yet ignorance is a mother ſinne, whereof pride ſpringeth. The cauſe why any perſon ſwelles with pride in himſelfe, is ignorance of his owne naturall eſtate. By this then we are taught to learne to know our owne eſtate, what we are by nature in our ſelues without Chriſt, for that is the way to pull downe our hearts. For this cauſe the Prophets of God vſed to call men, To a ſearching of themſelues, Zeph. 2. 1. when they would bring the people to humilitie and grace, that men ſeeing their eſtate, by reaſon of their ſinnes to be damnable, might be humbled and cauſed to forſake themſelues, and come vnto Chriſt. And ſurely till ſuch time as men be humbled for their ſinnes, they will neuer get ſound grace, but be as the proud Phariſie, hypocrites and diſſemblers, though they haue much knowledge. But when a man hath ſearched his naturall eſtate, then beſides knowledge of himſelfe come other moſt excellent graces, as humilitie, the feare of God, and true obedience with good conſcience. And therefore firſt of all, let vs labour to be acquainted with our owne eſtate in our ſelues, and with our perſonall ſinnes, and with Gods iudgements due vnto vs for them. For this is the ground of true grace. The ſpots and blemiſhes of our bodies, we can ſoone eſpie, and wipe away: and why ſhould we be leſſe carefull of our ſoules, which be farre better?

That Chriſt might fully make knowne vnto them their ignorance of themſelues, it pleaſeth him to deſcribe to them their naturall eſtate, and ſo proportionally the naturall condition of all Churches, and of all people: which is the ſtate of mans miſerie. This he propoundeth two waies: firſt, generally in theſe words, And knoweſt not how thou art wretched, and miſerable: then by the parts thereof, which be three; pouertie, blindneſſe, and nakedneſſe.

For the firſt. The word tranſlated wretched, ſignifieth, one ſubiect to calamities, griefes, and in a word, to all miſeries. And that we may know who is thus wretched, I will enter into a deſcription of mans miſerie; whereof that we may conceiue aright, two things are to be conſidered: Firſt, the roote and fountaine thereof; for therein we ſhall beſt ſee what miſerie meaneth. This roote is originall ſinne, and it hath two branches: Firſt, that particular tranſgreſſion whereby Adam ſinned, which was not onely the ſinne of his perſon, but alſo of the whole nature of man, ſpreading it ſelfe to all his poſteritie, Chriſt excepted. Secondly, the defacing of Gods Image, and the corrupting of mans heart, which by reaſon of the fall of our firſt parents, hath in it a proneneſſe vnto all ſinne, both in will, affection, and in all the faculties of the ſoule. In theſe two ſtands originall ſinne; and in them, and with them muſt we conceiue of mans miſerie, as in the roote thereof. Secondly, we muſt conceiue of mans miſerie vnder the forme of puniſhment, hauing relation to the firſt ſinne of Adam, and to the corruption of each mans nature thereby receiued. The puniſhment of ſinne, muſt be conſidered ſundrie waies, according to the diuers kinde of mans beeing: either in this world, or after. For it is either in this life, or at the ende of this life, or after this life. And ſo accordingly is miſerie to be conſidered.

Now of the puniſhments in this life, ſome concerne the whole man, ſome the parts of man, ſome his eſtate. Puniſhments concerning the whole man, be of two ſorts: The firſt, is ſubiection to the wrath of God, whereby a man ſince Adams fall is made the child of wrath: a miſerie of all miſeries, and yet the more grieuous, becauſe without ſome grace, a man cannot diſcerne and ſee the ſame. The ſecond is, a bondage vnder the Deuill, whereby a man in his minde, will, and affections, is ſubiect euery way to the will of the deuill, which though we can-

A not deſcribe, yet we may thus conceiue of it. The regenerate man ſaith, I ſinne, but I would not ſinne: The naturall man ſaith, I ſinne, and I will ſinne: It is my nature to ſinne, and my delight; and this was the ſtate of this Church.

Puniſhments concerning the parts of man, be either miſeries of his ſoule, or of his bodie: the miſeries of his ſoule be theſe: Firſt, in the vnderſtanding, ignorance of Gods will. And in ſundry, madneſſe, and fooliſhneſſe; and in all men paine and difficulty, both to learne and remember whatſoeuer is good, which was not in man by creation. In the conſcience alſo, be accuſations, ſecret feares, and terrours. In the will, is rebellion to Gods will. In all affections, B peruerſneſſe. All which are miſeries of the ſoule.

The bodie alſo hath theſe miſeries. I. it is ſubiect to all infirmities, ſickneſſes, diſeaſes, and aches; which are ſo many, as all the bookes of Phyſitians neither doe nor can record the ſame. II. Mans bodie is mortall, and ſubiect to temporall death; which no man can poſſibly auoid or preuent by all the art and skill in the world.

Puniſhments of mans eſtate, concerne either his goods, or calling. In goods there be theſe miſeries; want of things neceſſarie: for by reaſon of ſinne it is a puniſhment, and in it owne nature a curſe: and all the hurts that come by the creatures: for their enemity towards man, and toward one another; as alſo their ſubiection to vanitie; all theſe be miſeries, and the puniſhments of mans ſinne. In mans calling there C is miſerie: for therein man is ſubiect to trouble, to loſſes, and ſorrow; which come as a puniſhment of mans firſt ſinne. And all theſe bee the miſeries of man in this life.

At the end of this life, comes bodily death, the ſeperation of ſoule and bodie aſunder; which in it ſelfe is a moſt fearefull curſe, for ſo, it is the very gate of hell.

But after this life, is the accompliſhment of all miſeries, and that is eternall deſtruction and condemnation in hell fire, which to be the end of all miſeries, appeares by this, becauſe it is a ſeperation of mans perſon from the ſocietie and preſence of God: and an enduring of Gods wrath in the whole perſon, euen in the place of D the deuill and damnable ſoules, and that not for a time, but for euer and euer eternally. And thus we ſee what puniſhment is, and anſwerably what miſery is, whereby we may ſee what it is to be wretched, namely in a word to be ſubiect to all miſeries, whether we conſider them in the roote thereof, originall ſinne; or vnder the forme of puniſhment, in this life, in the whole perſon, & in ſoule & bodie ſeuerally, in goods & calling, at the end of this life, & in the world to come.

The proper end that mooues Chriſt to ſay to this church, ſhee knew not that ſhe was wretched, is this; to teach this church & in them vs, and all churches, to learne to know their owne miſeries, to feele the ſame, and to be touched in conſcience for them. We therefore muſt learne not to flatter our ſelues with hope of our good ſtate: but labour to ſee our miſery both in ſinne, and the puniſhment thereof. And ſeeing it, ſtriue to be touched with it, that we may crie with the Iewes, [a] What ſhall we doe to be ſaued? for till ſuch time as this in ſome meaſure be wrought in vs, we ſhal be but luke-warme profeſſors, hauing a ſhew of godlineſſe, but wanting the power thereof. The true ſight of our miſerie is the gift and grace of God, but yet we muſt vſe all good meanes, that we may come to ſee the ſame, & to be touched with it, that ſo we may haue harts hereby fit to receiue the goſpel, which contains the remedie of this our miſerie.

And miſerable, that is, worthie to be pitied: that is added, not to ſet downe another thing, but to expreſſe the greatneſſe of their miſerie; as if he ſhould ſay, Thy miſerie is not ſmall, but ſo great and ſo grieuous, as indeede thou art in that regard to be pitied of all men.

The vſe.

Hence we learne, that we muſt not deſpiſe parties miſerable by reaſon of their ſinnes, or ſcorne and contemne them. But contrariwiſe lament and pitie them. When Dauid ſaw men ſinne, and ſo pull heaps of miſeries vpon them, [b] he ſhed riuers of teares. The Lord makes it a good mans propertie [c] to mourne for the abhominations of the people. Ieremie [d] for the ſinnes of the people wiſhed his head were full of water. And iuſt Lot [e] greiued his righteous heart for the abhominations of Sodome. It was the fault of the Corinthians, which Paul reprooueth, that when the inceſtuous man had ſinned that grieuous ſinne, [f] they were not humbled, but puffed with contempt againſt the partie. And it is a fault in ſundry men at this day, that they are not humbled in themſelues when they ſee other men ſinne. We muſt not doe ſo, but ſhewe the grace we haue aboue others, in beeing grieued for the miſeries which men without grace by their ſinnes pull daily vpon them. Thus much of their miſerie in generall.

The parts of their miſerie are three, which Chriſt noteth particularly, that if it were poſſible, he might cauſe this Church to lay aſide this damnable pride; for theſe in all men are maine miſeries. The firſt is pouertie: And poore: that is properly one that hath not a rag to his backe, nor bread to his mouth, vnleſſe he begge the ſame of others. But here it is taken for one that is ſpiritually poore: which pouertie we ſhall better conceiue, if we doe vnderſtand what be true ſpirituall riches. True riches be Gods grace and fauour in Chriſt: as the pardon of ſinne, and life euerlaſting. The poore man therefore is he, that wanteth Gods fauour for the remiſſion of his ſinnes, and the gift of eternal life: and hath in him no good thing that is acceptable to God; but in regard of his ſoule, is as ſilly and poore, as any begger in regard of his body.

The end why Chriſt calleth this church poore, is to beat downe the proud conceit of her owne good eſtate, and to cauſe her to feele her ſpirituall pouertie, and ſo become poore in ſpirit. And we in them are likewiſe taught to labour to feele our owne pouertie, how by nature there is no goodneſſe in vs; but we are vtterly deſtitute of the grace and fauour af God, that ſo we may goe out of our ſelues, and in regard of our ſelues euen deſpaire of our ſaluation: for till this pouertie of ſpirit be wrought in vs, we may make a ſhewe in profeſſion, heare the word, and receiue the Sacraments, but we ſhall neuer haue ſound grace. And bleſſed were our eſtate, if we could lay aſide that deuilliſh pride, which puffeth vp our hearts, and become poore in ſpirit; then were we in the right way to receiue the Goſpel, and the graces thereof: but till we be beggers in our ſelues, we neuer begin to be rich in Chriſt.

How can Chriſt truely charge this Church with pouertie; for the Laodiceans were a rich people, and had great ſtore of wealth? Anſ. True it is, they were rich in wealth as hiſtories ſhew, and yet poore to God. For all honour and wealth in the world is nothing without the grace and fauour of God in Chriſt. Paul ſaith, [a] We are compleat in Chriſt: forth of him therefore we haue nothing. To the Corinthians he he ſaith, [b] All things are yours, and you are Chriſts, and Chriſt is Gods. But nothing is ours till we haue Chriſt, and Chriſt vs.

[a] Col.2.10.

[b] 1.Cor.3. 22,23.

The vſe.

As it was with this Church, ſo it is with all other. Euery perſon and all people are but poore and beggerly, if they want Chriſt: and therefore if God haue giuen any man riches and wealth, he muſt lay this good foundation; vſe them as helps to further his ſaluation: for by them he may attaine to the meanes of ſaluation, and alſo ſhew forth the fruits of faith. But they that haue wealth and vſe it otherwiſe, ſhall finde it turne to their deeper condemnation.

The ſecond part of their miſerie is blindneſſe. Queſt. How can they be ſaid to be blind; for they had a learned teacher no doubt, that both was able, and did teach the will of God; and the people likewiſe knew the points of religion, and beleeued the Goſpel? Anſ. They had knowledge indeede, but yet they were blind: firſt, becauſe they knew not their owne eſtate. If a man had all skill in all arts & ſciences, and great knowledge in the word: yet if he knowe not himſelfe in ſome meaſure, he is but a blind man. Secondly, becauſe they did not know God in Chriſt: They knewe no doubt, that there was a God, and that Chriſt was a Sauiour, but they could not apply it to themſelnes, to be able to ſay, God is my God, Chriſt is my Redeemer, and the holy Ghoſt my ſanctifier. Thirdly, becauſe they could not diſcerne of things that did differ; as betweene good and euill, betweene euill and euill, betweene temporall things and eternall bleſſings: This ſpirituall diſcerning, is a gift of Gods grace.

In that Chriſt ſaith, They were blind, though they had knowledge; we may learne, that all knowledge is but meere ignorance before God, to thoſe perſons that know not themſelues, and God to be their God in Chriſt. For want hereof Chriſt calleth the Angell of this Church blind, though otherwiſe he were a very learned man. Which muſt teach vs, not to reſt content with any humane learning, no not with the literall knowledge of the Goſpel, but we muſt labour further to knowe our ſelues, and to know God in Chriſt, and Chriſt our redeemer: and be able in ſome good ſort to diſcerne betweene things that differ. Dauid a moſt worthie Prophet intituleth the 32. Pſa. his learning. What learning ſheweth he there? Anſ. Surely nothing but the knowledge of the pardon of his ſinnes. And indeede that is it which ſeaſoneth all our learning: and therefore aboue all things we muſt labour for it.

The third part of their miſerie, is Nakednes: Nakedneſſe is twofold; to the eye of man, and to God. Nakedneſſe to the eye of man is bodily, and that is alſo twofold: either that which was before the fall in the bodies of our firſt parents, whereby their bodies beeing vncouered, appeared verie glorious without ſhame; or that which is after the fall, whereby the bodie beeing naked and bare, appeares full of ſhame; which is ſo exceſſiue, by reaſon of mans ſinne, that if neceſſitie would permit, the whole bodie both face and hands ſhould be couered. Nakedneſſe before God, is when any man lies before God a deformed ſinner. In this caſe Moſes ſaw the Iſraelites, [a] when they had made a golden calfe; for thereby they depriued themſelues of Gods Image, and were guilty of that moſt grieuous ſinne of Idolatrie. This is a miſerie of all miſeries, and the greateſt nakedneſſe that can be: And this is the nakedneſſe of this church in this place. Queſt. Why doth Chriſt call them naked? Anſw. To mooue them, and in their perſons all profeſſors to haue care not to flie from God, [b] and to hide their ſinnes with Adam, but to bring themſelues into his preſence, and there lay open their ſinnes, that they may obtaine a couering for them by Chriſt. It is the practiſe of the world, to hide their ſinnes from men, but neuer to care how bare and naked they be in the ſight of God, who yet ſeeth them all as plainely as we ſee the ſores of any poore lazer that ſhewes the ſame to mooue our pitie towards him: which if we could ſee, we ſhould be aſhamed not to ſeeke to couer our ſinnes before God. We muſt therefore labour in our owne conſciences to ſee the nakedneſſe of our ſoules before God: and ſeeke to be touched and humbled for the ſame, that ſo we may earneſtly intreat for the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt, to be a couering to cloath our ſoules. This was Dauids practiſe, for when he ſaith, Bleſſed are they whoſe ſinnes are couered. Pſal. 32. 1. he would giue vs to vnderſtand, that he vſed to vncouer his ſinnes, and lay them open before God; that at his hands in Chriſt, he might get a couer for them.

[a] Exod.32. 25.

[b] Iob 31.33.

Theſe are the particular parts of a mans miſerie, which euery man muſt labour to feele in him-

himſelfe, if he would be partaker of the righteouſneſſe of Chriſt: for thus hath Chriſt both in generall and in particular, ſet downe the miſerie of this church; that he might prepare them to receiue the bleſſed comfort which followeth in the next verſe.

v. 18. I counſell thee to buy of me glod tryed by the fire, that thou maieſt be made rich: and white raiment that maiſt be clothed, and that thy filthie nakedneſſe doe not appeare: and annoint thy eye with eye-ſalue that thou maiſt ſee.

Here beginneth the counſell of Chriſt vnto this Church. Wherein, firſt he propoundeth a notable remedie for her miſerie before noted. In this remedie, we are to conſider three things: the manner of preſcribing it; the remedie it ſelfe; and the meanes whereby it is obtained.

For the firſt, this remedie is propounded; not in any ſharpe commandement, but by a milde and gentile aduiſe, I counſell thee. And herein Chriſt doth take to himſelfe the office of the Counſeller of his Church. For as God hath his Church and people ſo he hath his Counſellers, by whom in mercie he hath reuealed his counſell vnto his Church. The principall Counſeller is Chriſt; ſo he ſaith in the perſon of Wiſdom, Pro. 8. 14. Counſell is mine. And Iſay ſaith; To vs a Child is borne, and he ſhall call his name, wonderfull, C O V N S E L L E R, the mightie God, the euerlaſting Father, the Prince of peace: yea, he is both King and Counſeller to his Church. This office Chriſt challengeth to himſelfe, for theſe cauſes: firſt, becauſe he aduiſeth his Church, touching the way whereby they muſt eſcape euerlaſting death, and come to eternall life. Secondly, becauſe he teacheth them how they may practiſe euery buſineſſe, ſo as it may pleaſe God. Thirdly, becauſe he teacheth them how they may in grieuous dangers & diſtreſſes, finde a good iſſue, or elſe be able with patience to beare them. Theſe things he worketh daily in his Church, not by extraordinarie meanes, but ordinarily by his word and ſpirit; and therefore may juſtly chalenge this honour to be called the Counſeller of the Church.

Eſa 9.6.

The vſe.

From this office of Chriſt, we learne two things. Firſt, to doe all the honour and reuerence we can vnto his Maieſtie; for he is our profeſſed Counſeller, who imployes himſelfe for the good of his Church. Counſellers of the State and of the Law, are highly honoured and reſpected of all ſorts, euen for their counſell in worldly matters, though often it faile: how A much more ought we to honour Chriſt our heauenly Counſeller, whoſe counſell leadeth vnto glorie, and is ſtable and ſure for euer? Looke how much his counſell excelleth theirs, ſo much ought he to be honoured aboue them all. Secondly, in all diſtreſſes and grieuous temptations, and dangers either of ſoule or bodie, we muſt take counſell and aduiſe from Chriſt Ieſus: for to this ende doth he reueale himſelfe to be a counſeller, that men in diſtreſſe comming to him, by his aduiſe might be comforted and eaſed. When Moab, Ammon, and Mount Seir banded themſelues againſt Iuda, the people were in great diſtreſſe and danger; but marke what good king Iehoſophat did, he B betooke himſelfe to the Lord his counſeller; ſaying, Lord we knowe not what to doe, but our eyes are towards thee, 2. Chron. 20. 12. that is, direct thou vs in this danger, for of our ſelues we knowe not how to eſcape. This practiſe ought to be followed of all men, eſpecially in time of any danger; ſuch as theſe dayes are by reaſon of ſinne. The counſell of Wizards, Sorcerers, and Aſtrologians, ought not to be ſought after; but by prayer we ought to humble our ſelues, and call onely and continually on this our onely true counſeller.

II. Point. The remedie it ſelfe; which hath relation to the former Verſe, for there he ſet down, the miſerie of his Church, in three parts; which were all great miſeries. And here he ſo C propoundeth his remedie, that it is anſwerable to their miſeries in the ſeuerall parts thereof. For firſt, here is gold to make them rich, anſwerable to their pouertie; Secondly, raiment to hide their nakedneſſe; Thirdly, oyntment to take away their blindneſſe.

For the firſt; by gold according to the Analogie of the Scripture, we are to vnderſtand the graces of Gods Spirit: as true faith, repentance, the feare of God, loue of God, and the true loue of man; 1. Pet. 1. 7. Faith is compared to gold in the triall thereof: and ſo may all other gifts of the ſpirit be hereby vnderſtood. Secondly, by gold, we are to vnderſtand Chriſts merits: yea Chriſt himſelfe, as the fountaine of all grace.

This gold is further ſaid, to be tryed by the D fire: that is, moſt pure and precious gold, purged from all droſſe, as fine as can be made by the art of man. This is added to expreſſe the propertie of Gods graces and gifts, namely, that they are more precious vnto God then gold; Yea, then gold tryed by the fire, as Peter ſaith.

By this euery perſon is taught, how to beautifie himſelfe both in ſoule and bodie: It is the common blind opinion of the world, that forraine attire and rich Iewels doe adorne the body; and indeede in ſome caſes the bodie may be adorned, with pearles and Iewels: but the right way to adorne any perſon indeed is, to furniſh the ſoule with theſe graces of the ſpirit, which vnto God be more precious then fine gold. Our bodies and ſoules ought to be the dwelling places of the Holy Ghoſt; and therefore we muſt adorne them, and make them fit for ſo worthy a Gueſt: which muſt be done, by the good graces of the ſpirit, and not by ſtrange & forraigne attyre, which no good man could euer abide.

Secondly, theſe graces haue a further effect then to beautifie; and that is, to make rich. Here then ſee the common folly, yea the ſpirituall madneſſe of men in the world; who ſpend all their time, wit, and ſtrength, to furniſh their houſes with treaſure, and to enrich their bodies, and in the meane time leaue their ſoules vngarniſhed. What a madneſſe is this, that men ſhould neglect the true riches, and follow after that which is nothing els but counterfeit copper? Seeing therefore Gods graces be the true treaſure which fadeth not, let vs ſeeke after them, as Wiſdome counſelleth: Pro. 8. 10. 11. Receiue mine inſtruction, and not ſiluer: and knowledge rather then fine gold: For wiſedome is better then precious ſtones. The ſecond part of this remedie is, a white garment: that is, Chriſt himſelfe, and his righteouſneſſe imputed. So Paul ſaith, [a] All that are baptized into Chriſt, haue put on Chriſt; There Chriſt is made a garment, whom euery one that beleeueth in him, doth put on. Againe, the fruits of the ſpirit are a garment; and therefore we are commaunded to [b] put on tender mercie, kindneſſe, humbleneſſe of minde, meekeneſſe, and long ſuffering. Further, Chriſt ſheweth the end of this garment; namely, to couer the nakedneſſe of our ſoules, leſt the filthineſſe thereof, which we by our ſinnes haue brought vpon vs, doe appeare. The third part of this remedie is, annoynting with eye ſalue; where, by eye ſalue, we muſt vnderſtand the ſpirit of Illumination and knowledge wrought in the mind by the Holy Ghoſt, whereby men know themſelues and their eſtate: for as eye-ſalue ſharpens the eyes and cleares the ſight, where it was by ſome occaſiō dimmed, ſo doth Chriſt by the Illumination of the ſpirit, make a man know God in Chriſt, & to diſcerne betweene good and euill, and betweene things temporall, and bleſſings eternall.

a Gal 3.27.

b Col.3.12.

Thus wee haue the meaning of the words: whereby we may ſee, that by all theſe three, we can vnderſtand nothing elſe but Chriſt himſelfe and his merits. Now one and the ſame thing in Chriſt, is ſignified by diuers tearmes: to ſhewe that there is in Chriſt the fulneſſe of all grace, and plentifull redemption; yea, ſtore of ſupplyes for all our wants. The Laodiceans were poore, but Chriſt was their riches; they were naked, but Chriſt was their garmēt: & laſtly, they were blind, but Chriſt was their eye-ſalue. So that what wants ſoeuer be in vs, there is ſtore of ſupply thereof in Chriſt. This muſt the more diligently be marked, because the Papiſts make Chriſt but halfe a Sauiour, in putting our merits vnto his: and ſo diſgrace him in his glorious worke, wherein he is a moſt abſolute Sauiour, and Redeemer.

The vſe.

III. Point. The meanes whereby theſe worthy gifts of God may be gotten, is by buying and bargaining: ſo Chriſt ſaith, I counſell thee to buy of me. Where he alludeth to the outward ſtate of this Citie; for it was rich, and alſo giuen to much trafficke, as Hiſtories record: and therefore he ſpeakes to them in their owne kind, as if he ſhould ſay; you are a people exerciſed in much trafficke, and delighted with nothing more then buying and ſelling: well, I haue wares that will ſerue your turne; as gold, garments, and oyle, therefore come and buy of me. Theſe words muſt not be vnderſtood properly, for ſo we can buy nothing of Chriſt; becauſe there is nothing that is good in any, but it proceedeth from the free gift of God in Chriſt. B This is onely ſpoken by way of reſemblance to buying and ſelling; which ſtands in theſe points, which are the principall things in bargaining. Firſt, a man ſees his want, and deſires to haue it ſupplyed; and therefore goes to the place where ſuch things are to be ſold. Secondly, he ſeeth the thing, and he liketh it. Thirdly, he prizeth and valueth it. Fourthly, he maketh exchange for it, by money or money worth. Fiftly, if it be a great ſumme, he giueth earneſt. So in the getting of Chriſt, there is a kind of reſemblance to all theſe. Firſt, a man muſt feele himſelfe to ſtand in neede of Chriſt and his merits; becauſe men ſee want of bread, meate, and drinke in their houſes, therefore doe they goe to buy the ſame. Now looke how ſenſibly any man feeles C theſe worldly wants; ſo euidently ſhould we feele our want of Chriſt, and his merits. For this is the firſt beginning that cauſeth vs to ſeeke to receiue Chriſt Ieſus. Secondly, feeling our wants, we ſhould hunger and long after Chriſt, that we might be made partakers of him and the vertue of his merits: as a man that is to buy a thing doth take a liking thereof, which doth ſtir vp a deſire in him to buy, ſo muſt we labour to haue liking of Chriſt, which will mooue vs to ſeeke vnto him. Iſay. 55. 1. Hoe, all they that thirſt, come and buy: ſo that none makes this bargain, but he that thirſteth. Thirdly, we muſt prize and value Chriſt aboue all things in this world, euen at ſo high a rate that we account all things in regard of him to be but D loſſe; yea, euen droſſe and dung, [a] as Paul did. Fourthly, we muſt make exchange. How? we can giue Chriſt nothing but his owne? Anſw. Properly there is no exchange, and therefore he ſaith: Iſay 55. 1. Hoe, come and buy without money, for nothing. Simon Magus is heauily checked and accurſed, for offring to buy the gifts of the holy Ghoſt, Acts 8. 20. And yet there is an exchange to be made, We muſt giue him our ſinnes, and receiue his righteouſneſſe; and therefore he is ſaid, 2. Cor. 5. 21. To be made ſinne for vs, that we ſhould be made the righteouſneſſe of God in him. See a moſt bleſſed exchange; for our ſinne and ſhame, we receiue his bleſſed grace and righteouſneſſe. Queſt. How is this exchange made? Anſw. In the practiſe of faith and repentance; for when we humble our ſelues

a Phil. 3.8.

A and confeſſe out ſinnes, praying earneſtly for remiſſion, and beleeue our reconciliation by Chriſt, then is he our righteouſneſſe. Laſtly, though we can giue nothing vnto Chriſt, yet he giueth vnto vs an earneſt in this bargaine; to wit, ſome portion of Gods [b] ſpirit, and ſome ſmall meaſure of his graces: as grace to bewayle our ſinnes, to humble our ſelues, and to pray for the pardon of them, with purpoſe not to ſinne againe, theſe be the earneſts of this bargaine: And thus is heauen bought and ſold betweene Chriſt and vs; the receiuing of his true ſauing graces, be they neuer ſo ſmal, euen as a penie, is a ſufficient earneſt for a bargaine of a hundred pounds.

The vſe. Here we ſee we are commaunded to buy B Chriſt, and to make a bargaine with him, wherby we may haue right to him and his merits. But how goes the caſe with the world? ſurely many come where this bargaine is offered, but few there be that buy. We are like to Paſſengers on the ſea, who ſee many goodly bildings, ſumptuous cities, and fruitfull Iſlands, but they make no purchaſe of them; they onely praiſe them, as they behold them, and ſo paſſe by; ſo we come and heare the doctrine of Chriſt and his merits, and approoue of the ſame: but where is the partie that maketh this bargaine? Come to particular points, and it will appeare, that few bargaine for Chriſt. For who feeles his one miſerie as he ought? Who perceiues himſelfe to ſtand in ſuch need of Chriſt as he doth? C worldly wants we feele, and are affected with them, but in regard of ſpirituall wants, we are ſenceleſſe; and yet till we truly feele our miſery, we neuer come to make this bargaine with Chriſt. Againe, come to our deſire and hungring after Chriſt: In bodily thirſt and hunger, we can ſay; I hunger, or I thirſt: but who can ſay, I hunger & thirſt after Chriſt and his righteouſneſſe? Alas, our hearts are full, we feele no want: nay they are dead, we feare none euill; and as for our valuing and eſteeming of Chriſt, we are plaine Gaderens and Eſawes, we preferre the world and the baſeſt things therein before Chriſt. And for the exchange; we are loth to D part with our ſinnes, and to put on Chriſts righteouſneſſe. Which plainly ſhewes we make no exchange, and though we be willing to lay heapes of ſinnes on Chriſt, yet who takes Chriſts righteouſnes and declares the ſame by the fruits thereof. And laſtly, for the earneſt of the ſpirit, though ſome there be that haue receiued it, yet the bodie of our people, as their conſciences can tell them, haue not receiued it: for they want knowledge, faith, and other graces.

By all theſe, it is more then manifeſt, that this bargaine is not made: And yet true it is, that for worldly and baſe bargains he muſt riſe early that muſt goe beyond them. But what a ſhame is this, that we ſhould be ſo expert in vile earthly things, and haue no regard of this excellent and heauenly bargain? Wherefore ſeeing Chriſt calleth vs hereunto, let vs make this one bargaine with him, and that preſently; which we ſhall teſtifie by doing the fiue former duties; let vs neuer be at reſt, till we may ſay each one for himſelfe, I haue bargained with Chriſt, and receiued his earneſt. Yea, our care ſhould be, that this bargaine be made not with vs alone, but with our children. Many are forward to bring vp their children in good trades, wherein they may buy and ſell for their liuing, wherein they doe well, but withall they ought to be as carefull to teach them to make this bargaine with Chriſt, and then they doe farre better. For this is the cheapeſt and the chiefeſt marchandize that euer was ſet to ſaile, which we may buy without money, and yet it wil make vs rich for euer. Many labour in trafficke and take great paines, and yet often looſe thereby: but make this bargaine once, and then thou ſhalt neuer looſe it, nor any thing thereby, but continue for euer rich in God.

[b] Eph.1.13. 2.Cor.1.22.

v. 19. As many as I loue, I rebuke and chaſten: be zealous therefore, and amend.

Becauſe our Sauiour Chriſt had ſo ſharpely rebuked this Church, they might thereby take occaſion to diſtruſt, and deſpaire of his fauour and mercie; here therefore it pleaſeth him, to take away all occaſion of doubting, after this ſort. If I vſe to rebuke and chaſten all thoſe whom I loue, then you are not to deſpaire of my mercie, by reaſon of my ſharpe reproofe, whereby I haue threatened to ſpew you out of my mouth, for your ſinne of luke-warmneſſe. But thus I vſe to deale with all thoſe whom I loue; and therefore in this regard you neede not to doubt of my loue and fauour.

The meaning. As many as I loue; Chriſt loues the creatures two waies; as he is Creator, and as he is Redeemer. As he is the Creator, he loues all his creatures, with a common and generall loue, whether they be liuing or dead; reaſonable or vnreaſonable. As he is Redeemer, he loues his creatures with a ſpeciall and a peculiar loue; which is not common to all, but proper to that part of mankind, which is choſen to ſaluation before the world was. And of this peculiar loue he ſpeaketh here. I rebuke: The word in the originall which is tranſlated Rebuke, is more ſignificant then can fitly be expreſſed in any one Engliſh word; thus much is meant thereby, as if Chriſt had ſaid; Firſt, I will conuince them of their ſinnes, and after reprooue, admoniſh, and checke them for the ſame. And chaſten: This muſt be vnderſtood of a kind of correction, which a father vſeth of his child, called nurturing: which is correction to breake the child of his fault and bad manners, and to teach him his dutie. This then is the meaning: All thoſe whom I beare ſpeciall fauour vnto, doe I conuince of their particular faults, and then checke and reproue them & nurture them, as a Father doth his child: to make them leaue their particular vices, and to walke in obedience. And to aſſure vs that this is the true meaning, read Pro.3.12. whence the words are taken, and Heb.12.5. where they are more fully explaned. A

Here then Chriſt ſets downe his ordinarie dealing with them, whom he taketh and chooſeth to be his diſciples and members; namely, he conuinceth them of their faults; he reproueth and chaſteneth them for this very end, to breake them of their ſinnes, and to bring them to reformation. And this dealing of Chriſt, belongeth to euery ſeruant and member of Chriſt without exception: yea, Chriſt laieth rebukes B and chaſtiſements on all his children, and that in diuers meaſure, according to the nature of their ſinnes, and the diſpoſition of the parties. Such as are hardly broken of their ſinnes, he laieth on them more heauy iudgements and chaſtiſements, that they may be brought to deeper humiliation, and ſo to true repentance. And therefore euery one that would be a Diſciple and member of Chriſt, muſt looke to goe vnder his correction, and his ſharpe and ſeuere rebucke; according as they are in heart diſpoſed vnto ſinnes either more or leſſe; He muſt paſſe vnder the rod, that would come into the bond of the couenant, Ezech.20.37.

The vſe of this doctrine is twofold, ſet down Prou.3.12. The firſt thus: My ſonne deſpiſe C not the correction of the Lord, for the Lord correcteth whom he loueth; his chaſtiſements are tokens of his loue: that is, whenſoeuer the Lord either in the miniſterie of his word reproueth thy ſinnes, or by any affliction chaſteneth thee, deſpiſe it not, neither ſet light by it, but make good vſe thereof vnto thine owne ſoule. The ſecond vſe is, Faint not when thou art corrected: that is, let not the greatneſſe of it daunt thee, but arme thy ſelfe with patience; becauſe hee vſeth to correct all thoſe whome hee loueth, making his chaſtiſements tokens of his loue.

Secondly, Chriſt here ſetteth before all gouernours an example to follow, eſpecially to fathers and maſters; his example is this; On e- D uery child that he loueth, he laieth corrections, for this end to breake them of their ſinnes: So anſwerably, Gouernours muſt ſhew tokens of loue towards thoſe that are vnder them, by due reproofe and correction; that ſo they may be broken of their miſdemeanor, and brought vnto obedience to God. It were to be wiſhed, that both Parents and Maſters would follow Chriſt in this example, and ſo ſeek the reformation of thoſe that be vnder them; but more lamentable is the caſe: Parents and Maſters doe think it ſufficient for them, if they prouide for their children and ſeruants, food, and rayment, and neceſſaries for the body: and ſo altogether neglect the good of their ſoules; which is the cauſe of many ſinnes, and ſo of many iudgements; both which ought to mooue them to put in practiſe this dutie.

Thirdly, the very order of Chriſts words, doth miniſter vnto vs a neceſſarie inſtruction, touching his manner of correcting his ſeruants. For firſt, he propounds a direct end of all his corrections vpon them; to wit, their nurturing and reformation; then, that he may attaine thereto, he proceedeth thus: Firſt, he doth conuince their conſciences of their ſinnes, then by reprooſes he rebukes and checks them, and laſtly, correcteth them, by laying chaſtiſments on them. A moſt excellent and bleſſed order, in vſing correction for the good of the partie chaſtiſed, which ought to be followed of all Gouernours, parents, and maſters eſpecially. Firſt, they muſt propound a good ende of their corrections, euen the amendement and ſaluation of the partie: and that they may then proceede aright, they muſt firſt conuince their conſcience of the fault, then reproue, checke, and admoniſh them: and if that take not place, they muſt proceede vnto meete and conuenient bodily correction: all which muſt be done not for reuenge, but to bring them to amendement, and to make them obedient to the will of God. Whereby we ſee how far many parents and gouernours ouerſhoot themſelues, when as they make their corrections matters of reuenge and choller; wherein they ſeldome intend the reformation of the offender: which is a fault flat againſt the word of God; and therefore to be conſidered of euery good Chriſtian.

Be zealous therefore and repent. In the former verſe he propoundeth a remedie againſt their Spirituall pride: In theſe words he doth directly propound a remedie againſt their lukewarmeneſſe. But firſt obſerue the coherence of theſe words with the former. Chriſt had ſaid; Whom I loue, I rebuke and correct, according as their fault is: therefore ſaith he to this church, becauſe I haue rebuked and corrected thee by ſeuere threatenings, for thy luke-warmneſſe, therefore now become zealous and amend.

Here ſee the proper ende of all reproofs and corrections: namely, the reformation and amendment of mens faults and miſdemeanours whatſoeuer, that ſo they may be more carefull of their wayes; and more zealous in good duties then euer they were. Whenſoeuer therefore we are reprooued by the word of God; or when the Lord ſhall viſit vs in bodie, mind, or goods by any kind of croſſe, we muſt remember to take occaſion thereby to repent and amend, knowing that by all theſe, as by ſo many Sermons, the Lord calls vs to amendement.

Now come to the remedie of their lukewarmeneſſe; Be zealous. That we may vnderſtand this commandement, we are to handle ſome points touching Zeale. Firſt, what is zeale? Zeale is a burning affection in regard of Chriſtian religion, and the true worſhip of God. This Zeale is compounded of two affections; of loue, and anger or indignation: ſo that in this commandement are two duties enioyned vnto this Church. Firſt, that they ſhould loue Chriſt and his Religion aboue all things. Secondly, that they ſhould be grieued eſpecially for this, that Chriſt was diſhonoured, his worſhip prophaned, and his doctrine not embraced; but inſtead thereof falſe worſhip, and falſe doctrine entertained: when both theſe concurre, then zeale is in the heart. A moſt notable example hereof we haue in Chriſt: [illegible] 69.9. where the Prophet Dauid in his paſſion ſaith, The zeale of Gods houſe had eaten him vp. Whereby thus much is ſignified, that the heat of his loue for the maintaining of his Fathers glorie, had euen conſumed him: and that his indignation was ſo great, becauſe his Fathers name was diſhonoured, and his worſhip prophaned; that it did euen eat him vp. This we ſhall ſee to be true in Chriſt, if we read the Hyſtorie of his life, Iohn 2.17. yea he profeſſeth of himſelfe, that it was meat and drinke vnto him, to doe his Fathers will, Iohn 4.34. That thing he preferred before his owne life or ſafetie: nay, for the accompliſhment thereof, he was content to ſuffer the pangs of hell. The like zeale was in Elias, when all Iſraell was fallen to Idolatrie; his heart was zealous for the Lord of Hoſts, 1. King. 19. 14.

I I. Point. The kinds of zeale. Zeale is either good or bad: In good zeale are theſe things required. I. True faith, as the roote thereof, 1. Tim. 1. 5. The end of the commandement is loue out of a pure heart, and of a good conſcience, and of faith vnfained. Now, one part of zeale is loue; and therefore as loue proceeds from true faith, ſo muſt true zeale alſo: and that which is not grounded on faith, is rather raſhneſſe and fierceneſſe of nature, then true zeale. I I. Repentance, 2. Cor. 7. 11. There are ſeuen fruits of repentance recited, whereof zeale is one, that is good zeale: Euen a burning loue of true Religion, and a godly indignation when falſe religion is embraced. There may be zeale in a man that hath not repentance, as was in Iehu, 2. King. 10. 16. Come with me (ſaith he) and ſee the zeale that I haue for the Lord. Yet he wanted repentance, for verſe 29. 31. It is ſaid, Iehu regarded not to walke in the Law of the Lord God of Iſrael with all his heart: for he departed not from the ſinnes of Ieroboam, which made Iſraell to ſinne: and therefore he had not in him the true zeale that is here commanded. I I I. Zeale muſt come from knowledge: for without knowledge it is but raſhneſſe and fooleHardineſſe, ſuch as the Iewes had, Rom. 10. 2. whoſe zeale was without knowledge: and ſuch as Paul had before his conuerſion, Phil. 3. who in zeale perſecuted Gods Church. Knowledge therefore in Gods word, muſt be the guide and conductor of our zeale.

I I I. Point. The fruits of zeale muſt be conſidered, for the better diſcerning of true zeale. First, true zeale conſtrayneth a man in euery thing to ſeeke to pleaſe God: a Whether we be out of our wits, we are it vnto God: or whether we be in our right mind, we are it vnto you. For the loue of Chriſt conſtraineth vs. So whereſoeuer this true zeale is in any meaſure, it offereth violence to the heart; ſo as a man cannot but endeauour to doe his dutie, for the loue he beareth vnto Chriſt. Elihu ſaid, The grace of God was in his heart as new wine in a veſſell, which muſt needs vent out, Iob. 32. 18. 19. Secondly, true zeale makes a man endeuour to ſerue and pleaſe God with all his heart, power, and ſtrength. So good king Ioſiah hearing the words of the Law read, he turned not ſlackly or negligently, but with all his heart, and all his ſoule, and with all his might, according to all the law of Moſes: ſo as like him was no King before, neither after him aroſe there any like him. Pſal. 51. Dauid humbling himſelfe for his ſinnes, prayes for the pardon of them with ſuch maruellous zeale as no tongue can vtter: Deſiring God to remember him according to the multitude of his mercies, often repeating the ſame thing in diuers tearmes, that in ſome ſort he might expreſſe the earneſt deſire of his heart: And in giuing God thanks for his benefits, he putteth all the ſtrength of his heart thereto, crying out; My ſoule praiſe thou the Lord, and all that is within mee, Pſal. 103. 1. And thus we ſee what a thing it is to be zealous; whence true zeale ariſeth, & what it worketh in mans heart.

2.King.23. 25.

a 2.Cor.5. 13,14.

The vſe.

Seeing we (as hath beene ſhewed) are tainted with this ſinne of Luke-warmeneſſe, and coldneſſe in Religion; let vs heare learne how to redreſſe this vice. We muſt become zealous, hauing in our hearts a feruent loue of true religion, and a vehement indignation when the ſame is diſgraced, and falſe worſhip takes place. Let religion therefore take place in our hearts, and let vs be feruent and ſhew the ſame in our liues by zealous obedience. Away with all ſlackeneſſe and luke-warmeneſſe; it were better to be Iewes and Turkes, and to hold their Religion, then to be luke-warme in the true profeſſion. And thus much for zeale.

The ſecond part of this remedie is, to Repent, or amend. This they are alſo enioyned, becauſe zeale without repentance is nothing but raſhnes. Iehues zeale was no true zeale, becauſe he wanted repentance, euen then when he was zealous. But wherefore was this Church enioyned to repent? Namely, for luke-warmeneſſe: not for that ſhe had committed any horrible ſinne, but becauſe ſhee was ſlacke in good duties.

Here then we haue a good leſſon for the ignorant ſort, that challenge Gods mercie vnto themſelues, becauſe they are no notorious malefactors, as murtherers, and adulterers; they hurt no man, but doe good vnto all: but here they are taught to reforme this their blindneſſe & ignorance: for repentance muſt be for want of good duties, yea for ſlackneſſe therein: therefore let no man ſooth himſelfe in his ignorance, with a falſe perſwaſion that all is well if he liue not in groſſe ſinnes. This is the enchauntment of the deuill, whereby he rockes many a ſleepe in their ſinnes, till he carry their ſoules to hell. A good meaning will not ſerue the turne; God requires zeale in well doing.

V. 20. Behold I ſtand at the doore, and knocke. If any man heare my voice, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, and will ſup with him, and he with me.

Here Chriſt, to keepe his Church from deſpaire, miniſters vnto them the ſignes and tokens of his loue and fauour: and before the ſame ſets downe this note of attention, Behold, hereby intending to make them more attentiuely to marke the tokens of his loue, that plainely ſeeing the ſame, they might not doubt thereof.

Hereby in generall we are taught; that if we would arme our ſelues againſt deſperation and diſtruſt in any diſtreſſe, we muſt both often and ſeriouſly conſider and marke the tokens of Gods loue vnto vs, and that will fortifie our faith: Read Pſal. 25. In euery verſe ſaue the laſt, he ſets downe tokens of Gods loue and fauour towards him; and then in the laſt concludeth thus; Without doubt, kindeneſſe and mercie ſhall followe me all the dayes of my life, and I ſhall remaine a long ſeaſon in the houſe of the Lord. Our hearts are naturally filled with doubting, which will bewray it ſelfe in any diſtreſſe. But to preuent and cut off all hurt that may come thereby, let vs marke the good dealing of our God towards vs, and obſerue the tokens of his loue and mercie in his ordinarie prouidence; and theſe will notably ſtrengthen vs againſt diſtruſt. And ſurely no perſon is ſo full of deſpaire, but if he could looke backe into the mercies of God, from the beginning of his dayes, and lay them to his heart, they would miniſter comfort vnto him in regard of his loue and fauour at that inſtant.

More particularly, Chriſt miniſtring comfort vnto this Church, doth expreſſe his meaning by a borrowed ſpeech, comparing euery man vnto a houſe, his heart vnto a doore, whereby entrance is made, and himſelfe vnto a gueſt or ſtranger deſiring to come and enter in, not ſo much to finde courteſie, as to ſhew fauour and kindneſſe.

In the words of this verſe, there be two ſignes of his loue ſet downe. Firſt, a hearty deſire of their conuerſion, which he earneſtly ſeeketh: Secondly, a promiſe of mutuall fellowſhip, after their conuerſion. The firſt in theſe words; Behold, I ſtand at the doore and knocke:

A In this deſire Chriſt expreſſeth two things; Firſt, that this Church (if we regard the greateſt part thereof) had no true felowſhip with Chriſt, nor Chriſt with them; for he ſtands at the doore of their hearts, which were cloſed vp againſt him. This may ſeeme ſtrange, but the caſe is euident: for though they had in them many good things; as knowledge of Gods will, and did profeſſe the Goſpel, and were partakers of the ſignes and ſeales of the Couenant of grace; yet they were tainted with this notorious ſinne of Luke-warmeneſſe, which cloſed vp the doore of their heart againſt Chriſt, and barred him out.

Here then we are carefully to obſerue, that a man may haue in him many good things, and B yet by liuing in one ſinne, be quite cut of from all true fellowſhip with Chriſt. Iudas had many excellent gifts: he forſooke all, and followed Chriſt, he preached the Goſpel, and adminiſtred the Sacraments; and yet by couetouſneſſe the doore of his heart was quite barred againſt Chriſt. So Herod reuerenced Iohn; and heard him gladly, and did many things at his inſtruction, Mark. 6. 20. yet by the ſinne of inceſt, his heart was ſo cloſed, that he had no fellowſhip with Chriſt. And ſo it is with vs: It is good that we know the will of God, approoue the ſame, and profeſſe the Goſpel, and alſo receiue the ſeales of the Couenant: But yet for all theſe our caſe may be ſuch, as we ſhall haue no true C fellowſhip with Chriſt. For if we nouriſh, though but one ſinne, and liue therein, that will make a ſeperation betweene Chriſt and vs, be the ſinne what it will; as couetouſneſſe, adulterie, prophaneneſſe, or ſuch like. Hereby then, all that deſire to haue true fellowſhippe with Chriſt, are to be warned to purge their liues from all ſinne, ſo as their hearts be not tainted with nouriſhing any one ſinne; for euen one ſinne, whatſoeuer it be, is a ſtrong barre, that will keepe Chriſt from comming into vs.

Secondly, whereas he ſaith, I haue ſtood at the doore: (for ſo the words are) Here he ſpeaketh to this Church, as he vſed to ſpeake by his D old Prophets. As by Ieremie, [a] I haue ſent vnto you all my Prophets, riſing early euery day, and ſending them. And by Eſay, [b] I haue ſpread out my hands all the day vnto a rebellious people, which walketh in a way that was not good; euen after their owne imaginations. So here, I haue ſtood at the doore; That is, long, euen till night; as the word ſupping importeth.

[a] Ier 7. 25. and 13.

[b] Iſa. 65. 2.

Hereby Chriſt would ſignifie his great patience, in waiting for the conuerſion of this people of Laodicea. In iuſtice he might long agone haue caſt them to the pit of deſtruction for their ſinnes, and yet in mercie he waiteth for their conuerſion; and complaines that he hath waited long. Here then we haue iuſt occaſion to take a view of Gods patience in waiting for the conuerſion of a ſinner. And that which he ſaith to this Church, he may as iuſtly ſay vnto

A vs; for he hath ſtood verie long at our doores, euen 36. yeares and vpward, and yet ſtill continueth knocking, ſo as he may iuſtly complaine of his long waiting. Let vs then here learne to know the day of our viſitation, which is then to any people, when Chriſt ſtands at their doores and knocks, and vnto vs this day is preſent: We haue the miniſterie of the Goſpel; and therefore we muſt be perſwaded, that this is the time of our viſitation, and hereupon learne the dutie which Chriſt teacheth the Iewes: namely, acknowledge the day of our viſitation; which if we doe not, we muſt looke for like vengeance which fell vpon the Iewes, becauſe they regarded not when God ſent his owne Sonne from his boſome to knocke at the doore of their hearts. B

And knocke. Here is a further ſignification of his deſire of their conuerſion: wherin we may behold his grace and vnſpeakable mercie towards this Church, and in them towards all other his children. This Church had bard out Chriſt by their ſinnes: and yet he purſues them, he knockes; he vſeth meanes to enter for their good, and vouchſafes them mercie, euen then whẽ they refuſe it. Thus whẽ Adam had ſinned and fled, and hid himſelfe, did the Lord ſeeke in the garden, and make with him the couenant of grace. And therefore it is truly ſaid in [a] Iſay, The Lord is found of them that neuer ſought him. Luk. 15.4.5. Chriſt fetcheth the loſt ſheep that was gone aſtray. C All which ſhewe and ſet out vnto vs, the vnſpeakeable greatnes of Gods mercie in Chriſt vnto miſerable man, who then ſhewes mercie vnto him when he neuer ſeeketh it. This his mercie is verified in all Churches, and vnto vs; Which muſt be an occaſion to enlarge and ſtirre vp our hearts to bleſſe the name of Chriſt for this vnſpeakable mercie, in vouchſafing vs fauor when we neuer ſought it, but refuſed it.

Queſt. How doth Chriſt knocke?

Anſ. The words going before, whereto theſe haue reference, giue light vnto the Queſtion. Before Chriſt had threatned this Church, euen to ſpew her out of his mouth for her lukewarmeneſſe; and after he counſels her to buy D of him gold, and other remedies. Now, vpon this grieuous threatning, the Church might deſpaire of his mercie: But Chriſt to comfort her, tels her here, that theſe reproofes and rebukes, were but knockings at the doors of their hearts to make them open: For then Chriſt knocketh at the hearts of any people, when he vouchſafes them meanes to ſee their ſins, & threatens them for the ſame; and withall giues them counſell whereby they may eſcape the fearefull puniſhments thereby deſerued.

Here then note the ſtate of any people that haue the miniſterie of the Goſpel vouchſafed vnto them; they haue Chriſt among them, ſtanding at the doore of their hearts, and knocking to come in, by exhortations, admonitions, threatnings, and by promiſes, which is a great and enleſſe mercie.

Firſt, ſeeing we haue Chriſt knocking at our doores, there ought not to be in vs ſuch dulneſſe and deadneſſe of heart in hearing him knocke. If a man of any account come and knocke at the doore of our houſe: oh what a ſtirre will wee make to let him in quickely! What a ſhame then is it, that we ſhould bee dead-harted when Chriſt Ieſus the king of heauen knockes at the dore of our hearts? Secondly, this muſt admoniſh vs with all ſpeed to turne vnto God by true repentance, for we know not how long he wil continue knocking: and if we doe not heare, and turne before he withdraw himſelf from vs, we periſh eternally. For if we refuſe when he knocketh at the dore of our hearts, he will refuſe when we knocke at the doore of his mercie, Prou. 1.25. 26. Matth. 25.11.12.

Note further, this knocking is not ordinarie, but it is ioyned with crying: For he ſaith, If he heare my voyce, ſo that he both knockes and cries. It is then the knocking of one that would enter: we therefore ought anſwerably, with ſerious regard to receiue the threatnings of the law, and the promiſes of grace, and ſo be as earneſt in receiuing and embracing him, as he is in knocking to come into vs.

The ſecond token of Chriſts loue, is a gracious promiſe of fellowſhip with them, in theſe words: If any man heare my voyce, and open the doore, I will come in vnto him, and will ſuppe with him, and he with me. Theſe words haue beene much abuſed, and therefore I will ſtand to ſet downe the true vſe and meaning of the ſame. Marke, the forme of ſpeech is ſuch, as giues vnto a mans wil and ſoule an action in his conuerſion; whereby he comes to Chriſt and receiues Chriſt.

This may ſeeme ſtrange, but it is for iuſt cauſe vſed by the holy Ghoſt, for in the conuerſion of a ſinner, there be three workes, the holy Ghoſt, the word, and mans will. The holy Ghoſt is the principall Agent inlightning the mind with true knowledge, ſoftning the heart, and changing the will from euill to good. The word is the inſtrument of the holy Ghoſt; for now hee worketh not by reuelation or ſpeciall inſtinct; but ordinarily in & by the word, when a man is reading, hearing, or meditating, either publikely, or priuatly; for the word preached is the power of God to mans ſaluation from faith to faith. Thirdly, mans will, though by nature it be euill and dead vnto grace, yet beeing renewed by the holy Ghoſt, in the firſt act of conuerſion mooueth and ſtriueth to be turned. It is not like a peece of waxe onely paſſiue, which without any action receiueth impreſſion. But as fire; ſo ſoone as it is fire doth burne; and ſo ſoone as it burneth it is fire: ſo the will, though by nature it mooue not, yet beeing renewed by grace it mooueth, and ſo ſoone as it mooueth it is renewed. And hereupon it is, that the holy Ghoſt aſcribeth action vnto a ſinner,

ſinner, that is to be conuerted: which argueth not, that by themſelues men can haue a will to be conuerted, but that beeing renewed, they may will their conuerſion. And for this cauſe is the Goſpel preached in theſe tearmes, Repent and beleeue: not to ſhewe that man by nature can repent or beleeue; but that God in mans conuerſion, doth giue him grace to will and deſire the ſame.

Hence then it followes, that this text hath beene diuers waies abuſed: Firſt, by the Papiſts, who hence would gather free will of conuerſion in a power by nature. True it is, a man hath free will in his conuerſion; yet not by nature, but by grace, neither can any more be gathered hence for here it is onely ſaid, If any man heare and open when I knocke. Nay, hence we may rather gather, that a man by nature cannot heare, nor open, becauſe the counſell is giuen to ſuch as are poore, and blinde, and naked by nature.

Secondly, they alſo abuſe this text, that hereby would prooue a flexible free will by grace to be in man, which is this: Sundry men thinke, that after the fall of Adam, all beeing wrapt vp in ſinne, God gaue a generall grace, whereby a man might will, and receiue that which is good: and this grace, though it diſpoſe the will in ſome part to that which is good, yet it takes not the corruption away, but that remaines ſtill; whereupon if he will, he may receiue Chriſt by that generall grace: or if he will not, he may refuſe Chriſt by his naturall corruption which yet remaineth in him. It is ſaid, this may be gathered from this text: But the truth is, here is no foundation for flexible free will: all that can here be gathered is, that man hath free will in his conuerſion, yet not by a generall, but by Gods ſpeciall grace. Nay, Chriſts miniſterie ſerues for this ende, that thoſe which before could not turne of themſelues, might by grace be conuerted. This flexible grace is againſt Gods word: Chriſt ſaith, [a] Euery one that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, commeth vnto me; He ſaith not, may come if he will, but peremptorily commeth: For mans will cannot diſpoſe and ouerrule the worke of God; but the work of God ouerrules the will of man: though man be vnwilling, yet when God calleth effectually he cannot but come: For the creature cannot reiect or reſiſt the will and calling of his Creator.

[a] Ioh.6.45.

If any man open vnto me, I will come, &c. The proper intent of Chriſt in this conditionall promiſe, is to prouoke them that be dull and heauy, to liſten diligently to Chriſts words, and to receiue the doctrine of ſaluation from him gladly.

In the example of this church we are taught our dutie. Seeing Chriſt in the miniſterie of his word knocks both by threatenings, by promiſes, and good counſell: therefore we muſt all of vs liſten vnto the words of Chriſt, and open the doores of our hearts, and receiue him into the ſame. But alas the practiſe of the world A is farre otherwiſe: men are churliſh Nabals vnto Chriſt, who though he come friendly, yet they repell him; making no account of ſuch a gueſt. Nay, we are Bethlemites, which haue no roome for Chriſt in the Innes of our hearts, if Chriſt will needes lodge with vs, he muſt lie among the beaſts in the filthie ſtable. Nay, many ſend him out of their gates with the Iewes, and crucifie him with their ſinnes. But let vs abondon this grieuous ſinne, for it is the right way to plunge our ſoules into the pit of deſtruction.

Queſt. How muſt a man open his heart to receiue Chriſt? Anſ. By doing two things. Firſt, he muſt labour to ſee his owne vileneſſe; that he is vnworthie to receiue ſo bleſſed a Gueſt; then he muſt humble himſelfe, and acB knowledge this his vnworthineſſe. Euen as the Ruler did when he ſaid vnto Chriſt; Lord, I am not worthy thou ſhouldeſt come vnder my roofe. This humiliation is the beginning of grace. This done, he muſt by true faith lay hold on Chriſt; that is, beleeue that Chriſts death and paſſion is for the pardon of his ſinnes, and for the ſaluation of his ſoule: For as Chriſt dwels in mens hearts by faith, ſo by faith, he muſt be receiued into their hearts. Here ſome will ſay, if this be to receiue Chriſt, then all is well. But take heed thou deceiue not thy ſelfe with a vaine imagination of thine owne braine in ſtead of faith. Looke therefore that thy faith be true and ſound: if it be true faith, it will worke by loue, euen a true loue of Chriſt and his members, C which will appeare by keeping his Commaundements. Ioh. 14. 23.

Matth.8.8.

I will come in vnto him, and ſup with him and he with me. Here is the thing promiſed; to wit, mutuall cōmunion and fellowſhip with Chriſt. This is the principall token of Chriſts loue, beeing indeede the very ground of all true happineſſe, ioy, and comfort: and therefore it is added to mooue them to open vnto Chriſt. This ſocietie, is here propounded in two parts. Firſt, the ſinner beeing conuerted, makes a feaſt vnto Chriſt; I will come in vnto him, and ſup with him. Secondly, Chriſt makes a feaſt vnto him; And he ſhall ſup with me. And in theſe two conD ſiſts the ſumme of Salomons ſong of ſongs; where Chriſt entertaineth the Church, and the Church againe feaſts Chriſt.

For the firſt, ſome may aske, how can a poore ſinner make a feaſt for Chriſt? Anſ. Can. 4. 16. The Church or euery Chriſtians ſoule, calleth Chriſt vnto a feaſt in his Garden to eate his pleaſant things. This Feaſt conſiſteth of theſe things. Firſt, of the fruits of true repentance. Pſal. 51. 17. A broken and contrite heart, is a daintie diſh acceptable vnto God. Secondly, of an heart beleeuing the word and pomiſes of God, for witthout faith it is impoſſible to pleaſe God. Heb. 11. 6. Thirdly, the penitent ſinner muſt [a] giue vp himſelfe in ſoule and body, a holy and acceptable ſacrifice vnto God, by ſeruing God faithfully, not onely in the duties of piety, but alſo in the faithfull performance of

A the duties of his particular calling: theſe be the delightfull diſhes wherewith Chriſt is fed.

The ſecond feaſt is made by Chriſt, and he ſhall ſup with me. Chriſt comes not to be entertained onely, but to entertaine; And the feaſt which he makes is his owne bodie and blood: [b] For his fleſh is meate indeed, and his bodie is drinke indeede. The veſſels whereon theſe meats are carried, are the Word and Sacraments. And all that be his welcome gueſts, are true penitent ſinners, which haue hungring and thirſting hearts after his bodie and blood, Luk. 1. 53. And from this feaſt ariſe theſe bleſſings; [c] Righteouſneſſe, peace of conſcience, and ioy in the holy Ghoſt.

b Ioh.6.55.

The vſe.

B Seeing this fellowſhip with Chriſt is here promiſed to thoſe that open and receiue him into their hearts: Firſt, hereby we are taught to renounce all earthly and carnal pleaſures, and not to addict our ſelues to drinking and quaffing or ſumptuous fare; for here is a better feaſt ſet before vs, whereupon we muſt ſet our hearts, turning our eyes from all worldly pleaſures: We know by experience how friends entertain each other; but we muſt labour to know how to entertaine Chriſt, and to feaſt him with his owne graces, that he may ſup with vs, and wee with him, and ſo haue true fellowſhip with him.

Againe, by this we may ſee a notable abuſe of many that come to the Lords table: for here we ſee is required an interchange of feaſting, C betweene Chriſt & a Chriſtian: but many there be that will come to the Lords table, and feaſt with Chriſt, that will neuer feaſt Chriſt againe: And yet we ought to be as careful to feaſt him, as to feaſt with him. It is a ſhame to ſup often with Chriſt, and yet like vngratefull Nabals, neuer to haue one good diſh of grace, and holy obedience to ſet before him, wherewith indeed we ſhould feaſt him daily. Others will ſeeme to giue him good entertainement, for that day whereon they feaſt with Chriſt; but ſoone after they giue him gal to eate, and vineger to drink, by their daily ſinnes.

V. 21. To him that ouercōmeth, will I graunt to ſit with me in my throne, euen as I ouercame, and ſit with my Father in his throne.

V. 22. Let him that hath an eare, heare what the ſpirit ſaith vnto the Churches.

Here is the concluſion of this Epiſtle, and it hath two parts. A Promiſe, verſ. 21. & a Commaundement. verſ. 22. In the Promiſe, note two things. Firſt, to whome it is made, To him that ouercommeth. Hereof we haue ſpoken. Secondly, the thing promiſed; that is, fellowſhip with Chriſt in glorie: I will graunt to ſit, &c. whereby is not meant equalitie of glorie and honour; for that is not poſſible for any creature to receiue: but a participation only of ſome part of his glory; ſo much as ſhall ſuffice for his perfect happines. And becauſe it might be thought no great matter; therefore it is illuſtrated by a compariſon, as I ouercame; and ſit with my father in his throne. As if he ſhould ſay; I will aduance them that ouercome their ſpirituall enemies, into the participation of my glory, euen as my Father (when I had ouercome) aduanced me into the fellowſhip of his glory. Now Chriſt as he is Mediator, is inferiour to his father, and in that regard is not aduanced to equall glorie with his Father, though he ſit with him: So the members of Chriſt, beeing inferiour vnto him, may ſit with him in his throne, though their glorie be vnequall. Theſe things for ſubſtance haue beene handled, Chap. 2. ver. 25. 28.

The ſecond part of this concluſion, Let him that hath an eare, heare, &c. hath alſo beene handled before.

The fruit of the righteous is as a tree of life: And he that winneth ſoules, is wiſe. Prou. 11.30.

TO THE RIGHT HONOVRABLE SIR WILLIAM Ruſſell, L. Ruſſell, Baron of Thornhaugh;

with the vertuous Ladie his wife:

Grace and Peace.

VPon that ſtrange [a] battell in heauen, betweene Michael [b] the great Prince, and Satan that old Serpent, was heard a loud voice ſounding forth ioy and woe: ioy to the heauens, and to them that dwell therein: becauſe [c] the accuſer of the brethren is caſt out thence: but woe to the inhabitans of the earth and of the ſea, (that is, to the ſonnes of men in this vale of teares) for the Deuill is come downe vnto them with great wrath, knowing that he hath but a ſhort time.

In this voice (right Honourable) are two things affirmed, touching Satan; firſt, that his caſting out of heauen is ioyfull to the Saints; next that his comming downe on earth is wofull vnto men. Is the matter of our woe, ioy to the Saints? Nothing leſſe; but that the Deuill might be knowne to be an euill gueſt where euer he comes, the heauens doe reioyce for his departure, and ſea and earth ought to mourne for his approaching; ſo that he is, or at leaſtwiſe ought to be, no where welcome, except it be in hell; and all ſuch perſons may well perceiue themſelues, not heauenly, but plainly helliſh minded, as giue more kinde welcome vnto Satan in their cheerfull practiſe of the works of darkeneſſe, then they doe vnto Ieſus Chriſt, who [d] knockes at the doore of their hearts, promiſing to come in and ſuppe with them, if they will heare his voice and open vnto him.

But what doe the heauens gaine by Satans caſting downe? And how doth his deſcending to the earth worke man ſuch woe? Anſ. For heauens gaine, [e] they are well rid of the malitious accuſer of the brethren. Who would know more; muſt ſtriue to get to heauen, and if more be needefull, there his information ſhall be certen. As for mans woe by Satans companie here on earth, who ſo doubts hereof, may well ſuſpect himſelfe to haue alreadie receiued of him that deadly hurt, in blindneſſe of mind and hardneſſe of heart, whereof none ſaue Ieſus Chriſt the good Phyſitian of our ſoules, by the eye [f] ſalue, and [g] anointing of his ſpirit, can worke the cure. Is it not wofull to the flocks and to the heards, when rauenous beaſts doe frequent their paſtures? then woe to man becauſe of Satan: for the perill of the lambe from the wolfe; of the kid from the leopard; of the fat beaſt from the lyon; and of the ſucking childe from the Aſpe, is nothing comparable to the danger of man from this old ſerpent, who in craft and crueltie, yea in euery hurtfull propertie goes beyond them all. Other deuouring creatures keepe their circuits, and obſerue their times; they are ſometime wearie, and not alwaies hungrie; ſome are vnfit for the darke, and others afraid of the light, whereby their ſilly pray gets ſome reſpite: but Satan is a prince [h] of the darkneſſe of this world, who yet for his aduantage [i] can transforme himſelfe into an Angel of light, ſo as the day and night are to him both alike for the working of our woe: he is euer greedie, and neuer wearie, and therefore alwaies ſeeking; and if we dreame of any reſtraint to him for time or place, we deceiue our ſelues, for he was a [k] murtherer from the beginning, and ſo will continue till time ſhall be no more; and he [m] compaſſeth the whole earth, walking in it to and fro, euen [n] like a roaring lyon, ſeaking whome he may deuoure. With other creatures woe is ended, when the pray is once deuoured; but to Satans pray it is not ſo, for vnleſſe his ſnare be broken and they deliuered in this life, their woe continues eaſeleſſe, endeleſſe, and remedileſſe after naturall death. Indeede the naturall man doth not perceiue that working of Satan which doth procure his woe;it may be he hath ſeene the plaiers and the painters Deuills, ſome blacke horned monſter with broad eyes, crooked clawes or clouen feete; and till ſome ſuch thing appeare vnto him, he neuer feareth hurt by Sathan: little doth he thinke that ignorance in the ſcriptures, neglect of Gods worſhip,profaning Gods ſabbaths,with greedy affecting the wealth,pompe, and pleaſures of this world doe giue aduantage vnto Sathan againſt his ſoule; and therefore while the matters of this life doe anſwer his deſire, he can ſing to himſelfe this pleaſant requiem; [o] ſoule, ſoule, take thy reſt. But our voice from heauen cries woe to all ſuch inhabitants of the earth becauſe of Satan; for they are of this world, and he is [p] their prince, and their [q] God, who hauing blinded their mindes, [r] worketh in their hearts, and ſo keepes them ſure in his poſſeſſion: Indeede like a ſeeming friend he ſuffereth all [ſ] things to be in peace; but woefull peace,like to Abſalons wine which he gaue to Ammon, that [t] when his heart was moſt merrie therewith, his leaſt ſuſpected deadly wound might light vpon him. Euery one [u] by nature is the child of wrath, and ſo of himſelfe full of all miſerie; but mercileſſe Satan ſeekes the increaſe hereof, by cauſing the roote of mans corruption to ſpread foorth the branches of all tranſgreſſions:indeede he is not the beginner of euery ſinne, for much impietie flowes from mans inbred impuritie; yet ſo ſure a friend is Sathan to corruption in the workes of darkeneſſe, that if nature doe but ſtretch foorth the hand, Satan will thruſt at the elbow: Doth Caine hate Abel? then will Sathan bring this hatred from the heart to the hand, and cauſe [x] Caine to kill Abel: Is Iudas couetous? then will Satan for the ſatisfying of that deſire [a] make him traiterous: let him finde but a ſparkle, he will ſoone kindle it to a flame; ſo that woefull is his comming to all naturall men.

But is there no remedie to man for all this woe that comes by Satan? an [p] Amelec to entrap them in the way, that either through diſobedience or vnbeleefe they may be depriued of their heauenly Canaan. True it is, this match is farre vnequall, for fleſh and blood to fight againſt ſpirituall powers; yet here is comfort, that we haue him for our Captaine who in his [q] deepeſt humilitie ſpoyled our ſtrongeſt aduerſarie, and is now [r] crowned with glorie and honour, beeing highly exalted [ſ] far aboue all might and domination at his fathers right hand, where he [t] muſt reigne till he hath put all his enemies vnder his feete; yea till he hath [u] troden Satan vnder the feete of all his members: onely this he requireth that we ſhould be valiant and [x] quit our ſelues like men in the power of his might, knowing that the battell is the Lords, and ſo the victorie ſure before we ſtrike a ſtroke. Now for the manner of our fight (a matter indeede of great moment, becauſe a [y] ſmooth ſtone out of Dauids ſling will foile to the ground great Goliah) we haue in this combat betweene Chriſt and the Deuill, ſo pregnant direction ſet before vs, that vnleſſe we doe wilfully ſhut our eyes againſt the light, in this behalfe we cannot be ignorant of our dutie: [z] whatſoeuer was written aforetime, was written for our learning; and therefore the recording of this combat is as much from Chriſt to euery Chriſtian, as the ſpeech of Gideon to his ſouldiers, [a] looke on me and doe likewiſe, euen as I doe, ſo doe yee: for Chriſt left himſelfe an example that we ſhould follow his ſteps, though not in his miraculous faſt, yet in his couragious fight againſt ſinne. The view hereof hath formerly beene preſented to your Honours, by Maſter Robert Hill, bachelor of Diuinitie, vnder this title, Satans Sophiſtrie anſwered by our Sauiour Chriſt. And now at the intreatie of M. Perkins executors, I haue publiſhed it againe; yet vnder a newe title, and more at large almoſt by one third part. Mine endeauour hath beene that this poore Orphane might imitate his brethren, who were the meſſengers of loue vnto our Church, while their happie father liued among vs. What is wanting herein, or may deſerue a iuſt reproofe I willingly take to my ſelfe, me me adſum qui feci, &c. What I haue beene able to doe, I humbly commend to the Church of God vnder your Honourable protection. If herein I ſeeme preſumptuous, becauſe I am vnknowne vnto you, I humbly craue this fauourable conſtruction; that I choſe rather by preſuming to wrong my ſelfe, then to alienate this booke from your Honours, who had right hereto by former dedication. When your Honourable imployments in time paſt required your wiſedome and courage, for the iuſt defence of our Soueraignes right, I make no queſtion, but as well the meſſengers of victory ouer rebels, as the counſellers of peace were alwaies welcome to your Honour: why then ſhould I doubt whether this enſuing diſplay, beeing as well a counſeller of peace with God, as an Herauld of tryumph through Chriſt ouer Satan, the Arch-enemie of our ſoules, will be gratefull vnto you, who haue learned long ſince, that whoſoeuer will keepe a good conſcience towards God or man, muſt endure many a conflict with Satan.

Now the God of peace who is able to doe exceeding aboundantly aboue all that we can aske or thinke, graunt vnto your Honours according to the riches of his mercy, ſo to fight the good fight of faith on earth, that you may receiue the crowne of glory in heauen. # TO THE RIGHT HONOVRABLE SIR WILLIAM Ruſſell, L. Ruſſell, Baron of Thornhaugh;

younger ſonne to that moſt Chriſtian and Honourable Earle, Francis Earle of Bedford; with the vertuous Ladie his wife, Grace and Peace.

RIGHT Honourable, as Iohn the Baptiſt was in one deſert, ſo our Sauiour Chriſt he was in an other: but as theſe two differed in their beeing in the world: ſo did they not accord in their beeing in the wilderneſſe. Iohn was with ſome men, Chriſt with none; Iohn was with wilde men, Chriſt with wild beaſts; Iohn was preaching, Chriſt praying; Iohn was baptizing, Chriſt fighting; Iohn was feeding, Chriſt faſting; Iohn was encountring with Deuils incarnate, Chriſt did encounter with the Prince of thoſe Deuils. From Iohn preaching in the deſert, learne we diligence in our callings: from Chriſt tempted in the deſert, ſee we troubles at our calling: [a] Many are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth them out of all.

If it pleaſe you to giue theſe after-lines the reading, you ſhall ſee ſet downe that monomachie or ſingle combat, which was hand to hand betwixt Chriſt and the Deuill. And as for Chriſt Ieſus, you ſhall ſee him faſting, fighting, conquering. Faſting and an hungrie, to ſhew he was man: fighting and encountring, to ſhew he was Meſſiah; and conquering and tryumphing, to ſhew he was God. And as for the Deuill, you ſhall ſee him obiecting, anſwering, flying. Obiecting, that [b] Chriſt might deſpaire; [c] anſwering, that he might preſume; and [d] flying, when he could not ouercome.

In Chriſts temptations we ſee the eſtate of the [e] Church; in Satans aſſault, we ſee his malice to the [f] Church. Is Chriſt tempted? thinke it not ſtrange if we fall into [g] temptations. For the grieſe of the head, is the grieſe of the [h] members: & the temptations of Chriſt, ſhew the temptations of [i] Chriſtians. It is true of Chriſt, that [k] by many tribulations he did enter into the kingdome of God: that [l] our High Prieſt was conſecrated by afflictions, that ſo he muſt ſuffer and enter into his [m] glorie.

He is no ſooner borne into the world, but he is [a] hunted by Herod; baptized at Iordan, [b] but Satan ſet on him; a Preacher for repentance, but the [c] Scribes proſcribe him; to [d] worke miracles, but the Phariſies ſlaunder him. He is no ſooner to ſuffer, but [e] the Deuil aſſaults him; apprehended, but the [f] Iewes deliuer him; deliuered, but [g] Herod derides him; derided, but [h] Pilate condemnes him; condemned, but the ſouldiers [i] abuſe him. In a word, is he vpon earth, he is tempted in his [m] perſon; is he in heauen? he is [n] tempted in his members. Thus the life of Chriſt was a warfare vpon earth, and the life of Chriſtians muſt be a warfare vpon earth. We liue here in a ſea of troubles: the ſea is the world, the waues are calamities, the Church is the ſhip, the anker is hope, the ſailes are loue, the Saints are paſſengers, the hauen is heauen, and Chriſt is our Pilot. When the ſea can continue without waues, the ſhip without toſſings, & paſſengers not be ſicke vpon the water, then ſhal the Church of God be without trialls. We doe reade in Gods word of many kinds of temptations: God, Satan, Man, the World, and the Fleſh, are ſaid to tempt. God tempteth man to trie his obedience, Satan tempteth him to make him diſobedient: men doe tempt men to try what is in them: and man tempteth God to trie what is in him. The world is a tempter, to keepe man from God: and the fleſh is a tempter, to bring man to the Deuill. So God tempted Abraham [a] in the offering of his ſonne: Satan [b] tempted Iob in the loſſe of his goods: a [c] Queene tempted Salomon in trying his wiſdome: men [d] tempted God by diſtruſt in the deſert: the world tempted Demas,[e] when he forſooke the Apoſtles: and the fleſh tempted Dauid, [f] when he fell by adulterie. Doth God tempt vs? take heede of hypocriſie; doth Satan tempt vs? take heede of his ſubtiltie: doth man tempt man? take heede of diſſembling: doth man tempt God? take heed of inquiring: doth the world tempt man? take heede of apoſtaſie: doth the fleſh tempt man? take heede of carnalitie. But doe we ſo? are we warie of theſe tempters? No, we are not, and therefore we fall. We fall on the right hand, by temptations in proſperitie, and we fall on the left, by temptations in aduerſitie. Of the one it may be ſaid, it hath ſlaine [g] thouſands: of the other, that it hath ſlaine ten thouſands.

Now of all other temptations, it pleaſeth God to ſuffer his Church to be tempted with afflictions. c 2.Cor.1.6.

Thus a Chriſtian mans diet is more ſowre then ſweete: his phyſicke is more aloes then hony: his life is more a pilgrimage then a progreſſe: and his death is more deſpiſed then honoured. This if men would thinke of before, afflictions would be as welcome to the ſoule of man, as [d] afflicted Ruth was to the field of Boaz. But becauſe we looke not for them before they come, thinke not on Gods doing when they are come, and doe deſire to be happie both here and hereafter; therefore we can away with the name of Naomi, but in no caſe would be called [e] Mara. We [f] ſee the ſea, not the whale: the [g] Egyptian, not the ſaluation: the [h] Lyons mouth, not him that ſtoppeth the Lyons mouth. If we could ſee God in our troubles, as [i] Eliſha did in his, then would we ſay: There are more with vs, then there are againſt vs. But becauſe we doe not, therefore at euery aſſault of the Aſſyrians, we ſay, as the ſeruant to [k] Eliſha did: Alas maſter, what ſhall we doe? and with the diſciples: [l] Careſt thou not Maſter that we periſh? Yet it is good for vs to ſuffer affliction: [m] Bleſſed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he ſhall receiue the crowne of life, which the Lord hath promiſed to them that loue him. It is [a] commanded by God, [b] practiſed by Chriſt, [c] yelded to by the Saints, [d] aſſigned by Gods prouidence, and good for vs each way. We are Gods [e] trees, we ſhall growe better by pruning: Gods pomander, ſmell better by rubbing: Gods ſpice, be more profitable by bruiſing: and Gods conduits, we are the better by running. Let vs ſuffer afflictions, they are [f] momentanie in reſpect of time: [g] fauours, if we reſpect Gods loue, and a meanes to bring vs to the kingdome of God. If they did conſume vs, we might wiſh them an ende: but they doe purge vs, let vs be content. They [h] are Gods fan, we are Gods wheate: they are Gods boulter, we are Gods meale: they are Gods [i] flame, we are Gods buſh: they are Gods [k] cords, we are Gods ſacrifice: they are Gods fornace, we are Gods gold. The wheat will not be good without the fan, nor the meale without the boulter, nor the buſh without the flame, nor the ſacrifice without the cords, nor the gold without the fornace: they are trials, not puniſhments, if we be ſonnes: puniſhments, not trialls, if we be ſlaues. Let vs then beare them, they [l] will haue an ende: ioy [m] will followe: they [n] ſhew vs our weakeneſſe: they [o] mooue vs to pray: they [p] ſhew we are in the path way to heauen: and [q] make vs contemne this preſent world. By them we [a] learne to repent vs of ſinne paſt, [b] to take heed of ſinne preſent, and to foreſee ſinne to come. By them we [c] receiue Gods ſpirt: [d] are like to Chriſt: are acquainted [e] with Gods power: haue [f] ioy in deliuerance: know benefit of proſperitie: made more hardy to ſuffer: and [g] haue cauſe to practiſe many excellent vertues. They cauſe vs (as one ſaith) to ſeeke out Gods promiſe: the promiſe to ſeeke faith: faith to ſeeke prayer: and prayer to finde God. [h] Seeke, and ye ſhall finde: [i] call, and he will anſwer: [k] waite, and he will come. I am to write an Epiſtle, I muſt not be long. Iobs [l] meſſengers came not ſo faſt on him: but Iobs afflictions may come as faſt vpon vs. Hath Dauid ſlaine [m] a Beare? he ſhall encounter with a Lyon: hath he killed a Lion? [n] he muſt fight with Goliah: hath he ſubdued Goliah? he muſt make a rode vpon the Philiſtims: are the Philiſtims conquered? [o] Saul will aſſault him. Remember Dauids troubles, and foreſee what may be our troubles. The more righteous we are, the more manifold are our troubles: and the better we are, the bettter we may indure them.

If he hath deliuered vs from the guilt of our ſinnes, he will deliuer vs from the puniſhment of our ſinnes. Let vs then therefore be patient in trouble, conſtant in hope, rooted in loue: let vs waite, and he will come, call, and he will heare, beleeue, and he will performe, repent vs of our euill committed againſt him, and he will repent of his euill intended againſt vs. He is ouer vs by his prouidence, about vs by his Angels, in vs by his ſpirit, with vs by his word, vnder vs by his power, and vpon vs by his ſonne. In him is our helpe, from him is our comfort, by him is our victorie, and for him is our trouble. [a] In thee haue I truſted, ſaith a king: [b] who euer was confounded that truſted in the Lord, ſaid a friend? and as Elkanah was to [c] Hannah inſtead of many ſonnes, ſo God is to his inſtead of many comforters. Of other comforters, we may ſay as Iob did of his friends; [d] Silly comforters are you all. They will leaue vs; as mice doe a ruinous houſe: but the Lord (like [e] Ruth to Naomi) wil neuer leaue vs; nor forſake vs. Eſpecially in the houre of death, [f] which is in remembrance bitter to great men: in that houre of death he will be with vs, and command his [g] Angels to take charge of our ſoules, the [h] earth to be as a bed for our bodies: that ſo the one [i] may goe into glory, the other reſerued in hope of like glory, [k] and be made one day like vnto the glorious body of Chriſt Ieſus. Thus, right Honourable, you haue ſeene the righteous in affliction; as [l] Iſrael was in Babylon: and the Lord like [m] Zorobabel is ready to deliuer them. Though in troubles Chriſt ſeemes as in the [n] ſhip to ſleepe, yet in deliuerance he awakes as a man out of ſleepe, and as a Gyant refreſhed with wine. He will rebuke the waues and winds of troubles and perſecution, and they ſhall flie before him as Syſera did before [a] Debora, and the [b] Philiſtims before Ionathan and his ſeruant. And as Chriſt asking the woman of her accuſer, ſhe anſwered. There was none: ſo in the ende aske a Chriſtian of his troubles, and he will ſay, There are none. He is a buckler for our left hand, and a ſword in our right: he is an helmet on our head, and harneſſe for our bodie. We ſhall looke vpon troubles, as [d] Iſrael did on the Egyptians, as the [e] Iewes did on Goliah, and as the Grecians did on Hector, to tryumph ouer them: and as the Angel ſaid to Ioſeph, [f] They are dead that ſought the childs life; ſo the Spirit ſhall ſay to the afflicted, They are dead that did ſeeke your life. A day of deliuerance, a yeare of Iubile will come, and then [g] Ioſeph ſhall be out of priſon, [h] Iacob out of ſeruitude, and [i] Iob ſhall lie no more in the duſt of the earth: [k] Let vs comfort our ſelues with theſe words.

THE COMBATE BETWEENE CHRIST AND THE Deuill expounded.

MATTH. 4. 1.

Then was Ieſus lead aſide of the ſpirit into the wilderneſſe to be tempted of the Deuill.

THe eleuen firſt verſes of this chapter do conteine a briefe deſcription of Chriſts temptations, whereof I haue choſen to intreat, hauing formerly handled the doctrine of Conſcience, becauſe all that endeuour either to get or keepe a good conſcience, are moſt of all ſubiect to temptations: Now here we haue the ſpeciall temptations of the Deuill wherewith he aſſaulted our Sauiour Chriſt, and in Chriſts example the beſt way to auoid the ſame. This deſcription conſiſteth of three diſtinct parts: Firſt, A Preface or preparation to a Combate betweene Chriſt and the Deuill, verſ. 1. 2. Secondly, The combate or conflict it ſelfe, ver. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. Thirdly, The iſſue or euent of this combate, verſ. 11.

I. Part. The Preparation to the combat hath two parts: Firſt, Chriſts going foorth to that place where the combate was to be fought, ver. 1. Secondly, his abode and conuerſing in that place, v. 2. 1. Chriſts going forth to the place is ſet out by ſundry circumſtances of the Euangeliſts: as, The time when he went; The author of his going; The manner how he went furniſhed; the place whither he went; And the end wherefore.

I. Circumſtance. The time when Chriſt went forth to be tempted is noted in this word Then: what time this was, we ſhall ſee in the end of the former chapter, where is ſet downe the baptiſme of our Sauiour Chriſt by Iohn in the riuer Iordan; as alſo the great honour and maieſty wherewith he was there renowned: for it pleaſed Chriſt for ſpeciall end and purpoſe to be baptized, not as we are, to put off ſinne, for he A had none; but to be ordained a Mediatour for vs, that putting on our ſinne he might beare the burden thereof in our ſtead. Againe, in his baptiſme he was diſtinctly proclaimed The doctour of his Church: for immediatly thereupon, The Holy Ghoſt deſcended vpon him like a doue, and a voyce came from heauen, ſaying, This is my welbeloued ſonne in whom I am well pleaſed. Now ſo ſoone as Chriſt was thus ſolemnly inaugurated into his office, and proclaimed from heauen to be the ſole Doctor and Prophet of Gods Church, euen then immediately without any delay was he driuen forth, as Marke ſaith, chapt. 1. 12.

Euery Chriſtian muſt looke to be tempted.

B The vſe. In that Chriſt is no ſooner baptized, but he is preſently tempted, we learne, that all thoſe who are truely baptized into Chriſt, muſt make account to be tempted, and prepare for a combate with the Deuill, euen through the whole courſe of their liues: for if Satan durſt be ſo bold as to encounter with Chriſt Ieſus the head of the Church after his baptiſme, then doubtleſſe he will not ſpare any of his members who are but weake and ſinnefull men. Againe, in baptiſme a man giues vp his name vnto God, promiſing therein for euer to renounce all ſeruice to the Deuill, the fleſh, C and the world; and contrariwiſe to beleeue in God, and to ſerue him; and this vow beeing thus made, it is the will of God he ſhould be tempted, that in the ſchoole of temptation he might learne to practiſe his baptiſme. But here moſt men will ſay, they neuer felt by experience in themſelues the truth of this doctrine; for they haue not perceiued any ſuch combate in themſelues, though they haue beene baptized many yeares agone. Anſ. Such men whatſo-

euer they be, haue indeed the outward baptiſm of water, but they neuer yet receiued the inward baptiſme of the ſpirit; they weare Chriſts liuerie, but as yet they doe ſeruice vnto Satan; And though they haue beene made partakers of the ſeales of the couenant, yet ſtill they abide within the kingdome of darkeneſſe; for Chriſt here teacheth by his owne example, that all thoſe who haue receiued the inward baptiſme of the ſpirit, whereby they haue effectually put off ſinne, and put on the Lord Ieſus, are as ſure to be tempted by Satan as himſelfe was: therefore let ſuch perſons as neuer yet felt in themſelues this ſpirituall conflict, now begin to reforme their liues, and to performe their vow of baptiſme, and they ſhall vndoubtedly finde in themſelues the truth of this doctrine, That all that are baptized into Chriſt, ſhalbe tempted of the Deuill. So long as the children of Iſrael continued vnder Pharaohs bondage, they were not purſued by his army; but when they ſet their faces toward the land of Canaan, then preſently he makes after them, with all his might and malice; euen ſo, while men liue in ſinne, and ſubmit themſelues to Satans ſpirituall bondage, he will ſuffer all things to be in peace with them; but if once they ſet their hearts on the heauenly Canaan, and giue themſelues ſyncerely to Gods ſeruice, then will he with all his force purſue them, and meete them with armies of temptations to turne them backe into their old way of ſinne againe. The ſilly bird that is in the ſnare, or vnder the net, ſo long as ſhe lieth ſtill, feeles no harme; but when ſhee ſtirs and offers to get away, then begins her paine, and the more ſhee ſtriues, the more ſhe finds her ſelfe enſnared: So fareth it with ſilly men, while they liue in ſinne ſecurely, they are not troubled with Satans temptations; but when they beginne to leaue their badde courſes, and ſettle themſelues to ſerue the Lord, then preſently the Deuill ſeekes to ſpread his net to intangle them in his ſnare. The conſideration whereof muſt teach vs, to watch and pray that we enter not into temptation; and (as Paul ſaith) to put on the whole armour of God, that we may be able to ſtand againſt the aſſaults of the Deuill, Epheſ. 6. 11.

Men ſet apart for ſome ſpeciall calling muſt looke for temptations.

Secondly, in that our Sauiour Chriſt after his ſolemne inauguration into his mediatorſhip, was immediately to go to be tempted; we learne, that all thoſe that are ſet apart by God to any ſpeciall calling, euen at their verie entrance thereinto muſt looke for temptations. This befell the head, and therefore all the members muſt reckon for it. When Moſes was firſt called to be the guide and conducter of Gods people out of Egypt, [a] hauing ſlaine an Egyptian in defence of one of his brethren, vpon knowledge of the fact, he was faint to flie from Pharaohs court into the land of Madian, and there to liue a ſhepherds life for many yeares with his father in law Iethro. And Dauid was no ſooner appointed by God to be king ouer his people Iſrael, but [b] Saul began to perſecute him, and ſo continued all his dayes. And our Sauiour Chriſt, hauing called his Apoſtles to their office of preaching his kingdome, [c] tooke them ſoone after to the ſea, and there falling aſleepe ſuffered their ſhip to be ſo toſſed with waues in a great tempeſt, that they looked for nothing but preſent drowning, ſo as they cried out, Maſter ſaue vs, we periſh. And this the Lord doth in great wiſdome for the good of his children; firſt to teach them, that no man is able of himſelfe, to carry himſelfe in any acceptable courſe of his calling without Gods ſpeciall aſſiſtance and grace. Secondly, to ſtirre vp in them thoſe good gifts and graces which he hath formerly beſtowed on them; as the feare of his name, the loue of his maieſtie, the gifts of prayer, faith, patience, & many other which he would haue tried in the entrance of their callings, and exerciſed in the cõtinuance therin vnto the end.

Miniſters ſpecially muſt looke for temptations.

Thirdly, ſeeing Chriſt begins his propheticall office of teaching his Church, with temptations; This ſhould admoniſh all miniſters of the word, that howſoeuer all Gods people muſt prepare themſelues againſt Satans temptations, yet they muſt doe it aboue the reſt; for looke as in a pitched field, the enemy aimeth principally at the ſtanderd-bearer; euen ſo Satan and his inſtruments, doe among all Gods people, bend their greateſt forces againſt the miniſters of Chriſt which holde vp his ſcepter, and diſplay his banner in the preaching of the Goſpell. When Iehoſhuah the high prieſt ſtood before the Lord; Satan ſtood at his right hand to reſiſt him, Zak. 3. 1. And when Ahab went to fight againſt the king of Syriah, Satan became a lying ſpirit in the mouth of 400. Prophets & moe, 1. King. 22. 22. This is that great red dragon, that with his taile drew downe the third part of the ſtarres of heauen, that is, of the miniſters and preachers of the word, and caſt them to the earth, Reuel. 12. 3. 4. This is he that deſired to winnow the Diſciples as wheat, Luk. 22. 31. And as the king of Aram ſaid of Ahab, fight not againſt ſmall nor great, but againſt the king of Iſrael onely, 1. King. 22. 31. So Sathan fighteth not againſt any ſo much as the Prophets of Iſrael, the miniſters of the Church.

It is good for Miniſters to be tempted.

Fourthly, in that Chriſt is tempted before he go to preach, we learne that it is good and profitable for Gods miniſters to be exerciſed with temptations euen of Satan himſelfe, and that for ſundry cauſes; firſt that they may know [c] what temptations meane; Secondly that they may [d] be the more able to miniſter help and comfort to thoſe that are tempted; Thirdly to make thẽ vnderſtand the word of God aright; for many places of Scripture cannot ſo wel be vnderſtood by bare ſtudy onely, as by temptations [e] therewithal: & it is true which one ſaith wel, Reading, meditation, prayer, & temptation, make a diuine.

II. Circumſt. The author or efficient cauſe of Chriſts going forth; to wit, the Holy Ghoſt, noted in theſe words, was led by the ſpirit. The word led, in the originall ſignifieth thus much, that Ieſus was carried apart by the ſpirit; which muſt not be vnderſtood of any locall tranſportation of his bodie from the riuer to the wilderneſſe, as [a] Elias was caried from earth to heauen; or as [b] Philip was taken away from the Eunuch, and carried to Azotus; but it was a motion of the holy Ghoſt, wherewith Chriſt was filled aboue meaſure, and made willing to encounter with Satan in that combate: for ſo are the words by S. Luke, [c] beeing full of the holy Ghoſt he returned from Iordan, and was led by the ſpirit into the wilderneſſe, that is, by the inward motion and inſtinct of Gods ſpirit. Againe, S. Marke ſaying, [d] the Spirit droue him into the wilderneſſe, giueth vs further to vnderſtand, that this motion in Chriſt from the ſpirit, was a peculiar motion, not forced or conſtrained, but voluntary, and yet very ſtrong and effectuall.

ἀνήχθη

c Luk 4.1.

d Mark.1.12.

Againe, by the ſpirit here is not meant the Deuill or an euill ſpirit, but the holy ſpirit of God: he it was that mooued Chriſt to goe into the wilderneſſe; ſo that the meaning is this: After Chriſt was baptized in Iordan by Iohn, hee willingly tooke his iourny into the wilderneſſe, being mooued thereunto by a ſpeciall & ſtrong inſtinct of Gods holy ſpirit, wherewith he was filled aboue meaſure. If any aske, how Chriſt could be led by the ſpirit, ſeeing he ſends the ſpirit: Anſ. Theſe two may well ſtand together: for Chriſt muſt be conſidered two wayes; firſt, as man in the forme of a ſeruant; ſecondly, as God, euen the ſonne of God, yea God himſelfe: Now as Chriſt was man, he was ſubiect to Gods prouidence, and ſo was led and guided by the holy Ghoſt: but as he is God, he is not ſubiect to prouidence, but is the author thereof, and is not himſelfe led or ſent, but together with the father ſendeth the ſpirit.

The holines of Chriſts manhood.

The vſe. In this circumſtance we may obſerue: firſt the exceeding holineſſe of Chriſts manhood, in that he mooued not from one place to another, without the ſpeciall inſtinct and direction of the ſpirit of God. By which example we are taught to ſuffer our ſelues to be ordered and guided by the ſpirit of God in euery thing we take in hand, yea in all our thoughts, words, and deeds; for this is the true note of euery child of God, to be led by the ſpirit, Rom. 8. 14. where the Apoſtle vſeth the ſame word that S. Luke doth, ſpeaking of this leading of our Sauiour to be tempted: we muſt therefore labour to be of Dauids diſpoſition, to haue our hearts pliable to all Gods teſtimonies; when God ſaid, Seeke yee my face, Dauids heart anſwered, I ſeeke thy face. O Lord, Pſal. 27. 8. and thus doing we ſhall ſuffer our ſelues to be directed and guided by the holy Ghoſt, for he teacheth and guideth men by the word.

Secondly, from this that Chriſt was led vnto temptation by the ſpirit of God; we learne, That temptations come not by chance, nor yet by the wil and pleaſure of the Deuil only: for he could not touch Iob, or ought he had, till God [e] gaue him leaue: nor enter into the heard of ſwine, till Chriſt ſaid, [f] go; but temptations come by Gods moſt iuſt permiſſion, and not without his ſpeciall prouidence and appointment. This combate of Chriſt with Satan was decreed of God by his ſpecial appointment in his eternall counſell. And therefore was Chriſt led by the ſpirit to encounter with the Deuill, that he might performe this one worke of a mediator, namely in temptation ouercome him, who by temptation ouercame all mankind. And as God appointed this combate of our Sauiour, ſo hath he alſo ordained the temptations of euery Chriſtian, and the circumſtances thereof. The theater or place of this combate is this preſent euill world: the actors are Satan and euery Chriſtian; the beholders are men and Angels, 1. Cor. 4. 9. The vmpire and iudge is God himſelfe, who ouerruleth Satan, ſo as the iſſue cannot but be happie and bleſſed to thoſe that fight manfully; for he caſteth away none that be mighty and valiant of courage, Iob. 36. 5. he will giue an iſſue with the temptations, 1. Cor. 10. 13. from whence wee learne ſundry good inſtructions;

Temptations come not by chance.

e Iob 1.12.

f Mat. 8. 32.

First, when we are toſſed and tried by manifold temptations, we muſt not thinke it ſtrange, but rather count it exceeding great ioy, Iam. 1. 2. becauſe it is Gods bleſſed will and ordinance that Satan and euery Chriſtian ſhould enter combate and conflict, for the triall of his graces in them.

Secondly, we are hereby taught to labour with patience to beare all trials and afflictions, not vſing vnlawfull meanes to winde our ſelues out of them, becauſe they come by the ſpeciall prouidence of the Almighty.

Thirdly, Chriſt went not to be tempted till he was led by the ſpirit; therefore no man muſt wittingly put himſelfe into danger without a calling from God, leſt therein he tempt God: indeed a man may be moued extraordinarily, to offer himſelfe into places of danger; thus [a] Paul went bound in the ſpirit to Hieruſalem, that is, he willingly followed the motion of the holy Ghoſt, which inwardly enforced him to goe thither. And the ſame may be ſaid of many holy Martyrs, who though they might haue eſcaped by flight, yet did willingly offer themſelues into the hands of their perſecutours, and endured the violence of their torments, which we muſt thinke they did by a ſpeciall motion of the holy Ghoſt; otherwiſe, for a man to offer himſelfe into danger without al warrant frō God, is to ſwarue frō the practiſe of Chriſt in this place.

a Act. 20.22.

Fourthly, Chriſt beeing ledde by the ſpirit, did not ſeek to ſhrowd himſelfe from this combate; ſo likewiſe if a man follow his calling according to Gods wil, & therupon fal into troubles and temptations, he may not ſeeke to eſcape them by neglecting his dutie, but with courage and patience muſt inure himſelfe to beare them, wayting on the Lord by wel-doing for his deliuerance. Here it may wel be asked, whether a mā can lawfully & with good conſci-ence abide in thoſe places which are certainely knowne to be haunted with euill ſpirits? Anſ. Some indeede are ſo venturous and bold, that they feare nothing: yet the truth is, no man ought on his owne head abide or lodge in ſuch places, vnleſſe it be within the compaſſe of his calling, or elſe haue a true extraordinarie motion of Gods ſpirit ſo to doe; we are therefore rather to auoid them, then wittingly and willingly thruſt our ſelues into the danger of ſuch places; for if God haue giuen liberty vnto Satan to poſſeſſe ſuch places as haue beene conſecrated to Idolatry, or defiled by oppreſſion and blood, or ſuch like abhominations, why ſhould we without warrant from God, put our ſelues into his hands? This alſo may ſerue to reproue thoſe men who preſume ſo much vpon their ſtrong faith, that they neuer ſticke to thruſt themſelues into moſt lewd company; but let ſuch perſons beware, for places of bad company are places of danger, by reaſon of that power and liberty which Satan hath among them, for there he hath a throne, Reuel. 2. 13. How then can it be, that they ſhould cleane eſcape the infection of ſinne, who doe vſually conuerſe with thoſe that commit it without controlement? [b] He that walketh with the wiſe (ſaith Salomon) ſhall bee wiſe; but a companion of fooles ſhall be made worſe: ſo the words ſignifie: and therefore his counſell is, [c] not to conſent when ſinners entiſe vs: not to [d] make friendſhip with the angry perſon, nor to go with the furious, leaſt we learne their waies, and receiue deſtruction to our ſoules.

Fiftly, in this leading of Chriſt by the ſpirit, we learne a further thing; ſo long as Chriſt was a priuate man, he liued with Ioſeph and Mary a priuate life; but being baptized, and thereby inſtalled in his office of Mediatour, he returnes not to Bethlem or Nazaret where he was borne and brought vp, but gets him preſently into the wilderneſſe, there to encounter with Satan; and that by the motion of the ſpirit; wherein we may ſee, that all that are appointed and ſet apart by God for any ſpeciall calling, are in ſome ſort changed by his ſpirit, and as it were made other men. When Saul was anointed to be king the text ſaith, God gaue him another heart. 1. Sam. 10. 9. And when [e] Dauid was made of a ſhepheard a king, he was furniſhed for that place, as his behauiour ſhewed, which was ſuch as did beſeeme a king. Thus the Apoſtles of our Sauiour Chriſt, of poore fiſher-men, altogether [f] vnlettered, by the gift of Chriſts calling, [g] were made able miniſters of the New teſtament, and ſo became indeed fiſhers of men, Mark. 1. 17.

Vſe. Which ſerues to confute ſuch men as plead extraordinarie callings, as many haue done; ſome ſaying they were Elias, ſome Iohn Baptiſt, &c. For if theſe were ſuch men, and had receiued ſuch extraordinary callings, thē ſhould they withal haue bin endued with extraordinary gifts fit for thoſe callings; but no ſuch thing befalleth them, nay it is plaine, they remaine the

A ſame men they were before, without any chãge at all in reſpect of gifts fit for ſuch perſons as they pretend themſelues to be. And to apply this to our ſelues; we are all by nature the children of wrath, and enemies vnto God; but by grace we are made Kings, Prieſts and Prophets: Kings, to rule ouer the world and the Deuill, in reſpect of their prouocations vnto ſinne, as alſo to ſubdue in our ſelues our owne euill luſts and affections: Prieſts, to offer vp ſpirituall ſacrifices vnto God, as prayers and praiſes for his daily bleſſings; and Prophets, to inſtruct our ſelues and others in the wayes of God, according to our gifts and calling. Now then it behoueth vs all to become new men, and to leade new liues fitting and ſutable to our holy calling, giuing
B our ſelues wholly to the honour and ſeruice of God, ſhewing hereby that we are hereunto called by his ſpirit of grace and holines, ſo ſhall we [h] walke worthy of the Lord, and ſhew foorth the vertues of him that hath called vs, 1. Pet. 2. 9.

III. Circumſtance. How Chriſt went furniſhed into this place of combate: which though our Euangeliſt Matthew hath omitted, yet hath S. Luke plainely noted, ſaying, He was filled with the holy Ghoſt. Luk. 4. 1. If any ſhall ſay, this ſeemes to import that Chriſt wanted the fulneſſe of the ſpirit all the former part of his life, if now only after his baptiſme he were filled therewith. I anſwer; This fulneſſe of the ſpirit is aſcribed vnto Chriſt after his baptiſme, not as
C though he formerly ſuſtained any want of the ſpirit, but becauſe at his baptiſme he receiued a greater meaſure of the ſpirit then he had before: for this we muſt know, that Chriſt was alwaies filled with the ſpirit: beeing an infant he had a full meaſure of gifts fit for his infancie, and ſtill as his growth in yeares required moe graces of the ſpirit, he increaſed therein, hauing in his youth and in his riper yeares full meaſure of gifts fit for his eſtate in thoſe times. And at his baptiſme beeing inaugurated into his Mediatourſhip, he receiued ſuch fulneſſe of the ſpirit, as was behoouefull for ſo high an office, which becauſe it was farre greater then before he
D needed, therefore is he now ſaid to be filled with the holy Ghoſt: ſo that though Chriſt were alwaies full of grace, yet he increaſed therein as his eſtate and calling did require.

The vſe. This ſerues to confute the Papiſts, who teach that Chriſt had all fulneſſe of ſpirit in his infancy, euen from his conception and birth; and did not grow in grace at all, ſaue only experimentally, as he had occaſion to manifeſt the ſame more and more in practiſe. But S. Luke ſaith plainly, that Ieſus increaſed in wiſdome, & ſtature, and in fauour with God and men, Luke 2. 52. Againe, Chriſt was like vnto man in all things, ſin only excepted, & therfore did increaſe in grace as man doth in gifts from time to time.

Further, Chriſt goeth thus furniſhed to this combate, that he might be able to encounter with Satan hand to hand, and at the ende giue him the finall ouerthrow. Thus he furniſhed Moſes [a] for his ambaſſage vnto Pharaoh; and [b] Dauid for his combate with Goliah; Aholiab and [c] Bezaliel for the worke of the Tabernacle; and euery one whom God imployeth about any ſpeciall worke, is furniſhed and fitted thereto of God with ſpeciall gifts: whereby in euery age we may ſee whom God placeth in any calling, for they are well qualified for the duties thereof; and therefore thoſe that want gifts meete for their callings, doe thruſt in themſelues thereto, and are not placed therein of God.

IV. Circumſtance. Whither was Chriſt led to be tempted? namely, into the wilderneſſe, that is the place choſen of God for this combate. There be diuers opinions touching this place; ſome thinke it was a little wilderneſſe betweene Ieruſalem and Iericho; ſome the deſert of Paleſtina; others, the great deſert of Arabia, where Elias faſted fourty dayes and fourty nights; and where the Iſraelits wandered fourty yeares. But ſeeing the holy Ghoſt doth not define what wilderneſſe this was, we are not curiouſly to inquire after it, but onely know it was a deſert and ſolitarie place. Let vs rather ſearch into the reaſons wherefore he choſe a deſert place for this combate; and they are diuers: 1 Firſt, becauſe he was to worke our redemption in great humility, euen in the baſe and low eſtate of a ſeruant, for the ſatisfying of Gods iuſtice in that nature which had ſinned, therefore he would not goe to Ieruſalem there to ſhewe his glory and God-head, as a little before he was proclaimed in his baptiſme; but he gets himſelfe to a deſert place void of all pompe and glorie, where he meant to begin this great worke for vs by encountering with our chiefeſt aduerſary. 2 Secondly, he choſe this place for the more eaſie encounterings with our aduerſarie Satan, whom he was to ouercome for vs: for if Chriſt after his baptiſme ſhould haue ſhewed the glory of his Godhead, Satan durſt not haue medled with him: therſore as the fiſher hides the hooke, and ſhewes the bait to entiſe the fiſh, ſo our Sauiour CHRIST with the vaile of his fleſh in this baſe eſtate and ſolitarie place did couer the glorie of his Godhead, that Satan ſeeing him only in this low degree, might be the more eager and bolde to ſet vpon him. 3 Thirdly, Chriſt was willing to giue vnto his aduerſarie the aduantage of the place, that therewithall he might giue him the greater ouerthrow: for the Deuill delights [a] in deſert and forlorne places, and there he would chuſe to practiſe his temptations, becauſe in ſuch places men want thoſe helpes and comforts which in ſociety they may finde: hence Salomon ſaith, [b] Wo be to him that is alone: yea God himſelfe ſayd of man in the ſtate of his innocency, [c] It is not good for man to be himſelfe alone. And that Sathan takes aduantage of ſuch ſolitarineſſe, appeares by his tempting of Eue, when ſhe was apart from her husband, Gen. 3. 1. 4 Fourthly, the praiſe and honour of this victory ouer Satan, was peculiar to Chriſt, and not communicable to any creature: and therefore Chriſt choſe a deſert place for this combate apart from all humane ſociety that no man might challenge any part of this glorie to himſelfe, but that it might be wholly Chriſts, as of right it was. 5 Fiftly, he went into a deſert place for a time, that afterward he might thence returne with more credit, reuerence and authoritie to exerciſe his propheticall office: for we ſee by experience that when a man hath beene abroad for ſome time, he is receiued with more reuerence at his returne.

[a] Mark.5.5.
[b] Eccleſ.4.
[c] Gen.2.18.

The vſe. From hence the Church of Rome would fetch a ground & warrant for their monaſticall life; ſaying, that as Chriſt went apart into this deſert, ſo may men ſequeſter thẽſelues from ordinarie ſocieties, and liue as Monks and Heremites in cloiſters, woods and deſerts. But this collection is abſurd, as may appeare by theſe reaſons: firſt, Chriſt went not thus apart on his owne head, but by the inſtinct and motion of the ſpirit of God: but the Papiſts admit and vndertake the ſtate of Heremitical and Monaſtical life without any warrant in Gods word. Secondly, Chriſt did thus ſequeſter himſelfe but once for a certaine time: but with them, an Heremiticall eſtate is ordinarie and perpetuall for their whole life. Thirdly, our Sauiour Chriſt faſted truly all the while he abode in the wilderneſſe: but Papiſts in their Cloiſters and Hermitages doe plentifully inioy the wealth of the world in great eaſe and liberty. And therefore howſoeuer ſolitarineſſe for a time may be commendable in ſome caſes, as to meditate on the workes or word of God, as Iſaac did, Gen. 24. 63. or for the exerciſe of [d] prayer and faſting in more earneſt manner; yet the Heremites life beeing a perpetuall forſaking of humane ſocieties, is neither warrantable by Gods word, nor commendable in Gods child.

[d] Luk.5.16.

V. Circumſt. The end why Chriſt went into the deſert; namely, to be tempted of the Deuill: wherein obſerue three points; How he was tempted; wherefore, by whom. For the firſt; To Tempt, in Scripture is aſcribed to God, to man, and to the Deuil: God tempteth man, when he prooueth him: that is, when he maketh manifeſt what is in his heart for ſinne or grace, which before were hid to the world: thus God tempted Abraham in the offering vp of his ſonne, Gen. 22. 1. and Chriſt, the ruler, Luk. 18. 22. Man tempteth God, when he prooueth by vnlawfull meanes whether God be ſo powerfull, iuſt, and mercifull as the Scriptures doe affirme him to be: and thus the Iſraelites tempted God, when they required meat for their luſt, and ſaid, can God prepare a table in the wilderneſſe? Pſal. 78. 18. 19. The Deuill tempteth when he allureth vnto ſinne, by inward ſuggeſtions or outward obiects: and hereof muſt we vnderſtand Chriſts tempting in this place: to wit, that he was led into the wilderneſſe for this end, that Satan might aſſault him; and vſe what meanes he could not bring him vnto ſinne. If any ſhall think it was too much derogatory to the dignitie of Chriſt to be thus tempted. I anſwer; If it had ſo pleaſed him, Chriſt could haue confounded the deuil with the leaſt word of his mouth: for as he is Creator of heauen and earth, ſo Satan had no power to tempt him, for God can not be tempted with euill, Iam. 1. 13. But here Chriſt ſtood in our roome and ſtead (as he did vpon the Croſſe) encountring with Satan for vs, as if we in our owne perſons had bene tempted. This therefore muſt be vnderſtood as a part of Chriſts humiliation in his manhood, whereto he ſubiected himſelfe for our ſakes, otherwiſe the Deuill could not haue tempted him. Obiect. This ſtands not with the holineſſe of Chriſt as he is man to be tempted of Satan? Anſ. Yes, he might be tempted of Satan without ſinne, as our firſt parents were before their fall: this will plainly appeare by comparing Chriſt with other men in their temptations.

The Deuill in tempting a man to ſinne, firſt conueyes into his minde, either by inward ſuggeſtion, or by outward obiect, the motion or cogitation of that ſinne which he would haue him to commit. Thus he tempted Iudas, by [a] caſting into him this euill thought, Iudas betray thy Maſter. And ſo dealeth he with Chriſt in this temptation, he conueyed to his minde or apprehenſion, the vnrighteous cogitations of vnbeleefe, idolatry, and couetouſneſſe; yet ſo as Chriſt receiued them not, but with all power of grace repelled them. Secondly, as Satan conuayes euill ſuggeſtions into mens minds, ſo the ſame are full of trouble, ſorrow, and vexation, at leaſt to the godly: for when Satan preſſeth vpon man his temptations, the whole man is diſquieted, his thoughts and affections are troubled, and his heart is vexed. And this alſo was in Chriſt, he felt ſorrow and moleſtation in himſelfe through theſe temptations, as appeareth by his Auant Satan vpon his laſt aſſult. And thus farre was Chriſt tempted like vnto men. Thirdly, in temptations vſually be corrupt motions; for though a man doe not approoue, neither enterteine with delight, the deuills temptations, yet ſhall he hardly keep himſelfe from the ſtaine and taint of ſinne, becauſe the imaginations of his owne heart are naturally euill. Now herein Chriſt differeth from all men in temptation; for beeing perfectly holy in his humane nature, he did not in the leaſt meaſure receiue any corruption into his minde, but by the power of grace did repell them more ſtrongly then they were offerd. Put a burning match to tinder or gungpowder, and it will kindle preſently; but put it into water, & that will quench it ſtraight: ſo it fareth in temptations; our corrupt hearts like tinder do eaſily ſuffer corruption to kindle in vs; but Chriſts moſt holy heart did preſently like water quench the euill of Sathans motions. And thus wee ſee how Chriſt was tempted, and yet without ſinne.

[a] Ioh. 13. 27.

Similitude.

The vſe. Hence we may obſerue a good direction for their comfort that are troubled with blaſphemous thoughts. Among other temptations that befall men in Gods Church, the Deuill doth mightly aſſault ſome men by caſting into their minds moſt fearefull motions of blaſphemie againſt God the Father, the Sonne, and the holy Ghoſt, whereby he doth greatly aſtoniſh them, and bring them to deſpaire. Now the ground of their ſtay and comefort hence is this: There bee incident to the ~~minde of man two~~ kinds of euil thoughts: Firſt, ~~ſuch as ariſe~~ from the fleſh, that is, from our cor~~rupt nature, and the very~~ firſt motions of theſe are ſinnes, forbidden in the tenth commaundement. Secondly, there be others that riſe not inwardly from the fleſh, but are from without conueyed into the minde by the Deuill, as theſe moſt horrible blaſphemies againſt God, which would make a godly heart to tremble and quak once to thinke vpon. Now theſe are our heauy croſſes indeed, when we be aſſaulted with thẽ, but the Deuils ſinnes wholly, and become not ours, till wee receiue them by ſome degree of delight or aſſent, as may hence appeare; for Chriſt was tempted to infidelity, couetouſneſſe, and Idolatry, yet his holy heart receiued them not, and ſo they neuer became his ſinnes.

Reaſons why Chriſt was tempted.

The ſecond point to be conſidered in this circumſtance is, wherefore Chriſt was tempted: for it may ſeeme ſtrange that Ieſus Chriſt the ſonne of God, yea very God, equall with the Father, ſhould be tempted. The reaſons therefore that mooued him to be tempted are theſe: 1 Firſt, that he might foile the Deuill at his owne weapon; for the Deuill ouercame the firſt Adam in temptation, therefore Chriſt the ſecond Adam would in temptation ouercome him. 2 Secondly, that in his example he might giue vs direction whereby to know the ſpeciall temptations wherewith the Deuill aſſaults the Church, as alſo how to withſtand and repell the ſame: for this cauſe no doubt hath the ſpirit of God ſo diſtinctly ſet downe Chriſts victory ouer them all: which plainely confuteth the common opinion of ignorant people, who thinke thoſe that are tempted by the Deuill to be moſt vile and wicked men, ſuch as haue forſaken God, and therefore God hath forſaken them; but behold Chriſt Ieſus the moſt holy perſon that euer was, euen the holy one of God, was tempted of Satan, and that exceeding ſore, hauing the ſame troubles and vexations thereby ariſing in his minde, that we haue, inſomuch as the Angels came to miniſter comfort vnto him, verſ. 11. Gods deareſt children therefore may and muſt be tempted, for that is no token of a child of wrath, vnleſſe we will ſay, that Chriſt Ieſus was the child of wrath, which once to thinke were moſt blaſphemous. 3 Thirdly, Chriſt was tempted that he might be a mercifull high prieſt, vnto them that are tempted, Heb. 2. 17. 18. for himſelfe knowing the trouble and anguiſh of temptation, muſt needes in a more

compaſſionate fellow-feeling of their miſeries be readie to helpe and comfort his members when they are tempted.

The third point is, the author of Chriſts temptations, to wit, the deuill: the name Deuil ſignifieth a cauiller, a ſlanderer, and an accuſer: He is an accuſer three waies: he accuſeth God to man; man to God; and man to man. Firſt, God to man; as when he told Eue, they ſhould not die though they did eate of the forbidden fruite, Geneſ. 3. 4. which was as much as if he had ſaid, God doth but deceiue you with that threatning, yee ſhall not die at all. Secondly, he accuſeth men to God, and therefore is called the accuſer [b] of the brethren; and our [c] aduerſarie who goeth about like a roaring lyon: which word aduerſarie ſignifies one that enters plea or ſuite againſt vs: thus he dealt with godly Iob by the Lords owne confeſſion, Iob. 2. 3. Thirdly, he accuſeth man to man, by ingendring vngodly and vncharitable ſurmiſes and ſuſpicions, in one man againſt another, and in cauſing one man to ſlaunder and iniurie another; and for this cauſe is he ſaid to worke in the children of diſobedience, Ephe. 2. 2. and their wiſdome is ſaid to be deuilliſh, who haue bitter enuying and ſtrife in their heart, Iam. 3. 14. 15.

b Apoc.12.9.
c 1.Pet.5.8.
ἀντίδικος.

1 The vſe. From this very name we are to be admoniſhed of two things: Firſt, to beware of falſe accuſing, tale-bearing, and ſlandering; for in theſe practiſes we put on the deuils name, and ſhewe forth the infection of his nature: Paul telling Timothy, [d] that a miniſter muſt not be a nouice, leſt he be puffed vp, and fall into the condemnation of the deuill, vſeth ſuch a word for the deuills name as ſignifieth a falſe accuſer or ſlanderer, to ſhewe vnto vs that ſuch a one is a deuill incarnate. And yet this is the common ſinne of this age, to ſpeake euill, and to backbite, when they ſpeake one of another. 2 Secondly, hereby we are taught to beware, how at any time or any way we diſſwade any one from embracing or obeying true religion: for herein we ſhewe our ſelues to be the children of the deuil. When Elymas the ſorcerer would haue turned away Sergius Paulus from the faith, Paul [e] calls him, full of all ſubtiltie and miſchiefe, the child of the deuill. And this I doe the rather obſerue, becauſe it is an vſuall thing to drawe others backe from the power of godlineſſe; though not in plaine tearmes, yet partly in reproaches, and partly by bad example of life. Now all ſuch had need to looke to their eſtate, for the children of the deuill are like to haue their portion with the deuill and his angels. And thus much for the author of Chriſts temptations; as alſo for the firſt part of Chriſts preparation to this combate.

V. 2. And when he had faſted fortie dayes and fortie nights, he was afterward hungrie.

Here is the ſecond part of Chriſts preparation to this combate, namely his aboad in the wilderneſſe, which is ſet out vnto vs by foure arguments: I. by his faſting fourty dayes and fourty nights, noted in the words of this verſe. II. by his aboad with wilde beaſts, noted by S. Mark. chap. 1. 12. III. by his enduring of temptations within the ſpace of theſe fourty dayes and forty nights, Luk. 4. 2. though in particular thoſe be not ſet downe by any Euangeliſt. IV. by his hunger after forty daies faſting, in the ende of this verſe. Of theſe in order.

Three kinds of faſts.

I. Circumſtance. Chriſts faſting forty daies and forty nights. There be three kinds of faſts, if we take the word in a generall ſenſe: 1 firſt, the daily faſt of temperance and ſobrietie, whereby we vſe Gods creatures for our ſuſtenance with that moderation and abſtinence, that we rather giue leſſe to natures appetite, then that which it deſireth: This Chriſt enioyneth to euery Chriſtian, [f] take heed leaſt at any time your hearts be oppreſſed with ſurfeting and drunkenneſſe. 2 The ſecond kind of faſt is, the religious abſtinence of Gods church from all meates and drinkes for a time, for the furtherance of their praiers, when they humble themſelues vnto God for the preuenting or remoouing of ſome heauie iudgement: thus the Iewes faſted, [g] ſometime for one day, ſometime for three dayes and three nights, Heſter 4. 16. yea ſometime for [h] ſeuen daies together; but then it is like they receiued ſome ſuſtenance in the euening: for ſo Daniell faſted for three weekes of daies, eating no pleaſant things, Daniel. 10. 2. 3. but of neither of theſe muſt Chriſts faſt here be vnderſtood. 3 The third kind of faſt is miraculous, done by the power of God reſtraining the appetite for many dayes togther without meate or drinke, beyond the power of nature: Thus [i] Moſes faſted fortie dayes and forty nights in mount Sina, where he enioyed the preſence of God ſo long. And ſo did Elias [k] faſt in mount Horeb, and our Sauiour Chriſt in this wilderneſſe. We reade indeede that Paul in his conuerſion faſted three dayes and three nights eating nothing, Act. 9. 9. So did the Iewes with Heſter and her maids, Heſt. 4. 16. And experience teacheth that a ſicke man may liue ſeuen or nine dayes together without meat or drink, yea (as ſome learned Phyſitians write) foureteene daies: And Pauls companions ate very little or nothing at all for foureteene dayes: for the words are plaine, [l] eating nothing: And it may be ſo, ſith the like hath beene found true by experience in our age. And this is the longeſt that a man can faſt and liue, to wit, foureteene, or fifteene, or ſeuenteene dayes; for ſo much is recorded of ſome, that after ſo long abſtinence haue liued, though with ſome weakneſſe of nature: but for a man ordinarily, beeing of good conſtitution of bodie, to faſt fourty daies and fourty nights together, it is impoſſible. Indeede it hath beene auouched [m] that a man might faſt monethes, yea a whole yeare together without meate or drinke, and yet liue; but we may perſwade our ſelues it is not true. Now our Sauiour Chriſt, which is yet more, during this faſt felt no faintneſſe nor weakning of his bodie, as we ordinarily doe with a little abſtinence, ſo that his faſt was not ordinarie, but miraculous altogether.

Reaſons why Chriſt faſted fortie daies.

1 The reaſons why Chriſt faſted thus long in the wilderneſſe, may be theſe; Firſt, that he might performe his miniſterie, which now he was to begin, with more reuerence and authoritie: for this cauſe would God haue Moſes to faſt fourty daies and fourty nights before he deliuered the law written in the two tables of ſtone vnto the people of God; and ſo muſt Elias doe, before he did reſtore religion in his dayes:
2 Secondly, that it might appeare he was no whit inferiour to Moſes and Elias: and
3 thirdly, that he might ſhew his full conſent with them. Queſt. Seeing Chriſt did excell Moſes and Elias, why did he not exceed them in the length of his faſt, for threeſcore daies, or a whole yeare? Anſ. He did it not through want of power to haue faſted longer, but becauſe he would not giue occaſion thereupon that any ſhould call into queſtion the truth of his manhood, which might eaſily haue happened, if he had faſted a whole yeare together.

The vſe. Hereon the Church of Rome would build their Lent faſt; but verie fondly; for firſt Chriſt did not thus faſt to giue vs example to followe him herein, but to prepare himſelfe to the great worke of his miniſterie; ſecondly, there is great difference betweene Chriſts faſt and theirs; Chriſt faſted thus but once, and that by the inſtinct of the holy Ghoſt; they keepe their faſt yearely, and that on their owne heads: Chriſts was a true faſt, without all meat or drinke; but theirs is a mocke-faſt, for they eate the fineſt fiſhes, and other dainties, and drinke wines, wherein is as much nouriſhment to the bodie, and as good, as in fleſh; neither can they iuſtly build it on the practiſe of the primitiue Church, for they vſed to faſt (at leaſt in ſome places) but two or three daies before Eaſter: and their Lent faſt was not ordained nor impoſed till many yeares after Chriſt; * ſo as euery one might chooſe whether he would faſt, or not.

II. Circumſtance. S. Marke doth further ſet out Chriſts abode in the wilderneſſe by his beeing and conuerſing with wilde beaſts, Mark. 1. 13. which ſome thinke Chriſt did for this ende, that wilde beaſts might come to him and doe him homage due to their Creator and Gouernour: but this is a deuice of man without likelihood of truth; for howſoeuer Chriſt in himſelfe deſerued all homage and reuerence of all creatures; yet becauſe he abode among wilde beaſts to be abaſed and humbled in the low eſtate of a ſeruant, therefore it is not like he went to receiue homage from them. The true cauſe rather is this: we finde in Scripture that among the Iewes were two ſorts of deſerts; one in part peopled and inhabited, hauing here and there cities and villages; in ſuch a deſert was Iohn Baptiſt borne, and did baptize and preach; that the propheſie of [a] Iſay might be fulfilled, The voice of a crier in the wilderneſſe, make ſtraight the way of the Lord. The other not inhabited at all by men, beeing a place of abode onely for wild beaſts, as Lyons, Beares, Tigers, Woolues, &c. which liued therein continually: Now into ſuch a deſert as this, was our Sauiour Chriſt led by the ſpirit, and made his aboad among ſuch wilde beaſts; which circumſtance is therefore noted, to giue vs to vnderſtand that in this combate, our Sauiour Chriſt had no aide, protection, ſuccour, helpe, or comfort from any man or other creature whatſoeuer; for by nature his companions were ſo farre from beeing an helpe and comfort vnto him, that they would rather ſeeke to deuoure him. Whereby we plainely ſee that the praiſe of victorie in this combat, is proper to Chriſt alone, and not communicable to any creature whatſoeuer.

The vſe. In this eſtate of Chriſt in this wildernes, we may behold the condition of Chriſts militant Church; to wit, that it is in this world as in a wilderneſſe and deſert of wild beaſts; for during their aboad on earth, Gods children liue with men, who in diſpoſition and affection are like Woolues, Beares, Tigers, Lions, and Cockatrices, vntill ſuch time as the Holy Ghoſt by grace ſhall turne their hearts, as we may plainly ſee, Iſay 11. 6. 7. 8. in regard whereof they muſt arme themſelues with patience againſt manifold aſſaults and vexations, comforting their hearts with this conſideration, that Chriſt their head hath vndergone this eſtate before them.

III. Circumſtance. S. Luke [b] obſerueth, that while Chriſt abod in the wilderneſſe, within the ſpace of thoſe fourty daies and fourty nights, he was tempted of the Deuill, before the three great temptations: the words are plaine: And was there fortie daies tempted of the Duill: And when they were ended, then the deuill ſaid, &c. what theſe temptations were either for matter or forme, the holy Ghoſt hath not ſet downe; and yet we may probably thinke they were more milde and gentle temptations then thoſe three which are ſet downe; the deuill making them as it were an entrance to his ſtrongeſt and moſt dangerous temptations; for his manner is, when it makes for his aduantage, not to ſhewe his violence and extremitie at the firſt, but to proceede by degrees, and by little and little to inſinuate himſelfe till he haue gotten his beſt aduantage, and then will he ſhewe the ſtrength of his malice. Thus he dealt with Cain, firſt he prouokes him to anger and malice againſt his brother, becauſe his brothers ſacrifice was accepted, and his reiected; then hauing ſetled hatred in his heart, he neuer leaues till he had cauſed him in his rage to ſlay his brother, and yet he ſtaies not there, but after brings him to deſpaire of Gods mercy, in ſo much as he cried out, [c] my ſinne is greater then I can beare. Thus alſo he dealt with Iudas; firſt he caſt this euill thought into his heart, Iudas betraie thy Maſter, and when he had gotten entertainment for that (for doubtleſſe Iudas would not yeeld to ſo vile a thought at the firſt motion) then he cauſed him to put it in execution, whereupon in fearefull deſpaire he brought him to hang himſelfe. This is the ſubtiltie of the old ſerpent; firſt he conuaies one claw or talant into a mans heart, and then another; after that he gets in his head, and ſo at length windes in all his bodie: Thus he aſſaied to do with Chriſt, and ſo will he continue towards all Gods children. Which ſhould teach vs to labour to be ſtrong in the Lord, and wiſe in his word, that ſo we may ſtand againſt all his aſſaults: Yea, this muſt mooue vs to a ſpeciall watch through the whole courſe of our liues againſt the occaſions of ſinnes, that we may cut off temptations in the beginning, becauſe it is Satans craft, not to ſpit his venom at the firſt, but to ſugar his temptations at the beginning, that no danger may appeare till he haue conueied into vs the bane and poiſon of our ſoules.

after

[c] Gen. 4. 13.

IV. Circumſtance. Chriſts abode in the wilderneſſe is further ſet out by his hunger, in the end of this verſe; He was afterward hungry: that is, after he had faſted fortie dayes and fortie nights by the power of his Godhead, then he began to waxe hungrie. But ſome will ſay, this ſtands not with the glory and maieſtie of the ſonne of God to be hungrie, for his fleſh is meat indeed, and his blood is drinke indeed. Anſwer. Chriſt was content to lay aſide his glorie and maieſtie, and to take vpon him our baſe and fraile nature, becomming like vnto vs in all things ſaue ſinne; now in this his abaſement and humility he had not onely a true ſoule & bodie, but the true faculties thereof, as vnderſtanding, will, memorie, &c. and though his bodie was free from perſonall infirmities, as palſie, gout, dropſie, or ſuch like, yet he was ſubiect to ſuch infirmities as agree to the nature of man, as hunger, thirſt, wearineſſe, &c. Yea this was one part of his humiliation to become not onely man, but man with infirmities: and therefore though he could by the power of his Godhead haue preſerued himſelfe fortie yeares without meate or drinke as well as fortie dayes; yet that he might abaſe himſelfe to the loweſt degree of a ſeruant, he was content to ſuſtaine the infirmitie of his humane nature in beeing an hungred: And that for theſe cauſes:

Ioh. 6. 53.

eaſons why hriſt was hungred.

Firſt, to confirme vnto vs the truth of his manhood; for ſome man might ſay, it was an eaſie thing for him to faſt fortie dayes and fortie nights, ſeeing he had not a true body, but onely the ſhewe and ſhadow of a bodie: therefore to ſhew that he was true man, and had a true naturall bodie as we haue, he was content to ſuſtaine hunger, as we doe, and that truely. Secondly, that thereby he might caſt an obiect before the Deuill, to cauſe him to bee the more eager and violent in his temptations, and to ſhewe his malice in full meaſure againſt him; for by vertue of his office whereto he was now called, Chriſt was to encounter with Satan our common enemie, and therefore giues him not onely the aduantage of the place, but alſo the opportunity of eſtate, that Satan perceiuing his infirmitie of bodily hunger, might thereby be emboldened to giue the more violent aſſault vpon him. And thus much of the ſecond part of Chriſts preparation to his combat.

V. 3. Then came to him the tempter, and ſaid, If thou be the Sonne of God, command that theſe ſtones may be made bread.

Here beginnes this ſtrange combate betweene our Sauiour Chriſt and the deuill, conſiſting of three great conflicts: The firſt whereof is conteined in this verſe and the next, beeing indeed the greateſt of them all, as after ſhall appeare. In this temptation obſerue theſe three things: firſt, Satans preparation to this conflict: ſecondly, the temptation it ſelfe: thirdly, Chriſts anſwer and repulſe made thereunto.

I. Point. The deuills preparation is in theſe words: Then came to him the Tempter, and ſaid: herein obſerue foure things; firſt, the title giuen to Satan the author of this temptation, the Tempter: ſo Paul calleth him, 1. Theſſ. 3. 5. I ſent to know of your faith, leaſt the Tempter had tempted you in any ſort: And Satan is called the Tempter, becauſe his continuall ſtudie and practiſe hath beene and is, by all means to tempt all men; he omits no times, neither ſpares any paines day or night, but by all meanes ſeekes to draw men from God, and to bring them to deſtruction: the conſideration whereof ſhould moue vs to the practiſe of theſe duties:

Satans preparation.

Vſe 1.

Firſt, to be watchfull in all manner of prayers and ſupplications againſt Satan, for the gratious protection of God againſt his aſſaults: If any of vs had our dwelling among Lions, Beares, or Tigers, which were hungerbit, and therefore would ſeeke greedily for their pray, we would be ſure neuer to go out of our dwelling houſes, without preparation for reſcue and defence, whereby we might auoid their danger. Well, though we haue no ſuch wilde beaſts to endanger our bodies; yet our ſoules are daily aſſaulted by a more deadly enemie, euen the Deuill, whoſe continuall ſtudie and practiſe is by temptation to deuoure vs, 1. Pet. 5. 8. and therefore we muſt alwayes be watchfull againſt temptations, putting vpon vs the whole armour of God, that we may be able to ſtand againſt his aſſaults.

2

Secondly, as it is the Deuils practiſe alwaies to tempt, and to ſeeke to draw men from God, ſo becauſe we muſt be vnlike him in all things, we muſt draw neere to God in the practiſe of all good duties, Iam.4.7,8. Reſiſt the Deuill and he will flie: draw neere to God, and he will draw neere to you: the coniunction of theſe two duties ſhewes, that the neerer we come to God, the more we oppoſe our ſelues to Satan: now he that commeth vnto God muſt beleeue, Heb. 11.6. and therefore by faith we [a] exerciſe our ſelues vnto godlineſſe, as Paul exhorteth Timothie: and vnleſſe we thus ſtriue to be vnlike him, we ſhall neuer be able to withſtand his temptations.

[a] 1.Tim.4.7.

3 Thirdly, we muſt hence learne to beware of the practiſe of the ſeducers, in ſeeking to draw backe others from the loue or practiſe of religion, or in hindring the good meanes whereby religion is begunne and furthered in men: for if either by endeauour in action, or by bad example we ſhall doe thus, doubtleſſe we become tempters, and the children of the Deuill: for to tempt and draw to ſinne is the propertie of Satan, and he that in tempting fulfills the luſts of Satan, muſt needes be his child, Ioh.8.44. hence it was, that our Sauiour Chriſt cals Peter Satan, when he went about to diſſwade him from that worke for which his Father had ſanctified him and ſent him into this world, ſaying, Get behind me Satan, Matth. 16.23. And when Elymas ſought to turne away the Deputie from the faith, Paul calls him enemie to all righteouſneſſe, full of all ſubtiltie, and child of the deuill, Act.13.10.

The ſecond thing in this preparation is, the time when Satan began to tempt our Sauiour Chriſt in a more ſtrong and violent manner, noted in this word Then, that is, when Chriſt had now faſted fourtie daies and fourtie nights, and was an hungred: when the Deuill ſaw Chriſt not onely to be alone in the wildernes, but alſo perceiued that he was afflicted with hunger, and ſo the more weake beeing in the low eſtate of a miſerable man, Then he prepares to aſſault Chriſt with a moſt violent temptation.

Satans policie in tempting.

The vſe. This diſcouereth vnto vs the deepe policie of Satan in making choiſe of the fitteſt time for his aſſaults: he will not tempt all men at all times, neither alwaies with the greateſt temptations: but he forecaſts for the time of mans greateſt weakeneſſe, and thereto he reſerueth his ſtrongeſt aſſaults. Now vſually a man is moſt weake, when he is vnder ſome grieuous affliction, either in bodie, minde, or both; or when he lieth in the pangs of death: theſe times doth Satan obſerue, and keepe his ſtrongeſt temptations againſt they come, as doth notably appeare by his dealing with Chriſt, not onely at this time when he was an hungred, but alſo and eſpecially at his paſſion: for the Scripture ſaith, He [b] ſpoiled principalities and powers vpon the croſſe: whereby is apparent, that the Deuill with his greateſt power did then aſſault him, thinking either then or neuer to giue him the foile, when as he did ſuſtaine the wrath of God due vnto the ſinnes of man; and ſo will he handle all the members of Chriſt; in their greateſt extremities they ſhall be ſure to feele Satans deepeſt malice, vnleſſe God reſtraine his power. Which muſt teach vs in the day of peace and ſtrength, to prepare againſt the day of weakeneſſe by any affliction or by death it ſelfe, that ſo we may by Gods grace be able to ſtand againſt the rage of Satan: for then he will be ſure moſt eagerly to ſeeke our ruine, and vnleſſe we prepare before hand, we ſhall neuer be able to ſtand. Now our beſt preparation is to come to heare the words of Chriſt, and to doe the ſame, for then, though the winds blow, the raine fall, the waues beate, and Satan doe his worſt, yet being built vpon the rocke Chriſt Ieſus, we ſhall neuer fall, Matth.7.24,25.

[b] Coloſſ.2. 14,15.

The third thing in this preparation, is the occaſion of Satans onſet at this time, namely, Chriſts bodily hunger, as the knitting of this verſe to the former will plainely ſhewe, for Chriſt beeing an hungred, Satan came vnto him and tempted him. He could not finde in Chriſts moſt holy manhood any blemiſh of ſinne, or inclination thereto whereon to build his temptation; yet ſuch is his malice, that rather then Chriſt ſhould eſcape his hands, he will take occaſion from the infirmitie of his nature in bodily hunger to prouoke and allure him vnto ſinne.

Satan groũds his temptatiõs on ſome thing in vs.

Herein wee learne a ſpeciall point; namely, that the Deuill will haue ſome ground in vs for thoſe temptations wherewith he doth aſſault vs; for as we may ſee by his dealing here with Chriſt, he obſerues not onely the inclination of mans heart and ſoule, but the ſtate and conſtitution of the bodie, that if either bodie or minde will affoard him the leaſt aduantage, thereon he will be ſure to take occaſion to tempt. If we regard the ſeed and roote of ſinne, it is true that euery man hath all ſins in him, but yet through the worke of God, reſtraining corruption in ſome, and renewing grace in others, it comes to paſſe, that each man is more inclined naturally to ſome ſins then to others, which thing Satan doth obſerue moſt diligently; and as an enemie that beſiegeth a citie will goe about it and eſpie where the wall is weakeſt and moſt fit for his entrance, and there will be ſure to giue his ſtrongeſt onſet; and as a man that would ſtrike fire with a flint, will turne it about in his hand, to ſee what part is fitteſt; euen ſo the deuill, he goes about a man, and as it were turnes him to and fro, to ſpie out his weakeneſſe, and to what ſinnes he is moſt inclined, and there he will be ſure to trie him often, and to aſſault him with greateſt violence, Example: If a man be impatient of pouertie, he will ſeeke to carrie him to picking and ſtealing: If a man be prone to couetouſneſſe, he will prouoke him to fraud and oppreſſion: If he be enclined to ambition, Satan will puffe him vp with pride and vaine-glory: nay, which is farre more, Satan will take occaſion from the very conſtitution of a mans body to drawe him vnto ſinne; if choller be predominant in him, Satan will labour to ſtirre him vp to wrath, anger, and fury, and if he can to bloodſhed and murther: If a man be of a ſanguine complexion, Satan will ſeeke to carrie him to immoderate mirth, and to exceſſe in paſtimes, pleaſures, and delight, that if it be poſſible he may drown him therein, whether they be good or bad: If a man be melancholike, Satan will ſometime take occaſion by that humour to ſtrike him with exceeding ſadneſſe, with terrours and feares; and otherwhile to intoxicate his braine with ſtrange fantaſies and deluſions, cauſing a man to thinke himſelfe to be Elias, Iohn Baptiſt, Chriſt, &c. So as it is true which an auncient Diuine ſaith of this humor, that it is the Deuils baite wherewith he ſports himſelfe. See the experience hereof in the [a] lunatike perſon, whoſe diſeaſe was, to be exceedingly troubled certaine times of the moneth, by reaſon of melancholy oppreſſing the braine. Now Satan (as it there appeares) tooke aduantage of that humour to abuſe him moſt fearefully, not onely in making him deafe and dumbe, but alſo cauſing him to caſt himſelfe into fire and water. So that looke how many ſinnes and infirmities we haue in vs, ſo many darts we carrie about vs, wherewith Satan will ſeeke to wound vs. He taketh ground or occaſion from vs of all the aduantage he hath againſt vs; his temptations are like fire and bellowes, and our infirmities and corruptions are wood and fewell.

[a] Matth.17. 15.

The vſe. I. Here then we may behold our miſerable eſtate by reaſon of ſinne; for thereby it comes to paſſe that we beare about vs thoſe darts, wherewith the Deuill doth wound vs. And ſith Satans craft and malice is ſuch to take aduantage from vs, for to worke our woe, we muſt labour the more diligently, to be throughly acquainted with our naturall diſpoſitions and inclinations, yea with our bodily infirmities, for the Deuill will ſearch vs; and when we haue truely found out our owne eſtate, we muſt ſet a ſtrong watch and guard about our owne hearts in reſpect of our infirmities, and ſo ſhall we be the better able to breake the necke of Satans temptations.

The fourth thing in this preparation is, Satans comming to Chriſt; The tempter came vnto him: By which phraſe it is probable, though not certaine, that the Deuill tooke vpon him the forme of ſome creature, and ſo appeared vnto Chriſt; thus he came to Eue in Paradiſe, abuſing the ſerpent to further his aſſault againſt the firſt Adam: And it is like, that in his combat with the ſecond Adam, he came in the ſhape of ſome creature, for otherwiſe he could not properly be ſaid to come and ſpeake. Some indeede thinke that theſe temptations were inward in minde onely, and by viſion; others thinke they were altogether viſible and done actually; but the ſafeſt way is to hold that they
A were in part actually done in bodily manner, and partly ſhewed in viſion. And thus much for the preparation to the firſt conflict.

II. Point. The temptation it ſelfe: conteining matter of great importance, beeing indeed the maine temptation of all, in theſe words: If thou be the Sonne of God commaund that theſe ſtones be made bread. The Deuill beeing well prouided for time and place, and aduantage alſo by Chriſts bodily hunger, doth here aſſault our Sauiour Chriſt like a cunning Sophiſter, and frame his argument Syllogiſtically, thus:

Satans Sophiſtrie.

If thou be the ſonne of God, thou canſt make theſe ſtones bread.
But thou canſt not make theſe ſtones bread:
Therefore thou art not the ſonne of God.

B: The ground of this temptation is this: It is no reaſon that the Sonne of God ſhould ſtarue for want of food; but thou muſt ſtarue vnleſſe thou canſt make theſe ſtones bread: and therefore vnleſſe thou canſt doe ſo, thou maiſt perſwade thy ſelfe it was but a falſe voyce which thou heardeſt from heauen; This is my welbeloued Sonne. &c.

The ſcope and drift of Satan in this temptation ſtands in two things; Firſt he labours to ouerthrow the faith of Chriſt. Secondly, to bring him to a practiſe of vnbeleef. For the firſt, By faith I meane, a gift of grace in Chriſt, whereby as he was man, he beleeued his Fathers words to be true, which ſaid, This is my beloued Sonne in whom I am well pleaſed: wher-
C by we may ſee, what the Deuill aimes at principally in his temptations againſt Gods children; for theſe his aſſaults againſt our Sauiour Chriſt are ſet down for our inſtruction in this behalfe. Satans maine drift then in temptation is to ouerthrow our faith, whereby we beleeue euery part and parcell of Gods word to be true: See this in his tempting of Eue; firſt he labours to weaken her faith in the truth of Gods threatning, which done, he eaſily brought her to actuall diſobedience in eating the forbidden fruite. The ſame courſe he holdeth at this day; firſt he will ſeeke to nuzzell men in ignorance, that he may keepe them in vnbeleefe: if he faile that
D way, then will he endeauour to plunge their ſoules into ſome damnable errour and hereſie; and by one of theſe meanes doth he deſtroy the faith of many; for while a man remaines in ignorance he can haue no faith; and if he miſſe of the truth of God, he wants ground for his faith. Now the reaſon why the Deuill labours ſo much againſt our faith, is becauſe we cannot truly relie vpon Gods mercie, nor depend vpon his prouidence, nor yeild any acceptable obedience to his commandements, vnles we beleeue his word.

Satans ſeekes the ruine of our faith.

More particularaly we are to obſerue that ſpeciall branch of Gods word which the Deuill would haue Chriſt not to beleeue; euen that voice of his Father, which a little before Chriſt heard from heauen at his baptiſme; This is my welbeloued Sonne in whome I am well plea-

Satan ſeekes to depriue vs of aſſurance of adoption.

ſed: And this hath the holy Ghoſt recorded in great wiſedome and mercie to Gods Church; for hereby doth appeare a maine drift of Sathan againſt Chriſts members in his temptations, namely, to make them doubt of their adoption, and to deſtroy this perſwaſion in them, that they are the ſonnes and daughters of God: for if herein he ſpared not the head, doubtleſſe the members ſhall not eſcape his hands. This appeares by his vſuall aſſault againſt them, ſpecially when God ſhal lay vpon them any lingring croſſe or affliction, either in minde, in bodie, or in goods; then the Deuill will ſuggeſt this into their minds, If thou wereſt the child of God, he would neuer lay his hand vpon thee ſo long a time, and in ſo grieuous manner; neuer was any child of God in this caſe that thou art in: But God laies his hand thus heauie on thee; and therefore thou maiſt perſwade thy ſelfe that thou art not the child of God.

The vſe. The conſideration hereof muſt mooue vs aboue all things to labour for aſſurance of our adoption, euen to haue our conſciences aſſured out of Gods word, that we are the ſonnes and daughters of God in Chriſt. The Deuills drift is to ouerthrow this perſwaſion in vs, and therfore our endeauour muſt be, to confirme and ſettle our hearts herein. This is the charge of the holy Ghoſt vpon euery child of God, 2. Pet. 1. 10. Giue all diligence to make your calling and election ſure, that is, get the aſſurance thereof ſealed vp in your hearts, by the ſauing graces of Gods ſpirit, ioyning vertue with your faith, and with your vertue knowledge, with your knowledge temperance, and with temperance patience, and with patience godlineſſe, and with godlineſſe brotherly kindneſſe, and with brotherly kindneſſe loue, v. 5, 6, 7. And indeede if we would haue true peace and comfort in euery eſtate, whether aduerſitie or proſperitie, let vs labour for the knowledge of our adoption. This will be our ioy in want, in wealth, in bondage, in freedome, in ſickneſſe, in health, in life, and in death. Herein is that ioy of Chriſt which neuer can be taken from vs, Ioh. 16. 22. We cannot doe the Deuill a greater pleaſure, then to neglect the getting of this aſſurance; for hereupon he will take occaſion (ſpecially in time of diſtreſſe) fearefully and daungerouſly to ſeeke to breake the necke of our ſoules; he cares not much otherwaies what men profeſſe, and what knowledge and other common gifts of the ſpirit they haue, ſo that they want this bleſſed aſſurance: and therefore with the Apoſtle Paul, we muſt account all other things to be but droſſe and dung in reſpect of this excellent knowledge of Chriſt, to be our Sauiour and Redeemer. True it is, that vnto many this exhortation will ſeeme needeleſſe; for ignorant perſons that haue nothing in them but meere preſumption, will bragge moſt of this perſwaſion; but they that haue felt the ſmart of this temptation, doe know what it is that will ſtand vs in ſtead, euen that aſſurance onely which is rightly founded vpon the word of God: and therefore forſaking the vaine conceits of our ignorance, let vs with all diligence vnfainedly endeauour to get this reſolution; if we cannot of our ſelues attaine vnto it, we muſt vſe the direction and helpe of Gods faithfull Miniſters: for howſoeuer it pleaſeth ſome to thinke otherwiſe, yet this is the vndoubted truth of God, that a man in this life may ordinarily be reſolued and aſſured of his ſaluation.

Phil.3.8.

Satan would bring Chriſt to a practiſe of vnbeleef.

The ſecond thing which the Deuill aimed at in this temptation, was to bring Chriſt to a practiſe of vnbeleefe, namely in want of bread to turne ſtones into bread, for the preſent ſatisfying of his hunger; for the Deuill would needs perſwade our Sauiour Chriſt that he muſt haue bread to ſaue his life, and therefore in the want of bread would haue brought him to this diſtruſtfull courſe, to turne ſtones into bread.

And as the Deuill here deales with Chriſt, ſo he aſſaies to doe with all his members; as he labours to worke vnbeleefe in their hearts, ſo he ſeekes to bring them to the practiſe of vnbeleefe in their liues. See the truth hereof in the courſe of the world; Is a man oppreſſed with outward want and pouertie? the Deuill will tell him, he muſt needes liue, and therefore will perſwade him to robbe and ſteale and to filch for his liuing. If a man be ſicke, and want preſent helpe in lawfull meanes, or els be afflicted ſomewhat extraordinarily, then will the Deuill mooue him to ſeeke to Wizards and Witches, ſuggeſting this into him by one meanes or other, that they can doe more good in ſuch a caſe then all the Phyſitians in the world. This is a moſt vile practiſe of vnbeleefe, and yet too common in the world, wherein men for the remouall of ſome outward euill, will not ſticke to hazard the loſſe of their ſoules. We therefore muſt labour to be acquainted with theſe wiles of Satan, and by the practiſe of faith in our liues, labour to expreſſe the power of faith in our hearts, as in all manner of godly conuerſation, ſo eſpecially in vſing onely lawfull meanes for our releefe in the time of miſerie and diſtreſſe.

But to come more particularly to the words of this temptation; If thou be the Sonne of God command theſe ſtones, &c. It may be demanded why the Deuill ſhould make choiſe of this queſtion wherewith to tempt our Sauiour Chriſt, rather then any other? Anſ. The reaſons hereof may be theſe: Firſt, he knew well, that if Chriſt were the true and proper ſonne of God, then he muſt needs be the true Meſſias; and if he were that annointed of God, then alſo he it was that muſt accompliſh that old and auncient promiſe made to our firſt Parents [a] for the bruiſing of the ſerpents head. This was the thing that of all other, the Deuill was moſt afraid of, and could not endure to heare; and therefore by moouing this queſtion he intends to infringe, yea and (if he could) quite ouerthrowe our Sauiour Chriſt in the right of this title. Secondly, The Deuill ſince his fall, beares an vnſpeakeable deadly hatred againſt God himſelfe, and according to his nature, as occaſion ſerues, he cannot but ſhew the ſame. Now in this queſtion he doth notable bewray his malice and ſpite againſt God; for, whereas in Chriſts baptiſme a little before, God had proclaimed him to be his beloued ſonne in whom he was well pleaſed, Hereby the Deuill goes about to prooue the cleane contrary, and ſo as much as in him lieth, ſeekes to make God a lyer; which, becauſe it fitted his nature ſo well, he makes choiſe of at this time.

The vſe. I. In this practiſe of the deuill we may learne what to iudge of ſundry falſe teachers; for as well in the primitiue Church as alſo ſince that time, there haue beene ſundry men of great fame for wiſedome and learning, as Ebion, Cerinthus, Carpocrates, Samoſatenus, and Arrius, who haue all laboured ſeuerally to prooue, that Ieſus Chriſt the Sonne of Marie was not indeede the Sonne of God, verie God but onely a worthie Prophet. Now of them we may ſafely think with the church of God in former times, that they were falſe Prophets, heretikes, and ſeducers, yea the profeſſed enemies of Chriſt, guided by the ſpirit of Satan, for herein they doe directly tread in his ſteps.

II. In this his practiſe we may obſerue the malicious and contradicting ſpirit of Satan againſt God himſelfe, for here he labours to conclude that Chriſt was not the Sonne of God, notwithſtanding God himſelfe had a little before auouched that he was. And this is his continued practiſe vnto this day; for where God in his Church pronounceth grace, mercie and loue, there on the contrary will the deuill pronounce a curſe, hatred and damnation. Againe, where God denounceth his curſe & iudgement, there will the deuill ſeeke to perſwade a conceit of grace and fauour. If a man be the child of God, and haue receiued the ſeale of grace for his aſſurance thereof; the Deuill will ſeeke to weaken this aſſurance, and perſwade him if he can that he is the child of wrath. And if a man be void of grace, and ſo indeed the child of the Deuill, then will Satan ſuggeſt into his heart preſumptuous thoughts, and make him thinke he is the child of God; ſo that euery way, he ſhewes himſelfe contrarie to God.

Yet marke the Deuils words a little further; If thou be the ſonne of of God, commaund theſe ſtones, &c. that is, doe but ſay the word, and bid theſe ſtones to become bread, and it will be done. And here in the very propounding of this temptation we may obſerue the deepe policie of Satan; for in theſe few words (the better to effect his purpoſe) he toucheth three moſt true and notable points in Diuinitie: Firſt, that he that is the Sonne of God by nature, is alſo true and very God: for here he aſcribeth vnto the Son of god the true prerogatiue of god himſelfe; a point wherein the Phariſies withſtood our Sauiour Chriſt, and which many heretikes ſince haue denied. Secondly, that the true God can without paine or labour, yea without all meanes at his very becke doe whatſoeuer he will; and by his word onely make ſtones become bread. Thirdly, that to worke a miracle of himſelfe, is a propertie and prerogatiue of him alone that is true God; as to turne ſtones into bread in this place. Now when the Deuill acknowledgeth all this, a man would not think that herein he ſhould intend any hurt to Chriſt or to his Church: but in very truth his drift herein is, to deſtroy the faith of Chriſt in that word of his Father which ſpake from heauen, & to ouerthrow the foundation of the Church, by proouing that Ieſus Chriſt the ſonne of Marie, was not true God.

o.4.15.

Satan ſpeaks ſome truth to ouerthrow an other truth thereby.

Here then obſerue a tricke of the Deuills cunning; when he ſpeakes a truth, he doth it not to confirme the ſame as louing it, but indeed his meaning is to ouerthrow the truth thereby: which muſt admoniſh vs, that when Satan ſhall any way aſſault vs in temptation, we neuer giue credit vnto him, no not then when he ſpeaketh the truth, becauſe therein his purpoſe is to deceiue vs, and to deſtroy the truth: hence it was that Chriſt forbad the [a] vncleane ſpirits to teſtifie of him, though they acknowledge him to be the holy one of God: hence alſo Paul was grieued at the teſtimony of the foule ſpirit that was in the maide, though in it ſelfe a moſt worthie truth, to wit, [b] that they were the ſeruants of the moſt high God, which ſhewed vnto men the way of ſaluation.

Further, in comparing our Euangeliſt Matthewe with S. Luke, there may ſeeme ſome difference betweene them in propounding this temptation, for in Matthew the words are thus, command theſe ſtones, &c. And in Luke [c] thus, command this ſtone. But they are reconciled thus; Matthew ſets downe this temptation as the Deuill firſt propounded it: and S. Luke ſhewes how the Deuill vrged it: for firſt the deuill comes to Chriſt and bids him, if he be the ſonne of God, command all the ſtones which he ſaw round about him to be made bread, this S. Matthew ſets downe: or if that ſeemed too much, command one ſtone to be made bread, and it ſhould ſuffice; and this S. Luke noteth.

The vſe. By this comparing of the Euangeliſts we may obſerue; that when the Deuill hath once begun to tempt a man, he will not eaſily leaue off, but will ſet an edge vpon it, and enforce and vrge it by all the meanes he can, that if it be poſſible it may preuaile. Which ſhould teach vs on the other ſide, to be moſt earneſt and reſolute in reſiſting Satans temptations: he will take ſmall aduantage before he leaue; we therefore muſt not [d] giue place, nor yeeld one iot vnto him: [e] Reſiſt the Deuill and he will flie. This muſt euery member of the Church doe: the Miniſter by ſound and through-applying of euery part of Gods truth to the heart, whereby it may be armed againſt the enemie; and the people by faithfull embracing and obeying of the ſame, as alſo by earneſt praier vnto God for the aſſiſtance of his grace in all aſſaults.

v. 4. But he anſwering, ſaid, It is written, [*] Man ſhall not liue by bread onely, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

[*] Deut.8.3.

Theſe words containe Chriſts gratious anſwer, whereby he repelled the Deuills temptations: and in it we may obſerue three points: Firſt, that Chriſt did anſwer: Secondly, whence he borrowed his anſwer: Thirdly, the very words of his anſwer.

For the firſt, that Chriſt did anſwer, is noted by the holy Ghoſt in plaine words, And Ieſus anſwering, ſaid; Whereby he would giue vs to vnderſtand, that Chriſt Ieſus our Sauiour beeing in the wilderneſſe, was not onely willing and ready to encounter with Satan, but alſo able to withſtand him, yea and to vanquiſh Satan without receiuing any ſoile at his hands. Which is a point of ſingular comfort to Gods Church and children; for was Chriſt Ieſus able in this lowe and baſe eſtate of a ſeruant, beeing diſaduantaged alſo by a deſert place, and bodily hunger, was he then (I ſay) able to encounter with Sathan, and to ouercome him in his moſt violent and ſubtile aſſaults? Then how much more is he now able euen in all his members to giue Satan the foile, hauing ſpoyled him in his death? ſeeing he is aduanced to the throne of maieſtie and glorie, and ſet at the right hand of his father, hauing a name aboue all names giuen vnto him, at which euery knee ſhall bow, both of things in heauen, and in earth, and vnder the earth? We therefore may now ſay with that loud voice; [f] Now is ſaluation in heauen, and ſtrength, and power, and the kingdome of our God, and the power of his Chriſt: for the accuſer of the brethren is caſt downe.

[f] Reu.12.10.

The second point here noted is, whence Chriſt borroweth his anſwer, namely, from the Scriptures; It is written: It had beene an eaſie thing for Chriſt beeing the ſonne of God, to haue confounded the Tempter with the breath of his mouth, or to haue commanded innumerable legions of holy angels to haue driuen him away; but he betakes himſelfe to the written word for his defence. And this he did eſpecially for our inſtruction; namely, that we might know, that the writen word of God, rightly welded by the hand of faith, is the moſt ſufficient weapon for the repelling of Satan and the vanquiſhing him in all his temptations; hence Paul calleth it [g] the ſword of the ſpirit, becauſe it ſerues not onely for our defence, but alſo to wound Satan, and to put him to flight.

The written word our beſt weapon againſt Satan.

[g] Eph.6.17.

The vſe. I. This fact of Chriſt doth diſcouer and condemne the damnable practiſe of the Church of Rome, who locke vp the word of God from their people in an vnknowne tongue, and commend vnto them for their defence againſt ſpirituall enemies other deuices of their owne, as holy water, croſſing, croſſes, &c. which they highly commend as meanes of ſpeciall ſtrength and force to vanquiſh the Deuill; when as indeede the word of God is the onely true and truſtie weapon, whereof while they depriue their people, they ſende them foorth naked and vnarmed to encounter with Sathan.

Secondly, here alſo behold the miſerable eſtate of all thoſe that either through couetouſneſſe or any other profaneneſſe are drawne to neglect or contemne the written word of God: their caſe is moſt fearefull; for they caſt away thoſe weapons whereby they ſhould defend themſelues againſt the Deuill, and quench all his fierie darts, and ſo betray their owne ſoules into his hands: And doubtleſſe all contemners and neglecters of the word are guilty of their owne damnation, becauſe God hath giuen vs his word for our defence, and for the confounding of Satan, ſo as without guilt of wilfull murther not of our bodies, but of our ſoules, we cannot neglect this heauenly weapon.

Thirdly, hereby we may ſee the cauſe why ſin ſo much abounds in all eſtates euery where, namely, want of loue vnto, and knowledge in the word of God, whereupon the moſt are ignorāt of it, or elſe know not how to handle this ſpititual weapon, whereby Satan is reſiſted and foiled: Hoſe. 4. 2. The Lord complaineth of lying, ſwearing, killing, ſtealing, and whoring, yea of blood touching blood; and the cauſe is laid downe in the firſt verſe, There is no knowledge of God in the land: This Dauid knew well, and therefore ſaid, He hid Gods ſayings in his heart, that he might not ſinne againſt him. Pſal. 119. 11. For as Sauls ſpeare ſtood in readineſſe at his head euen when he ſlept, ſo ſhould Gods word, which is the ſword of the ſpirit, be euer in our hearts, as it were ready drawne, that to what ſinne ſoeuer the Deuill allures vs, we may be able to ſay for our defence, It is written: through want hereof it comes to paſſe, that the Deuill at his pleaſure leads men captiues into all impieties.

1.Sam.26.7.

Laſtly, this excellent vſe of the word vnderſtood, beleeued, and obeyed, muſt mooue all ignorant perſons to labour for knowledge herein, & with all endeuor after growth in knowledge, by holy obedience, to ſhew forth their faith: If we had an enemie that had ſworne our death & vowed to ſee our blood, how carefull would we be, for our naturall life, both to get vs weapons, and alſo ſome knowledge to vſe the ſame, not only for our defence, but alſo for the annoyance of our deadly foe? Oh then how carefull ſhould we be for the ſafetie of our ſoules to put vpon vs the whole armour of God, and to learne to vſe aright this ſword of the ſpirit, that when we meete with Satan our irreconcilable enemie, in the field of temptation: which is this miſerable world, we may be able both to award his blowes, and to wound his head! It is lamentable to ſee how ignorant people wil bleſſe themſelues in their ignorance, and ſay they defie the Deuill, and ſpit at him in defiance, and yet they know not how they are intangled in his ſnares of their owne ſinnes; he little regards ſuch defiance ſo long as their ſoules lie naked and bare before his daily darts: let two men meete that be at enmity, the one armed, the other naked, what will it auaile for the naked man to defie his enemy with bigge words, while in the mean time his armed enemy takes away his life? Lo, Satan is this ſtrong man armed, & ignorant perſons are poore naked caitiffes, they defie the deuill, and ſpit at him with their mouth, but in the meane time the deuill wounds their ſoules vnto death. They will ſay they feele no ſuch wounds, and therefore they feare him not: but they muſt know, that the leſſe they feele, the more cauſe they haue to feare; for Satans wounds are moſt deadly when they are leaſt felt.

The third point is Chriſts Anſwer it ſelfe: Man ſhall not liue by bread onely, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God: This anſwer is borrowed from Deuteron. 8. 3. And it is that leſſon which Moſes ſought to teach the children of Iſrael after the Lord had fed them with food from heauen in that barren wilderneſſe where they were afflicted with hunger. The words are ſomething hard, and therefore I will ſhewe the meaning of them. Man ſhall not liue; that is, ſhall not preſerue his temporall life in this world; for of eternall life, neither Moſes nor Chriſt did intend to ſpeake. By bread onely, that is onely by ſuch ordinarie meanes as food and raiment, ſleepe, phyſicke, &c. which God hath appointed in his prouidence for the ordinarie preſeruation of naturall life. But by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God: This title word betokens diuers things in Scripture: I. The ſubſtantiall word of God, the ſecond perſon in Trinity, Ioh. 1. 1. In the beginning was the word, and the word was god. II. It is vſually taken for the written word conteined in the bookes of the old and new Teſtament, 1. Pet. 1. 25. Thirdly, it is ſometime taken for Gods will and decree, and it is called his good pleaſure: ſo Heb. 1. 2. Chriſt ſuſtaineth all things by the word of his power, that is, according to his will and decree, by his powerfull appointment: and by his word were al things made in the beginning, and hereby haue they beene preſerued euer ſince; that is that word that melteth the Ice, Pſal. 147. 18. And in the laſt ſence muſt we vnderſtand word in this place; meaning that man doth not preſerue this naturall life by ordinarie meanes onely, but withall, by Gods good pleaſure, will and decree ſanctifying the meanes for his good. Note further that it is ſaid by euery word, and therein lieth the ſubſtance of this ſentence; for the vnderſtanding whereof we muſt know, that this powerfull and working word of God may A be diſtinguiſhed according to the matter whereabout it is occupied: Thus, ſometime God will haue men to liue by bread the ordinarie food of naturall life; and this is his ordinarie word. Sometime his will and appointment is that man ſhall liue by extraordinarie meanes; as the Iſraelites did in the wilderneſſe while they liued vpon Manna; and this is his extraordinarie word: Otherwhiles he ordaines that man ſhall liue without all meanes, as Moſes did in Mount Sinai, Elias in Mount Horeb, and our Sauiour Chriſt in this willderneſſe; for the ſpace of fourty dayes and fourty nights together: And laſtly he ordaines ſometime, that man ſhall liue againſt meanes and contrary to the courſe of nature; B Thus Daniell liued in the Lyons denne, and the three children in the fiery furnace; both which laſt may be called Gods miraculous word: So that we ſee good reaſon of this clauſe euery: for hereby we learne, that man doth not preſerue his life onely by ordinarie meanes ordained of God; but likewiſe by euerie word proceeding out of the mouth of God, that is, by euery appointment and decree of God, whether extraordinarie, aboue the vſuall meanes, or miraculous without all meanes, or againſt the courſe of nature: this we muſt labour to knowe and be perſwaded of. Nature teacheth that man liueth by Gods bleſſing and appointment in ordinarie meanes: But nature knowes not this, that God preſerueth mans life by his word, C aboue meanes, without meanes, yea and againſt meanes. The beleeuing heart will hardly yeeld to this, which Moſes would teach the Iſraelites; and therefore we muſt take the more paines to be reſolued of it. If any ſhall thinke hereupon, that a man may liue by the written word without meate and drinke, he is deceiued; for Chriſt meaneth not that euery word that God hath ſpoken ſhall preſerue naturall life, but that whatſoeuer way he hath appointed whereby man ſhall liue, whether by ordinarie, or extraordinarie meanes, whether without meanes, or againſt meanes, the ſame ſhall be effectuall for mans preſeruation: Thus much for the meaning.

Gods powerfull word diſtinguiſhed.

The applying of this teſtimony to the D Deuills temptation, is thus to be conceiued: the Deuills temptation was this, If thou be the ſonne of God, then commaund theſe ſtones to be made bread: But thou canſt not make theſe ſtones to become bread: Therefore thou art not the ſon of God. To this Chriſt anſwers, by denying the propoſition or firſt part of this argument, the ground whereof was this (which the Deuill tooke for graunted) that when a man is hungry he muſt needes haue bread, or elſe he cannot liue: and this our Sauiour Chriſt doth flatly deny, ſaying; Man liueth not by bread onely, but by euery word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God: And this application is moſt excellent, teaching vs that thing, for the learning whereof the Iſraelites were trained vp fourty yeares in the wilderneſſe, and fedde with Manna from

heauen,

heauen, and with water out of the rocke; to wit, that God by his word can preſerue the life of man without ordinarie meanes euen what way ſoeuer he appointeth for that purpoſe; and if we ſhould ſpend our liues in learning hereof, no doubt the time were not miſpent.

The vſe. Firſt, hereby we are taught to conſider aright of all creatures whereby our life is preſerued, as meate, drinke, apparell, &c, and that is thus, beſides the bodily ſubſtance of the creature, we muſt labour to ſee a further matter, euen the bleſſing of God in the creature proceeding from his word, decree and appointment, whereby it is made fit and able to yeeld ſuſtenance and nouriſhment. The Scripture calleth this the [a] Staffe of bread, and ſo it is indeede, for as an aged and impotent man falleth to the ground if his ſtaffe be plucked from him, ſo the beſt creature that ſerues for our vſe, without Gods bleſſing becomes fruiteleſſe vnto vs. This, reaſon may teach vs, for how ſhould that thing of it ſelfe preſerue and further life, which in it ſelfe is void of life? And how ſhould that giue heat and warmneſſe to our bodies, which of it ſelfe is void of heate? let vs therefore confeſſe that it is not the ſubſtance of foode that doth refreſh vs, not the matter of our raiment that keepes vs warme, but the bleſſing of him that by his word hath ordained them for theſe ends, if he withdrawe his bleſſing, the ſtaffe and [b] ſtay is gone; men may eate (as Haggai [c] ſaith) but they ſhall not haue enough; drinke, and yet not be filled; they may cloth themſelues, and not be warme; It is Gods bleſſing that makes Gods creatures doe vs good: how elſe ſhould it come to paſſe, that the poore mans child which is barely clad, and homely fed, ſhould be as healthfull, comely, and well liking, as the child of a Prince, but that God bleſſeth aſwell the homely food of the poore, as the daintie fare of the richeſt.

[a] Leu.26.26.

[c] Hag.1.6.

Secondly, hereby we muſt learne Sobrietie and Temperance, in the vſe of all Gods creatures: when we vſe our food and raiment it is Gods bleſſing alone that makes them doe vs good, the Lord as it were ſtands by vs to put his bleſſing vpon euery morſell that we eat, and euery draught that we drinke, and vpon our raiment when we put it on; how then dare we abuſe them in ſurfeting and drunkenneſſe, in pride and wantonneſſe? may we not feare in ſo doing that while the meate or drinke is in our mouthes, the wrath of God will fall vpon vs; as Pſal. 78. 30. 31.

Thirdly, hence we muſt learne to ſanctifie Gods creatures as food and raiment which we vſe for our comfort, by inuocation on the name of God: for we doe not liue by the creatures ſimply, but by the word and appointment of God bleſſing them vnto vs; and therefore we muſt not be like bruite beaſts which receiue Gods bleſſings, but yet neuer looke vp to heauen from whence they come; or like to the ſwin that gathereth vp the maſt, not looking vp to the tree from which it falleth.

Fourthly, hereby we ſee the common errour of the world, who place the ſtaffe and ſtay of their life in the aboundance of outward bleſſings, whereupon they labour to inrich themſelues herwith as much as poſſibly they cã; theſe men doe little conſider that mans life ſtandeth not in aboundance, neither doth he liue by bread, but by the bleſſing of God, which is and may be as well vpon a little, as vpon the treaſures of a kingdome. This was the practiſe of the rich foole, [a] who ſpake peace to his ſoule for eaſe and paſtime, becauſe he had much goods laid vp for many yeares. But ſith Chriſt teacheth vs, that man liueth not by bread onely, it muſt needs be a flat note of vnbeleefe, to carke and care immoderately for the things of this life.

[a] Luk.12.19.

Fiftly, hereby we are alſo taught, not to entangle our ſelues ouermuch with the cares of this world, nor to ſuffer our hearts to be oppreſſed with deſire of food, raiment, lands or liuing: becauſe our life and welfare conſiſteth not in theſe things, but in the bleſſing of God on whatſoeuer he ſends be it more or leſſe: the gripple minde after much is a deadly [b] ſnare, wherewith many a ſoule is intangled to perdition and deſtruction; this choakes the heart in ſuch ſort as the ſeede of grace can take no roote, nor bring foorth any ſauing fruite: this made Paul to lay a charge vpon Timothie for rich men, that they ſhould truſt in the liuing God, and not in vncertaine riches, 1. Tim. 6. 17. Let vs therefore be content with food and raiment, and rather ſeeke the kingdome of God and his righteouſneſſe, and then all thoſe things whereof we ſtand in neede ſhall be giuen vnto vs in the moderate vſe of lawfull meanes. Indeede the worldlings excuſe is, that food and raiment is his liuing, which he muſt needs looke vnto: but we muſt ſtill remember, that our life ſtandeth not in theſe things; for when death comes, theſe cannot ſaue vs from the graue: it is Gods bleſſing by which we liue, he can preſerue vs aboue meanes; nay without means, and againſt means, and therefore we muſt neuer giue place to ſuch thoughts and cares as ſhew diſtruſt in God.

[b] 1.Tim.6.9.

Sixtly, hence we muſt learne contentation and patience in extreame pouertie and in all other miſeries of this life; If God ſhould deale with vs as he did with his ſeruant Iob: if for our religion he ſhould bring vpon vs the loſſe of goods, of children, of health, and all that we haue, with baniſhment alſo from our friends and country, yet then muſt we labour to ſhew the fruite of patience, and not ſuffer our hearts to be ſwallowed vp of ouermuch griefe: becauſe our life ſtands by Gods word, and not in any of theſe things: indeede, if in theſe outward miſeries a man ſhould be depriued of the comfort of Gods prouidence, then might he ſorrowe without meaſure: but ſeeing all ſuch as feare God, doe ſtill enioy the bleſſing of God in their greateſt calamities (for Gods bleſſing is not locked vp in bread, but aboue meanes without meanes and againſt meanes can he manifeſt his power and goodneſſe in their preſeruation) therefore in the extremitie of euill muſt we comfort our ſelues in the Lord our God, as [c] Dauid did in great ſorrow, hauing loſt his two wiues, and beeing in danger to be ſtoned of his owne followers: and learne to ſay with Iob, [d] Though the Lord kill me, yet will I truſt in him. What if the Lord ſhould ſend a famine among vs, as he may iuſtly doe for the ſinnes of this land? ſhould we then deſpaire, or vſe vnlawfull meanes for our releefe? nay then we muſt learne Moſes leſſon, that man liueth not by bread only, and labour to depend on him that can increaſe [e] the oile in the poore widows cruiſe, & the meale in the barrell, till plenty come.

out

[c] 1.Sam.30.6.
[e] 1.king.17.14.

Seauenthly, this muſt teach vs moderation of our affections in all eſtates that doe befall vs; in health and plenty we muſt not be puffed vp with pride; in weakeneſſe and in want we muſt not be oppreſſed with ſorrow; for mans life ſtandeth not in theſe things, neither can we hereby know loue or hatred; he that is in want may haue as good a portion in Gods bleſſing as the wealthieſt in the world, herein hungry [f] Lazarus full of ſores, went far beyond the rich glutton in all his riot.

[f] Luk.16.19.20.

Laſtly, ſeeing our life depends vpon Gods word, we muſt hereby learne to acknowledge Gods prouidence, and to relie thereupon in all eſtates. In the daies of peace, wherein (as [g] Iob ſpeaketh of himſelfe) men waſh their paths in butter, and haue the rockes to power them out riuers of oile, men will ſoone be brought to ſay ſo much; but we muſt labour to ſee and feele the bleſſing of his prouidence euen then when we tread (as it were) the winepreſſe of his wrath: as well in ſickeneſſe as in health: in want as in plenty; in the depth of diſtreſſe as in the height of all proſperity: this is the counſell of the holy Ghoſt, [h] rolle thy workes vpon the Lord. Caſt all your care vpon him, for he careth for you, 1.Pet.5.7. It is a brutiſh property onely to looke vpon the creatures whereon they feed, and therefore our eies and our hearts muſt be fixed on him who feedeth the young rauens that crie vnto him; and beareth vp all things by his mighty word: we muſt not content our ſelues with a bare ſpeculation hereof in our heads, but labour to feele the comfort of it in our hearts, and to expreſſe the power of it in our liues. And thus much for the firſt conflict.

* Deut.6.16.

Theſe words containe the ſecond conflict of Satan with our Sauiour Chriſt: for howſoeuer by Saint Luke this is put in the third place, which Matthew here placeth in the ſecond, yet this breedeth no difference between the Euangeliſts, who tie not themſelues to a ſtrict obſeruation of time, place, and order how euery thing was done which they relate; as in the ſtory of this conflict, Saint Luke reſpects the ſubſtance of it onely, but S. Matthew obſerues the order of it alſo. Now in this ſecond conflict we are to obſerue three points: I. Satans preparation thereto: II. The aſſault it ſelfe: III. Chriſts anſwer and repulſe thereof.

I. Point. Satans preparation to this conflict is contained in the 5. verſe: wherein we are to note, both the time and the parts thereof: The time, in the firſt word Then: that is, ſo ſoone as the Deuill had receiued a foile of Chriſt in his firſt aſſault, preſently he addreſſeth himſelfe vnto a ſecond.

Herein behold, the exceeding malice of Satan, in that the end of one temptation with him, is but the beginning of another; he ceaſeth not with one aſſault, but as he is a deadly foe to the Church of God, ſo he ſhewes himſelfe by his continuall ſeeking whome he may deuoure; he will neuer make truice with any child of God, vpon any condition leſſe then the hazard of his ſoule; neither is he weary of his worke, but day and night is either plotting or performing ſome miſchieuous attempt againſt the child of God. The conſideration whereof muſt teach vs, vpon our victorie and conqueſt ouer one temptation, preſently to prepare for a new. This was the ſtate of the ſonne of God our head, and we his members may not looke for better; our life in this vale of teares is a continuall warfare againſt the enemies of our ſoules; we muſt not therefore here looke for reſt and eaſe, but euer keepe watch and ward againſt their aſſaults. If this dutie were well learned and put in practiſe, it would preuent much impatience, and become the ground of much peace in our ſoules: mans nature cannot brook the doubling and renuing of ſorrowes; when one euill lights in the necke of another, oh then he thinketh neuer any was in his caſe; but looke vnto Ieſus the author and finiſher of thy faith, he endured no leſſe; and herein he is an example that thou ſhouldeſt follow his ſteps. If therefore thou wilt be his diſciple, prepare to take vp thy croſſe [a] euery day and follow him.

a Luk 9.23.

The parts of Satans preparation are two; Firſt, he conuaies Chriſt from the wilderneſſe to Ieruſalem; Secondly, he placeth him on a pinnacle of the temple. For the firſt, in theſe words, The deuill tooke him vp into the holy city, that is, into Ieruſalem, as Luke expoundeth it, chap. 4. 9. This the Deuill might doe three waies; In viſion; or leading him vp the ordinary way; or carrying him through the aire. I. It might be in viſion; for that was vſuall with the Prophets: ſo [b] Ieremie went to the riuer Perath; and Ezekiel was carried from Meſopotamia to [c] Ieruſalem: but Chriſt was not thus tranſported; for then Satans perſwaſion vnto Chriſt, To caſt himſelfe downe, could haue beene no temptation. II. Chriſt might be led of the Deuill the ordinary way from the wilderneſſe to Ieruſalem, ſo much the words will beare: but (as I take it) he went not ſo: for if Chriſt were led by the Deuill, it was either willingly of his owne accord, or by the Deuils perſwaſion; but of his owne accord he would not goe; for he came into the wilderneſſe to be tempted, which as yet was not fully accompliſhed, and therefore would not willingly depart thence before that worke for which he came were ended. Againe, he would not depart thence vpon the Deuills perſwaſion; for Chriſt would neuer gratifie the Deuill ſo much, as to doe ought himſelfe, which the Deuill would haue him, as in all his temptations doth appeare; for this is a rule to be obſerued, we muſt not doe any thing which the Deuill perſwades vs to in his temptations, though in it ſelfe the thing be lawfull and good. III. The deuill might carry the body of our Sauiour Chriſt thorow the aire, by his power through Gods permiſſion. This is the moſt likely way, & ſo thought to be of the beſt diuines: and the words following confirme it much, for it is ſaid, the Deuill ſet him on a pinnacle of the Temple: Now if he had power to ſet him there, why might he not alſo carry him thither, God ordaining this as well as his temptation.

b Ier.13.4.

c Ezek.8.3.

Rule. Doe nothing Satan perſwades thee to in temptation.

The vſe. By this we ſee, that men may be tranſported by the Deuill from place to place, as the records of all ages doe report: this one thing yet obſerued (wherein the common opinion faileth) that the Deuill cannot conuey a man aliue ſo farre in a little time, as many men thinke; as a thouſand or two thouſand miles in an houre; for no man is able to endure ſuch violent motion, & yet liue, as experience teacheth; let a man fall from ſome high ſteeple, and his breath wil be gone and he dead before he come at the ground, by reaſon of the violence of his motion. Indeed the Deuill can carrie a man very ſwiftly, but yet for the ſafety of mans life he muſt prolong his time farre more, then otherwiſe of himſelfe he needes to doe.

Secondly, hence we learne that by Gods permiſſion, the Deuill may haue power ouer the bodies of Gods owne children which are true beleeuers, to tranſport them from place to place; for dealing thus with the head Chriſt Ieſus, why may he not doe ſo with any of his members? beſides, we finde (that God permitting him) he hath done more then this to the Saints of God; he may poſſeſſe their bodies, as he did the woman of Canaans daughter, Math. 15. 22. He may torment them long, as he did exceeding grieuouſly bow the body of a daughter of Abraham eighteene yeares, Luk. 13. 16. Yea he may kill the body, as he did to Iobs children, who no doubt were holy perſons, Iob. 1. 19. And therefore much more may he tranſport them from place to place.

Satans power ouer … bodies if God perm…

Here this queſtion may fitly be anſwered: whether a true beleeuer may be bewitched. Anſ. He may: there are none vpon earth ſo faithfull and holy, but if God permit, Satan can afflict their bodies grieuouſly, and therefore alſo they may be bewitched. It is but the fancy of preſumptuous perſons, when they ſay, their faith is ſo ſtrong, that all the witches in the world cannot hurt them: for if God permit, Satan can grieuouſly afflict mans bodie, as he did the body of Iob; yea he can kill the bodie, as hath beene ſhewed. Salomon, ſpeaking of outward things ſaith truly, [a] All things come alike to all, and the ſame condition is to the iuſt and to the wicked: now the wicked man may be bewitched, as all will grant; why then may not the godly alſo, ſeeing it is but an outward euill? This therefore muſt abate their pride that ſtand ſo much on their ſtrong faith: behold this fact of Satan to the holy body of Chriſt, and hereby learne for thy humiliation, that if God permit, Satan is able to bring vpon thy body great affliction.

a Eccl.9.2.

Further obſerue the place whither Sathan caries our Sauiour Chriſt, into the holy city, that is, Ieruſalem. Queſt. Why is it called holy, ſeeing now it was a polluted place full of ſinfull people? Anſ. It is called holy for theſe cauſes. 1. becauſe here was the Lords temple, the place of his ſolemne worſhip, wherein were the holy rites and ceremonies preſcribed for Gods worſhip. Secondly, in Ieruſalem, as alſo in all the ſynagogues of Iudea, was Moſes chaire, the law and the Prophets were read and expounded. Thirdly, Ieruſalem was the mother City of all the world in reſpect of religion; here God ordained that his Church ſhould firſt be planted, and from hence muſt religion be deriued to other nations.

The vſe. Hence we may obſerue, that at this time Ieruſalem was the true Church of God: indeed it was very corrupt both for doctrine and manners, as Chriſts ſeuere reproofe of both doth plainely ſhewe, Matth. 5. 21. &c. and Matth. 23. 13. 14. &c. and yet a true church, elſe the holy ghoſt would not haue called it the holy city. Now if Ieruſalem at this time were the true Church of God then, then may we well ſay, that in England God hath his true Church: for, let the corruptions of our Church be as they are; yet ſhall it match Ieruſalem in the prerogatiues of Gods Church. They had the law and the Prophets read and expounded; ſo haue we, and the Goſpel alſo which is the power of God to mans ſaluation. They had the Sacraments and ceremonies of the Law; anſwerable thereto we haue the Sacraments of the Goſpell; and alſo a true and holy forme of ſeruing God. Their Ieruſalem was a mother city; and though we cannot ſay ſo much in that behalfe, yet hath our Church beene a nurce to neighbour Churches in Germany, France, and other places round about, for many yeares: in regard whereof, the Lord, no doubt, hath beſtowed many bleſſings vpon vs. And therefore though our ſinnes and abuſes be many and grieuous, yet in regard of Church prerogatiues we may be called a holy nation, and a true member of the Church of God: ſo that as our Sauiour Chriſt and his Diſciples ioyned themſelues to the congregation of the Iewes in their legall ſeruice, and forſooke them not till they became no Church: ſo ought it to be among vs; till we ſeparate from Chriſt, none ſhould ſeuer themſelues from our Church miniſtery and ſeruice of God. Thoſe therefore that make a ſeparation from our Church because of corruptions in it, are farre from the ſpirit of Chriſt and his Apoſtles. If any ſhall ſay, this makes well for the Church of Rome, if ſo corrupt a place as Ieruſalem, in regard of Church prerogatiues were an holy city, for they haue as many prerogatiues for religion, as the Iewes then had, and therefore are the Church of God, and ſo we do not well to ſeparate from them. Anſ. Some in deede that are no Papiſts, ſay the Church of Rome is the Church of God: but the truth is, the preſent Church of Rome is ſpirituall Babylon, the mother of abhominations, no ſpouſe of Chriſt, but a ſtrumpet. But they plead their prerogatiues: as firſt, their ſucceſſion from Peter: Secondly, true baptiſme for ſubſtance according to the firſt inſtitution: Thirdly, the Apoſtles Creed which they hold and beleeue: Fourthly, the word of God, in the writings of the Prophets and Apoſtles: And laſtly, that theirs is the mother Church. Anſw. All this is nothing when the truth appeares: for firſt, ſucceſſiō in perſon, without ſucceſſion in doctrine, is no note of a Church: now let them ſhewe ſucceſſion in the Apoſtles doctrine, and we yeeld. Secondly, their baptiſme alone, though for ſubſtance true baptiſme, cannot proue them a true Church: Circumciſion was the Sacrament of Gods Church, yet Samaria and Colchis were not the Church of God, though they vſed it. Againe, the thiefe may ſhewe the true mans purſe, but that proueth him not to be true & honeſt; no more doth baptiſme iuſtifie the Church of Rome to be a true Church. Laſtly, though they haue outward baptiſme, yet indeede they ouerthrow inward baptiſme, the life of that Sacrament, to wit, imputed righteouſnes & renued holines, which in Gods Church muſt goe together with the outward element, elſe it is nothing. Thirdly, for the Apoſtles Creed; they haue it in word, but they deny it in deede. For though they ſay, they beleeue in God the Father, and in Ieſus Chriſt, yet in effect they deny both God and Chriſt. For the God of the Papiſts is an Idol-god, and the Chriſt of the Papiſts a falſe Chriſt, as we haue ſhewed in handling of the Creed. Fourthly, for the Scripture, we muſt know the word of God ſtands not in bare words and letters, but in the true ſenſe and meaning of the holy Ghoſt contained in the Scripture of the Prophets and Apoſtles. Now though they haue the bookes of Scripture, yet in ſundry maine grounds of religion, they ouerthrow the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles. Againe, they keepe the Scripture as a lanterne holdes a candle, not for it ſelfe, but for paſſengers: ſo is the Scripture with them, not for their Synagogues, but for Gods ſecret ones among them; for euen in the midſt of Poperie hath God euer had ſome of his elect, who haue not embraced their curſed doctrine. Laſtly, for their plea to be the mother Church; we muſt diſtinguiſh betweene the ancient Church of Rome, and the ſtrumpet that now is; the ancient Church of Rome to whom Paul writ, was a true and famous Church, and a mother Church: but ſhe is now dead and buried; and the now Roman Church is no mother Church, no ſpouſe of Chriſt, but the whore of Babel, the mother of abhominations, from which we are commanded to depart, Reu. 18. 4.

2. Vſe. Secondly, in that Chriſt is brought to Ieruſalem, that holy City, there to be tempted, we learne, that no holineſſe of place on earth can debarre the Deuill from his temptations; he brings Chriſt from the wilderneſſe, to tempt him in the holy city, euen vpon the holy temple; he will thruſt himſelfe [a] on Iehoſhuahs right hand to reſiſt him, though Iehoſhua ſtand before the Angell of the Lord to miniſter to the Lord. And therefore the follie of Papiſts is egregious, that think the ſigne of the croſſe, holy water, reliques, and ſuch Maſſing inchantments haue vertue in them to free their houſes, or their bodies from the aſſaults of Satan.

[a] Zak. 3. 1.

Laſtly, hereby we ſee that change of place is but a ſillie cure for a troubled minde; indeede change of aire may much further bodily cures; but a troubled mind hath conflicts with the deuill, who will not leaue for change of place, Ieruſalem will fit his turne as well as the wilderneſſe.

3 The ſecond part of the Deuills preparation to this conflict is this, and ſet him on a pinnacle of the temple: The word tranſlated pinnacle, ſignifieth properly a wing of the temple; whereby, ſome take to be meant, the ſharpe brouches and ſpires on the toppe of the Temple; whereof there were diuers; but theſe (as I take it) are not here meant; for ſuch a ſpire cannot well be called a wing: others take it for ſome part of the battlement, made on the top of the Temple, which was flat, as the Iewes vſed to build, to keepe men from falling: others take it for any top corner of the Temple: and whether of theſe it was, we cannot certenly define: but this we muſt hold, that it was ſome dangerous ſteep downe place on ſome corner of the Temple, or on the battlements, from which a man might eaſily caſt himſelfe: whereby we ſee the Deuill will omit no aduantage that may further his temptations; which ſhould make vs the more carefull of our ſtanding againſt him.

v.6. And ſaid vnto him, If thou be the ſonne of God, caſt thy ſelfe downe: for it is written, that he will giue his Angels charge ouer thee, and with their hands they ſhall lift thee vp, leaſt at any time thou ſhouldeſt daſh thy foote againſt a ſtone.

Theſe words containe the ſecond maine point in this conflict, to wit, Satans aſſault vpon Chriſt: wherein we are to obſerue, firſt his temptation: then the reaſon whereby he doth enforce it. His temptation here is framed as the former was, in a kind of reaſoning, thus:

If thou be the ſonne of God, then ſhew the ſame by caſting thy ſelfe downe from this pinnacle of the Temple:
But as I ſee thou art certainly perſwaded, that thou art the ſonne of God:
Therefore caſt thy ſelfe downe, and thereby declare it.

Seeing this is a diſtinct temptation from the former, I doubt not but it muſt be thus framed with this concluſion: for if it had the ſame concluſion with the former, it ſhould be the ſame temptation. Satans meaning then is this, as if he had ſaid; I haue made triall to ſee expreſſely whether thou be the ſonne of God or not, and it ſeemes thou doeſt vndoubtedly beleeue that voice of thy Father to be true, which ſaid, This is my welbeloued Sonne in whome I am well pleaſed: Now if this be ſo indeede, it is conuenient thou ſhouldeſt confirme the ſame by ſome miracle, and the fitteſt place thou canſt doe it, is this; therefore caſt thy ſelfe downe headlong from this pinacle, and yet preſerue thy ſelfe in ſafetie without all hurt in the fall.

The drift of Satan in this temptation was, to bring our Sauiour Chriſt to a vaine confidence in his Fathers protection, and indeede to flat A preſumption vpon his extraordinarie prouidence in the neglect of lawfull ordinarie meanes, as by Satans concluſion; and the anſwer of Chriſt will eaſily appeare. And hereby we may obſerue that one maine drift of Satan in his ordinarie temptations in Gods Church, is to carie men to preſumption, and vaine confidence in the loue, fauour, and mercie of God: this appeares by the ſtrange reaſonings for libertie in ſinne which many frame to themſelues, and ſome are not aſhamed to vtter; as firſt, God is mercifull, and Chriſt ſhedde his blood for their redemption, and therefore they will not be ſo ſtrict and preciſe in hearing Sermons, and reading and conferring about the B word as many are, but they will take the pleaſures and ſeeke the profits of this life. Thus reaſoned ſome in the Apoſtles daies: [a] Let vs continue in ſinne that grace may abound: of ſuch Iude complaineth, ſaying, [b] They turne the grace of God into wantonneſſe. Such there haue beene euer ſince, and at this day they doe euery where abound. Secondly, ſome ſay, they are either ordained to ſaluation or damnation: now if to ſaluation, they are ſure of it how euer they liue; and if to damnation, they cannot eſcape it, though they liue neuer ſo holily, for Gods decree is vnchangeable; and therefore they will take their pleaſure and liue as they liſt. Thirdly, others ſay, they haue euer found Gods goodneſſe towards them, and they are C perſwaded he will neuer ſee them want, and therefore they will not toile themſelues with labour and care as others doe, but take their eaſe and pleaſure while they may haue it; and ſo neglect their charge and calling, and giue themſelues wholly to their ſports and pleaſures, to companie keeping, or ſuch like. Yea, by this temptation to preſumption, Satan oft preuailes with the better ſort: for if a man fauour the truth, and giue himſelfe to know religion in any ſort, the Deuill will ſtraight way goe about to perſwade him, that that which he doth is ſufficient to his ſaluation, and thus will keepe him from vſing further meanes to come by the certaine knowledge of his election, and full affiance in Chriſt Ieſus, to become a perfect man D in Chriſt, which is the ende of Gods holy miniſterie, Eph. 4. 13. whereunto we ſhould giue all diligence, 2. Pet. 1. 10. See the truth hereof in the fiue fooliſh virgins, who carried [a] burning lampes, but tooke no oyle with them, neuer minding that till it was too late; and ſo doe moſt men content themſelues with the blazing lampe of an outward profeſſion, neuer looking for the oyle of grace, till the time of grace be paſt.

Satan ſeekes to carie men to preſumption.

[a] Rom.6.1.

[b] Iude 4.

[a] Matth.25. 1,2,&c.

The vſe. Hereby then we are all taught, in ſpeciall manner to beware of preſumption; this is the common ſnare of the Deuill wherein he intangles many a ſoule. It is true indeed that he oft preuailes by bringing men to deſperation, but a thouſand periſh through preſumption, almoſt for one by deſperation: for deſpaire is a painfull thing to fleſh and blood, and as the Deuill knowes well, doth ſometimes turne to a mans more ſound conuerſion; but to preſume is ſweete and pleaſant to the fleſh, and moſt agreeable to mans corrupt nature: in regard whereof we ought to keepe our heart with all watch and ward, as Dauid praieth, Keepe thy ſeruant from preſumptuous ſinnes, Pſalm. 19. v. 13.

Againe, obſerue the order of Satans temptations by comparing this with the former. There he ſought to ouerthrow Chriſts faith, and to bring him to diſtruſt the truth of Gods word vttered from heauen; but finding he could not that way preuaile, here he takes the cleane contrary courſe, and ſeekes to bring him to preſume.

Satans cunning in tēpting.

This ſerues to diſcouer vnto vs, the deepe guile and ſubtilty of the Deuill, that can ſo cunningly turne himſelfe from one extream vnto another. And looke as he dealeth here with Chriſt the head, ſo doth he continue towards all his members, if he cannot bring them to one extreame, he will aſſay them hard in the other. If he cannot bring a man to couetouſneſſe, and keepe his heart to the loue of money, then let him beware of riot and prodigality. Is a man giuen to pleaſures and delight, and at length is depriued of them? then let him beware the Deuill ſwallow him not vp with ouermuch griefe, as he ſought to doe with the [a] inceſtuous perſon of Corinth. Doth a man come to loue religion, that formerly was giuen to looſeneſſe of life? then if it be poſſible the Deuill will carrie him to ſchiſme and hereſie. The Deuill cannot abide that a man ſhould keepe the meane according to Gods word, Iſay 30. 21. He would haue our firſt parents to be Gods, or no body, Gen. 3. 5. And ſo ſtill he laboureth to bring a man to ſome extreame. We therefore in all eſtates during life, muſt labour to keepe the golden meane, as Chriſt here did, neither doubting on the one hand, nor preſuming on the other, but retaining ſtill that bleſſed faith, whereby his bleſſed heart was firmely ſetled in theſe aſſaults. Thus much for Satans drift. Now come to the words of this temptation.

a 2.Cor.2.7. 11.

If thou be the ſonne of God, then caſt thy ſelfe downe: that is, ſhewe by this miracle that thou art the ſonne of God. Marke here, the Deuill perſwades him not, to ſhewe himſelfe to be the ſonne of God by doctrine in the execution of his miniſterie; but Caſt thy ſelfe downe; ſhew a miracle: wherein we may behold the very liuely image of that naturall diſpoſition which is in all impenitent perſons; they affect Chriſts miracles, but they care not for his doctrine. Herod longed to ſee Chriſt, [b] and was glad of his comming, when Pilate ſent him; yet not to heare his doctrine, for that he could not endure; els he would not haue impriſoned Iohn, and alſo put him to death; but he hoped to ſee a miracle. The wicked Iewes deſire a ſigne, that put Chriſt to death for his doctrine; yet if he will come downe from the croſſe, and ſo miraculouſly ſaue himſelfe, then they will beleeue, Mark. 15. 32. And this venom of the old ſerpent hath poiſoned the hearts of many ſtudents in the Scriptures, who care not at all to ground themſelues in the fundamentall points of religion, as faith and repentance; and yet are woonderfull eager after quiddities and difficulties, wherein may appeare ſome outward ſhew of wit and learning; like the hypocriticall Phariſies, that would tithe mint and rue, and yet paſſe [illegible]er judgement and the loue of God, Luk. 11. 42. [illegible]d the cauſe hereof is the want of ſound grace, for naturall men indeede cannot ſauour the things of the ſpirit of God; the knowledge of Chriſt crucified ſeemes fooliſhneſſe vnto them.

Math.25. &c.

b Luk.23.8.

Secondly, the Deuill tooke occaſion of his former temptation from Chriſts infirmitie of hunger: but perceiuing Chriſts ſure faith in his fathers word by his gracious anſwer to that aſſault, here he borrowes his temptation from that profeſſion of his faith; as if he ſhould ſay, thou ſeemeſt to be reſolued of the truth of thy fathers word that thou art the ſonne of God: and if that be true indeed, then ſhew it by this miracle, Caſt thy ſelfe downe.

Here then behold another tricke of Satan; if he cannot preuaile by aſſaults drawne from our infirmities, then will he aſſay vs by temptations drawn from Gods good gifts and graces in vs; If he cannot keepe a man in ignorance that hath good gifts of wit and memorie, then will he ſeeke from his knowledge to puffe him vp with pride, and ſo mingling his poiſon with Gods good gifts, doth cauſe many a one to become a baine to Gods Church, that otherwiſe might haue prooued an excellent inſtrument therein; as might eaſily be ſhewed in ſundrie particulars.

Satans malice reſtrained.

Thirdly, here marke how Satans malice is reſtrained, and his power limited: By Gods permiſſion he is able to carrie Chriſt from the wildernes to Ieruſalem, and there to ſet him in a moſt dangerous place on a wing of the temple; the thing he now deſireth is his deſtruction by caſting him downe headlong, but that he can not doe, and therefore perſwades Chriſt to caſt himſelfe downe: wherein we ſee the ſpeciall prouidence of God ouer Chriſt Ieſus in al theſe temptations, reſtraining his enemy in the thing he moſt deſired. And the ſame prouidence doth he ſtill continue ouer his church for the effectuall preſeruation of Chriſts members in all their temptations. The Deuills vnwearied deſire and drift is, to bring contentions, hurliburlies and ruines into all ſocieties in Church and Commonwealth: therefore the peace and tranquillitie of theſe, is, and ſo muſt be acknowledged, a notable fruite of Gods bleſſed prouidence reſtraining the ſpite and malice of Satan. Againe, hence it is euident, that in temptation Satan cannot goe beyond the permiſſion of God: he can tempt Chriſt, yea tranſport his body, and ſet him in a daungerous place, for thus farre God permits him to goe; but to caſt Chriſt downe from the pinnacle he cannot, therein comes Gods reſtraint. So it fareth with gods children; for the trial of his graces in them, and to chaſtiſe them for ſome ſinnes, he ſuffers Satan to buffet them; but yet one iotte of his malice beyond Gods permiſſion he cannot ſhewe, as in Iobs affliction by him may notably appeare. Which we muſt carefully remember for our ſpeciall comfort in our moſt grieuous aſſaults; Gods will permitting Satan ſo farre muſt make vs patient, and yet his power reſtraining Satan from doing worſe, muſt giue vs comfort. Thus much for the temptation it ſelfe.

The reaſon whereby Sathan enforceth his temptation is taken from a teſtimony of Scripture: For it is written, he ſhall giue his Angels charge ouer thee, &c. Satan hearing Chriſt alledge Scripture for his defence againſt the firſt aſſault, comes now vpon him with his owne weapon, that if it were poſſible he might foile him, after this ſort: Thou ſheweſt thy ſelfe to be the Doctor of the Church, by thine alleadging of Scripture, and that, it ſeemes, thou makeſt the rule of thine actions: well then thou maieſt well and ſafely caſt thy ſelfe down hence if thou be the Sonne of God, for it is written, he ſhall giue his Angels charge ouer thee, and with their hands they ſhall lift thee vp, &c.

From this dealing of Satan, we are taught, not to embrace an opinion in religion, becauſe a ſhew of proofe by teſtimony of Scripture may be giuen for it. But we muſt trie the ſpirits, that is, the doctrines of men, whether they be of God, or not, 1. Ioh. 4. 1. For the Deuill can alleadge Scripture to mooue Chriſt vnto preſumption, and it is his vſuall practiſe, when he caries men into ſchiſms, errors, and hereſies. Reaſon with a man that minds to liue in ſinne, and tell him of that dangerous ſtate, by reaſon of the ſhortneſſe and vncertainty of this life: will he not tell you ſtraight, he will doe as he does, and repent when he is old? for it is written, [a] At what time ſoeuer a ſinner doth repent him of his ſinne, I will put all his wickedneſſe out of my remembrance, ſaith the Lord: And ſome thinke three or foure good words at a mans laſt end wil ſerue his turne: for the thiefe on the croſſe ſaid no more, but [b] Lord remember me when thou cõmeſt into thy kingdome. And al ſuch as are trained vp in the ſchoole of Sathan, can eaſilie alleadge Scripture to further them in euill.

But let vs come to the Scripture which the Deuill doth notoriouſly abuſe by his allegation: it is written in the 91. Pſal. v. 11. In the alleadging whereof he would ſeeme very carefull and preciſe, at the firſt not omitting ſo much as this particle [for] which might haue beene left out, and yet nothing haue beene wanting to the force of his reaſon: But herein is the deepeneſſe of his policy, to cauſe Chriſt not to ſuſpect any falſhood afterward; for towards the end, he leaueth out that, on which the promiſe is grounded of beeing kept by the Angels, to wit, to keepe thee in all thy wayes, that is, in all the good duties of thy lawfull calling wherein thou ſhalt glorifie God, and doe good to others; to ſuch as ſo walke in their waies doth that promiſe belong.

Satans mincing of the word of God.

Here then behold Satans notable fraud and craft, that can ſo cunningly leaue out that which makes not for his purpoſe, and ſo peruert the true meaning of Scripture; this is his vſuall practiſe, in enmity againſt the word to depraue the true meaning by cutting off ſome part, when he cannot vtterly ouerthrow the whole. The like is the dealing of all heretickes, who by cutting off and leauing out, play legerdemaine with the Scripture. The Arrian holds the Bible for the word of God; but ſuch places as ſerue to prooue the Godhead of Chriſt, he doth notably abuſe and peruert. The family of Loue alſo doth hold the Bible for the word of God; but come to the true meaning of it, therein they faile, turning all into Allegories, euen moſt true hiſtories, as the fall of our firſt Parents, and ſuch like, which are maine grounds of religion in their natural ſenſe: and the Apoſtaticall Church of Rome, doth hold with vs the bookes of the old and new Teſtament; but yet they put in and take out at their pleaſure, and take from it all ſenſe and meaning which agrees not with the determination of their holy father the Pope; and thereby they ouerturne the word of God, and ſtrongly maintaine their myſterie of iniquitie.

This dealing of Satan and his wicked miſcreants with the Scripture, muſt make all Gods children willing to ſpend their ſtrength in ſearching out the Scripture; for that is the onely way to deſcribe their fraud in deprauing of it. This cauſed Chriſt to bid the people in his time to ſearch the Scriptures, to learne to knowe him to be the true Meſſias, which the Iewiſh teachers did then deny. In regard whereof we muſt ſay with [a] Moſes, oh that all the Lords prople were Prophets, and that the Lord would put his ſpirit vpon them! oh that all could reade and vnderſtand the word of God! This is it, wherein all that either be, or intend to be miniſters muſt labour eſpecially, euen to get ſound knowledge and iudgement in the text of Scripture. The Miniſter muſt not onely be able to teach the truth, but alſo to diſcerne, to diſcouer, and to confute errors and hereſies, which he can neuer ſoundly doe without good vnderſtanding in the text it ſelfe. The Deuill knowes the whole Scripture, and he will ſpare no text therein if he can corrupt it; therefore to reſcue Gods truth out of his hands who is the father of lies, the Miniſter muſt ſhewe himſelfe a good ſouldier of Ieſus Chriſt, as Paul exhorteth Timothie, giuing ſuch attendance to the word that all men may ſee his profiting therein; yea with Ieremie, the Miniſter muſt eat the bookes of God, and digeſt them in his vnderſtanding, & reioice therein, labouring to feele them the ioy of his heart. The Deuill knowes that Scripture truely vnderſtood and well applied, is the onely engine for the battery of his kingdome; and therefore, euen from the beginning, but ſpecially ſince the comming of Chriſt, he hath laboured by all meanes to keepe men from the knowledge and true vnderſtanding of them: he it is that hath brought men from the reading of the Scriptures, to betake themſelues to the writings of men, as ſchoolemen, fathers, and ſuch; by this meanes he hath for many yeares euen to this day in the Church of Rome, locked vp the Scripture in an vnknowen tongue: yea euen in Gods Church the Deuill workes mightily this way, by ſtealing away the affections of yong ſtudents from the Bible, and rauiſhing them with delight in the writings of men; for thus he keepes them from the fountaine of truth, that they either fall into error themſelues, or be leſſe able to diſcerne and confute it in others. And hence come diſſentions and errors into the ſchooles of the Prophets, which cannot be auoided while men leaue the text of Scripture and addict themſelues ſo much to the writings of men, for thereby he can more cunningly conuey ſtrange conceits into mens mindes: and therefore euery one that would maintaine the truth in purity and ſyncerity, muſt labour painfully in the text.

Secondly, Gods miniſters muſt hereby be admoniſhed, to be carefull in alleadging any text of Scripture, that the ſame be fit and pertinent: for to wreſt the ſame from the proper meaning of the holy Ghoſt to ſerue their owne conceit, is the practiſe of Satan, which euerie ſeruant of God muſt be farre from, and therefore muſt not doe it hand ouer head. Which alſo may ſerue for a good aduertiſment to thoſe that vſe to heape vp manifold allegations of Scriptures in the doctrine of a ſermon, for as [c] in many words there cannot want iniquity, as Salomon ſaith; ſo in affected multiplicity of quotations can the abuſe of Scripture be hardly eſcaped. If we deliuer but a mans teſtimony, honeſty will compell vs as neere as we can to keepe both his words and his meaning; much more ſhould conſcience mooue vs in alledging the teſtimony of the Lord, to haue carefull reſpect to the euidence of truth: and therefore that ſparing courſe is very commendable, whereby in quoting of Scripture men make ſure to keepe themſelues to the Lords true meaning, leſt by deprauing his word they become followers of Satan; And thus much for the maner of Satans allegation.

The truth and proper meaning of that text is now briefly to be diſcuſſed. The ninety-one Pſalme, from whence it is alleged, is a moſt heauenly part of Scripture, penned for the comfort of Gods people in the time of ſome grieuous plague or ſickeneſſe; and it containes a notable preſeruatiue againſt the plague, and by conſequent againſt any iudgement of God, to wit, true affiance and confidence in the Lord, that

A is the ground of all comfortable ſafety; therefore, among many other, is [a] this gracious promiſe made of the protection of Gods holy Angels (which the Deuill doth here alleadge) who ſhall be as carefull for the ſafety of Gods children in common calamities of famine, plague, peſtilence, &c. as the nurce is ouer her tender child to hold it in her hands, and beare it vp in her armes, leaſt it ſhould fall and hurt it ſelfe; alwaies prouided that the child of God keepe himſelfe in his waies, that is, in obedience to Gods commandements, and in the duties of his lawfull calling. It is true indeed, that iudgement begins at the houſe of God, and the righteous are taken away from the euill to come, yea many
B times the ſame outward iudgement lights vpon the good, that doth vpon the bad: yet this taketh not from Gods child the comfort of this protection in common calamities, for all promiſes of temporall bleſſings muſt be vnderſtood with the exception of the croſſe: as here, Gods Angells ſhall guard his children in time of plague, famine, and peſtilence, vnleſſe it pleaſe God herewith to chaſten them for ſome ſinne paſt, or to preuent ſome ſinne, or greater euill to come, or to make triall of their faith and patience: in which caſes alſo the child of God doth greatly differ from the wicked: for through the fruition of Gods loue in Chriſt the euill of the puniſhment is taken away, and the outward ſmart thereof [b] ſanctified to the greater good
C of his ſoule: but out of this caſe their protection is certaine: ſee Exod. 12. 23. Pſal. 105. 16. 17. and Ezek. 9. 4. 6.

The vſe. The conſideration of this gratious protection of Gods Angels ouer ſuch as keepe themſelues in their waies, muſt mooue euery one to labour to know & practiſe the duties of his calling both generall of Chriſtianitie, and particular for the ſtate of his life, in al good conſcience: ſo doing, let come what will, in all dangers he ſhall haue ſafety: for Gods Angels pitch their tents about him, they are as watchful ouer him as a nurce ouer her child: but if we forſake our waies, we loſe the comfort of their protection, & expoſe our ſelues to al Gods iudgements.

D V. 7. Jeſus ſaid vnto him, Againe it is written, Thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

Here is the third generall point in this conflict: to wit, Chriſts anſwer and repulſe made to Satans aſſault, taken as the Deuils temptation was, from a text of Scripture; for he ſaith, Againe it is written; where yet he meaneth not to oppoſe Scripture to Scripture; but to confute the abuſe of Scripture by Scripture; after this ſort, as if he had ſaid to Satan, It is true indeede that God hath made many worthy promiſes of aide and protection to his childeren in his word, yet they ſhall not bee performed to thoſe that preſume to tempt God, as thou wouldeſt haue me to doe.

Scriptures are ſufficient to expound themſelues.

From this dealing of Chriſt with Satan, we may obſerue; that the Scriptures of God are ſufficient in themſelues, truely to interpret and expound themſelues. The Deuill alleadging Scripture, did wreſt it from the true ſenſe; this our Sauiour Chriſt ſheweth by alleadging another text out of [a] Moſes, which beeing applied to the place which the Deuill abuſed, doth ſhewe the true meaning thereof. So Ezra, expounding the law vnto the Iewes, read diſtinctly in the law of God, and (as the words doe ſignifie) [b] gaue the ſenſe by Scripture, and cauſed the people to vnderſtand: much more then at this day may the ſcriptures be thought ſufficient for the expounding of themſelues, ſith to the Canon thereof ſince Ezra his time there is added the whole new Teſtament by the hand of God, wherein the deepe things of God are plainly reuealed.

[a] Deut 6.16.

[b] Neh.8.8.

The Church of Rome cannot away with this, that Scripture ſhould be ſufficient to expound it ſelfe. And therefore againſt it they reaſon thus: That which muſt expound Scripture, muſt haue iudicial power to determine of the ſenſe thereof: but the ſcriptures haue no ſuch Iudiciall power; for they are but a dumbe letter: and therefore no ſufficient iudge to determine of their owne ſenſe and meaning. Anſw. The Scriptures haue iudiciall power to determine of their owne true ſenſe and meaning, for they ſpeake euidently, to all that are inlightened by Gods ſpirit, and thereby made able to knowe what the Scripture ſaith: we know a man may ſpeake to his friend not only by word of mouth, but alſo by letter, and thereby expreſſe his meaning ſufficiently: euen ſo, though God ſpeake not now vnto his Church by created voice, yet by his written word he ſpeakes ſufficiently for the cleare maniſeſtation of his will and pleaſure concerning them; and therefore it is a ſhamefull ſlander and blaſphemy againſt the Scriptures to call them an inkie letter, and dumbe iudge. And let them ſhew, if the Scripture be not, where is that ſpeaking iudge who hath power iudiciall to expound the Scripture. Indeed their anſwer is; that the Church is this Iudge, and that we muſt conſult at her mouth for the true meaning of the Scripture. Anſ. The Church hath a miniſtery and diſpenſation committed vnto her, in the execution whereof ſhe deliuereth the meaning of the Scripture vnto Gods people, but that is not from any iudiciall authority committed vnto her, to determine of the ſenſe of Scripture of her ſelfe; but onely by comparing ſcripture with Scripture, and expounding one place out of another; euen as the Lawyer giues the ſenſe of the law, not from any iudiciall power giuen vnto him aboue the law, but by obſeruing the words with the ſcope and circumſtances of the law. But here I would know, if the Church muſt needs be iudge, by what meanes muſt ſhe determine? They anſwer, by the rule A of faith; the conſent of Councels and Fathers; and if theſe faile, then by the Pope. Anſ. By their rule of faith, they vnderſtand, vnwritten traditions, that is, ſuch truth beſide Scripture, as hath beene kept by tradition from hand to hand ſince the primitiue Church. But theſe are meere forgeries, and ſhame it were to ſubiect the truth of God to the deuice of man; if theſe be made iudge of Scripture, then ſhall the faith of the Church depend vpon the wiſdome of man, and not vpon the power of God, a thing abhorred of the Apoſtle 1. Cor. 2. 5. The onely rule of faith is the Scripture, and true faith will admit no other iudge beſide the Scripture to determine of that whereon it muſt depend. Secondly, for B their conſent of Fathers and Councels, that is no ſufficient meanes to determine of the true ſenſe of Scripture; for their ſeuerall errours and contradictions one to another, and many times to themſelues, ſhew, that they wanted the immediate aſſiſtance of the Spirit. And the ſame is true of the Pope, as might eaſily be prooued at large, by their groſſe ignorance and errors. And therefore it remaines that the true iudge and expounder of Scripture, is Scripture it ſelfe, as Chriſt himſelfe by his practiſe ſheweth in this place.

The place allendged by Chriſt, is this commandement of God vnto his people, Thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God. For the vnderſtanding whereof we muſt ſearch out three things, C firſt, what the tempting of God ſignifieth; Secondly, the manner how God is tempted: and thirdly, the cauſe and root thereof. For the firſt, to tempt God ſignifieth, to make triall and experience of God, and to prooue whether he be ſo true, iuſt, mercifull, prouident, and powerfull as his word reporteth him to be. Thus did the Iſraelites often tempt God, as the Lord ſaith, [a] When your fathers tempted me, prooued me, and ſaw my workes; which latter words ſhew what it is to tempt God, euen to ſeeke to haue proofe by his workes whether he be ſuch a one as his word ſaith he is. If any ſhall ſay, we are commanded, to taſte and ſee how gratious the Lord is, Pſal. 34, 8. yea the Lords bids his people prooue him, Malach. 3. 10. Anſw. Thoſe D places doe ſufficiently expound themſelues, for Dauids taſte and ſight is by the grace of true faith and affiance, for in the ſame verſe he pronounceth ſuch bleſſed; and in Malachie the Lord bids them prooue him, but yet in their way of obediēce in prouiding for his Sanctuary according to his ordinances. Therefore we muſt know for the ſecond point, that euery triall of God is not ſimply euill, but that which is needleſſe, when without warrant from his word we preſume vpon him beyond the means of his ordinarie prouidence. Thirdly, the root of this ſinne, is an vnbeleeuing heart, whereby a man doubts of the truth of gods word, of his power, preſence, and prouidence. Pſal. 78. 18. The Iſraelites tempted God in their hearts; there is this ſinne: the manner how followeth, in requiring Deut.6.16.

To tempt God.

[a] Pſal.95.9.

A meate for their luſts,&c. not contenting themſelues with Gods preſent prouidence; the root and ground whereof is ſet downe, verſ. 22. becauſe they beleeued not in God, and truſted not in his helpe. When a man doubts of the fidelity of his ſeruant, he will lay ſomething in his way, as a peece of ſiluer, his purſe, &c. to trie him withall; ſo when a man begins to doubt of Gods goodneſſe and fidelity towards him, he will eaſily be brought to make needleſſe triall of him by ſome worke of God beſide his ordinarie prouidence. The meaning then is this, Thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God, that is, thou ſhalt not make any needeleſſe triall of Gods goodneſſe, mercie, power, or prouidence, B from a diſtruſtfull heart in the truth of his word.

God is tēpted 5. waies.

1 Here yet further for our inſtruction we are to knowe, that God is tempted fiue wayes, as the word of God doth manifeſt; firſt, when a man ſhall appoint vnto God, either the time when, the place where, or the manner how God ſhall helpe him, and performe his word vnto him; herein he ſeekes experience of the truth and power of God. Thus the Iſraelites tempted God in the wilderneſſe when they wanted water; ſaying, Is God among vs or no?

Exod.17.7.

God had promiſed to be with them in all their iourney to Canaan, but that they will not now beleeue, vnleſſe he will ſhewe his preſence by giuing them water in that place. And ſo likewiſe they tempted him in the want of food, C Pſa. 78.19. Can God prepare a table in the wilderneſſe. The conſideration whereof muſt teach vs in all our petitions which we make vnto God for the accompliſhment of his promiſes vnto vs, to beware of [b] limiting God, as the Iewes did; by preſcribing vnto him time, place, and manner for the accompliſhment thereof; but wait with patience his good leaſure. For he that beleeueth wil not make haſt, but will commit his way to the Lord: Pſal. 37.5.

b Pſal.78.41

2 Secondly, God is tempted when men require a ſigne at his hands. Thus the Phariſies tempted Chriſt: Matth.12.38. Maſter we would ſee a ſigne of thee: meaning thereby to be certified whether he were the Meſſias: and Luke D ſaith, they tempted him, Luk. 11.16. And thus doe all thoſe tempt God, which refuſe to embrace the doctrine of the Goſpel, becauſe they cannot ſee the miniſters thereof confirme the ſame by miracles. Thus doe many Papiſts plead againſt our religion, embracing rather the myſterie of iniquitie, becauſe it is confirmed vnto them by lying wonders; not conſidering that the truth which we profeſſe was once ſufficiently confirmed to be the truth of God, by his owne teſtimony thereunto in ſignes and wonders through the hands of his Apoſtles. Queſt. Is euery asking of a ſigne a tempting of God? for Gedion asked a ſigne when he was to be a Iudge and deliuerer of Gods people, Iudg. 6. 37. And ſo did Hezekiah to be aſſured of the lengthning of his daies, 2. King. 20.8. And yet we read not that God charged them with tempting him, but did condiſcend to their requeſts. Anſw. There be two cauſes in which we may require a ſigne of God and not tempt him: firſt, when God commands a man to aske a ſigne at his hands: ſo might Azah haue asked a ſigne of God, for his aſſurance of the victory according to Gods promiſe, yea he is [c] blamed for not asking it when the Lord commanded him. Secondly, a man may aske a ſigne of God, when it ſerues for the neceſſarie confirmation of an extraordinarie calling, or ſome ſpeciall promiſe of God made to man: in this caſe did Gedion aske a ſigne of God for the further confirmation of his extraordinarie calling to be a Deliuerer vnto Gods people. And ſo did Hezekiah for his further aſſurance in the lengthening of his life, by an extraordinarie promiſe, fifteene yeares. But out of theſe caſes to aske a ſigne of God is to tempt him; as the Phariſies did, who would preſcribe vnto God what kinde of miracle they would haue, euen a ſigne from heauen, not contenting themſelues with thoſe miracles which Chriſt did ordinarily worke among them.

c Iſa.7.11, 12,13.

3 Thirdly, a man tempts God when he goes on in any ſinne againſt Gods commandements, for hereby he makes needeleſſe triall of Gods iuſtice, mercie, and patience. The Lord ſaid of his people, they [d] tempted him ten times, and haue not obeyed his voice. Mal. 3.15. The people murmuringly ſay, they that worke wickednes are ſet vp, and they that tempt God are deliuered; where working wickedneſſe and tempting of God are all one. Which ſerues to admoniſh vs, that with all ſpeed we breake off the courſe of our ſinnes by repentance, for while we continue in ſinne we tempt God, and ſo lie open to all his iudgements, depriuing our ſelues of the guard and protection of Gods holy Angels, nay they will become our enemies, and inſteed of protection, execute Gods heauie vengeance vpon vs.

d Num.14. 22.

4 Fourthly, they tempt God, that impoſe vpon Gods people, the religious obſeruation of legall ceremonies aboliſhed by Chriſt: *Act.*15. 10. Why tempt yee God (ſaith Peter) to lay a yoake on the Diſciples neckes, which neither our Fathers, nor we were able to beare? This is to make triall of Gods power in the ſauing of his people. Whereby we may ſee how wicked and damnable the Romiſh religion is, which wholly ſtands in the obſeruation of ceremonies, partly heatheniſh, and partly Iudaicall, whereto when men ſubmit themſelues, they doe nothing elſe but tempt God.

5 Fiftly, they tempt God, that refuſe or neglect the ordinarie and neceſſary meanes of their preſeruation, either for body or ſoule: as he that beeing to goe ouer a water, will leaue the bridge which is the ordinarie way, and aduenture dangerouſly through the water: for herein he ſeekes a needeleſſe experience of Gods power: ſo doe they alſo that neglect or con-terme Gods holy ordinance for the ſauing of mens ſoules in the miniſterie of the word. Now to this kind of tempting God, doth Chriſt apply this commandement in this place; as if he ſhould ſay, when God hath afforded vnto men an ordinarie meanes for their helpe and ſafetie, they are not to refuſe the ſame, and to ſeeke for ſafetie from God extraordinarily. I am now in a dangerous place I confeſſe vpon this pinnacle, yet there is ſome ordinarie way to get down, as ſtaires, or ladder; and therefore vnleſſe I would tempt the Lord my God, I may not caſt my ſelfe down, and thereby ſeeke for extraordinarie preſeruation, as thou perſwadeſt me. Thus alſo they ſinne that goe into places of great danger without a calling: ſo Peter ſinned in thruſting himſelfe into Caiphas hall, a place of temptation, as by lamentable experience he found too true. Thus Dauids three Worthies ſinned in aduenturing vpon their enemies hoſt, for the fetching of a little water out of the well of Bethlehem; & therefore when it was brought vnto him, Dauid would not drinke thereof, but powred it out for a ſacrifice vnto the Lord, 2. Sam. 23. 16.

Here ſome may aske, whether they do not tempt God, that aduenture to clime on high places, to ſtand on ſpire ſteeples, to runne on the ridge of high houſes, and to goe on ropes a great height from the ground. Anſ. Men may doe ſuch things in a twofold eſtate, either hauing a lawfull calling thereto, as Carpenters and Maſons, who are to worke vpon high buildings; now they without tempting of God may clime and ſtand on high and dangerous places: or elſe hauing no lawfull calling thereto, as they who vſe to doe ſuch things to make knowne their actiuitie, or onely to affoord delight and admiration vnto others for their priuate gaine and aduantage; and ſuch tempt God fearefully; for Chriſt was better able to haue caſt himſelfe downe from this pinacle, and haue preſerued himſelfe without hurt, then theſe men are to ſaue themſelues in their aduentures, and yet he refuſed ſo to doe, becauſe he would not tempt the Lord his God. Thus much for the meaning of this commandement.

The doctrine for inſtruction hence, is to be gathered from this command applyed to the to the text which the Deuill alledgeth; and it is this: whoſoeuer looketh for the accompliſhment of Gods promiſes vnto him, muſt be carefull to walke before God in the wayes of his commandements, and in the works of his calling with all good conſcience. God indeede hath made many gratious promiſes in his word, of bleſſings temporall and eternall, but they that tempt God ſhall not finde the comfort of them; mens ſinnes hinder theſe things from them; Gods goodneſſe is to be ſeene and taſted in the waies of faith and obedience. God hath promiſed the guard of his Angels to his children while they keepe themſelues in their waies: if therefore thou wouldeſt haue this protection, thou muſt keepe thy ſelfe in thoſe waies that God wold haue thee to walke in. Alſo in the riches of his loue God hath made a promiſe of euerlaſting life with freedome from eternall perdition, to thoſe that beleeue in Chriſt, Iohn 3. 16. Thou therefore that wouldeſt enioy the comfort of this promiſe to thine immortality and life, muſt get true faith into thy heart, and thereby liue all the dayes of thy life. The ſame may be ſaid of euery promiſe of God pertaining either to ſoule or body, the fruition of them doth depend vpon the practiſe of ſome part of obedience; which if thou doeſt neglect, thou doeſt but preſume in making title to the promiſe: Peter tells Simon Magus plainely, he had no part with them in the gifts of the ſpirit, while his heart retained a purpoſe to liue in ſinne, Act. 8. 21. Breake of therefore the courſe of ſinne, and inure thy ſelfe to the practiſe of obedience, ſo ſhall Gods promiſes be ſweete vnto thine heart; and the more thou proceedeſt in obedience, the more comfort thou ſhalt finde in Gods gratious promiſes: but if thou doe lay hold on ſinne, the comfort of the world will depart from thee. And thus much for the ſecond temptation.

v. 8. Againe the Deuill tooke him vp into an exceeding high mountaine, and ſhewed him all the kingdomes of the world, and the glorie of them:

9. And ſaid vnto him, all theſe will I giue thee, if thou wilt fall downe and worſhip mee:

10. Then ſaid Ieſus vnto him, auoid Sathan, for it is written, thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him onely ſhalt thou ſerue.

Theſe words containe the third conflict betweene our Sauiour Chriſt and Satan; wherein conſider three points; I. Satans preparation: v. 8. II. Satans aſſault vpon Chriſt: v. 9. III. Chriſts anſwer thereto: v. 10. For the firſt, before we come to the handling of it in particular, we are to conſider that vnto euery aſſault the Deuill prepares himſelfe afreſh: which ſhould teach vs to labour to furniſh our hearts euery day afreſh to be able to repulſe his new aſſaults. Now particularly; this preparation hath two parts: firſt Satan takes Chriſt into an exceeding

A high mountaine: ſecondly, he ſheweth him all the kingdomes of the world, and the glorie of them all. For the firſt, it may be demanded, what way Satan tooke vp Chriſt into this high mountaine? Anſ. He might doe it two wayes; either by viſion, or by reall and locall tranſportation of his body from the Temple to ſome high mountain. Some thinke this was done by viſion onely in Chriſts minde, as [a] Ezekiel was carried by the Lord from Babylon to an exceeding high mountaine in the land of Iſrael. But I rather thinke that Chriſt was really and locally tranſported by the Deuill in body from the temple to ſome high mountaine; for Chriſts temptations were not imaginarie, but true and reall. Againe, the words import a true and reall tranſportation without any mention of a viſion.

a Ezek.40.2.

B The reaſons why the Deuill carries Chriſt to an high mountaine may be theſe: firſt, the Deuil hath a great deſire to imitate God in his glorious workes, that ſo he may diſgrace the workes of God, yea and God himſelfe as much as he can. Now we reade [b] that God tooke vp Moſes into mount Nebo, from whence he ſhewed him all the land of Canaan; ſo Satan, that he might ſeeme to goe beyond God, takes vp Chriſt into an exceeding high mountaine to ſhew him all the kingdomes of the world and the glory of them. Secondly, he did it for the furtherance of this laſt aſſault wherewith he tempted Chriſt, for he meant to entice Chriſt with the glory of the world, and therefore brings him where he might take the faireſt view C thereof.

b Deuter. 13.14.&c.

Now in that Satan tranſports the bodie of our Sauiour Chriſt this ſecond time, we ſee that by Gods permiſſion, Satan may haue power ouer the bodies of Gods children, to tranſport the ſame from place to place, or otherwiſe to vex them, and that not once onely, but ſundry times. This we muſt obſerue, and remember carefully as a ſtay and prop againſt diſtruſt and deſpaire, if God ſhould ſuffer Satan to vex vs, by ſuch tranſporting of our bodies from place to place, or by any outward calamities; and that not once or twice, but diuers times; for that which befell the head Chriſt Ieſus, may well befall any of his members.

Satan may haue power ouer the bodies of Gods children.

The ſecond part of the Deuils preparation is D this: he ſhewes vnto Chriſt all the kingdomes of the world, and the glorie of them. This he could not doe actually, for there is no mountaine ſo high in all the world, whereon if a man were placed, he could ſee one halfe or one quarter of the kingdomes of the world, as they are ſeated and placed vpon the face of the earth; nay if a man were ſet in the ſunne, and from thence could looke vnto the earth, yet he could not ſee paſt the halfe thereof. And therefore we muſt know that the Deuil did this in a counterfeit viſion, for herein he can frame an imitation of God.

Now the Deuils viſions be of two ſorts; either in the outward ſenſes, or in the minde and vnderſtanding. His viſions in the outward ſenſes be deluſions, whereby he makes men beleeue they ſee that, which indeede they doe not ſee; this might eaſily be prooued by manifold examples recorded in the Hiſtores of all times, but that one ſhall ſuffice, of his counterfait reſemblance of [a] Samuels forme and attire to the witch of Endor for the deluding of Saul; when as indeede Samuels true body was in the graue, and his ſoule with the Lord.

Of Diabolicall viſions.

a 1.Sam.28.14.

Secondly the deuill hath viſions whereby he deludes the vnderſtanding. Zak. 13. 4. The Lord ſaith hereof, the Prophets ſhall be aſhamed euery one of his viſion. Theſe viſions the Deuill ſhewes to men ſometime ſleeping, ſometime waking; euen as the Lord doth ſhew his viſions to his owne ſeruants. The viſions of Satan ſhewed to men ſleping are called dreams, Deut. 13.1. the falſe Prophet hath his dreame. His viſions ſhewed to men waking, are to ſuch as haue crazed braines, whom he perſwades ſtrange things of themſelues, as ſome, that they are kings or princes; others, that they are Chriſt, Iohn Baptiſt, and ſuch like; examples hereof in all ages are many. Now touching this viſion of Satan to Chriſt; ſome thinke it was inward in Chriſts mind, but I rather tak it to haue bin in his outward ſenſes onely, as the words of the text doe import; the Deuill by his art did cunningly ſet forth and repreſent vnto the eies of Chriſt a notable ſhew and repreſentation of all the kingdomes of the earth, and the glory of them.

Herein the Deuill ſheweth great power and skill, in that he can repreſent vnto the eie in his counterfeit viſions ſuch ſtrange and admirable ſights. And it teacheth vs, that the practiſes of Sorceres and Magicians, vndertaking to repreſent vnto the eie, partly in the aire, and partly in glaſſes, either the perſons of men that liued long ſince, or actions done in farre countries, or long before, are not meere fancies as ſome thinke, who deny altogether that ſuch things can be ſhewed: for the deuil can reſemble things done long ſince and a farre off; for if he could ſet ſuch a ſight before the eie of our Sauiour Chriſt in viſion, as the view of the whole world, and the glory thereof, then much more can he repreſent vnto the eie of man ſtrange and maruellous things.

The Deuils drift in this reſemblance vnto Chriſt is this; hereby he intended moſt cunningly to inſinuate himſelfe into the heart of our Sauiour Chriſt: for before he propounds this third aſſault he ſhewes vnto Chriſt all the kingdomes of the world, and the glory of them, that Chriſt might take a liking of them, and ſo deſire them, and at length accept of them vpon Satans offer. Thus he dealt with our firſt parents; [a] vpon their firſt communication he ſhewes vnto Eue the outward beauty of the forbidden fruite, that it was faire to looke vpon, and tells her of the good eſtate they ſhould attaine vnto by eating of it, and ſo at length brings her to yeeld to his temptation.

Looke well to ſeeing & hearing.

Hence we muſt learne to haue ſpeciall care in the good ordering of all the outward ſenſes of our bodies, ſpecially the two ſenſes of learning, ſeeing and hearing; for by them the Deuill can cunningly conuey his temptations into our hearts: the ſenſes (ſpecially theſe two) are the windowes of the heart and ſoule, and if we keepe them not well, Satan will be ſure to conuey ſome euill into vs. We muſt therefore obey Salomons counſell, [b] keepe thy heart aboue all watch and ward; this we cannot doe, vnleſſe we looke well to our outward ſenſes, for they are the doores of the heart. This made Dauid to pray, [c] Lord turne away mine eies from beholding vanity: and Iob [d] to make a couenant with his eies. And ſo muſt we make conſcience of hearing and looking, leaſt thereby we giue aduantage to the Tempter.

d Iob 31.1.

Further, in this ſight obſerue the deep policy of the Deuill: there are in the kingdomes of the world beſides glorie & dignity, many troubles, hurliburlies and vexations; now theſe the deuill conceales from Chriſt, and ſhewes him only the glory, pompe, wealth, and dignity, of the world, that ſo he might the more eaſily wind his temptation into the heart of our Sauiour Chriſt. And this ſame courſe he ſtil obſerueth in tempting men to ſinne; he hides from their eyes all the miſeries, plagues, & puniſhments which are due to ſinne, and that will follow vpon it; and ſhewes them onely all the profits and delights that they may reape thereby: thus he ſugars ouer the poiſon of his temptations, that men neuer feele the bitterneſſe of them till their ſoules be thereby deadly infected: but then he takes a cleane contrary courſe, and ſhewes to the wounded ſoule all the woes and terrours of Gods wrath, that if it be poſſible he may bring a man to deſpaire. And therefore we muſt be moſt watchfull of being inſnared with the deceitfulnes of ſinne in the faſe ſhew of profit and pleaſure.

Temptations frō the right hand moſt dangerous.

Secondly, the Deuills policy doth notably appeare in reſeruing this temptation for the laſt place: for he knowes full well how forcible with mã be the temptations of profits, pleaſures and honours. From whence we may alſo learne, that temptations fetched on the right hād from honour, pleaſure, and commodity, are the moſt dangerous, and doe ſooneſt creep into the heart of man, preuailing farre more then temptations on the left hand, which are taken from aduerſity. The Deuill foiled [a] Dauid worſe in the time of peace and eaſe, then euer he could do during the time of Sauls grieuous preſecution againſt him. And he preuailed more againſt the church by errours and hereſies vnder Conſtantine and other chriſtian Emperours, then he could do by moſt bloody perſecution for the ſpace of three hundred yeares before. Yea in theſe our daies worldly hopes haue drawne thoſe from the ſyncerity of religion, whome outward violence could not mooue: proſperity is a ſlippery path wherein a man doth ſoone catch a fall, and therfore we muſt learne to be moſt watchful ouer our owne hearts when we haue faireſt weather with the world.

a 2.Sam.11.2.

Laſtly, S. Luke [d] addeth this circumſtance of time, that the Deuill ſhewed all theſe things vnto Chriſt in as ſhort a time as might be, euen in a moment or point of time: whereby we may perceiue the Deuills great celerity and ſpeed in doing any thing he takes in hand, herein he goes beyond all men in the world: for being a ſpirit he is able to worke wonders, and though he cannot goe beyond the ſtrength and compaſſe of nature, becauſe his power is finite, yet by reaſon of his agility and ſpeed he can go beyond the ordinary courſe of nature in the manner of working the things he takes in hand. And this exceeding quicke ſpeed the Deuil here vſeth, to ſtirre vp in Chriſt a more eager deſire after thoſe ſtrange and goodly things whereof he had but as it were a glimpſe, that ſo by degrees he might work in Chriſt a liking of them; for the nature of man doth more eagerly affect ſtrange things when they be ſudden, and the eie of man doth more wiſtly behold them. And this alſo, as the former, muſt make vs watchfull againſt all Satans crafty wiles, that we be not beguiled by him. Thus much for Satans preparation.

b Luk.4.5.

Satan would bring Chriſt to idolatrie.

The ſecond point in this conflict, is the temptation it ſelfe, in theſe words; verſ. 9. And ſaid vnto him, all theſe will I giue thee, if thou wilt fall downe and worſhip me. The drift of Satan in this aſſault (which we muſt carefully obſerue) is to drawe Chriſt to commit idolatry by the hope of worldly kingdomes and the glorie of them: herewith he prooues him when he could neither weaken his faith by his firſt temptation, nor worke preſumption in him by his ſecond. And looke how he dealeth here with Chriſt, ſo doth he commonly in the world; many an ones conſcience and religion doth he quite ouerthrow by worldly hopes of riches, pleaſures, and preferments: hereby not onely ordinarie profeſſours, but miniſters and preachers of the goſpell haue beene drawn to abiure and renounce that truth which formerly they haue taught, and to betake themſelues as the Popes vaſſals to profeſſe and maintaine his blaſphemous idolatries: hereby alſo Proteſtant merchants, are drawne to become very ſeruiceable to the Popiſh Churches, by tranſporting among them wax and ſuch like merchandize, which ſerue as neceſſarie helps and furtherances to their idolatrous ſeruice. And what elſe is it that makes the people generally to change religion with the times and ſtates, but becauſe they would ſtill enioy their worldly cōmodities? And the more men doe poſſeſſe in the world, ordinarily the leſſe courage and reſolution they haue for the religion of God, as experience in Queene Maries daies hath ſhewed; which in generall may admoniſh vs how dangerous an enemie the world is to the power of true religion.

This temptation hath two parts, A promiſe made to Chriſt; and the condition thereof. The promiſe in theſe words, All theſe will I giue thee: he ſaith not, I will procure God to giue them vnto thee, but I will giue thee them: where we may ſee, that Satans drift is to cauſe Chriſt to take him for his Lord, to depend and wait on him for his kingdome, and to acknowledge him to be the giuer thereof: which notably bewraies his egregious boldneſſe, that dares thus challenge to himſelfe the Lords owne right, euen in the preſence of him who was true Lord and King of heauen and earth. Let no man therefore thinke, that Satan will loſe ought for want of aduenture; but in regard thereof be better armed againſt him.

Now that which the Deuill aimed at in Chriſt, doth he commonly effect in the world, he makes men beleeue that he is the giuer of all things and ſo brings many a one to relie vpon him. Indeede with their lips men will confeſſe that God giues them their daily bread, euen all things they haue; but their dealings and practiſes ſpeake aloud that the deuill is gouernour and giuer of all; for how doe many men get their liuings? Is it not by lying, fraud, and oppreſſion? Doe not moſt men hereby ſeeke to inrich themſelues? Well, the iuſt Lord neuer approoueth ſuch meanes: the Deuill ſetteth ſuch courſes a flote, and him they ſerue, and on him they relie that walke therein.

Satans enmitie againſt Chriſts ſpirituall kingdome.

Secondly, note a further reach of Satan in this promiſe of theſe earthly kingdomes, euen to ouerthrow Chriſts ſpirituall kingdome. Satan knew well that if Chriſt were the true Meſſias, he ſhould be a King, and haue a kingdome, though not earthly, yet ſpirituall in the hearts and conſciences of men, which ſhould be the ruine of his kingdome; and therefore he labours with Chriſt to entertain an earthly kingdome, that ſo his ſpirituall kingdome might not be looked after. And looke as he ſeekes to deale with Chriſt the head, ſo he perſeuers againſt the Church which is his body; for Gods church hath it miniſterie, which in it nature is a soueraigntie, to be exerciſed in the diſpenſation of the word: nowe the Deuill hath laboured by all meanes to bring this miniſterie wherein the Churches ſpirituall ſoueraigntie doth conſiſt, to become an earthly lordſhip and dominion, that by this meanes he might ouerturne it, and make it fruitleſſe in the building and vpholding of Chriſts ſpirituall kingdome: and how he hath preuailed this way the Church of Rome doth ſhewe to all the world.

Thirdly, obſerue the largeneſſe of the Deuils promiſe: he will giue to Chriſt all the kingdomes of the world, and the glory of them: but this is more then he meant to our Sauiour Chriſt, at leaſtwiſe more then he could performe; for all theſe were not in his power. Now becauſe in all things we muſt be as vnlike the deuil as may be, hence we muſt learne to be wary and watchfull to our promiſes, that therein we be not like vnto Satan, promiſing that which we neuer meane to performe, or neuer can performe though we meant it. In all our promiſes therefore we muſt looke to two things; Firſt, whether the thing we promiſe be in our power; Secondly, whether it be lawfull and meet for vs to performe. This fidelitie in keeping promiſe is a fruit of the ſpirit, called by the Apoſtle, faith, Gal. 5. 25. and a propertie of him that muſt reſt in Gods holy mountaine, Pſal. 15. 4. not to change from a mans lawfull oath or promiſe, though the performance of it tende to his great hinderance.

Fourthly, in this promiſe of Satan we may obſerue, that he knowes all the kingdomes of the world, elſe he could not haue ſhewed them to him which here he offers to giue: yea his offering of them, with the glory of them all which he could ſo ſpeedily repreſent, doth ſhew vnto vs that he is moſt expert in the policies and regiment of ſtates and kingdomes: he goes not to and fro for nought compaſſing the earth, Iob. 1. 7. And his promiſe of them to Chriſt, was made to inflame his heart with ambition after thoſe kingdoms and glories, that he might enioy ſome of them at the leaſt. Wherein wee may note that one ſpeciall practiſe of the deuill is to ouerturne ſtates and kingdomes, by putting ambition into mens hearts after earthly kingdomes, and glories: his ſtudy is to doe miſchiefe, and in the ruine of kingdomes he ouerthrowes many, and therefore hereunto he endeauours himſelfe with might & maine. Hence come inſurrections and rebellions in kingdoms which no time nor age could euer eſcape: looke as he ſtirred vp the Chaldeans and Sabeans to inrich themſelues by the ſpoiling of Iob, ſo dealeth he by ambitious and couetous perſons in all eſtates, as true records of times doe fully teſtifie. We may ſee the truth hereof in our own land, in the manifold complots and treaſons both at home and abroad that haue beene conſpired and attempted againſt our * Prince and State, by profane men ſtirred vp by the Deuill through ambition and diſcontent: howſoeuer by Gods mercy themſelues haue beene taken in the ſnare that they laid for others. In regard whereof we are all bound to yeeld al praiſe and glorie to God for his gratious preſeruation and defence both of our Prince and State; and to ſhew forth our thankfulneſſe by all holy obedience vnto that God who hath brought to nought the deuilliſh conſpiracies & treacheries of the ambitious inſtruments of Satan. Secondly, we muſt pray vnto God continually for the preſeruation of our Prince and State; crying aloud vnto God as the people did at the coronation a of Salomon, for the ſafety of our Prince: yea we muſt daily intreat the Lord to bring to nought the counſell of Achitophels, and of all that thinke euill againſt the Lords anointed among vs. Queſt. But how comes it to paſſe that any Prince or State can ſtand, if the Deuill haue ſuch malice againſt them? Anſw.

* Q. Elizabeth, and it may fitly be applied to our preſent State.

Through

Through the good prouidence of God, who giues his Angels charge to guard and defend, not onely his children in particular, but alſo whole Kingdomes and States. And one part of their office is for the good of Gods Church, to repell the rage of Satan and his inſtruments, yea to ſtand with Gods Church in the execution of iudgements vpon the enemies thereof. In the ſiege of Iericho an heauenly [b] captaine of the Lord of Hoſts came to helpe Ioſhuah: and when the king of Syria ſent a mightie hoſt to take the Prophet Eliſha that was in Dothan, the Lord ſent for his defence [c] horſes and chariots of fire, which filled the mountaines. And in the dayes of Hezekiah, for his comfort, and the ioy of Gods people, an Angel of the Lord ſlew in the hoſt of Zenacherib, that came againſt Ieruſalem, an hundred fourescore and fiue thouſand in one night. And we want not ſure teſtimony of this good prouidence of God in the ſtrange diſcoueries of many deuilliſh conſpiracies.

Fiftly, Satan ſaith, all theſe will I giue thee. This is the voice of the great red Dragon: and the ſame is the voice of the Pope of Rome, both regiſtred in their canons, and daily attempted in practiſe, to diſpoſe of all the kingdomes of the earth; wherby he ſhews euidently, that he is that [d] beaſt comming out of the earth hauing two hornes like the Lambe, but he ſpake like the Dragon. For the Lambs hornes he ſhewes in calling himſelfe the ſeruant of ſeruants; and the voice of the Dragon, that is of the deuill, in taking vpon him to diſpoſe of the ſoueraignties of theſe earthly Kingdomes.

d Reu.13.11.

Laſtly, Saint Luke recordeth a reaſon, which the Deuill addeth to his promiſe, to preuent all conceit of impoſſibility in him to performe the ſame; to wit, for that [e] the power and glory of all the kingdomes of the world is deliuered to him, and to whomſoeuer he will he giues it. Wherein obſerue in Satan two notorious ſinnes: firſt, a groſſe lie; for Daniel ſaith, [f] that it is Iehouah, the moſt high God, who beareth rule ouer all the kingdomes of men, and giueth them to whomſoeuer he will. Secondly, arrogant and ſhameleſſe boaſting, to vaunt himſelfe euen to the Lords owne face, as though he were ſoueraigne lord of that which belongs to God alone. The conſideration whereof muſt mooue vs, who in all godlie conuerſation muſt be contrary to Satan, to renounce all lying, and to make conſcience to ſpeake the truth from our hearts. And alſo to abandon all vaine boaſting of our ſelues what we are, or what we can do, yea rather to ſpeake baſely of our ſelues, that ſo God in all good things we doe may haue the glory. Lying and bragging are the properties of Satan, and therefore cannot beſeeme the tongue and heart of the children of God.

e Luk.4.6.
f Dan.4.21.

The ſecond point in this temptation, is the hard condition which Satan would haue Chriſt to yeeld vnto for this gift; If thou wilt fall downe and worſhip me: euen to commit moſt abhominable idolatrie in worſhipping the Deuill himſelfe. Herein we may obſerue ſundry things:

Firſt, that it is a principall part of the Deuils endeauours againſt Gods church, to ſeeke the ouerthrow of true religion, and the pure worſhip of God, by ſowing therein the ſeedes of hereſies and idolatries; for if he dares be thus bold with Chriſt the head, as to ſeeke to drawe him from the worſhip of his Father to ſuch abhominable idolatry, what will he not attempt with ſilly and ſinnefull men? The Scriptures are plentifull in ſhewing his indeauours this way. Michaiah ſaw in a viſion [a] an euill ſpirit offering himſelfe vnto God, to become a lying ſpirit in the mouth of all Ahabs Prophets, euen foure hundred at one time. When Iehoſhuah the high Prieſt ſtood before the Lord, [b] Satan ſtood at his right hand to reſiſt him; he ſought to hinder the building and worſhip of the materiall temple; much more therefore will he ſeeke to hinder the building of the ſpirituall temple, euen the worke of the miniſterie in conuerſion of ſoules, whereby they are pulled out of Satans kingdome, and made pillars in the temple of the liuing God. Satan is that [c] enuious man that ſoweth tares of errors and hereſies in the church of God, which is the field of the good husbandman. He hindred [d] Paul from comming to the Theſſalonians. Whereby it appeares, that he did his endeauour to hinder the courſe of the Apoſtolicall miniſterie. In the Church of Smyrna, [e] he caſt ſome into priſon, ſtirring vp wicked men ſo to doe, thereby to hinder the embracing of the Goſpell. [f] Iohn ſawe three vncleane ſpirits like frogges come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beaſt, and out of the mouth of the falſe Prophet. Theſe are ſpirits of the Deuils, working miracles, and going to the kings of the earth: thither they goe for the ſtoppage of the Goſpell; for if kings oppoſe themſelues, they become greateſt hinderers to the Goſpel of all other. And theſe frogges by the common conſent of Catholike expoſitors, are the rabble of Popiſh Friers, Prieſts, and Ieſuits, who ſeeke the infection of States through all the world. By all which, the Deuills enmitie againſt the Church is moſt apparent.

The vſe. I. This ſhewes what care and diligence Gods Miniſters ſhould ſhew for the building of Gods Church, and the furtherance of the Goſpell: for they ſhould ſeeke to the vttermoſt of their power to counteruaile the enuious practiſe of Satan againſt the Church.

II. Euery Chriſtian muſt hence learne, to pray not onely for their owne good eſtate, but alſo for the wellfare of Gods church euery where, in the free paſſage of the Goſpell, in the eſtabliſhing of true doctrine, and in the continuance of conſtant obedience thereunto. For Satans endeauour is to ſubuert and corrupt the truth, and to drawe men from obedience; and vnto him Gods children muſt euer oppoſe themſelues, the rather becauſe their welfare ſtands in the good of Gods Church.

Secondly, in this condition of Satans offer to Chriſt, we may obſerue that his endeauour is to bring men to worſhip him: for if he durſt attempt a demaund hereof at the hands of Chriſt, who ſhall thinke to eſcape this aſſault when opportunitie ſerues him? And howſoeuer men thinke it impoſſible, that Satan ſhould thus far preuaile with any, as to bring them to worſhip him; yet doubtleſſe (though he could not preuaile with Chriſt) herein he attaines his purpoſe in the world, and that with the greateſt part thereof: for the three religions of the Iew, Turk, and Papiſt, doe at this day ouerſpread the greateſt part of the face of the earth; and in them all, ſuch a worſhip of God is propounded vnto men, wherein God is not worſhipped but the Deuill. For the euidence whereof marke theſe two rules; Firſt, that all doctrines deuiſed by man in the matter of religion, which either directly or by iuſt conſequence oppugne the word of God, are doctrines of Deuils: 1. Tim. 4. 1. 3. Doctrines repugnant to the word, touching mariage, and meates, are doctrines of Deuils; and ſo by proportion are all ſuch like. Secondly, all deuiſed worſhip of God by man, againſt Gods word, is no worſhip of God, but of the Deuill: 1. Cor. 10. 20. The things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice vnto Deuills, and not vnto God. Doubtleſſe, the Gentiles intended to worſhip God in their images, but becauſe that worſhip was not according to Gods will, the Apoſtle reſpects not their intent, as a thing that could nothing auaile in this caſe, but ſaith peremptorily, their worſhip was done vnto the Deuill. And in reaſon it muſt be ſo, for why ſhould we thinke, that God ſhould accept that for his worſhip, which is not agreeable to his will, but deuiſed by man, according to the will of the Deuill?

Two rules for triall of religion.

From theſe two rules it will follow, that the beſt of the three forenamed religions, is no worſhip of God, but of the Deuill: for all of them haue ſuch worſhip as is deuiſed by man, and not of God; The Iew worſhips God out of Chriſt; and ſo doth the Turke: yea and the Papiſts worſhip God, but yet out of the true Chriſt; for (as hath beene ſhewed elſe-where) the Chriſt of the Papiſts is a counterfeit Chriſt. And in many other points of their religion, there is apparent repugnancie to the word of God; yea of their ſacrifice of the Maſſe, we may as truely ſay as the Apoſtle did of heathen idol worſhip, that they ſacrifice not vnto God, but to the deuil: for therein is as vile, accurſed, and abhominable Idolatry, as euer was deuiſed by man. So that it is plaine the Deuill doth mightily preuaile in cauſing men to worſhip him. Yea he preuaileth thus not onely in the world, but in Gods church; for all ſuch as (notwithſtanding their outward profeſſion) haue their hearts ſet vpon the world, more eagerly affecting the honors, profits, & pleaſures thereof, then God and his word, do in deed & truth worſhip the Deuill; for he is the [a] God of this world, ruling in the heart of the children of diſobedience, by the baites of honour, profit & pleaſure: he ſteales mens hearts from God, and ſo herein they doing the will of the Deuill, muſt needs worſhip him; for looke whereon a man ſetteth his heart, that he maketh his God.

Cor. 4. 4.

A

Thirdly, here obſerue that the Deuill would faine make a couenant with Chriſt; for worſhip at Chriſts hands, he will giue Chriſt the glorie and riches of the world; hereto is nothing wanting but Chriſts conſent. Whereby we ſee that it may be true which ſundrie times we heare of, and many hiſtories doe record, to wit, that ſome perſons doe make a league with the Deuill, wherein the Deuill couenanteth to be ſeruiceable vnto them in procuring them honour, riches, pleaſures, or great renowne for ſome ſtrange actiuities, whereto he will enable them, vpon condition that they for their parts giue vnto him, their bodies, their ſoules, or their blood. Some indeed are of mind, that ſuch things are meere forgeries and deluſions of the Deuil, and that no league can be made between him and man: but they are deceiued, for he attempted in effect ſuch a thing with Chriſt, what will he not therefore doe with ſilly and ſinfull men, eſpecially when he findes them caſt down with diſcontents? And thus much for the deuils aſſault.

Some make a league with the Deuill.

The third point in this conflict is Chriſts anſwer, v. 10. Then Ieſus ſaid vnto him, Auoid Satan: for it is written, thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him onely ſhalt thou ſerue. This I wil handle as the words doe lie in order.

C

Before his anſwer he propoundeth a ſpeech of indignation and deteſtation both of the Deuill and his offer, auoid Satan, as if he ſhould ſay, I haue heard thee Satan to ſpeak iniuriouſly againſt my fathers word, and againſt my ſelfe; and now againe, thou vtteſt blaſphemy againſt my father, wherein thou goeſt about to diſhonour him greatly; but I abhorre thee Satan, and theſe thy temptations, therefore hence, auoid, and haue no more to doe with me.

In this deteſtation of Chriſt towards Satan, for vttering blaſphemie againſt his father, in his chalenge to haue power to diſpoſe of all the kingdoms of the world, as beeing his owne; we are taught not onely to greeue at ſuch blaſphemies as we ſhall heare vttered againſt God, but to teſtifie our deteſtation and indignation towards them. The world is full of black mouthed Rabſhekaes, who will not ſpare to blaſpheme the glorious name of our God, and to ſcoffe and deride his ſacred word: now when we meet with ſuch, we muſt not be like Stoicks without affection, but in Chriſtian wiſdome from bleeding hearts for the reproch of God, ſhew forth godly zeale and indignation, for the reſcue of his glorie. The Hypocriticall practiſe of wicked Iezabel [a] in proclaming a faſt vpon the falſe accuſation of Naboths blaſphemie againſt God and the king, may teach Gods Church to be zealous indeede againſt all blaſphemers. When Rabſheka railed on the God of Iſraell, [b] good king Hezekiah rent his clothes, and humbled himſelfe in great meaſure for that reproch againſt his God. Teares[c] were Dauids meat day and night, while the heathen among whome he was conſtrained to liue, ſaid vnto him, where is thy God? And iuſt Lot[d] vexed his righteous ſoule from day to day with the vnlawfull deeds of the filthie Sodomites, liuing among them. The practiſe of theſe godly men muſt be a preſident for vs to follow, that we heare no blaſphemie againſt God without deteſtation, And as all Gods children muſt practiſe this dutie, ſo eſpecially Maſters of families: Dauid[e] would not ſuffer a lier or a ſlanderer to come in his ſight, or abide in his houſe; much leſſe would he haue endured a blaſphemer of God, or a ſlanderer of his word. The law commanded that the[f] blaſphemer ſhould be ſtoned to death, who wittingly and willingly ſpake a word againſt God: and no doubt this law is perpetuall. Let a man but ſpeake a word of diſgrace againſt an earthly Prince, and it coſts him his life, and that iuſtly: how much more then ſhould he die the death though he had a thouſand liues, that ſhal blaſpheme the king of kings? Shall one that hath beene baptized into the name of Chriſt, ſay there is no God, and that the Scriptures are but a deuice of man, and yet liue? God forbid: for this helliſh ſinne defiles a kingdome. And therefore the Magiſtrate with the ſword of iuſtice muſt cry out againſt ſuch wretches, Away from vs blaſphemers.

Secondly, in this Auant of Chriſt giuen to Satan, we learne houe to behaue our ſelues againſt entiſers from religion and the obedience of God; we muſt hold them as limmes of the Deuill, and in that regard haue nothing to doe with them, but with Chriſt bid them auoid from vs. The[g] Lord commanded that in this caſe, Parents ſhould not ſpare their owne children, nor children ſpare their Parents, if they were enticers to idolatrie, but their owne hands muſt be firſt vpon them to put them to death: Our Sauiour Chriſt would not ſpare Peter when he gaue him bad counſel, to ſpare himſelfe from ſuffering that which God hath ordained for him, but ſaith vnto him,[h] get behind me Satan. So that we are without excuſe if we ſhall reiect this counſell of Salomon,[i] Heare no more the inſtruction, that cauſeth to erre from the words of knowledge.

Thirdly, hereby we alſo learne how to behaue our ſelues towardes Satan when he is violent and importunate in his temptations and aſſaults, to wit, that howſoeuer we may reply to them out of Gods word when they are more milde, yet when Satan beginnes therein to ſhew his force and violence we muſt not reaſon with him: for Chriſt would not endure his blaſphemie, though he anſwered his temptations. In ſchooles of learning it is counted a ſimple part to hold alwaies to the concluſion: but in the ſchoole of Chriſt when the conſcience is to deale with Satan, the ſafeſt way is by both hands of faith to lay faſt hold of the concluſion; cleaue faſt to Chriſt, let the Deuill ſay what he will, bee not drawen thence one iot.

After Chriſt hath ſhewed his deteſtation to Satans blaſphemie he anſwers his temptation; ſaying, It is written, thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, &c. And whereas he ſaith the third time, it is written, taking his anſwer from the Scripture; it teacheth vs that Scripture of it ſelfe is of power ſufficient to vanquiſh the Deuill. This the Church of Rome will not admit; for they make Scripture to be of two kinds; inward and outward; By inward Scripture they meane, the vniuerſall conſent of all Catholikes in all ages. And by outward Scripture, they vnderſtand the written word contained in the Bible. Now they ſay, inward Scripture is the more excellent; for the outward Scripture they call a dead letter, of little or no power; and they make general coũcels equall with them for ſubſtance of doctrine. If this were true, Chriſt would not haue alledged outward Scripture, as they call it; but he knew the written word was the powerfull weapon, ſufficient to vanquiſh the Deuill. And therefore herein they doe ſhamefully blaſpheme the truth of God, and ſo God himſelfe.

Secondly, this allegation of Chriſt teacheth vs, how to behaue our ſelues againſt all enemies to the truth, that would allure vs to hereſie, as to Popery, Anabaptiſme, or ſuch like; namely to ſtick faſt to the text of Scripture, and not to ſuffer our ſelues by any meanes to be drawen from it. It may be thou art vnlearned and thine enemie both learned and eloquent; yet here is thy refuge, cleaue the faſter to this written word, and if thou haue one text for thy truth, make more account thereof, then of all the teſtimonies of counſels, fathers, or men whatſoeuer. This inſtruction is needfull, for it may be God will ſuffer ſeducers to try his children, and then, vnleſſe they keep ſure this ground of faith, they ſhall ſurely be ſeduced.

The text which Chriſt alleadgeth for his anſwer, is taken out of Deutr. 6. 13. where the words are thus read; Thou ſhalt feare the Lord thy God, and ſerue him. At the firſt, it may ſeeme that Chriſt miſalleadgeth that text, and corrupteth it: for where Moſes ſaith, Thou ſhalt feare the Lord thy God; Chriſt ſaith, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God: and to the latter part Chriſt addeth the word onely; ſaying, him onely ſhalt thou ſerue, for that which Moſes ſaith, and ſerue him. But the truth is, here is no corruption, but a moſt worthy allegation, as we ſhall plainly ſee, if we conſider two things: firſt, that Chriſt and his Apoſtles in alledging the Scriptures of the old Teſtament, did not ſo much reſpect the words as the true and proper meaning of the place. Secondly, that they oft expound the places which they alledge, & thereupon doe ſometimes vary in word, but ſtil retaine the true ſenſe and meaning. So it is in this text alledged: Moſes ſaith, thou ſhalt feare the Lord thy God, vnderſtanding by feare, religious awe and reuerence: And Chriſt ſaying, thou ſhalt worſhip or adore the Lord thy God, vnderſtandeth by worſhip, outward adoration in bowing of the body, whereby we teſtifie the inward awe and reuerence of the heart, as when we humble our ſelues to call vpon God by prayer. And this change of words by Chriſt, ſerue for excellent vſe in this place, to wit, to let vs more clearely ſee what this feare of God is. To feare God in that place, is from a reuerent awe of the heart towards God, to humble a mans ſelfe in proſtrating his body before the Lord, either to praiſe God for benefits receiued, or to pray vnto him for gifts and graces needfull. Againe, for the word which he addeth, therin is no fault at all, for the full ſenſe and true meaning of Moſes text muſt needes include ſo much, as the Prohibition annexed in the verſe following doth plainely ſhew: for ſaying thou ſhalt feare the Lord thy God, and ſerue him: and adding, Thou ſhalt not walk after other Gods, v. 14. is it not all one, as if he had ſaid, thou ſhalt ſerue him onely? ſo that we haue iuſt cauſe to bleſſe God for the true and plaine explaning of the words, and not to ſurmiſe the leaſt corruption in the alledging of them.

Now then for our further inſtruction in this text alledged, conſider two points: firſt, what worſhip and ſeruice is: ſecondly, to whom it belongeth. Firſt, worſhip generall betokeneth, the exhibiting and giuing of reuerence and honour to another. This worſhip is twofold; Ciuill, or Diuine; Ciuil worſhip is that outward reuerence and honour which one man giues to another, as by proſtrating the body, bowing the knee, &c. The ende of Ciuil worſhip is, to teſtifie and acknowledge ſuperioritie and preheminence in another, either for authority and office, as the ſubiect worſhips his king and gouernour; or for gifts and graces, or for olde age; as inferiours in gifts and yonger in age by due reuerence muſt acknowledge. In this Ciuill manner did Iacob bow himſelfe ſeauen times to his brother Eſau, thereby acknowledging him for his ſuperiour and better, Gen. 33. 3. Thus alſo did Abraham bow himſelf before the Hittites, Gen. 23. 7. And Lot vnto the Angels that came into Sodome, taking them to be but men, Gen. 19. 1. And in this ciuill manner it is lawfull to kneele before Kings and Princes, to teſtifie our ſubiection vnto them, and loyall acknowledgement of their preheminence ouer vs vnder God.

Diuine worſhip is the aſcribing of Diuinity to the thing we honour, wherby we make it vnto vs ſome diuine thing aboue the order of any creature. A man may aſcribe Diuinitie vnto a thing 4. waies: firſt, by attributing the Godhead vnto it, or giuing vnto it ſuch honour whereby he acknowledgeth the ſame to be God. Secondly, by aſcribing vnto it the attributes of God, as omnipreſence, omnipotency, to be moſt iuſt, to know all things, &c. Thirdly, by accepting & acknowledging it to be the Creator and Gouernour of all things. Fourthly, by acknowledging it to be the giuer of all good things, the defender and deliuerer from all euill. And to whatſoeuer thing in worſhip a man aſcribes any of theſe, to the ſame doth he aſcribe Diuinitie. This diuine worſhip doth principally conſiſt in religion and piety; for by religion, which indeede is Gods worſhip, and by pietie, doe men aſcribe vnto a thing diuine and religious honour.

Diuine worſhip is twofold: Inward in the mind; or outward in the body. Inward diuine worſhip is, when a man giues his heart and ſoule to any thing, deuoting thereto the affections of his heart, as loue, feare, ioy, hope, faith, and confidence, and that becauſe he conceiueth it to be God, hauing diuine properties, as omnipotencie, infinite wiſedome, iuſtice, mercie, &c. or beeing the Creator and Gouernour of all; or the giuer of all good things vnto him, and his preſeruer from all euill. This deuoting of the heart and ſoule vnto God with the faculties and affections thereof, is the ground and ſubſtance of all diuine worſhip, and indeede can be giuen to nothing but to that which is God, or conceiued of as God. Outward diuine worſhip is, when a man ſhall any way bow, proſtrate, or caſt downe his body to any thing, thereby to teſtifie, that his minde and heart are deuoted to it: as that he holds it to be God, to be omnipotent, &c. Creator and gouernour, and his preſeruer, and therefore he doth repoſe his truſt and affiance therein, ſet his loue, ioy, and feare thereon aboue all other things. And here we may obſerue a difference betweene Ciuill worſhip and Diuine. By outward ciuill worſhip we onely acknowledge preheminence and ſuperioritie in another, in regard of authoritie, of gifts, age, or ſuch like. But by outward diuine worſhip we acknowledge diuinity to be in the thing whereto we bow or proſtrate our ſelues. Againe, we muſt here alſo remember, that outward diuine worſhip ſerues onely to teſtifie the inward, euen to make knowne what thing it is which we conceiue to be God, and whereto we haue deuoted the affections of our hearts.

Difference betweene ciuil worſhip and diuine.

Thus we ſee what worſhip is, and the kinds thereof. And here we muſt vnderſtand our Sauiour Chriſt to meane, outward diuine worſhip, as if he ſhould ſay, Thou ſhalt religiouſly ſubmit, bow, or proſtrate thy body vnto God in prayer and thankſgiuing, thereby teſtifying that thou haſt deuoted thy heart and ſoule vnto him, not onely conceiuing him to be the diuine eſſence, omnipotent, infinite, &c. but alſo that thou doeſt reſt and relie on him as on thy Creator, who doth bleſſe thee with all good things, and preſerue thee from all euill.
